Once in a while a preacher quits the pulpit and takes another job—one that will leave something in his pay envelope after taking out the tolls of butcher, candlestick maker and baker. Then his congregation speaks of his "fall from grace" and he is branded as an outcast.

The preacher ought to preach. What right has he to "stew" and fret about shoes for his children, food

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, JULY 6

Sunday-school Lesson, The Church: Its Life and Work. —Acts 2: 37-47; 1 Thess. 5: 11-15.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Our Local Christian Workers' Society in the Forward Movement.—Matt. 1: 23b; 1 Cor. 3: 9.

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. Geo. Mishler, of South Whitley, Ind., in the Zion church, Mich.

Brother and Sister Ralph G. Rarick, of Covington, Ohio, in the North Liberty church, Ind.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One was baptized recently in the Bethany church, W. Va.

One was recently baptized in the Eagle Creek church, Ohio.

Two have recently been baptized in the Schuylkill church, Pa.

Four recently confessed Christ in the Oklahoma City church, Okla.

Two confessed Christ in the Reading church, Oley Valley Mission, Pa.

Four were baptized in the Goshen church, Ind.,—Bro. D. L. Miller, of Mt. Morris, Ill., evangelist.

One accepted Christ in the Critton schoolhouse, W. Va., —Bro. J. F. Britton, of Bristow, Va., evangelist.

Six were baptized in the Plum Creek church, Pa.,—Bro. John R. Snyder, of Bellefontaine, Ohio, evangelist.

Nine accepted Christ in the Freeburg church, Ohio,—Bro. Adam H. Miller, of Louisville, same State, evangelist.

Seven were baptized in the Mechanic Grove church, Pa., —Bro. W. K. Conner, of Harrisburg, same State, evangelist.

Ten were baptized and two reclaimed at the Lima City church, Ohio,—Bro. J. L. Mahon, of Van Buren, Ind., evangelist.

Eight were baptized and one restored in the Smith Fork church, Mo.,—Brethren C. B. Smith and E. L. Ikenberry, evangelists.

Eighteen were baptized in the Accident church, Md.,—Bro. B. F. Waltz, of Salisbury, Pa., evangelist; one was baptized previous to the meetings.

Fifteen confessed Christ, thirteen of whom were baptized in the Bethel-Mahoning church, Ohio,—Bro. C. O. Beery, of Pleasant Hill, same State, evangelist.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. W. C. Detrick, of Bryan, Ohio, to begin August 24 in the Wabash church, Ind.

Bro. Jonas Fike, of Eglon, W. Va., to begin Sept. 13 in the Harman church, same State.

Bro. David Metzler, of Nappanee, Ind., to begin Sept. 7 in the Center church, same State.

Bro. P. S. Miller, of Roanoke, Va., to begin some time in August in the Fraternity church, N. C.

Brother and Sister Ralph G. Rarick, of Covington, Ohio, to begin August 3 in the Selma church, Va.

Bro. Roy Dilling, of Oak Park, Ill., to begin some time in August in the Pleasant Dale church, Ind.

Bro. Reuben Shroyer, of Canton, Obio, to begin some time in January in the New Haven church, Mich.

Bro. J. A. Naff, of Boones Mill, Va., to begin August 3 at the Maple Grove house, Fraternity church, N. C.

Bro. B. D. Hirt, of Portland, Ind., to begin some time in September in the Monticello church, same State.

Bro. John C. Zug, of Palmyra, Pa., to begin August 16 at the Holdswamp house, Lower Conewago congregation, same State.

Bro. Harrison Gipe, of Palmyra, Pa., to begin some time in October at the Baumstown house, Oley Valley Mission, same State.

Bro. John R. Snyder, of Bellefontaine, Ohio, to begin in the Indiana Mission, Pa., July 27, assisted by Bro. G. E. Householder, of Altoona, Pa., as song leader.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. Abednego Miller, of Degraff, Ohio, should hereafter be addressed at Bellefontaine, same State.

Bro. M. S. Frantz changes his address from 1532 Penn Avenue, Wichita, Kans., to Lindsay, Calif.

Bro. Homer E. Blough, of 354 North Vine Street, West Wichita, Kans., is open for several weeks of evangelistic work the latter part of August and first of September, preferably among the churches of Iowa or Northern Illinois.

Bro. Daniel W. Boyer, Center Point, Ind., is available for Musical Institutes among the churches, we are informed, during the months of July and August. Those interested will do well to write him promptly at the address given above.

Our latest word concerning the Sunday-school Commission to the East, of which Bro. J. E. Miller was a member, is to the effect that the party had reached London and that Bro. Miller was scheduled to sail from Havre on June twenty-first. According to this he should be putting in his appearance at Elgin before this issue reaches our readers.

Just as we are ready for the press we have learned of the passing of our dear Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh to his heavenly reward. He had been in failing health for some time and the end came quietly at 4 P. M., Saturday, June 28. He was past eighty-three years of age. Through his long and useful pen-ministry Bro. Brumbaugh was widely known by two generations of readers of our church periodicals. A review of his life and labors will appear in an early issue.

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

Members of Northern Missouri will please note the announcement of the Program Committee of the District, as given among the Notes.

As announced among the Notes, Bro. H. V. Townsend, of Woodland, Mich., is the newly-appointed Secretary-Treasurer of the District Mission Board of that State. Those who are specially interested, will please note the change.

MISCELLANEOUS

The La Verne College Bulletin, Catalogue Number, is one of the latest additions to the "Messenger" library.

In order to get this issue to our readers without being delayed by the general suspension of business for the observance of Independence Day, we are obliged to close our columns some hours earlier than usual. Matter thus delayed will appear in our next issue.

Work on the "Full Report" of our recent Conference is being hurried as fast as our facilities permit, and we suggest that all who have not yet attended to the matter, will kindly send us their order at the earliest date possible. Only 35 cents per copy.

An Elder Wanted.—The Killbuck church, Ind., has, for some years, been without a resident elder. At a recent council a committee was appointed to locate an elder on partial support, with special opportunity for full support. Experience and reference are necessary. Any one wishing to change location, to get where he can be useful in the Master's cause, will please address Bro. H. E. Millspaugh, R. D. 8, Muncie, Ind.

The Hagerstown church, Md., had a week's bicentennial celebration from Sunday, June 15, to Sunday, June 22. A splendid program was announced, including historical and inspirational addresses by Brethren F. F. Holsopple, D. Victor Long, H. C. Early, J. Kurtz Miller, Galen B. Royer, Jesse B. Emmert and Ross D. Murphy. Every congregation ought to do something of this kind, even if it could not offer such an array of talent as this.

West Wichita church, Kansas, is looking for a pastor. Brother and Sister Homer E. Blough, who have been located there for the last two years, expect to leave the first of August, in order to make further educational preparation for their work. Wichita is a city of schools and offers exceptional school facilities. The church, though not large, is an active one. It is under the care of the District Mission Board and correspondence should be addressed to the Chairman, Eld. J. J. Yoder, McPherson, Kans.

The American Friends Service Committee will no longer be able to send personal packages through its storeroom in Philadelphia to members of its Reconstruction Unit in France. It is now possible, however, to send boxes not exceeding seven pounds in weight by parcel post to any point in France. A special customs tag is required and can be secured at any postoffice. The Service Committee is very glad to have had this opportunity to serve at a time when transmission by mail was impossible.

Our Transportation Agent, Bro. P. S. Miller, gives us a few facts about prospective fares for the next Annual Conference which will probably be of interest even at this early date," the more so because we lost out so completely this year, though we were just in reach of the one and one-third rate." This is Bro. Miller's statement about the outlook for next year: "A few days after we returned from our late Winona Conference there went into effect, by order of the Government Director General of Railroads, an order for the sale of tickets, account of all conventions held during the year, at the rate of one and one-third the regular fares. This order, it is believed, will be in effect as long at least as the railroads are under the control of the Government, which means a good prospect for low fares on account of our next Conference if at that time the Government is still in control of railroads. Should the original owners then be in control, it is also reasonably sure that we will be able to obtain tickets at a rate considerably lower than the regular fares."

Our Giving.—Sometimes, after some specially conspicuous effort along the line of giving, we are very apt to be just a little boastful of our liberality. But have you ever noticed that in the matter of individual giving the most striking instances of sacrifice come from the newly-converted heathen, who are actually giving out of their deep poverty? Eighty per cent of the organized Korean congregations are already self-supporting. Hundreds of devoted Korean leaders and lay preachers serve wholly without remuneration. Dr. Geo. Heber Jones is authority for the statement that "Korean men have been known to mortgage their own houses, that mortgages might be removed from God's sanctuary. Quite often the crops of good millet are sold, on which they might subsist comfortably during the winter, and the difference in price is given to the support of workers among their own countrymen. Thousands of them gave last year from one week to one month each to the work of proclaiming the Gospel to neighboring and distant communities."

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

How He Made His Farm a Character Builder.—Bishop W. F. McDowell tells of an old farmer who, at the close of the Civil War, bereft of his sons, happened to be seated in a college chapel one day. He saw the students come in, and had a vision of the long procession of students through the coming years. He said to himself: "These will go and others will come. The professors will go, and others will take their places. My farm would just about endow a chair. I will go home and deed it to this college. Then, by the grace of God, I shall be here while the world stands." Where is there any other farm that has produced so valuable a crop as has this one, during the last fifty years?

Will It Be a Wise Change?—Some of the religious journals are recommending that the term "Sunday-school" be superseded by the more expressive name "The Church School." Possibly the proposed appellation has the advantage of defining the purpose and intent of the school far better than the old name, though admittedly the long and continued use of the original name has so forcibly imprinted itself upon the heart of the world until it has a place and significance all its own. The name "Bible School" also has its advocates. Eventually the name that shall come into greatest favor might be "The Church Bible School,"—a designation that would amply cover the aims and purposes of the school.

A Prohibition Trial Balance.—The Bystander was much impressed by a balance sheet of the gains and losses which the nation will experience as a result of prohibition. It is prepared by Richard Spillane, a financial authority, and his statement is, to say the least, illuminating: "If prohibition increases the production of American workers two per cent, it will, on our present basis, more than pay all the revenue received by Federal, State and city governments last year from the liquor traffic,—and last year's revenue was more than double the normal. If it increases production five per cent, it will put America far, far ahead of any nation on earth. And, incidentally, it will raise the human standard higher than ever before,—make for better men, better women, better children. All these are factors in prohibition from a business view-point."

The Acid Test.—Some one suggests that the most practical thing about the present-day stewardship message is, that it makes our relation to money the acid test of genuine devotion to the Kingdom of God. Nothing, truly, is easier than to exclaim: "All I have is the Lord's." Are we willing to back up that pledge by the laying down of a definite and just proportion of income? Is not this the time when the Lord's work, at home and abroad, should no longer depend upon a haphazard support, nor upon the uncertain amounts that Christians may have left over after they have taken care of everything else? Christians who put God and his kingdom first, can not do otherwise than set aside "the first fruits" of their income as the expression of gratitude and loyalty. A modern Christian statesman put a great truth into a nutshell when he wrote: "The money that belongs, by every right, to God, but is kept back from him by his people, is probably the greatest hindrance to vital spirituality that there is in the world today."

NOTICE TO DISTRICT MEETING WRITING CLERKS

Within a week or two we hope to be ready to send out the "Minutes of Annual Meeting." The Writing Clerk of the last District Meeting in each State District should order at once sufficient copies of the "Minutes of Annual Meeting" to supply each family of the Brethren in his District with a copy. This is the arrangement as directed by Annual Conference. The order should give the names and addresses of the elders or overseers of the churches, the number of copies of Minutes to be sent to each, and the name and address of the District Treasurer to whom the bill is to be charged. The price of the Minutes is 2 cents each in quantities; less than five copies, 5 cents per copy.

original owners then be in control, it is also reasonably sure that we will be able to obtain tickets at a rate considerably lower than the regular fares."

Our Giving.—Sometimes, after some specially conspicuous effort along the line of giving, we are very apt to be just a little boastful of our liberality: But have you ever noticed that in the matter of individual giving the most striking instances of sacrifice come from the newly-converted heathen, who are actually giving out of their deep poverty? Eighty per cent of the organized Korean congregations are already self-supporting. Hundreds of devoted Korean leaders and lay preachers serve wholly without remuneration. Dr. Geo. Heber Jones is authority for the statement that "Korean men have been known to mortgage their own houses, that mortgages might be removed from God's sanctuary. Quite often the crops of good millet are sold, on which they might subsist comfortably during the winter, and the difference in price is given to the support of workers among their own countrymen. Thousands of them gave last year from one week to one month each to the work of proclaiming the Gospel to neighboring and distant communities."

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

How He Made His Farm a Character Builder.—Bishop W. F. McDowell tells of an old farmer who, at the close of the Civil War, bereft of his sons, happened to be seated in a college chapel one day. He saw the students come in, and had a vision of the long procession of students through the coming years. He said to himself: "These will go and others will come. The professors will go, and others will take their places. My farm would just about endow a chair. I will go home and deed it to this college. Then, by the grace of God, I shall be here while the world stands." Where is there any other farm that has produced so valuable a crop as has this one, during the last fifty years?

Will It Be a Wise Change?—Some of the religious journals are recommending that the term "Sunday-school" be superseded by the more expressive name "The Church School." Possibly the proposed appellation has the advantage of defining the purpose and intent of the school far better than the old name, though admittedly the long and continued use of the original name has so forcibly imprinted itself upon the heart of the world until it has a place and significance all its own. The name "Bible School" also has its advocates. Eventually the name that shall come into greatest favor might be "The Church Bible School,"—a designation that would amply cover the aims and purposes of the school.

A Prohibition Trial Balance.—The Bystander was much impressed by a balance sheet of the gains and losses which the nation will experience as a result of prohibition. It is prepared by Richard Spillane, a financial authority, and his statement is, to say the least, illuminating: "If prohibition increases the production of American workers two per cent, it will, on our present basis, more than pay all the revenue received by Federal, State and city governments last year from the liquor traffic,—and last year's revenue was more than double the normal. If it increases production five per cent, it will put America far, far ahead of any nation on earth. And, incidentally, it will raise the human standard higher than ever before,—make for better men, better women, better children. All these are factors in prohibition from a business view-point."

The Acid Test.—Some one suggests that the most practical thing about the present-day stewardship message is, that it makes our relation to money the acid test of genuine devotion to the Kingdom of God. Nothing, truly, is easier than to exclaim: "All I have is the Lord's." Are we willing to back up that pledge by the laying down of a definite and just proportion of income? Is not this the time when the Lord's work, at home and abroad, should no longer depend upon a haphazard support, nor upon the uncertain amounts that Christians may have left over after they have taken care of everything else? Christians who put God and his kingdom first, can not do otherwise than set aside "the first fruits" of their income as the expression of gratitude and loyalty. A modern Christian statesman put a great truth into a nutshell when he wrote: "The money that belongs, by every right, to God, but is kept back from him by his people, is probably the greatest hindrance to vital spirituality that there is in the world today."

NOTICE TO DISTRICT MEETING WRITING CLERKS

Within a week or two we hope to be ready to send out the "Minutes of Annual Meeting." The Writing Clerk of the last District Meeting in each State District should order at once sufficient copies of the "Minutes of Annual

AROUND THE WORLD

A Worthy Bequest

Recently Harvard University was given the munificent bequest of $100,000, under the will of the late Dr. J. Ewing Mears, of Philadelphia, for the special study of methods to reform and cure criminals and mental defectives by surgery. Medical experts are recognizing more and more that many cases of pronounced moral degeneration are due to some physical disturbance, especially affections of the brain, by which certain portions are subjected to abnormal pressure because of an injury sustained in early years, or during the prenatal state. While this department of the medical art is but in its infancy, the notable achievements, already reported, give assurance of fruitful results by more extended research.

The Uplift of Porto Rico

For twenty years the United States Government has been in control of affairs in Porto Rico, and it is no exaggeration whatever to say that great things have been accomplished. Everywhere public schools have been established, in which both Spanish and English are taught. Many of the pupils have now graduated as teachers or entered upon important professional work. The people of the island have attained to an intelligent conception of self-government, and the first vote taken was on prohibition. They proved their far-seeing wisdom by giving an overwhelming majority in favor of the measure. Best of all, however, the United States has established freedom of religion. Under this, Protestantism has already gained 15,000 members, representing a very large number of families and exerting a most salutary influence. Medical missions, Christian education and evangelism have gone hand in hand.

Why He Resigned from the Ministry

"Can a man be a successful minister of the Gospel, in these days, and at the same time practice and preach the principles of human brotherhood, as proclaimed in the Sermon on the Mount?" This question was raised by the Rev. I. Paul Taylor, pastor of the Highland Park Congregational church, Detroit, Mich., and answered in the negative in his letter of resignation, which reads as follows: "I leave the church in order that I may live a less cramped and stifled life. I desire to live a Christian life, and that is impossible for me to do and, at the same time, be a 'successful minister.'" During the years of his ministry in Detroit, Mr. Taylor is conceded to have been unswerving in his proclamation of the "Christian fundamentals." That he could not continue in this advocacy of Gospel principles in the position he held, is a most startling "sign of the times," indicative of the possibility referred to by the apostle,—the time when men "will not endure sound doctrine."

Will Peace Be Permanent?

All the world hopes that peace will now reign, though France takes a gloomy view of the situation, declaring that no treaty will keep Germany from fighting if she wants to. Just now, however, that country surely has her hands full. The people are rid of the Kaiser, but their present Government is none too well established. There are starvation riots, with shooting and many deaths. Of course, peace can not really be made permanent by any treaty—especially a treaty full of hatred, and provocative of new wars—but it is also true that all nations are thoroughly sick of war. It does not pay, for everybody loses. The Allies will not get back even a fourth of their losses and none of their men. Germany is practically bankrupt. War used to make kings greater, and nations more powerful, when they won. Now it puts kings out of business or makes their jobs shaky, and it disturbs the prosperous with the nightmare of Bolshevism. The powerful people of today have learned that they do not want war, and what they don't want is not likely to happen.

The Mystery of the Gypsies

In practically all the principal nations of the world, the roving bands of Gypsies are to be met with, and yet their origin, despite the most copious research by scholars of eminence, is shrouded in mystery. Some, who have succeeded in tracing almost any race of people to its earliest days with a fair degree of accuracy, confess their inability to locate the Gypsies. Some authorities have identified them with the Lost Tribes of Israel, the Saracens, the Canaanites, and various peoples of India. Certain similarities of the Romany speech to certain Hindu

Negroes Uniting in an Uplift Campaign

According to recent press dispatches, a hundred thousand leading negroes of America have decided to enter upon a well-organized campaign for the advancement of their race in this country. Morally, educationally and religiously every means of progress is to be employed, and judging by the program as outlined, the undertaking will be of untold benefit to the Colored Race. It is to be hoped that they will enlarge their effort still further, and include the teeming millions of negroes in Africa, many of them in the deepest degradation. To undertake the uplift of those benighted millions would be, indeed, a noble endeavor.

An All-Night Prayer Meeting

While here, in the homeland, the prayer meeting is often attended by only a faithful few, quite a different showing is made by a far-away church in Rhodesia, Africa. A District Conference in Old Umtali was attended by all the native pastor-teachers. So impressed were they with the importance of reaching perishing souls all about them that, the regular business sessions of the Conference were practically suspended, and all-night prayer meetings were the all-important undertaking. Confessions for wrongs committed, together with restitution, were an important phase of these meetings, in which the grace of God was most bountifully bestowed upon all participants. At the close of the Conference the evangelists went out two by two, to hold meetings. A wonderful power seemed to be upon them. Hardened old sinners confessed their guilt and accepted Christ. The all-night vigils proved their value.

Asia Minor Asks United States Rule

Bishop Fout, of the United Brethren Church, the head of one section of the "American Commission for the Relief of the Near East," reports that the people of Armenia, Syria and Turkey are insisting that the United States should accept the League of Nations mandate for those countries. "These people," the bishop says, "look to the United States in their present appalling condition. They are convinced that no other country will be as well prepared to meet the situation." As to the sad plight of the Armenians, Bishop Fout reports that out of 3,000,000 people of that nation, at the beginning of the war, one-third have been massacred. "The hundreds of thousands of skeletons," he says, "are mute evidence that the Turks sought to exterminate the Armenians by systematic massacre. Like cattle they were driven from one locality to another until they were exhausted by tortures of almost unbelievable character."

The Peace Treaty Signed

Since the signing of the Armistice, some months ago, the plenipotentiaries of the great powers, as well as the representatives of the smaller nations, have labored hard to arrive at the terms of a just Peace Treaty. June 28 the signatures of the duly-authorized representatives were attached to the imposing document which technically ends the greatest war of history. The only nation that refused to sign is China. Robbed of the Shantung Province, with its 40,000,000 inhabitants, in order to satiate the greed of her aggressive neighbor, Japan, the Chinese Government refused to sign the document which so unjustly discriminates against the republic. Grave fears are expressed by many of the missionaries who, familiar with Japan's reign of terror in Korea, predict that all Christian influences—mission stations, schools, hospitals, etc.—will now be greatly hindered in Shantung Province—if not wholly driven out. This phase of the treaty is a profound disappointment to every lover of a "square deal."

The Overthrow of a Proud Nation

When Solomon penned those emphatic words: "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people," he uttered a warning that has proved true again and again, throughout the annals of history. Its latest exemplification, in the terrible crash of the whole structure of German nationalism, is apparent to every Bible student. It also illustrates Christ's admonitory words: "He that exalteth himself shall be abased." At one time Germany was a Christian nation. The names of her godly scholars, devout poets, loyal witnesses and Christian statesmen, formed a roll of honor. She was prospered and blessed of God. But, sad to say, in her prosperity she became proud and arrogant, and we need not wonder that she became disloyal to her Lord. Pride hardened her heart and seared her conscience. Eliminating, from her philosophy and theology, vital Christian principles, she fell away into the darkest of irreligion. She made gods of her own and then cast them aside. In her last stage of self-exaltation, her leaders indulged in a worship of

HOME AND FAMILY

Words for the Living

Oh, my friend, it would be better
If to those we love we gave Tender words while they were with us,
Than to say them o'er a grave!

Those who die no longer need them,
And the words they longed to know
While they lived, are only wasted
On the cold, deaf ear below.

Many a heart is hungry, starving,
For a little word of love;
Speak it then, and as the sunshine
Gilds the lofty peaks above,

So the joy of those who hear it
Sends its radiance down life's way,
And the world is brighter, better,
For the loving words we say.

Loving words will cost us little,
As along through life we go;
Let us, then, make others happy,—
If you love them, tell them so.

—Eben E. Rexford.

Near—And—Distant

BY OMA KARN

ONE of the pleasant memories of my childhood and youth is that of assisting in the care of a small apiary. I remember when the then rare species, known as Italian bees, began gradually to replace the more war-like and less profitable black species. It was with no small degree of satisfaction that I witnessed two hives of the golden Italian buzzers placed among the other small white dwellings of the "bee-yard."

A younger sister and myself were appointed a special committee for the swarming season. The chief duty of our office was to watch that no swarms took abrupt leave of the home abode to settle in some new place. We were to prevent this, if possible, by coaxing the excited homesteaders to settle near home. If this overture on our part failed, then we were to follow the runaways to their new place of location. Many and exciting were the adventures experienced during one of these episodes. Suffice it to say, however, that seldom the young pursuers failed to accomplish their purpose. The Italians, for the reason of their more than ordinary value, were objects of special surveillance on our part. As a reward for this care we were promised an interest in the first swarm thrown off.

How we watched those bees! Alas for human hopes and plans! The crafty Italians, with utter disregard of the fourth commandment, took unexpected leave at an unprecedentedly late hour in the afternoon, one Sunday, while we were absent, attending a little union Sunday-school service. Great was our sorrow, on our return, to find unmistakable evidence of their flitting. Laboring under the erroneous idea at that time that runaway bees will not alight within a certain distance from the place whence they winged their way, we searched the more distant orchards and woodlands of the vicinity in a fruitless quest for the lost. Late summertime was at hand before we could be prevailed upon to give up the seeking.

Our failure was still fresh in our minds when one day, at the dinner table, one of the farm employés casually mentioned that he thought "Whitey," one of the most reliable biddies of the poultry-yard, had a stolen nest somewhere up around the old fruit shed. "I'd go up and see, if I were you, soon as dinner is over," he further advised. Being financially interested in the proceeds of the poultry-yard, as well as that of the apiary, we promptly took the initiative and lost no time in acting upon the advice given.

We found Whitey's nest. Incidentally, along with that, we found something else,—just what the kind-hearted farm-hand had meant we should find,—our lost swarm of Italian bees. At the rear of the fruit shed the rough board roofing sloped down to the ground, forming an extension beneath which a miscellaneous collection of seldom-used farm implements had been placed for protection from the weather. Among these, barely beneath the shelter of the enclosure, was an old beehive, unloaded there and forgotten, following its purchase at a sale, together with some farm implements. Our runaway Italians had spied out this abode, taken possession, and gone to work. Some of the finest honey of the season was found in that old hive back of the orchard.

The incident has remained profitably with us during the years which have followed. Many times we have had occasion to apply its teaching to the mistakes of more mature years. The best things of life lie close to us. We miss much of this treasure through failing to look for it close at home. The "distant scene" entices. Discontent takes possession of our mind. Our thoughts are constantly with some unattainable possession. The result is that we lose much of the value of both near and distant. We destroy the future, even as we go toward it. Strong measures are necessary when the mind has acquired this habit of dwelling on the anticipatory. It is the wise man, Solomon, who says: "Wisdom is before him that hath understanding, but the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth." Newman speaks of the "Kindly Light." The Light is never more kindly than when it shows to us the little kindly things close at hand:

"Keep thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene,—one step enough for me."

Ashland, Ohio.

Coveralls

BY NANCY D. UNDERHILL

INTO our neighborhood moved a new family having several children. All wore coveralls. On the street, at the neighbors' houses, everywhere, they wore them. At first we thought: "What a nice bunch of boys our new neighbor has,—five boys!" Then we discovered they were all girls. And everywhere, without a sign of shame or modesty, they wore the clothes that made them look like boys. This grieved a certain old-fashioned woman, because she had read in her Bible that a woman should not wear men's clothes, and that, therefore, it was wrong. But she feared to mention it to the mother, being a stranger, lest she take offense.

Children are very susceptible to influences from those with whom they associate. Soon, another little girl in the neighborhood was seen sporting around on the street arrayed in her brother's trousers. Now this old-fashioned woman saw and grasped her opportunity. Calling the girl to her she handed her a slip of paper upon which she had written, "Deut. 22: 5." "Take this to your mother and ask her if she believes it," said Mrs. Oldfashion.

The girl wonderingly took the paper to her mother who was busy ironing. "I'll read it when I get time," she said, but the Spirit whispered: "Read it now." So, being a good woman, she heeded the still, small voice, and looked up the reference in her Bible.

How surprised she was! She thought she had surely read every word in the Bible many times, yet she had never noticed that. She read it over again. Then she called her little girl, saying, "Take those things off, and never let me see you in them again. Do you know that you are an abomination to the Lord? You don't want to be that, do you? See what his Word says." And the little girl has never been arrayed in boy's clothes since. Moreover, the other five girls have ceased to wear their coveralls and are wearing dresses.

One day, as the mother of the one little girl saw on the street a young woman arrayed in men's clothing, walking between two soldier boys, she called out to her: "Young woman! Do you know that you are an abomination to the Lord? You are, for the Bible says so. Read it for yourself. Deut. 22: 5 says: 'The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth to a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: for all that do so are abomination unto the Lord.'"

Some may seek to excuse themselves for thus immodestly arraying themselves, because the law was given to the Israelites. So was the "Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not kill," and the other divine principles. But as Mrs. C said, "The Bible don't say the Jews that do such things are abomination to the Lord; it says all, a-l-l, all."

We notice there is an extreme lack of modesty among girls who wear the same kind of clothing that boys wear. We wish there were more Christian women like Mrs. C, who would not shun to warn the young women on the streets and in all public places, and especially their mothers, in regard to this prevalent evil. Most people who do such things are not acquainted with the Bible. Why not tell them what it says?

Pomona, Calif.

Our Responsibility in Relation to the Boy

BY EZRA FLORY

THE rapid growth of mind and body which marks the transition from boyhood to manhood, is accompanied by a corresponding development of personality. The youth is stirred by imagination and ambition and a certain impatience of control. He naturally revels in strong sensations and awakening ideals. There, on the threshold of manhood, he begins to take a new interest in life. Books have a new fascination for him. He begins to read the newspaper, and may even become a budding politician. Youth is the age when friendships are most easily formed, and, above all, when the heart is most susceptible to religious impressions. At the age of about sixteen, more conversions occur among youths than during any other period.

The youth is, at the same time, responsive to initiative and open to sympathy. As long as he knows his work to be under the scrutiny of older folks; that experienced workers are desired for office; that the organization is not his own,—so long will the future supply of leaders for the church fail to be discovered and trained. His severest testing may be that of the disapproval of his social group, whether it be at school or elsewhere. Derision or ridicule, from this source or from any other, at the age when emotions are strong, and when his social awakening is new and untried, is far more powerful in controlling him than is generally conceded. It can not be denied that certain church requirements are put to the test, or put him to the test, at this time, and not infrequently form an impregnable barrier in winning him to Christ.

What, then, are the churches doing to discharge their responsibility to the youth? It is notorious that the youths of our great cities are found to be far the larger proportion of the pleasure-seekers at the music halls and cheap theaters. Have we asked why the churches have failed to compete for the wise direction of young people at the most impressionable age? Nature abhors a vacuum, and there is little wonder that this period of transition is marked by the loss of our young people from the Sunday-school, when so little effort is made to meet the cravings that come with growing youth. The energy, so rapidly developed during adolescence, requires vent, and everything depends on directing it aright. Much of secret sin, to which youth is too prone, would be avoided if, in addition to wise instruction concerning the functions of the human organism, healthy exercise were encouraged and even insisted upon.

Large numbers of young people are left at the most critical stage in their lives without wholesome guidance in their reading, as is manifest by the great bulk of cheap novels that circulate, as well as by other literature of an equally unhealthy character. The day of the "ten-cent novel" is past. "Movies" now get the dimes. But the same trashy novel now sells popularly at thirty-five cents, and is sold from book-houses, and even finds its way to our young people through gifts, or is sometimes placed on the shelves of our Sunday-school libraries.

The youth's love for adventure will readily respond to such efforts as create a taste for history, science, missions and the higher class of literature. At an age when the youth begins to think for himself, and manifests a desire for knowledge and self-improvement,—the age which is said to be the best remembered by men in after-life,—it is important that he should receive intellectual stimulus and find opportunities for mental development.

Jews that do such things are abomination to the Lord; it says all, a-l-l, all."

We notice there is an extreme lack of modesty among girls who wear the same kind of clothing that boys wear. We wish there were more Christian women like Mrs. C, who would not shun to warn the young women on the streets and in all public places, and especially their mothers, in regard to this prevalent evil. Most people who do such things are not acquainted with the Bible. Why not tell them what it says?

Pomona, Calif.

Our Responsibility in Relation to the Boy

BY EZRA FLORY

THE rapid growth of mind and body which marks the transition from boyhood to manhood, is accompanied by a corresponding development of personality. The youth is stirred by imagination and ambition and a certain impatience of control. He naturally revels in strong sensations and awakening ideals. There, on the threshold of manhood, he begins to take a new interest in life. Books have a new fascination for him. He begins to read the newspaper, and may even become a budding politician. Youth is the age when friendships are most easily formed, and, above all, when the heart is most susceptible to religious impressions. At the age of about sixteen, more conversions occur among youths than during any other period.

The youth is, at the same time, responsive to initiative and open to sympathy. As long as he knows his work to be under the scrutiny of older folks; that experienced workers are desired for office; that the organization is not his own,—so long will the future supply of leaders for the church fail to be discovered and trained. His severest testing may be that of the disapproval of his social group, whether it be at school or elsewhere. Derision or ridicule, from this source or from any other, at the age when emotions are strong, and when his social awakening is new and untried, is far more powerful in controlling him than is generally conceded. It can not be denied that certain church requirements are put to the test, or put him to the test, at this time, and not infrequently form an impregnable barrier in winning him to Christ.

What, then, are the churches doing to discharge their responsibility to the youth? It is notorious that the youths of our great cities are found to be far the larger proportion of the pleasure-seekers at the music halls and cheap theaters. Have we asked why the churches have failed to compete for the wise direction of young people at the most impressionable age? Nature abhors a vacuum, and there is little wonder that this period of transition is marked by the loss of our young people from the Sunday-school, when so little effort is made to meet the cravings that come with growing youth. The energy, so rapidly developed during adolescence, requires vent, and everything depends on directing it aright. Much of secret sin, to which youth is too prone, would be avoided if, in addition to wise instruction concerning the functions of the human organism, healthy exercise were encouraged and even insisted upon.

Large numbers of young people are left at the most critical stage in their lives without wholesome guidance in their reading, as is manifest by the great bulk of cheap novels that circulate, as well as by other literature of an equally unhealthy character. The day of the "ten-cent novel" is past. "Movies" now get the dimes. But the same trashy novel now sells popularly at thirty-five cents, and is sold from book-houses, and even finds its way to our young people through gifts, or is sometimes placed on the shelves of our Sunday-school libraries.

The youth's love for adventure will readily respond

This is the time when ideals are centered in characters who are living throbbing lives. To them their souls become attached. These ideals are the most potent factors in directing youths. What are we doing to set correct ideals before them? How early in life have we thought it proper to direct the ideals of our boy? What have fathers been doing to this end? Our hearts yearn to see them take up the religion of their fathers. Have we safeguarded the boy by sympathetic, chummy comradeship? That would be the best investment of our lives.

Chicago, Ill.

The Preacher's Pay

(Continued from Page 423)

suppose there are times when a preacher gets to pray for himself and preach to himself. Usually, though, the average preacher has his hands full preaching to and praying for his congregation.

When he's not preaching and praying, he is visiting the sick and helpless, the aged and the backslider. Aside from these duties he has nothing else beyond attending to the half-dozen or so church societies, the boys and girls, the Sunday-school; soliciting money for a new church roof; collecting for home and foreign missions; burying us and marrying us; baptizing us and converting us. Once in a while the average $2.12 congregation will permit its pastor to take exercise mowing the church lawn, or sweeping snow off the sidewalk.

Truly is the laborer worthy of his "higher." The only trouble in the matter of the preacher's higher is that the congregation expects the Lord to pay about 88 per cent of the "higher."

It is better to increase the contents of the preacher's pay envelope than to contribute towards homes for aged pastors; and it is more pleasing to preachers to get regular-sized pay envelopes, while they live, than bronze tablets after they are dead.—Haverhill Gazette.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

FROM MALMÖ, SWEDEN

The Malmö church is moving forward. We received three by baptism March 1, and others are near the Kingdom. The summer season is the hardest time of the year to hold our young people, so we ask a special interest in your prayers, to that end.

Our work—especially the Sunday-schools—has suffered by the suspension of services because of the Spanish influenza. During the past few weeks the epidemic has been raging worse again, but is now on the decline.

The week before Easter we had services each evening, and were very glad to see our young members take a most active part in giving testimonies. Our love feast, on Good Friday, was a spiritual uplift to all who partook of the sacred emblems.

A junior organization has been effected in Limhamn, a suburb of Malmö, and is making splendid progress. We now have enrolled forty children from ten to fourteen years old, who are much interested in their work. We hope thereby to hold them and to win them for the Lord.

Our Bible class of young people, which meets each Friday evening, is increasing in interest and attendance. They are anxious for Bible knowledge and eager to do what they can.

Food conditions here are very much better now. The card system for obtaining food is gradually disappearing, as food becomes more plentiful, and the restrictions are abolished. Almost everything excepting bread and sugar can now be obtained in any quantity, though the prices are yet enormously high.

We sorely miss Brother and Sister Graybill from their post while they are on their furlough, yet we are glad that they can have a much-needed and well-deserved rest. We are doing our best to care for the work during their absence, and through Christ are able for the tasks he has given us. Pray that his strength may be ours, and that the Lord's work in Sweden may continue to prosper.

April 30. Ida Buckingham.

he was overseer of Potiphar's house, his fidelity was tested by strong temptations, which he honorably resisted.

When he was thrown into prison, because of the calumnies of an enraged woman, his integrity and prudence soon rendered him conspicuous, even in the dark dungeon. When he was called into the presence of Pharaoh, the wise and comprehensive plan which he proposed to preserve the kingdom from impending danger, justly raised him to a high position, wherein his abilities were eminently displayed in public service.

But in his whole history there is no circumstance so striking and interesting as his behavior to his brethren, who had sold him into slavery. The occasion on which he made himself known to them, was the most critical one in his life, and most decisively shows his character. It is such as rarely occurs in the course of human events, and is calculated to elicit the highest attention of all who are endowed with even the least sensibility of heart.

From the whole tenor of the narrative it appears that though Joseph, upon the arrival of his brethren in Egypt, made himself strange to them, yet from the beginning he intended to make himself known, and studied how to conduct his introduction to them in a manner that might render the surprise of joy complete. For this purpose he took well-devised steps to bring down into Egypt all his father's children.

When the sons of Jacob arrived there, Benjamin was with the rest. This was Joseph's younger brother by the same mother, and particularly beloved by Joseph. He threatened to detain Benjamin, but seemed to be willing to allow the rest to depart. This incident renewed their distress. They all knew their father's extreme anxiety about the safety of Benjamin, and with what difficulty he had yielded, to let him undertake the journey.

Should Benjamin be prevented from returning, there was danger that grief would assail the old man's spirit, and prove fatal to his life. Judah, therefore, who had particularly urged that Benjamin accompany his brethren, and who had solemnly pledged himself to insure Benjamin's protection and safe return, craved upon this occasion an audience of the governor (Joseph), and gave him a full account of the circumstances of Jacob's family.

Nothing can be more interesting and pathetic than this discourse of Judah's. Little knowing to whom he spake, he painted a mental picture, in all the simple and natural colors, as to what would be the distressed situation of the aged patriarch, who was hastening toward the close of life, and had long been mourning the loss of a favorite son, who, he supposed, had been torn to pieces by a wild beast of prey. He was now laboring under anxious concern about the welfare of his youngest son, the child of his old age, who alone was left of his mother. Nothing but the calamities of severe famine could have induced a tender-hearted father to send Benjamin from home and to expose him to the dangers of a foreign land.

Judah said to Joseph: "It shall come to pass, when he [Jacob] seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die; and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave. . . . Now, therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my Lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren. For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall come on my father" (Gen. 44: 31-34).

Upon this revelation, Joseph could no longer refrain himself. Loving thoughts of his father and his father's house—of his ancient home, his country and his kindred, of the distress of his father's family, and his own exaltation—all rushed too strangely upon his mind that he could no longer bear any further concealment. He exclaimed: "'Cause every man to go out from me. . . . And he wept aloud."

The tears which he wept were not tears of grief. They were the outburst of his affections. They were the effusion of a heart overflowing with all the tender sensibilities of his nature. Formerly he had been moved in the same manner, when he first met his brethren and saw Benjamin before him, "for his bowels did yearn upon his brother: and he sought where to weep; and he entered into his chamber, and wept there. And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said: 'Set on bread'" (Gen. 43: 30, 31).

At that time his generous plans were not completed. But now, when there was no further occasion for concealing himself, he gave free vent to the strong emotions of his heart. The first minister to the king of Egypt was not ashamed to show that he felt as a man and a brother. "He wept aloud: and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard."

DEATH OF JACOB HILDEBRAND

Jacob Hildebrand, son of Jacob and Hannah Hildebrand, was born near Louisville, Ohio, Nov. 25, 1841, died June 16, 1919, aged seventy-seven years, six months and 21 days. The deceased was in poor health for over a year. The immediate cause of death was hemorrhage of the brain.

With his parents he moved to this State in the spring of 1853, settling five miles south of South Bend, on the Turkey Creek road. He was united in marriage to Mary Ullery, of Palmer's Prairie, May 2, 1872, by Eld. David Miller. To this union three daughters were born.

Bro. Hildebrand was the eleventh in a family of thirteen children, all but two of whom have passed on before. He leaves his faithful companion, two daughters, seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild, one sister and one brother.

He united with the Church of the Brethren when twenty years of age, being baptized with sixteen others by Eld. Jacob Miller. He was called to the ministry, together with Isaac Early, in 1865, in the bounds of what is now the Oak Grove congregation. He was advanced to the eldership in 1888, being in service fifty-four years.

He officiated at 438 funerals, so far as his record extends. Besides these, he preached a large number of funeral sermons before he began keeping record—probably considerably more than 500 in all, not including the large number at which he merely assisted. He never failed to respond to a call, except when sick or absent from home. There are but few churches in St. Joseph, Laporte, Starke and Marshall Counties in which he has not attended funerals.

No record has been kept of the number of marriages he solemnized, but it is believed to have been fully as many as the funerals.

His last funeral was that of Mrs. George Kaser, at this place, May 30. Those who best knew his physical condition wondered at his ability for the task. Yet he felt that the Spirit upheld him. Some who were not related by blood or church affiliation called it his best.

His prayers were continually for the advancement of his Lord's cause and for the welfare of the church, that he so greatly loved. He also prayed for the faithfulness and loyalty of her members. His sermons generally were appeals for steadfastness of faith and loyalty to the church and her principles. He prayed that the sinner might accept Christ and his service. Nothing seemed to grieve him more than to see professing Christians given to worldliness, and to see sinners resist the wooing of the Spirit. He was concerned about saint and sinner alike. He is one of a very few, of his age and service, left in the District of Northern Indiana.

Thus has passed a life of service to the Lord, the church and the world, a man of great patience and steadfastness of faith under severest trials. "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his" (Num. 23: 10).

Funeral services conducted at the Pine Creek church, in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends, June 18. Eld. J. F. Appleman, of Nappanee, Ind., officiated, assisted by Elders A. B. Peters, Daniel Whitmore and others. Funeral text, 2 Tim. 4: 6-8.

Nappanee, Ind. A. Laura Appleman.

GREETINGS TO THE READER

It is with pleasure that I greet the readers of the "Messenger," after a silence of some years. It is also with gladness that I am looking forward to an active ministry in the Gospel, after having been held quiet by the Spirit, most of the time, since my last steady ministerial work in the church. I was then pastor in charge of the Des Moines, Iowa, city mission.

During the years of ministerial non-activity I have continued to grow in grace and in the power of the Spirit. Having always been as active in the missionary work of the church as opportunity afforded, I have been preparing constantly for a more effective ministry in the mission field, which I am soon ready to enter.

My membership is in the Pasadena, Cal., Church of the Brethren, where I placed it upon my first coming to California, some eleven years ago. But my missionary work shall begin, the Lord willing, where a fruit-growing colony is forming in Southern California, away from the vicinity of a congregation of the Brethren. No other denomination is at work in this place, and by the grace of God I expect to hold the ground spiritually until a church is well established. My secular work shall supply my needs until the spiritual develops into strength.

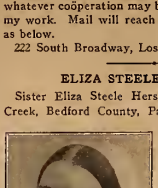
It will give me much joy, should a goodly number of our own church people be among those who form this colony. The character of my missionary work, I feel, will appeal to all of the Brethren, for its key-note is LOVE. This is the power which appears to me as being stronger in the Church of the Brethren than in any other people I know. I trust it shall always be held as the most precious jewel of the church, and the one characteristic above all others. Only love can fire the church until her mission shall shake every part of our land with truth that can not be gainsaid nor withstood. The love of Christ is the one lever of power to rule in the spiritual work in which I may represent the church in her fundamental principles. All good and right things are possible unto love.

I ask the prayers of the members. I shall appreciate whatever coöperation may be given me, in any manner, in my work. Mail will reach me at all times, if addressed as below. John E. Mohler.

222 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Calif.

ELIZA STEELE HERSHBERGER

Sister Eliza Steele Hershberger was born in Yellow Creek, Bedford County, Pa., and died in Snake Spring Valley, of the same county, May 3, 1919, aged 88 years. The end came as a result of a slight stroke. She married Eld. Henry Hershberger in February, 1850. To them were born twelve children, nine of whom survive, together with three brothers, fifty-seven grandchildren and sixty-six great-grandchildren. Early in life she united with the Church of the Brethren and was very loyal and faithful.



Sister E. S. Hershberger

The funeral service was held in her home church in Snake Spring Valley by Eld. W. J. Swigart, of Huntingdon, assisted by Elders D. M. Van Horn and I. C. Holsopple.

She was affectionately called "Grandma Hershberger." This fact alone testifies that her life was more than the ordinary in its influence. The words that might be most appropriate in naming her virtues are Christian wife, Christian mother, Christian neighbor and Christian believer.

Seldom has it been my privilege to come into the presence of one whose every thought and action was so positively squared with her Lord's will, as revealed in his Word, much of which was her intellectual possession. In her latter years she desired to live alone in her own home and there spent her time reading the literature of the church and her Bible, communing much with her Heavenly Father in prayer. The work of his Kingdom was certain to be the subject of conversation for a part of your visit in her home, whether that visit were long or short. It was not that narrow or circumscribed interest which characterizes so many lives, but included every activity of the church at home and abroad. She always had a very keen interest in the work of the congregation of which she was a part. She was not critical but constructive in her thinking and planning.

Her home has always been a place where the leaders of the church were welcome and a place which they sought because of the great sympathy she always manifested for their work. Eld. John Kline refers to a visit in her home during the Civil War. This early interest in the leaders of the church was characteristic of her to the last. Through the church literature, by attending the church Conferences and by inquiry, she kept acquainted not only with the older persons of her own generation but with those of the present.

As a wife and mother she was very devoted to her husband and family. Although a widow for forty-one years, she maintained the home not only as a place but as a power. Because of her devotion and strong Christian influence she had great power over her children. Their spiritual welfare was her first concern. In her ministrations to her neighbors they always received a large measure of Christian grace in every assistance rendered. Because of this she was sought out at times of serious illness and in periods of great distress.

I have referred to her as a Christian believer for a reason. Every event in her life was under the providence of God and so recognized definitely and acknowledged. To her "everything worketh together for good to them that love God" was a matter of conviction through experience not always joyous but many times through shadows. Her simple, but not blind, trust in her God and the familiar and reverent way in which she referred to his tender care and keeping and comforting power, will ever remain a bulwark of strength to each of us whose privilege it was to come under the helpful influence of her humble and powerful life. A. Brown Miller.

Huntingdon, Pa.

SMITH FORK CHURCH, MISSOURI

May 31 Bro. C. B. Smith, of Morrill, Kans., and Bro. E. L. Ikenberry, of McPherson College, came to this place. Our love feast was held that evening, with Bro. Smith officiating. The Sunday following, Bro. Smith gave us the missionary sermon, after which the general missionary offering was lifted, amounting to $327.

Our revival was to begin on Sunday evening, but heavy rains, which continued for three days, made it impossible to begin until Wednesday. Brethren Smith and Ikenberry made many visits in the community, in the interest of the meetings, and thus came in personal contact with many.

A short song service was conducted each evening, while every available opportunity was utilized, both after and previous to the preaching service as well as in the homes, to improve and train some of our local talent. Special music was rendered at every service. Eight united with the church by baptism and one was restored.

Our pastor, in attendance at Conference, was absent during the first week of the meetings. Services were held thirteen days, when it was thought best to close on account of the continuous rainy weather. The church was much built up and strengthened by the earnest and forceful efforts of these two splendid evangelists.

June 22 our young people's Mission Study Class rendered an appropriate program, after which they were presented with their diplomas, seventeen having finished the first course of mission study. This class was composed of our senior boys and girls and was taught by our pastor, Bro. Brubaker, who took the course with them. A great deal of interest and enthusiasm dominated the study.

Plattsburg, Mo. Ada Sell.

Forgetting to Pay Our Little Debts

(Continued from Page 421)

thing, but it is a big thing, and to be guilty of such a habit is extremely bad, because it continues to grow, and makes us incapable of keeping promises or remembering obligations in the bigger things.

The time to begin breaking such a habit is before it ever begins. None of us could live happily without our neighbors, and they could not be called neighbors if they were not of some benefit to us, but we certainly ought to respect their rights. And all of us want to be neighbors to others ourselves. We want to help them out whenever we can, and not be oversensitive, either about the use of our property or belongings which some one has had reason to borrow.

There is nothing finer than a friendly, coöperative, give-and-take spirit among people who are closely associated in community life, wherever it be, but nothing is ever accomplished through extremes. About the best rule to follow, I think, is the one given by Jesus, namely, to treat others as we would be treated by them. If we carry this out in our dealings with one another, there is not apt to be much trouble, or unkind feelings and misunderstandings, or many careless habits of forgetfulness developed. Each of us should cultivate habits of thoughtfulness about our little debts and obligations, of whatever nature they may be, and we will be worthy of a position to be trusted and relied upon by those who have known us all our lives.

Wesley Hall, Nashville, Tenn.

If all Christians would determine within themselves, by God's grace, "to contend for the faith once delivered to the saints," we would have more of the old-time power among us, and there would be less theory and more of the conviction of the Holy Ghost.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

Figdale congregation met June 8 at the home of the pastor, Bro. J. C. Groff, for the communion service, with twenty-seven members present. A very sacred and pleasant season was enjoyed by all present. The work is progressing nicely at this place. Every Sunday evening finds an eager audience waiting for the service to begin. We have just finished the "Life of Paul" and found the study very helpful and interesting. We meet at the different homes from week to week for the service, as we have no church building at present. We are planning, however, to build in the near future and have some funds subscribed already. A number in the vicinity are very anxious that the Brethren should erect this churchhouse, so they may have a permanent place of worship. There is still some land to be had on reasonable terms in this "fig-garden" country and we would be glad to welcome members in our midst, to enjoy both the spiritual and temporal blessings with us.—Mrs. J. C. Groff, Fresno, Calif., June 22.

Glendale.—By request of the Presbyterians, Eld. M. M. Eshelman delivered his well-known lecture in that congregation on the evening of June 15. It was very much appreciated on account of its range being world-wide.—Mildred Fischer, Glendale, Calif., June 21.

Reedley church met in council June 14, with Eld. M. H. Miller presiding. It was decided that the Senior Christian Workers take up an offering one Sunday of each month to help prepare some one for the home or foreign mission field. Our Intermediate Christian Workers are doing splendid work under the leadership of Sister Noll. They have decided to support a native worker of India.—Mabel Armantrout, Reedley, Calif., June 20.

COLORADO

Denver.—Five of our Sunday-school workers attended the Sunday-school Convention, which was held at Pueblo recently, and brought back a very interesting report. It is a great inspiration for so large a body of workers to meet together.—S. A. Miller, Denver, Colo., June 25, of the meetings, and thus came in personal contact with many.

A short song service was conducted each evening, while every available opportunity was utilized, both after and previous to the preaching service as well as in the homes, to improve and train some of our local talent. Special music was rendered at every service. Eight united with the church by baptism and one was restored.

Our pastor, in attendance at Conference, was absent during the first week of the meetings. Services were held thirteen days, when it was thought best to close on account of the continuous rainy weather. The church was much built up and strengthened by the earnest and forceful efforts of these two splendid evangelists.

June 22 our young people's Mission Study Class rendered an appropriate program, after which they were presented with their diplomas, seventeen having finished the first course of mission study. This class was composed of our senior boys and girls and was taught by our pastor, Bro. Brubaker, who took the course with them. A great deal of interest and enthusiasm dominated the study.

Plattsburg, Mo. Ada Sell.

Forgetting to Pay Our Little Debts

(Continued from Page 421)

thing, but it is a big thing, and to be guilty of such a habit is extremely bad, because it continues to grow, and makes us incapable of keeping promises or remembering obligations in the bigger things.

The time to begin breaking such a habit is before it ever begins. None of us could live happily without our neighbors, and they could not be called neighbors if they were not of some benefit to us, but we certainly ought to respect their rights. And all of us want to be neighbors to others ourselves. We want to help them out whenever we can, and not be oversensitive, either about the use of our property or belongings which some one has had reason to borrow.

There is nothing finer than a friendly, coöperative, give-and-take spirit among people who are closely associated in community life, wherever it be, but nothing is ever accomplished through extremes. About the best rule to follow, I think, is the one given by Jesus, namely, to treat others as we would be treated by them. If we carry this out in our dealings with one another, there is not apt to be much trouble, or unkind feelings and misunderstandings, or many careless habits of forgetfulness developed. Each of us should cultivate habits of thoughtfulness about our little debts and obligations, of whatever nature they may be, and we will be worthy of a position to be trusted and relied upon by those who have known us all our lives.

Wesley Hall, Nashville, Tenn.

If all Christians would determine within themselves, by God's grace, "to contend for the faith once delivered to the saints," we would have more of the old-time power among us, and there would be less theory and more of the conviction of the Holy Ghost.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

Figdale congregation met June 8 at the home of the pastor, Bro. J. C. Groff, for the communion service, with twenty-seven members present. A very sacred and pleasant season was enjoyed by all present. The work is progressing nicely at this place. Every Sunday evening finds an eager audience waiting for the service to begin. We have just finished the "Life of Paul" and found the study very helpful and interesting. We meet at the different homes from week to week for the service, as we have no church building at present. We are planning, however, to build in the near future and have some funds subscribed already. A number in the vicinity are very anxious that the Brethren should erect this churchhouse, so they may have a permanent place of worship. There is still some land to be had on reasonable terms in this "fig-garden" country and we would be glad to welcome members in our midst, to enjoy both the spiritual and temporal blessings with us.—Mrs. J. C. Groff, Fresno, Calif., June 22.

Glendale.—By request of the Presbyterians, Eld. M. M. Eshelman delivered his well-known lecture in that congregation on the evening of June 15. It was very much appreciated on account of its range being world-wide.—Mildred Fischer, Glendale, Calif., June 21.

Reedley church met in council June 14, with Eld. M. H. Miller presiding. Bro. Willard Cochern was elected church trustee. Harvest Meeting committees were appointed for the two churchhouses. The love feast was appointed for Oct. 26. We are expecting Bro. B. D. Hirt to be with us in a series of meetings in September.—Orpha Bridge, Monticello, Ind., June 23.

Nappanee church met in regular business meeting June 19. We decided to have our Harvest Meeting, with Children's Day exercises in the afternoon, sometime in August. It was decided that our love feast be held on Thanksgiving evening. Our pastor and wife, Brother and Sister John F. Appleman, have had a very urgent call to return to their home congregation, but all phases of our work have progressed so nicely under their able direction that we wish them to remain with us. May 25 our teacher-training class of seven members enjoyed their graduation exercises. Bro. Harvey Hartsaugh delivered the address. May 18 Sisters Sadie Miller and Esther Eisenhire, and Bro. Roger Winger, of Bethany Bible School, gave two missionary programs, which were very much appreciated. Sister Miller gave her interesting illustrated talk on India. Bro. Winger gave a forceful address, suggesting some of the world's greatest needs and their responsibilities in the present crisis. Sister Eisenhire conducted the Children's hour in the afternoon. Our church went over the top in her Armenian-Syrian Relief offering, giving $800.—Fern Grosh, Nappanee, Ind., June 22.

Pleasant Dale church met in council May 31, with Eld. Frank Fisher presiding. The church decided to secure Bro. Roy Dilling and wife to help us in a series of meetings in August, Sister Dilling to lead the singing. The Annual Conference offering amounted to about $92. We recently raised $85.85 for the committee on Dress Reform. Several elders from adjoining churches were present at the council, and Bro. I. B. Wike remained over Sunday.—Emma Miller, Decatur, Ind., June 23.

Upper Fall Creek church met in council June 21, with Bro. D. F. Hoover in charge. We will hold our fall love feast Oct. 25, at 6:30 P. M. Delegates were chosen to District Meeting. Bro. D. F. Hoover is to represent the church and the writer the Sunday-school.—Rachel E. Dellinger, Middletown, Ind., June 23.

Wabash church met in council June 19, with Eld. E. S. Brubaker presiding. One was received into the church from the Progressive Brethren. We expect Bro. W. C. Detrich to begin a series of meetings June 24. Our love feast is appointed for Sept. 6, beginning at 7 P. M. Bro. E. S. Brubaker was chosen to continue as elder in charge for two years.—Barbara E. Pulley, Wabash, Ind., June 23.

West Eel River congregation met in council June 21, with Brethren T. D. Butterbaugh, Geo. Deeter, and Amos Freed presiding. One letter of membership was received. Several visitation committees then gave reports. The two delegates to Sunday-school Meeting this year are Bro. Roy Kline and Sister Marie Metzger. Brethren Clarence Ruth and Malden Rhodes were chosen delegates to the State Sunday-school Convention. Not having a ministerial committee, one was chosen, consisting of three members. Several weeks ago Bro. Roy Kline was elected to the ministry.—Ruth I. Metzger, Claypool, Ind., June 24.

IOWA

Dallas Center church observed Mothers' Day with a special program, which was largely attended. June 14 and 15 we held our love feast and had a very good meeting. Eld. S. M. Goughnour, of Ankeny, Iowa, officiated and also preached two good sermons on Sunday to large audiences. Our Annual Meeting offering amounted to $421.50.—Anna Coughnour, Dallas Center, Iowa, June 22.

Greene church enjoyed another love feast service June 14, with Bro. W. H. Lichty officiating. We had a very impressive service in the afternoon of the same day, when one minister, Bro. Harry Smith, and two deacons, Brethren Hugo Kenhue and Lewis Kingery, with their wives, were installed. Bro. W. H. Lichty officiated. Sister Olson, of the Bethany Bible School, was with us in these services and led the music. Ten persons drove twenty auto loads from here over to the dedication services at the Franklin County church.—Elsie A. Fyle, Greene, Iowa, June 20.

Mt. Etna church met in council June 21, with Bro. Harry K. Rogers presiding. Sunday-school officers were elected for the following six months with Anda Johnston as superintendent. Christian Workers' officers were elected with Minnie Walker as president. We decided to hold our fall love feast Sept. 6. Our new pastor, L. M. Wolfe, and family, came to us from Kansas and preached his first sermon for us June 15. We are few in number but we feel that the Lord is with us and is blessing us.—Wm. Hickeox, Mt. Etna, Iowa, June 23.

KANSAS

East Maple Grove.—May 1 this church was reorganized. Elders R. F. McCune and H. T. Brubaker were present. Bro. McCune was chosen presiding elder, and officers were elected to complete the organization. Bro. A. J. Ellenberger is our resident minister. He has recently purchased property one and a half miles from the church. Leading men of our community were anxious to have Bro. Ellenberger and family located here permanently, and their influence prevails. We are raising money for the Armenian and Syrian Relief. The community has given liberally. Our members here seem to be very prosperous people.—H. E. Myers, Gardner, Kans., June 10. worked by a progressive people.—H. E. Myers, Gardner, Kans., June 10.

Garden City.—On Friday before Mothers' Day some of the mothers of Garden City met at the call of Sister H. D. Michael, wife of our pastor, to talk over the idea of having a Mothers' Meeting. We are now enjoying a good live Mothers' Meeting each alternate Friday afternoon. We are finding many places where we can give and receive inatrnction and help. We are also finding that the present cleve inatrnction and help. We are also finding that the present civic world conditions are making it a greater responsibility to rear children and be real home-makers.—Sister Edyth Weaver, Garden City, Kans., June 21.

Morrill.—Sunday morning of June 15 we enjoyed a beautiful and pleasing Children's Day program. The offering, which was over pleasing Children's Day program. The offering, which was over $23, will be used in Child Rescue work. Sunday evening our pastor, Bro. W. H. Yoder, gave us an interesting report of the Winona Conference. Our Conference offering amounted to $885.—Mrs. Delilah A. Maxey, Morrill, Kans., June 21.

Verdigris church enjoyed her love feast June 14. On Sunday following we met at the Madison house with the members of the Ministerial Board of the Southeastern District of Kansas. Brethren C. Watkins Board of the Southeastern District of Kansas. Brethren C. Watkins and J. E. Clark presided. Bro. D. H. Heckman and wife were advanced to the eldership, and Bro. Leonard Berkin and wife were elected to the ministry. Bro. Heckman and family left last week for McPherson College, to prepare themselves for greater work.—Mrs. J. H. Elrod, Madison, Kans., June 24.

MARYLAND

Accident.—June 14 Bro. B. F. Waltz, of Salisbury, Pa., began a series of meetings, continuing for one week. He delivered eight inspiring sermons and much interest was manifested. Eighteen were received into the church by baptism. One was baptized the week previous to the meetings and seven united with the church on former baptism. These meetings closed June 21 with a love feast at which 110 communed.—Bertha Spoerlein, Accident, Md., June 25.

MICHIGAN

Lake View.—We held our love feast May 31. Brethren J. E. Ulery

SOUTHWESTERN MISSOURI AND NORTHWESTERN ARKANSAS

The Sunday-school Meeting of the above-named District is to be held in the Greenwood church, Cabool congregation, Texas County, Mo., July 12.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

Forenoon Session

In What Way Does the District Sunday-school Meeting Benefit Our Sunday-school?—Raymond Gass, J. B. Hylton, Edgar Harris. The Relation of the Sunday-school to Ministerial Work.—W. R. Argabright, Howard Masters, A. M. Peterson. How Can We Reach and Hold the Indifferent in the Sunday-school?—Sister Sarah Fike, Elna Hylton.

Afternoon Session, 1: 45

The Sunday-school's Responsibility and Duty to the Present World Conditions.—Orin Harvey, Lester Fike. The Value of Teacher-training and Institute.—Lee Bosca, Dorothy Oxley, Lillie Deddens, Zella Fike. Round Table Topics (open for general discussion): (1) The Teacher as Soul-Winner. (2) The Minister's Place in the Sunday-school. (3) Our Young People's Opportunities. (4) The Best Method of Conducting the Opening and Closing Exercises.

Evening Session, 7: 30

Devotional Exercises.—C. W. Gitt. Our Home Missionary Program and Christian Workers.—Sam Robison, R. F. Bowman. Missionary Address.—Hester Oxley.

Committee: Florence Oxley, Zella Fike, A. W. Adkins, District Secretary.

Resolutions Adopted at the Winona Lake Conference

SPECIAL RESOLUTIONS

On Dress Reform

Whereas, Many present styles of women's dress are " unhygienic, immodest, inconvenient and conducive to extravagance and immorality," and

Whereas, The General Federation of Women's Clubs, the New York City Women's Federation, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and many similar organizations, have taken definite action in this matter; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Church of the Brethren, in General Conference (1919) assembled, hereby express our appreciation of the definite action taken by these organizations in the general forward movement for sane clothing, and that in so far as scriptural modesty is upheld, we pledge our hearty co-operation; and be it

Resolved, That we go on record as standing behind every righteous effort to avoid foolish, fleeting fashions, to discard jewelry and useless ornaments, and to make clothing modest, simple, practical and economical for the moral spirit of the nation and the practical relief of the great world need. And further, be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be given space in our own publications; also that a copy be sent to each of these various organizations, with a request for publication by them as far as agreeable.

On Temperance

The General Temperance Committee of the Church of the Brethren, through the International Conference of the Church of the Brethren in session at Winona Lake, Ind., June 5-11, 1919, numbering over six hundred delegates and with every state hereby present, hereby appeals to Congress to let the War Prohibition Measure stand. We protest against its nullification, and pray that nothing be done to lessen the coming of permanent prohibition.

To the Secretary of War

The Church of the Brethren, at its International Conference, held at Winona Lake, Ind., June 5-11, 1919, officially represented by over six hundred delegates, duly appointed by the congregations throughout the United States, Europe, India and China; and with more than ten thousand of her members present in assembly, by rising vote unanimously passed the following:

Resolved, First: That we make formal and official expression of our appreciation of the prompt attention and uniform kindness of the Honorable Newton D. Baker and his able assistants in the War Department of the United States, who, amidst the stress and strain of war conditions, steadily and courteously regarded our position and claim, on account of conscience and religion, and so freely gave their aid in making application of the law which provided for the exemption from militant service for those whose conscience and religion forbid such service. Especial attention is made of the aid rendered when our men appeared in the camps and in the emergencies that arose there.

Second: That we take this occasion to renew to the Honorable Secretary of War an expression of our abhorrence of war and our testimony in favor of peace, and the furtherance of those sentiments that make for peace.

We desire and shall ever pray that our beloved country shall stand, in the interest of its own citizenry and in the presence of the wide world that looks hitherward towards us, as a nation whose ideals and laws and standards and sense of citizenship all savor of peace and tolerance and righteousness towards all.

And that we most respectfully but most earnestly and specifically protest against the enactment of laws that contemplate enforced military training—and especially against such training in the schools of our land,—believing that such action would be a step backward of several centuries in the ideals of government and the civilization of the world.

To the Secretary of War and the President

To the Honorable Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States:

At the International Conference of the Church of the Brethren, held at Winona Lake, Ind., June 5-11, 1919, officially represented by over six hundred delegates, duly appointed by the congregations throughout the United States, Europe, India and China; and with more than ten thousand of her members present in assembly, by rising vote, the following addressed to you was unanimously passed:

First, three years ago, when the ominous and threatening clouds of war were gathering in our firmament, we made formal presentation to you, reciting our religious tenets forbidding our members to engage in war, and concerning our claims of conscience restraining us from militant service and learning the arts of war. With this we stressed our plea for provisions in the laws and the execution thereof that would release us from militant service. We wish to renew that vote and official sanction, to give expression to our deep sense of appreciation of the respectful attention which our appeals received. We also make recognition of the generous and tolerant interpretation you placed on the laws enacted by Congress concerning the claims of the conscientious objector.

Second: We have followed with interest your course and policy in dealing with the tremendous issues that have rested so largely upon your judgment and conscience concerning the affairs of our own country and the wider and broader affairs of the earth. We hereby express our admiration of your advanced views, wise position and tolerant and Christian standards manifested in your attitude towards the subject of peace and the settlement and adjustment of the affairs of the world and its future protection from the menace and perils of war.

Third: We take this occasion to renew to you the expression of our abhorrence of war and our testimony in favor of peace and the furtherance of those sentiments that make for peace.

We desire and shall ever pray that our beloved country shall stand, in the interest of its own citizenry, and in the presence of the wide world that looks hitherward towards us, as a nation whose ideals and laws and standards and sense of citizenship all savor of peace and tolerance and righteousness towards all. And that we most respectfully but most earnestly and specifically protest against the enactment of laws that contemplate enforced military training,—especially against such training in the schools of our land,—believing that such action would be a step backward of several centuries in the ideals of government and the civilization of the world.

To the Senate

To the Honorable Members of the Senate of the United States, in Congress Assembled:

At the International Conference of the Church of the Brethren, held at Winona Lake, Ind., June 5-11, 1919, officially represented by over six hundred delegates, duly appointed by the congregations throughout the United States, Europe, India and China; and with more than ten thousand of her members present in assembly, by rising vote the following addressed to you was unanimously passed:

We desire and shall ever pray that our beloved country shall stand, in the interest of its own citizenry and in the presence of the wide world that looks hitherward towards us, as a nation whose ideals and laws and standards and sense of citizenship all savor of peace and tolerance and righteousness towards all.

And that we most respectfully but most earnestly and specifically protest against the enactment of laws that contemplate enforced military training,—and especially against such training in the schools of our land,—believing that such action would be a step backward of several centuries in the ideals of government and the civilization of the world.

To the House of Representatives

To the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress Assembled:

At the International Conference of the Church of the Brethren, held at Winona Lake, Ind., June 5-11, 1919, officially represented by over six hundred delegates, duly appointed by the congregations throughout the United States, Europe, China and India; and with more than ten thousand of her members present in assembly, by rising vote the following addressed to you was unanimously passed:

We desire and shall ever pray that our beloved country shall stand, in the interest of its own citizenry and in the presence of the wide world that looks hitherward towards us, as a nation whose ideals and laws and standards and sense of citizenship all savor of peace and tolerance and righteousness towards all.

And that we most respectfully but most earnestly and specifically protest against the enactment of laws that contemplate enforced military training—and especially against such training in the schools of our land,—believing that such action would be a step backward of several centuries in the ideals of government and the civilization of the world.

GENERAL RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to bring us safely through another year fraught with pestilence, war and varied experiences, and

Whereas, Through his providence many of us have been permitted to enjoy the social and spiritual blessings of this Bicentennial anniversary, and

Whereas, This memorial occasion has under God served to give a larger vision on behalf of the Kingdom of Christ, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we express our thankgiving to our Heavenly Father for his wonderful protection and loving favor.

That we reaffirm our faith in the inspiration and authority of the Holy Scriptures, in the love and holiness of God, in the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ,—his incarnation, vicarious sacrifice for sin, resurrection from the dead, and personal return, and in the personality of the Holy Spirit.

That we declare our continual fidelity to the ethical doctrines and church ordinances which were taught by Alexander Mack, Peter Becker and others of our early church leaders, which have been potent in giving solidarity and unity to our church.

That at the conclusion of this Beeker Bicentennial Conference we record our gratitude for the faith of our fathers, their devotion to duty, their spirit of sacrifice, and their missionary zeal. That from the memory of these sainted dead we gather increased devotion to the God-given tasks they had in preserving for us the truth of the Fraternity which, under God, they founded, and in whose fellowship they lived and labored until they entered into their rest.

That we heartily endorse the entire Five-Year Forward Movement program in the Church of the Brethren in its phases, including the general, the Sunday-school, the Christian Workers' Society, the Educational, the periodical and the missionary goals. That we commend the General Mission Board, the Sunday-School Board and the Educational Board for setting them forth and for recommending them, not only as goals for attainment, but rather as milestones to be passed on the way to greater things.

That we approve of the purpose and the plan of the Life-Work Conference for the young people, and believing that its results are fraught with great possibilities for the church we recommend its continuance as a part of our Conference program.

That we concur in the recommendation of the Central Service Committee, especially in expressing our abhorrence of war and our continual testimony for peace.

That, as a peace-loving people, we earnestly protest against the enactment of any law of State or National Government, enforcing military training in the public schools of our country, believing it to be not only unwarranted by law, but a real menace to the peace of the world in its psychological effect.

That we deplore the action of President Wilson in recommending the lifting of the ban on liquor, and declare our intention to continue with all the allied forces arrayed against the liquor traffic, to work for the extermination of this world menace.

That we express our thanks to the Program Committee for their effort in bringing to us such excellent program, and to the brethren and sisters who so nobly executed the program which has been of inestimable value to the church.

That we are indebted, First, to the Winona Assembly, for the use of their beautiful park; Second,—to Dr. Dickey, for his invaluable service rendered during the meeting; Third,—to the people of Winona Lake and Warsaw for the hospitality in receiving our people into their homes and for the courtesies they have shown during the Conference; Fourth,—to the Committee on Arrangements and their helpers, who, in a quiet and efficient manner, have arranged and cared for the interests of this meeting.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be sent to "excellent premiums" or "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Alta-Gitt.—By Eld. A. M. Peterson, at his residence, June 12, 1919, D. H. Alta and Mabel N. Gitt, both of Cabool, Mo.—Mrs. C. W. Gitt, Cabool, Mo.

Brant-Hittle.—May 31, 1919, at the residence of the officiating minister, Somerset, Pa., Mahlon Brant and Matilda Hittle, both of Berlin, Pa.—D. B. Hay, Somerset, Pa.

Peterson-Hixson.—By the undersigned, in the First Church of the Brethren, Omaha, Nebr., June 18, 1919, Brother Harry Peterson, of 1718 South Tenth Street, Omaha, and Sister Grace Hixon, of 2930 North Twenty-second Street, Omaha, Nebr.—W. W. Blough, 2615 North Twenty-second Street, Omaha, Nebr.

Strayer-Mack.—By the undersigned, at the home of the groom's parents, June 19, 1919, Bro. Joseph C. Strayer, son of J. B. and Sister Nannie Strayer, of Johnstown, and Miss Lenore S. Mack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Mack, of East Conemaugh.—M. Clyde Horst, Johnstown, Pa.

Walker-Reitz.—By the undersigned, June 12, 1919, at the home of the bride (Brother George and Sister Reitz), Roy S. Walker and Estella Reitz, both of Somerset County, Pa.—D. H. Walker, Somerset, Pa.

Weller-Hotchkin.—At the home of the undersigned, June 2, 1919, Lloyd E. Weller and Mem C. Hotchkin, both of Battle Creek, Mich.—C. L. Wilkins, 1914 Gardner Avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Blough, Sister Kate, nee Mishler, wife of H. D. Blough, died at Ferndale, Pa., of tuberculosis, May 23, 1919, aged 49 years, 7 months and 27 days. She was a faithful member of the West Johnstown church for a number of years. She is survived by her husband, three daughters and three brothers. One son and doughter preceded her. Services in the Sell Street church by Eld. E. M. Detwiler. Interment in Berkley cemetery.—Jerome E. Blough, Johnstown, Pa.

Bosserman, Anna B., daughter of Brother Michael and Sister Edna Bosserman, died at the York Hospital, May 26, 1919, aged 5 years, 4 months and 23 days. Services at the home in East York and at the Mummert house by Eld. J. A. Long. Interment in Mummert cemetery.—Alice K. Trimmer, York, Pa.

Bowser, Sister Margaret, daughter of William and Nancy Gibson, born in Noble County, Ind., died May 31, 1919, at the home of her son, Maurice Bowser, Nappanee, Ind., aged 77 years, 4 months and 22 days. She was the eldest of eight children. Sister Bowser was married to Henry Bowser in 1865. To this union there were born two boys and three girls. She was an invalid for ten years, but during all those years was very patient, always thankful for our help given her. She united with the Church of the Brethren about nineteen years ago, and was ever faithful. She leaves two sons, three daughters, five brothers, two sisters, seventeen grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Funeral at the church, June 3, conducted by Eld. J. F. Appleman.—A. Laura Appleman, Nappanee, Ind.

Etter, Jos. E., died in the bounds of the Ft. McKinley church May 17, 1919, aged 85 years, 5 months and 18 days. He leaves two sons, one daughter, twelve grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Services in Ft. McKinley church by the writer, assisted by Bro. Wm. Keller.—D. C. Stutsman, Delphos, Ohio.

Evans, Martha Matilda, born in Carroll County, Md., died at her home in Fyrmont, Ohio, June 7, 1919, aged 73 years, 4 months and 5 days. She was the daughter of Solomon and Emily Fox. In 1878 she married Reuben H. Evans and they settled in Ohio. To this union two sons were born, both of whom survive. Services by the undersigned in Brookville, Ohio. Interment in the Eversole cemetery.—Wm. Mannix, Union, Ohio.

Fox, Amos C., died June 12, 1919, of Bright's disease, at Palmyra, Pa., aged 58 years, 6 months and 22 days. He leaves a widow, two sons and six daughters. The widow and three daughters are members of the Annville church. Services by the writer. Text, 2 Peter 1: 24, 25, was selected by the deceased. Services at the Palmyra church. Interment in the Spring Creek cemetery.—Elizabeth Blouch, Palmyra, Pa.

Garber, Sister Jennie C., wife of Bro. Enos F. Garber, died in the bounds of the Middle River congregation, Va., of a complication of diseases, April 9, 1919, aged 62 years, 4 months and 10 days. She lived a very devoted Christian life. She is survived by her husband, one adopted daughter, one sister and five brothers. Services by Bro. P. J. Wenger. Interment in the Middle River cemetery.—Nora V. Liskey, Ft. Defiance, Va.

Givler, Mary Catherine, daughter of Eli and Eliza Miller, born in Miami County, Ohio, died in the bounds of the Pipe Creek congregation June 20, 1919, aged 74 years and 14 days. She married Henry Givler in 1869. To this union were born two sons and two daughters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1876. She leaves two sons, one daughter, one sister and one brother. Services by Bro. F. Frank Fisher. Buriol in the Metzger cemetery.—Ruth Dailey, Peru, Ind.

Godfrey, Bro. Martin, died June 9, 1919, aged 72 years. He is survived by one son. Services at the Codorus house by Bro. J. L. Myers and Eld. D. Y. Brillhart. Interment in adjoining cemetery.—E. H. Lehman, Seven Valley, Pa.

Hershey, Raymond S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Hershey, died June 6, 1919, aged 29 years, 7 months and 18 days. He is survived by his mother, five brothers and three sisters. His father preceded him just two years ago. He united with the Church of the Brethren at Covina, Calif., where he made his home. He was drafted in the service and after spending some time in the Camp here, went to over-seas, remaining about ten months. He came back and, after being able to leave the hospital, was discharged. He had been home three days when he went to the creek for o swim and was drowned. Services by Elders Albert Hollinger and Harry Brindle, assisted by Rev. Jesson, of the Lutheran church.—Ida M. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa.

Hoover, Bro. Frank, died at his home, near Hagerstown, Md., April 26, 1919, aged 65 years and 6 months. He is survived by his wife, one son and one sister. Services in the Antietam church by Bro. D. R. Petre. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Jacobs, Bro. Abram, died at his home in Mechanicsburg, Pa., May 24, 1919, aged 82 years. Death was due to paralysis. In 1868 he was united in marriage to Levina Klinedinst. To this union thirteen children were born. The widow and seven children survive. He was a kind and affectionate father, and a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for nearly fifty years. Funeral services at the home by Bro. Jacob A. Miller, assisted by H. N. Fegley, of the Lutheran church. Interment in the Mechanicsburg cemetery.—J. W. Galley, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Kratz, Bro. Stehman, born at Lititz, Lancaster Co., Pa., May 11, 1866, died at the St. Joseph's Hospital in Lancaster, Pa., after an operation for a complication of diseases, May 30, 1919, aged 53 years. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren. Thirty years ago he was married to Cathrine Leed. To this union were born four daughters, all of whom survive. His wife preceded him seven years ago. Feb. 5, 1919, he was married to Sister Elizabeth Collins, who survives, together with two step-children. A few days before his death he was anointed. Services by Eld. H. B. Yoder, at the Mohler church. Burial remains were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery.—Leah N. Phillips, Lancaster, Pa.

Landis, Bro. Abram W., born Oct. 30, 1837, died June 14, 1919, aged 81 years, 7 months and 14 days. He was struck by the flyer at a crossing in the city of Lebanon, and instantly killed. Services by Elders John Herr and A. B. Strickler. Text, Psa. 39: 4, 5. Services and interment at the Tulpehocken meetinghouse.—Nathan Martin, 1031 Poplar Street, Lebanon, Pa.

Laugle, Sister Sarah, died at her home, near Bowmansdale, Pa., May 29, 1919, aged 84 years, 4 months and 27 days. Her death was due to a complication of diseases. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years. She leaves two sons and one daughter. Funeral services by Bro. Jacob A. Miller, assisted by Bro. I. C. Johnson. Text, John 11: 25. Interment in the Filey cemetery.—J. W. Galley, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Long, Elizabeth A., nee Shock, born in Montgomery County, near Brookville, Ohio, died in Arcanum, Ohio, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Degler, May 31, 1919, aged 77 years, 5 months and 5 days. She married Samuel Long in December, 1850. Four years later she became a member of the Church of the Brethren and remained faithful to the end. She is survived by four sons, three daughters, nineteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Services by Eld. John Heutsman at the Pitsburg house.—Mrs. J. W. Eikenberry, Arcanum, Ohio.

Nighawander, Sister Adeline, born in Canada, died at the Old Folks' Home at San Mar, Md., June 8, 1919, aged 72 years, 8 months and 24 days. She was married to Emanuel Nighawander, who preceded her four years ago. She came with her husband to this county soon after her marriage. She united with the Church of the Brethren shortly afterwards, and lived a faithful life, being a member of the Welsh Run congregation. Soon after the death of her husband she Lloyd E. Weller and Mera C. Hotchkin, both of Battle Creek, Mich.—C. L. Wilkins, 1914 Gardner Avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Blough, Sister Kate, nee Mishler, wife of H. D. Blough, died at Ferndale, Pa., of tuberculosis, May 23, 1919, aged 49 years, 7 months and 27 days. She was a faithful member of the West Johnstown church for a number of years. She is survived by her husband, three daughters and three brothers. One son and daughter preceded her. Services in the Sell Street church by Eld. E. M. Detwiler. Interment in Berkley cemetery.—Jerome E. Blough, Johnstown, Pa.

Bossorman, Anna B., daughter of Brother Michael and Sister Edna Bosserman, died at the York Hospital, May 26, 1919, aged 5 years, 4 months and 25 days. Services at the home in East York and at the Mummert house by Eld. J. A. Long. Interment in Mummert cemetery.—Aliee K. Trimmer, York, Pa.

Bowser, Sister Margaret, daughter of William and Nancy Gibson, born in Noble County, Ind., died May 3, 1919, at the home of her son, Maurice Bowser, Nappanee, Ind., aged 77 years, 8 months and 22 days. She was the eldest of eight children. Sister Bowser was married to Henry Bowser in 1865. To this union there were born two boys and three girls. She was an invalid for ten years, but during all those years was very patient, always thankful for any help given her. She united with the Church of the Brethren about nineteen years ago, and was ever faithful. She leaves two sons, three daughters, five brothers, two sisters, seventeen grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Funeral at the church, June 3, conducted by Eld. J. F. Appleman.—A. Laura Appleman, Nappanee, Ind.

Ester, Jos. E., died in the bounds of the Pt. McKinley church May 17, 1919, aged 85 years, 5 months and 18 days. He leaves two sons, one daughter, twelve grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Services in Ft. McKinley church by the writer, assisted by Bro. Wm. Keller.—D. C. Stutsman, Dayton, Ohio.

Evans, Martha Matilda, born in Carroll County, Md., died at her home in Fyrmont, Ohio, June 7, 1919, aged 73 years, 4 months and 5 days. She was the daughter of Solomon and Emily Fox. In 1878 she married Reuben H. Evans who died in January, 1912. To this union two sons were born, both of whom survive. Services by the undersigned in Brookville, Ohio. Interment in the Eversole cemetery. —Wm. Minnich, Union, Ohio.

Fox, Amos C., died June 12, 1919, of Bright's disease, at Palmyra, Pa., aged 38 years, 6 months and 22 days. He leaves a widow, two sons and six daughters. The widow and three daughters are members of our church. Services by Eld. John C. Zug. The text, 1 Peter iv: 24, 25, was selected by the deceased. Services at the Palmyra church. Interment in the Spring Creek cemetery.—Elizabeth Blouch, Palmyra, Pa.

Garber, Sister Jennie C., wife of Bro. Enos F. Garber, died in the bounds of the Middle River congregation, Va., of a complication of diseases, April 9, 1919, aged 62 years, 4 months and 10 days. She lived a very devoted Christian life. She is survived by her husband, an adopted daughter, one sister and five brothers. Services by Bro. P. J. Weaver. Interment in the Middle River cemetery.—Nora V. Liskey, Ft. Defiance, Va.

Givler, Mary Catherine, daughter of Eli and Eliza Miller, born in Miami County, Ohio, died in the bounds of the Pipe Creek congregation June 30, 1919, aged 74 years and 14 days. She married Henry Givler in 1869. To this union were born two sons and two daughters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1876. She leaves two sons, one daughter, one sister and one brother. Services by Bro. Frank Fisher. Burial in the Metzger cemetery.—Ruth Dailey, Peru, Ind.

Godfrey, Bro. Martin, died June 9, 1919, aged 72 years. He is survived by one son. Services at the Codorus house by Bro. J. L. Myers and Eld. D. Y. Brillhart. Interment in adjoining cemetery.—E. H. Lehman, Seven Valley, Pa.

Horshoy, Raymond S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Hershey, died June 5, 1919, aged 20 years, 7 months and 18 days. He is survived by his mother, five brothers and three sisters. His father preceded him just two years ago. Six years ago he united with the Church of the Brethren at Covina, Calif., where he made his home. He was drafted in the service and after spending some time in the Camp here, was sent over-seas, remaining about ten months. He came back and, after being able to leave the hospital, was discharged. He had been home three days when he went to the creek for a swim and was drowned. Services by Elders Albert Hollinger and Harry Brindle, assisted by Rev. Hesson, of the Lutheran church.—Ida M. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa.

Hoover, Bro. Frank, died at his home, near Hagerstown, Md., April 26, 1919, aged 65 years and 6 months. He is survived by his wife, one son and one daughter. Services in the Broadfording church by Bro. D. R. Petre. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Jacoba, Bro. Abram, died at his home in Mechanicsburg, Pa., May 24, 1919, aged 78 years. His death was due to paralysis. In 1868 he was united in marriage to Levina Rhnedinst. To this union thirteen children were born. The widow and seven children survive. He was a kind and affectionate father, and a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for nearly fifty years. Funeral services at the home by Bro. Jacob A. Miller, assisted by H. N. Pegley, of the Lutheran church. Interment in the Mechanicsburg cemetery.—J. W. Galley, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Kratz, Bro. Stehman, born at Lititz, Lancaster Co., Pa., May 11, 1866, died at the St. Joseph's Hospital in Lancaster, Pa., after an operation for a complication of diseases, May 30, 1919, aged 53 years. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren. About thirty years ago he was married to Cathrine Leed. To this union were born four daughters, all of whom survive. His wife preceded him seven years ago. Feb. 5, 1919, he was married to Sister Elizabeth Collins, who survives, together with two step-children. A few days before his death he was anointed. Services by Eld. H. B. Yoder, at the Mohler church. His remains were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery.—Leah N. Phillipy, Lancaster, Pa.

Landis, Bro. Abram W., born Oct. 30, 1837, died June 14, 1919, aged 81 years, 7 months and 14 days. He was struck by the flyer at a crossing in the city of Lebanon, and instantly killed. Services by Elders John Herr and A. H. Brubacher. Text, Psa. 39: 4, 5. Services and interment at the Tulpehocken meetinghouse.—Nathan Martin, 1031 Poplar Street, Lebanon, Pa.

Lengle, Sister Sarah, died at her home, near Bowmansdale, Pa., May 27, 1919, aged 69 years and eight months. Her death was due to a complication of diseases. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years. She leaves two sons and one daughter. Funeral services by Bro. Jacob A. Miller, assisted by Bro. I. C. Johnson. Text, John 11: 25. Interment in the Piley cemetery.—J. W. Galley, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Long, Elizabeth A., nee Shock, born in Montgomery County, near Brookville, Ohio, died in Arcanum, Ohio, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Degler, May 31, 1919, aged 77 years, 5 months and 5 days. She was the daughter of Solomon and Emily Fox. In 1878 she married Reuben H. Evans who died in January, 1912. To this union two sons were born, both of whom survive. Services by the undersigned in Brookville, Ohio. Interment in the Eversole cemetery. —Wm. Minnich, Union, Ohio.

Fox, Amos C., died June 12, 1919, of Bright's disease, at Palmyra, Pa., aged 38 years, 6 months and 22 days. He leaves a widow, two sons and six daughters. The widow and three daughters are members of our church. Services by Eld. John C. Zug. The text, 1 Peter iv: 24, 25, was selected by the deceased. Services at the Palmyra church. Interment in the Spring Creek cemetery.—Elizabeth Blouch, Palmyra, Pa.

Garber, Sister Jennie C., wife of Bro. Enos F. Garber, died in the bounds of the Middle River congregation, Va., of a complication of diseases, April 9, 1919, aged 62 years, 4 months and 10 days. She lived a very devoted Christian life. She is survived by her husband, an adopted daughter, one sister and five brothers. Services by Bro. P. J. Weaver. Interment in the Middle River cemetery.—Nora V. Liskey, Ft. Defiance, Va.

Givler, Mary Catherine, daughter of Eli and Eliza Miller, born in Miami County, Ohio, died in the bounds of the Pipe Creek congregation June 30, 1919, aged 74 years and 14 days. She married Henry Givler in 1869. To this union were born two sons and two daughters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1876. She leaves two sons, one daughter, one sister and one brother. Services by Bro. Frank Fisher. Burial in the Metzger cemetery.—Ruth Dailey, Peru, Ind.

Godfrey, Bro. Martin, died June 9, 1919, aged 72 years. He is survived by one son. Services at the Codorus house by Bro. J. L. Myers and Eld. D. Y. Brillhart. Interment in adjoining cemetery.—E. H. Lehman, Seven Valley, Pa.

Horshoy, Raymond S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Hershey, died June 5, 1919, aged 20 years, 7 months and 18 days. He is survived by his mother, five brothers and three sisters. His father preceded him just two years ago. Six years ago he united with the Church of the Brethren at Covina, Calif., where he made his home. He was drafted in the service and after spending some time in the Camp here, was sent over-seas, remaining about ten months. He came back and, after being able to leave the hospital, was discharged. He had been home three days when he went to the creek for a swim and was drowned. Services by Elders Albert Hollinger and Harry Brindle, assisted by Rev. Hesson, of the Lutheran church.—Ida M. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa.

Hoover, Bro. Frank, died at his home, near Hagerstown, Md., April 26, 1919, aged 65 years and 6 months. He is survived by his wife, one son and one daughter. Services in the Broadfording church by Bro. D. R. Petre. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Jacoba, Bro. Abram, died at his home in Mechanicsburg, Pa., May 24, 1919, aged 78 years. His death was due to paralysis. In 1868 he was united in marriage to Levina Rhnedinst. To this union thirteen children were born. The widow and seven children survive. He was a kind and affectionate father, and a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for nearly fifty years. Funeral services at the home by Bro. Jacob A. Miller, assisted by H. N. Pegley, of the Lutheran church. Interment in the Mechanicsburg cemetery.—J. W. Galley, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Kratz, Bro. Stehman, born at Lititz, Lancaster Co., Pa., May 11, 1866, died at the St. Joseph's Hospital in Lancaster, Pa., after an operation for a complication of diseases, May 30, 1919, aged 53 years. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren. About thirty years ago he was married to Cathrine Leed. To this union were born four daughters, all of whom survive. His wife preceded him seven years ago. Feb. 5, 1919, he was married to Sister Elizabeth Collins, who survives, together with two step-children. A few days before his death he was anointed. Services by Eld. H. B. Yoder, at the Mohler church. His remains were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery.—Leah N. Phillipy, Lancaster, Pa.

Landis, Bro. Abram W., born Oct. 30, 1837, died June 14, 1919, aged 81 years, 7 months and 14 days. He was struck by the flyer at a crossing in the city of Lebanon, and instantly killed. Services by Elders John Herr and A. H. Brubacher. Text, Psa. 39: 4, 5. Services and interment at the Tulpehocken meetinghouse.—Nathan Martin, 1031 Poplar Street, Lebanon, Pa.

Lengle, Sister Sarah, died at her home, near Bowmansdale, Pa., May 27, 1919, aged 69 years and eight months. Her death was due to a complication of diseases. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years. She leaves two sons and one daughter. Funeral services by Bro. Jacob A. Miller, assisted by Bro. I. C. Johnson. Text, John 11: 25. Interment in the Piley cemetery.—J. W. Galley, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Long, Elizabeth A., nee Shock, born in Montgomery County, near Brookville, Ohio, died in Arcanum, Ohio, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Degler, May 31, 1919, aged 77 years, 5 months and 5 discontinued housekeeping and went to the Old Folks' Home. While at the Home, she became the close associate of many of the inmates, who will greatly miss her motherly advice and counsel. She, with her husband, has been much interested in the workings of the church and the saving of souls. Both gave liberally of their means toward the support of the church and home and foreign mission work. She is survived by three brothers and two sisters. Services in the Broadfording church by Eld. D. M. Zuck, assisted by Eld. Caleb Long. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Nininger, Charles Edw., died May 8, 1919, aged 37 years, 11 months and 12 days. He married Sarah Ann Rhoads in 1870. To this union were born eleven children five of whom survive, together with his wife. Bro. Nininger was called to the ministry a number of years ago in the State of Oregon. He tried to fill this position to the best of his ability. Services by the writer in Santa Ana.—A. C. Snowberger, Anaheim, Calif.

Ray, Bro. Frank, died in the bounds of the Middle River congregation, Va., of kidney trouble, Feb. 1, 1919, aged 57 years, 1 month and 23 days. He has been a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren since 1910. He is survived by his wife, seven daughters, three brothers and one sister. Services by Bro. B. B. Garber. Interment in the Middle River cemetery.—Nora V. Liskey, Ft. Defiance, Va.

Royer, Bro. Henry, born in Wahash County, Ohio, died in the hospital at Salem, Oregon, June 12, 1919, aged 78 years, 8 months and 17 days. When nineteen years old he married Mary Ann Cue. To this union were born ten children, four of whom are living. His wife preceded him only a few months ago. Services by Bro. S. S. Reed. Interment in the Norway cemetery. He united with the Brethren church when quite young.—Rachel Michael, Myrtle Point, Oregon.

Secrest, Newton B., died at his home near Welsh Run, Pa., June 7, 1919, aged 64 years, 2 months and 14 days. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren for many years. He is survived by his wife, three sons, five daughters, eight grandchildren and one brother. Services at the Welsh Run church by Bro. D. M. Zuck, assisted by Brethren Elliott and Hunsberger.—Mrs. N. A. Winger, Mercersburg, Pa.

Shearer, Donald A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shearer, died June 13, 1919, aged 1 year, 4 months and 26 days. Services at the Salem church, Jacobus, Pa., by Bro. J. L. Myers and Eld. D. Y. Brillhart. Interment in adjoining cemetery.—E. H. Lehman, Seven Valley, Pa.

Shenk, Sister Lizzie, died of tuberculosis, June 7, 1919, aged 16 years, 5 months and 9 days. Services by Brethren Henry S. Zug and Nathan Eshelman at the Chickies house. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—S. C. Leib, Manheim, Pa.

Snyder, Bro. John H., died at his home at Clover Hill, in the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham County, Va., of cancer June 2, 1919, aged 79 years, 9 months and 2 days. He was a son of John and Elizabeth Snyder. He has been a faithful member of the church for more than forty years. He is survived by his wife, four sons and five daughters. Services at Beaver Creek by Elders J. D. Glick and M. B. Miller. Burial in adjoining cemetery.—Nannie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va.

Stouffer,—Mrs. Emma J., wife of Bro. Lewis E. Stouffer, died at her home, near Hagerstown, Md., April 10, 1919, aged 56 years, 9 months and 11 days. She is survived by her husband, two sons and one daughter. Services in the Broadfording church by Brethren D. R. Petre and C. M. Hicks. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Teeter, Stephen D., born in Pike County, Ohio, died at his home in Peebles, Ohio, June 16, 1919, aged 65 years, 10 months and 10 days. He leaves his wife, seven children, one brother and four sisters. When nineteen years of age he united with the Baptist church and later identified himself with the Christian Union faith, in which he died. Services at the home by the writer. Burial at Locust Grove. —Van Eight, Peebles, Ohio.

Trimmer, Landis Levan, born in York County, Pa., died Oct. 5, 1918, aged 31 years, 2 months and 26 days. He was drafted and sent to Camp Lee, Va., where he became ill with influenza and pneumonia. He was taken home for burial, but because of the quarantine a private funeral was held. June 1 memorial services were held by the writer and Rev. C. H. Attland. He leaves his father and mother, two brothers and four sisters.—O. W. Cook, Dillsburg, Pa.

Wampler, Sister Catharine, nee Miller, died at her home, near Dayton, Va., June 3, 1919, aged 71 years, 2 months and 15 days. Sister Wampler united with the church of her choice early in life, and remained a faithful, exemplary sister. For several years she was confined to her home. Prior to this she was found at all the church services, when at all possible. During her sickness the anointing was administered, which she enjoyed very much, as well as all other visits and services held with her. The deceased was the wife of the late Bro. John Wampler, one of our faithful deacons. She leaves two daughters and three sons. Services at the Bridgewater church, conducted by Eld. J. M. Kagey, assisted by the writer. Text, Rev. 14: 13. Interment in the cemetery near by.—S. I. Bowman, Harrisonburg, Va.

West, Sister Mary, died March 19, 1919, aged 26 years. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1916 and was a faithful member of the Rowland Creek congregation. Services at the home by Brethren N. C. and J. A. Reed.—Nancy J. Suit, Seven Mile Ford, Va.

Wegeman, Mary Alice, daughter of Christian and Susannah Stouder, died May 23, 1919, aged 50 years, 10 months and 21 days. She is survived by her husband and one brother. She united with the Church of the Brethren about thirty years ago and lived a faithful Christian life. Services in the West Goshen church by Elders Frank Kreider and Wm. Hess.—Myrtle E. Ulrich, Goshen, Ind.

The Gospel Messenger

A weekly religious journal, 16 large pages, is published in the interest of the Church of the Brethren, and is the only church organ published by the authority of the Conference. Price, $1.50 per annum.

It must earnestly pleads for a return to the apostolic order of worship and practice.

It holds that the Bible is a divinely-inspired book, and recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice for the people of God.

It also holds to the doctrine of the Trinity; teaches future reward and punishment, and emphasizes the importance of a pure, holy and upright life before God and man.

It maintains that only those who remain faithful until death have the promise of eternal life;

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and hence for the remission of sins;

That Trine Immersion or dipping the candidate three times face-forward is Christian Baptism;

That Feet-washing as taught in John 13; is a divine command to be observed by the church;

That the Lord's Supper is a meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening, or after the close of the day.

That the Salutation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ;

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ;

Studies in Doctri

CONT

Part I. Studies in Doc
Part II. Studies in Ord
Part III. Studies in Chr

Who Should Get the

Teachers . . . . Studies in Doct
Sunday-school l that every teach

Sunday-School Classes . . . . . Every class wis trines, Ordinanc
trine and Devot

Converts . . . . Studies in Doct and churches ca
of all those late

Members of the Church . . . . . Church membe book that is ind
Doctrine, Ordi
three books in

Topics Treated

Part I.—The Doctrine of Go
Church, the Holy Spirit, Fait
Things, and the Scriptures.

Part II.—Baptism, Laying o
Supper, Communion, Christian the Simple Life, and the Begir

Part III.—Christian Livin Growth, Bible Reading and S ance, Service, Stewardship, Se panionship, Recreation, and L

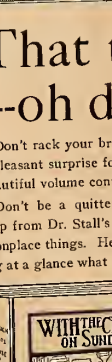
Cloth bound; 40 Chapters;

BRETHREN PUBLIS

That talk to
---oh dear, wh

Don't rack your brain trying to think up a pleasant surprise for you in his book call beautiful volume containing 52 illustrated t

Don't be a quitter! Teachers, superin help from Dr. Stall's book. He will show monplace things. Here are a few of the tit ing at a glance what Dr. Stall will enable y



Bre
Ban
Hu
Nut
Rog
Rea
Tra

is bour pages, line dra
dren.
Our sp
$1.20 po

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3:13

"Till we all attain unto . . . the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Eph. 4: 13.

Vol. 68 | Elgin, Ill., July 12, 1919 | No. 28

In This Number

Editorial,—
Watching the Sprouting Seed, ... 433
The Strongest Thing in the World, ... 433
The Point of Moral Reserve, ... 433
"Wherefore Judge Nothing Before the Time," 433
The Quiet Hour, ... 439
Among the Churches, ... 440
Around the World, ... 441

Contributors' Forum,—
Life's Voyage (Poem), ... 434
The Conference as Viewed from Afar. By J. H. Moore, ... 434
Four Views of Faith.—III. By H. H. Helman, ... 434
Holy Spirit or Satan, Which? By Ira H. Frantz, ... 435
The Church Library.—Part One. By O. B. Maphis, ... 435
Stewardship. By D. C. Moomaw, ... 436
Moving Mountains. By W. G. Nyce, ... 436
The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative.—Part One. By Chas. M. Yearout, ... 437
If the Light That Is in Thee Be Darkness. By J. S. Sherfy, ... 437
"More of the Great Commission." By S. H. Yeater, ... 445
"The Spirit of the Age." By W. K. Conner, ... 446

The Round Table,—
Wealth. By Norman W. Twiddy, ... 438
The Pastor's Joy. By Leander Smith, ... 438
Hero or Slave? By G. W. Tuttle, ... 438
Philip, the Soul-winner. By Roy Temple House, ... 439
Do You Hear His Voice? By Ida M. Helm, ... 439
Intercessory Foreign Missionaries. By Herman J. Grove, ... 439
In the Silence. By Margaret Ducte, ... 439

Home and Family,—
My Song (Poem). By B. F. M. Sours, ... 442
Contrasting Interiors. By Oma Karn, ... 442
A Little Heroine. By Nora E. Berkebile, ... 442
Marilla's Engagement. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough, ... 442
A Case of Strategy. By Rhetta O'Rourke, ... 443

...EDITORIAL...

Watching the Sprouting Seed

Do you remember how fine and high the spirit of idealism was while the war was on? The world would never be selfish any more. Learning well the fearful folly of national egotism gone mad, all nations would hereafter have as much regard for each other's rights as for their own. Surely the day of universal brotherhood was dawning.

How does the case look now? Have you been compelled to note a good many surviving signs of old-line pre-war imperialistic ambitions? Have you already undergone a bit of disillusionment?

Of course. But only those ill-balanced folks who always lose their senses in a spasm of emotionalism are really surprised. A sudden and complete reversal of international form was too much to hope for. Not even the powerful compulsion of the greatest tragedy in history could make a new world in a day. Human nature is too stubborn a fact for that.

But now that the outlines of this new world, brought in by the war, are beginning to appear, and we can see in it certain striking resemblances to the old world, why not be glad there is some promise of a better day? And why not make the most of this, encourage it, and do what we can to turn the promise into realization? Isn't this more sensible than saying, with those who have no faith in progress: "There go your 'fourteen points.' We told you so. We knew they were too visionary. We knew they would not work. Stop dreaming of world brotherhood and face realities. Prepare for the next war."

Just because some concessions must be made to existing facts, just because a perfect international program can not be set on foot at once, to point to this with a cynical sneer as proof that hopes of better things are groundless, and thus to blind the eyes to actual accomplishments,—isn't that about the meanest, most contemptible trick you can imagine?

Yes, to be sure, it is the same old world of selfish rivalries, but it is also a new world in the making. For in the hard rock of world intrigues and jealousies there is already many a crevice filled with the rich, moist earth of justice, faith and square dealing. The seed of international good will is sprouting in it. Soon you will see the blade, after that the ear, and bye and bye the full corn in the ear.

The Strongest Thing in the World

It isn't some new, high-powered explosive. It is very old and usually makes very little noise. But the pressure never ceases. The most powerful forces in this world are quiet and persistent.

This is the way Paul came to mention it: He was writing the new-born Christians of Galatia. Some would-be teachers had appointed themselves to the solemn but very necessary duty of telling these heathen converts what was what. They succeeded. That is, they succeeded in getting these young churches all muddled up about "the law." Must we, or must we not, be circumcised? was one of the big questions.

But never mind that part of it, except to note how it furnished the occasion for Paul to lay down one of those rock-bottom truths which go straight to the heart of things. Just look at his illuminating, fog-dispelling words: "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but faith working through love."

That single thrust of the Spirit's sword cut through the thick, hard shell of trivialities to the meaty kernel, the engine of real power. It shows us what it is that brings things to pass, for it tells us what "avails." And to avail means to get results; it means accomplishment.

But how do we know that we are dealing here with the mightiest force in the world? Because its "availing" is accomplished "in Christ Jesus," the bond which links the individual soul with God. This is the power, then, which, through Christ, connects weak human strength with the infinite resources of the Almighty.

But what, exactly, is this power? Have you looked closely at Paul's words?

Note first, however, that any faith which works is powerful, regardless of the motive which impels it. For it may enlist the utmost of human energy. A faith which works through hate is powerful. A faith which works through selfish ambition is powerful. How terribly powerful such a faith can be, the world has lately had tragic witness.

But the power of such a faith has this serious limitation: It does not tie up with God. It avails, but not "in Christ Jesus." It fights against God instead of with him. It is, therefore, doomed to final failure. God is love, and no faith except a faith inspired by love can lay hold upon the forces of Omnipotence. No other faith can possibly work "in tune with the Infinite."

Only a love-wrought faith is strong enough for Christian needs. Only a love-driven faith is strong enough to overcome the world. But such a faith, thank God, is strong enough. It is the force, and the only force, that enables individual Christians to surmount all obstacles and come out more than conquerors. It is the force, and the only force, that will make the kingdom of the world become the Kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ.

It has seemed sometimes that there ought to be some quicker, easier, more effective way to do it. But there is not. There can not be. For the obstacles which must be overcome in the building of the Kingdom will not yield to any other kind of force. Spiritual powers can be defeated only by spiritual weapons.

It is very true that physical might is more successful than "faith working through love" for the accomplishment of some things. For quick results in reducing an obstreperous boy to a state of harmlessness, a strong arm is better than soft words. And a violent, unreasoning mob, bent on murder and destruction, may be subdued by bayonets more readily than by arguments. But granting that muscular strength can do some things which loving faith can not, and granting, further, the usefulness of such methods in some circumstances, this does not, by any means, disprove our contention. For the conquest of the spirit mere might is a puny, powerless thing. That is a more difficult undertaking and requires, therefore, a more powerful kind of pressure. And that,—the conquest and direction of human wills,—is the real job before us. That is what it takes to make the Kingdom grow.

No amount of physical power, natural or supernatural, can avail for bringing human thoughts into captivity to the obedience of Christ. The question of the power required in this great enterprise is one, not of quantity but quality.

There is no other way to do it. God has no other plan, because there can be no other plan. What the church needs is more faith and more love to make it work. Faith and love,—these are the two cords which, intertwined, will make a cable strong enough to draw the world to God.

"Faith working through love" is the strongest thing in the world.

The Point of Moral Reserve

Even the worst criminals have their codes of honor. There are some things they would not do. One such who had become a Christian, recalling his former evil life and the long list of offenses which he had committed, insisted that he would never, in his worst moods, have allowed a wounded man to suffer while he himself was comfortable. Every man, however stained with sin, has left, within his soul, a certain untouched field of moral reserve.

This is a significant fact, an exceedingly encouraging one. And it contains a hint for evangelists, pastors and Christian workers generally. Find that spot, and cultivate it. Plant in it some seeds of Gospel Truth. Use it as a center of appeal to its possessor, showing him that the same kindly grace of God which has kept this much of him sound, can put new life into the decayed parts and cure them.

This sort of an appeal is not for the man already good enough in his own eyes. It is for the one who considers his case hopeless, who thinks he can not be made "whole." The little reserve he has shows the possibility of the new life. It shows what his capacities really are. Tell him about that.

And if you need encouragement of this kind tell yourself about it too.

"Wherefore Judge Nothing Before the Time"

And the time for judging, Paul went on to say, will be when the Lord comes. He will "bring to light the hidden things of darkness and make manifest the counsels of the hearts."

Paul was explaining to the Corinthians the relation of Apollos and himself to each other and to the Gospel work, and rebuking the folly of his readers in passing judgment on the relative merits of the two leaders.

This is the time for work. Why waste the precious moments in trying to decide who is the best worker? There is a place for all of us. And work enough to keep us all busy. And we are not competent judges, anyway.

Let us keep to our job and leave the Lord's work to him.

BITTER GRIEF

Will be your portion after it is too late to change things. It is for others now who thought "some other school will do," and whose children are now lost.

PATRONIZE YOUR OWN CHURCH SCHOOL

Then you make no mistake.

McPHERSON COLLEGE

Is a standard Christian college, conducted by your own church, for your children. Fall semester opens Sept. 15, 1919.

McPHERSON, KANSAS

Remember:—You have only one chance in all your lifetime to start your children out right. That is this year. Write today for reservation of rooms.

(Watch this space next week.)

The Forward Movement

is the largest goal our church has ever set. Surely the day of small things in the Church of the Brethren is a thing of the past.

A CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

is the foundation for all things which this movement contemplates. This is why MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE endorses the Forward Movement and is striving to do her part to make it succeed.

Write for detailed information concerning our work.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE,
Mount Morris, Ill.

The Full Report of Annual Meeting

Practically everyone who attended the Bicentennial Conference at Winona Lake says that it was the greatest Conference in the history of the church.

A Full Report is being prepared. This will contain the addresses delivered at the missionary meeting, Publishing House Meeting, as well as all speeches made during the business session, beginning Tuesday morning. It also contains all queries and answers.

If you want to keep in close touch with the church and what she is doing at the Conference, order the Full Report.

Price the same as before, 35c per copy, postpaid.

Christian Workers' Booklet

Each six months sees an increased interest in the Christian Workers' Society. These booklets contain not only the topics, but a good outline to follow and will be of assistance in working out a program. Each member should have a copy. Prices: Less than 25 copies, 4c. each; 25 copies, 75c; 50 copies, $1.25; 100 copies, $2.00.

Junior Christian Workers' Topic Cards

give a complete list of the Junior Christian

THE GOSPEL MES

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 1

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., July 12, 1919

In This Number

Editorial.—
Watching the Sprouting Seed. 433
The Strongest Thing in the World, ...433
The Point of Moral Reserve. 433
"Wherefore Judge Nothing Before the Time." 433
The Quiet Hour. 439
Among the Churches. 440
Around the World. 441

Contributors' Forum.—
Life's Voyage (Poem). 434
The Conference as Viewed from Afar. By J. H. Moore. 434
Four Views of Faith.—III. By H. H. Helman. 434
Holy Spirit or Satan, Which? By Ira H. Frantz. 435
The Church Library.—Part One. By O. B. Maphis. 435
Stewardship. By D. C. Moomaw. 436
Moving Mountains. By W. G. Nyce. 436
The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative.—Part One. By Chas. M. Yearout. 437
If the Light That Is in Thee Be Darkness. By J. S. Sherfy. 437
"More of the Great Commission." By S. H. Yeater. 445
"The Spirit of the Age." By W. K. Conner. 446

The Round Table.—
Wealth. By Norman W. Twiddy. 438
The Pastor's Joy. By Leander Smith. 438
Hero or Slave? By G. W. Tuttle. 438
Philip, the Soul-winner. By Roy Temple House. 438
Do You Hear His Voice? By Ida M. Helm. 439
Intercessory Foreign Missionaries. By Herman J. Grove. 439
In the Silence. By Margaret Dudte. 439

Home and Family.—
My Song (Poem). By B. F. M. Sours. 442
Contrasting Interiors. By Oma Karn. 442
A Little Heroine. By Nora E. Berkebile. 442
Marilla's Engagement. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough. 442
A Case of Strategy. By Rhetta O'Rourke. 443

...EDITORIAL...

Watching the Sprouting Seed

Do you remember how fine and high the spirit of idealism was while the war was on? The world would never be selfish any more. Learning well the fearful folly of national egotism gone mad, all nations would hereafter have as much regard for each other's rights as for their own. Surely the day of universal brotherhood was dawning.

How does the case look now? Have you been compelled to note a good many surviving signs of old-line pre-war imperialistic ambitions? Have you already undergone a bit of disillusionment?

Of course. But only those ill-balanced folks who always lose their senses in a spasm of emotionalism are really surprised. A sudden and complete reversal of international form was too much to hope for. Not even the powerful compulsion of the greatest tragedy in history could make a new world in a day. Human nature is too stubborn a fact for that.

But now that the outlines of this new world, brought in by the war, are beginning to appear, and we can see in it certain striking resemblances to the old world, why not be glad there is some promise of a better day? And why not make the most of this, encourage it, and do what we can to turn the promise into realization? Isn't this more sensible than saying, with those who have no faith in progress: "There go your 'fourteen points.' We told you so. We knew they were too visionary. We knew they would not work. Stop dreaming of world brotherhood and face realities. Prepare for the next war."

Just because some concessions must be made to existing facts, just because a perfect international program can not be set on foot at once, to point to this with a cynical sneer as proof that hopes of better things are groundless, and thus to blind the eyes to actual accomplishments,—isn't that about the meanest, most contemptible trick you can imagine?

Yes, to be sure, it is the same old world of selfish

The Strongest Th

It isn't some new, high-powered explosive. It is very old and usually makes very little noise. But the pressure never ceases. The most powerful forces in this world are quiet and persistent.

This is the way Paul came to mention it: He was writing the new-born Christians of Galatia. Some would-be Teachers had appointed themselves to the solemn but very necessary duty of telling these heathen converts what was what. They succeeded. That is, they succeeded in getting these young churches all muddled up about "the law." Must we, or must we not, be circumcised? was one of the big questions.

But never mind that part of it, except to note how it furnished the occasion for Paul to lay down one of those rock-bottom truths which go straight to the heart of things. Just look at his illuminating, fog-dispelling words: "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but faith working through love."

That single thrust of the Spirit's sword cut through the thick, hard shell of trivialities to the meaty kernel, the engine of real power. It shows us what it is that brings things to pass, for it tells us what "avails." And to avail means to get results; it means accomplishment.

But how do we know that we are dealing here with the mightiest force in the world? Because its "availing" is accomplished "in Christ Jesus," the bond which links the individual soul with God. This is the power, then, which, through Christ, connects weak human strength with the infinite resources of the Almighty.

But what, exactly, is this power? Have you looked closely at Paul's words?

Note first, however, that any faith which works is powerful, regardless of the motive which impels it. For it may enlist the utmost of human energy. A faith which works through hate is powerful. A faith which works through selfish ambition is powerful. How terribly powerful such a faith can be, the world has lately had tragic witness.

But the power of such a faith has this serious limitation: It does not tie up with God. It avails, but not "in Christ Jesus." It fights against God instead of with him. It is, therefore, doomed to final failure. God is love, and no faith except a faith inspired by love can lay hold upon the forces of Omnipotence. No other faith can possibly work "in tune with the Infinite."

Only a love-wrought faith is strong enough for Christian needs. Only a love-driven faith is strong enough to overcome the world. But such a faith—thank God, is strong enough. It is the force, and the only force, that enables individual Christians to surmount all obstacles and come out more than conquerors. It is the force, and the only force, that will make the kingdom of the world become the Kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ.

It has seemed sometimes that there ought to be some quicker, easier, more effective way to do it. But there is not. There can not be. For the obstacles which must be overcome in the building of the Kingdom will we may know his will concerning us. We, exercising faith, will not be as one beholding his natural face in a glass, going away and forgetting what manner of man he was. But rather, as we know and see, we desire to be. Character becomes our longing desire. God bless the man who strives for character! What joy and satisfaction when God speaks to the soul and it grows and develops and takes on the image of God! The real function of faith here is to know his Word, and herein to see him, and then to transform us into his image.

May I quote from that great man of God, J. Wilbur Chapman, who, I have just heard as I am writing, has gone to where we shall all be like the Lord: "A perfumer bought a common earthen jar and filled it with attar of roses. Soon every particle of the substance of the jar was filled with the rich perfume, and long afterward, even when broken, the fragments retained the fragrance. So it is that a human life becomes saturated with the Word of God, when one loves it and meditates upon it continually. The thoughts, feelings, affections, dispositions, indeed the whole character, are influenced by the spirit of the Bible."

What more could one hope for than to possess the purest character—more like him? The "substance of the thing hoped for" here is that we are becoming like him. Ask your Christian neighbors what they most desire above all things, and they will almost invariably tell you that they desire most of all to be spotless Christians. Character is what we so earnestly desire. How triumphant faith is in producing character!

"While it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know when he shall appear," faith continuing, "we shall be like him." God be praised for faith that makes us like him. Praise him for the triumph of faith when we "shall see him as he is and be like him."

Richwood, Ohio.

Holy Spirit or Satan, Which?

BY IRA H. FRANTZ

It is a fact not to be denied that men of the world, that is unsaved or non-Christian men, often engage in very commendable acts of philanthropy and social betterment, have high ideals in moral and political affairs, and cast their influence on the side of right in temperance contests and other moral issues. The question is, Are they motived by the good Spirit—or the evil one? The question might resolve itself into two others: (1) Does Satan ever desire men to do good? (2) Does the Holy Spirit play any part in the lives of the unconverted, more than urging them to immediate acceptance of Christ?

Satan is everywhere represented as evil—hopelessly evil. He is called a murderer, a liar, the old serpent, the adversary of men, the deceiver of the whole world. Christ has nothing in common with him. Only enmity exists between them. Nowhere is it even suggested that there is any good in him, for Jesus plainly says there is no truth in him. Satan, then, is never an angel in our ordinary acceptance of the term. When Paul says (2 Cor. 11: 14) that "Satan fashioneth himself into an angel of light," he does not say that he performs any good work. Even the men, "the false apostles," whom Paul is talking about, are evidently consciously deceitful, merely making a pretense of being "ministers of righteousness" in order to gain influence.

Thus Satan ever tries to hide from his human victims his true character. The saloon entrance has nothing about it to suggest the destruction that lurks within. The music coming from the dance-hall or the den of vice may be such as to arouse only reverent emotions in the hearts of the unsophisticated. One of the liquor interests' favorite posters, in the recent temperance fight, represented Liberty as a pure, beautiful woman, pointing to Prohibition, an ugly hunch-backed, narrow-minded man, while she pleads with "Uncle Sam," "There is not room enough here for both of us, Uncle." Naturally one's sympathies are with fair Liberty, about to be driven out by Prohibition. To one who is unable or unwilling to detect the fallacy of the argument, Satan has effectively concealed his character and become an angel of light.

The war profiteer, who gives large sums to various charities, solely to divert attention from his illegal profits, is imitating Satan in this. It does not matter how large his gifts may be, nor what else the man may profess, if his charities come only from these base motives, he is in this a "deceitful worker," trying to appear a "minister of righteousness."

But the war profiteer and the liquor advertiser do not belong to the class mentioned in the first paragraph of this article. For examples of this class take the case of the non-Christian citizen who is known to be thoroughly honest in all his dealings and a good neighbor in every way, the non-Christian man who votes for prohibition, the one who gives liberally (and unselfishly) to charities, or the non-Christian mill-owner who takes a personal interest in the welfare of his employés. Shall we say because these men are not Christians that their acts and characters are prompted by Satan? But the progress of Christ's Kingdom is augmented by the money and vote of the non-Christian. Likewise is the downfall of Satan's kingdom hastened. "A house divided against itself can not stand." "He that is not against us is for us." It seems unlikely that Satan would prompt one of his followers (for we must insist that non-Christian men are his followers) to support a measure so opposed to him as prohibition is.

We can but conclude therefore that when his followers do support good movements and perform righteous acts they are disloyal to their master. Indeed, should it be an unbelievable matter that Satan's followers are often disloyal to him, when we see so much disloyalty among Christ's followers? If the Satanic spirit leads Christians to sin, why may not the Holy Spirit lead sinners to do good?

Jesus says of the Holy Spirit that he will "convict the world in respect of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." In its ultimate results, of course, this means to give to every individual a conviction of sin in self, but as a necessary preliminary to this it must also mean to "give the world convictions in respect of sin," etc. This very thing he is now doing. A few generations ago there was little conviction in the world respecting the sin of slavery or of the liquor business. But now such convictions are by no means confined to Christian people. Is it not a triumph for the Holy Spirit that this change in sentiment has taken place? Are not opportunities for Christian work and the salvation of souls greatly increased thereby? Surely Satan has not done this. It must be the work of the Holy Spirit.

In contrast with this convicting work of the Holy Spirit in the world note that "the god of this world hath blinded the minds of the unbelieving that the light of the gospel . . . should not dawn upon them" (2 Cor. 4: 4). Satan, then, prefers that the world should not have convictions respecting sin, righteousness, and judgment. If he had his way, there would be no public sentiment leading to reform. Satan always suggests to the individual who will give him a hearing, that the next step be lower. The Holy Spirit always suggests to every individual who will listen to him, that the next step be higher.

The business of the Holy Spirit in the world is to bring the world to Christ. He does this work specifically by convicting individual sinners and bringing them to repentance, but also generally by reforming the popular mind, leading to better environment in which to carry on his work in individuals. Surely we make a grave mistake if we attribute to Satan any of this great moral reform work, simply because individuals connected with it are non-Christian men, i. e., men whom the Holy Spirit has not yet been able to lead to acceptance of Christ.

Others may err in another direction by supposing that because the Holy Spirit influences a man to live a moral life and do good deeds, that man is therefore saved. Salvation is through Christ alone. A man may, consciously or unconsciously, yield to the Spirit by lending his influence for the general moral betterment (which will result in the salvation of others), while at the same time he resists the further efforts of the Spirit to lead him individually to the Savior for his own salvation. Satan may quiet the man's conscience by telling him that his philanthropies will save him, that he is "better than many Christians," etc. He may even use the example of this servant of his to induce other men to remain away from Christ. Yet it is not consistent with what we know of his character that he should desire any of his servants to be even moral men.

Whatever of good is found in any one, saved or unsaved, is there against the will of Satan. On the whole, the cause of Christ is the gainer in every righteous act, and to the Holy Spirit, therefore, must be attributed the motivating influence.

Beattie, Kansas.

The Church Library

BY O. B. MAPHIS

In Two Parts.—Part One

"Oh books, ye monuments of mind, concrete wisdom of the wisest;
Sweet solaces of daily life, proofs and results of immortality;
Trees yielding all fruits, whose leaves are for the healing of the nations;
Groves of knowledge, where all may eat; nor fear a flaming sword;
Gentle comrades, kind advisers, friends, comforts, treasures, Helps, governments, diversities of tongues; who can weigh your worth?"

—Tupper: Proverbial Philosophy of Reading.

Never before, in the history of the world, have the affairs of men and nations taken on such new and unheard of ideas for advancement. Changes are affecting men and women in every walk of life. Ideas and ideals are changing by leaps and bounds. It seems that a second Renaissance has come upon the affairs of mankind.

No little part in all these great movements has been played by the libraries of the nations. Indeed, the library world has been a leading factor in all these changes. That libraries have been useful and found a place to serve has been demonstrated very beautifully through the work of the American Library Association for the soldiers and sailors of our Government. Both books and money have been used to a good purpose.

There was a time when the library existed for the collection and preservation of good literature. The library existed for the benefit of the scholar,—a place where he might browse and become absorbed with the great minds of the past.

No less is this true of the library today, which, like all other institutions, has taken on a new phase. Not only the man of letters but the common laborer, the boy and girl of the grades, find here a place to help them grow with the outside world. The library has come to be a servant of the community at large.

Some folks with zeal, but less knowledge, even today, look upon the librarian as rather old-fashioned, but be that as it may, the profession of librarianship is "full of dignity, rich in results" and filled with men and women, loyal and unselfish to mankind.

One writer recently said: "The book-using art is bound to grow, and our failure or success in leading and directing its growth is going to be the measure of our ability to rise to our opportunities." As librarians, he further says, "Never have we seen so many things to be done, or felt so keenly our call to service."

While we have in our country hundreds, yes, thousands, of public libraries, containing thousands of volumes, yet, there is a growing demand for smaller and special libraries. Today the movement for the special library is yet in its infancy. We are going to live to see the time when every business or profession will have its special library. In some of our larger organizations and business houses, such as Marshall Field & Co., Atlas Portland Cement Co., Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co., of Chicago, with similar concerns in other cities, all have their particular libraries. The City of Chicago has its own Municipal Library, where the city officials carry the rank and file of the membership with her. On a few points she did not go as far afield as some would like to have seen her go. The delegates looked the situation over carefully and decided that they were on the safe side of the question. And, by the way, the principle of "safety first" has a decided hold on our people. It was in clear evidence at this Conference. When the way is open for our people to undertake a good work, and they see their duty clearly, they are not slow about moving. But when together in Conference, where they can pray and meditate, they are not disposed to take chances. In Conference and out of it, there is an abiding disposition to test all propositions and to endorse only those that are known to be good. This is the conservative spirit. It may not make as many demonstrations as other kinds of spirit, but it brings about permanent results all the same. We thank the Lord for this phase of the spirit in the workings of the Winona Conference.

(Continued on Page 446)

Sebring, Fla.

Four Views of Faith

BY H. H. HELMAN

III. Faith and Character

Most of us have never stopped to ask whether faith could have any relation to character. By character here we mean those attributes, necessarily in limited quantities, which contribute to make us the near-perfect human. By character we mean the Christian graces. Can you define the Christian graces? I can not. It is akin to Divine righteousness but never reaches such perfection here. We see it best in that dear Christian mother who, above all others, has real faith. We see it in her love, her purity, her patience, her kindness, her endurance, her forgiveness. Does this character have any dependence upon faith? Can there be a truly good character without faith? Does faith produce character?

Let me convince you by asking a few more questions: Does what you believe have anything to do with what you are—your character? Does what you trust have anything to do with what you are? Does your response to God, your answer to your belief in him, have anything to do with what you are? Does your love of God—another answer to your belief in him—have anything to do with your character? Does your acceptance of Christ as your Redeemer have anything to do with your character? Does your acceptance of the Word, as the revelation of his Will, have anything to do with character? Does the assurance of things hoped for have anything to do with character? Does the perfect persuasion of things not seen have anything to do with character? So now, does faith have anything to do with character? Here I might stop. You understand. But now on the positive:

The very initial exercise of faith changes our character—it changes us from a self to a sinner. It substitutes humility for pride, trust for doubt, love for hate, truth for falsehood, hope for despondency, joy for sorrow. What a change comes over a man who is saved by grace through faith! A wonderful transformation—such as can be had in no other way! We can safely insist on a transformed character after the entrance into the Kingdom, through faith. It can not be secured before. Wonderfully potent power that does this!

Faith draws us to God through our realization of our dependence and need. He meets this and we confide and trust in him. We love him. We fear him. We admire him. We want to be like him and, surprisingly, find ourselves becoming like him. Then we see more of him—things not seen—faith having opened our spiritual eyes and again we be-

we may know his will concerning us. We, exercising faith, will not be as one beholding his natural face in a glass, going away and forgetting what manner of man he was. But rather, as we know and see, we desire to be. Character becomes our longing desire. God bless the man who strives for character! What joy and satisfaction when God speaks to the soul and it grows and develops and takes on the image of God! The real function of faith here is to know his Word, and herein to see him, and then to transform us into his image.

May I quote from that great man of God, J. Wilbur Chapman, who, I have just heard as I am writing, has gone to where we shall all be like the Lord: "A perfumer bought a common earthen jar and filled it with attar of roses. Soon every particle of the substance of the jar was filled with the rich perfume, and long afterward, even when broken, the fragments retained the fragrance. So it is that a human life becomes saturated with the Word of God, when one loves it and meditates upon it continually. The thoughts, feelings, affections, dispositions, indeed the whole character, are influenced by the spirit of the Bible."

What more could one hope for than to possess the purest character—more like him? The "substance of the thing hoped for" here is that we are becoming like him. Ask your Christian neighbors what they most desire above all things, and they will almost invariably tell you that they desire most of all to be spotless Christians. Character is what we so earnestly desire. How triumphant faith is in producing character!

"While it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know when he shall appear," faith continuing, "we shall be like him." God be praised for faith that makes us like him. Praise him for the triumph of faith when we "shall see him as he is and be like him."

Richwood, Ohio.

Holy Spirit or Satan, Which?

BY IRA H. FRANTZ

It is a fact not to be denied that men of the world, that is unsaved or non-Christian men, often engage in very commendable acts of philanthropy and social betterment, have high ideals in moral and political affairs, and cast their influence on the side of right in temperance contests and other moral issues. The question is, Are they motived by the good Spirit—or the evil one? The question might resolve itself into two others: (1) Does Satan ever desire men to do good? (2) Does the Holy Spirit play any part in the lives of the unconverted, more than urging them to immediate acceptance of Christ?

Satan is everywhere represented as evil—hopelessly evil. He is called a murderer, a liar, the old serpent, the adversary of men, the deceiver of the whole world. Christ has nothing in common with him. Only enmity exists between them. Nowhere is it even suggested that there is any good in him, for Jesus plainly says there is no truth in him. Satan, then, is never an angel in our ordinary acceptance of the term. When Paul says (2 Cor. 11: 14) that "Satan fashioneth himself into an angel of light," he does not say that he performs any good work. Even the men, "the false apostles," whom Paul is talking about, are evidently consciously deceitful, merely making a pretense of being "ministers of righteousness" in order to gain influence.

Thus Satan ever tries to hide from his human victims his true character. The saloon entrance has nothing about it to suggest the destruction that lurks within. The music coming from the dance-hall or the den of vice may be such as to arouse only reverent who is unable or unwilling to detect the fallacy of the argument, Satan has effectively concealed his character and become an angel of light.

The war profiteer, who gives large sums to various charities, solely to divert attention from his illegal profits, is imitating Satan in this. It does not matter how large his gifts may be, nor what else the man may profess, if his charities come only from these base motives, he is in this a "deceitful worker," trying to appear a "minister of righteousness."

But the war profiteer and the liquor advertiser do not belong to the class mentioned in the first paragraph of this article. For examples of this class take the case of the non-Christian citizen who is known to be thoroughly honest in all his dealings and a good neighbor in every way, the non-Christian man who votes for prohibition, the one who gives liberally (and unselfishly) to charities, or the non-Christian mill-owner who takes a personal interest in the welfare of his employés. Shall we say because these men are not Christians that their acts and characters are prompted by Satan? But the progress of Christ's Kingdom is augmented by the money and vote of the non-Christian. Likewise is the downfall of Satan's kingdom hastened. "A house divided against itself can not stand." "He that is not against us is for us." It seems unlikely that Satan would prompt one of his followers (for we must insist that non-Christian men are his followers) to support a measure so opposed to him as prohibition is.

We can but conclude therefore that when his followers do support good movements and perform righteous acts they are disloyal to their master. Indeed, should it be an unbelievable matter that Satan's followers are often disloyal to him, when we see so much disloyalty among Christ's followers? If the Satanic spirit lead Christians to sin, why may not the Holy Spirit lead sinners to do good?

Jesus says of the Holy Spirit that he will "convict the world in respect of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." In its ultimate results, of course, this means to give to every individual a conviction of sin in self, but as a necessary preliminary to this it must also mean to "give the world convictions in respect of sin, etc. This very thing he is now doing. A few generations ago there was little conviction in the world respecting the sin of slavery or of the liquor business. But now such convictions are by no means confined to Christian people. Is it not a triumph for the Holy Spirit that this change in sentiment has taken place? Are not opportunities for Christian work and the salvation of souls greatly increased thereby? Surely Satan has not done this. It must be the work of the Holy Spirit.

In contrast with this convicting work of the Holy Spirit in the world note that "the god of this world hath blinded the minds of the unbelieving that the light of the gospel . . . should not dawn upon them" (2 Cor. 4: 4). Satan, then, prefers that the world should not have convictions respecting sin, righteousness, and judgment. If he had his way, there would be no public sentiment leading to reform. Satan always suggests to the individual who will give him a hearing, that the next step be lower. The Holy Spirit always suggests to every individual who will listen to him, that the next step be higher.

The business of the Holy Spirit in the world is to bring the world to Christ. He does this work specifically by convicting individual sinners and bringing them to repentance, but also generally by reforming the popular mind, leading to better environment in which to carry on his work in individuals. Surely we make a grave mistake if we attribute to Satan any of this great moral reform work, simply because individuals connected with it are non-Christian men, for men whom the Holy Spirit has not yet been able to lead to acceptance of Christ.

Stewardship

BY D. C. MOOMAW

THE Church of the Brethren has desired to stand four-square on all the doctrines and policies which our Lord and his apostles have taught and are yet teaching to the peoples of the world. Through all the generations since they established the ancient faith and practice, in the year 1708, in Germany, they have sought the goal of literal construction of the Scriptures. Of course they could not attain perfection in the construction of controverted passages but, on the whole, they have reached a higher standard than probably any other existent organization.

But on one, to me, fundamental point, they have not measured up to the original standard. They seemingly have not comprehended the full import of the question of Christian stewardship. They have not realized the vital doctrine that the worldly goods, of which they have legal ownership, belong to the Lord and that they must, in the final judgment, give an account of their stewardship. They go on and on in the accumulation of property, use or misuse it as their wants and wills suggest, and when they surrender, at the call of death, leave the balance to their posterity. How pitifully few of them recognize the divine claim in the final distribution!

Let us note what our Father thought and said of such people. In Malachi we have the following ominous declaration: "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation" (3: 8, 9).

From this quotation I conclude that unless we give of our possessions what is due our Lord, we will suffer the curse provided for the punishment of "robbers."

In that day the proportion which God demanded was definitely prescribed, to wit, one-tenth, besides certain specific offerings. With us there is no specific proportion demanded. All of it belongs to him, even our own lives, if occasion requires it. The measure of our responsibility is the need of the church, and our loyalty to the church is determined by our willingness to meet those needs. If we know of these needs and have the means to meet them, and refuse or neglect to supply them, we thereby testify that we love worldly goods more than we love our Lord. Such a state of mind and heart will effectually bar us from the final plaudit: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

With very many of our brethren, who have accumulated a surplus of temporal goods, provision for children seems to be the plan and purpose of their lives. "I leave all to my children and they may make such use of it as they choose," is a common reply to appeals for endowments or gifts to the church, and each generation passes on to its successor the same determination and the "robbery" continues.

It is intensely gratifying to note such abundance of signs that our people are awakening to a sense of their responsibility to God in such matters. The collection at the late Annual Meeting at Winona Lake was a splendid example of the spirit of Christian stewardship. While it was not a full measure of our responsibility, it was a blessed indication that we are progressing in the right direction. From that evidence we can forecast the time when a quarter, or a half, or even one million will be the response to the call for the goods that belong to our Lord.

It is a trite saying that "where there is a will there is a way." It was illustrated in the willingness of the American people to subscribe billions of dollars in support of the late war, and if worldly people can subscribe billions for carnal warfare, the Lord's people, if they will, can supply millions for spiritual war. St. Paul says, in 2 Cor. 8: 12: "If there be first a willing mind," our gifts will he accepted and consequent blessings follow.

A beloved brother told me recently that he purposes "to give a child's part to the church." I want to amend that resolution to the extent of giving to our children enough to meet moderate needs and give the church the remainder. When we reach that stage of the requirements of stewardship, we will have all the money that our schools need to train our young people for church work, and to fill our mission fields with consecrated men and women who are willing to give their lives to carry the blessed Gospel to heathen lands, and to send workers into the needy fields of our own country. Less than that will not be pleasing to our Lord. He gave us an example of personal sacrifice that will inspirit us for any and every emergency. He sacrificed personal pleasure, social position, reputation, worldly glory and wealth and finally his own life, and unless we have the same spirit, he says, through the Apostle Paul, that "we are none of his."

The Forward Movement is a practical one, of supreme importance to the church, and it embraces the "stewardship" question to the uttermost limit. A "movement" that does not so function is a backward one—a reactionary, digressive affair that will not please God.

I will hazard my reputation as a competent adviser by saying that the Forward Movement could be better emphasized if we had fixed $50,000,000 as our five-year goal. Within that time we should have found 500 members who would have sponsored $50,000 each. The remaining 100,000 would have duplicated that sum, and there you have it. At the present prices of farm and manufactured products I would not exaggerate the outcome by saying that we have 1,000 members whose yearly income is $10,000 and up.

Let us all "firmly resolve" that we will acquit ourselves as men and women of God, whom grace and wisdom and loyalty control, and do our uttermost along all the lines of Christian activity to bring about the happy era of "peace on earth and good will" to all the nations thereof.

Roanoke, Va.

Moving Mountains

BY W. G. NYCE

I HAD met Pastor William Fetler, the head of the Russian Bible Institute in Philadelphia, on several occasions, and had been moved by the tremendous earnestness and deep spirituality displayed in his addresses. Expelled from Russia, after a Pauline career of evangelistic activity, and persecutions suffered for Christ, he came to America a few years ago, and at once was accorded the religious leadership of his own people in this country. He had cordially invited me to visit the institution and "come at noon," as the most interesting time of the day—when the most singing was going on.

Having an opportunity between engagements, I went around to 1820 Spring Garden Street, and ventured in past the strange-looking inscription on the front of the building, with a feeling that I was entering a foreign land in real truth.

About a hundred young men and women, some few couples being married and with little families, are housed in three large four-story city dwellings, in the midst of a block, and here they are being schooled, and trained, and gotten ready, as quickly as careful and conscientious progress will admit, to go to Russia and move that great, bleak mountain in the name of Christ. Twenty-five are to go this coming summer—twelve of them to Siberia.

I entered the quadrangle, formed by the removal of several backyard fences, and saw what in this little Russia in Philadelphia is an every-day and characteristic sight. Standing bareheaded under an apple tree in the middle of the open space between the buildings, were forty or fifty young fellows with voices uplifted, singing the Gospel—in Russian! A few women and children were also among the number. Upon every face was an intensity and seriousness of purpose, which made the singing doubly impressive.

When Dr. Fetler saw me he came forward at once, and with outstretched hand welcomed me into the group, introducing me to one and another of the boys, and several of the teachers. He had them sing one or two more songs, leading them himself. Being for the moment called away, he committed me to the care of one of the young men, who made the hour of my stay interesting and pleasant.

It was examination day, and papers were being given out, showing the result of the first encounter with the examiner, and there was much comparing of notes and congratulations, while here and there a face seemed to betoken a bit of disappointment—the whole thing quite characteristic of school life, though under these peculiar conditions, for some of these young Russians can not speak a word of English. Many of the group were learning things elementary, the English language among them, and other first things in a general education, while others were already well educated and doing college work. But all seemed to be on an equality, and that equality was their united consecration to the service of Christ in which they have enlisted.

These young people have come to the school from Philadelphia and from other cities, some even half across the continent, and many have brought all their property and put it in the common fund, voluntarily, to be educated for mission service, and to help educate others. They are enduring inconvenience and privation, in the sacrifice of the comforts they might enjoy if they had remained in their remunerative employments. Now they are working as hard as they can, with no hope of material gain, but the spirit in evidence there, which makes itself felt as soon as the stranger enters the Institute, is one of peace, and complete satisfaction with their self-chosen course.

Dr. Fetler took me into the Chapel, which is a transformation from an old stable and carriage-house, but shows, nevertheless, the result of much loving labor in the changes that have been effected and the care that is taken to make it a pleasant and attractive place of worship. It is just about large enough for its requirements, if everybody sits close. Underneath one end is the book-storage room, where thousands of pamphlets are stored, and whence they are shipped to Russian readers, in America and the homeland.

I was urged to stay and eat the noon-day meal with them, and was turned over to Prof. Ivan Neprash, who had charge of the dining-hall on this day. The dining-room occupies the other half of the basement under the Chapel, and I was quite unprepared for the unique experience I should have when I accompanied my guide down the narrow steps into that place of refreshment. To me it seemed to be not the lower room, but the "upper room" of long ago. Quietly, but cheerfully and happily, the mixed crowd of both sexes and so many different ages, filed down into the room and stood around the long, plain tables. A song was started. The words were in Russian, and unintelligible to me, but the spirit shining out on those upturned faces, the reverence and solemnity of the scene were translatable to any spectator, and I felt that this must be a scene from the early church. Prof. Neprash called on one of the young men to pray, and his prayer was earnest and expressive of the general feeling, as I could see that many were praying with him. The meal seemed like an informal love-feast.

The food was good, but extremely plain—a breaking of bread and a sup of broth—but enjoyed by the hungry students, and no less by the visitor. After the lunch, Prof. Neprash announced that I would say a few words to them, and I told a little story which he interpreted, and which was warmly received by these appreciative listeners.

He then led me through the dormitories and class-rooms. The citizens of Philadelphia, and interested well-wishers of this good work from other places, gave Dr. Fetler over $40,000 last year toward purchasing these buildings and providing equipment, and the good use made of the money is everywhere attested. More is, of course, needed, as everything is crowded to overflowing. The boys sleep ten or a dozen in a room, on double-decked iron beds, and the teachers in charge of the floors have only a small room or two for their family needs. But throughout the cleanliness and order were beyond criticism.

Down in the quadrangle, in explaining the divisions of the buildings, Dr. Fetler had referred to the observatory on the top of one of them—just a plain, old-fashioned cupola—and said: "Up there is the praying-tower. Some one is there every hour of the twenty-four, engaged in prayer for Russia and the world." Now, as we climbed the stairways, we came at last to out, showing the result of the first encounter with the examiner, and there was much comparing of notes and congratulations, while here and there a face seemed to betoken a bit of disappointment—the whole thing quite characteristic of school life, though under these peculiar conditions, for some of these young Russians can not speak a word of English. Many of the group were learning things elementary, the English language among them, and other first things in a general education, while others were already well educated and doing college work. But all seemed to be on an equality, and that equality was their united consecration to the service of Christ in which they have enlisted.

These young people have come to the school from Philadelphia and from other cities, some even half across the continent, and many have brought all their property and put it in the common fund, voluntarily, to be educated for mission service, and to help educate others. They are enduring inconvenience and privation, in the sacrifice of the comforts they might enjoy if they had remained in their remunerative employments. Now they are working as hard as they can, with no hope of material gain, but the spirit in evidence there, which makes itself felt as soon as the stranger enters the Institute, is one of peace, and complete satisfaction with their self-chosen course.

Dr. Fetler took me into the Chapel, which is a transformation from an old stable and carriage-house, but shows, nevertheless, the result of much loving labor in the changes that have been effected and the care that is taken to make it a pleasant and attractive place of worship. It is just about large enough for its requirements, if everybody sits close. Underneath one end is the book-storage room, where thousands of pamphlets are stored, and whence they are shipped to Russian readers, in America and the homeland.

I was urged to stay and eat the noon-day meal with them, and was turned over to Prof. Ivan Neprash, who had charge of the dining-hall on this day. The dining-room occupies the other half of the basement under the Chapel, and I was quite unprepared for the unique experience I should have when I accompanied my guide down the narrow steps into that place of refreshment. To me it seemed to be not the lower room, but the "upper room" of long ago. Quietly, but cheerfully and happily, the mixed crowd of both sexes and so many different ages, filed down into the room and stood around the long, plain tables. A song was started. The words were in Russian, and unintelligible to me, but the spirit shining out on those upturned faces, the reverence and solemnity of the scene were translatable to any spectator, and I felt that this must be a scene from the early church. Prof. Neprash called on one of the young men to pray, and his prayer was earnest and expressive of the general feeling, as I could see that many were praying with him. The meal seemed like an informal love-feast.

The food was good, but extremely plain—a breaking of bread and a sup of broth—but enjoyed by the hungry students, and no less by the visitor. After the lunch, Prof. Neprash announced that I would say a few words to them, and I told a little story which he interpreted, and which was warmly received by these appreciative listeners.

He then led me through the dormitories and classrooms. The citizens of Philadelphia, and interested well-wishers of this good work from other places, gave Dr. Fetler over $40,000 last year toward purchasing these buildings and providing equipment, and the good use made of the money is everywhere attested. More is, of course, needed, as everything is crowded to overflowing. The boys sleep ten or a dozen in a room, on double-decked iron beds, and the teachers in charge of the floors have only a small room or two for their family needs. But throughout the cleanliness and a narrow ladder which led up to a closed trap-door in the roof, and I knew at once that we were at the foot of the mountain upon which prayer was made. Prof. Neprash looked at me a moment, as if hesitating to take a stranger into such a sacred place, but then turned and silently led the way. We climbed up through the trap and quietly closed the door. Kneeling upon the floor, with her arm resting partly upon an open Bible, heavily marked and underscored, was a young girl, dressed in white. She did not look up, but intensity and absorption seemed unmistakably manifested by that bowed figure. She was praying for her beloved Russia, and for wisdom and grace to go to her native land in its hour of great need, and underneath were the everlasting arms of God's written promises upon which she was leaning.

Three hours at a time they stay there, one following another, all the day and all the night, throughout the year. I was shown a book in which they write their impressions, and what the Holy Spirit may give them to say for each other's edification. The book lies open on the bench near by, and if prompted so to do, the worshiper makes his entry in the book, and departs to his other duties. Many pages had been filled with these testimonies.

* * *

Later I had a testimony of my own that I could have added. I came home from that visit with a sense of having been greatly blessed and strengthened. I had for some time been laboring under much discouragement over a certain phase of my own church work. The Sunday evening service came short of being a source of satisfaction, in attendance, interest and power. The difficulty seemed a mountain, that no one could move, though we had talked over it a great deal. I thought of the girl in the praying-tower, and her open Bible as a credential entitling her to the fulfillment of the promises. I took my Bible, and went alone to the little church, and, kneeling down, I opened the Book at Mark 11: 23: "For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith." And on the strength of that promise I prayed.

The result has been such that I have rejoiced that the Lord prompted a visit to the Russian Bible Institute, and there impressed upon me, deeper than ever before, the transcendent benefits and mountain-moving power of prayer.

Pottstown, Pa.

The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative

BY CHAS. M. YEAROUT

In Four Parts.—Part One

The Law of Faith, Rites and Rules Directs the Actions and Conduct of God's Children, Morally and Religiously

Law is either positive or negative—"Thou shalt," "Thou shalt not." "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed" (James 1: 25). Law directs, governs and restrains; unifies and harmonizes. No orderly government can exist or be perpetuated without law.

The church is organized, directed and governed by divine law. Her union with Christ is the result of her compliance with law. Disobedience to this heavenly law bars or expunges from the heavenly kingdom, and disqualifies for the heavenly home. For "if a man also strive for masteries, yet is he not crowned, except he strive lawfully." We must enter in by the lawful door, in order to reach the paradise of God. He that climbeth up some other way will fail. We are brought ready to execute judgment and enforce the penalty upon those who violate and disobey the law of the land, and yet seem to think God is too good to execute his law and punish those who violate it. God can not be just and fail to execute his law.

When officers, elected to enforce the law, refuse or fail to do so, the people cry out against them and demand their removal from office, claiming them to be allied with the law-breakers and evil-doers. And yet they expect the all-wise God to let lawbreakers and disobedient people go unpunished. "O consistency, thou art a jewel!" God will bring everything to judgment. "And every transgression and disobedience shall receive a just recompense of reward" (Heb. 2: 2). "They that forsake the law praise the wicked: but such as keep the law contend with them" (Prov. 28: 4). The influence of the disobedient and wicked is against law and order, and also against those who obey God (Rom. 1: 32; 1 Kings 18: 18).

The Law of the Flesh

This law is antagonistic to the law of the Spirit and wields a greater power against the cause of Christ than all others combined. View with astonishment the inroads it has made in the Church of the Brethren in the past ten years. It is a source of sorrow and deep concern to the faithful in Zion. This law overrules the aims and purposes of doing right and leads to a fulfillment of the desires and selfishness of the flesh, in opposition to the law of God. The eminent Apostle Paul had a great conflict in overcoming this selfish, fleshly law. He says: "I find then a law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me. For I delight in the law of God after the inward man: But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members" (Rom. 7: 21-23).

To yield to the law of the flesh is to gratify the carnal desires of the flesh. This leads to the following of the vain, gaudy fashions of this world, and the ornamenting and decorating of the fleshly body with jewelry and superfluous appendages. And where the flesh rules, the law of God is ignored, whether in the church or out of it; for it is impossible for such to do the will of God, acceptable to him, because the law governing in their lives is diametrically opposed to the humble, simple life of God's children, as set forth in the law of faith. "Ye can not serve two masters." "For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye can not do the things that ye would" (Gal. 5: 17). Following the fashions and walking in the ways of the world, partaking of its sinful pleasures and uniting with it in its festivities are not accidents but a direct, natural result of a fleshly power ruling in their lives.

Things like these do not just happen so, but there is a corrupt law back of it all. "For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit" (Rom. 8: 5). "They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh, with the affections and lusts." "The law of the Spirit of life" embraces the whole doctrine and counsel of God and will liberate us from the law of sin and death, if we conform to it and make it the rule of our life and practice. Paradise was lost through disobedience to God's law and must be regained through obedience. Man was shut out from the Tree of Life as a result of disobedience, and can be readmitted to it only by obedience to the "law of faith."

"The Law" generally refers to the Decalogue or Ten Commandments, but sometimes it refers to the ceremonial and other parts of the Old Testament which were for the government of the people who lived under that dispensation. The penalty for a violation of that law was death, and the penalty follows

THE ROUND TABLE

Wealth

BY NORMAN W. TWIDOY

THE instant I mention wealth, it probably signifies money to your mind. That has come to be the accepted meaning. The wealth of a country usually means the amount of her financial resources. The wealth of a man usually means what he is worth in cash, securities and real estate holdings. All this is true in an economic sense. But there is a higher view-point.

The real wealth of a nation is in her people and that nation whose manhood and womanhood is low, is impoverished, regardless of how many billions crowd her treasuries. The real wealth of a man is character, and though he financially gain millions, what shall it profit him if he lose his own soul?

Paul found the secret of real wealth. It was not in a mass of abstract ideals. It was not in brilliantly-tinted aphorisms. It was in the "unsearchable riches of Christ!" They comprise a treasure incalculable, a wealth so prodigious that the world can not contain it. They overflood the avenues from earth to heaven, and yet they are usable riches. That is what Paul proclaims. Unsearchable though these riches of Christ be, they may still be appropriated by us! They may be poured into the waste places of humanity and cause them to bloom and blossom as the rose. They may be poured into troubled hearts and bring again the sunshine. They may be poured into lives of sin and bring the gladness of salvation. Truly they are unsearchable—yet usable.

The real secret of a wealth which overflows the coffers of life is in appropriating these riches in Christ, which are ours, and then proclaiming to others that wealth which pays the largest dividends in happiness and eternal prosperity.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Pastor's Joy

BY LEANDER SMITH

THE true pastor is a man of God. He is chosen and called of God to the most important and most delightful service in all the world. It is his duty and his high privilege to live in the spiritual realm, and to seek rich, spiritual treasures for himself, that he may be, under God, the channel of spiritual blessings unto his people. He studies God's Word and earnestly pleads that God may enrich his own soul, that he may be able, through the Spirit's power, to enrich the souls of others. The Bible is to the true pastor a mine of spiritual gems, to be brought through prayer into the lives of the people to whom the pastor ministers. Such high service is appreciated and valued by spiritual people only. Only they can and do realize the pastor's high aims and spiritual longings, and only they can and do give the pastor their tender sympathy and their loving eoöperation.

God has given it to me, in days gone by, to serve as pastor and spiritual leader to some of the truest, noblest and best people on this globe. They prayed for their pastor constantly. The pastor lived in a spiritual praying atmosphere and his soul thrilled with joy. He came to the study of the Bible as a miner seeking goodly pearls for his appreciative and responsive people. Those were days and years of the richest and sweetest joys a mortal can know. Such a relationship between flock and pastor—God's chosen and anointed man—is pleasing to our God.

It requires a lofty character fully to appreciate the value of the pastor. To those who do appreciate the pastor justly, and give him the loyal, loving, prayerful support he needs and craves, great spiritual blessings will come. God so ordains it. The pastor is God's man, and he will be a blessing to us just as we seek the Spirit to help us value him, and profit by his teaching and ministry.

My early home was one in which the pastor was signally honored. There his name was revered. Never, never was a word of criticism spoken of him or his work. Such I never heard when a boy. So I came out of that home with the loftiest possible ideal as to the relationship between the pastor and his people. Much of my ministry has been full of joy, because my people had spiritual discernment, and valued my efforts to enrich them in spiritual things.

On the other hand, I have tried, now and then, to serve as pastor for some people in whose lives the inner light had wholly failed. With nature and God one law is inexorable—he who disuses or abuses a faculty must lose it. Victory hastens toward defeat when the inner light begins to fail. He who neglects his finer spiritual nature shall find that the inner light has failed. If a man never enters the house of God for worship, and if he gives his whole time and energy to the gathering and hoarding of things, his spiritual nature is sure to deteriorate and decay. The faculty that crowns man a king is conscience, and all the great dramatists have believed that conscience can be killed. The atrophy of the finer feelings is possible and frequent. Shakespeare, Goethe, Hugo, Hawthorne, Dickens, and others, have taught this widely. The Bible is full of warning against it. If you give all attention to the seeking of things, the soul decays. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Muscatine, Iowa.

Hero or Slave?

BY G. W. TUTTLE

WHICH are you, boys, a hero or a slave? Are you a conqueror, or do you allow a lot of evil habits to lead you around, and snap their whip over you like a trainer at a circus? Do you just give up to the worst that is in you, or do you fight to the last ditch? The boy who allows evil habits to put a ring in his nose and lead him around, will never know the joy of freedom. An evil habit says: "You do this!" and if you are such a coward that you do not put up a fight, you are a moral slacker—a character coward.

You admire great heroes and warriors of history. Napoleon was a great general, but he was a moral slacker; selfishness, pride, and ambition just led the great Napoleon around by the nose. He treated his men well, and was almost worshiped by them, but just think of the cold, selfish, calculating heart which could say, as Napoleon is reported to have said, alluding to his heavy losses of men: "One must break a few eggs if one would have an omelet."

The boys who are courageous, who put up the fight of their lives when some bad habit tempts them; the boys who are manly, and honest, and loyal, and unselfish, are heroes—every one of them.

When you are tempted to be cross and snappish, do you just give up, like a moral slacker, and say all the disagreeable things you can think of, or do you fight, and say: "I will be kind, I will be thoughtful, I will be pleasant and helpful, whether I feel like it or not"? Jesus Christ loves the boy who says: "I will!" and, boys, you can say it when Jesus Christ backs you up.

Remember that no one has as good backing as the Christian. That is why the Christian wins in the race of life. Do you remember the backing Elisha had at Dothan, when the Syrian army had surrounded the city to take him, and his servant was badly frightened, and said: "Alas, my master! how shall we do?"

"And Elisha prayed, and said, Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw: and, behold, the mountain was full of chariots and horses of fire round about Elisha."

When anger is trying to make you a slave, do you give anger right of way, and let the hot, passionate words flow out, or do you close your mouth tightly when you begin to feel mussed up inside, and just dam the stream at its source, instead of allowing its harmful waters to flow out? A hero or a slave—which shall it be?

When you are tempted to get off easily, to slight your work, not to fill full your time, to give a little less value than you receive, to treat another boy unfairly, what then? Will you be hero or slave? Will you conquer or be conquered?

When you are tempted to be unfair in a game for the sake of victory, what then? Do you realize that if you yielded to the temptation it would mean defeat instead of victory for you? Ah! Jesus Christ loves boys who play fairly, and work fairly, and live fairly. He knows—Christ knows—that he can make wonderful men out of boys like that, and that they will be heroes, not slaves.

Pasadena, Calif.

Philip, the Soul-Winner

BY ROY TEMPLE HOUSE

ACCOUNTS of individual soul-winning are not numerous in the Bible, and the story of Philip's procedure in the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch is as precious as it is unique. This man occupied a position of responsibility. He was the treasurer of his Queen, clearly a man of education and ability as well as of natural piety, and if he could be shown the truth, it would be sure to mean much for others besides himself. So Philip accosted him courageously.

It is worth noting that Philip's first words were a courteous reference to the matter with which the eunuch was at that moment occupied. He heard him reading aloud, recognized the book which he was reading, and asked him if the passage was plain to him. How remarkably like what has happened to you and to me more than once! For example, the writer remembers an ocean voyage, fifteen years ago, in which the fact that a young man "happened" to be reading Qua Vadis, on the second day out, led to a conversation with another young man whose steamer-chair "happened" to be set beside his—a conversation of which the Christian religion soon became the principal theme—and that the discussion of that subject recurred at intervals between the two for the remainder of the voyage.

So Philip broke the ice, by a tactful and apposite question. You can not thrust religion into people's faces in season and out of season. It must grow out of the immediate circumstances. The grotesque story of the barber who had become convinced that he must speak to every man he met about the necessity of repentance, and who, therefore, as he stropped his razor and brandished it over each new customer, solemnly repeated the injunction: "Prepare to meet thy God!" points the moral that even good words may be spoken at the wrong time. No matter what the outcome, Philip could not have been called an impertinent intruder.

And the conversation, once begun, it is curious that from that time on, the initiative apparently came from the man to be won. Philip is bursting with eagerness to step up into the chariot, thus to have an opportunity of conversation with this man whom God had put in his way. But he does not request the privilege of doing so; it is the eunuch who invites him. He is anxious to explain the prophetic passage, but he does not open his mouth till the eunuch requests his assistance. He is more than ready to baptize the converted Ethiopian; but it is the Ethiopian who notices a stream near by and begs that the sacred rite be performed then and there. How easy it all seemed, and how easy it all really was, for a man who had the judgment to say the right thing, and the self-control to refrain from importunity!

A successful salesman once said that the efficient procedure for the winning of customers is not to keep repeating: "You need this article," but to use every contrivance of silent suggestion till the object of your solicitude speaks out, of his own volition: "I need this article." Be it said without irreverence—for the permanently successful, because permanently useful, salesman is, in a sense, an ally of the soul-winner—the preacher of Christ must be quite as careful not to become obnoxious by insistence, though he must be constantly alert to take advantage of every real opportunity.

What a painful commeotary on the spiritual indolence and timidity of most men is the general impression that soul-winning is hard and humiliating! The eunuch may have been an unusually favorable subject, but how readily almost any man, rich or poor, learned or simple, responds to a "feeler" on his attitude toward his God! Men are naturally religious. Down at the bottom of their hearts they are more interested in their soul's salvation than in anything else in the universe, and almost any man you meet, be he good, bad or indifferent, will welcome anything that promises to help him get right with his Maker. If you don't believe this, it is because you haven't really tested it. Try it out and see!

Norman, Okla.

Do You Hear His Voice?

BY IDA M. HELM

HAS God favorites, or why did he call Abraham and not some other man?

Abraham lived in a world full of pagans and God called to other men beside Abraham, but they did not hear because they were so absorbed and entangled in the things of this world that heavenly sights and sounds were shut away from them. Abraham kept his eyes and ears open toward the heavens, and he heard the voice of God speaking to him. He was not disobedient to the heavenly voice. He was called the friend of God.

There is not a man or woman on earth today to whom God is not speaking. Some have their ears so stopped and their eyes so blinded with sights and sounds of this world that they can see or hear nothing else. Some hear his voice and disobey till they can no longer hear it. Some listen, hear his voice and obey and find life and joy. Millions of people will not obey the voice of God, who loves them and gave his life for them, and they go down to eternal death in reach of the Everlasting Arms because they will not reach up and lay hold of the offered salvation. Do you hear his voice?

Ashland, Ohio.

Intercessory Foreign Missionaries

BY HERMAN J. GROVE

"Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest" (Matt. 9: 38).

THERE are three classes of workers connected with every missionary endeavor, namely: (1) Native workers, who have the responsibility of evangelization; (2) Missionaries, who leave when native workers can handle the work; (3) Intercessory missionaries.

An intercessory foreign missionary is a laborer who can not go in person to the field, but who has set himself apart to pray for the definite details of the foreign missionary work. We can reach a Chinaman by speaking face to face with him, but we can strike the spiritual Prince of China only by way of the place above, where dwells Jesus Christ, the Great Intercessor.

In the sixth chapter of Ephesians we are told to pray for all the saints and especially missionaries, who are represented in that chapter by Paul.

Nearly forty cases of divine healing are recorded in the New Testament. In almost half of these instances the sick were brought by others and healed not by their own faith but by the faith and prayers of those who brought them. Those twenty cases were hard cases, persons who could not or would not come for themselves.

Many cases of intercessory prayer are recorded in the Old Testament. Among those who interceded for others were these: Abraham, who prayed for Sodom; Moses, for his people; Hezekiah, for pardon for those who had eaten the passover unsanctified.

What intercessory foreign missionaries can do:

1. Send missionaries.
2. Find enough missionaries and money to accomplish the task.
3. Send suitable persons.
4. Solve many missionary problems through prayer.
5. Pray for individual heathen by name.
6. Raise up a native ministry.
7. Bring about revivals on the foreign field.
8. Give fresh fillings of the Holy Spirit to overworked missionaries.
9. Maintain the health of missionaries under severe mental and physical strain.
10. Help and cheer missionaries who have few friends.

The Africa Inland Mission was organized in 1895 by Rev. Peter Cameron Scott. No one has been asked to give any money toward keeping up the work of the mission. They take all their problems to God and today they have a missionary force of 180, occupying thirty-two stations in thirteen different tribes, speaking ten different languages and located in four territories, namely, British East Africa, German East Africa, East Congo and Northeast Congo. The first missionaries that went out had no home board to back them. They prayed to God to send them money to go and looked to him for all future needs. From that day no appeal for funds has been made and the specific needs of the mission have never been made public.

The members of the Africa Inland Mission feel that they have a great duty to Christians of all evangelical denominations (it is an interdenominational mission) to make known the great faithfulness of God in answering prayer, and to tell of the way he has been working through these missionaries in Africa, and, most of all, to sound the call for the evangelization of all Africa, as well as all other lands where the name of Jesus Christ is not known.

"They're passing one by one away
In Christless guilt and gloom,
Without one ray of hope and light,
With future dark and endless night,
They're passing to their doom.

"Oh, child of God, what will you say,
When in that awful Judgment Day
They charge you with their doom?"

May God help us to pray!

Pottstown, Pa.

In the Silence

BY MARGARET DUDTE

IN the silence and nowhere else can we hold communion with the Supreme One. "Be still and know that I am God," should convince us of that fact. All people need preparation to enter the silence. No selfish person can enter. No unbeliever can enter. Nor can a sensual person enter. All must have clean hearts and hands, and must be right with their fellow-men.

The best place to enter the silence is in the solitude of nature. There we can be calm, patient and undisturbed. There we can relax, and concentrate our attention upon the things we desire. There we can turn our thoughts within, where is our own little kingdom. We can talk with God and praise and adore his holy name. In the silence we are conscious of our unity with God and know that we are his sons and daughters more than at any other time.

In the silence authors have gotten their inspiration to write books, and inventors have devised their wonderful works. In the silence we review our lives and see wherein we have come short. It is then that we make new resolves which we carry out,—the Master helping us. How can we communicate so freely and earnestly with our Maker when other duties are pressing upon us? We must know him face to face. He transmutes and transforms us in his own way. Our superconscious mind holds sway and transmutes and transcends us in its own mystical way. We do not know why or how, but we know all is well and God is God. That is enough.

If the world could only realize what is done in the silence, more moments, yes, more hours, would be given to it and more reverence would be shown. We had an example of it during the closing months of the war, when a few moments were set aside for prayer. What did it accomplish? You can answer that for yourself.

In the silence we get ourselves in tune with the universe. We connect with the wires that radiate all about us, and open the thought vibration of our fellow-men. God chose the silent moments to inspire his leaders. Christ, the Greatest Leader, sought the quiet garden to commune with God, and God filled him with divine energy, life and health, which he radiated to others. Some of the other leaders were Moses, Daniel, Peter, James and John. They radiated a spirit of uplift. They taught that "everyone who thinks of God is uplifted and encouraged."

Let us, then, know that "in God we live, move and have our being." Let us make our wills subservient to the divine will. Let us be reverently still and know that Christ in us is our hope of glory.

Newton, Kans.

THE QUIET HOUR

Suggestions for the Weekly Devotional Meeting Or for Prayerful, Private Meditation.

A Life of Perfect Trust

John 14: 1

For Week Beginning July 20, 1919

1. Why Fret When Jesus Is Ever With Us?—There is much sorrow which would instantly be turned to joy, if those who weep could see things as they really are. The loss of a friend is grieved over, but if we could follow the friend into the glory of heaven, we should rejoice. The things that we think are calamities and causes for sorrow, would appear to be blessings, if we could see them as God sees them. In every season of affliction Jesus is beside us, even speaking to us, but we do not know it is he, nor do we hear his words of comfort. We grieve, and permit ourselves to be crushed by our sorrows, not knowing that the sorrow is only the shadow of a great joy, and that what seems to us emptiness and loss, is really the blessedness of heaven.

2. The Dangers of Cumbering Cares.—People as well as gardens, sometimes get too crowded. One thing chokes out another in our lives, and too often it is the best that gets choked out. We are living so fast, we have so much to do, so many interests! Well was it said by some one, who was greatly impressed by the disadvantages entailed by this hurrying age: "I am in danger of being jostled out of my spirituality." It is a real danger, and one that threatens us all, in our rushing life, these days. Cares, worries, distractions seem to grow in our hearts as naturally as weeds in a garden. Some people seem to think that worries are quite harmless, but Christ spoke severely against them, as being most potent for evil in our lives, in the way of crowding out the good. He warns us strongly against all anxiety, insisting that whatever harasses us does us harm and grieves our Heavenly Father, who, all the while, tenderly cares for us.

3. Two Things About Which All Worry Is Needless.—First, there are the things we can't help. If we can't help them, worrying is certainly most foolish and useless. Secondly, the things we can help. If we can help them, let us set about it, and not weaken our powers by worry. Weed your garden. Pluck up the smallest roots of worry! Watch for their first appearance above the ground, and pluck them while they are small. Do not let them get a start, or they will crowd out all the beautiful things that ought to grow in your heart.

4. Trust and Be Glad.—Be patient, keep sweet! Do not fret nor worry! Do your best and leave results with God! Believe firmly in God, in the fulfillment of his promises, and in the wise disposal of his providences. God's laws are immutable, and work with unerring regularity. Walk in fellowship with God, and every year you will be a stronger, better, happier, and sweeter Christian. Do not mar your peace or power by needless worry. Live by faith in the Son of God, who loves you and gave himself for you! Dr. W. T. Grenfell fittingly says: "I am determined, God helping me, that no man shall rob me of my faith. I won't hide it away. I'll keep it right with me if I can. I will see that it gets exercise. I will feed it all I can, so that it shall not starve. When in danger, I will flee at once to the Sure Refuge."

5. Suggestive References.—Anxious care is useless (Matt. 6: 25, 26). The safe plan: "Commit thy way unto the Lord" (Psa. 37: 5). What to do with our burdens (Psa. 55: 22). "Commit thy works unto the Lord" (Prov. 16: 3). "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord" (Jer. 17: 7). "In nothing be anxious" (Philpp. 4: 6, 7, Am. Rev.). God will never leave nor forsake us (Heb. 13: 5). The Great Burden-bearer (1 Peter 5: 6, 7). Christ's blessed promise (Matt. 11: 28). God's plans for us are best (Rom. 8: 28, 35, 36, 37). Christ's keeping power (2 Tim. 1: 12, latter clause).

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, JULY 13

Sunday-school Lesson, Baptism.—Matt. 28: 18-20; Mark 1: 1-11; Acts 8: 26-40.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Steps Leading to a Good Harvest.—Matt. 9: 37, 38.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. J. C. Shull, of Chicago, to begin July 27 in the Astoria church, Ill.

Bro. David Hollinger, of Medicine Hat, Alta., to begin about the middle of July in the Bow Valley church, Alta., Can.

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. Ira J. Lapp, of Miami, N. Mex., in the Colorado Springs church, Colo.

Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe and wife, of Chicago, Ill., in the Ellison church, N. Dak.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One was baptized in th Flora church, Ind.

One confessed Christ in the Beaver church, Iowa.

One confessed Christ in the Bethany church, N. Dak.

One was recently baptized in the West Wichita church, Kans.

One was recently baptized in the Harris Creek church, Ohio.

One was recently reclaimed in the Bellefontaiue church, Ohio.

Two recently confessed Christ in the Peters Creek church, Va.

One was recently baptized in the Colorado Springs church, Colo.

Four have been baptized in the East Wichita church, Kans., since the last report.

Twenty were baptized in the Egeland church, N. Dak.,—Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe and wife, of Chicago, Ill., evangelists.

Thirteen were recently baptized in the South Waterloo church, Iowa,—Bro. Chas. D. Bonsack, New Windsor, Md., evangelist.

Twelve were baptized in the Sangerville house, Sangerville congregation, Va.,—Bro. J. W. Hess, of Bridgewater, Va., evangelist.

Two confessed Christ in the Mountain Grove church, W. Va.,—Bro. Chester A. Thomas, of Brandonville, same State, evangelist.

Twenty confessed Christ and four were reclaimed in the Sipesville church, Pa.,—Bro. C. A. McDowell, pastor, in charge of the meetings.

Five were baptized and one reclaimed in the Ashland (Dickey) church, Ohio,—Bro. D. R. McFadden, of Smithville, same State, evangelist.

Twelve confessed Christ, six of whom have been baptized, in the White Rock church, Md.,—Bro. Calvin Wolf, of Sandy Creek, W. Va., evangelist.

Thirteen confessed Christ and one was reclaimed in the Pike house, Brothers Valley congregation, Pa.,—Bro. D. K. Clapper, of Meyersdale, same State, evangelist.

Four were baptized in the Tinker Creek Mission, Roanoke church, Va.,—Bro. I. N. H. Beahm, of Nokesville, same State, evangelist; four were received into the Southeast Mission, same church,—Bro. B. B. Garber, pastor, in charge of the meetings.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. A. J. Beeghly, formerly of Friedens, Pa., should now be addressed at Somerset, same State.

Another of the Lord's faithful ambassadors has gone to his reward. We are informed that Eld. George Bowman, of the Bethlehem church, Southern Distriet of Virginia, died suddenly at his home at Callaway, Va., on the morning of July 4. Further particulars are promised us later.

Bro. Chas. D. Bonsack, of New Windsor, Md., favored the "Messenger" rooms with a very pleasant interview on Tuesday of last week. Bro. Bonsack stopped off at the Publishing House a few hours on his homeward way from the South Waterloo church, Iowa, where he had been holding evangelistic services since the Winona Conference. See under "Gains for the Kingdom" for further reference to this meeting.

It is almost exactly two years ago that we received the last article from the pen of our recently-departed brother, H. B. Brumbaugh. It was entitled "A Group of Trees" and was thoroughly characteristic of his method of finding subjects in the natural objects about him and the commonplace things of life, and deducing therefrom interesting and valuable spiritual applications. Bro. Brumbaugh began his editorial career in 1870 with the founding of "The Pilgrim," in connection with his brother, J. B. Brumbaugh, who survives him. From that time on, until two years ago, when failing health compelled him to lay aside his pen, he labored continuously, thus completing the longest term of service as an editorial writer which has so far fallen to the lot of any one in our Brotherhood. Our readers will await with eagerness the story of his remarkable career. The funeral services, we are informed, were held on Tuesday, July 1.

Bro. S. Ira Arnold, of Umalla, India, sends us an interesting bit of his personal experience, which bears striking testimony to the value of practical Christianity. Read it and see if you can get a moral out of it for yourself: "Recently I had occasion to go to a Mohammedan shopkeeper to get some change. The man produced a bag of small change and, emptying it on the floor, bade me count it, which I did. Counting out fifteen rupees, I handed him the notes, and asked him also to prove my count of the change, but he would not. A bystander, much surprised, said: 'Do you trust the sahib that way?' The Mohammedan's wife quickly answered: 'The sahib won't cheat; his religion is that way.'"

Bro. J. E. Miller arrived at Elgin about 10 A. M., Wednesday of last week, "safe and sound." We expect him to have many things of interest to say to our readers shortly, concerning his trip, but the "Messenger" naturally feels gratified that the first thing he chose to offer for publication was the following word of appreciation: "I have not seen a 'Messenger' since the middle of March. Today, while stopping at Tyrone, to see Sister Culler, I 'borrowed' the issues for June 21 and June 28. They contain Conference news. Both what the Editor and the Office Editor say is news, and mighty good news to me. I did not care to read the morning paper—for I read the daily of last evening—when I had a chance to get hold of these 'Messengers.' Such a collection! Such a noble band of missionaries! Such a deep spirituality at the Conference! Well, I can simply say, 'Thank God! He is still in the world, and in spite of all the evil, there is a wonderful lot of good in this old world.' I am greatly uplifted because the Conference, though celebrating the past, looked forward. Instead of making speeches, the meeting buckled down to work. Instead of merely laying plans, it executed. Because I missed this Conference, the 'Messenger's' reports mean more to me than ever. And because I missed it I must have that Full Report and catch the inspiration I so much need. I wonder if the same is not true of every brother and sister who was not present at the Bicentennial Conference of 1919? Pastors should make an inquiry concerning this matter, and present it to their people in public and in private."

MISCELLANEOUS

We wish to express our hearty appreciation of the extended and sympathetic review of our late Conference, given in a recent number of "The Brethren Evangelist." The editorial space was devoted to it, the report including mention of the chief points of a large number of the Conference addresses.

The members at Kent, Ohio, would be glad to get into touch with any student members who may be in attendance at the State Normal School of that place. Parents, pastors and others, who may know of such, are requested to send names and addresses to Sister Emma S. Miller, 114 W. Summit Street, Kent, Ohio.

At the Dress Reform Meeting of the Winona Lake Conference a streamer was hung above the platform with the general inscription: "Our Part in the Forward Movement." Beneath this were these words from the pen of Bro. D. L. Miller:

"We would have all our brethren and sisters discard every foolish fashion, and hang all the jewelry and needless and useless ornaments on the rugged, blood-stained cross of Christ, and give the money, spent so foolishly, to the spreading of the Gospel among the heathen."

There was also given the following war-time advice of Herbert Hoover:

"Go back to the simple life. Be contented with simple food, simple pleasures, simple clothes. Work hard, pray hard, play hard. Work, eat, recreate and sleep. Do it all courageously. We have a victory to win."

This was followed by this pertinent observation:

"Now that the war is over, we have a moral victory to win greater than any ever achieved on the field of battle."

The General Mission Board has just published a forty-three page booklet entitled: "A Survey of Our India Mission Field." The matter was prepared by Bro. A. W. Ross, who has been a missionary to India since 1904. It is exactly what its name indicates. It tells about the field, its extent, its opportunities and needs. Detailed statistics are given concerning each of the nine stations. Two of the most important section titles are "Evangelistic" and "Educational." Some others are "Bible and Teacher-Training School," "Industrial," "Medical," "Work for Women and Girls," "The Staff" and "Plant and Equipment." And two more that will interest you most of all are "A Five-Year Forward Look" and "Our Aims." You'll want this booklet. It's interesting. But how will the Secretary know you want it unless you tell him? Do it now!

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

Among the Illinois Notes we publish Bro. J. E. Wagoner's itinerary among the churches of Southern Illinois. We bespeak for our brother the earnest and considerate attention of all with whom he may come in touch during these meetings.

"Moving Mountains," an essay by Bro. W. G. Nyce, on page 436, will, undoubtedly, give a new vision to many who are strong believers in prayer—the kind that never ceases until the answer comes. His reference to the "prayer tower" and the earnest suppliants that keep up a never-ceasing vigil, may possibly suggest mighty avenues of spiritual power, hitherto unattained, but wholly within reach of every consecrated child of God.

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

Don't Be a Grumbler.—Strange as it may seem, some people contrive to get hold of the prickly side of everything. Somehow or other, they run against the sharp corners and find all the disagreeable things. Half the strength that is spent in growling, will quite often straighten out the worst tangle. At any rate, we may just as well make up your mind that your environment will never be wholly according to your own notion. No one ever found the world just as he fancied it. The proper thing, therefore, is to take your share of the troubles and bear them manfully. To be sure, you will have troubles laid upon you that belong to other people. It is to be expected—but don't grumble. If the work really needs doing you can do it. Never mind about the other person who ought to have done it and didn't. Those workers who patiently and uncomplainingly fill up the gaps, smooth away the rough spots, and finish up the jobs that others leave undone—they are the people truly worth while—they are worth a whole regiment of growlers.

"My Meditation of Him Shall Be Sweet."—Some writer has appropriately said that in this busy age of ours "there is too little meditation on the things that really count," and it is true. How much we lose when we go rushing along through the world without so mastering ourselves as to take time to meditate upon God and his dealings with us. The reason so many lives are barren and spiritually uninteresting is because they have no times of sweet meditation on heavenly things. Do not expect always to have ideal circumstances surrounding you, in order to have meditations that bring to you a foretaste of heaven's sweetest joys. A great many of David's most inspiring psalms were written in times of great trial and hardship. They were the fruitage of his meditation when he was a wanderer and had to hide himself away in a cave or in the mountains, but even under such circumstances he was able to think upon God and his goodness. Though driven into the hills, he could not thus be driven away from God. And as he continued to meditate, the bitterness went out of his heart—love and hope came in, and his whole life was sweetened.

The Prayer of a Christian Business Man.—We do not know his name, but these are the words that he had handsomely engrossed on a sheet of cardboard, appropriately framed and hung above his desk, where he could frequently be reminded of the impressive truths: "Teach me that sixty minutes make an hour, sixteen ounces a pound, and one hundred cents a dollar. Help me so to live that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, and unhaunted by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain. Grant that I may earn my meal ticket on the square, and in earning it I may do unto others as I would have others do unto me. Deafen me to the jingle of tainted money and the rustle of unholy skirts. Blind me to the faults of the other fellow, but reveal to me my own. Guide me so that each evening, as I look across the supper table at my wife, who has been a blessing to me, I will have nothing to conceal. Keep me young enough to laugh with the little children, and sympathetic enough to be considerate of old age. And when comes the day of darkened shades, and the smell of flowers, the tread of soft footsteps, and the crunching of wheels in the yard—make the ceremony short and the epitaph simple—'Here lies a man.'"

"Choked with the Pleasures of This Life."—The pastor of a once flourishing church in the Middle West was greatly puzzled why the attendance at services had so lamentably dwindled. Looking over his membership enrollment he found that a score or more of his members were seldom present at the Sunday services, and that the majority of the members never attended the week-day prayer service. He endeavored to find the real reason for the lack of interest and finally concluded to get a frank expression of opinion from one of the young men, a college student, who said: "To tell the truth, pastor, our lives are so full of exciting and engrossing events that an ordinary church meeting does not interest us. We see the most thrilling moving picture shows. We go to the most professional scientific lectures. We hear the most cultivated singers. Constantly we are rubbing up against the most enticing amusements. To tell the truth—all religious things seem quite tame to us. The church services do not thrill us. The music is but mediocre—no excitement about it at all. It doesn't appeal to our senses." But can the church furnish "thrills" to its members every Sunday? Is that the business of the modern minister? Must he run an amusement bureau, to compete with the moving picture show? Gentle reader, what is your answer?

AROUND THE WORLD

The Latest Wireless Achievement

While rushing homeward across the broad Atlantic, July 4, President Wilson made a patriotic speech that was not only heard by those on his own ship but half-way around the earth. By the waves of the wireless it was wafted through the air to the various ships accompanying the vessel on which the Chief Executive is voyaging, but the message was also picked up and read by other ships which, in turn, passed it on to other vessels. To talk in the middle of the ocean, and send the words to scores of other ships, far and near, may well be termed a latter-day miracle. And already there are men of prophetic vision who predict that the day will come when communication may be possible between the earth and other inhabited planets of the solar system.

A Blazing Orb Hotter Than Our Sun

In a recent issue of the "Saturday Blade" the astronomer Maxwell gives interesting information about the great red star Arcturus, lately seen each evening not far from the handle of the "Dipper." Here is an orb, 66 million miles in diameter, over seventy times the diameter of the sun, and one hundred times hotter. Maxwell says if our earth were the same distance from the surface of Arcturus that the earth is from the sun—ninety-three million miles—the earth would instantly melt and flash into white-hot vapor. If Arcturus were only that distance from the earth, and its inhabitants were enabled to withstand this star's intense heat, it would loom up on our horizon a great, fiery ball, stretching half-way to the zenith and filling one-half of the whole sky.

Destructive Quakes and Eruptions

Mankind has become so greatly habituated to most appalling losses of life that little astonishment is aroused by reports of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. When we read that thousands were recently killed on the island of Java by the causes just mentioned, we are shocked for the moment, but soon go on again in the even tenor of our lives. Recent earthquake fatalities in Italy are a renewed reminder that "terra firma," as applied to this old earth, is somewhat of a misnomer. It is well, perhaps, that we lack full knowledge of the constantly-impending perils of the "fiery furnace" in the earth's interior. If we did, most of us would spend "our sojourn here below" in abject fear. Amid the dangers, seen and unseen, it is well to remember the apostolic admonition: "Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

Much Depends on the Right View-Point

A correct estimate of any man's character can not be gained from isolated statements or chance remarks. We must take note of the general trend of his life, as it appears to the unprejudiced observer. This fact was amply demonstrated during a pending trial at which the loyalty of Henry Ford, Detroit's noted automobile manufacturer, was brought in question by reason of some statements he was alleged to have made. Some of his critics even denounced him as an anarchist, because he was unwilling to fall in with the frenzied propaganda of ultra-militarism. In this connection it may be well to remember that Mr. Ford's attitude of helpfulness towards the Government, in its hour of extremity, amply proved his loyalty. Even now the Secretary of the United States Treasury is, at Mr. Ford's request, going over the books of the automobile plant, in order that every dollar of profit, made by Mr. Ford on Government contracts, may be returned to the Treasury Department. His actions tell their own story.

Critical Conditions in Persia

Missionaries in Persia report conditions that show the unspeakable sufferings through which they and the Christians of various sects in that country have passed. Northwestern Persia has been the battle-ground for wild and untamed Kurds, bloodthirsty Turks and rough Russian troops. Missionaries have been called upon to protect Armenian and Assyrian Christians, but even Moslems were rescued upon one occasion. We are told that the ferocity of the Kurds and the depravity of the Turks, spurred on by lust and the thirst for blood, is beyond all description. Many Christian villages have been utterly ravaged. In many of them the people have been driven out, maltreated or murdered. Hundreds of native Christians, together with their pastors, have been killed. This leaves the churches without leadership. Four years and a half of warfare, pillage and rapine have exhausted the strength of the missionaries, compelling many of them to return to the United States in order to regain their health. Those who remain are overburdened, and report an urgent need of funds to reëstablish the work and to save the lives of the Christians who still remain. West of Lake Urumia three thousand Christians were massacred and two thousand homes destroyed. Here, too, appalling conditions prevail.

Germany's Enormous Loss

According to accurate statistics, compiled by C. Doering, of Copenhagen, Denmark, it appears that Germany has lost no less than 5,500,000 souls by reason of the war itself and economic conditions brought about thereby. In 1915 there was a significant increase of 58,000 in the number of deaths among the civilian population. In 1918 these had reached the number of 885,000. At the same time the birth rate declined about 600,000 annually. Most distressing of all, perhaps, are the reports of investigators from the United States. They maintain that, because of undernourishment, multiplied thousands of children will never develop into rugged maturity. If they do not, in early youth, fall victim to the various ailments incident to malnutrition, they will be physical wrecks during the short span of life allotted them.

Prohibition for the Entire World

In accepting the challenge of helping to bring about world-wide prohibition, the Sunday-school forces are already manifesting commendable activity. Special attention is given to temperance work by the various field secretaries of the World's Sunday School Association. These men are located in Cairo, Manila, Tokyo, Shanghai, Pyengyang, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Santiago, Chile. The best of temperance literature has been provided, and translated into the languages of the respective countries. To every lover of temperance there is something decidedly inspiring in an effort so unitedly entered into for the cause of right. Just now, when the brewers and distillers of the United States are seeking to gain a foothold in foreign lands, the temperance hosts should do all in their power to further prohibition claims everywhere.

A Gleam of Light

According to a recent papal decree, the Gospels and Epistles may hereafter be read in the vernacular, in the Catholic churches of Italy. Unimportant as such an announcement might seem to the general reader, it is noteworthy because it means that for the first time large numbers of Italians will hear the Christian Scriptures in their own language. In the Latin nations only Latin is used in the Mass, which makes the Bible practically an unknown book to most of those who are in attendance. A desire to make known what the Gospels and Epistles teach, has led some priests and even secular papers to publish weekly vernacular translations. Such efforts, together with the public reading of the New Testament in churches, as referred to above, will undoubtedly be the means of leading many of Italy's population to a living faith in their Savior.

"Religion Better Than Drugs"

Recently, in Chicago, a criminal of long standing was awaiting the administration of the extreme penalty, pronounced upon him by the judge that had carefully investigated his case. The night had been spent in fitful slumber, and when day began to dawn, with the hour for his execution drawing nigh, the nervous forces of the condemned man seemingly gave way to the intense strain. The minister in attendance requested the warden that something be given the prisoner to steady his nerves. That official, however, profoundly impressed by the more urgent need of the moment, replied: "Give him religion; that's better than drugs." And so it came about that the hardened criminal spent his last hours in spiritual meditation—seemingly soothed and comforted thereby. When, later on, he paid the penalty of the law, he went with a firm step. Religion, undoubtedly, had done for him what medical aid would have vainly attempted.

The World Outlook

Some military expert, in close touch with the world situation, declares that just now, while the people in general are still rejoicing that the Peace Treaty has at last been signed, there are twenty-five little wars still in progress in various parts of this mundane sphere. To be sure, many of these are hardly momentous enough to arouse world-wide interest, but they are indicative, nevertheless, of the stern fact that peace does not as yet reign supreme in the great world family. Dissatisfaction with present conditions, and a desire to secure the rights to which they believe themselves justly entitled, has caused many small nations and dependencies to rise in defiance to those who bar the way to the realization of their desires. As a result, we have embroilments here and there. We are brought face to face with the decidedly discomfiting fact that neither the rigid terms imposed upon Germany, nor even the much lauded covenant of the League of Nations will be an absolute guarantee of the enduring peace of which we so fondly dreamed a few months ago. In Italy, in the Balkans, among the various sections of the Austrian and Russian Empires, in the Near East and in the Far East, there is every form of unrest—from street rioting to organized international war on a large scale, or social revolution. We can readily see that the world is in serious turmoil. There is hardly a section of the political arena that is wholly tranquil. Smoke and flame cast a lurid glare on every horizon. Our own land, even, has not been spared the pernicious attacks of the Bolsheviki and kindred organizations. We may look at these matters undismayed, but there is a disturbing realization, nevertheless, that the Treaty of Versailles is merely a respite from the appalling destruction of the last four years. As long as the British are planning for an army of nearly one million, with the other powers similarly inclined, we need not hope that the swords will speedily be beaten into plowshares.

Cutting Out the Sermon

In a certain English church a notice is posted in the entrance, to the effect that members of the congregation, not desiring to remain for the sermon, may leave after "the conclusion of divine worship, while the hymn before the sermon is being sung." The editor of the "Christian Evangelist," commenting on the notice referred to, directs attention to the serious misconception thus shown, and the value of the sermon as a part of divine worship. He insists, and rightfully so, that every true sermon is a revelation of God, and that a man has no right to preach who does not have, for his ultimate purpose, a larger and deeper appreciation of God in his world, as the great and living Personality whose love is redeeming mankind. Listening to the sermon, in our opinion, is surely one of the most profitable parts of the Sunday hour of worship.

The Fatal Touch

During the progress of a moving picture show in a little town in Pennsylvania, a "hanging scene" was thrown on the canvas. A fourteen-year-old boy was an interested attendant of the show, and immediately upon his return home related the exciting incident to a group of his boy-friends, who listened eagerly to his recital. A reënactment of the scene was then proposed by the boy who had been at the show. One of the boys volunteered to serve as the hangman's victim, and was promptly "strung up." When the pretended hanging unexpectedly turned out to be an actual fact, there was genuine grief among his playmates, but no sorrow, however great, could restore life. Reliable investigators declare that most of the pictures, usually exhibited at these shows, are downright corruptive, as may be inferred by the sad incident above referred to.

The Proposed New Calendar

Nowadays practically nothing is exempt, when the reformer sees an opportunity of making a change. At various times, in past years, improved systems of reckoning time have been proposed, but all have failed of acceptance. Conservatism is, after all, deeply intrenched in the human heart, and radical changes are not readily acceded to. A group of fifty business and professional men of Minneapolis, however, are now urging the adoption of what they call the Liberty or Equal Month Calendar. According to their plan the year would be composed of thirteen months of exactly twenty-eight days each, instead of the months of varying lengths, as we now have them. Each month would commence on Monday, and contain precisely four calendar weeks. Under the new plan there would be one extra day in the year, and instead of adding it to any one month, it would stand by itself as New Year's Day. In each leap-year there would be another additional day, to be known as "Correction Day," placed between Dec. 28 and New Year's Day. The new month, which would have to be added, to make thirteen, would be placed after January and February, and be called "Liberty." A bill for the adoption of the Liberty Calendar has been brought before the present Congress, and, if passed, is to take effect on the first day of 1922.

An Illuminating Statement

So much has been said by the saloon element about the great financial distress, that will, as they say, incvitably result from the closing of the saloons under the present dry regime, that it is of decided interest to read the testimony of a man who knows—a leading saloonkeeper of Rockford, Ill., before that city went dry. Addressing a gathering of Chicago saloonkeepers some weeks ago, he was impressed by the woe-begone expression that marked the faces of the men before him, and accordingly made use of these words: "If Chicago goes dry July 1, as it probably will, you'll all put up an awful howl. But cheer up! You'll be better off when you're driven out of the business. I can count on the fingers of one hand all of you who are really making more than good wages. The breweries are getting the money. You'll not lose anything financially by being forced into other business. Most of you will gain by the change. Nearly every one of you is going down hill physically. Your saloons are a long way from being health resorts. You get about as much bad air in the course of a day as any set of men in this city. Then, too, most of you take too much of your own medicine, and too little exercise. But you'll keep on, just as long as you're in the business, and you'll stay in it until you are driven out. And I think the time has come." Further inquiry brought out the interesting fact that practically all of Rockford's former saloonkeepers have entered other lines of activity, in which they seem to have attained marked success. It is also stated that not one of them would reëmbark in the saloon business, were the opportunity offered him.

HOME AND FAMILY

My Song

BY B. F. M. SOURS

I am singing a song of the beautiful things,
Of the birds on their sunlit wings;
Of the flowers, of the trees, of the sunsets red,
A whole world of God's beautiful things:
Of the ivy that climbs, and the steeple that chimes,
And the oriole's nest as it swings,
For my lay, all the day, if December or May,
Is the tale of the beautiful things.

I am singing a song of the beautiful things,
Of the baby that coos and sings;
Of the waving grain and the summer rain,
To brighten the beautiful things.
And I love, in my song, to float sweetly along
In blue heaven, on jubilant wings
Like a sky-lark that sings, till the melody rings,
Of the whole world of beautiful things.

And I wonder why some can ever be dumb,
When all earth with the jubilee rings;
How their throats can be still, can be still if they will,
When the summer in victory sings!
Be they still, if they will, but the gladness must thrill
My deep soul till the sweet carol springs,
And with gladness I raise my whole heart in the praise
Of the Lord for his beautiful things.

Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Contrasting Interiors

BY OMA KARN

Interior number one was a room. It was of medium size, with a lofty ceiling. The walls, delicately tinted and seemingly having the power to expand, merged into the ceiling much as the colors of the rainbow blend. The furnishing of the room matched the frame which held it. What there was of it, was of modest style and perfect workmanship. There was a marked absence of the superfluous. Elegance and spaciousness can best describe the sensation experienced by the beholder. Just what quality of tone and effect was responsible for this first-named feature would be hard to determine. It seemed to consist of a harmonious blending of the whole. One's eyes turned again and again to this blending, each time with increasing pleasurable emotion.

Gracious-mannered, courteous, noble-looking men and women moved about within this charming space. Taking into consideration the number present it might be said that they thronged the room. Yet at no time, during the reception hours, was there anything like crowding. Always there was easily room for more. The harmony of mind and manner, prevailing among those present, matched that of their surroundings. Nothing coarse or ribald was permitted to break in upon the spirit of culture and refinement, which breathed forth in the conversation and the conduct of those assembled. It was a charming scene—one calculated to leave the most pleasant recollections upon the pages of memory.

Interior number two was not so pleasing. A small, mean-looking filthy room, with low ceilings, and the walled effect of closing around the inmates until there was scarcely room in which to breathe. The emotion aroused on entering was to be free of the unsanitary surroundings as soon as was possible. Nor were the inmates of the room any more enticing than was the apartment itself. Low-browed and threatening they glowered evilly at the intruders, as they considered them, who had ventured to enter. Cowardly they slunk away into the cobwebby corners half ashamed, yet alert and defiant against anything better than their surroundings coming into their midst. One breathed a sigh of relief when clear of the place and its reeking atmosphere of degradation. The emotion recalled by memory is that of loathing mixed with pity—the last named sensation taking its source from the fact of the utter unnecessity of tolerating abodes such as described.

Interior number three is an imaginary scene—parallel abodes in the life of the Spirit—the seat of action being that part of one's being engaged in furnishing the life-blood necessary to our existence. We allude to the human heart. There can be but one of two conditions of inner life. One's heart is either large and spacious, like the room first described, moved and inhabited by the greater purposes and the finer motives of life, or it is small and restricted, furnished with little petty meannesses of disposition, and peopled by motives which forbid the entrance of anything calculated to enlarge its proportions or refine its sensibilities. It has no capacity for the entertainment of anything except the cult of its own class. It is not open to conviction. Nothing large can enter, however much it may desire to do so. The door is closed to everything but that which will add to the general disreputableness of the interior.

Compare, with the condition described, the large, open heart—the human heart as the Creator meant it to be and to function. It has been said that the human heart is the primary gift in which all moral and spiritual gifts become possible. One of the gifts of Jehovah to King Solomon was "largeness of heart." A heart of these dimensions is precious, first of all, because of its roominess. Its walls are flexible. Like India rubber they have the power of expanding as the need demands. Good things—great, large thoughts and motives—move and mingle within it with the greatest harmony of action and accord. Prayers from it contain a rich and inclusive fulness. Praise flows forth with the most easy naturalness—without the least effort on the part of the giver. Its joys are large, lasting satisfactions, capable of being shared with others. The temperature of its interior is always warm—so warm that anything of the cold or foreign order is immediately dissolved—upon entering—by the stronger chemical force of love. Littleness can not breathe in the atmosphere of largeness.

Best of all, the large heart enjoys fellowship with God. And fellowship with God means growing a bigger soul. It can not be otherwise. "No man by being anxious can add a cubit unto his stature." But in the realms of the spirit life we may, by reasonable thought and consecration, place ourselves in such relationship to him that we can not but increase in spiritual development. He is every day giving us new opportunities and fresh chances, that we may grow in grace and in the knowledge of him. It is his will that every day our heart capacity should expand, our soul dimensions enlarge, and our spiritual vision increase in discernment. But however the enlargement comes to us, it is necessary that it does come if we serve acceptably as he would have us do.

Ashland, Ohio.

A Little Heroine

BY NORA E. BERKEBILE

It was at one of their class parties. They had been having a pleasant evening, playing innocent games in which all could feel free to indulge.

Then some one said: "Let's dance!"

"Edna will not dance," whispered one girl to the one sitting near.

"She need not. Let her look after the records on the Victrola. We can dispose of her that way," her companion whispered back.

So they asked her to please attend to the records. When she got the first one started, they began to dance. She looked sad and then she began to cry. She thought: "It is just as wrong for me to help them with their dancing music as it is to dance."

Some one noticed her weeping, and asked the trouble. She bravely answered: "I do not think a Christian should dance and I can not play for others to do so."

Being well-mannered young people, and considerate of others, they stopped dancing. Some of the less cultured called her a "prig" and "baby," but thoughtful Christians will say she was brave, and admire her for being true to her convictions.

A father I know used to tell his daughter: "People who laugh at you for being true to your faith are not the people you would care to associate with. Those whose acquaintance you wish to cultivate are the ones who admire you for being true. The others will only lead you down."

This girl had occasion to be out among other people a great deal. She was a teacher and as such went to institutes and places teachers must attend. She decided to observe and see if that father's advice was true. She found that the best of the young people, the Christian young people were always kind to her—never ashamed of her plain attire—and most of them were the most successful teachers in the county also.

The dancers, the loud-dressed and loud-voiced—those who could scarcely pass examinations and some who barely escaped expulsion from high school or college—these were the ones who would sometimes laugh at the plain little country teacher until they saw she was taken up by those whose favor they wished to win. It was true. Those who made fun of her were people she did not care for at all. Had she been ashamed of her faith, the really truly good people would have never cared for her as they did.

The girl or boy who is true, will win out every time with the best people.

I trust in this day, when dancing in the schools is so prevalent, that there will be many a Brethren boy or girl who will be as brave and true as our little heroine.

Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Marilla's Engagement

BY ELIZABETH ROSENBERGER BLOUGH

She clerked in the store—Taylor & Hodge's Store, the best in Rockledge. You could see her there any day, at the notion counter, showing the thimbles, thread or tape to women who bought eagerly because usually they had been forgetting to buy the new thimble, or the paper of pins. One has more important things to buy, so these little things are often forgotten. Marilla was very busy, finding the right shade of silk thread, or just the kind of needles that some woman must have. Not so busy that she lost sight of the clock which was joyfully ticking off the hours on Saturday afternoon. The store closed at five o'clock; then she would go home and get ready for Sam's coming. He had said he would be there early if the works shut down at four. She was not tired. No, her sweet willingness to "look again" for a paper of Smith needles, mixed numbers, two to five, was scornfully commented upon by one of the other salesgirls.

"B'lieve me, I'd let her stew! Why can't she take your word for it? You're too willing, Marill. What's the difference about a paper of needles?"

But Marilla, too blissfully busy to answer, was intent on finding yellow hairpins for the golden-haired girl who could use no other kind. Only five minutes more, then the clang of the bell would usher them out, the doors would shut behind them and they would go home through the sweet, clear air and sunshine. Then she could get ready for Sam.

Her mother was ironing. Marilla looked distressed. "Oh, mother, how warm you do look! Can't you leave my white dress for me to do?"

"Oh, I guess I am most through now. 'Tain't a mite of trouble to do your dresses. I got your things laid out on the bed!"

"You have? No wonder you're tired. Don't bother about supper. I ain't hungry."

"No, I expect not. But your pa is and I'll soon have it ready to set on the table."

Mother was quietly ironing while she spoke. A white dress, coarse of texture but white as perfect washing and bluing could make it, was stretched over the ironing board. She smoothed out every wrinkle; she ironed and ironed until the dress hung in billowy folds of whiteness, dainty and fresh. She could do no more. She found now that she ached all over—she was so tired. But she never thought of stopping to rest. Pa would be here soon, and supper was the great meal of the day for him. She set the table and looked at the noodles appraisingly. They were dry enough to cut. Skilfully she cut them in the thinnest strips and dropped them into the beef broth. Pa was coming up the walk. She called Marilla; then the three sat down together.

"Anybody comin' tonight that you're all in such a hurry?" queried pa.

Mother was plain, heavy and middle-aged, but she had a delicacy about what might be termed quizzing into young folks' affairs. She perceptibly flinched at pa's question, but Marilla promptly answered it.

"Sam may come 'round this evening. He talked as if he would."

"This beef's kind o' tough. Shall I poach you an egg, Marilly?" asked mother anxiously.

"Poach me an egg, with such a supper?" scoffed Marilla. "I guess not."

When Marilla had gone upstairs to dress, mother whispered to pa: "This'll make the eighth Saturday evening he's been here. I mistrust he's a goin' to keep on coming."

To which pa replied solemnly: "Well, Sam's all right. He's just A 1."

When Marilla came down stairs in the clean white dress and white shoes, to meet Sam at the door, she was a vision of loveliness to her mother who was looking at her through the magic magnifying glass of mother love. When a few minutes later Marilla and Sam closed the front door, and went down the walk together, mother watched them, thrilling all the while with a sense of ownership. Marilla was her daughter. Who knew what was in store for her? Pa had said that Sam was a good man. Sam, too, seemed to like Marilly. What if they should soon be engaged? He might come on Sunday afternoon, perhaps. Mother kept thinking of this until she really expected that he would come.

"I b'lieve I'll dress a chicken and have some cold-pressed, with apple jell, and I'll bake a spice cake with chocolate icing. Marilla and pa'll go to church; then I can do these things. An' if—if he should be here for supper I'll not need to mind. I'll just ask him to come out an' eat a bite with us."

As mother intended, pa and Marilla went to church. Marilla used to be assistant-teacher in a Sunday-school class before she clerked in the store. How mother worked! She dusted and swept and cleaned; she baked and cooked and prepared for that supper. The noon meal was rather meagre, but none of them spoke of that.

"You've been working all morning, mother. Let me do these dishes." Marilla was busily engaged in clearing off the table.

"But, Marilly, you're always tired on Sundays. You go an' lay down an' have a good rest. I got everything ready for tea."

"What if I am tired? Ain't I got as good a right to be tired as the rest of you? You work too hard all the time, a-slaving and a-waiting on me." The soft light in her eyes made mother want to hush her to sleep in her arms as she had done just a few—was it years ago? Dear God, it seemed but a few months since Marilly had come to her for everything, her baby girl.

A glorified Marilla met Sam at the door about five o'clock. Together they sat down in the little parlor. Mother listening in the next room heard the soft murmur of their voices. There were pink roses in Marilly's pale cheeks, she thought, and how sweet and dear she was!

Then mother put her best linen cloth on the table. She had a pretty taste in dishes and liked to see a table look inviting. She made some rich lemonade; a tiny golden wheel of lemon swam at the top of every glass.

When Sam expressed his delight, mother said it wasn't a bit of trouble to stir up a cake. She always liked to make Sunday meals the best meals of all. When Sam hinted that he never got anything like this in his boarding-house, mother said he should just drop in any Sunday night. Yes, Marilla was a great help in the kitchen, but when she was on her feet clerking all day—yes, he must take another glass of lemonade.

That evening, after Marilla and Sam came home from church together, mother listened to their voices and wondered. She liked Sam and if he should be kind to Marilly—

Late that night Marilla herself came to her mother's bed. Mother sat up with outstretched arms and Marilla came close to her. "Oh, mother, I don't know how to tell you. Something's made me so happy!"

That there might be no mistake, mother asked: "Are you engaged?"

"Yes, and he said he hated to have me clerking through July and August, an' if we could be married about the middle of June, he's making enough to keep us."

"I guess we can get ready. We'll have to plan for the wedding, and—"

"We don't want a big wedding, just our own folks. There won't be a dozen."

"Now that's sensible. I always said you had the best sense."

"Mother, you do like him; it's all right?"

"Yes, honey. I b'lieve you're going to be as happy as I am." Then Marilla went to bed.

When Marilla told pa, the next morning, he was plainly embarrassed. "If he shouldn't treat you right, you come back to me," he threatened.

Mother's face shone. She had felt bad about missing church the day before. She had served all day for the love she had for pa and Marilla. Now this new happiness had come to them. There was so much she could do for Marilla who was going to leave them and have a home of her own. Life was rich and sweet.

Johnstown, Pa.

A Case of Strategy

BY RHETTA O'ROURKE

MINERVA WILSON JONES,—that's me, and if any one was to add that I am an old maid, they wouldn't be fur from the truth, though I much prefer to be called a spinster-woman, because it sounds more genteel, but I ain't never been married. Once when I was seventeen, a young man was setting up to me, but he went down to Nashville to clerk in a livery stable, and never come back, and that was the nearest I ever come to gettin' married.

Howsomever, I dare presume to say that I have rocked more babies than any other woman in this town (other people's babies). I have my own house and lot, and my tabby cat, and a good many of the pleasant and entertaining things of this life, and I ain't stretchin' the truth a mite when I say that I ain't fur from bein' as contented as the majority of married women and don't have near as much trouble and expense. About all the children in the town know me and call me Auntie, and they come in,—some of 'm every day,—to get a cooky and play with Mandy. I use the same receipt my mother did,—a cup of sour cream and a cup of butter, too,—and I can see that the taste of children don't change much from one generation to another.

Well, as I started to say, there isn't a wedding or a funeral or a birth in this town but what I get mixed up in it, some way, before it is done with. Helpin' other folks has kind of made me feel kin to the whole world. Their troubles is my troubles and their joys is my joys. This world is full of nice, comfortable people if you will only learn to take them at their best, and not get in the habit of discountin' everybody. But, of course, we all have our troubles. Happiness is never let to go along by herself. Trouble comes chasin' her up every time and I might say that this life is one continual fight between happiness and trouble,—trouble and happiness. First, happiness gets trouble down, and then vicy versy,—as they say in Dutch. And so, when Melissy Burns came in my back door, wipin' her eyes on her apron, I knew it was viey versy with her, and I says: "Melissy, take the rockin' chair and tell me right straight off what is making you feel so low this mornin'."

"Minervy," she says, "it's Evelina."

"Pity sakes," I busted out, "what is the matter with Evelina? She ain't gone and got married, has she?"

"No, she ain't gone and done nothing," says she, "but she just ain't satisfied to stay at home any more, and wants to go to the city and get a job at somethin', and she just won't try to learn housework or nothin'.

"Now, Minervy," she says, "you know I believe that women was made for wives and mothers, and not for clerks and office-boys,—not but what some has to do them very things, and I ain't sayin' it ain't all right in some cases, but I always wanted Evelina to be an old-fashioned home-maker, and I've just had dreams and dreams about helpin' her furnish a home of her own and rocking her babies to sleep, and mebbe one named Melissa, after me, but Evelina don't seem to take any interest in anything I plan."

"Well, now, Melissy," I says, "if I was in your place, I would try a little strategy on her."

"Why, Minervy," she says, "you know I never believed in using patent medicine."

I says: "Melissy, this ain't no patent medicine. It means just a little harmless shrewdness. You make a person think you are doing one thing, while maybe that thing is just the means to bring about something else more important."

"Well," she says, "I don't know no more about what you're drivin' at than a chicken, but mebbe you can explain."

"I will," I says. "Now, Melissy, what kind of a room has Evelina got?"

"Why, she's got a nice room, all fitted out with grandmother's old furniture, four poster and all."

"That's just it, Melissy. That ain't no kind of a room for a young girl. They crave pretty things and they are a-going to get them if they can. If they can't have what they want at home, ten to one they'll go out into the world, looking for it and get whirled over the rapids afore they know it."

"But, Minervy," she says, "don't you think it is dangerous to teach girls to think so much of pretty things? I never allowed Evelina to get any such notions as that."

"That's just where you are wrong, Melissy. It's just as natural for a young girl to love beauty as for a calf to like milk. Now, Melissy, who made this world anyhow?"

"Why, God made it, of course," says she.

"Yes," I says, "he did. He made the sunsets and the mountains with peaks of gold. He made the flowers, all dressed up in red and gold and pink and orange and blue. Look at the lily with its dress of white and heart of gold, the rose with its big, full skirt of red and pink and white, and the laylock in the spring. God made 'em all and he didn't make 'em and put 'em on this earth to tantalize people to death. Why, Melissy," I says, "do you suppose God would make anythin' so sweet and beautiful you couldn't help lovin' it, and then call it a sin to do so? Why, Melissy, right here is where I prove my point. That's strategy. God gives us all them things we can't help lovin' and as we love them we love the Maker, in spite of ourselves. Why, every time I smell a lily I feel just like praying the Lord to make me just as sweet and white inside, and every time I see the chrysanthums in the fall, with, mebbe, the snow fallin' on 'em, and they bloomin' just the same, I always say: 'Lord, I'm a poor, homely old maid, but I want to keep right on bloomin' until the snows of winter cover me up.' Sure, we all love pretty things, Melissy, and no honest person will deny it."

"Well, Minervy," she says, "mebbe you're right, but I don't know how to fix that room for Evelina. Do you suppose you could help me?"

"Sure I could," I says, "you just send her away visiting for a week, and we'll fix it up and surprise her."

Well, it went on a couple of days and over come Melissy again, with her apron over her head, and she says: "Come on over quick, Minervy. She's gone to her pa's sister's, to stay a week, and now's our chance."

Melissy was as chipper as a girl, and how we did dig in! She had got some new wall paper with a tiny vine of delicate pink roses running through it and we put that on the wall. Then we painted the woodwork a glossy white, and she got a matting rug, with roses in it, for the floor. Then, too, we painted the bedstead and the old bureau and washstand and a couple of chairs all white, like the wood work, and she got some cretonne,—white, with pale pink roses in it,—and we made a bedspread and cushions for the chairs, and covers for the bureau and washstand, and made some curtains with pink roses on them for the windows. When the room was finished it was as dainty and pretty as you could wish to see, and it had cost less than twelve dollars.

Melissy was so tickled that she said she was going to do the whole house over, but I says: "You just wait until Evelina gets home and let her help."

In a few days Evelina came home and when she saw that room, she just sat down and cried: "Why, Ma," says she, "I was just starving for something pretty to look at. I'll never want to leave home again."

That was a long time ago and now Melissy and Evelina are just like sisters, working together in everything, as happy as a couple of little birds, and I've noticed Sim Smith over there a good deal lately, particularly evenings, and while nothing ain't been said to me as yet, I've begun hemmin' some napkins,—they make nice wedding presents. No, sir, they ain't nothing in this world like strategy. Why ain't it all right? The Lord invented it.

Mattawan, Mich.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

INDEPENDENCE, KANSAS

In the northeastern part of Oklahoma, in Craig County, there is a small band of faithful members of the Church of the Brethren. They have a good house of worship and two ministers—Eld. O. E. Loshbaugh and son Ralph, who is expecting to attend McPherson College the coming term. They are in need of a minister to devote at least a part of his time solely to the work, and are able to give a good live man substantial encouragement.

The writer has been in charge of this place—Hollow church—for several years and knows their needs. They have a fine body of young people who can be gotten into the church by a little organizing and push. It is a purely rural community, being thirteen miles from the railroad, but with the present mode of rapid conveyance it is no hardship. It is a good farming country and land is comparatively cheap. By the united effort of an active minister and the congregation, I feel that a good work can be done. Bro. J. B. Denney, of Independence, Kans., will hold a revival for them some time in the fall.

Any one desiring to take up this kind of work for the Master, should address either J. W. Campbell, Eli Wolf or O. E. Loshbaugh—all of Hollow, Okla. They will give all the information desired. I am deeply interested in the work there, for they have had a hard struggle to exist. May God move some one to respond to this appeal.

W. H. Miller.

Independence, Kans.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

We observed Easter and Mothers' Day with appropriate programs, and Children's Day exercises will be held next Sunday. July Fourth we take the boys and girls for an outing and picnic dinner to the beautiful and picturesque place called Stratton Park.

We have had the pleasure of having with us recently, among others, Bro. Crosswhite and daughter, of Rocky Ford. Bro. Crosswhite gave us an excellent sermon one evening. Bro. Charles, of the Mennonite faith, and one of the faculty of their college at Hesston, Kans., also gave us a helpful talk, emphasizing the fact that we must work with the children, in order to bring about the greatest possible good for the future church.

Sisters Eva Trostle and Elnora Bollinger, of Bethany Bible School, Chicago, were with us over one Sunday. The former, in her sincere, earnest way, brought us two convincing messages. At the Christian Workers' hour Sister Bollinger gave a reading which was very impressive.

In the absence of our pastor, last Sunday, a number of short talks were given, the principal themes being more love and willing service for Christ, and more concentrated and earnest effort to win and hold our young people. In the evening Bro. Fisher, of Iowa, gave us a splendid sermon.

Some members have moved here recently and others are coming, for which we are glad. Since our last report one has been received into the church by baptism.

Bro. Ira J. Lapp, of Miami, N. Mex., begins an evangelistic effort here July 6. Sister Clara Michael, now of Bethany Bible School, will conduct the song service. The meetings will close with a love feast.

Bettie Root Crist.

West Colorado Springs, Colo., June 26.

FROM VALI, POST UMALLA, VIA ANKLESVAR, INDIA

We are now enjoying the heat as best we can. It is very hot during the day, but the breezes come well at night, so that sleeping is good. The last several nights we have also discarded the mosquito nets, for we would rather have the wind blow the mosquitoes away than to have the nets keep them off. It has been cloudy, off and on, for several weeks, but no rain for us yet. There were showers in the hills near by, one evening. It looked good but did not reach us. There was not enough, however, to be of much consequence, but we hope for rains soon. They should come within the next two weeks, to be on time for the regular break of monsoon. If rains should fail again, we may expect to see some awful times.

The famine conditions are worse now than they have yet been this year. The darkest hour is sometimes just before dawn, and it may be expected to be so in this case, for the new crops will be expected to be the real permanent relief. Until then we may expect times to be very hard.

The people about us have been very hard pressed for food. The Government has had relief works going for some time, but they are not distributed well enough for the people to get to them properly. Although the people have nothing but a little hut and a bullock or two, they seem to feel that it is their home, and they are loath to leave it, to go to distant work, knowing that they will find nothing when they return. So they decide to stay with their hut until real starvation drives them away. Early they cut grass and brought it in great head-loads, but now the grass is exhausted. Now they bring bamboos and wood. Thus they can get a little money with which to buy food. We have bought about twenty thousand bamboos as they bring them—tied in bundles of twenty each. But our money is limited and we can hardly buy any more if there is any other way for them to live. We have used many bamboos in building and have about ten thousand on hand now.

We have had considerable work done just to give people something to do. Last week there was a great lot of people—from old men and women to boys and girls of five years—working for us. Yesterday evening we gave rice to 135 people who had been on our work. The day before we gave money to the same number, and the preceding days perhaps a greater number. That takes about Rs. 30 per day or $10. It soon eats a hole in our part of the relief money. We had them carry sand and dirt for filling, in and about our buildings, and in roads and paths. The work all comes in good, but we would not have had so much done, were it not that they need the work. We offer to take the boys into our boarding-school. Some have come, but they are loth to give up their children, though starving. And this is, perhaps, as it should be, for the man who offers his child for sale, that he may live, is much less to be esteemed than he who tries to provide for his children, although hungry himself.

Seemingly the people do not trust the Government as they do us. They will come to work for us much more readily than they will go to Government Relief Work. The Government officers are often very hard on them and treat them roughly, while we always try to be kind. I suppose, also, that they think they do not have to work so hard for us. But one hundred persons earning their rice by carrying baskets of sand on their heads, is a sight worth meditating over.

But we must close our work here. If they will go to Umalla, and gather stones for a road on our new compound there, they may do so, or may go to the Government Relief Works, which is excavating for the village tank. If they come tomorrow, I think I shall have to go along with them, and try to make arrangements whereby they may be able to earn their food.

While it is hard for them to get work, even that is not all. It has been hard for them to get food even if they had money. Yes, food is to be had, but prices have become so very high that a day's labor brings very little food. It seems that the Government is trying to control the rice supply, and while the situation is doubtless better than if it were uncontrolled, yet the work is not perfectly done. Many people are unable to get rice. There was a Government store in Umalla, but for some reason it has been discontinued. The merchants see the chance for greater profits and the price is kept high. They can get some beans and grains, but they are expensive too. The main food for these people has been rice, and without it they are at a great loss.

Well, I wrote to the Dewan Sahib (the King's Prime Minister), asking whether he could supply, or tell us where we could get, rice at a more reasonable rate. A prompt reply told us we could get rice in the capital city, Nandod, for Rs. 3-8-0 per maund of forty pounds (about $2 per bushel). So we went to Nandod with Rs. 150 in our pocket, hoping to bring five or ten bags—whatever they would let us have. The train arrived at twelve and we must leave at three in the afternoon. The grain business did not open until after three. So there was little we could do. A Government carriage was at the station to meet one of the officials, who kindly offered us a seat by his side. Before the ride was ended, we accepted his kind invitation to go to his bungalow. The day was hot. In this Parsee home we rested, had ice lemon to drink, and took breakfast with them at 1:30 P. M., while the large, revolving electric fan, on the opposite end of the table, did its duty in keeping us comfortable. Nandod is developing into a real nice Indian town. Although of only ten or twelve thousand population, it is better improved than many towns of five times its size. The King had installed electric lights and water works throughout the city—the water being pumped by electricity. There is also a soda water factory, and a distillery to supply liquor for his poor, ignorant subjects.

The grain shop did not open until three, but we were directed to the house of Mr. Moitlal Chunilal, the controller of food supplies. This Hindu gentleman received us very kindly and informed us that we were allowed fifty bags of rice, amount Rs. 700. Fifty bags of rice—Rs. 700! This was more than we were prepared for. But as we would not be given the rice until after three o'clock, we returned home, rejoicing in the prospects of the morrow. Next day we took the Rs. 700 and went again to Nandod. But these officials work according to rule, and although the rice was on the cars at the station and there was plenty of time, yet we could not be given charge until after three. So I had to come home, leaving a man to bring the rice next morning. But next morning it came. Rice? Yes, lots of rice, so it seemed. By Wednesday we were offering it for sale, and the happy people spread the news far and wide.

We reserved twenty bags for the 150 children in our school and in the Children's Home. We let seven bags go to the Christian people of Amletha and the rest we offered to whomsoever would come for it, paying the cost price, of course. A few disabled ones received rice free. The people came with money, with bamboos and with wood. We allowed only about four pounds to each person, but by Saturday evening the bags were empty. At dark, on Saturday evening, seventy-five people were here with head-loads of wood, to get rice, but the rice was all sold, neither did we have change with which to pay them. We offered them rupees, but they could not divide the money properly, so, what could we do? Finally we took out one sack of rice from the school supply, and paid them in rice.

Again we appealed to the Dewan Sahib, and again we were allowed fifty bags, with the assurance of fifty bags each ten days unless the Government supply fails. Buying and selling at cost, getting our money back, we can continue to offer rice at a fairly reasonable price. Yesterday evening seven bushels were sold and tomorrow it is to continue.

The last few Sundays our church attendance has increased wonderfully. People are asking for baptism. For this we are glad, but we must beware lest improper motives bring them to us. Pray that we may have wisdom to deal with the present situation, and that the Lord may get glory out of it all!

S. Ira Arnold.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CANADA

Bow Valley church met in council June 18, with Bro. J. H. Brubaker presiding. Nine letters were granted and three received. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren J. C. Culp and J. H. Brubaker; to Sunday-school Convention, Bro. John Hollenburg and Sister Elva Shatto. Just after the District Meeting Bro. Hollinger, of Medicine Hat, will be with us in a series of meetings. We will hold our love feast July 26.—Maude E. Pobst, Gleichen, Alta., Can., June 26.

Santee.—June 21 and 22 Bro. S. G. Lehner, of Los Angeles, gave us some fine sermons. On Sunday evening we held our love feast, with Bro. Lehner presiding. Several members from San Diego enjoyed the feast with us. Five members were received by letter only recently. Our church contributed $25 to the Armenian-Syrian Relief and $49.50 to the Annual Meeting offering.—Anna R. Hyatt, Santee, Calif., June 29.

COLORADO

Grand Junction church met in council June 13, with nearly all of our members present. Bro. J. D. Coffman, our newly-elected elder, presided. Two letters were granted. The church decided to hold a love feast some time this fall,—the day to be named later. Bro. John S. Fox was selected as church treasurer; the writer, solicitor. We are having a very interesting Sunday-school. Sister Emma Lapp is proving herself an efficient superintendent. The school is keeping up well during the warm weather, and we are thankful for the interest manifested in our work here. Our Christian Workers' Meeting is also doing well.—D. W. Click, Grand Junction, Colo., July 1.

GEORGIA

Edison.—On Sunday morning Bro. Helm preached to a very appreciative little band of worshipers. The Bible Class, which meets in the evening, is now studying the Judean ministry of Jesus. A class of children meets in the afternoon. They take much interest in their Bible stories and studies, but our accommodations for them are poor. We hope that some of the brethren and sisters, who go to Florida to spend the winter, will stop to visit us and look over the field.—Mrs. O. F. Helm, Edison, Ga., June 26.

IDAHO

Twin Falls church had the pleasure of hearing four splendid talks by Sister Eva Trostle, of Bethany Bible School. She talked to the mothers on Saturday, June 21, and to the girls on the following Sunday afternoon. Her (subject on Sunday morning was "Christian Attire," and on Sunday evening, "How to Be Happy." We took a collection of $32.28 for her work.—Alice Swab, Twin Falls, Idaho, June 25.

ILLINOIS

Astoria and Woodland congregations had an interesting and helpful program Easter Sunday. The "Forward Movement" was especially emphasized. An offering of $42 was taken. May 18 a deputation from Bethany, consisting of Bro. Russell Wenger and Sisters Pauline Eisenbise and Anna Hutchison, missionary to China, gave a much appreciated program. An offering was taken for their work. The Woodland church gave $952 for the Armenian Relief Work. At our last council Bro. John Lear having resigned as elder, Bro. S. G. Bucher was chosen in his stead for one year. A very appropriate sermon was preached on Educational Day by Eld. S. G. Bucher. An offering of $30 was taken to help in this great cause. We are expecting Bro. J. C. Shull to be with us in a series of meetings, beginning July 27. Our next council will be held the last of July.—Mrs. Lydia Bucher, Astoria, Ill., July 1.

Notice to the Churches of the Southern District of Illinois.—I have been appointed Traveling Secretary for this District, by the General Mission Board, in the interest of the Forward Movement, and of pumped by electricity. There is also a soda water factory, and a distillery to supply liquor for his poor, ignorant subjects.

The grain shop did not open until three, but we were directed to the house of Mr. Moltial Chunilal, the controller of food supplies. This Hindu gentleman received us very kindly and informed us that we were allowed fifty bags of rice, amount Rs. 700. Fifty bags of rice—Rs. 700! This was more than we were prepared for. But as we would not be given the rice until after three o'clock, we returned home, rejoicing in the prospects of the morrow. Next day we took the Rs. 700 and went again to Nandod. But these officials work according to rule, and although the rice was on the cars at the station and there was plenty of time, yet we could not be given charge until after three. So I had to come home, leaving a man to bring the rice next morning. But next morning it came. Rice? Yes, lots of rice, so it seemed. By Wednesday we were offering it for sale, and the happy people spread the news far and wide.

We reserved twenty bags for the 150 children in our school and in the Children's Home. We let seven bags go to the Christian people of Amletha and the rest we offered to whomsoever would come for it, paying the cost price, of course. A few disabled ones received rice free. The people came with money, with bamboos and with wood. We allowed only about four pounds to each person, but by Saturday evening the bags were empty. At dark on Saturday evening, seventy-five people were here with head-loads of wood, to get rice, but the rice was all sold, neither did we have change with which to pay them. We offered them rupees, but they could not divide the money properly, so, what could we do? Finally we took out one sack of rice from the school supply, and paid them in rice.

Again we appealed to the Dewan Sahib, and again we were allowed fifty bags, with the assurance of fifty bags each ten days unless the Government supply fails. Buying and selling at cost, getting our money back, we can continue to offer rice at a fairly reasonable price. Yesterday evening seven bushels were sold and tomorrow it is to continue.

The last few Sundays our church attendance has increased wonderfully. People are asking for baptism. Fpr this we are glad, but we must beware lest improper motives bring them to us. Pray that we may have wisdom to deal with the present situation, and that the Lord may get glory out of it all!

S. Ira Arnold.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CANADA

Bow Valley church met in council June 18, with Bro. J. H. Brubaker presiding. Nine letters were granted and three received. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren J. C. Culp and J. H. Brubaker; to Sunday-school Convention, Bro. John Hollenberg and Sister Elva Shatto. Just after the District Meeting Bro. Hollinger, of Medicine Hat, will be with us in a series of meetings. We will hold our love feast July 26.—Maude E. Pobst, Gleichen, Alta., Can., June 26.

Santee.—June 21 and 22 Bro. S. G. Lehner, of Los Angeles, gave us some fine sermons. On Sunday evening we held our love feast, with Bro. Lehner presiding. Several members from San Diego enjoyed the feast with us. Five members were received by letter only recently. Our church contributed $25 to the Armenian-Syrian Relief and $19.50 to the Annual Meeting offering.—Anna R. Hyatt, Santee, Calif., June 29.

COLORADO

Grand Junction church met in council June 13, with nearly all of our members present. Bro. J. D. Coffman, our newly-elected elder, presided. Two letters were granted. The church decided to hold a love feast some time this fall,—the day to be named later. Bro. John S. Fox was selected as church treasurer; the writer, solicitor. We are having a very interesting Sunday-school. Sister Emma Lapp is proving herself an efficient superintendent. The school is keeping up well during the warm weather, and we are thankful for the interest manifested in our work here. Our Christian Workers' Meeting is also doing well.—D. W. Click, Grand Junction, Colo., July 1.

GEORGIA

Edison.—On Sunday morning Bro. Helm preached to a very appreciative little band of worshipers. The Bible Class, which meets in the evening, is now studying the Judean ministry of Jesus. A class of children meets in the afternoon. They take much interest in their Bible stories and studies, but our accommodations for them are poor. We hope that some of the brethren and sisters, who go to Florida to spend the winter, will stop to visit us and look over the field.—Mrs. O. F. Helm, Edison, Ga., June 26.

IDAHO

Twin Falls church had the pleasure of hearing four splendid talks by Sister Eva Trostle, of Bethany Bible School. She talked to the mothers on Saturday, June 21, and to the girls on the following Sunday afternoon. Her subject on Sunday morning was "Christian Attire," and on Sunday evening, "How to Be Happy." We took a collection of $32.28 for her work.—Alice Swab, Twin Falls, Idaho, June 25.

ILLINOIS

Astoria and Woodland congregations had an interesting and helpful program Easter Sunday. The "Forward Movement" was especially Missions. The itinerary has been arranged as follows: Champaign, July 6, 7; Mansfield, 8, 9; Hudson, 10, 11; Panther Creek, 12, 13; Oak Grove, 14, 15; Coal Creek, 16-18; Astoria, 19-21; Woodland, 22-24; Liberty, 25, 26; Virden, Aug. 2-4; Macoupin Creek, 5, 6; Sugar Creek, 7, 8; Girard, 9-11; Mulberry Grove, 12-14; Hurricane Creek, 15, 16; Kaskaskia, 21-24; Lamotte Prairie, 25, 26; Romine, 27, 28; Allison Prairie, 29-31; Big Creek, Sept. 1, 2; Martin's Creek, 3, 4; Pleasant Grove, 5, 6; Decatur 11, 12; Oakley, 13-16; Cerro Gordo, 17-19; Olaw, 20-23; Centennial, 23. If, for any reason, meetings on the dates named might seem inadvisable, correspondence directed to me at the above places, on those dates, and in care of the pastor or some other member of the congregation, will reach me.—J. E. Wagoner, Chicago, Ill., July 1.

Elgin.—I told you our "junior congregation" was doing things! Sunday evening, June 28, a "Mission Study Graduation Service" was held, when members of four different mission study classes—twenty-six in all—received diplomas. The event was celebrated by songs, salute to the service flag, sketches, a scene in which India and Africa were each represented by four girls in costume, reciting missionary incidents of those countries, a dialogue in which Spenser Minnich and five boys discussed the Forward Movement. Some of the juniors are developing beautifully, leading in devotionals and doing committee work. . . . Dr. Edward Frantz gave us the sermon in the morning for Education Day, and our offering for Mount Morris College was over $21. Harper Frantz addressed the junior congregation in the afternoon.—Alline H. Beery, Elgin, Ill., June 30.

Yellow Creek church is now in the midst of a revival meeting, conducted by Bro. Jesse C. Shull. The meetings are very spiritual and we are hoping for an ingathering of souls into the Kingdom. Our love feast was well attended last Sunday.—Lizzie Studebaker, Pearl City, Ill., June 28.

INDIANA

Auburn church met in council June 24, with Bro. Gibson presiding, in place of Eld. John Grey. We decided to hold our love feast Sept. 6. Two letters were granted. We also organized our Christian Workers' Society.—Mrs. Wm. Witt, Auburn, Ind., June 27.

Blissville congregation met in council June 14 at the Blissville house, with Eld. John Markley in charge. Three letters of membership were granted. It was decided to hold our Harvest Meeting Sept. 14 at the Oregon house. A committee was appointed to secure ministers for this meeting, and also for the series of meetings for next year. Our offering to Annual Meeting was $80 and for Armenian-Syrian Relief, $30.15. Officers were elected at our council, with Bro. Jesse Pippenger, clerk; Sister Alice Campbell, "Messenger" agent; the writer, correspondent.—Stella Ruff, Plymouth, Ind., June 28.

Cedar Creek church met in council June 27, with Bro. J. H. Urey presiding, assisted by Bro. D. C. Kerlin, of Bethany Bible School. The latter, with his family, is now located at this place, serving as pastor for the coming year. June 29 Bro. Kerlin gave us a splendid sermon along educational lines, after which an offering of $10 was lifted for Manchester College. August 10 is the date set for our Harvest Meeting. Services will be in charge of Bro. Kerlin.—Mrs. David Ober, Garrett, Ind., June 30.

Flora.—One came forward after Sunday services to unite with the church. Baptism was administered in the evening. June 21 we had with us, at both morning and evening services, Brother and Sister J. W. Lear. Although not able to take part, it was an inspiration to have them in our midst. At our quarterly meeting, June 26, a favorable financial report was read and accepted. Sisters Elva Ulery and Elva Replogle were cleeted delegates to the District Sunday-school Meeting.—Mattie Welty, Flora, Ind., June 30.

Goshen City.—We were very glad to have Eld. D. L. Miller with us for nearly two weeks, beginning June 15. He held twelve services in all, which included travel and Bible Land talks and several sermons. Two greatly appreciated ones were, "Ocean Experiences" and "Why I Belong to the Church of the Brethren." He conducted our love feast at the close of the series of meetings. Four were baptized. June 29 Bro. Harvey Hartsough, of Nappanee, gave us a fine sermon on "Education." An offering of $25 was taken for the fund. Special loans are made to those preparing for the mission field.—Beulah Manahan, Goshen, Ind., June 30.

Huntington.—After an absence of four years we have returned to this place and are glad to be in the Master's work again. We enjoyed meeting old friends, all very much, and want to say that we consider it one of the churches of the very finest spirit, so far as we know, and a very promising field for the right man.—C. C. Kindy, 621 Guilford Street, Huntington, Ind., June 25.

Logansport church convened in council on Thursday evening, June 26. Our elder, Bro. J. G. Stinebaugh, presided. Four letters were granted. A Harvest Meeting was set for the second Sunday in August. The excavation for the basement of our new church began this week. May God prosper the building of the house, and may his children in the District rally, to its support, till the Logansport church shall no longer have to depend upon rented quarters! Let us then, with better grace, invite others into the fold. Brethren Jas. Hunter and Harry Murphy were selected as delegates to the District Sunday-school Meeting, with Sister Bertha Oberlin as alternate. The latter was also selected as the local representative of the Dress Reform Committee. In the temporary absence of our church correspondent, Sister Dora Hirt, the writer was selected to act in that capacity until Sister Hirt's return.—Josephine Hanna, 1713 Buchanan Street, Logansport, Ind., July 1.

Portland church met in council June 2, with Eld. Chas. Oberlin in charge. Two letters were granted. June 29 a splendid Children's Day program was rendered to a crowded house. There will be a Temperance Meeting held some time in the near future. It will be decided at the next council meeting when our love feast is to be held.—Marie Stump, Portland, Ind., July 1.

Rossville church met in council June 28, with Bro. W. L. Hatcher presiding. One letter was received. We will hold our Harvest Meeting Aug. 24 and our communion Oct. 25. Bro. W. L. Hatcher is our delegate to District Meeting, with Sister Clara Metzger, delegate to the Sunday-school Meeting. The District Meeting of Southern Indiana will be held here the last week in August and we are looking forward to this meeting with great interest.—Lillian A. Hufford, Rossville, Ind., June 28.

Santa Fe church met in council June 19, with Eld. S. T. Fisher presiding. Our love feast was set for Sept. 28, at 6 P. M. Brethren Perry Cohlentz and Sherman Kendall and their wives were installed to the eldership. Elders present were C. E. Swihart, D. C. Kile, Peter Hosak and J. W. Norris. May 25 the church was aroused to the great missionary needs of China by Bro. Moy Gwong, who is preparing to go back to his people as a missionary. Two certificates of membership have been accepted since our last report.—Dossie M. Webb, Bunker Hill, Ind., June 30.

Union church met in council June 19, with good attendance. Eld. S. F. Henricks presided. Our love feast will be held Oct. 11, at 2 P. M. Our Harvest Meeting was appointed for Aug. 30, beginning at 10 A. M.—Dora A. Henricks, Plymouth, Ind., June 26.

Walnut church met in council June 21, with Eld. J. F. Appleman in charge. Three letters were granted. Bro. Chas. Rohrer was elected President of Christian Workers' Meeting. Our missionary committee will open a mission point at Power schoolhouse next called their own services. Two auto loads were present in the afternoon from Grundy County. Bro. A. P. Blough, of Waterloo, preached in the morning and also had charge of the dedication services in the afternoon. A full house heard his dedicatory address on the subject: "The Three-fold Function of the Church: Teaching, Social Development and Worship." Our church building was dedicated free of debt. The brethren from Greene and Grundy were of material assistance in this matter. The amount raised at the time of dedication was $1,600. Sister Anna V. Blough gave an interesting address in the evening. This was followed by a sermon by Bro. W. E. Buntain, of Greene, opening his evangelistic effort among us. The first week was spent in evening Bible lessons, which were not so well attended on account of bad weather. This week Bro. Buntain is preaching the Word with power, and the interest is increasing. Pray for us that the will of God may be accomplished in these meetings. The meetings will continue until July 6, with a love feast on Saturday evening, July 5. We are also planning to have a program and picnic July 4. Sister Marie Olson, of Chicago, is leading our song services, and is also conducting a singing class each afternoon.—Harvey W. Allen, Dumont, Iowa, June 27.

(Continued on Page 448)

If the Light That Is in Thee Be Darkness

(Continued from Page 437)

—a kind of "little Christ," as believers were sometimes designated in the early years of the Christian era. He must make clearly visible, in practical and intelligent form, the Truth of God as it relates to life.

Even if Jesus had not said: "Ye are the light of the world," the person who observes intelligently could not escape the fact. Whether or not we invite humanity to "look on us," people are doing it, nevertheless. We deplore the sad fact that the masses are not reading the Bible. Magnificent efforts have been made to bring out a version of God's Book which folks generally would delight to read. But the version which the greatest number have been reading for nearly two thousand years, and shall continue to read as long as time shall last, is the version which is translated into pulsating, acting, practical life, and which walks in the professed Christian's shoes. The world shall comprehend the truth of God only to the extent that it is lived. Humanity shall enjoy "light" only to the extent that the light of Christ is reflected by his followers.

As professed Christians we are light-bearers. The world is looking to us for the knowledge of God and intelligent direction in the way of truth. As a city upon a hill we can not be hid. We shall be seen, and our lives carefully scrutinized, whether we will it so or not. Whatever advancement this old world shall make toward the ideal of God's truth, shall result from the constant, insistent and consistent influence of the collective body of Christ.

But "if the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is the darkness!" If, when the world looks to me or you for knowledge and guidance to the Ideal, they receive only confusion and bewilderment, how great is the darkness! I travel the marked road many miles and depend upon the intelligence I receive by the guide-posts, to find my way to the desired destination. All goes well till I approach the city of my quest. There is a crossroad and another guide-post. As the arrow points, I am informed that it is yet twenty miles in the direction of the arrow. But the guide-post has been moved and reversed. The arrow points wrong. The intelligence which it should have conveyed to me has become confusion, so that I do not arrive in the city until it is too late to enjoy the purpose of my coming. The "light" which was in the guide-post was "darkness" and how great!

And so with Christendom today. The world is looking to it for ideals. The sum of Christian influences will determine the standard of the world's ideals. But if the world looks to us for truth and the highest ideals of life, and beholds less than the whole truth, or worse yet, a direct contradiction of truth,—if the guide-post of our lives points in the wrong direction,—the error is great beyond power of description. Then let each one use great care that, in Christ's great program of enlightenment, we reflect the pure, white light of the truth of God into the lives of those who see us. Let us truly "make manifest" God's ideal for men, so that our Father may regard us as, at least, a little and employés can increase their efficiency. That the special library has come to stay can not be doubted. It has won for itself a place and will continue to do so. The time will come when every local church organization will have its own particular and special library. The special library is not alone recreational but far more—it is a place where the individuals of that particular organization can increase their knowledge and grow to greater efficiency in their particular line of work.

The Church Library

(Continued from Page 435)

For this the church library has a place that will fill a long-felt need. We need only to look at the records to know that religious literature is being produced very rapidly. In the book trade, books on religion stand second to all other subjects in the matter of production—only fiction taking a higher place. The public library will not be able, neither can it be expected to use public money to enlarge one department of its books beyond another, unless its patronage will insistently demand it.

Religious education is also growing by leaps and bounds and the library should be the great factor in keeping in touch with this movement. The working forces of the church must know the best things for their Sunday-school and church. We can not expect the public library to collect all the rich materials of the various departments of religious and social work.

In all ages, and under various conditions, some young people have always been readers. Many of our great men of today and of the past have not received their knowledge in the colleges alone but have been readers and students. It seems true also that not all the young people can or at least will go to college. The earnest ones will read and others may be induced to read if they have the proper incentive to do so. Many problems are arising concerning the conduct and deportment of the young people of today. By filling the minds with the proper materials, many problems will take care of themselves. Ideals and conduct can very largely be directed in the proper channels through the church library.

In all the institutions of learning the library is the central figure or the heart. Around it all the phases and activities of the school will revolve. Something of the same thing may be done through the church library.

The church library will contain the best devotional and Biblical books, to be sure. Such books as Meyer's, Gordon's, Stalker's, etc., should be on the shelves. Commentaries and Bible dictionaries and encyclopedias should have their place. Missions should be also represented on the shelves of the church library. Books for the Sunday-school teacher—in fact, for every officer of the school, and the best—should be here.

As a part of the church library there should be the Sunday-school library. In this we want the very best books obtainable. Some good people have thought there is no need for a Sunday-school library, but greater is that need now than ever before. We don't want the "pious little saint books" either—their day is past—but books of real worth that will develop the character as well as the taste for the best literature. Sunday-schools can be built up and maintained through proper use of the Sunday-school library. Books of fiction, biography, natural science, notably useful arts and missions, should be selected for the children.

The church library may well contain surveys, reports, bulletins, etc., that will materially assist in pushing forward the Lord's work. The church is awakening more and more to its opportunities for social service. The library should contain the best books along this line. The ideal, of course, should be to include books of every kind needed, and in such proportion as wisdom may determine, so that we may have a well-rounded religious library.

Here should come the pastor for sermon help; for assistance in preparing for a more extensive church program. Not that the minister should have no library of his own, but the church library should supplement his own. Here will come trustees, deacons, treasurers, secretaries and all other officers of the church. Each should get the help he needs in his particular line.

In it should be found suggestions, with ample material for missionary, temperance and other special programs.

Sunday-school, missionary, Biblical, temperance and other magazines, both for juveniles and adults, will have a place in the church library.

It is not a good plan to begin such a library with a large stock of books. A few well-chosen books, with regular additions, will prove more satisfactory. Much care should be exercised in the acceptance of books donated to the library.

May God hasten the day when every church will use this channel of greater efficiency!

Chicago, Ill.

"The Spirit of the Age"

BY WM. K. CONNER

WHAT is the "spirit of the age"? It is the "spirit of the world" (1 Cor. 2: 12) and not "the Spirit which is of God." It is an evil spirit because the age is evil (Gal. 1: 4).

Jesus said its works are evil (John 7: 7), though the age itself counts its works good and even righteous. Paul said it is unclean and, like the leper, should not be touched (2 Cor. 6: 17). John said it is all lust and pride and of Satan (1 John 2: 16). He also said it is in Satan's power (1 John 5: 19). He dominates and controls and directs at his pleasure. Paul describes "the spirit of this age" also in 2 Tim. 3: 1-5, 12, 13; 4: 1-4. These clearly show that to have "the spirit of this age" is to have the spirit of Satan and not "the Spirit which is of God."

"The spirit of the age" is the spirit of apostasy—spiritual adultery—the church having gotten tired waiting for her Lord, married the world. She is now more interested in making "democrats" than Christians; in social reform than salvation of the soul; in a better world than a saved world. The wisdom of men she prizes more highly than the wisdom of God.

"The spirit of the age" causes Russell H. Conwell to say: "Every righteous man is a Christian." And many believe it. But Paul tells us that many preachers of righteousness, and of course considered righteous men, are the devil's preachers, "whose end shall be according to their works" (2 Cor. 11: 15). According to Conwell a Jew, a Moslem, a soldier, who live right, will get to heaven.

And according to many others, who have "the spirit of the age," "self-sacrifice is the key to heaven and God is at least as good as he [a soldier] is." And that "whosoever layeth down his life for righteousness [or for his country] is sure of eternal life."

"The spirit of the age" is the Laodicean spirit that says: "I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked" (Rev. 3: 17). A condition in which it has "enough religion to make it decent, and enough of the world to make it attractive," which makes it "adulterated Christianity and refined worldliness." But it sickens God and he spews it out of his mouth. Hence beware of "the spirit of this age," for it is not of God, nor is God in it.

"The spirit of the age" says we shall have wheatless, meatless, sweetless, heatless and almost eatless days, but says nothing about tobaccoless, drinkless, chewing-gumless, candyless, soft-drinkless, jewelryless, fashionless days. It looks upon churchgoing as a joke, the Bible a huge fable, and Christ a great man, and salvation by blood a crude doctrine of a dark age.

The spirit of this age is not the spirit of Christ, but the spirit of the "god of this world" (2 Cor. 4: 4), which is, of course, the spirit of Satan. Yet how many pride themselves in having the spirit of this age and denounce those who do not have it. How they are to be pitied! But who? Clearly those who have the spirit of this age—the Satanic spirit. Satan seeks to be worshiped (Luke 4: 6, 7; Rev. 13: 4), and many are worshiping him, being blinded (2 Cor. 4: 4). He is the leading spirit, and the spiritual leader of the world or this age. He has many ministers of righteousness in many pulpits of our land, so Jesus says (Matt. 7: 21-23). This, along with 2 Cor. 11: 13-15, shows without any doubt that Dr. Conwell is mistaken when he says that every righteous man is a Christian, for there are many righteous men from the standpoint of the world, or the spirit of the age that, in the sight of God, are those "that work iniquity," for they have the "spirit of the age." They preach "doctrines of devils" (1 Tim. 4: 1), such as "higher criticism," "Christian Science," "Russellism," "Mormonism," "Spiritualism," etc.,—a counterfeit Gospel, "another gospel which is not another."

Now the works of this age are evil (John 7: 7) and the age is wicked (Gal. 1: 4), unclean (2 Cor. 6: 17), lustful and proud (1 John 3: 15), and lying in the power or arms of the evil one or Satan (1 John 5: 19). Hence any church or individual with the spirit of this age is surely not with God nor in Christ. It is the spirit of the antediluvians, of Sodom and Gomorrah. "Remember Lot's wife."

Let us heed the warning that we may not absorb and be dominated by the spirit of the age and be condemned with the god of this age. But let us be nonconformed to this age, realizing daily that we are strangers and pilgrims, and that our citizenship is in heaven, from whence we also look for the Savior,—the Lord Jesus Christ.

Harrisburg, Pa.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Blickenderfer-McNally.—By the undersigned, at the Pittsburgh, Pa., parsonage, Bro. Malcom Blickenderfer and Mrs. Emma McNally, both of Wilkinsburgh, Pa.—C. Walter Warstler, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Booz-Burkhart.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride, May 21, 1919, Brother John E. Booz, son of E. H. Booz, and Sister Eva Grace Burkhart, daughter of Brother Joseph Burkhart, both of the Ridge congregation, Shippensburg, Pa.—Joseph V. Burkhart, R. D. 1, Shippensburg, Pa.

Box-Leslie.—By the undersigned, at his residence, June 23, 1919, Mr. Kenneth E. Box, of Rocky Ford, Colo., and Miss Mary E. Leslie, of Teoline, Texas.—A. G. Crosswhite, Rocky Ford, Colo.

Clark-Rea.—By the undersigned, at the residence of the bride's parents, June 1, 1919, Mr. Charles Clark and Miss Ruth Rea, both of Lewis County, Wash.—D. B. Eby, Olympia, Wash.

Ferguson-Sellars.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister W. H. Sellars, near Jonesboro, Tenn., June 18, 1919, Mr. Albert Thomas Ferguson and Miss Lela Maude Sellars.—S. W. Beals, Jonesboro, Tenn.

Gump-Brumbaugh.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister S. L. Brumbaugh, of Washington, D. C., June 18, 1919, Bro. Ohmer P. Gump, of Covington, Ohio, and Sister Esther Brumbaugh, of Washington, D. C.—J. M. Henry, Washington, D. C.

Harlow-Walter.—By the undersigned, June 21, 1919, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister W. F. Walter, of Crimora, Va., Brother Geo. W. Harlow and Sister Gay Ola Walter.—John S. Flory, Bridgewater, Va.

Lammedes-Nausser.—By the undersigned, June 15, 1919, at the home of the bride, Tacoma, Brother Harry Lammedes, of Wenatchee, and Sister Ethel Nausser.—D. B. Eby, Olympia, Wash.

Liehty-Sheeler.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, Waterloo, Iowa, May 18, 1919, Brother Edward W. Liehty and Sister Ora Sheeler, both of Orange Township.—W. O. Tannreuther, Waterloo, Iowa.

Lonberger-Thomas.—By the undersigned, at the Washington City church, D. C., June 4, 1919, Brother Snowden Lonberger, of Vienna, Va., and Sister Elsie Thomas, of Washington, D. C.—J. M. Henry, Washington, D. C.

McCreery-Miller.—By the undersigned, at the parsonage, June 14, 1919, Mr. Howard O. McCreery, of Oakton, Va., and Sister Mary Miller, of Vienna, Va.—J. M. Henry, Washington, D. C.

Msurer-Martin.—At the home of the writer, June 21, 1919, Bro. Floyd Maurer, of Pleasant Hill, Ohio, and Miss Goldie Martin, of Bradford, Ohio.—Hugh Miller, Gettysburg, Ohio.

Petera-Barnhart.—By the undersigned, at the parsonage, June 26, 1919, Bro. Henry J. Petera, of Dayton, Ohio, and Sister Nellie Mae Barnhart, of Wirtz, Va.—J. M. Henry, Washington, D. C.

Querry-Wisor.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride, Johnstown, Pa., June 18, 1919, Chester Querry and Hazel Wisor, both of Johnstown.—D. P. Hoover, Sallis, Pa.

Rusmisel-Miller.—At the home of Bro. W. R. Guthrie, June 16, 1919, Brother Claude A. Rusmisel, of Mt. Solon, Va., and Sister Edith M. Miller, of Ada, Ohio.—Bessie L. Guthrie, La Fayette, Ohio.

Wallar-Burt.—By the undersigned, at his home, June 25, 1919, Mr. Ralph Wallar and Miss Lola A. Burt, both of Shideler, Ind.—Geo. A. Studebaker, Muncie, Ind.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Beecher, Bro. Geo. Lincoln, son of Wm. V. and Julia A. Beecher, born near Chili, Ind., died near Twelve Mile, June 6, 1919, aged 56 years, 8 months and 15 days. In 1886 he married Sister Emma Fisher. To them five children were born. In 1890 he became a member of the Church of the Brethren and his whole life was one of service. He leaves his wife, three sons, one daughter, seven grandchildren, four brothers and two sisters. Services at the Mexico church by Eld. J. F. Appleman. Interment in Mexico cemetery.—Bertha I. Fisher, Mexico, Ind.

Buck, Bro. J. Randolph, born near Berkeley Springs, W. Va., died June 18, 1919, near Mt. Solon, Va., at which place he spent most of his life, aged 69 years, 7 months and 17 days. He was afflicted with Bright's disease for more than a year, and gradually grew worse until the end came. He united with the Church of the Brethren about seven months ago. Soon after his baptism he requested a love feast. This was granted him Jan. 6, and he seemed to enjoy it very much, although he was very weak at that time. He was anointed Jan. 23, and his condition was much improved after this for a time, but he finally had to succumb to the disease that fastened on him. The funeral services took place at the home on Friday, June 5, at 10:30, by the writer, assisted by Eld. Jacob Zimmerman and Rev. Myerly, pastor of the M. E. church at Mt. Solon. Interment in the Sangersville cemetery.—Chas. W. Zimmerman, Mt. Solon, Va.

Burgess, Pearl, born Oct. 16, 1886, died June 19, 1919. Services by the writer at the Pletcher Chapel.—C. S. Lehman, Lima, Ohio.

Conn, Sister Pearl, died in January, 1919, of tuberculosis. Services were not being permitted at that time, memorial services were held by the writer at the Cassel church June 22. She was 22 years of age and the mother of two children—a devoted Christian woman. Burial at White Oak cemetery.—Van B. Wright, Peebles, Ohio.

Delp, Ruth Elizabeth, daughter of Brother and Sister F. J. Delp, died at the Marshalltown Hospital after an operation, June 14, 1919, aged 6 years, 9 months and 10 days. She was a patient sufferer from the time she was one and one-half years old. Services by the pastor, assisted by Eld. J. H. Cahcrine, Texi, Iss. 11: 6. Burial in the Ivester cemetery.—D. H. Keller, Grundy Center, Iowa.

Gordon, Sister Lucinda, daughter of Bro. Gillian and Sister Carolina Shafer, born in Indiana County, Pa., died in the Cambridge Hospital, Md., June 11, 1919, aged 49 years, 6 months and 17 days. She was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for many years. She is survived by her husband, Lewis Gordon, two daughters, Esther, mother, four brothers and three sisters. Services in the Denton church by brethren Levi K. Ziegler and J. W. Krabill. Interment in Denton cemetery.—Mrs. C. A. Harris, Denton, Md.

Gaughsnour, Caroline, nee Shoemacher, born in Virginia, died near Sinking Spring, Ohio, June 19, 1919, aged 94 years, 5 months and 29 days. She was the mother of two daughters. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren at Stray Creek Valley. Services by the writar at the Grove cemetery. Interment at the same place.—Van B. Wright, Peebles, Ohio.

Johnson, Sister Alice E., nee Figgins, born in Fayette County, Ohio, died at her home near Leesburg, Ohio, May 24, 1919, aged 59 years, 10 months and 1 day. Death was due to heart trouble. In 1882 she married Frank Johnson, who survives. In early life she united with the Church of the Brethren and has been a faithful member. Services at White Oak, near Buena Vista. Interment in cemetery near by.—Edith Riley, Highland, Ohio.

Koontz, Bro. Wm. H., of Hooversville, Pa., died within the bounds of the Quemahoning congregation, Pa., June 20, 1919, aged 53 years, 9 months and 19 days. He married Annie B. Zimmerman in 1890. He united with the church two years later. He served faithfully as deacon for many years and was also treasurer and Sunday-school superintendent. He leaves his wife and one sister. Services by the writer in the Maple Spring church. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.—P. J. Blough, Johnstown, Pa.

Lewis, Rosela Harman, born near Mentone, Ind., died at her home in Bourbon, Ind., June 12, 1919, aged 57 years, 6 months and 6 days. In 1877 she married Wm. Alexander, who died in 1908. Three years later she married James Lewis, who survives with seven children. She joined the Church of the Brethren at an early age and lived faithful. Services at Mentone by Bro. Floyd E. Leeper.—Ella Leeper, Bourbon, Ind.

Miller, Bro. John Oliver, eldest son of Eld. Samuel M. and Anna Miller, died at his home in Waterloo, Iowa, May 22, 1919, aged 59 years, 11 months and 13 days. •Dec. 24, 1893, at Falls City, Nebr., he was united in marriage with Sister Maggie A. Peck, of the latter place. To this union was born one daughter. Besides the wife and daughter he is also survived by three brothers and three sisters. Early in life he decided upon music as his chosen profession. In this locality he was among the pioneers in that field of work. In attending to his labors, he often exposed himself to the severest rigors of the climate. Rain or shine, heat or cold, summer or winter, he would invariably meet his students at the appointed time. This undue exposure may possibly be responsible for his early passing. Bro. Miller was a man of strong convictions of right. He was as true as steel, big-hearted, generous, and willing to be of service and help to his fellow-men. Services by the writer in the Waterloo City church. Burial in the Orange Township cemetery.—A. P. Blough, 1315 Grant Avenue, Waterloo, Iowa.

Ridenour, Wm. Martin, son of Jacob and Mary Ridenour, died at his home at Clifton Mills, W. Va., of Bright's disease, June 25, 1919, aged 75 years, 1 month and 18 days. He married Mary A. Shannon in 1869. To this union were born three sons and two daughters, one of whom died a number of years ago. His wife died in 1911. He was a veteran of the Civil War. He was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for many years. Services by the writer at the Union church at Clifton Mills. Burial in the family lot on the Haraden farm.—Jeremiah Thomas, Brucetón Mills, W. Va.

Rowland, Ezra, died near Hagerstown, Md., of paralysis, May 6, 1919, aged 69 years, 7 months and 18 days. He leaves his wife and one son. Services in the Longeneadow church by Eld. J. O. Buterbaugh and Bro. H. R. Rowland. Interment in adjoining cemetery.—K. Mae Rowland, Hagerstown, Md.

Royer, Sister Mary, nee Weaver, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah Weaver, died at the home of her daughter, in the city of Lebanon, June 17, 1919, aged 68 years and 3 days. Short services at the house. Further services and interment at the Union meetinghouse. Text, Psa. 73: 24. Services by Elders John Herr, A. B. Brubacher and E. M. Wenger.—Nathan Martin, 1031 Poplar Street, Lebanon, Pa.

Spitler, Samuel, son of David and Hannah Spitler, born in Miami County, Ind., died at his home in Flora, Ind., June 24, 1919, aged 72 years and 9 months. In 1870 he married Sarah A. Eikenberry. To this union were born three children. He was a member of the church for many years. He leaves his wife, two children, six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Services at the church by Bro. I. E. Berry. Interment in the Moss cemetery.—Mattie Welty, Flora, Ind.

Weatherbolt, Peter, born in Green County, Pa., died near Plymouth, Ind., June 7, 1919, aged 93 years, 3 months and 20 days. In 1847 he married Mary Trexler, who died in 1866. To this union were born ten children. Several years later he married Mary Ervin, who died in 1880. To this union were born four children. His third wife was Nancy Stewart, who died in 1907. He was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren. Services at the Yellow River church by Bro. Floyd E. Leeper. Interment in adjoining cemetery.—Ella Leeper, Bourbon, Ind.

Wisecup, Oma O., died Jan. 21, 1919. Brief services at the home. Memorial services May 25 at the Marble Furnace church by the writer.—Van B. Wright, Peebles, Ohio.

Wran, James Albert, son of William and Mary, born in Kentucky Sept. 27, 1845. He was united in marriage with Mary J. Martin, of Indiana, Aug. 21, 1867. To this union eight children were born. Four preceded him in death. He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters. He died in Muscatine, Iowa, June 26, 1919, following a lingering illness of three months. Heart disease and dropsy caused his death. He was baptised into the fellowship of the Church of the Brethren by Eld. S. S. Mohler, at Farrenberg, Mo., thirty-two years ago. Services by Eld. Leander Smith, in the Church of the Brethren. Text, Job 5: 26. Burial was made in the Greenwood cemetery.—Mary Smith, 1147 Lucas Street, Muscatine, Iowa.

Helpful Books for Ministers

Expositor's Dictionary of Texts
Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, M. A., LL. D.

To the busy minister, the one who dislikes the printed sermons of others, but who desires to possess something that he can use weekly, without its becoming a crutch, something that will suggest texts for sermons, supply key thoughts, and tap the wellspring of his own mind, these volumes will be found useful.

They are not composed of sermons written out in detail as are many works of this kind, neither are they scriptural texts alone, but the cream from many authors on many subjects. The suggestions can be easily followed and are capable of prompting thought even when the mind is languid.

Printed from large, clear type, on excellent paper and bound in reinforced library style in durable red buckram. In two large volumes of over 1,000 pages each.

Price, per set, Postpaid, $12.50

Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons of Sermons
Jabez Burns, D. D.

Helpful suggestions on sermons for all occasions. Nearly 100 outlines dealing with types and metaphors. A splendid book for those who need help in sermon preparation.

Price, postpaid, $3.25

Manual for Funeral Occasions
E. J. Meachem

The most complete funeral service equipment published. The manual is a handsome volume of 260 pages, containing Scripture selections, poetical quotations, sermon outlines by fifty authors, committal services, Scripture benediction, etc., including 78 pages of choice music from Hymns of Hope. Bound in flexible morocco.

Price, postpaid, $1.25

Expositor's Treasury of Children's Sermons
Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, M. A., LL. D.

A children's Bible Commentary of nearly eight hundred pages. Each sermon is headed according to subject, then follows the text and then the discussion—an easy solution of the minister's most difficult problem. The Treasury is a splendid companion to the Expository's Dictionary of Texts.

Suggests texts for children's sermons and supplies key thoughts and illustrations. They are not sermons written out in detail nor are they merely texts, but the cream from many authors on numerous subjects especially interesting to children.

Price, postpaid, $5.25

Poems of Pep and Point for Public Speakers
Will H. Brown

A practical and pointed collection of about 600 poems from the pens of poets who have caught the spirit of the times. Arranged in alphabetical order under ninety-six subjects, thus enabling the speaker to find on short notice the tersest expressions of any particular thought he may wish to illustrate.

Price, postpaid, $1.50

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

They Stand for the Purity of Character and Home.

THE SELF AND SEX SERIES
BOOKS FOR THE MASSES

Now in Their Third Million Edition. Revised Up-to-Date. Free from Medical Terms

People are bound to know of the functions of their own bodies and these books give this information properly and cleanly. They are recommended by plain people as well as by the eminent, such as

Edward W. Bok	Chas. M. Sheldon, D. D.
Bishop Vincent	Mrs. Alden (Pansy)
Rev. F. B. Meyer	Mrs. F. S. Bolton
Josiah Strong, D. D.	Mrs. Wright Sewall
Francis E. Clark, D. D.	Mrs. M. L. Dickinson
Bishop McVickar	Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens
President Faunce	Margaret E. Sangster

TITLES OF THE BOOKS

What a Young Boy Ought to Know.
What a Young Man Ought to Know.
What a Young Husband Ought to Know.
What a Man of 45 Ought to Know.
What a Young Girl Ought to Know.
What a Young Woman Ought to Know.
What a Young Wife Ought to Know.
What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know.
Price each, $1.20 postpaid

Self and Sex Series $1.20 Each

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, ELGIN, ILL.

A DEVOTIONAL COMMENTARY
Complete in Seven Volumes

Through the Bible Day by Day
Rev. F. B. Meyer's Comments on the Bible, Book by Book

There are a good many people who do not have the time to make a thorough study of the Bible. Therefore, it was indeed a happy thought when it occurred to F. B. Meyer to prepare a series of brief studies that make it possible to cover the whole Bible in a connected aod intelligible way at the daily devotional hour. These studies will commend themselves to many Bible readers—not simply because of the author, F. B. Meyer, but also because of the possibilities connected with the series. It is now possible to go through the Bible day by day with such a Bible student as F. B. Meyer as a guide.—Gospel Messenger.

Vol. 1. Genesis to Joshua, 218 pages.
Vol. 2. Judges to 2 Chronicles, 249 pages.
Vol. 3. Job to Ecclesiastes, 201 pages.
Vol. 4. Ezra to Malachi, 225 pages.
Vol. 5., The Gospels, 235 pages.
Vol. 6. Acts to Ephasians, 190 pages.
Vol. 7. Philippians to Revelation, 206 pages.

Each Volume has Choice Bible Pictures by Modern Artists.

Uniformly Bound in Dark Blue Cloth; Flexible; Titles in Gold on Side and Back. Per Volume, 58c, Postpaid.

Set of Seven Volumes in a Neat Box

Postpaid, $3.80

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Forward Movement Periodical Goals for 1919

5,000 New Subscriptions to The Gospel Messenger.
(The Gospel Messenger, published weekly at $2.00 per year.)

7,500 New Subscriptions to Our Young People.
(Subscription rates: Per copy, per year, 75c; five or more copies to one address, per quarter, 12½ cents per copy.)

5,000 New Subscriptions to the Missionary Visitor.
(Published monthly. Illustrated. Subscription rates: 50c per year.)

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, R. E. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor — EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor
J. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as Second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 445)

KANSAS

East Wichita church met in regular business session June 25. Bro. M. J. Mishler, of Newton, Kans., was elected elder to fill the unexpired term of Bro. Frantz, who has been our pastor and elder for three years and is now leaving to take charge of a church in California. We have secured Brother and Sister Clarence Eshelman, students of McPherson College, for the summer. We are very anxious to locate a pastor permanently. Four of our Sunday-school scholars have been baptized since our last report.—Grace Schul, Wichita, Kans., June 26.

MARYLAND

Hagerstown.—An interesting Becentennial program was given in the Hagerstown church, beginning Sunday, June 15, and continuing until Sunday, June 22. Bro. H. C. Early could not be with us, on account of sickness in his family, and Bro. Galen B. Royer kindly substituted for him. All topics were splendidly treated, most instructive and much enjoyed by all who heard them.—Kathryn Lindsay, Hagerstown, Md., June 28.

White Rock.—Bro. Calvin Wolf, of Sandy Creek, W. Va., began a series of meetings June 14, preaching in all eleven sermons. Twelve confessed Christ, six of whom were baptized. The heat of attention was given throughout the meetings.—E. F. Sisler, Friendsville, Md., July 1.

MICHIGAN

Black River church met in council June 28, with Eld. J. M. Smith presiding. We had a good meeting. Bro. Smith preached a fine sermon, which we appreciated very much.—Amanda Wertenberger, South Haven, Mich., June 28.

Harlan church met in council June 28, with Eld. J. Edson Ulery presiding. We reorganized the Sunday-school, with Bro. Chas. Miller, superintendent. Bro. Chas. Miller was chosen delegate to District Meeting, with Sister Frances Taylor alternate. June 22 the children rendered a very interesting program. Bro. Roy Miller and family were with us and Sister Miller gave a very fine talk to the children.—Maud Wilburn, Copemish, Mich., July 1.

Marilla congregation met in council June 28, with Eld. J. Edson Ulery moderator. One letter of membership was granted. We decided to have our series of meetings in the near future, and our love feast is set for Oct. 4, at 6 P. M. Sister Anna Williams is our delegate to District Meeting, with Bro. H. G. Gressenkell, alternate. Officers were elected for the year, with Bro. Chas. Funderburg, Sunday-school superintendent.—Beatrice Shideler, Marilla, Mich., June 30.

MINNESOTA

Bethel.—We have been very much pleased to have with us Bro. O. E. Stern, from Bethany Bible School, and Bro. Mattox, from Degraff. They are hoping to find a place to locate where they can do church work and also have a good home. June 22 Bro. Stern gave us an interesting sermon on "The Kind of Character God Wants." We were encouraged in our work at Hines.—Florence Miller, Hines, Minn., June 30.

MISSOURI

Shoal Creek.—Brethren H. A. Clayhaugh and John Hershey, from the Bethany Bible School, Chicago, were with us June 19 and 20. They gave illustrated lectures on the mission work in Chicago, which gave us an insight into the work that is being done there.—Virgie Argabright, Fairview, Mo., July 1.

NORTH DAKOTA

Bethany.—June 7 Bro. D. M. Sherb began a week's series of meetings. All conditions were favorable and the attendance and interest were fine. One confessed Christ. We closed with a very enjoyable love feast, at which four-point communed. We have only two families of members living near the church, but are hoping that other members will move in and help us. We greatly appreciate all the help we receive from other churches.—Lilly Stretzel, Mylo, N. Dak., June 30.

James River.—June 15, 16 and 17 Bro. Virgil Finnell gave lectures with stereopticon views which were much appreciated and we hope will be an incentive to more work in the Sunday-school. June 18 Bro. M. E. Hahn, of Bethany Bible School, began a series of meetings, which closed June 29. We held our love feast June 28, with Bro. Hahn officiating, assisted by Bro. Kreps. Bro. Hahn's work was much appreciated and while there were no accessions, we believe much good was done.—Mrs. J. W. Schlotman, Carrington, N. Dak., June 30.

OHIO

Ashland (Dickey).—Our series of meetings, conducted by Bro. D. R. McFadden, of Smithville, closed with a love feast June 22. Five were baptized and one reclaimed. Sister Zuma Heestand had charge of the singing. Bro. McFadden and our pastor, Eld. W. L. Deseheng, made more than seventy calls during the week, and did much personal work. Sunday evening, June 29, Children's Day was observed. The children did splendid work under the leadership of Sister Mary Sample, to whom much of the success of the evening is due.—Esther Zimmerman, Ashland, Ohio, July 1.

Bellefontaine church enjoyed a very spiritual love feast June 29. Bro. H. Z. Smith, from the Logan church, Bro. John I. Kaylor, lately returned from India, and Eld. C. S. Lehman, of Lima, were present,—the latter officiating. His address on "Christian Education," on Sunday morning, was much appreciated. At our recent council one was reclaimed. Plans are being made for an India Day June 13. Sister Nora Berkebile will talk to the children in the morning and Bro. John I. Kaylor will speak in the evening.—Lula R. Tinkle, Bellefontaine, Ohio, July 2.

East Nimishillen.—June 15 Bro. O. E. Messamer, of Chicago, began a two weeks' series of meetings at the Brick church. The time of year being a busy one, the attendance was not what we might have desired, but we feel that some good was done. Children's Day exercises were held Sunday evening, June 29, conducted by the Junior and Primary Departments. They rendered an excellent program and, judging from the spirit manifested by the children, the church of the future will have no dearth of workers.—A. J. Carper, Middlebranch, Ohio, July 1.

Harris Creek church met in council June 26, with Eld. Chas. Flory in charge. Elders Hugh Miller and John Eikenberry were also with us. Brethren Harley Hoover, Harmon Miller and John Detrick were elected deacons. Bro. Hoover and his wife were installed the same evening. A committee of arrangements was appointed for the Midsummer Assembly, which will be held here August 19, 20 and 21. One of our Sunday-school boys was baptized last Sunday.—D. G. Berkebile, Bradford, Ohio, July 1.

Prices Creek church met in members' meeting June 14, a Two letters were received and three were granted. June 22 Brother and Sister J. Homer Bright were with us. Their talks were very much appreciated. We expect to have an all-day Missionary and Sunday-school Meeting on Sunday, July 6.—Alma Miller, Eldorado, Ohio, June 27.

OREGON

Portland church met in council June 26. The principal business of the meeting was the election of Sunday-school officers and making arrangements for the coming District Meeting. Eld. Carl and family are leaving soon for Myrtle Point, where they will hold a series of meetings during July.—Grace W. Hewitt, Portland, Oregon, July 1.

PENNSYLVANIA

Brothers Valley.—June 14 Bro. Daniel K. Clapper, of Meyersdale, began a series of meetings at the Pike house. For the most part the weather was fine, and large audiences attended. Bro. Clapper gave us very inspiring sermons. Thirteen confessed Christ and one was reclaimed. Many visitors were present. Brethren Yodcr and Mishler, from Kansas, were regular attendants. Brother and Sister Omer B. Maphis were also with us at a few sessions. They are from Bethany Bible School, of Chicago, and are preparing for the foreign field. Bro. Maphis preached the preparatory sermon. The meeting closed with a love feast, which was largely attended. We will have our Sunday-school Convention at the Pike house on the afternoon and evening of July 13. The Sunday-school is moving along very nicely and doing splendid work.—B. S. Dickey, Berlin, Pa., June 30.

Connellsville Mission observed Children's Day June 22. The children did very well. Remarks were made by our superintendent, Bro. P. V. Lepley, by our pastor, Bro. Irvin Fletcher, and also by Bro. Hamilton. The District Sunday-school Convention will be held at the Mission the last of July or first of August. Our pastor and wife attended the Conference at Winona Lake.—Anna Cogan, Dawson, Pa., June 26.

Moxham church met in council June 25, with Eld. McClyde Horst presiding. The church decided to hold her semiannual communion on the third Sunday of May and October of each year. The writer was elected "Messenger" correspondent, to fill the unexpired term of Sister J. C. Flora. Brother and Sister Flora have recently moved from Moxham to assume the pastoral work of the West Charleston congregation of Southern Ohio. Bro. Flora had been pastor of the Moxham church for the past two years, being the first resident pastor. During this time they have directed the organization of the different departments of the church work, so that they are in a condition to accomplish much in the advancement of the Kingdom. Bro. D. P. Hoover, of Salix, assumed charge of the work the middle of May. Since our last report one has been received into the church. May 18 members of the Mission Band of Juniata College rendered a splendid program, which was enjoyed by all present. June 15, under the direction of the Primary superintendent, Sister Irvin Fetrow, and her assistants, a very interesting Children's Service was given. Last Sunday evening, Bro. D. P. Hoover, delegate to Annual Conference, gave a very encouraging report of the meeting. At our last business meeting, two letters were received.—Mrs. D. P. Hoover, Salix, Pa., June 26.

Philadelphia (First Church).—We observed Children's Day June 8. The program was in charge of the children. At the close of the service Bro. Percy Blough gave a short talk, which was very much appreciated by all. Beginning with this date, and continuing through the summer months, our Sunday-school is held each Sunday morning at 9 o'clock; preaching services at 11. In the evening Dr. O. H. Yereman preached to an appreciative audience.—Mrs. Wm. H. B. Schnell, Philadelphia, Pa., June 26.

Pleasant Hill church met in council June 21, with Eld. David B. Hohf presiding. We decided to hold our love feast and communeal Saturday in May and October, at 4 P. M. June 29 we had our Children's Day exercises. Bro. H. K. Ober, of Elizabethtown, preached for us in the morning, and in the afternoon addressed the Sunday-school.—Ruth A. Miller, Quarryville, Pa., June 30.

Sipesville.—A two weeks' series of meetings, conducted by the pastor, closed June 29, with a love feast. Twenty applicants were received and four reclaimed at the examination service on Sunday morning. The love feast, at which about 250 communed, was held in the evening, with Bro. N. H. Blough officiating. The church met in council June 14, with Bro. Zimmerman presiding. A committee was appointed to make provisions for the new cemetery, which is to be on the old church ground. Delegates from this church were invited to convene with those from Casebeer and Geiger, to plan a program for a community meeting of the three churches. June 1 the Fifth Annual Convention of the Sunday-schools of the Quemahoning congregation was held at the Sipesville church. There was a splendid audience. We enjoyed especially a talk by Sister P. J. Blough. The sermon in the morning was delivered by Eld. P. J. Blough.—Beatrice C. Edmiston, Acosta, Pa., June 30.

VIRGINIA

Peters Creek church enjoyed a visit from Bro. H. C. Early June 22. He was in the community on business for the General Mission Board, and favored us with an excellent sermon on the subject of "Difficulties." Bro. Early closed a series of meetings at the above-named place about the middle of May, and if our report is correct that what some were very near the Kingdom. Sunday, at the close of the service, two of these came forward.—Mildred Naff, Roanoke, Va., June 25.

Roanoke.—Since our last report we have held two series of meetings, each of two weeks' duration. In April Bro. H. B. Brallier was secured to conduct the meeting at the Tinker Creek Mission, four members being added to the church by baptism. At the Southeast Mission, Bro. B. B. Garber had charge of the services. Four members were received into the church. June 22 the communion examination services were taken care of by the pastor. Our love feast was held in the evening. Brethren D. C. Naff and H. C. Early were present, the latter giving two short talks, which were very helpful. We were very glad for the presence of these brethren, and their help in the services.—Mrs. John H. Shickel, Roanoke, Va., June 26.

Sangerville church met in council June 4, with Eld. M. G. Sanger presiding. Two letter of membership were received and two were granted. It was decided to install a furnace in the Sangerville house. The Sangerville and Branch houses have just been painted. The Emanuel house is also to be painted and remodeled. Our collection for Relief and Reconstruction amounted to $1,075.51. May 11 Bro. J. W. Hess began a series of meetings at the Sangerville house, preaching nineteen sermons. The attendance was very good and we feel that the church has been strengthened. One adult and eleven boys and girls from the Sunday-school were received by baptism.—Meda G. Argabright, Bridgewater, Va., July 1.

WEST VIRGINIA

Glads Union.—June 7 Eld. Jeremiah Thomas began a series of meetings, preaching, in all, nineteen sermons. Four were baptized in this church and one from the Accident congregation, Md. We feel very much strengthened. Bro. Thomas preached excellent sermons and the attendance was good.—Frank Guthrie, Hazelton, W. Va., June 30.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

July 22-25, District of Texas and Louisiana, at Nocona, Texas.

August 18-21, District of Oregon, at Portland.

August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.

LOVE FEASTS

Canada

July 26, Bow Valley.

Idaho

July 12, 8 pm, Winchester.

Indiana

August 24, Ladoga.
August 30, New Salem.

Iowa

August 29, Libertyville.

Missouri

August 23, 7 pm, Prairie View.

North Dakota

July 12, Pleasant Hill.
July 26, 7 pm, Kenmare.

Virginia

August 23, Lebanon.

West Virginia

August 30, Maple Spring.

What Is My Share

In the Forward Movement of the Church?

It is time we are all beginning to think seriously on this question if we are to accomplish the ends we have in view.

EVERY YOUNG PERSON

must secure a practical and complete education if he or she is to be of greatest service to God and the world. LET US HELP YOU secure this education.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Are You Preparing to Teach?

Then consider Manchester College Normal School. Manchester is a recognized standard college. Our Two and Four Year Normal courses lead to provisional and life certificates without examination, both in Indiana and Ohio. Full credit is being received in other States. Some of the advantages here: A large and able faculty. Seventeen teachers will devote all of their time to college and normal courses. A model teacher training school is conducted on the college grounds. Here is an excellent literary, social, moral and religious environment. Expenses very moderate, even in times of high prices. For catalogue and full information, address

MANCHESTER COLLEGE,
North Manchester, Indiana.

BITTER GRIEF

Will be your portion after it is too late to change things. It is for others now who thought "some other school will do," and whose children are now lost.

PATRONIZE YOUR OWN CHURCH SCHOOL

Then you make no mistake.

McPHERSON COLLEGE

Is a standard Christian college, conducted by your own church, for your children. Fall semester opens Sept. 15, 1919.

McPHERSON, KANSAS

Remember:—You have only one chance in all your lifetime to start your children out right. That is this year. Write today for reservation of rooms.

(Watch this space next week.)

The Full Report of Annual Meeting

Practically everyone who attended the Bicentennial Conference at Winona Lake says that it was the greatest Conference in the history of the church.

A Full Report is being prepared. This will contain the addresses delivered at the missionary meeting, Publishing House Meeting, as well as all speeches made during the business session, beginning Tuesday morning. It also contains all queries and answers.

If you want to keep in close touch with the church and what she is doing at the Conference, order the Full Report.

Price the same as before, 35c per copy, postpaid.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Elgin, Ill.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

"Till we all attain unto . . . the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Eph. 4: 14.

Vol. 68 | Elgin, Ill., July 19, 1919 | No. 29

In This Number

Editorial—

Awakening Dormant Appetites, ...449
A Case of "Now or Never," 449
Is the Holy Spirit a Fiction or a Fact? 449
Conviction or Prejudice? 449
The Quiet Hour, ...455
Among the Churches, ...456
Around the World, ...457

Contributors' Forum—

The Test of Courage (Poem), ...450
Four Views of Faith.—IV. By H. H. Helman, ...450
Feeding the Little Flock. By J. H. Moore, ...450
The Orphanage Problem. By J. E. Miller, ...450
Realities and Illusions. By J. Harman Stover, ...451
The Church Library.—Part Two. By O. B. Maphis, ...452
The Christian Attitude Toward the Erring Disciple. By J. S. Sherfy, ...452
Digging Gold for Twenty Years. By Ira J. Lapp, ...453

The Round Table—

How to Be Happy. By Zack Neher, ...454
Salvation. By W. H. Johnson, ...454
Religion and Life. By Norman W. Twiddy, ...454
The Cross (Poem), ...454
Jesus the Gentleman. By Roy Temple House, ...454
Plain Words. By Leander Smith, ...454
"To Whom Much Is Given." By Ira H. Frantz, ...455
The Soul Prosperity of Gaius. By Ralph G. Rarick, ...455

Home and Family—

The Song I Love to Sing (Poem). By Rhetta O'Rourke, ...458
Concerning Youth and Age. By Olive A. Smith, ...458
Love That Counts. By Nettie C. Weyhright, ...458
Credulity of Children. By Ezra Flory, ...459

...EDITORIAL...

Awakening Dormant Appetites

WANTS increase with increasing knowledge. People who do not know the advantages of telephones, automobiles and kitchen cabinets are not conscious of any need of them. A visit to a friend's modernly-equipped new home has stirred up new desires in many a housewife. And like things have happened to farmers, business men and all sorts of human folks.

Were it better, then, to stay shut up in your own little world and learn nothing new, so you can keep contented? Surely so, if care-freeness be the summum bonum of existence. In that case, the denser the ignorance the better. And men made of wax or wood would be the happiest ones in all the world.

Is this why we Christians grow so little? Is it because our slothful souls enjoy so well the lazy contentment of spiritual ignorance, that they have no hunger for higher things? We do not care to know too much of God's truth lest the new knowledge make us want something!

They that hunger and thirst after righteousness are filled. So are they that do not hunger. But there's a big difference in the filling.

Why disturb a hog sleeping peacefully in his wallow? No good reason can be given. Only make sure he is a hog. Then let him lie.

But human spirits made after the similitude of God! Must they be left to "grovel here below, fond of these trifling toys," for want of knowledge of their own capacities for diviner joys?

A Case of "Now or Never"

WE give hearty endorsement to the following noble words of Dr. W. H. P. Faunce and commend them to the reader's careful study, especially the last sentence:

"During the war it was gravely proposed to declare a moratorium of Christian ethics until happier times should return. I for one have no use for a religion which can be applied only in days of sunshine and has no application in time of storm. I can not proclaim a moral law which applies to two boys fighting in the street and has no reference to two nations struggling in the fields of France or meeting in conference at Versailles. Either the teaching of Jesus applies now and here or it applies nowhere and never."

Is the Holy Spirit a Fiction or a Fact?

THE human mind is too small to take in very much at once, so when it gets to thinking hard about a certain thing, that thing soon occupies its full capacity. Perhaps this is why practical unbelief in the spiritual presence of Jesus Christ with his church through the Holy Spirit in the hearts of Christians seems to me just now our greatest hindrance to church progress. I have been thinking about this lately. Let me tell you how it came about.

One factor was a sermon to which I listened with much interest and profit. Another—the one that got me started—was a little book which a brother sent me. I read this book with interest and profit also, as it seems to me, though the sender, I fear, may feel disappointed in his effort. This good brother evidently thinks I might make a fairly satisfactory editor if he could only get me straightened out on certain points. He has noticed that I seem to be considerably taken up with "the Kingdom idea," so when he found this little book, which shows what a great delusion this "idea" is, why, it was just the thing I needed.

The illuminating manner in which this delusion of "the Kingdom idea" is dispelled will appear from a few characteristic sentences:

"The church may indeed become so intent on the false but fascinating passion of saving the world that she will lose the passion for seeking the Lord."

"The church was never set to save the world. The church was never commissioned to bring in a catholic peace. The church was only to call out of the nations a people for his name. 'The church was only to preach the Gospel as a witness."

"The church was never commissioned to save the world nor to establish the Kingdom."

"The basic law principles of Christ's Kingdom are set forth in the Sermon on the Mount. Man's effort to establish the Kingdom apart from Christ is altogether too premature."

"The Kingdom idea is seeking to set up and to enforce the laws of the Kingdom before the coming of the King."

"The Kingdom of Christ will be established only by the forthcoming of the King. It will be set up only by the unsheathing of the divine sword."

In citing these remarkable statements I have no intention of discussing all the important issues which they raise. That "false but fascinating passion of saving the world," the implications of that "only" in "the church was only to preach the Gospel as a witness," and the final resort to miraculous militarism which is said to be the only means of setting up the Kingdom of Christ—these are very inviting themes indeed. But I pass them by to speak of just one point—the one referred to in the italicised words of my first paragraph. Will you please read those words again?

I am of a rather quiet temperament, my friends say, not easily excited, but I confess to a feeling bordering on amazement, if not alarm, as I am made to realize how little the doctrine of the Holy Spirit means to many Christians. Oh, we are careful enough about it in our doctrinal statements, but what does that amount to if in practice we deny it? Over and over again the note is sounded in this little book—and you can see it in the quoted sentences—that the present efforts of Christians in behalf of world betterment are necessarily only human efforts and hence are futile. The church can make no headway in building up the Kingdom, it is said, before Christ comes again. How—it is asked with great seriousness—how could you have a Kingdom without a King?

How—I should like to ask with equal seriousness—how could any Christian write or talk like that if he had assimilated the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth chapters of John, or even the simple charge and assurance of Jesus given in his Great Commission? Does Jesus' "I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" mean anything, or not? Why should we make it mean less than what he himself had explained it to mean in his farewell discourse on the night before his crucifixion?

If this matter is of any interest to you, reader, will you not please read that discourse once more, noting very carefully all that Jesus said about his going away and about what that other Helper would do for his disciples? He himself was going away soon and yet he was not going. In respect to his bodily presence he was going, but in spirit he would come to them in the person of another Helper who would be to them all that he had been, and more. That is the one big fact which illuminates this whole subject. The going away of Jesus was to be no hindrance to the cause. That other Helper would fully take his place, would more than take the place of his physical presence. "Greater works" could be accomplished because he was going to his Father.

How Christians can simply ignore these solemn assurances of our Lord, given in the most solemn moment of his earthly career—this is what concerns me so just now. Are we so carnally minded that spiritual realities are to us no realities at all? If practical unbelief—this is what it amounts to—if practical unbelief in the doctrine of the Spirit, as taught by Jesus himself, were to become characteristic of us, the outlook would indeed be gloomy. All the problems, difficulties and unfavorable conditions in the general world situation are as nothing in comparison with this.

Is the Great Commission nothing but a huge joke? Can the church accomplish anything by working at it? Not if she has no faith. Not if she spends her time looking at the walled cities and the giants. Not if she sits down on the job and wastes her energies in calculating how useless it is to undertake it. Not if she spits in the face of her Lord and makes fun of his "Go . . . I am with you" and sneers back at him: "I don't believe it; hurry up and do it yourself."

"Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith Jehovah of hosts."

Conviction or Prejudice?

The Continent, one of our most valued contemporaries, undertakes to tell how to distinguish a genuine conviction from mere prejudice. A number of splendid hints are given. Here is one: Prejudice hates facts where conviction loves them.

Something to think about, isn't it? A disposition "not to let any new information unsettle what one has found it comfortable to believe hitherto" is something to be wary of. Any tendency of that kind should be interpreted as a bright red signal to be on the lookout for prejudice.

Another of this writer's "brand-marks" is this: Prejudice is selfish where conviction is expansive and generous.

If a man never finds his convictions leading him in a direction contrary to his self-interest, it is reasonable to infer that he has no convictions worthy of the name. "The conscience which can't move its possessor off his own premises is obviously a weak and shoddy piece of machinery." A man with real convictions must have some other force than his own advantage to push him forward to his duty.

All of which is very obvious, but somehow the obvious things are the ones we so often fail to see.

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

The Test of Courage

Selected by Agnes M. Geib, Manheim, Pa.

To the battle's front do we need to go
For the place where our courage is tried?
There's a bigger fight just to keep right,
And for this men have fought and died.

In the quiet walks of the lowliest life
Where the eyes of the world may not see,
Many a battle is fought and a victory wrought
That's as great as a triumph can be.

Can you dare to be kind when wounded sore,
When deceived by those you thought true?
Can you dare to be sweet when the sting of defeat
Is piercing you through and through?

Can you dare to be faithful in hidden things
Which from praise or from blame may be free?
Can you dare put your will and an artist's skill
In your work, howe'er humble it be?

Can you dare to smile when vexed and worn
When everything fails that you trust?
Can you dare to keep pure and defy the allure
Of the graft and the greed and the lust?

'Tis a courageous band that is seeking recruits,
'Tis an army with God in the van,
And the everyday life gives the biggest of strife
And a test of the best that's in man.

—Willis E. Johnson.

Four Views of Faith

BY H. H. HELMAN

IV. Faith and Action

Paul and James had no controversy over faith. Paul looks at faith as something that might justify a man before God. James looks upon it as an inward state that must be evidenced to men by its fruition, namely, works. There is no danger, I think, in being just as insistent as James, that there is only one way to prove to men the presence of faith, and that by works. There is no danger, I think, in insisting that works do not save a man, as Paul declares, for salvation is yet a free gift. How a man can claim the presence of redemptive power and the renewed life, and not show it by works, is a mystery to me. The proposition of this article is this: The only real faith is that which issues in fruition—works.

Hebrews 11: 1 here may bother us again. Faith "gives substance to" (assurance), things hoped for only when it leads us into actual possession of those things. Analyze a person's hopes and what do you find them to consist of? These: Life, peace, joy, satisfaction and wholesome activity. Most assuredly does faith bring these into our possession. The highest satisfaction comes out of our activities. A Christian satisfied to be, but not willing to do, is in danger. Our greatest hope, here and hereafter, is to be active for the Lord.

Then, too, faith is the conviction, the test, the proving of things not seen. Because of their vision of things not seen by the common mind, Paul gives us many illustrations, in this eleventh chapter of Hebrews, of men whose faith became conviction. But for this, Noah would never have prepared an ark to the saving of his house, nor would Abraham ever have sojourned in the land of promise as in a land not his own. Abraham's conviction was of a city whose Builder and Maker is God. Remember, these did not receive the promises, but having seen them afar off, were so convinced that they embraced them. The acting, as though all these things were true, constituted the faith of these men.

Move out into a strong anticipation of the realization of the promises of God, and they become a reality to you. Moreover, the spiritual vision of the man, strong in character and service, is cleared, is strong, and he can see things the weaker in faith can not visualize. His faith does this. When we become strong in faith, things not seen come in evidence—things that were hidden from our view when we idly sit, waiting for belief, or confidence or trust to open our eyes. What our beloved Moody saw, he saw because of his faith, a wonderfully active faith. If our hopes and our visions do not inspire us to activity in and for the Kingdom, they are not the kind that Paul speaks of in that great lesson on faith.

To have faith is to be active. To be saved is to serve. To love is to administer also. To trust is to obey. All is resolved into this one thing: Activity or works. Until the church learns this lesson, as a body and as members individually, we will not realize our hopes or see the visions. The Forward Movement will become a dead issue if our faith does not reach fruition. It was conceived in active faith, it will be realized only by the same.

To claim faith and not practice works, is paradoxical. If a world of sin lies about us and one of you say: "I see the terrors of sin, I know the lost condition of men, Jesus died for them," and notwithstanding ye do not those things necessary to carry the Gospel to them, what doth it profit? The fact that God's means of saving humanity presupposes the necessity of faith—that is action that prompts, yea, that is missionary effort.

We do not care for faith to remove mountains. We do want faith to move sinners to repentance, and Christians to greater love and activity. Vitalized faith and the promised dynamics of Acts 1: 8 will secure for us in two years the desired results of a five-year program. We are weak as our faith is weak. The larger sphere of faith is in doing things—things that build up the Kingdom. The heroes of faith, in Hebrews 11, contributed to this. The heroes of faith today are those who do the same. How many shall we have in the Church of the Brethren?

It is faith that plants our feet on the higher ground. Faith proves our trust by response to God. It is faith that sustains us when the storms prevail. It is faith that makes us more like him. It is faith that parts the curtains and lets us look into the realms of the beyond. It is faith that shows us the face of Jesus. It is faith that satisfies our hopes. It is faith that answers for ourselves our prayer, "Thy Kingdom come." It is faith that will finally allow us transport into the city whose Builder and Maker is God.

Richwood, Ohio.

Feeding the Little Flock

BY J. H. MOORE

Our experience, here at Sebring during the last few years, has caused us to do much thinking about the little groups of members, to be found in many parts of the United States and Canada. We need not tell our readers that scores of these groups are without shepherds, without preaching and without the advantages of the Sunday-school. Some of them win out in the struggle for existence, while others are cast adrift. It is only a question of the survival of the stronger.

In many parts of the South and the Southwest, some of these little groups may be found. It is nice to think of them as little flocks—flocks of the Master. They are made up of children of the Kingdom, men and women, young and old, who have been born from above and whose names are enrolled in the Lamb's Book of Life. One of these groups is here at Sebring. The group is composed of members who are here the year round. They have a neat place of worship and none of them have over one-fourth of a mile to church. As regular as the Lord's Day comes, they may be seen gathering at their little chapel on Pine Street for Sunday-school and preaching service. There are not so many of them, but the little flock is fully officered and enjoys the season of worship immensely.

As shepherd of the flock we have our instructions from the Master of all the flocks. Through the New Testament writers he has told us to take heed to the flock over which the Holy Ghost has made us one of the overseers, and to feed the church of God. In fact, feeding the flock of God seems to be the business entrusted to us. As stated above, the flock is small, but we realize that small flocks need nourishment as well as the larger ones. We have spent years feeding some of the larger and more influential flocks of the Brotherhood, and that, too often, in the presence of more ministers than we could count on both hands. In those days we felt encouraged because of the large assemblies, the splendid singing and the uplifting inspiration of the occasion. Somehow we did not think so much about the part the Holy Ghost was taking in the work. We had back of us a strong congregation, and that means much to any minister.

To pass from such an inspiring assembly of the saints to one of the Lord's little flocks, here in the distant South, is an experience that has not come the way of most of our ministers. During the winter months, when we have members here by the score, there is much to inspire any man who occupies the pulpit. But how about the summer months, when the membership seldom exceeds a score? We fell to thinking about being faithful over a few things. Then we remembered what the Master said of his "little flock." Is not the Master concerned about the little flocks? Are they not his? Does he not wish his under-shepherds to look after these little flocks, and to feed them? Most assuredly he does, and so we are making it our work to feed the church of God that is at Sebring.

We may not be carrying on the work just like it should be done in the larger congregations. But for the summer months we are so conducting our services as to get the most good out of them. At ten in the forenoon we have our Sunday-school hour, and get fully as much good out of the lesson as if the house were full. We never think of numbers, but we do think about our splendid lessons. Then preaching follows and we find that we enjoy preaching to less than a half house full of attentive listeners fully as well as we used to appreciate some of the packed houses that it has been our privilege to address. Here, again, it is not a matter of numbers, but a matter of feeding all the sheep that the Master has placed in our care. They constitute the little flock that he has purchased with his own blood. Are they not worth looking after? If the Master died for them, are they not worthy of our best efforts, and should we not rejoice in being permitted to do at least this much for him?

But our evening services are still more enjoyable. We have turned the occasion into a prayer meeting, and more interesting prayer meetings we have never attended. As a number of us have homes here, we decided in favor of the cottage prayer meeting for Sunday evening. It seems so homelike. It is like a visit in the home where the meeting is held. It is a religious service and a social gathering combined. The members meet to sing, pray and talk, and then comes a short social time, such as we could not have in an audience room, and we need no refreshments to complete the social feature.

At all these gatherings the little flock is fed, edified and inspired. All the members, and others in attendance, have something good to think about during the week, and as the days go by they become stronger, better men and better women. The different gatherings hold them together, and fit them for the duties that come to each one.

As we think about these meetings, and the good we get out of them, we are led to wonder what would be the results if all the little, shepherdless groups could be favored with similar services. We have enough of ministers, not specially engaged, to supply every need of the kind and there are a number of them who would more than appreciate a work of this sort. It is only a matter of getting the preacher and the little flock together, and just how to do that is where the problem comes in. True, such ministers might not do much in the way of evangelizing, but they could be entrusted with feeding the flock until some strong man could be secured to help gather in the sheaves.

Sebring, Fla.

The Orphanage Problem

BY J. E. MILLER

Many of you have felt that you should have been informed by Brother Culler and myself before this, of what we are finding. But remember that mail moves slowly, that one may not write some of his impressions and expect them to pass the censor, and that hasty conclusions are not desirable where so much is at stake. When I tell you that only two letters reached me in the Near East, you will understand what I mean by mail not being regular.

First, I wish to say that the British and French armies, the Red Cross, the Near East Committee and the missionaries on the field have done a wonderful piece of work in relieving the distress. Had it not been for their untiring efforts and wise management, the suffering and death rate would have been much greater.

One can not speak too highly of what has been accomplished by these organizations and individuals. I have also learned that both Armenians and Syrians have proved themselves able helpers and ready workers in alleviating the distress of the sufferers. Undoubtedly the suffering was as great and greater than ever was reported in America. The sudden coming of the armistice, the cessation of hostilities, the collapse of the Turkish rule in the Near East and the coming of spring have all helped to relieve those in dire need, so that conditions now are different from what they were last winter.

It is apparent that the number of people massacred in their homes and on the march has been overstated. It also is evident that the number of war orphans never was as large as reported. But this is not to be taken that in both of these classes the numbers were not sufficiently large to call for immediate and liberal help. Very many were massacred, very many died from starvation and disease, very many were left orphans and helpless.

It would seem that in many places the grown people will be able to take care of themselves and their families. In others, help will be needed over the coming winter. The orphans will need help for a longer or shorter period, depending partly on their age, condition of health, and degree of intelligence, and on how much their own nation can do for them. Both the Armenians and Syrians seem ready to do all that they can, in the way of relief. It is encouraging to learn of their contributions and of the orphanage work that each of these peoples is supporting.

I am fully persuaded that these orphans should not only be fed, clothed, and housed, but that they should be given schooling and religious training. In looking to the future of the work, our Sunday-schools and churches should keep this in mind. For meeting emergency conditions, the temporal must be considered first, but when the emergency is past, one should consider especially those agencies that are in position to give heed to the entire need of the orphans.

The missionaries on the field, as soon as the need arose, opened their schools and orphanages and other buildings for the care of orphans and destitute. They made their religion practical by ministering to the temporal needs of the people, just as Jesus did while he was here among men. They understood the people and their needs, were on the ground and had been especially trained to do the work. Because of their training before they went to the field, because of their experience on the field, because of their interest in the people and their love for them, these missionaries have been able to do what others can not do.

It would seem that those who go to the Near East for relief work, with the intention of remaining only one year, will not become the most efficient workers. They will not have time to learn the language, they will not understand the people and they have no permanent interest in them. There is a possibility that the love for adventure, the desire to travel and similar reasons may predominate and so hinder the fullest cooperation with the people in their need. Besides, where men and women are selected for only a year, there is seldom that close investigation as to preparation and fitness for the work that prevails when the term of service is for a longer period, or for life.

Bro. Culler is located at Merash, where he is doing an excellent piece of work. He has charge of much as a director and has won the respect of all because of his strong leadership and his ability to organize and direct others. At one time it seemed probable that we, as a church, might take over a large part of this work and direct and support it for one year, but on closer investigation I was convinced, after consulting with others on the Sunday-school Commission, that it would not be wise to do so. The contract that was submitted to us was not at all satisfactory. It gave us nothing that we could not do without such a contract, but on the other hand bound us to conditions that seemed hardly what one would desire.

Yes, for this one year we should support the orphanages with our might, as we had planned. We should spend our money in those places and through those organizations that we are assured will accomplish the most. As to future years, we should consider both the needs in Syria and Armenia and also the needs in our own mission fields. I am satisfied that we should not undertake missionary work in either of these devastated lands. Mission work is needed, but it will be better for us to concentrate on our present fields and strengthen them, allowing those who now occupy Syria and Armenia to do the mission work there. Where there is so much to do one must choose, and do his work in the field most accessible.

Elgin, Ill.

Realities and Illusions

BY J. HARMAN STOVER

Under the heading, "The Late War—The Last War," found in Gospel Messenger of March 22, clipped from the Northwestern Christian Advocate, are discussed problems confronting Christendom just now, that deserve more than a casual reading. The article is to be admired for its fine suggestions as to things which SHOULD BE. It points out the fact that military training is coming full swing. And yet, like too many of our good and great writers, the author settles back upon the lees of an illusive hope that we are—in spite of conditions plainly showing that we are fitting into the time when "they say, Peace, peace, but there is no peace"—just entering an era of universal peace. After showing up so strongly in his first paragraph the powers backing universal war training and the certainty of its coming, how he can drop down into a series of hopeful dreams of an open door to universal peace, is an enigma to me.

Patrick Henry said before the Virginia Convention: "Men are apt to indulge in the illusions of hope." This is a standard classic, expressing a universal truth. But Mr. Henry then bluntly asked: "But what are the FACTS concerning Great Britain's attitude toward the American Colonies?" So I want to ask: "What are the FACTS confronting Christianity and humanity now? What are we to hope for? Yea, what may we EXPECT from a score or more of different nations, all with overlapping commercial interests?" There are land-grabbing and port-grabbing proclivities, with the exercise of the keenest diplomatic skill seizing upon every advantage to be grasped. Each nation determines upon its own Monroe doctrine, and each brown-faced nation clamors for equality of recognition with the more fortunate "pale-face." There is no well-defined recognition of God, and no reference to HIS WORD as his Revealed Will, concerning the world, in these latter days, with every delegate clamoring for universal democracy (brotherhood) yet, in the same breath, saying by action and word: "Let me settle your affairs, but stay out of my potato-patch." All of this makes one think it possible that there may be more "scraps of paper" to cast aside ere long.

In the light of the Scriptures we are made to understand that in the "latter days perilous times shall come," that "tribulation is determined to the end"—"at the end" is a better translation—and that "the man of sin" is to arise under conditions never yet experienced, and that there is to be a war, known as Armageddon. No phase of the late war fits into the Biblical battle of Armageddon, which is to be fought in Palestine and not in Europe. In that war the man of sin will sit in the temple of God, demanding universal homage. Such a man, by comparison, will make the Kaiser look like a saint. He, the man of sin, dealing with Jewish interests, will feature that war, and there is no similarity, in feature or fact, of this war, just closed, with the one last great war to come. The Jews, as a nation, were not conspicuous in the late war except for their ability to pile up war profits in countries where they had as full swing of the mercantile levers as they had in England and America.

The taking over of Palestine is thought to portend the near approach of the day when Israel will be "gathered from among every nation" (Deut. 30: 3; Ezek. 36: 24) and a Jewish state formed. This forecasts the arising of the "Man" that, Paul says, is to be "revealed." (Dan. 11 comes nearer hinting at this European war just closed.)

The article referred to says: "If the true lovers of peace . . . but appreciate the situation, . . . the members of the church of Jesus Christ," etc. Yes, truly, but they do not. Half of Christendom favors universal training for war. Nearly every great Christian body fully indorses the change made by the Boy Scout movement. At first it was a civilian movement. Now its complexion is that of a full-fledged military force.

What may we expect in the years of the immediate future, when every boy's mind is directed to the screen that makes inevitable a character, patterned after the objects of his admiration? With a trained war mind, studying "over-the-top" histories, filled with heroic deeds of field-marshals, generals, admirals and aviators, whose consummating achievement is victory through bloodshed, what are we to expect? Has the youth been trained in vain? Will he be satisfied with a supine dream of fields of valor? Hardly.

The League of Nations is making no attempt at disarmament, but each nation, right now, is improving its armament and navy equipment. It has even tentatively decided that Germany's army may be 100,000. Let me quote: "If ever the world stood at the parting of the ways it is today—the days after the victory and the day before setting up the new order." This is a vital consideration, and demands of the church a forward movement along lines of constructive work, with a full sense and expectancy of the divine consummation, and not be blinded by a false exuberance of an illusive hope of world peace. "In me [Christ] ye shall have peace." "In the world is tribulation."

The article professes "assurance that the monster which has hitherto stalked up and down the highways of nations, scattering death by the sword, has at last received its fatal blow—that is, if high-minded and God-fearing men sit at the table and consent to have the Prince of Peace stand at the head." Most assuredly, BUT THEY DID NOT SO CONSENT, neither are there many God-fearing men around the table. His thought is ideal, but for the "IF."

I again quote: "With Germany, the exponent of power, crushed," etc. But Germany is NOT crushed. With her cities intact and self-supporting, she is the most independent nation in Europe today. If crushing Germany was the object of the Allies, the Armistice was signed too soon by six months. And as to the teaching of Nietzsche, it not only is alive yet in Germany, but is not entirely dormant in the State schools of America. The one who thinks Satan is really bound, will make his calculations without consulting his host.

I further quote: "The League of Nations for the establishment of peace is not only possible, but within reach." Truly, truly; but so was Israel in reach of Palestine at Kadesh-Barnea, but nevertheless Israel spent forty years in the wilderness. Again: "The great need at this moment is an unequivocal note of protest, arising from the church against the forces now operating to foist upon America a military system that will only mean another war in a not distant future."

Now, then, the suggestion and admission are both here. For who will sign such a protest? Will the Catholics? Will all Protestants? Not when nearly all of the first and half the other agree to the war-lords' proposition.

Now, is it wisdom to hug the delusive phantom of hope for world peace, with every city and rural community engaged in strikes, incendiarism, profiteering and assassinations that pass off as commonplace—the public conscience winking at officials protecting vice for a sum, every court trying to clear its docket from divorce suits, only to find the docket growing?

Would it not be wise to face the problems as they are and move forward as the church of the First-born in an onward, pushing, constructive policy, rather than to say: "The Master delayeth his coming," and to spend time in "beating servants," or contending for trivial things? The Gentile powers are nearing their confusion and end. How we can hope for universal peace till "the day of the Lord" comes, is enigmatic to me.

Five thousand years of opportunity upon the earth have proven man to be a failure, so far as his ability to govern himself under the "old man" goes. Man must be born again from above. Without Christ, he is without hope and without God in the world. The deluge, the confused tongue, scattering of the "chosen race," the crucifixion, every war, strike and human upheaval attest to the claim made in this paragraph.

We should all be favorable to a League of Nations, such as is now dreamed of—the ideal of which will bring peace and good will to man. A universal democracy is probable only under a condition that realizes, throughout the world, individual man-to-man application in a practical way of Christ's golden rule. From Joshua to Saul, the "Judge" age offered an opportunity to a specially-protected and divinely-guardianed nation, to develop an ideal democracy. It failed because MAN, its chief functionary and chief benefaction, chose to see that SELF-INTERESTS were safeguarded, with little concern for his neighbor. The reverse of this—equal concern for the neighbor—is the only keystone that can ever hold the arch of a democracy. But the world has, for over five thousand years, LIVED in hope of a golden age and somehow got on, through its continual stream of disappointments, and so we all will go on, looking for and expecting a universal democracy, knowing at the same time that the last rule on the earth is to be a kingdom.

Then, too, while we work for, and many confidently await, a world democracy, and pray for it, we close our prayers in the very words of the Master himself: "Thy kingdom come," knowing, too, that "the government shall be upon his shoulders."

Many are the contexts to show that there is no hope for the human race religiously, socially and politically till Christ manifests his rule with power and demonstration, after he has subdued evil. Whether this manifestation or appearing comes in the silent forces of righteousness, or in the tangible, visible appearance of his personal presence, as most of us believe, is not argued here. I speak of the continued unsettled condition as a present fact to be continued and to grow, under a world of nations who, in attempting a world league, must work under conditions that make a real prayer of faith impossible—Christian, Protestant and Catholic (at dagger's points under all other conditions), Islam, Brahman, Parsee, infidel, all in a combine. Upon this structure must stand the future democracy. "Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ"—so says the Word.

The hope of the people of God lies in a vigorous, progressive, constructive movement FORWARD to reach men. Such a movement has always been in place, from the first Pentecost till now, and especially is it required of us now, for a "short work" will he make of this, man's last opportunity for eternal salvation.

Fresno, Calif.

The Church Library

BY O. B. MAPHIS

Part Two.—Book Selection

"Think what a good book is. It is a portion of the Eternal Mind, caught in its process through the world, stamped in an instant, and preserved for eternity. Think what it is; that enormous amount of human sympathy and intelligence that is contained in these volumes; and think what it is that this sympathy should be communicated to the masses of the people."—Lord Houghton.

VERY much depends upon the proper selection of books, not only for the working of the library, but what is more important, through our books we are helping to mould and build lives that are to count for much or little in the world. Not only this, but we are endeavoring to cultivate right habits of reading and a taste for good literature.

If there ever was a time when "of the making of books there is no end," was true, it certainly is true today. Books are being written by every kind of author and on such a wide range of subjects. Good books, bad books and indifferent books. Of course, the books themselves can not help they are bad or indifferent, but there is no excuse for a church library, or any other, to give shelf room to such.

One very good criterion in book selection, which will keep one out of difficulties innumerable, is to beware of sets of books, especially those written by the same author.

Four things should enter into our selection of books: (1) What will be the effect upon character? (2) Are they interesting? (3) Do they have real literary merit? (4) Will they increase the reader's efficiency? There are many books that will fill the answers beautifully to questions two and three, but when it comes to the first, well—your library is better off without them.

Books that I certainly would exclude from the church library are the long list of "Elsie Books." Here is what Mr. Walter Fields has to say about these: "Vapid sentimentality, tracing the heroine from early childhood to old age, and continuing the baneful succession through her children, grandchildren and various kin. She is taken east, west, north, and south, to the World's Fair, to Nantucket, to—Heaven knows where. There are thirty-five volumes of the stuff, including those devoted to 'Mildred,' a friend of Elsie's, who also grows up, is married and has children, expressly to provide material for more volumes" (Finger Posts to Children's Readings, p. 167).

Hardly less harmful are the "Prudy Books," the "Oliver Optic," Henty's and Alger's. You say the children persist in reading these books and therefore they should have them; they will do them no harm. Children's reading should be as carefully guarded as their eating. Pie and cake are real delicious and the children persist in eating those things and enjoy them. Therefore they should have all the pie and cake they want. Many a grown-up is paying the penalty of such false training. We are beginning to realize that older folks should decide the diet and menus of the children.

Some of the modern fiction writers as Harold Bell Wright, Gene Stratton Porter, Elnora Porter, and a large coterie of others of the same type, I can not heartily recommend. They do not set the proper ideals before readers, especially children. An author who is putting a new book on the market every year or so can not put his best into the book. It takes a genius to be able to write often. Then, too, there is so much good fiction that has been tried, and proved its true value, that we need not use our church libraries as experimental laboratories.

Let us look at the more pleasant side of this discussion. I shall give a suggestive list—not that I have personally read all, but have had them recommended by proper and competent authorities.

While I have looked upon fairy tales as building a false foundation for our children, I am not ready to say dogmatically that they should always be excluded. However, I do believe that books of fact, in nature and life, will satisfy the child's craving desire for the wonderful and the imaginative. I recognize that in the field of fairy tales there is the same distinction as in other fields of literature—if ever a fairy tale, the very best must he used. It is easy to fall in with popular opinion, but I am ready to hear results, good or bad, for the fairy tale. Fair play must be the criterion of judgment.

Picture books may be used to great advantage with the small children. Some good artist's or illustrator's work should be considered, as Caldecott, Crane, Brooks, Lear or Kate Greenaway.

Let me say here—and this applies to home reading for children as well as to the church library—do not buy a child's book merely because it is cheap. The child is the developing man, whose books in childhood should be of equal worth in childhood as in manhood.

Fiction has always held an important place in libraries. I know some folks stand looking askance at everything called fiction, but they would rather have their children attend evil places of amusement than to have them home, entertaining themselves with a wholesome book. Use standard authors as Scott, Dickens, Thackeray and a long list of others.

We are not going to exclude, nor have them take second place—our religious books, or books on the Bible. Stories of the Bible or Gospel such as Hurlbut's or Foster's are among the best for complete books. Bible biographies may be mentioned here. "The Old Testament and New Testament Heroes," by F. B. Meyer, or "Men of the Bible" series, edited by Excell, are good for the teachers and adults, while the "Biographies for the Young," by Bro. Galen B. Royer, are the finest for the children.

History, which plays a large part in moulding lives of men and women, should surely have a place in our library, as also Science; also books on the Fine Arts, such as music, painting, etc.

We are all aware of the large influence of other lives on the growing boys and girls, so that no child's library will be complete without a good selection of the best written biographies of great men and women of the past.

The best books along the line of social service should find their place in our library. An unusual interest has developed along this line, and a large number of books are coming out on various phases of the subject. Care must be exercised to select the best in this valuable field of endeavor.

The church library needs books on child study and Sunday-school pedagogy. Every teacher and officer of the Sunday-school should find a natural appeal in these interesting and helpful works.

New methods are being tried and used along the line of church school organization and management, so that books on this subject may well be considered favorably in our selection of books.

Books on missions, both home and foreign, will be needed in abundance. Lives of great missionaries are always incentives to increased activity and devotion.

While the subject of temperance may seem to be less needful, yet there are other lines of temperate or social reforms than the liquor traffic. Many reforms are going to be enacted in the next generation, as well as in the present, and we need to be abreast of the times.

Not only books on special subjects or topics but some general reference works, such as commentaries, concordances, Bible dictionaries, and English dictionaries, and both English and Bible encyclopedias are always useful.

Devotional books, with those on Christian life and conduct, should be on the shelves of every church library.

In fact, there should be books for every department of the church work, not only to give facts and to entertain, but to increase the efficiency of the working forces.

Chicago, Ill.

The Christian Attitude Toward the Erring Disciple

BY J. S. SHERFY

IT has often been a matter for rather painful observation that many splendidly-disposed folks, whose motives can hardly be questioned, do sometimes manifest a spirit of indiscretion and inconsistency in their attitude toward the erring or wayward ones—some even going to the extreme of unsympathetic and unchristian criticism.

Now Jesus certainly meant nothing less than his words expressed, when he uttered that striking parable about the "mote" and the "beam," illustrating his very positive statement against "judging." Yet in these matters there are those who come dangerously near a violation of the plain teachings of Jesus.

Young people coming into Christian fellowship with us find themselves confronted with many problems, upon which they had not previously calculated. Even though they may have been reasonably well acquainted with the general practice of the church and the obligations they were assuming when they were received into fellowship, still the practical observance in their lives, of these obligations, brings many problems which, in their early Christian experience, are new, and far from easy of solution. Some will have more and some less, but he must be lifeless indeed who has no problems.

If we frankly confess the truth, we must admit that we had such problems, which were for us most difficult, and that the first solution which we arrived at had to be revised from time to time, so that, after years of experience in Christian fellowship, we are none too sure that we have reached the final and perfect solution of all problems.

In the church it is a matter of very grave concern to many of us that there is a considerable number who do not readily acquiesce and fully conform to all the formal recommendations of the church. And, indeed, a more full obedience to these forms and methods is desirable and worthy of much intelligent and well-directed effort.

But can we reasonably expect that all shall see exactly alike and easily conform to a fixed and hard rule of stereotyped conduct? Certainly that would eliminate a lot of problems, but God has not made people all alike. Merely because one does not give full and complete obedience to all of the recommendations of the church is, of itself, insufficient evidence of apostasy. Rather it is often an evidence that the one in question is working on a problem and insisting on his right to think and choose for himself, rather than to be negatively lifeless and let some one else do his thinking for him.

Basing our conclusions on this premise, it is easy to believe that injustice has often been done to young disciples of Christ (for a disciple is a learner, endeavoring to solve his problems) who have not yet reached the point in their experience where they were willing to accept fully every recommendation of the church. The dogmatic demands of some earnest officials may have failed to bring about formal obedience. Even the Bible texts, which seem unquestionably clear in their meaning to those who have had years of teaching and experience in the church, have failed to convince the accused ones of their error. Then the more radical measure of legal and rigid church discipline is resorted to and, sad to record, in many, many cases the result has been that the individual drops out of the Lord's family here on earth and the opportunity of helping him to further Christian growth is forever lost.

Many of the violations which receive the strictly legal action of the church are of an outward and formal nature. And, in whatever measure the outward failure is an index of a wilfully sinful spirit in the heart, the church is justified in taking steps to restore the erring one.

But may there not be sins of the heart, in the lives of those who are the most insistent that there be a rigid enforcement of church rules, which are far more reprehensible than the youthful disciples' frivolities, inconsistencies and missteps which are so rigorously dealt with? These sins of the heart may not find outward expressions which could be established by evidence, but there may be real covetousness hidden beneath a show of magnanimous liberality; there may be pride and arrogance hidden beneath the plainest, if not the least expensive clothing. Jealousy, hatred, unforgiveness, selfishness and a host of other sins are often "camouflaged" beneath an outward Pharisaic self-righteousness, yet they are none the less sins and are perhaps less excusable than many of those which are more flagrant in appearance.

Because of these facts there should be a great deal of patient, sympathetic teaching, forbearance and long-suffering in the attitude which is taken toward the erring ones, and especially so if they are young in years or Christian experience. Much could be said on other phases of this subject, but this is written especially in behalf of those weak and stumbling ones who so much need the sympathy, strength, encouragement, nurture and guidance which the Lord intended his church to give to the weak.

So, when we would lift our voice to proceed legally against the wayward one, we should first submit ourselves to a most pitiless and heart-searching self-examination in solemn meditation upon Jesus' words when he said: "He that is without sin among you let him first cast a stone at her." For the possibility ever remains that our own short-comings, lack of sympathy, and superficiality, may have been some of the stumbling-blocks which hindered the erring one from quickly arriving at the correct solution of his problems.

Bloom, Kans.

Digging Gold for Twenty Years

BY IRA J. LAPP

EACH day, as I go about my work, I am constrained to look toward old snow-capped Baldy, for somehow these mighty expressions of God's great omnipotence, standing forth in unassuming grandeur, give me strength and courage for my daily task. But I am not going to describe "Baldy," or interpret heart-throbs, but propose to tell a story which is being worked out on its sides. If I were a novelist I would use this story for a plot, but as I am a preacher, it arouses a chain of thought which expands into a sermon.

A friend of mine, a few days ago, stepped into a restaurant and was directed to a table at which an old man sat. Evidently he had reached the summit of life's road and, going down on the other side, was entering the twilight of a day fraught with struggle, care and hardship. His hair was beautifully silvered. Anxiety and struggle had carved deep lines in his face and a tremor had stolen into his hand. He introduced himself as Mr. M.

My friend replied: "I believe I met your brother in Chicago at the World's Fair of 1893, selling stock in the Baldy gold mine which you were developing."

"Yes," he replied, "my brother is again in the East, selling stock and interesting capital, in order that we can continue our operations."

"How long," inquired my friend, "have you been digging for gold on old Baldy?"

"For more than twenty years," was the reply.

"During this persistent tunneling, digging and blasting, how much gold have you found?"

He pushed his coffee-cup aside and rested back in his chair. His blood-shot eyes were fixed upon his cowhide boots as he responded: "Not a single ounce, but we confidently expect each blast to uncover the yellow metal."

Digging gold for more than twenty years and not one ounce to encourage their spirits or to reward their efforts, and they are still at it. The vigor of youth and vitality of a life-time spent in tunneling this hole in the ground! Thousands upon thousands of dollars sunk in this same hole and still they are at it. How we admire their persistence! What a wonderfully big faith!

If this old world could but get a proper conception of values! We realize that sin is a damning force, that men and women redeemed possess possibilities beyond our comprehension. We have had demonstrated that the "Gospel is the power of God unto salvation," but how long would we keep a mission or a church open, how long would you and I labor with no results? Yes, we might know of a surety that the "gold" was there; but would you have sufficient faith in it to persist for it?

Mr. Fuller said to Wm. Carey: "It is clear that there is a rich mine of gold in India. If you will go down, I will hold the ropes." How many mission boards and donors would have continued in support of Carey, had he failed to strike the precious ore after twenty years of faithful labor? Is not the keenness of our spiritual vision determined by our conception of values?

Miami, N. Mex.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

Inglewood.—June 29 Bro. W. F. Englaod, of La Verne, preached the educational sermon in the morning and gave a report of the Annual Conference in the evening. Both addresses were an inspiration to us all and we were made to realize more fully our duties and opportunities as a church. We raised $51.80 for La Verne College. We are glad to report that our offering for Annual Meeting was $250, our quota being $200.—Susan Stoner, Inglewood, Calif., July 1.

Waterford church met in council June 26. The Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Society were both reorganized at this time, with Bro. Earl Cyrop, superintendent of the former, and Bro. Wm. Dinsmore, president of the latter. July 4 the Empire, Waterford Baptist and our own school enjoyed an excellent program, basket dinner and picnic. Six have recently been received by letter, among the number Bro. Robert Kenaedy, a minister, who preached for us July 6. Sunday, July 20, the joint Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Convention is to be held in the Waterford church. Patterson, Empire and Waterford churches hold regularly three conventions a year, each taking its turn in accommodating the crowd. Our Sunday-school is very interesting, the attendance having more than doubled in a year. —Hattie B. Dearderff, Waterford, Calif., July 7.

CANADA

Battle Creek.—Bro. David Hollinger, of Red Cliff, Alta., Can., came to us June 16. He preached four inspiring sermons and also gave a number of talks on Bible Lands. His work among us was very much appreciated. Two of our Sunday-school scholars were baptized. Our members have been built up and made to feel that there is a great work to do in this field. We held our love feast June 28, with fifty communing. Bro. Hollinger officiated. A number of our members are planning on attending the joint Sunday-school Convention, to be held at Red Cliff, Alta., July 6; also the District Meeting to be held at Gleicken, July 8-10. Our Sunday-school is progressing nicely, increasing both in numbers and interest.—Bessie M. Reesor, Consul, Sask., June 30.

FLORIDA

Sebring.—July 4 the members and friends here had a very enjoyable outing at Basket Lake, two miles to the north. Here, beneath the moss-covered branches of several large live-oak trees, on the northern bank of the lake, several hours were spent very pleasantly and, we trust, profitably. The program called for songs, prayer and speaking. On the long tables there were many good things to eat, and plenty of lemonade to drink. Two of the neighbors surprised the gathering with a score or more of fine watermelons. Another brought in a liberal supply of ice cream—enough to satisfy each one present. We had with us people from nearly a dozen States, nearly all of whom own homes here. It was a real enjoyable Fourth of July, without any of the nonsense mixed in.—J. H. Moore, Sebring, Fla., July 8.

IDAHO

Bowmont church met in council June 27, with Eld. A. L. Boyd presiding. Six letters of membership were received. We decided to organize a Junior League. Sunday-school officers were elected for six months, with Bro. A. E. Riddle as our superintendent. Sister Chloe Gross was elected president of our Christian Workers' Society.—Nora E. Zimmerman, Bowmont, Idaho, July 2.

Clearwater.—We assembled in council June 28, with Eld. A. J. Detrick in charge. Brethren J. S. Lehman and Earl Harp were re-elected Sunday-school superintendents. We reorganized our Christian Workers' Meeting, with Bro. Lanslu Clanin president. We decided that the two Bible Classes of our Sunday-school maintain the school, and that the contributions of the other classes be used for some charitable purpose.—Mrs. Mollie Harlacher, Lenore, Idaho, July 1.

Weiser church met in council June 28. Two letters were granted. Bro. M. Alva Long was chosen elder. The District Meeting of Idaho and Western Montana having called our pastor, Bro. M. Alva Long, to serve them as District Evangelist, we will be without a pastor after Sept. 1. We have secured the services of Bro. H. E. Fasnacht, of Bethany Bible School, of Chicago, who will take charge some time after Jan. 1. June 29 Bro. Bert Mow filled the pulpit very acceptably in the morning. In the evening he gave impressions received at the Conference. July 4 the Sunday-school had a picnic. About eighty were present to enjoy a basket dinner. The time was spent in visiting and singing.—Retta Baker, Weiser, Idaho, July 5.

ILLINOIS

Allison Prairie church met in council June 28, with Eld. N. H. Miller in charge. The church unanimously asked Bro. Miller to remain as pastor for another year. It was decided to install new lights and redecorate the church. Bro. Burton, of Ankeny, Iowa, will begin our series of meetings Aug. 3. His wife will lead the song service.—Ernest Fry, Lawrenceville, Ill., July 9.

Dixon church met in business meeting on Monday evening, June 30. Eld. John Heckman presided. Regular church officers were elected. The Missionary Committee took steps toward organizing a Woman's Missionary Society and a Mission Study Class. Brethren C. A. Bryan and Harry Joyut were chosen delegates to District Meeting. We held our love feast May 25, and observed Educational Day June 29. The interior of the church has been redecorated, new song books are being purchased and we are looking forward to our evangelistic services, beginning Sept. 28, conducted by Bro. Hugh Miller, of Ohio.—Mrs. J. J. Johnson, 215 Madison Ave., Dixon, Ill., July 10.

Girard church met in council July 8, with Eld. W. H. Shull presiding. Several letters were received. Bro. D. W. Shock was elected president of the Adult Christian Workers, Bro. Paul Bechtold, president of the Young People's Christian Workers, and Sister D. W. Shock, Sister Mame Gibson and Sister Mary Allen, committee in charge of the Junior Christian Workers. The Adult and Junior Christian Workers are new organizations and will be considered as a part of the goal set in the five-year "Forward Movement." Bro. W. H. Shull was reelected elder for the coming year. Bro. H. V. Stutsman was reelected clerk. Bro. D. W. Shock and wife were elected delegates to District Meeting. We decided to call for District Meeting, to be held at our church in 1920. June 1 Children's Day was appropriately observed with songs and recitations by the children and an illustrated sermon by Bro. Shock. Our Annual Meeting offering amounted to $391. Bro. A. O. Brubaker, of Rainu City, Calif., recently gave us a splendid address.—Ethel Harshbarger, Girard, Ill., July 9.

Lanark church held a business session June 26, with Eld. J. M. Moore presiding. The regular elections for various offices took place, resulting as follows: Bro. Frank Cunningham, "Messenger" agent; the writer, church correspondent. Bro. D. D. Stitzel and Sister Ella Moore were elected delegates to District Meeting, with Sister Mary Puterbaugh and Bro. Wm. Wingerd, alternates. Sept. 6 has been set to begin a series of meetings. Our pastor, with the help of an evangelistic singer, will conduct the services. The Sunday-school held its outing at Krapes Park, Freeport, July 2. A most enjoyable time was spent by all present.—Neil Sites, Lanark, Ill., July 7.

Milledgeville church has just closed a very successful revival service, conducted by Bro. C. D. Smith, of Morrill, Kans. Thirteen accepted Christ. We appreciated very much the interest and support of ministers and others from the adjoining churches during the meetings, and also at the time of our communion service. Recently the Anti-saloon League represented their work to us one Sunday.—Eva L. Whisler, Milledgeville, Ill., July 11.

Mt. Morria church convened in council July 2. Two important items of business pertained to our next pastor and the location for the new church in Mt. Morris. Bro. Noble Thomas and the writer were chosen delegates to District Meeting. Since our last report one more has been received by baptism.—Nelson E. Shirk, Mt. Morris, Ill., July 5.

Shannon church met in business session July 1, with Eld. David Roland in charge. We decided to hold our love feast Oct. 5, at 7 P. M. We elected two delegates to District Meeting: Henry Baum and Will McNutt.—Frances Myers, Lanark, Ill., July 7.

INDIANA

Andrews church met in council June 21, with Eld. D. M. Byerly presiding. Our Harvest Meeting was appointed for July 27. We expect Bro. Eli Heestand to be with us in a series of meetings in

(Continued on Page 460)

THE ROUND TABLE

How to Be Happy

BY ZACK NEHER

THE answer recently given by a certain one: "Keep busy but quit struggling," is good and sounds fine to tell it on paper, but for us actually to work it into our daily routine, is quite different.

Keep busy! "My patience! I am so busy and have so much to do now that I hardly have time to eat and sleep," says one, "and to quit struggling is clear out of the question. We would lose everything then, sure. We are in debt for our home. We have not even paid for our automobile yet. We need a piano and some more furniture for our new house. And we really need more barn room, and a hundred and one other things. If we quit struggling, we surely would go under and have nothing. Yes, and we really ought to have more land—an eighty, at least—and all paid for. Then we would be in position to enjoy life and really be happy."

Reeds, Mo.

Salvation

BY W. H. JOHNSON

WHAT is it? The free gift of God in Christ Jesus, by whom peace was made through the blood of the cross, to reconcile all things unto himself, whether they be things in earth or things in heaven.

Salvation has three absolute essentials, without any of which it is not complete: (1) Redemption, (2) eternal life, (3) immortality.

Redemption is not contingent upon the will of man, in any sense, but is an accomplished fact. While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Consequently redemption makes no demands upon the part of man, to render it effective. It includes only these two things: The love of God the Father (John 3: 15, 16) and the atonement of the blood of Jesus Christ.

Eternal Life, the second absolute essential in the plan of salvation, is contingent both upon the will of God and upon the will of man. (See John 5: 21, etc.; Acts 2: 38.) It has for its leading requisites, upon the part of man, faith, repentance and baptism. Upon the proper observation of these it is granted, and without these it can not be obtained. (Mark 16: 16).

Immortality, the third great essential, is contingent both upon the will of God and the will of man, and has for its chief requisite, upon the part of man, the proper use of eternal life. It implies the observing of the ordinances of the house of the Lord, as laid down and established by him in the Word. This includes the communion, with its preparatory services, the observance of the holy kiss, prayer, fasting, the preaching of the Word, plain dressing, almsgiving. All of these enter into the proper use of eternal life in order to obtain immortality, and without these we have no assurance of salvation.

Empire, Calif.

Religion and Life

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

SOME one has written: "Religion and life are one, or neither is anything." Emphatically true! How much we need to emphasize that fact today! It is fallacious to think that there is a dividing line between them. They must be one and inseparable. A faith which is of the hot-house variety and will not stand the chill blasts of life's struggle, is about as useless as a pair of ear-muffs when the thermometer registers 90° Fahrenheit. Vital, energizing, twenty-four-hour-a-day faith in Jesus Christ, Master, Savior and Redeemer, is the greatest need of the world today.

Religion has become, with multitudes of individuals, a bright, dead thing of much ritual and little life. It has become associated with lofty spires and spacious church edifices, when, as a matter of fact, the real Church of Jesus Christ is in the hearts and lives of men and women. The church building is simply an instrument in the establishment of this church of the human life.

When church attendance degenerates into a mere matter of form, and people fail to translate the message into their lives, it is cause for Christians to pray for a revival of the only kind of religion which amounts to anything—the religion of life.

Too frequently, in these days, we see religion made a mere department in men's lives, to be given the modicum of time which can be spared from the theatre, the "movies," golf and social duties. Religion should be, and must be, the very centre and core of life, by whose standards all things else are judged.

To make religion and life one, we must hold up him who came that we "might have life and have it more abundantly." To think of life without Christ, is an anomaly. He is the Giver of life. In him are religion and life combined. Through him religion becomes life, and life, religion.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Cross

Selected by Ethyl Booth,
Covina, Calif.

Blest they who seek,
While in their youth,
With spirit meek,
The way of truth;
To them the sacred Scriptures now display
Christ as the only true and living way.
His precious blood on Calvary was given
To make them heirs of endless bliss in heaven;
And even on earth the child of God can trace
The glorious blessings of his Savior's grace.
For them he bore
His father's frown,
For them he wore
The thorny crown;
Nailed to the cross,
Endured its pain,
That his life's loss
Might be their gain.
Then haste to choose
That better part,
Nor dare refuse
The Lord thy heart,
Lest he declare,
"I know you not,"
And deep despair
Should be your lot.
Now look to Jesus, who on Calvary died,
And trust on him alone who there was crucified.

Jesus the Gentleman

BY ROY TEMPLE HOUSE

NOBODY has ever fully understood the situation presented in the earlier verses of the fourteenth of Mark. Who the woman was who brought the ointment, is not clear; neither is it clear whether she had knowledge of the Master's approaching death and actually thought of his burial as she anointed his head, or whether Christ's words, in verse 8, merely signify: "She is doing for me in my lifetime a kindness which the rest of you do not propose to show me till after I am dead"—and here is a thought to pause on, if there were space. But the woman's identity and specific purpose do not need to be known. The point of supreme importance is that she obeyed a generous impulse, and that Jesus therefore refused to allow her to be criticised for a possible lack of judgment.

Many years ago a little boy lived just outside of an Ohio village, and across the road lived a little friend, an orphan girl, adopted by the old couple who were ending their days on a tiny farm. One day the little girl came running across the road with a dime in her hand. "Can't you go to town with me?" she cried. "I got ten cents for the basket of blackberries I took Miss Heffly, and tomorrow is Papa Burns' birthday. I'm going to buy him a handkerchief, and tomorrow morning you can come over and help me give it to him. I know he'll be so glad!" The youngsters toddled into the village and bought a gaudy-flowered handkerchief, which the boy's mother obligingly took care of till the next morning. Then the two secured audience of the old man, and his foster-child stammered a word of congratulation and offered him the gift.

But there was no gratitude in his response. "Foolishness!" he snapped. "Don't you know I've got more handkerchiefs now than I'll ever wear out? When meat and potatoes are as high as they are, I should think you'd know better than to run around and throw away money on things we don't need."

That boy will never forget how the poor child lay face down in the old barrel-stave hammock for half the morning, sobbing. The old man had been guilty—more or less unconsciously, it is true—of one of the most cruel deeds a human being can commit. He had repulsed a soul as it had offered itself to him in one of those generous impulses which are the purest inspirations of God to man.

And this is what the tactful, thoughtful Gentleman, Jesus Christ, was careful never to do. The story does not imply that Jesus approved, in general, of the lavish expenditure of such precious stuff as this ointment. The woman may have been impoverishing herself unwisely, and there is no question that the poor could have made good use of the three hundred pence—although there is perhaps a touch of salutary reproof in the words "Ye have the poor with you always," of verse 7, as if the poor were not profiting notably from the more judicious housekeeping of the woman's critics—but the fact remains that she was pouring out with the oil a whole-hearted devotion which was wiser than all wisdom, and nobler than the best of good judgment. Here was no place for the critic. A man who could think of anything, under these circumstances, except the woman's great heart, was unanswerably self-condemned. Cavilling at that moment was a crime.

Have you and I always been thoughtful at these junctures, when even the best-founded criticism is a cruel sword-thrust, a blasting frost? God help us to be careful! Conscientious parents and well-meaning teachers have broken young hearts and turned young lives astray by failing to ponder this lesson from Jesus, the Gentleman. It is for our behoof and not only for her reward that, wherever the Gospel is preached, the deed of this woman is spoken of; for we sorely need the reminder and the warning it brings.

Norman, Okla.

Plain Words

BY LEANDER SMITH

I HAVE no reputation, so far as I know, for covering up ideas. What I say is usually understood, and the further I advance in life the more I am impressed with the importance of saying things straight. There is no need of speaking in an unknown tongue.

In analyzing the condition of our churches, we have come to the conclusion that too many unregenerate persons hold membership among us. And we can easily see what causes this condition. And no unbiased mind will deny this. The primary cause of this condition is sensational preaching. The apostle Paul exhorts us to "preach the Word." This brings repentance and faith in the "Word."

We usually lay the blame for this state of affairs at the door of our evangelists. This, no doubt, is in part just; but, I ask: Shall they bear all the blame? Some of them, I am sure, are good and sound. But, suppose the evangelist comes, and begins to touch the fundamental principles of the Gospel lightly and makes sensational propositions, in response to which the sinners join the church, when down deep in the hearts of the elder, ministers and the people in general it is seen that the main thing is wanting, are they just going to let the evangelist have his way? Are they going to hump up, sit still and say nothing till the evangelist leaves, then lay the blame all on him for the church being filled with unregenerated sinners? This is not right. They ought to take him aside and tell him to quit such foolishness, or they will declare the meetings off. This, of course, might create a little ripple, but better a ripple than sinners deceived, and the church corrupted. But if the ministers and people have not backbone enough to do this, then let them share the responsibility of the low state of spirituality of our churches, along with the evangelists, and not lay all the blame on them. The truth is that some of our ministers have as little to do with evangelical preaching that brings heartfelt religion as have some of our evangelists, and the sooner that fact is universally known, the better for the Kingdom and the churches.

I here call upon my sound and faithful brethren in the ministry to start a reformation on this point. In calling on men to assist in meetings, discard the professional "nose-counter" altogether; also the professional sensationalist. Pass silently by the men that are unsound on repentance, faith and regeneration, either in theory or practice (for some are sound in theory but not in practice) and call on a minister or an evangelist that is out for God's glory instead of his own. Select a man of God, deep in piety and spirituality, who will preach the truth without fear or favor. Get a man sound on the fundamentals, who will be satisfied with God-given results, be they many or few.

A great responsibility rests upon us right here. Let us come to the rescue of our churches for Christ's sake. If we will follow the course here marked out, the religious quacks among us will either get out of the ministry, or else come flocking home to repentance, faith and regeneration, as birds in the evening to their nests.

As for myself, I will say, I have always tried to be careful in calling men to help me in meetings, but I have been deceived a time or two; and I here send forth this warning, that if I ever call another man to help me in a meeting and the first thing he does is to try to lay me on the shelf till the meeting is over, as if he were the whole show, and then preach sermons cold enough to freeze a polar bear, and follow them with sensational propositions, he will have about 170 pounds of human depravity to contend with, and unless he is well up on his job I would advise him not to undertake it. Solemnly, brethren, our Zion is suffering, because of a lack of preaching the "Word." Let us come to her rescue!

Oh, brethren, let us, like the Apostle to the Gentiles, stand for the principles of the Gospel, so that we may be able to say with him: "For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God" (Acts 20: 27).

Muscatine, Iowa.

"To Whom Much Is Given"

BY IRA H. FRANTZ

TALL, straight, well-proportioned, handsome, Mr. B impresses you first with his splendid physique. You are not around him long until you discover that his other personal qualities are in proportion. A good conversationalist, intelligent, witty—whether he talks business, politics, or current events—what he says is worth hearing. Without conscious effort on his part he draws a group of men around him, and of any group in which he finds himself he is the center, the leader of conversation. According to world standards he is every inch a man. Industry, honesty, capability, efficiency, characterize his bearing. You will find him running a threshing engine! But his farm work at home is all up in good shape—nothing neglected. He doesn't thresh because he needs the money, but because he likes to and because he can do it well.

All of this is good. You wonder whether it was not some such a character as this who so profoundly stirred the admiration and love of the Master (Mark 10: 21). Then, if you happen to be a preacher, with a zeal for Christian service, especially if you realize that your zeal exceeds your ability, if you have studied hard and practiced long to develop personal magnetism, solely that you might use it for Christ—and have only partly succeeded even then—you will involuntarily exclaim: "O why can not more such men as this be made 'fishers of men'!"

You are sure that you could easily learn to run the engine as well as he. And he, if only his heart were fired with the love of God and a passion for souls, could win souls and "shepherd" them so much better than you.

If all men of Mr. B's talent would work for God according to their ability, a great many more of us, who are less competent and who are criticised for our incompetence, would be only too glad to turn the work over to them—and we would do the threshing. But as long as men who have natural qualities of leadership will not do the Lord's work, the Lord has to use some who are less efficient.

Remember this the next time you find occasion to remark that "our pastor does not seem to be making much of a stir." Also, if you happen to be one of the strong, magnetic kind, remember the word: "To whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required: and to whom they commit much, of him will they ask the more."

Beattie, Kans.

The Soul Prosperity of Gaius

BY RALPH G. RARICK

TODAY it rains, and it is such a day as is reputed to be especially good for the reperusal of old letters. I have opened to one: "The elder unto Gaius," or what is more generally known as the Third Epistle of John. There is one statement outstanding to me, which appears at the outset, and it reads: "Beloved, I pray that in all things thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth."

What think you of Gaius? Are we not agreed that the statement of prayer for him was highly complimentary? It speaks for his excellence. He may not have been the possessor of a robust physique, but he could lay claim to that which was sublimely greater, i. e., spiritual development of a high type. Even though it were true that he attained but mediocre success in making a living, it is certainly evinced in the text that he prospered commendably in the making of a life. Blessed man!

In saying that Gaius prospered commendably, I mean to imply that his soul was not prospering by chance, as a man sometimes does in a business enterprise when greatness is thrust upon him. I use the term because this preëminent prosperity accrued from his wisely and resolutely putting individual effort into the ever-present opportunity of "walking in the truth."

The most pitiable object of our beholding, these days, is not the soldier, mustered out of the service of his country, to engage in civilian life once more, handicapped by the loss of a limb or an arm. Because of the handicap he is deserving of our sympathy, to be sure. But that of itself does not put him in the class of those most pitiable. The vital point at issue is whether he be "complete" in the inward man, which he may be, if he only wills. If he does, he is stronger than the man of mere brawn, who is physically perfect. He is wiser than the most ardent and accomplished votary of mere intellectuality.

He is the man most pitiable today who is prospering much every way, excepting in the spiritual way, which is to be exalted above all. With affections fixed only on the earth, he moves about in his little sphere, whiling away the golden moments, which are of opportunity, to "fight the good fight of the faith" and to "lay hold on the life eternal." His soul, instead of expanding, shrinks to microscopic dimensions as he sinfully ekes out his existence and follows in the wake of the foolish one who purposed nothing higher than to "eat, drink and be merry."

As a matter of fact, the person thus held up to our pity may be one whose name is even written on the membership-roll of what is known as his home church. But regardless of how much he may think so, that inscription, of itself, never insures one against a poverty-stricken soul.

Gaius was the possessor of a soul that was prosperous—that the elder knew. So the prayer was that "in all things" else concerning him he would prosper equally as well. It was a fitting prayer for Gaius. But fancy its use indiscriminately! Would I appreciate having some one pray for me that there be that health of body and prosperity of material interests in a measure commensurate with the status of my soul? Would you? Would the answer of that same prayer for us even take away some of that which we have? Let it be said that if the affirmative is the honest answer here, the intercessor who would bring upon us a blessing would have to recast the petition, making the flourishing of our secular affairs a standard rather, and that for our soul's forward movement.

Beloved, it is highly important for each of us to know if we can truly sing: "It is well, it is well with my soul." If it be true, it will be glory for us, and we are now "rich toward God." If our inward life has unfortunately been neglected, it is a brisk "exercising unto godliness" that is urgent and sure to produce immediate and gratifying results. And by giving all faithfulness to this same exercise we come "to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge," and we will be filled unto all the fullness of God." O how marvelous, how wonderful!

Covington, Ohio.

THE QUIET HOUR

Suggestions for the Weekly Devotional Meeting Or for Prayerful, Private Meditation.

A Debt We Owe

1 John 4: 11

For Week Beginning July 27, 1919

1. A New Sense of Brotherhood.—There is coming over the world a new sense of brotherhood. It is manifesting itself in many ways. It is seen in the rapidly-growing sentiment that the people of every nation should settle their international differences by other means than the sword. It is seen in the fact that thousands of people, impelled by a love akin to that of the Master, are working with might and main to save others from suffering. There are struggles in plenty—the fight against child labor, tuberculosis, white slavery, economic injustice, etc.

2. The Law of Love.—So important is the law of love, that God has ordained the family, by which he calls us out of individualism into the larger service of the household. Above the family altar is the national altar. The nation is the divinely-authorized organism by which God calls us out of the narrower love of the family and neighborhood into the larger service of the State. Above the family altar and the national altar, however, is the altar of the church, on which God calls us to offer our lives for the salvation of the race. Missions, with their far-reaching sweep, rise above the local church interests because they summon us to the highest and broadest service. Surely, in nature and in human institutions are the finger-prints of him "through whom all things were made." Love is the highest wisdom to which we can attain. Only as we forego all personal and temporal aims, do we rise into the region of the universal and eternal. Love is the greatest of all things.

3. Our Love Measures Our Power to Do Good.—Since the measure of our love to others is the measure of our power to do them good, we must cultivate and increase this love by all expedients within our reach. Nothing is of such immense consequence or of such all-inclusive comprehensiveness as love. Nothing is so strong, so sweet, so full of power and peace. It magnifies the smallest gift and dignifies the most insignificant task. It conquers the most stubborn minds and binds in loving fellowship the most inamiable natures.

4. Love Is Supreme.—Great is faith and great is hope, but greater than these is love. Faith is mighty, even to the moving of mountains. It sails the wildest seas. It can open blind eyes. It can do many an apparent miracle. It justifies the soul and anticipates heaven. Yes, great is faith, but love is greater. Faith tires at times, but love is unwearied. Faith is not always welcome, but love is at home everywhere and travels through all the world without a passport. Love stayed last at the cross and came first to the sepulchre. Faith and hope—blessed as they are—can but long for heaven. Love IS heaven, for God is love, and when we love we are in heaven.

5. The Highest Appeal to Others Is Love.—Would you get out of a man the best that is in him, the appeal must be to love. When Christ lovingly bestowed the balm of divine forgiveness and consolation upon poor, repentant Peter, there was brought out the fervent avowal: "Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." "If ye love me," says Christ, "keep my commandments"—do my will. Let your deeds testify to your love. More eloquent than mere words is the doing of the Master's will, because we love him. More convincing than words are deeds of helpfulness to our fellow-men.

6. Suggestive References.—"Love thy neighbor as thyself" (Mark 12: 30, 31). Love needs expression (Luke 6: 31-35). The new commandment (John 13: 34, 35). Love as Christ loved (John 15: 12, 13). Love that is genuine (Rom. 12: 9, 10). Our debt must be paid (Rom. 13: 8, 9, 10). Love's blessed manifestations (1 Cor. 13: 4-7, 13, Am. Rev.). "Walk in love" (Eph. 5: 2). Paul's loving admonition (Col. 3: 12, 13, 14). Considering one another (Heb. 10: 24). "The Royal Law" (James 2: 8). John's message (1 John 3: 11, 14, 16, 17, 18, 23).

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, JULY 20

Sunday-school Lesson, The Lord's Supper.—Matt. 26: 26-30; 1 Cor. 11: 20-34.

Christian Workers' Meeting, God's Callsa

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. C. C. Myers, of Waddams Grove, Ill., in the Zion church, N. Dak.

Bro. Ralph G. Rarick and wife, of Covington, Ohio, in the Cannon Branch house of the Manassas congregation, Va.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One confessed Christ in the Muncie church, Ind.

Two confessed Christ in the Pleasant Hill church, Ohio.

One was baptized recently in the Clovis church, N. Mex.

Ten recently confessed Christ in the Bethel church, Fla.

Two were baptized in the Dry Valley congregation, Pa.

One was recently baptized in the Ft. Wayne church, Ind.

Two were recently baptized in the Nettle Creek church, Ind.

One was recently baptized in the Canton Center church, Ohio.

One has recently been baptized in the Detroit church, Mich.

Three were recently baptized in the Rodney church, Mich.

Six have recently been added to the Powells Fort church, Va.

Thirteen were baptized recently in the Independence church, Kans.

Two have been baptized in the York church, Pa., since the last report.

One has been baptized in the Mt. Morris church, Ill., since last heard from.

Two confessed Christ in the Garrett church, Pa.,—Bro. F. D. Anthony, of Baltimore, Md., evangelist.

Two were baptized in the Ross church, Ohio,—Bro. B. F. Petry, of Eaton, same State, evangelist.

Nine were baptized in the Zion church, Mich.,—Bro. Geo. Mishler, of South Whitley, Ind., evangelist.

Nine were added to the Lewiston church, Minn.,—Bro. J. F. Swallow, of Seavey, same State, evangelist.

One accepted Christ in the Bethel church, W. Va.,—Bro. E. T. Fike, of Eglon, same State, evangelist.

Twenty confessed Christ in the Egeland church, N. Dak.,—Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe, of Chicago, evangelist.

Three were baptized in the Deshler church, Ohio,—Bro. E. E. Eshelman, of Fostoria, same State, evangelist.

One was baptized in the New Paris church, Pa.,—Bro. A. M. Dixon, of Parker Ford, same State, evangelist.

Six were baptized in the Manchester church, Ind.,—Bro. Ralph W. Schlosser, of Elizabethtown, Pa., evangelist.

Six were baptized in the Montgomery church, Pa.,—Bro. Edgar Diehm, of Royersford, same State, evangelist.

Seven accepted Christ in the Chambersburg church, Pa.,—Bro. Daniel Bowser, of York, same State, evangelist.

Eight were baptized in the White Rapids Settlement church, Wis.,—Bro. J. M. Myers, of Stanley, same State, evangelist.

Two were baptized in the Battle Creek church, Sask., Can.,—Bro. David Hollinger, of Red Cliff, Alta., Can., evangelist.

Four were baptized in the Shrewsbury house, Codorus congregation, Pa.,—Bro. John C. Zug, of Palmyra, same State, evangelist.

Five were baptized and one reclaimed in the Springfield church, Pa.,—Bro. J. H. Longenecker, of Palmyra, same State, evangelist.

Four were baptized and one reclaimed in the Locust Grove church, Pa., during a series of meetings conducted by the home ministers.

Four were baptized in the Glade Union church, W. Va., and one from the Accident congregation, Md.,—Bro. Jeremiah Thomas, of Bruceton Mills, W. Va., evangelist.

Twenty were baptized and five are awaiting the administration of the initiatory rite in the Oak Grove church, Roanoke Co., Va.,—Bro. C. D. Hylton, of Troutville, same State, evangelist.

Seven confessed Christ at the North Fork church, W. Va.; six were baptized and one awaits the rite,—Bro. Edgar S. Kiracofe, of Circleville, W. Va., and Ollie Kerlin, of Bridgewater, Va., evangelists.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. G. S. Strausbaugh, of Fredericktown, Ohio, to begin July 29 in the Bunker Hill house, Sugar Creek congregation, same State.

Bro. Jas. M. Moore, of Lanark, Ill., to begin Sept. 6 in his home church.

Bro. J. J. Johnson, of Dixon, Ill., to begin Sept. 3 in the Dry Creek church, Iowa.

Bro. Omer Maphis, of Chicago, to begin July 20 in the Sugar Ridge church, Mich.

Bro. S. G. Greyer, of Toledo, Ohio, to begin Nov. 2 in the Indianapolis church, Ind.

Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe, of Chicago, to begin July 20 in the Brumbaugh church, N. Dak.

Bro. C. A. Miller, of Kansas City, to begin Sept. 14 in the Independence church, Kans.

Bro. John F. Burton, of Ankeny, Iowa, to begin Aug. 3 in the Allison Prairie church, Ill.

Bro. Ira Long, of Andrews, Ind., to begin Sept. 18 in the Sugar Creek church, same State.

Bro. Chas. Wakeman, of Edinburg, Va., to begin Aug. 9 in the Bean Settlement church, W. Va.

Bro. Eli Heestand, of Plymouth, Ind., to begin some time in September in the Andrews church, same State.

Bro. H. M. Stover, of Waynesboro, Pa., to begin July 27 in the Rocky Ridge house, Monocacy congregation, Md.

Bro. W. K. Conner, of Harrisburg, Pa., to begin Aug. 2 at the Fairview house, Codorus congregation, same State.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. Robert Kennedy, formerly of Ozawkie, Kans., is now located in the Waterford church, Calif.

Bro. G. E. Yoder, of Norristown, Pa., has taken up pastoral work in the New Enterprise church, same State, and should be addressed accordingly.

Bro. D. L. Miller and wife have been enjoying greatly their rest by the lake at Onekama, Mich. Bro. Miller is scheduled, however, to begin a series of meetings, the coming week, at Nappanee, Ind.

Bro. H. Stover Kulp, lately of New Enterprise, Pa., has entered upon his work as associate pastor of the First Church of Philadelphia, and should now be addressed at 2407 N. Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Bro. A. B. Hollinger, of Benzonia, Mich., proposes to leave that place by October, for a trip through the Northwest. He would be available for a few series of meetings in Wisconsin and Minnesota, if early application is made for his services. Those who are interested, will please address Bro. Hollinger at once.

Bro. C. B. Smith, of Morrill, Kans., one of our well-known evangelists, made his first visit to the Publishing House last week. He was accompanied by his wife, and stopped off at Elgin on his way to Onekama, Mich., where he is now engaged in evangelistic meetings. Following this, Brother and Sister Smith are to spend some time in Pennsylvania and Virginia.

A review of the life of the late Elder H. B. Brumbaugh, by his life-long associate, Eld. W. J. Swigart, is promised us for "Messenger" readers. Some delay in its preparation is necessitated by circumstances, among which is the death, a few days ago, of the seven-year-old and only son of Pres. I. Harvey Brumbaugh, of Juniata College, son of the deceased Eld. H. B. Brumbaugh. This added stroke bears very heavily on the bereaved ones and should certainly make heavy drafts upon our sympathies.

The following communication from Adjutant General P. C. Harris, addressed to Bro. H. C. Early, Moderator of the late Conference, is self-explanatory and may be of interest to our readers:

"Your communication of June 11, addressed to the President of the United States, in which you convey the prayer of your assembly for the release of certain general prisoners, now in confinement at the United States Disciplinary Barracks and Federal Penitentiary, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, has been transmitted to the Secretary of War. I am directed by the Secretary of War to acknowledge the receipt of this communication."

Bro. J. R. Smith, recently of Juniata, Nebr., wishes to inform his correspondents that his address has been changed to 323 N. Twenty-second Street, Lincoln, Nebr.

Bro. Minor C. Miller, of Bridgewater, Va., gave the "Messenger" rooms an unexpected but much appreciated call last Monday morning. Bro. Miller is the Sunday-school Secretary for the Second District of Virginia and has recently been entrusted with added responsibilities, under the new plan of grouping and organizing the Districts, lately adopted by the General Sunday School Board. He had been attending a Conference of Sunday-school workers at Lake Geneva, Wis., and stopped off at Elgin to confer with the Secretary of the General Board.

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

Churches of Middle Indiana will kindly note the announcement of Bro. Moyne Landis, concerning the Sunday-school Meeting and other gatherings of the District, to be held Aug. 18-20 in the Spring Creek church.

On page 460 we publish Sister M. C. Swigart's interesting report of the Sisters' Aid Society Meeting, held at the Winona Lake Conference. We are sure that every sister will be interested in the special "Forward Movement" program, decided upon by that gathering of enthusiastic sisters. Theirs is a vision of great possibilities, and we are sure that the Aid Societies throughout the Brotherhood will respond with an instant and ready acceptance of the proposed task.

On page 462 we publish the program of the various District gatherings of the First District of Virginia, to be held at the Selma church, July 30 to Aug. 1.

Bro. D. G. Brubaker makes an announcement among the Texas Notes for the benefit of delegates and others who desire to attend the District Conference of Texas and Louisiana, to be held at Nocona, Texas, July 23-25.

The communication from Bro. A. I. Mow, of Weiser, Idaho, found on page 460 of this issue will tell our readers of the distressing accident which recently befell him and his family, so similar to that of Brother and Sister Lear. And the sympathies of all will go out to them. At the date of writing, June 30, Bro. Mow had been confined for eighteen days in the hospital at Lewiston, Idaho. He had hopes of persuading the doctors to send him home within a few days. Sister Mow, who seems not to have been seriously injured, had gone on home at the time of the accident, while the daughter remained in Lewiston. Surely we can appreciate the following statement in Bro. Mow's personal letter: "You can imagine our grief at being thus stranded and scattered and disabled." Our readers will recall that one of Brother and Sister Mow's daughters, Anetta, is now a missionary in India.

MISCELLANEOUS

We are requested to announce that the series of meetings in the Harman church, Va., previously announced for Sept. 13, is to begin Sept. 6, as now arranged. This also changes the date of the love feast from Sept. 27 to Sept. 20.

The Mont Ida church, Kans., desires to secure the services of a resident minister, and to that end would be pleased to correspond with those who may feel inclined to entertain a proposition of that sort. Address E. A. Watkins, Mont Ida, Kans., for further particulars.

Churches of Southern Indiana will please note that the annual Conference of that District will be held in the Rossville church Aug. 28, instead of the date given on last year's Minutes. Matter for the District Conference Booklet should be sent to Bro. O. D. Werking, 1614 S. Buckeye Street, Kokomo, Ind., by July 25.

A pastor is needed at Enders, Nebr. The congregation has a membership of about seventy. There is a good house of worship, and prospects for future growth are excellent, if a good leader can be secured. Applicants for this pastorate will please address Bro. I. E. Snavely, Wauneta, Nebr., at their earliest convenience.

Bro. Harley V. Townsend, Woodland, Mich., Secretary-Treasurer of the District Mission Board of Michigan, sends us the following notice, of special importance to the churches of that District: "According to a decision of District Meeting an offering is to be taken among the local churches of the District for District Mission Funds, and carried to District Meeting. That this may be ready for District Meeting, it will be necessary to take this offering not later than the first or second Sunday in August."

Bro. S. S. Brubaker, Secretary of the Board of Trustees of "The Home," Girard, Ill., sends us the following, to which the special attention of the members of Southern Illinois is directed: "It is the desire that each congregation arrange, in its own way, to take up an offering for the benefit of 'The Home.' These offerings are to be brought to District Meeting and to be taken up in one offering at the session on Tuesday evening, preceding District Meeting. As you have not been canvassed for several years for this purpose, will you please respond cheerfully and liberally? Should we not try to swell the offering to at least $500? This would be only twenty-five cents a member, and many of us could give dollars. The share of each congregation can be calculated by the number of members. Presiding officers of each congregation will please act at once; get at it in time. May there be a generous response, that the Lord may be praised for his goodness in the lives of his children!"

ELDER J. F. GRAYBILL'S ITINERARY AMONG CHURCHES OF EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA

Bro. Nathan Martin, 1031 Poplar Street, Lebanon, Pa., sends us the following, which reached us just before closing these columns. To insure early insertion we publish it on this page:

July 19, Big Swatara, Paxton house; 20, Big Swatara, Hoernerstown house, morning; Big Swatara, Hanoverdale house, afternoon; Big Swatara, East Hanover house, evening; 21, Annville, Annville house; 22, Conewago, Conewago house; 23, Conewago, Bachmanville house; 26, East Fairview, East Fairview house; 27, West Greentree, Greentree house, morning; West Greentree, Rheems house, evening; 29, Mountville, Mountville house; 30, East Petersburg, Salunga house; 31, East Petersburg, East Petersburg house; Aug. 1, 2, Mechanic Grove, Mechanic Grove house; 3, Lancaster, Lancaster house; 4, White Oak, Longeneker house; 5, White Oak, White Oak house; 6, Spring Grove, Kemper house; 7, Spring Grove, Vogansville house; 9, Ridgely, Md., Ridgely house; 10, Peach Blossom, Md., Fairview house, morning; Peach Blossom, Md., Eastoo house, evening; 24, Shamokin, Shamokin house; 25, Reading, Reading house; 26, Maiden Creek, Mehrsville house; 27, Reading, Baumstown house; 28, Mingo, Mingo house; 29, Mingo, Skippack house; 30, Indian Creek, Indian Creek house; 31, Hatfield, Hatfield house, morning; Hatfield, Landale house, afternoon; Hatfield, Souderton house, evening.

AROUND THE WORLD

A Neglected Field

Of the 25,000,000 children under twelve years of age, in the United States, more than 13,000,000 are said to be wholly without regular religious instruction. While ours is a land of Bibles and the best of religious privileges, seemingly a deplorably large number of children remains unreached. An attempt is to be made to secure exact data on the subject from every community in this country and Canada. Inquiries by the Illinois State Sunday School Association reveal that only about thirty-five per cent of the children of that State are receiving instruction in Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jewish schools. This is an alarming condition. It should arouse every Christian to renewed effort.

Agricultural Progress for China

It is estimated that at least eighty-five per cent of China's vast population is agricultural, and that this percentage is likely to be increased with each generation. One student of the situation, after a thorough investigation, declares: "If missionary activity is to be most efficiently directed, the agricultural mission must be one of the strong movements of the coming years." From this we would infer that future years are going to give the missionary a new grip on the people of China, if he can help them in their farming. The Canton Christian College and the Nanking University are now giving courses in agricultural training, which have already proved of undoubted value to mission workers.

New Zealand Alsn Awakening

Talk as you may—there is a world-wide uprising against strong drink. The people of New Zealand voted some months ago on a plan to prohibit all sales of liquor, but somehow the dealers had managed to insert a clause by which they were to be financially compensated for the destruction of their business. As might be expected, the proposed measure, thus handicapped, failed to carry. The friends of prohibition, however, did not lose courage, but worked faithfully for the calling of another election, to be held next November. At that time the voter is to choose one of three propositions: "(1) Prohibition without compensation. (2) State purchase. (3) Continuance as it is." The dry forces are quite confident that the first proposition will win out.

A Peaceful Invasion

Never before in history has there been recorded the advent of an army of occupation, such as recently entered Turkey. Among its three hundred and fifty workers there are missionaries, physicians, nurses, sanitary engineers, mechanics, etc. They have, among their well-chosen supplies, food in abundance, one hundred thousand blankets, clothing, shoes, medical stores, tractors, etc. United States colliers are transporting this vast equipment and our Government is endorsing this praiseworthy endeavor for the alleviation of distress throughout the Turkish domains. While this most remarkable effort will perhaps receive but scant recognition in the daily press, it is, nevertheless, a most cheering evidence of awakening consciousness of the great world need.

President Wilson Home Again

Shortly after three o'clock, July 8, the Chief Executive of our great nation arrived at the Hoboken pier, New York, after his extended stay in France. The enthusiastic reception, tendered him by the cheering thousands of men, women and children, who thronged the sidewalks and filled every available space, was indicative, no doubt, of the great appreciation felt by the country at large, by reason of the great service he has rendered to humanity in general. Speaking of the generous welcome that had been extended to him, as America's representative, on the other side of the water, he said: "I was welcomed because they had seen with their own eyes what America had done for the world. They had deemed her selfish, . . . but they found her devoted to the highest interests of humanity."

The Nestorian Christians of India

Recently a convention of 30,000 Nestorian Christians, originally from Syria, was held in Travancore, South India, and some particulars regarding these interesting people are given by Dr. Sherwood Eddy who, at the time, was holding meetings there. A tradition, firmly believed by these Nestorians, is that the Christian churches in South India were founded by the Apostle Thomas. Like some others of the early churches, they were at first strongly missionary, but after a time became negligent, and for hundreds of years were wholly inactive. About a hundred years ago the Church Missionary Society of England attempted to revitalize this ancient body of Christians, and twenty-five years ago these Syrian Christians held their first convention. During the recent convention Dr. Eddy made special efforts to inspire these people to renewed zeal and activity. At the final meeting "a wave of prayer swept the audience like the murmur of the sea." There was a general rededication of the people, and many of the Hindus also accepted Christ.

Baptists Less Insistent upon Immersion

According to the "Independent," the Baptists in this country are disposed to place less stress upon immersion as the only valid form of baptism. Dr. Joseph W. Kemp, a Baptist minister of New York, following in the wake of other leading men of that denomination, no longer makes immersion a test of fellowship, but admits members into his church whether immersed or merely sprinkled. These divergences from past practices, of course, are vigorously attacked by the more conservative members of the Baptist Church who, by a goodly majority, are still in control. Just how far the spirit of growing liberality, in most of the churches, will carry the members of these organizations, we are unable to say. That in too many cases the trend is along "the line of least resistance," is obvious to even a casual observer.

The Cost of Peace

Latest Government reports declare that during the period from May, 1917, to June 24, 1919, it cost the United States 289,016 casualties for its part in bringing peace to the world. Later on in June, other "war cost facts" were published, according to which approximately 50,000 Americans died from battle wounds, 57,000 died from disease, and 136,000 others were wounded. In the one battle of the Argonne Forest, 120,000 Americans were either killed or wounded. America's casualties in the war were infinitely smaller, however, than those of the other nations. Belgium alone lost twice as many men as the United States' 50,000. Great Britain's total of deaths was about 900,000, while Russia's is given as 1,700,000, and France's as 1,385,300. A sobering feature of the summary is the fact that the four central powers lost only 2,750,000, while the allied total is 4,700,000.

The Power of Little Things

It was just a small matter when "Uncle Sam" added a cent to the postage rate of letters and postal cards, and little importance was attached to the action by the people in general, who paid the additional fee and thought no more about it. And yet the result was most gratifying to our Government, for the neat sum of $126,000,000 was thus raised for the urgent needs of the depleted United States treasury. By a recent decision the postage rates have been reduced again to the former basis, but it is to be hoped that the lesson of the cumulative power of little things will not soon be forgotten by the people of our land. By the united efforts of every citizen the millions, above referred to, were raised without undue hardship to any one. Just as readily every church in our land might secure ample and greatly-needed means for its activities by the help of every member. All we need is the right spirit.

The Power of Propaganda

Not one of us has a special love for the American Tobacco Company; but we must certainly admit that the managers of that powerful concern "put over," during the war, the greatest advertising proposition of the century. By skillful manipulation they caused public opinion to reverse itself on the cigarette question. They even enlisted the coöperation of such respectable organizations as the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross, in the diligent expansion of the propaganda, so highly beneficial to the financial interests of the American Tobacco Company. Appealing to the patriotism of the American people, they urged that, next to food, the cigarette was an absolute necessity, and as a result thousands of people, hitherto opposed to cigarettes, bought them in ever-increasing numbers for our boys. Such is the power of propaganda, but why not, preferably, mould public opinion for the highest interests of the Kingdom?

The Need of Vigilance

Under the blessing of God and by the indefatigable efforts of temperance workers, America is now free from the tyranny of the legalized liquor traffic. We rejoice that the day of better things has dawned, but right now, while the songs of victory are still resounding, let us remember that, as in all other things truly worth while, the assurance for the future is based upon vigilance that knows no abatement. In past decades a vast amount of wealth has been won from victims of drink slavery. These resources have been placed into a common fund, and no secret is made of the fact that by every possible device—fair or otherwise—the prohibition regime will be overthrown. Lawyers of keenest intellect have been secured. Newspapers, well recognized as moulders of public opinion, have been subsidized. Brazen alliances have been made with corrupt politicians. "Vile fellows of the rabble" (Acts 17: 5, Am. Rev.) have been mustered into service to do the bidding of the liquor autocrats. Meanwhile, wholly oblivious of the danger threatening their newborn freedom, many of the temperance workers are "resting upon their laurels." From many pulpits fervent sermons are delivered on the new obligations of the church, in the light of a coming world democracy, but all too often there is never a word uttered about adequate provisions to meet the sinister forces of King Alcohol. Our children, even, are not as effectually warned against the perils that impend if the American liquor traffic succeeds in its cherished plans of again gaining a foothold. Many of our leading statesmen talk glibly and eloquently on the blessings of democracy for the peoples of all lands, but, strange to say, they somehow forget to say something about, safeguarding our hard-won prohibition of the liquor traffic, without which proviso self-government can no more be assured of safety than the passengers of a railroad train with a drunken engineer.

Japan Desires to Do Better

As matters seem to be working out, the Korean revolution will at least have some results for the better. It has already aroused, in Japan, powerful protests against the colonial administration at Seoul, whose failure is sufficiently advertised by the simple fact that it has brought bad repute upon the Japanese name at a most critical time. Several of the most influential papers openly call in question the attitude of the Japanese Government towards the reasonable request of the Koreans. Latest reports announce that the Japanese imperial cabinet fully realizes that an unwise policy—to say the least—has been followed. It is also announced that in the future there will be greater assistance given to the missionaries and their work. It is recognized that the missionary is the best friend of Korea as well as Japan.

A Frank Admission

Whether or not wholly due to relaxed moral restrictions during the war period, Great Britain regretfully admits that the stage was never so low, so vile, as at present. One of the leading actresses of London recently confessed: "The theaters, as now being conducted, are rotten, low and degrading." The British Dramatic League, with surprising candor, admits the truthfulness of the opinion just quoted, declaring that "the stage is but a mirror that reflects the frailties and vices of the period—it never pretends to be more righteous than the people in general. If humanity does not like what it sees in the mirror"—we are told—"it must change its face—nothing else will help." An American clergyman, the Rev. Wm. Burgess, of Illinois, says: "The American stage is so bad that it 'might make devils blush.'" Surely, no Christian can afford to endorse theatrical performances.

Winning the Street Waifs of Cairo, Egypt

Long regarded as a second Sodom, Cairo is undoubtedly very much in need of a genuine uplift. One of the means to that end is seen in the Sunday-schools now being held for the children of the streets. A devoted worker of the United Presbyterian Mission goes every Sunday afternoon with her Egyptian helpers to the slum section of the city, gathers the children about her and teaches them Bible stories and texts. She also distributes picture cards, supplied through the "World Sunday School Association Surplus Material Department," and prays with the little waifs. Some are boot-blacks, some are beggars and most are Moslems. Now they run about, singing: "Create in Me a Clean Heart," instead of swearing, quarreling and fighting. It is planned to open more of such schools in the near future. They are a promising feature of community betterment.

The Future of Palestine

In times past, Jewish philanthropists have given lavishly and often indiscriminately for the resettlement and development of the land of their fathers. However well-meaning these efforts may have been, they have not always been productive of the best results. Marion Weinstein, a Jewish writer who, by a personal investigation of conditions in Palestine, is prepared to speak with authority, maintains that the great need of the country is promoters who will volunteer as investors, rather than philanthropists. It is the ambition of the Jews, now in Palestine, to make good on a business basis, and to that end they want the help of financiers with a vision. The earnest men and women, participating in the new settlement of Palestine, upon whom Zionists everywhere center their hopes for the coming commonwealth, ask to be freed from the grip of the present paternalism. They protest against what they term the "guardian" system, with its twin evils—paralysis of initiative and uncalled-for interference by non-residents. While they are grateful for the munificent assistance of Baron Rothschild and other Jewish philanthropists, the dwellers of Palestine—with their liberation from Turkish oppression—want a chance to stand on their own feet. It is recognized that by the initiative of her own people the Land of Promise can best be restored to its ancient prosperity. In this worthy endeavor they will be given the utmost assistance of the Allied Powers. As indications are now, the future of Palestine is more promising than ever before, since the lasting prosperity of the country will be chiefly dependent upon the development of its own resources, rather than munificent gifts.

HOME AND FAMILY

The Song I Love to Sing

BY RHETTA O'ROURKE

(Tune, "My Hope Is Built on Nothing Less Than Jesus' Blood and Righteousness")

I love to sing my Savior's praise,
The theme that gladdens all my days;
I sing his love and righteousness,
His grace and wondrous power to bless.
By faith I clasp his hand and climb,
Above the mountain steeps of time,
And view his holiness sublime.

When drifting on a stormy sea,
He walked the waters out to me,
And as I sank beneath the wave,
His hand outstretched to cheer and save.
Now to that outstretched hand I cling
And through the storm my praises sing,
To him my Savior and my King.

Then let me live close by that shore,
Where ships must pass till time is o'er,
And hold aloft a shining light,
To guide the wand'rers through the night.
To guide them to the port of peace,
Their barques from wind and waves release,
Where ebb and flow of storm-tides cease.

Mattawan, Mich.

Concerning Youth and Age

BY OLIVE A. SMITH

THE following is a record of the daily program of a young man who holds the position of manager of athletics in one of the largest educational institutions of the country:

Rises at 10 A. M. Lights a cigar, usually within a half-hour after rising. Breakfast, sometimes at 10:30 or 11, sometimes not at all. At 10:30 or 11, depending upon the school program for the week-day, he mounts his bicycle for a three-minute ride to the building where he hears a small class recite on some subject connected with gymnasium work. Returns to his apartment, where he continues smoking, and writes on his typewriter until time for lunch.

After lunch, more smoking, a bit of desultory reading and an hour or so spent in the performance of the "chores" which belong to life in a furnished apartment.

At 2:30, or thereabouts, the wheel is mounted again, and another three-minute ride takes the manager to the building where he hears another very small class. After this he spends a short time with the junior boys in the gymnasium or on the grounds. Then he returns to the apartment and the remainder of the day is spent in a little telephoning, a very little writing, and a great deal of smoking. Every movement indicates unlimited leisure and utter absence of anxiety or responsibility. There is a small amount of class-work after the six o'clock dinner, but the remainder of the evening is usually spent in attendance upon some social function—often a dance which lasts well into the wee small hours of morning.

As husband and wife must necessarily be one, to some extent, in personal habits, the wife of this athletic manager leads a life as flabby, as desultory and unhealthful as that of her husband. There is a little typewriting, a little thrumming on the piano, a little fancy work, a little housework—the kind which is performed with the aid of all modern machinery and telephone ordering of supplies, regardless of cost.

This young man draws, from the State, a salary more than double that of the average efficient grade teacher in the public schools. It exceeds the salary of many of our pastors and the heads of departments in our colleges. True, the salary may not do him as much good as the salaries of these various personages do them, because there are so many individuals ready and anxious to help him dispose of it. Mother Nature is the soul of justice, and when she is persistently thwarted, flaunted, insulted, and confined in an atmosphere laden with ancient tobacco smoke, self-consciousness and introspection, she refuses to "stand for it." So the doctor and the druggist, the osteopath and hydropath, the psychopath and neuropath, the oculist and optometrist—the entire tribe of healers, including the corn-doctor, and the beauty doctor—all are in line with outstretched hands, to receive the amounts due them for keeping these young people in good order for public presentation.

About two hours before the milkman begins pounding on the door of the apartment, occupied by this young couple, a white-haired man passes on his way to work. He is not riding a wheel and he is not looking for the street car, a block away. He walks to his prosperous little printing-office and he clips along as if every nerve were keenly alive to the privileges of the morning. He walks erect, his head is thrown back, not bent forward, as is the habit of the young man who leans over his handlebars and holds on grimly to his cigar.

This man has lived forty years longer than the athletic manager. He has known much sorrow. His wife and daughter were called from earth years ago and his only home is with his son. But through his long life of work and love, sorrow and disappointment, he has preserved his self-poise. The habits of industry, honesty, activity and unselfishness, which were formed in his youth, have kept him vigorous in mind and body. He may or may not, be a college graduate. He may, or may not, have passed through certain courses of study and physical training. But he has taken the discipline which real life offers to the real life-worker, and the result is that he is every inch a man, performing creditably a man's task in the world, though there are seventy years behind him.

The income from his shop is not equal to the salary the State pays the coach, yet he is always neat and well-dressed. He lives simply, but he is no stranger to little luxuries. He reads a great deal and thinks deeply and reverently in regard to the duties of the hour. He does not need so much money because he knows how to use a small amount in accomplishing a large purpose. As for the druggist, the doctor, etc., he is too busy, and too much alive to know that he needs them, except on rare occasions. And this, by the way, is a very good substitute for failing to need them. Then, too, he has these other things which may be called substitutes for the healers: The fresh air and the exercise, the purposeful attitude toward life. He has these things, but he has no youth, according to the calendar.

There is another man who often passes the house before the arrival of the milkman. He is still older than our friend of the printing-office. He can no longer walk erect, but he is out taking the breath of the morning. Sometimes he has an ax or a spade. He cuts down the dead trees in his yard, trims his shrubbery, and does many things to preserve the beauty of one of the most beautiful homes in the town. He is no longer able to go to his furniture store down town. But the business runs smoothly without him. His life has been so systematic and well-ordered, he has put so much power and energy into his business, that it goes on according to the lines he has made. There are nearly eighty years of life behind this man and he is still one of the vigorous men of the community.

Comparisons are always odious and there is nothing to be proven by them. It can not be assumed that our young man is the type of all young men or of all the managers of athletics, or that our white-haired friends are typical of all elderly business men. It can not be stated that our young manager is the product of one system of education and that our elderly friends are the products of another. We might raise the question as to whether or not our young man and his wife typify any distinctive tendencies among the young people of today, particularly the young people connected with our educational institutions. But it would be quite useless. We know only this, that this young person of the morbid, unhealthful, unyouthful habits, is the trainer of another generation more youthful than his own. He is a teacher of teachers. His every custom is at variance with the customs which are supposed to be in keeping with youth. He is the living challenge to imitation and emulation which every teacher is, whether he wills to be or not.

A kindly soul who wished to apologize for the manager's seeming indifference to the virtues of energy and oxygen, was heard to say: "So many of the boys are away in camp now. He has nothing to do."

"Nothing to do!" With all the priceless possessions of youth, and a department to make big and splendid! I can not forbear another comparison, odious though it be.

Before the advent of this young couple, the apartment was occupied by a stocky son of Israel and his wife. He, too, is a manager, but in the world of business. He conducts a store for his wealthy brother. Every morning at 6:30 the alarm-clock would break the silence of the apartment and this manager would begin bustling around, preparing to catch the early car. He, too, has white hair. He has lived sixty years, reared a family of splendid young people, won the respect of all his fellow-townsmen and preserved his youthfulness. When asked why he persisted in going out so early in the morning he replied:

"I don't like to ask my clerks to open the store any earlier than I'm willing to be there myself. And, besides that, I rather like it."

Youth has always been considered a priceless possession. Poets and romanticists have ascribed to it the virtues of strength, energy, ambition and aspiration. It has always been called "the morning of life."

There was once a vigorous man, neither very old nor very young, who wrote inspiring messages to the people of various organizations. His writings are still held to be of great value in our schools, our churches, and our homes. Imagine, if you can, this veteran of life's battles, addressing a dreaming athletic manager at ten o'clock of a bright, sunshiny morning, with words like these: "I write unto you, young men, because ye are strong."

Emporia, Kans.

Love That Counts

BY NETTIE C. WEYBRIGHT

MANY of us remember the poem in one of our readers when we were children in school, entitled: "I Love You, Mother." You know the story, how Tom and Nell told her of their love for her, but it remained for faithful little Fan to prove her love by her works. She was even glad for her school vacation, so she could more fully devote her time to helping her mother. "Which of them really loved her best?"

Men and women are only boys and girls grown taller. Childhood traits often cling to us with such a tenacity that a whole lifetime of effort can not cast them off. "If ever I loved thee, my Jesus, 'tis now"—did you ever sing it when, down deep in your heart, you knew that you could not prove your statement by your life of unselfish service for Christ in helping his children? "If ye love me, keep my commandments," says my Lord and yours. Do we know his commandments? Do we obey them? Do we love him? God knows.

Last winter, when influenza made such raids on nearly every household, we, like hundreds of other families, were all sick at one time. We needed help, surely. A loved one risked the danger of the disease, came and tenderly cared for us day and night. Did she love us? Yes, we know she did. She proved her love by her deeds. Others, of whose love we are sure, came, too, and helped us in our need.

So may we show our love to Christ, our Savior. He does not need any material aid. The time is past when his followers could invite him into their homes and give him good meals, a comfortable bed or new clothing. When you think of those days, do you not almost envy those early Christians who had that blessed privilege? But he dwells now in the spirit world, and needs none of our creature comforts. How, then, may we prove our love? By remembering and helping his children—even "the least of these, my brethren." Here our field of service is limited only by our ability to serve.

The cry of the needy is as a continual moaning in our ears. Just this week this thought has come to me very forcefully. There was the usual home work to be done. A friend near by needed help. A letter from a sister in an adjoining State, left with four little ones, by the sudden death of her husband in a railroad accident, tells of her need of money and clothing. Then comes a letter, telling of a dear young sister, sick in a city hospital. Having but little money she, too, needs help. Then there are some earnest workers, who built a mission chapel in our old college town, who are in need of more funds to pay off their debt. Then I read in the Gospel Messenger how thousands upon thousands of human beings in the Near East are famishing for food—no bread, no help in sight. They are dying even now as I write—people for whom Christ died, without hope, without Christ. These are my brethren and sisters, and yours. The question can not be: "Will I help them?" but, "How much can we do for them?" Ah, how can we spend our money for that which is not bread, or our time for that which satisfieth not?

Then there are those, all around us—right at our door—whose loads we could lighten if we would. Will we do so? There are the poor, the sick, the discouraged, those who are overburdened with work, the mourning, the sin-sick. No matter what your talent, God can surely use you in his work if you are willing.

Can you talk, or read, or sing, or pray for the needy one? If not, maybe you can do some work for them. If you can not work in another's home, possibly the unfortunate one needs your five-dollar bill, instead—or even much more.

Are you doing all you can for your minister? A speaker at our last District Meeting said: "When you know your minister needs help, go there in your work-clothes and help him with his work, or do it for him so he can study. Don't wait for him to ask you to come. No self-respecting minister in Northern Indiana will call you by telephone and say: "I need you to help with my work today, so please come over." He would rather do the work himself than ask for help. His needs are no less than ours. He needs a home and its comforts as well as we do. His children need food and clothing as do ours. His farm requires as much work and attention as our own. Besides all this, he studies, while the rest of us sleep. He ponders the problems of the church and how he can do more and better work while you and I are planning for our more selfish interests, perhaps. But this is only one instance.

We surely must have ears that hear not and eyes that see not, if we can find nothing to do for Christ and his children. Help! Help! is the world cry. The Lord needs you. He needs even me. How great is our love for him? Workers are needed. Will we help? Is our love a "love that counts"?

Syracuse, Ind.

Credulity of Children

BY EZRA FLORY

Charles Lamb said: "Credulity is the man's weakness, but the child's strength." As parents and teachers it is our duty to lead the child to perfect knowledge and yet preserve his instinctive faith. This is no easy task. How shall we do it? When the Israelitish children came with a sincere question: "What mean these stones?" the parent was to begin at that point and teach the child Jehovah's loving care for them and the meaning of the monument.

The other day a little fellow became impatient on the train, when he was unable to go on, for the time being. He asked why the train did not go. The father directed the sincere child to push on the back of the seat, to help start the train. It started, and the delight that filled the countenance of the innocent and credulous soul was really pathetic rather than entertaining.

When mother made my first coat, brother told me that the collar was for the teacher to hold to when he should whip me. Somehow I curiously wondered if that were true. A few days later the prophecy was fulfilled.

Two children quarreled. One said: "It is so 'cause my mama says so." The other said: "It isn't so 'cause my mama says it is not so, and my mama is older than yours." Away went the second child to ask his mama if she were not older than Harry's mama, and when he knew it he returned with fullest assurance that he was in the right.

A father who is a preacher gave decided orders to his little son to do an errand. The son replied to his father: "Do you mean it or are you just preaching?"

Another father spoke very roughly to his small son. A visitor said: "Don't you think you'd better go?" The son replied: "Oh, he often talks that way."

A Sunday-school teacher said: "Now, who was the strongest man?" A little girl replied: "My papa."

Rob said to his father: "Two things I dread: being baptized and getting married."

One said: "What my father says is so, even if it ain't so."

Another child asked leave to eat some onions. The mother said: "No, for the people at church would not desire to smell them." He hesitated a moment and then inquired if they would like to smell cake.

You recall many more instances similar to these, no doubt. But let me ask you: Is credulity an ally or an enemy in teaching the little souls, reaching out to the light as earnestly as a plant stretches to the sun in growth? It depends upon yourself. How are you treating this God-given instinct? The little ones have unbounded confidence in their parents. Are we as sincere with them?

Chicago, Ill.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

WAYSIDE THOUGHTS

How good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! Not all of us could go to Annual Conference. Likely there was not room for all. But on that Whitsunday morning we could all, in our morning devotions, ask our Father in heaven, through the Loving Savior, for a Pentecostal outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and that all might be guided by that Spirit which never leads one astray.

Some of us promised allegiance to our Captain in our younger years. We aided in the Sunday-school and church work till age and bodily affliction prevented. The writer is now nearing his eighty-fourth mile-stone. When Christ, the Good Samaritan, journeyed from heaven to earth, he saw us. He came where we were in our helpless condition. He had pity and compassion and poured on the oil and wine of comfort and consolation. He bound up our wounds and bruises with divine love. He brought us into the church of the true and living God, and by following his instructions, and putting our trust and confidence in God the Father, till we get to the end of our journey, we will all be enabled to spend our days acceptably. In his own good time Christ will take us to that heavenly mansion that he told the disciples he would prepare. There we will receive a crown of eternal life. "I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Yes, there will be room for all! Cornelius Kessler.

Girard, Ill.

NORTHEASTERN OHIO

The Christian Workers', Missionary and Sunday-school Meetings of the above-named District convened in the Akron City church June 24-26. Tuesday evening's sermon, given by Bro. A. H. Miller, was splendid, dealing with home training. If the training in the home were as it should be, much of our national and international conditions would be better.

Wednesday's meetings were called to order by Bro. A. H. Miller, chairman of the Sunday-school Board, after which the following officers took charge of the meetings for the day: Moderator, Samuel Holl; Reading Clerk, Pearl Culler; Writing Clerk, the undersigned.

The morning was spent in the interests of the Christian Workers' Society. Several interesting subjects were discussed and many helpful suggestions given. The afternoon was spent in the interests of the Forward Movement. Bro. J. I. Kaylor told us of their educational work in India and the plans for the Forward Movement. Bro. W. D. Keller gave a forceful address on the Forward Movement in America and what it would mean in Northeastern Ohio if every member would arouse to a sense of his opportunities.

The Missionary Meeting on Wednesday evening was Spirit-filled. Bro. Kaylor spoke on "Experiences in India." Bro. Lloyd M. Hoff's subject was "Why I Am a Volunteer" and Bro. Wm. Beahm's, "The Intercessory Missionary." Sister Fern Irvin gave a reading, "The Land of Covered Faces." Bro. Galen B. Royer then conducted a season of intercessory prayer. When he called for those to rise, who hope to be Volunteers, seventeen stood. Bro. H. H. Helman made a plea for the work of the District and an offering of $114.35 was lifted.

Thursday morning the Sunday-school Meeting began, with Bro. Charles Moomaw, Moderator; Anna Stuckey, Reading Clerk; Corda Wertz, Writing Clerk. Sister Morse told us briefly what the home owes to the Sunday-school. Bro. Royer spoke on "What Constitutes True Success in the Sunday-School." Sister Rohrer held up the ideal school and what she hopes to find when she comes to visit our schools. Bro. Byler gave some very practical thoughts on the rewards of the consecrated teacher.

The meeting decided to support Sister Anna Brumbaugh on the field. She goes as a representative from this District.

The spirit of the meeting was splendid throughout. The music was especially good, being in charge of Sister Viola Wieand. A number of special selections were given.

The presence of Bro. J. I. Kaylor, of India, Bro. Galen B. Royer, of Pennsylvania, and Bro. O. E. Messamer, of Chicago, was much appreciated, and added greatly to the interest of the meeting.

The Akron church knows how to entertain a large meeting of this kind. The organization of forces seemed almost perfect. They have some aged members, but a large group of young people. All are a credit to their leader, Bro. H. A. Bruhaker.

May the Father bless the work done and grant wisdom and guidance to the leaders of the District! May every member do his full share for the Kingdom of Christ!

Kent, Ohio. Emma S. Miller.

LIAO CHOU, SHANSI, CHINA

Our yearly District Meeting for the Chinese members of the Church of the Brethren was held at Liao Chou May 22 to 25. This meeting is a mile-post in the history of the Chinese church. Pastor Yin, with several other members of the Ping Ting church, was with us and took a very active part in making the meeting helpful and interesting. Pastor Yin was appointed chairman and acted the part very creditably.

The meeting opened on Thursday morning, May 22, at 7 o'clock, by an hour of prayer and Bible study. At 9:30 our main meeting was opened by an address of welcome by Mr. Wang, who is the Chinese superintendent of our Boys' School. Thereafter the greater part of the meetings was given up to discussions vitally important to the welfare of the Chinese church. The main sessions on Thursday, Friday and Saturday were held from 9:30 to 12 A. M., and 2:30 to 4:30 P. M. Following is a list of the subjects discussed: "The Present, the Church's Great Opportunity." "The Christian's Duty in His Own Home." "The Christian's Duty to Those Outside of the Church." "Why Does Not the Church Prosper?" "The Standard for Christians to Seek to Attain."

Two men for each subject were previously appointed, to prepare and open the discussions. These two were allowed twenty minutes each, after which the subjects were opened for general discussion, each speaker being allowed five minutes. The subjects were discussed very earnestly and many splendid speeches were made. Although our sessions were somewhat lengthy, the interest did not lag, nor did we need to hire men to enter the discussion. Our Chinese Christians become very much interested at these meetings and they can hardly wait for one speaker to finish, till they are up on the floor to present their opinion on the subject.

Eld. F. H. Crumpacker, of Ping Ting, was with us and added much to the interest and helpfulness of the meetings. The subject, "The Present, the Church's Great Opportunity," was discussed with the greatest enthusiasm and feeling. Bro. Crumpacker opened up this topic with a most forceful speech upon the necessity of the Chinese church awaking to her opportunity, to save China for Christ before it is too late. China now has her doors wide open. The church of Jesus Christ has never had so great an opportunity in China as just now. The wheat is ripe unto the harvest and if we do not awake and thrust in the sickle, the time will soon come when it will be forever too late.

Mr. Wang, superintendent of the Boys' School, then followed, making a most remarkable appeal to his fellow-Chinese to arise and meet the crisis as Christian soldiers should, to save China from evil. He was so moved with emotion that he could hardly begin his speech, and when he had spoken but a few words, the audience, almost with one voice, broke out weeping. The school-boys were especially moved. Many went as if they were broken-hearted. In our five years in China we have never seen a Chinese audience so moved. The Chinese interpreted the demonstration as the presence of the Holy Spirit in great power. All through the meetings the Spirit was manifestly present, and all expressed themselves as having been much strengthened, and many resolved that they were going to give their lives to save their beloved country.

(Continued on Page 467)

MIDDLE DISTRICT OF MISSOURI

The Sunday-school Conference of the above-named District is to be held at Adrian, Mo., July 19 and 20. Moderator, D. L. Mohler. Chorister, D. M. Wenrick.

Saturday evening, 8 o'clock: Theme, Inspiration in the Work.—In charge of Eld. D. L. Mohler.

Sunday morning, 10 o'clock: Theme, Classification, Theory and Demonstration. Demonstration of Class in Graded Lessons.—In charge of Mrs. Fern Wagner. Getting Along With the Boys.—M. E. Neher. Demonstration of Intermediate Class-work.—In charge of Miss Irma Whitmore. "How I Get Along With My Girls."—Mrs. Betty Wyatt.

Afternoon, 1: 30: Demonstration and Discussion of the Different Classes of Church and Sunday-school Music, and Their Spiritual and Psychological Use.—In charge of Mrs. Maggie Nelson Weher. The Forward Movement of the Church.—In charge of Eld. James M. Mohler.

Evening, 7: 30: Song Service. Theme, Social Service.—In charge of Eld. D. L. Mohler.

THANK YOU

It was an accident. That same old Ford that ran true for five years, on many roads in twenty States, suddenly limped, shuddered, turned straight to the right, leaped off into the Snake River, rolled over and lay still on its side on a sandbar, twenty feet below the road. The three passengers, an old man, his wife and daughter, were still in the car.

"Father, are you killed?" "No, I'm alive." "Daughter, are you alive?" "I think I'm all right." The three had spoken. The man had his right leg broken, lower eyelid cut away, two cuts from eye down and one from the mouth down.

A passer-by phoned for the doctor and shortly they were in St. Joseph Hospital. It was the twelfth of June. The whole program was changed. They were joyfully headed for their home, from which they had been absent for several years. Since October the man had been an invalid on account of a broken arm. Now he is confined with a broken leg.

Their finances were spent. And now, while he lay in the hospital ward, crushed, despairing, friends in the city they were leaving, wrote: "We are coming to see you." They came. They said: "We are sorry. We want to console you, encourage you." They laid a purse by his side and said: "It's our prayer and substantial sympathy."

The people in the city to which they were going wrote: "The Christian Workers are praying for you." Some wrote: "Please accept this little gift as a help in your time of need." Many wrote and said: "We are praying for your comfort and speedy recovery."

All this brought abundant satisfaction and joy. To all these many thoughtful and loving friends we want to say, Thank you. We appreciate it all because we so greatly need it.

In one way it is a small matter for a hundred men to lift two hundred dollars, for it's little each one misses it. In another way it's a great thing, for they lovingly lift a burden under which the unfortunate one lies crushed and helpless, and they encourage him to rise, and God blesses them. It is great because they bear one another's burdens, because it is more blessed to give than to receive. It is great because it is the Father's life insurance; because it's laying up treasure in heaven.

St. Joseph Hospital, Lewiston, Idaho. A. I. Mow.

SISTERS' AID SOCIETY

Saturday, June 7, points to one of the best Aid Society Meetings ever held at Annual Conference. But why should it not be, when the Conference as a whole was the best ever held? The meeting was announced for 1: 30. Before the hour came, the Westminster Building was filled. Soon the seats were full and all standing room taken. The meeting was called to order by the President. Sister Anna Blough, late of India, opened the services with Scripture reading and prayer. Sister Isaac Frantz led the singing. Our Secretary read the report of our last meeting and also the financial report, which will appear in this paper in a short time.

Then came the program. Three papers had been prepared and were read. They were helpful to all Aid Society workers. A motion was made that the Aid Society organization adopt a Forward Movement. It was passed, including the following:

First, That every congregation have an Aid Society.

Second, That twenty per cent of the women of the church attend the Aid Society.

Third, That $20,000 be raised annually for home and foreign work.

Then, when some time had been given to further talks, the sisters still felt impressed for greater work, and since the Quinter Hospital has been provided for in India by the Aid Societies of America, it was decided that $24,000 be given to the work in the foreign fields, $12,000 for a Girls' Boarding School in India, and $12,000 for a hospital in Ping Ting, China, to be known as the "Hospital of Brotherly Love."

A Round Table had been prepared, but we are sorry to say that we did not have time to do justice to it. It became necessary for a meeting to be called for Monday, at 8 A. M. At this meeting Bro. Wampler, a missionary from China, was present, and gave a splendid talk on the need of the hospital there. A school is also needed in China, to educate the boys and girls. After we were told that one sister alone made it possible for China to erect this school building, we, as Aid Society workers, took courage and pledged funds for the building of a hospital.

Will you sisters, and all Aid Society workers, get some of the inspiration, and work just a little more diligently that we may, within the coming three years at least, erect a school in India and a hospital in China?

Do you have an Aid Society in your church? If not, why not? Two or three earnest women can sew together and thus start the work. Since the Conference, letters have been received, telling us of new societies being organized. Are you so tied down at home that you can not see your way clear to attend the meetings? Can you not give a little donation toward the work—a few spools of cotton, a yard or two of material, or, best of all, a little money? It all goes toward the same cause and you receive the blessing.

It is the burden of our heart that we may urge more sisters to do more work. A cup of cold water given in the Master's name will insure a reward. Will you be one to whom the Master will say: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me"? We are glad to give information to any Aid Society worker. Mrs. M. C. Swigart, President.

6611 Germantown Avenue, Philadelphia.

STERLING CHURCH, ILLINOIS

July 7 our usual bimonthly members' meeting was held. Eld. C. M. Suter presided. Two letters of membership were granted. Bro. F. H. Slater and wife were chosen to represent us at District Meeting; also at the Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meeting. Our Sunday-school outing, originally arranged for July 4, was postponed until Aug. 2.

Our church here, recognizing the great need of a larger auditorium at "Winona Lake Assembly Grounds," has decided to use the offering of July 20 for that purpose.

We, as a church, feel the need of a deeper consecration and have decided to meet at 9: 30 o'clock, each Sunday morning, for a thirty-minute service of consecration and prayer, prior to Sunday-school.

June 15, following the Conference, Eld. J. U. G. Stiverson came to us. He was pastor here a few years ago, but now has charge of the work at Oakland, Calif. He stayed a week with us and gave us a short series of revival services. These meetings were much appreciated. Dr. Fred Wampler, of China, came to us on the evening of June 21, and gave us a very interesting and instructive stereopticon lecture, showing the line of his work and the medical needs of China. Our little church responded with an offering of $18.25 for that needy field and our prayers go with the offering.

June 22 we held our love feast. Eighty-five communed, there being seven ministers present. Eld. J. U. G. Stiverson officiated. We feel much encouraged and strengthened because of our feasts of good things.

July 29 we observed Educational Day. Our pastor gave us two enthusiastic and inspiring sermons—"The Goal of a Christian Education," and "Educating Our Feelings." An offering of $16.47 was lifted and sent to Mt. Morris College, to be used for educational purposes.

We are glad for the missionary spirit of the Sterling church and we rejoice to see that spirit enlarging.

The Christian Workers' Society is supporting an India orphan, and the "Live Wire" class, of only four junior boys, is helping to raise a scholarship for a volunteer worker in South China. Mrs. Esther Mohler.

REAL PATRIOTISM ON JULY FOURTH

The pastors and resident ministers of the Girard, Virden, Macoupin Creek and Sugar Creek churches met and planned for their congregations to celebrate a safe and sane Fourth at the Old Pleasant Hill church grounds. Accordingly they invited Bro. A. C. Wieand and family to spend the week-end in our community and give us a few addresses.

The Fourth was a beautiful day, and although some of the farmers could not leave the harvest fields, yet we had a good crowd. In the forenoon Bro. Wieand spoke on "The Highest Patriotism." The afternoon address brought to us the thought that the people of the world are no more strangers but are now neighbors because of the marvelous inventions of the present day. Then Bro. Wieand told us of our duty to our neighbors.

The midday hours were spent in enjoying a bountiful basket dinner, in visiting with the older people and having a good time with the children at play.

Sunday, July 6, Bro. Wieand gave an educational address at Girard in the morning. In the afternoon an audience made up of members of our local congregations, listened to the story of Brother and Sister Wieand's capture by the Bedouins in Palestine, nine years ago. Sister Wieand also spoke. A joint meeting was again held in the evening, at the Virden church, at which time Bro. Wieand gave us a good sermon on Matt. 16: 13-19.

Girard, Ill. Ethel Harshbarger.

MORE INSTITUTES IN THE NORTHWEST

The schedule for the remaining Institutes on my North Dakota, Montana and Western Canada trip is as follows:

Milk River Valley, Mont., Saturday, Sunday, July 19, 20.
Nashua, Mont., Monday, Tuesday, July 21, 22.
Poplar Valley, Mont., Wednesday, Thursday, July 23, 24.
Grand View, Mont., Friday, Saturday, July 25, 26.
Williston, N. Dak., Sunday, Monday, July 27, 28.
Ray, N. Dak., Tuesday, Wednesday, July 29, 30.
Berthold, N. Dak., Thursday, Friday, July 31, Aug. 1.
York (Pleasant Valley), N. Dak., Saturday, Sunday, Aug. 2, 3.
Rolette, N. Dak., Monday, Tuesday, Aug. 4, 5.
Bethany, N. Dak., Wednesday, Thursday, Aug. 6, 7.
Brumbaugh, N. Dak., Friday, Saturday, Aug. 8, 9.
Ellison, N. Dak., Sunday, Monday, Aug. 10, 11.
Egeland, N. Dak., Tuesday, Wednesday, Aug. 12, 13.
Salem, N. Dak., Thursday, Friday, Aug. 14, 15.
Zion, N. Dak., Saturday, Sunday, Aug. 16, 17.

The second day of each Institute (except Williston and Ellison) will be an all-day session, with basket dinner.

Both evenings will be devoted to stereopticon lectures. One evening the subject is, "The Five-Year Forward Movement." The next evening "The Rural Church Facing Its Task and Making Good."

It is hoped that every member of these churches will assist in advertising these Institute sessions.

Gleichen, Alta., Can., July 9. Virgil C. Finnell.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 453)

September. We also arranged for our series of meetings for next year. Our offering and pledges for Armenian-Syrian Relief work amounted to $120, and our Conference offering was $102. In addition to this our Sisters' Aid Society pledged $50. Bro. Long has resigned as our pastor and expects to engage in evangelistic work after August 1.—Mrs. Chas. Eckman, Andrews, Ind., July 7.

Correction.—In the Center items I made a mistake in regard to the Harvest Meeting. It is to be Aug. 3 instead of 17, with Bro. J. F. Appleman in charge.—Mrs. O. W. Gordon, Walkerton, Ind., July 7.

Correction.—Through some misunderstanding I was told that the Harvest Meeting would be held the last of August, but Maple Grove church will have an all-day Harvest Meeting July 27. Eld. Manly Dexter will conduct the services.—J. G. Whitehead, New Paris, Ind., July 7.

Ft. Wayne church met in regular business session July 5, with Eld. J. H. Miller in charge. One item of business before us was the matter of redecorating of our house of worship, the work to begin at the earliest possible date. A communion service will be held in the near future, the date to be announced later. Bro. Miller also preached for us on Sunday morning, July 6. After the services, baptism was administered to one of our Sunday-school scholars.—J. Ahner, Ft. Wayne, Ind., July 10.

Goshen City church met in special council July 2. Six letters were granted. Four of these letters were to Eld. Gibson and family, who have moved to Auburn, where he has accepted a pastorate. It was decided to recall the Sunday evening services for July and August. The Men's Chorus will use some of these evenings in visiting surrounding churches to sing for them. An every-member canvass for subscriptions to the "Gospel Messenger" will be conducted. The church endorsed the pledge made by our delegate to Conference, which brings the total offering from Goshen City up to $500. The additional money will be raised by voluntary pledges. It was decided to change the pastoral year to Sept. 1, according to the recommendation of Conference. We are planning some improvements on the church as soon as funds are available. The Northern Indiana Sunday-school Convention and Bible Institute will be held here Aug. 19-23.—Beulah Manthan, Goshen, Ind., July 3.

Indianapolis.—We held our love feast on Sunday evening, June 22. The attendance was good. Bro. W. Carl Rarick, of Muncie, Ind., officiated. Bro. S. G. Geyer is now with us, and is getting started nicely. We are getting in touch with those of our membership who have grown more or less indifferent, and the church is taking on new life. We held our regular quarterly council July 5. Matters of a constructive nature were discussed at length. Bro. S. A. Hylton and Sister Helen Guynn were chosen delegates to District Meeting. We decided to hold a series of meetings beginning the first Sunday in November. Bro. S. G. Geyer is going to conduct the meetings. One member has been received by letter since our last report.—J. J. Kintner, 59 N. Holmes Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., July 8.

Manchester.—Bro. Ralph W. Schlosser, of Elizabethtown, Pa., has been with us recently in a fifteen days' meeting, beginning June 13. Six confessed Christ and were baptized. As a church we received a great inspiration and blessing, and hope to do more work. We are arranging for another Sunday-school outing, July 4. These outings have been a source of much pleasure and have been largely attended in previous years.—Ivah M. Grossnickle, North Manchester, Ind., July 2.

Notice.—To the Churches of Southern Indiana: The District Meeting of Southern Indiana will be held in the Rossville church Aug. 26, instead of the date given on last year's minutes. All churches having any matter for the booklet, will please send it in by July 25.—O. D. Werking, 1614 S. Buckeye Street, Kokomo, Ind., July 10.

Nettie Creek.—The Locust Grove Sunday-school observed a Cradle Roll and Mothers' Day June 15. Eld. D. M. Garver, of Trotwood, Ohio, gave a fine discourse and in the evening preached to the young people. Two have been baptized since the last report. July 27 we will have an all-day service at the Brick church, with Sunday-school at 9: 30. In the afternoon an educational program will be given and in the evening there will be a sermon especially for the young people.—Charles W. Miller, Hagerstown, Ind., July 3.

Notice to the Churches of Middle Indiana.—The Sunday-school Meeting of Middle Indiana will be held at the Spring Creek church Aug. 18-20. In connection with this, the Temperance, Educational and Missionary Meetings will be held. Strong programs are being prepared and an inspirational meeting is anticipated. Spring Creek church is near the Panhandle and Nickel Plate Railroads, where good accommodations may be had. It is also three miles east and seven miles north of North Manchester, on a good road, which places it within driving distance for the entire District.—Mayne Landis, Secretary, North Manchester, Ind., July 5.

Plevna church met in council June 28. In the absence of our elder, Bro. Peter J. Hoover presided. Bro. Hostetler was elected delegate to District Meeting, with Bro. Earl Kendall, alternate. The date for our communion is Oct. 11, at 6 P. M.—Tena Smith, Kokomo, Ind., June 30.

Plunge Creek Chapel.—We met in council June 28, with Bro. Book presiding. Bro. Geo. Frantz was elected on a committee for Sunday-school Convention and District Meeting and Bro. D. R. Murray as delegate to the Sunday-school Convention. One letter of membership was received. Bro. Book gave an inspiring talk on "Dress—a Character Builder." Bro. J. B. Moore, of Chicago, gave a splendid talk on temperance, which was much appreciated by all present.—Mrs. Leona Poland, North Manchester, Ind., July 3.

Spring Creek church has been enjoying some good things again. June 29 Brother and Sister Moore, who are visiting the churches in the interest of educational and temperance causes, were with us. His talk was very interesting and should be the means of awakening a greater interest among the churches along these lines of work. Sunday evening, June 29, the children gave a program that was greatly enjoyed by all present. July 6 Bro. Otho Winger, of North Manchester, gave us a lecture on "The Problems of the Country Church." A large number of people were present and we hope were benefited by the splendid talk. August 16-20 the District Sunday-school Meeting will be held here.—M. Amanda Ruder, Pierceton, Ind., July 8.

Sugar Creek church met in council May 31. Elders Geo. Swihart, J. A. Snell and I. E. Warren, were present. Bro. B. P. Emley was chosen elder for one year. We expect Bro. Ira Long, of Andrews, to begin a series of meetings Sept. 13. Our Harvest Meeting will be held Sept. 21 and our love feast Oct. 4. Our District Sunday-school Secretary, Bro. Lawrence Shultz, was with us June 29, both morning and evening. Brother Shultz will have charge of a temperance lectfre on Saturday evening, July 5. We greatly appreciate their help.—Lizzie Emley, South Whitley, Ind., July 3.

Union City church met June 20 in council, with Eld. B. F. Sharp presiding. We decided to hold our Daily Harvest Meeting on Sunday, Aug. 10, including a children's program. We expect Bro. Noah Erbaugh to be with us on that day. We also decided to hold an all-day meeting Sunday, Oct. 5, closing with a love feast in the evening. These meetings will both be held at the country house. June 29 Bro. Otho Winger was at the city house and addressed us on the subject of education, which was very instructive and appreciated by all.—Mrs. Pearl McFarland, Union City, Ind., July 8.

IOWA

Dry Creek church observed Mothers' Day. A program was rendered by the Junior and Senior Christian Workers' Societies, the former furnishing the recitations and the latter the music. June 15 our delegate gave us the report of the Annual Conference. June 22 Sister Sadie Miller gave an illustrated talk on India. Sunday morning she talked to the children and afterward to the older folk. Sunday evening, June 23, Bro. Sargent, of Chicago, gave a lecture on "Bright Lights in a Great City." He remained a few days, working in the interest of Bethany Bible School, soliciting students and financial aid. June 29 Bro. Clarence Gnagy, of Dysart, brought us a fine message. Sept. 3 we expect to begin our series of meetings, which will be conducted by Bro. J. J. Johnson, of Dixon, Ill., closing with a love feast Sept. 22.—Mrs. Jennie B. Miller, Robins, Iowa, July 7.

Panther Creek church met in council June 26, with Eld. A. M. Stine presiding. Sister Clara Walker was elected president of the Christian Workers' Society. Bro. Ira Long was appointed to work on the Local Missionary Committee and Bro. E. F. Emmert on the Program Committee. Since our last report two letters of membership have been received. We very fittingly observed Children's Day, with a special program rendered by children. Bro. Ira Shafer, one of our former ministers, now pastor of the Mt. Etna church, Iowa, spent a few days visiting here, and preached for us on Sunday evening.—Mrs. L. D. Replogle, Adel, Iowa, July 5.

South Ottumwa church council met June 17. Officers for the Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Meeting were elected. Bro. E. C. Stephens was chosen Sunday-school superintendent and Bro. Minor Hoover was elected president of the Christian Workers. The Junior Christian Workers' Society, which was organized a few months ago, was continued with Bro. Joe Sly as superintendent. Sister E. M. Baughman resigned as correspondent and the writer was chosen to fill the vacancy. The pastor, Eld. S. W. Garber, was the delegate to Annual Meeting and gave us a splendid report. The church greatly enjoyed a short visit with Eld. J. W. Jarboe, a former pastor, en route home from Annual Meeting.—Doris Howard, Ottumwa, Iowa, June 30.

South Waterloo.—Bro. C. D. Bonsack was with us in a two weeks' evangelistic campaign. He gave us many practical, inspirational and spiritual messages. Thirteen were received into church fellowship, some of whom had formerly been affiliated with other denominations. The meetings were well attended by the people. Much business came before the council at the last meeting. One letter was granted and eight received. Of this number six were deacons and their wives. The church is taking steps toward raising an endowment fund, to be used in assisting those of our young people who are preparing for the ministry or mission work. Both Sister Sadie Miller and Bro. Fred Wampler gave, in a very interesting way, illustrated missionary addresses respectively from fields of service. Many of our members and others of our community enjoyed the program, picnic dinner and social hour at the country church on the Fourth.—Ada M. Shank, South Waterloo, Iowa, July 8.

Spring Creek.—Bro. R. A. Saylor, of Bradford, Ohio, just closed a two weeks' series of meetings. Although there were no accessions to the church, we believe much good was done. Bro. Samuel Fike, of Waterloo, Iowa, conducted the services June 29. A letter of membership was received at our last council. Our love feast was held June 14.—Mrs. Fannie O. Long, Fredericksburg, Iowa, July 4.

KANSAS

Chapman Creek church met in council June 21, with Eld. E. D. Steward presiding. We held our love feast May 17, with about thirty members communing. June 29 a Children's Day program was rendered, after which Bro. Ira Long, of South Bethany, gave an educational address. He was also with us in the evening. A collection of $10.11 was taken for educational purposes. The attendance is growing, and all seem to be taking an interest in the church work.—Blanche Steward, Abilene, Kans., July 2.

Fredonia church held her regular members' meeting June 28, with Eld. W. C. Watkins presiding. Sunday-school officers were chosen for the next six months, with Sister Mary Waas, superintendent. We are to have a series of meetings and love feast this fall. We are glad to say we have our young minister, Bro. Ben Waas, with us again until school opens. Eld. Watkins resigned, as he intends leaving the District this fall. We are to have an all-day missionary Meeting at this place Aug. 10, Independence, Grenola, Chanute and Galesburg joining with us.—Mrs. W. H. Sell, Fredonia, Kans., July 2.

Independence.—The work here is progressing better than ever. July 3 twelve were baptized, all Sunday-school scholars. Our school is increasing every Sunday. Bro. Chas. Cline, our superintendent, is a real worker and is doing a great interest in the school. The church met in council July 6 with Eld. W. H. Miller presiding. The church was well represented. At the close of the council one was baptized. Our membership now numbers ninety-eight, with three ministers and one elder. Our series of meetings is to begin Sept. 14, with Eld. C. A. Miller, of Kansas City, in charge. Our love feast will be held Oct. 5. Last evening the Gospel Team of our church had charge of the service, which was enjoyed by all present.—Faith Carson, Independence, Kans., July 7.

Murdock.—We met in an all-day Educational Meeting, beginning with Sunday-school, followed by a sermon by the writer on the topic of the day. A basket dinner was served at noon. The program in the afternoon was a success and enjoyed by all.—S. E. Delp, Murdock, Kans., July 3.

MICHIGAN

Detroit.—Since our last report we have made splendid progress toward the goal of the five-year program. May 18 we had the largest and best love feast service held so far. Eld. Smith, of Northern Michigan, assisted by our pastor, Bro. John F. Dietz, conducted the service, at which fifty-five were present. Bro. Dietz was sent as delegate to Annual Meeting and reports a wonderful progress of spiritual enthusiasm throughout all the Brotherhood during the past year. Several others from this church also attended the Conference. One was baptized recently. June 29 Bro. J. A. Vanell, editor and publisher of the Continental News Review, delivered a splendid address on the outline of the five-year program, especially emphasizing the educational phase of the work. Our Chinese work is progressing. Bro. Moy Way is now giving the greater part of his time to this work. June 29 twelve Chinese were present, eight of whom are members. The offering was $5.20. The total offering of the Sunday-school, from Jan. 1 to July 4, is $206.61. Our goal was $500 for the year. Constantly we are getting in touch with new members in Detroit City. July 20 we expect any relative or friend in the city, please let us know, and also give them the location of the church: 751 Cadillac Avenue.—M. B. Williams, 1041 Holcomb Avenue, Detroit, Mich., July 4.

Rodney church had a very pleasant love feast June 28, with about thirty communing. Elders Bollinger and Robinson, from Vestaburg, were with us—the latter officiating. Sunday evening, June 29, three of our Sunday-school scholars were received into the church by baptism.—W. E. Strubaugh, Rodney, Mich., July 7.

Sugar Ridge.—Bro. D. L. Miller spent a few days here and gave us two much appreciated sermons at the Center house and one in Scottville, June 5 and 6. Brethren Bruce A. Miller and Wm. Saxton were chosen delegates to District Meeting. Our young people have organized a Mission Study Class, with fourteen enrolled. We expect Bro. Omer Maphis, of Bethany Bible School, to assist us in a series of meetings to begin July 20. Our Annual Meeting collection was over $50. July 5 Bro. Miller was present at Sunday-school.—Mary E. Teeter, Scottville, Mich., July 8.

Zion.—The members of this congregation enjoyed a very inspiring series of meetings June 22-29, with Bro. Geo. Mishler, of South Whitley, Ind., assisting. The weather proved very unfavorable, but the interest was good. Nine were received into the church by baptism, seven of whom were Sunday-school scholars. The members of this church were much encouraged. June 28 Bro. John Van Meter and wife were installed into their office of deacon. Our love feast, at which about eighty members were present, was held June 28, with Bro. Mishler officiating. Visiting members were with us from Ohio, River Side congregation, Mich., and Oscoda County, Mich. July 5 we met in business session, with Bro. W. H. Good as moderator. Bro. M. L. Moats was reelected superintendent of the Sunday-school; Sister Anna Belle Morrison, superintendent of the home department; Sister Fennie Bowman, superintendent of the cradle roll; Bro. John L. Van Meter, president of the Christian Workers' Society. Brethren M. L. Moats and W. H. Good were chosen delegates to District Meeting.—Neva R. Martindale, Prescott, Mich., July 8.

MINNESOTA

Hancock.—June 29 we enjoyed our love feast. Eld. A. J. Nickey and wife, also Bro. Paul Nickey, and others, were with us. We held our council prior to the love feast. Brethren Irvin Gray was called to the ministry. Bro. Paul Nickey intends to move here this fall. He will be a great help to us as the Hancock church has been without a minister for two years.—Mrs. H. W. Yingst, Hancock, Minn., July 3.

Lewiston congregation recently enjoyed an interesting series of meetings, conducted by Bro. J. F. Swallow, of Seavey, Minn. He labored very earnestly, and declared the truth without fear or favor. Our meetings closed prior to the love feast, which was held June 28. Sixty-three communicants surrounded the Lord's table. Nine were added to the church as the immediate result of the revival, and we expect the Lord will bless these glorious results. Bro. Earl Ahlert was elected to the deacon's office, and he and his wife were duly installed.—Mrs. Anna B. Landis, Lewiston, Minn., July 8.

MISSOURI

Kansas City (First Church).—We met in council July 3, with our elder, Bro. Ira Witmore, presiding. Our love feast was held on the evening of June 14, inclement weather, on the afternoon and evening, many were prevented from attending. Sister Sisters present were Brethren D. L. Mohler, of Leeton, Mo., and Chas. A. Miller, of Kansas City, Kans. Bro. D. L. Mohler officiated. Bro. Chas. A. Miller preached with power previous to the love feast. Our Conference offering amounted to $112.18. Outside of this offering, our church has given to the District work, and to the Armenian Relief. We are planning for a special offering, to be sent to our District Conference, for District Mission work. In planning for it, we had set the goal to be reached, and much enthusiasm is being shown in trying to reach the amount.—J. A. Wyatt, 6238 Hughe Street, Kansas City, Mo., July 8.

Shelby County.—Bro. J. W. Deeter, of McPherson, was with us June 24-26. He gave six lectures on "Child Life" and Sunday-school Activities." Tuesday night he lectured in Leonard, and Wednesday we had an all-day meeting and basket dinner at the church. Thursday night he lectured in Shelbina on "The Young People and the Adult." These lectures were greatly enjoyed by all. We are expecting Bro. Brieker and family, of Kansas, to move here this fall. We would like to hear from any one who would like to locate here and help us in the work.—Merle Stouder, Leonard, Mo., July 3.

MONTANA

Grandview.—June 15 Bro. Lewis Hyde, of Rock Lake, N. Dak., began a two weeks' series of meetings, although the weather was very warm we had good attendance. Bro. Hyde's sermons were well chosen and well delivered. The members were very much strengthened and encouraged. June 21 we had a short council, with Eld. O. A. Myer presiding. We reelected church and Sunday-school officers, with Bro. Myer, elder, and Bro. Shumaker, Sunday-school superintendent. June 28 we held our love feast, with Bro. Hyde officiating. Our church contributed for Armenian-Syrian Relief and also for the Annual Meeting offering.—Iva Barley, Froid, Mont., July 3.

NEW MEXICO

Clovis church met in council June 29. Seven letters were received, five being those of Eld. E. Z. Thompson and family. Bro. Thompson has taken the pastorate of the church at this place. We feel much encouraged. We have just completed a good parsonage. Sister Elda Thompson was elected superintendent of the Christian Workers' Society. A live body of young members is developing here. One was baptized recently.—Minnie B. Rodes, Clovis, N. Mex., July 3.

NEW YORK

Lake Ridge church met in council June 28. Brethren John Herr and I. W. Taylor were with us, the latter presiding. A committee was appointed to look after the repairing of the church. We had a near future, followed by a love feast, which date will be announced later. We also planned to begin Sunday evening services July 6. The latter were conducted by Bro. Taylor. We need more young people here, as we need workers. Our offering to Annual Meeting and the Armenian-Syrian Relief was $117. We went over the top in our apportionment for the latter fund. Sunday, June 29, a few members from this place accepted Brethren Herr and Taylor to Forestville, where some of our members are located. Plans are under way to open a mission point at that place.—Martha Welbly, Ludlowville, N. Y., July 9.

NORTH DAKOTA

Bowdon Valley.—Bro. Virgil C. Finnell, of Elgin, lectured at our church on the evenings of June 26, 27 and 28. Saturday, June 28, we had an all-day meeting, with a basket dinner. He gave us some very interesting and instructive talks. July 4 Brother Emmert and Sister Miriam Stover were with us. Their program, which consisted of several musical numbers and a short talk on India, was enjoyed by all. Our council meeting was held July 5. We decided to have our love feast on the evening of July 19.—Fern Glessner, Manfred, N. Dak., July 7.

Brumbaugh church met in council June 26, with Eld. M. L. Huffman in charge. We elected officers for six months, with Bro. Irvin Rash, Sunday-school superintendent. We also reorganized the Christian Workers' Meeting, with Bro. John Deal, president. Bro. Emmert Stover and his sister, Miriam, were with us two evenings and gave a good program and lecture. We took a collection of $18 for educational purposes. About July 20 we expect Brother and Sister Jarboe to be with us in a series of meetings. We will have our communion services Oct. 18—an all-day meeting. Our Harvest Meeting will begin at 10 o'clock on that day, with communion in the evening.—Lydia Deal, Rock Lake, N. Dak., July 2.

Cando congregation met in council June 23, at the Zion house, with Bro. J. D. Kesler presiding. Bro. S. W. Burkhart was chosen delegate to the District Meeting. Our communion will be held July 19 at the Zion house, beginning at 7 P. M. Our series of meetings is in progress, with Bro. Clark Myers, of Waddams Grove, Ill., in charge. Bro. Emmert and Sister Miriam Stover, of Mt. Morris, gave us a missionary program June 30, which was much enjoyed by all.—Mrs. Marvin Kensinger, Cando, N. Dak., July 2.

Egeland.—Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe has been with us, holding a series of meetings. Sister Jarboe led the singing. Twenty confessed Christ. Our love feast was held June 28, with a good attendance. July 4 we enjoyed a picnic, with several neighboring churches, at Snyders Lake. Many splendid talks were given. Bro. Jarboe and Bro. C. C. Meyers, from Waddams Grove, Ill., were among the speakers.—Pearl B. Combie, Egeland, N. Dak., July 7.

Golden Willow church met in council July 5. Our elder not being present, Bro. G. M. Clapper took charge. The officers of the past year will be retained for the coming year. We will hold our love feast on the evening of June 28. July 6 Bro. Emmert and Sister Miriam Stover, of Mt. Morris College, were with us. After Sunday-school Bro. Stover talked on India. In the evening they gave a program, consisting of music, readings and a short talk on India, which we all appreciated very much.—Nona McConn, Sykeston, N. Dak., July 8.

Golden Willow.—June 23 Bro. Virgil Finnell, of Elgin, Ill., came to us, giving us five lectures. The last, on June 25, was "The Biggest and Best Paying Business." We believe much good was done and we hope that our Sunday-school will be bigger and better at the close of this year.—Nona McConn, Sykeston, N. Dak., June 30.

Surrey.—We held our council June 29, with Eld. D. T. Dierdorff presiding. One letter was granted. July 2 to 6 we met with us July 1 and 2, and with his helpful suggestions we hope to improve our Sunday-school.—Nora E. Petry, Surrey, N. Dak., July 7.

OHIO

Bear Creek.—Fourth of July was celebrated by an all-day missionary program at this place, by quite a number of our members and those from several other churches. We believe much good was done and we hope that our Sunday-school will be bigger and better at the close of this year.—Nona McConn, Sykeston, N. Dak., June 30.

Surrey.—We held our council June 29, with Eld. D. T. Dierdorff presiding. One letter was granted. July 2 to 6 we met with us July 1 and 2, and with his helpful suggestions we hope to improve our Sunday-school.—Nora E. Petry, Surrey, N. Dak., July 7.

OHIO

Bear Creek—Fourth of July was celebrated by an all-day missionary program at this place, by quite a number of our members and those from several other churches. We believe much good was done and we hope that our Sunday-school will be bigger and better at the close of this year.—Nona McConn, Sykeston, N. Dak., June 30.

Bethany Bible School, Sugar Creek congregation, is expecting Bro. G. S. Strausbaugh, from Fredericktown, Ohio, July 29, to hold a short series of meetings for us. We will hold our love feast Aug. 2, commencing at 6 P. M.—Sarah Middaugh, Berlin, Ohio, July 7.

Canton Center congregation held a most enjoyable communion service June 21. It was well attended and an unusual feature was the fact that at both morning and evening services members of several churches were represented. About 200 members were present. Bro. Ira Long, of Bethany Bible School, spoke on "Christian Growth" during the morning hour. His message was much appreciated. June 29 a second Annual Meeting offering was taken. The amount of both offerings reached $175. One was baptized about two weeks before our communion service. Bro. D. E. Stuckey, of the Freeburg church, preached for us on Sunday evening, July 6, on the subject "Do We Know God?" It was both logical and practical, and very much enjoyed by all present.—Rachel A. Mohn, Louisville, Ohio, July 8.

Danville church met in council June 19. We had with us Eld. A. D. Moller, of Louisville, and Eld. A. F. Shriver, of New Philadelphia. At this meeting two deacons were elected. Our Annual Meeting offering was $133. Our election of officers for the year resulted as follows: May 11 Bro. F. Sargent, of Bethany Bible School, is scheduled for us both morning and evening. He also solicited our congregation for the Bible School. Sister Emma Rohrer, our District Sunday-school Secretary, gave us a helpful talk on Sunday-school work. We were represented at Annual Conference by two delegates and also at the Sunday-school Convention at Akron, Ohio.—Icie Mae Worsham, Howard, Ohio, June 30.

Deshler church began a series of meetings June 15, closing July 2. Bro. E. E. Eshelman, of Fostoria, Ohio, conducted the services and Sister Emma Kessler, of North Manchester, led the song services. There were seven additions to the church, one by baptism, one by letter, and six by relief. We had one of our communion services June 29, with about ninety members present. It was one of the best services ever enjoyed by the Deshler congregation.—Esther Dishong, Deshler, Ohio, July 7.

Fairview congregation met in special council June 22. Elders D. D. Thomas and L. H. Prowant, the ministerial committee of Northwestern Ohio, being with us, we called Bro. Ira Butts to the ministry. He and his wife were installed. We met again July 1 in regular council. Sister Ella Bowser is our Sunday-school superintendent. Our Fourth of July meeting was a very enjoyable one. Quite a number of members from other congregations met with us. We had a fine basket dinner, after which the children rendered a splendid program.—Freddie Stutzman, Metamora, Ohio, July 3.

Pleasant Hill.—Quite a number of our members having attended the Winona Conference, we desire to do our part in the great "Forward Movement." Bro. Geo. Mohler, of Covington, preached for us June 8. Since then we have had sermons by Dr. Barker, of Bostons, and Eld. Otho Winger. Educational Day was observed. Our annual Sunday-school outing was held June 21, at the old Sugar Grove church. Each Sunday afternoon our pastor is giving one of a series of sermons on "Man Before and After Sin." Last evening two worthy Christ and will receive baptism soon. A sermon was especially given to our boys and girls yesterday. July 27 there will be a special sermon for the older people. Letters were granted to Bro. C. D. Beery and family, who removed to Pennsylvania recently.—Mary West, Pleasant Hill, Ohio, July 7.

Portage church met in council July 3, with Eld. L. I. Moss as moderator. Sunday-school officers were elected for one year, with Bro. F. Hamilton, superintendent. We expect to have a Children's Day program soon. Aug. 10 we will have our Annual Meeting. Ind., gave us a very good sermon on "Growth." We expect to have a series of meetings this fall. Our love feast will be held Oct. 18, at 10 A. M.—Otho Zuck, Prairie Depot, Ohio, July 5.

Ross church met in council July 6, with Eld. Jas. A. Guthrie presiding. Our love feast will be held Oct. 11, at 2 P. M. Recently Bro. B. F. Petry, of Eaton, Ohio, was in our midst in a two weeks' series of meetings. The members were very much strengthened by his helpful, spiritual sermons and two were baptized. Sister Gladys Sensman, of Bethany, very ably conducted the song service.—Mrs. James A. Guthrie, Spencerville, Ohio, July 8.

Stonelick.—We will have a basket meeting and basket dinner at the church July 20, and we earnestly invite all members and friends, especially ministers, from our sister churches to be present. The church is only fifty miles directly south of Dayton, and there are fair roads for machines. Take the day off and spend it with us. We need your help.—Mary S. Carr, Newtonsville, Ohio, July 7.

OKLAHOMA

Guthria.—June 22 we met for Sunday-school, after which Bro.

(Continued on Page 464)

LIAO CHOU, SHANSI, CHINA

(Continued from Page 459)

Each evening at seven a sermon or lecture was given. On Friday evening Dr. Brubaker gave an illustrated lecture, using the stereopticon, and giving valuable information as to safeguarding health. People were urged to take proper precautions against flies and other unsanitary conditions.

On Saturday afternoon at 2:30, Bro. Yin gave a sermon on "The New Birth," after which thirty-two souls were received into the church by baptism. Thirty of these were men and two were women. Of the men sixteen were schoolboys. Ten of the men were from our out-stations. Dear reader, if you could have seen the hope and joy visible on the faces of these new-born souls, as they buried the old man of heathendom and put on the new man in Christ Jesus, I am sure you would have been impressed with the fact that missions pay. There are millions that have not yet caught a gleam of that light. Don't you see the need and the great opportunity? Let us, each and every one, go over the top in our efforts to take the saving message to these others that are groping in darkness!

On Sunday, at the morning service, Bro. Crumpacker gave us a splendid sermon on "The Significance of Our Church Name." In the afternoon, at four, Bro. Yin gave a good sermon on examining self, after which one hundred and ten sat down to the tables and enjoyed a splendid love feast together. And as they partook of the broken bread and the cup, we are sure that many were greatly blessed and drew closer in fellowship with their Lord and Savior.

Not of the least importance were the early morning hours of prayer and Bible study, three of which were held outside the city on a grassy spot under a group of pines. Many very keenly felt the inpouring of the Spirit in greater fullness in those early morning meetings amidst the glories of nature.

These meetings have brought great blessings, but the increase in membership has added increased responsibility. Pray much that we may properly shepherd these weak lambs, and feed them upon the true Bread of Life. About twenty others have registered as inquirers, and after several months of study and teaching they desire to enter the fold. Will you also remember them? A merchant, Mr. Yen, who was baptized during the above-mentioned meetings, is being sorely persecuted because he now refuses to subscribe money to the support of theatricals and other things, connected with idolatry. His store is being boycotted, and stories are being circulated to ruin his reputation and to close his shop. Remember him, that he may have the courage to stand firm in his faith through it all, that he may come out victorious, and be a light to lead his enemies to know the love of Jesus.

Our native Christians quite frequently meet with opposition and persecution, and in their weakness it is hard for them to withstand the pressure that Satan brings to bear upon them. But considering the short time they have known the True Light, they often put up a fight and make sacrifices that put you and me to shame, with our superior advantages of Christian training and development.

But despite all the efforts of darkness, to hinder and destroy our little body of believers, the church at Liao Chou is moving forward. It is making progress. At the beginning of this year 1919, each one of our little body of members (about sixty-five members in good standing) unanimously pledged to lead at least one soul to Christ during the year 1919. One-half of the year has not yet passed and it seems that our goal may not only be reached but even exceeded.

But even in this may arise a grave danger of seeking to add numbers to the church roll instead of working for true conversions. Pray that this mistake may be avoided. Pray that we missionaries may have wisdom and Divine Guidance from on high in our teaching and guiding these babes in Christ, so that they may develop into strong workers, who will help to save China. And as you pray: "God save the millions that know not God and Jesus Christ," reach deep down into your pocket and pull out a big part of yourself and again pray: "Lord, take this part of myself over to save them." Then, verily, your prayer shall speedily be answered.

R. C. Flory.

WAYSIDE EXPERIENCES AND MEDITATIONS

This is the Fourth of July. Wife and I are having strange experiences, under strange circumstances, in a strange land. We are at Houston, Texas, with a party of seventy-five strangers, stranded here for the day. In our party are two Jews, three "Saints," ministers of several denominations, my wife and I of the Brethren, and others.

It is accidental that we spend the day here, but it gives us an unexpected opportunity for reflection on what we have seen during the past week, that is new to us. The entire party spent the past week together, seeing the newly-irrigated valley at the southern point of Texas. The Eden displayed here so impressed us that in wonderment we thought, again and again: "What hath God wrought!" We have learned much of this land and have been reflecting on the opening here for the Gospel. Our coaches were to leave here with the regular train, at eight this morning, but the train that pulled us up from the valley during the night was late, so we do not leave here till evening.

It is interesting how we, from Indiana, Ohio and Illinois, all find people here from our home States, and how quickly such become friends.

I also learned something as to how world sports affect the general population. A Mexican bull-fight was widely advertised for today, but, so far as I could see, received very little attention from Americans, while the Mexicans who are the laborers here—as negroes are further east, left everything to see the fight. However, a public report of ball games that were being played in many large cities, showing the score as the games progressed, drew thousands of people, and cheer after cheer arose as the scores were marked up. It is harder still for me to understand how this immense throng was interested in reports of the prize-fight that was going on fifteen hundred miles away, at Toledo, Ohio.

Hundreds of men and women stood in the hot sun several hours, just to get these sport reports. One of the "Saint" brethren remarked to me: "The Lord knows I would rather attend worship, but I guess we'll look on and maybe it'll help us to know how the world does." So we spent the day.

Mrs. Neher had an interesting talk with our Jewish friends, and learned much that will be helpful to her in her writings. We admire the high standard of morals apparent in the lives of these Jews. One says he has never used tobacco nor liquor, nor has he yielded to immoral impulses. I asked his reason for so living. He answered: "I think it's my mother's teaching more than anything else." In further conversation they said that Jewish children all obey their parents. They said: "Any Jewish children, high or low, boys or girls, would wash their mother's or father's feet and drink the water if the parents told them to. Next to God there is nothing so sacred as parents." Mrs. Neher is embodying some of these thoughts in the Sunday-school lesson for Nov. 2, on Jer. 35, and my impression right now is that there is more in the fifth commandment than we have ever realized. To honor God and to honor parents is above everything else.

Levi M. Neher.

Warsaw, Ind.

PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

Sunday, May 25, was Missionary Day, with special solos and readings. On this day our collection for foreign missions totaled $220. Especially interesting and instructive, in the evening service, was the dialogue by six young men of our Sunday-school, giving us a clear interpretation of the Five-Year Forward Movement, as set forth by the General Mission Board.

We were glad to have with us, June 16, Bro. H. K. Ober, President of Elizabethtown College. He gave a lecture on the subject of "Child Rights." We hope to be favored with further talks, sometime in the near future, when Bro. Ober is in this vicinity.

June 22 was our annual Children's Day, at which time the children gave a very commendable entertainment. In the afternoon of the same day a mission Sunday-school was organized at Birdville, Pa. The official dedication was conducted by our pastor, and attended by a good representation of the Pittsburgh church. Bro. John Osterwise was elected superintendent of the Birdville Sunday-school.

Our pastor has been with us now eleven months, and continues to spring pleasant surprises. His latest idea was a special program for the evening of June 30, called "Family Night." The name itself is self-explanatory, and both the special program and the sermon on "Sowing, Growing and Reaping" were very impressive and inspiring. We had nearly a capacity house, made up not only of our members and their families, but also many of the neighbors.

Nellie Forney.

MONTPELLIER, FRANCE

We wish to thank all of our friends who were so thoughtful and kind as to send us the "Messengers" and the "Missionary Visitor." We received, we think, all that were sent to us and were very much pleased to get them. Nothing gave us more consolation than the many letters we received. We started at first to answer them, but found it impossible to do so and keep up with our university course. So we take this method of expressing our appreciation to those who thought of us.

After reading the "Messengers" and "Visitors," we took them to the reading room of the Y. M. C. A., where they were free for all the boys to read. Our Bible Classes used them frequently in their work, and our Volunteer Band used the "Missionary Visitors" in their work. Officers and men read them, so you see it has amounted to real missionary work.

In our student body here, at the "Université de Montpellier," we have a number of young men who are studying for the ministry and many who are contemplating that work. There are also two chaplains who are very active and enthusiastic. With the help of these men the religious work has been a potent factor in our university life.

Soon after beginning our work here, the first of March, we organized our Bible Classes into six different groups, each studying a different subject. The subjects are, "The Book of John," "The Boy Problem," "The Business Man," "The Sermon on the Mount," "Meeting the Master," "Social Problems." All of these subjects are based on the Bible. In addition to our Bible Classes we organized a society called "Life Work Association," which meets each Friday night for the purpose of discussing problems that will confront us when we get home. We have had the pleasure of having such men as Dr. Erdman, of Princeton University, Dr. Willett, of Chicago University, Dr. Thomas, of Union Seminary, and Dr. Smith, of Yale, to speak to us on topics of interest. Our association will hold its farewell banquet June 27.

Our next letter will be written in the States.

W. Howard and John H. Ketring.

Université de Montpellier, June 18.

FIRST DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA

The various gatherings for the First District of Virginia are to be held at the Selma church, Va., July 30 to Aug. 1. Elders' Organization Meeting, July 30, at 2:30 P. M. General Theme: "The Five-Year Forward Movement for a Greater Church of the Brethren in the First District of Virginia."

July 30, 8:45 P. M.

Moderator, J. S. Showalter

Dress Reform: Simple Life.—Sister Rebecca Wampler, 15 minutes. Standardization in Dress.—Levi Garst, 15 minutes.

Sisters' Aid Society: The Aid Society in the Forward Movement.—Sister Annie Flora, 10 minutes. What Are My Obligations to the Aid Society?—Sister Pernie Faw, 10 minutes. Vacation Sunday-school.—Elsie Shekel, 10 minutes.

July 31, 8:30 A. M.

Moderator, L. N. Kingie

What the Forward Movement Will Mean: In a General Increase in Spirituality.—D. C. Naff, 20 minutes. In Evangelism.—B. B. Garber, 20 minutes. In Sunday-school.—J. Allen Flora, 20 minutes. In the World Peace Movement.—J. A. Dove, 20 minutes. In the World Temperance Cause.—J. W. Ikenberry, 20 minutes. In the Reconstruction Movement.—L. C. Moomaw, 20 minutes.

July 31, 1:30 P. M.

Moderator, J. H. Wimmer

What the Forward Movement Will Mean: In the Christian Workers' Society.—J. S. Zigler, 15 minutes. In the Local Missionary Committee Work.—C. D. Hylton, 15 minutes. In Teacher-Training.—Sister Nina Moomaw, 15 minutes. In Educating Our Children in Our College.—E. C. Crumpacker, 20 minutes. Supporting the Endowment Movement in Our College.—C. S. Ikenberry, 20 minutes. In Advocating the Higher Standard of Christian Education.—T. S. Moherman, 20 minutes.

Child Rescue Work: The Homeless Child as We Find Him.—Sister Effie Shaver, 10 minutes. The Future of the Homeless Child as We May Make It.—Sister Pearl Kinzie, 10 minutes.

July 31, 8:45 P. M.

District Missionary Meeting and Offering.—Moderator, C. E. Eller. Missionary Workers' Addresses, 25 minutes. Sermon, Walter Kahle, 30 minutes. Offering.

August 1, 9:15 A. M.

Business Session of Conference

Parties who find they can not perform duties assigned them, will please notify C. E. Eller, Salem, Va., immediately, that substitutes may be provided.

Committee, P. S. Miller, J. Allen Flora, C. E. Eller.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Coffman-Rupert.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's mother, June 28, 1919, Miss Jessica Lillian Rupert and Mr. Lewis Ackson Coffman, both of Huntingdon, Pa.—Amos H. Haines, Huntingdon, Pa.

Fike-Dickey.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, in Raisin City, Calif., April 23, 1919, Bro. Lloyd K. Fike, of Reedley, Calif., and Sister Irene A. Dickey, of Raisin City, Calif.—A. O. Brubaker, Raisin City, Calif.

Space-Sharshel.—By the undersigned, at his residence, June 21, 1919, Mr. Dewey Space and Sister Bessie Sharshel, of Parsons, Kans.—J. A. Campbell, Parsons, Kans.

Wright-Shively.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, Eld. E. E. Shively, June 29, 1919, Bro. Lewis Van B. Wright, of Peebles, Ohio, and Sister Nora Mildred Shively, of Plymouth, Ind.—T. E. George, North Manchester, Ind.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Barton, Bro. Jeremiah Henry, born in Bloomington, N. Y., died at his home in Myrtle Point, June 19, 1919, aged 73 years, 1 month and 27 days. He married Mrs. Hannah Orr, who, with two children from a former marriage and five grandchildren, survives. He was a member of the Methodist church for several years, but later united with the Church of the Brethren. Services by Eld. Thos. Barklow. Interment in the Myrtle Point cemetery.—Rachel Michael, Myrtle Point, Oregon.

Bell, Luvicy J., nee Teeter, born near Oskaloosa, Iowa, died of acute indigestion, June 18, 1919, aged 66 years, 4 months and 9 days. In 1874 she married James Bell, who preceded her in March, 1919. To this union were born five children. She leaves four children, nine grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters. When about fourteen years old, she united with the Church of the Brethren at South English, Iowa, and lived a faithful, consistent life. Services in the Des Moines Valley church by the writer, assisted by Brethren Jefferson Mathis and W. W. Folger.—J. F. Burton, Ankeny, Iowa.

Bucklew, Marcellus, eldest son of William and Emily Bucklew, born in Preston County, W. Va., died of acute indigestion, May 2, 1919, aged 64 years, 1 month and 24 days. He had been a member of the Old Order Brethren for a number of years. He is survived by his wife, three sons, four daughters, his father, two sisters, one brother and twenty-two grandchildren. Services at Mt. Zion church by Bro. Isaac Sowlle. Interment in the adjoioing cemetery.—E. M. Riggleman, Rockoak, W. Va.

Burgord, Bro. Wilson L., son of Brother and Sister Samuel Burgard, born near East Berlin, Pa., died at his home in York, June 12, 1919, aged 52 years and 10 months. Death was due to blood poisoning. He was a member of the church for many years. He is survived by his wife, two sons and four daughters. Short services at the house and at the church in East Berlin by Eld. J. A. Long. Interment in Mummert cemetery.—Alice K. Trimmer, York, Pa.

Burkholder, Peter, born in Farmersville, Pa., died at his home near Octavia, Nebr., May 23, 1919, aged 75 years, 8 months and 27 days. On 1875 he married Martha Keller. To this union were born eleven children. He is survived by his wife, three sons, six daughters and fifteen grandchildren. Bro. Burkholder has been a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for about thirty years, but on account of being an invalid was not permitted to attend service for about fifteen years. It is a credit to Bro. Burkholder's strong character that in all the years of his severe suffering he never murmured nor complained. Services in the church at Octavia by Bro. Edgar Rothrock and Bro. L. L. Meek. Interment at Edholm, Nebr.—Mrs. Elda Burkholder, Edholm, Nebr.

Combs, Lizzie, nee Riggleman, wife of Geo. W. Combs, died of paralysis at her home, near Kirby, W. Va., April 3, 1919, aged 64 years, 4 months and 4 days. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist church for a number of years. She leaves her husband, one daughter, one son, three brothers and three sisters. Services by Eld. W. L. Riggleman. Interment in Bean Settlement cemetery.—E. M. Riggleman, Rockoak, W. Va.

Davis, Jethro R., born in Doddridge County, W. Va., died May 31, 1919, aged 62 years, 3 months and 17 days. He married Miss Catherine Knee in 1883. Four children were born to them. In 1906 he married Mrs. Vera Kelley. He is survived by his wife, four children, four grandchildren, three brothers and two sisters. Services by Eld. David Dredge.—Ruth B. Shroyer, New Carlisle, Ohio.

Heck, Mrs. Melinda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Allen, born in Clark County, Ohio, died April 14, 1919, aged 88 years, 3 months and 17 days. She married Rezin Heck in 1857. Five children were born to this union. The husband and three children preceded her. She leaves two daughters, ten grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and one sister, services by Eld. David Dredge.—Ruth B. Shroyer, New Carlisle, Ohio.

Metzger, Lydia, nee Shiles, died of paralysis, May 3, 1919, aged 75 years, 10 months and 22 days. She was received into the Church of the Brethren in 1858 and lived a faithful, consistent life. In 1862 she married A. E. Metzger. To this union were born fourteen children, all of whom are living except one who died in infancy. Services by the writer, assisted by Eld. L. F. Turner. Burial in Lo Place cemetery.—Geo. W. Miller, La Place, Ill.

Moyers, Sister Minnie, nee Ritchie, wife of Bro. David Moyers, born in Virginia, died of tuberculosis in a Maryland sanitarium, June 16, 1919, aged 23 years, 9 months and 4 days, and a member of the church fourteen years ago. Besides her husband and little son, she leaves her father, stepmother, five brothers, and one sister. Services ot Mt. Zion by Bro. I. W. Miller, assisted by Bro. B. B. Miller.—Katie Kline, Broadway, Va.

Purdy, Jas. W., born in New York, died June 22, 1919, aged 89 years and 13 days. In 1865 he married Elizabeth Creech, who died nine years ago. To this union eight children were born, six of whom survive with twenty-six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Services by the undersigned, assisted by Bro. C. A. Shank. Burial in Abilene cemetery.—J. F. Hantz, Abilene, Kans.

Puterbaugh, Howard R., born in Lanark, Ill., died at Pasadeoa, Calif., May 31, 1919, aged 31 years, 3 and 5 days. He leaves his wife, who was Ida F. Ewing, and one son. At the age of twenty-one he united with the Church of the Brethren and lived a faithful life. Services by the writer.—Geo. F. Chamberlen, Covina, Calif.

Rees, John W., born near West Mooreove, Ohio, died at the home of his daughter at Cygnet, Ohio, June 18, 1919, aged 84 years, 10 months and 18 days. He was the son ol Wm. and Susan Harsh Rees. He married Mary Shoe in 1858. To this union were born two sons and two daughters. His wife died in 1883. Several years later he married Sara Miller. To this union were born eight children. His wife died in 1900 and he later married Mrs. Almina Ries, who died ten years ago. He leaves seven children, nine grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, two half-brothers and three half-sisters. He united with the Church of the Brethren in the early seventies and was ordained to the ministry in 1878. Services at Portage by the writer. Burial at Graham cemetery.—Mrs. Emma Depel, Ohio.

Rife, Clayton, son ol James M. and Sister Susan Rife, died at his home in East York, of tuberculosis, June 22, 1919, aged 36 years. He is survived by his parents, five brothers and three sisters. Services at the house by Eld. David Wenger. Interment in Mt. Rose cemetery.—Alice K. Trimmer, York, Pa.

Riggleman, Sister Caroline, nee Wilson, died at her home at Rockoak, W. Va., of a complieation of diseases, June 19, 1919, aged 72 years. She was the wife of H. H. Riggleman, who preceded her some years ago. One sister, three stepsons and three stepdaughters survive. Services by Eld. W. L. Riggleman at Bean Settlement church. Interment in the cemetery near by.—E. M. Riggleman, Rockoak, W. Va.

Sell, Joseph, born Oct. 28, 1845, died June 26, 1919. He leaves his wife, one daughter and three grandchildren. Services by Eld. D. T. Detwiler, assisted by Bro. H. Stover Kulp. Interment in cemetery near by.—Margaret Reingle, New Enterprise, Pa.

Seimers, Harmon, died at his home in Glendora, Calif., June 3, 1919, aged 93 years and 26 days. He was born in Germany and came to this country with his parents when four years old. He married Horiet Burget. To them were born eight children. He is survived by his wife, four children and several grandchildren. He united with the Church of the Brethren about twelve years ago. Much of this time he has been an invalid, which barred his attendance at public service. Services at the home by Eld. G. H. Bashor.—Mrs. Sylvia L. Netzley, Glendora, Calif.

Shull, Sister Hettie Margaret, died of a complieation of diseases, within the bounds of the Sangerville congregation, Va., May 26, 1919, aged 58 years, 7 months and 21 days. She united with the church many years ago. She leaves her husband, three sons and three daughters. Services at the Emanuel house by Bro. J. W. Hess. Interment in the cemetery near by.—Meda G. Argenbright, Bridgewater, Va.

Simmons, Charlotte Elizabeth, daughter of Bro. Emory and Sister Bertha Simmons, died May 22, 1919, aged 6 months and 11 days. Besides her parents she leaves one brother. Services at Sangerville by Bro. M. G. Sanger.—Meda G. Argenbright, Bridgewater, Va.

Slonlker, Aaron, son of David and Catherine Slonlker, born near Hagerstown, Ind., June 21, 1833, died at Pershing, same State, June 4, 1919. In 1855 he married Polly Heminger. To them were born eight children. In 1872 his wife died. Five years later he married Nancy Jane Harris, who died in March, 1918. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1875. When Bro. Slonlker located at Palestine, Ark., there was no Church of the Brethren at that point. Throngh his efforts a mission was established and later organized as a church. Bro. Slonlker and his wife were elected to the office of deacon in September, 1888.—Charles W. Miller, Hagerstown, Ind.

Inspiration Encouragement Direction

All will be found in the lives of these Leaders in the highest type of life. They will be found to be of exceeding interest and abundantly helpful.

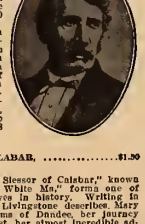
THE LIFE OF CHRIST, ...Specially Priced at 60c
James M. Stalker.
Regardless of what other books you have oo the Life of Christ you need this book. Concise yet comprehensive. Reverent. The very book you will wish to keep on your study table. A fortunate purchase enobles us to offer it to you at a 20% reduction from the regular price.

HADLEY, S. H, OF WATER STREET, ...$1.25
J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D.
The life story of the man who continued the work of the famous Water Street Rescue Mission of New York after the death of Jerry McAuley. It is therefore a companion volume to "Down In Water Street." None knew S. H. Hadley better than J. Wilbur Chapman and it was for this reason that he wrote the life of Hadley at the urgent request of friends. A splendid book of 289 pages containing many half-tone illustrations.

LIFE AND SERMONS OF ELDER JAMES QUINTER, ...$1.00
Mary N. Quinter.
Elder James Quinter was in his time an editor, an educator and an eloquent minister. However, it is not simply because he was sometime editor of The Gospel Messenger and President of Juniata College that he is best remembered. Bro. Quinter lived the kind of Christian life that will ever, because of its sheer beauty and purity, be an inspiration to those who have in the past or may in the future come to know of him.
This volume contains a brief and fascinating sketch of Bro. Quinter's life, some tributes and memorial sketches and forty of his best sermons.

STORY OF JESUS FOR YOUNG AND OLD, ...$1.50
Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, D. D.
A narrative treatment in simple language of all the fascinating details of the life and suffering of our Savior. One of the most interesting written and splendidly illustrated lives of Christ for young and old that have ever been published. It is a very handsome cloth bound book of about 500 pages and contains 200 illustrations, eighty of which are full page pictures by William Hole, R. S. A., R. E, and 16 of these that are printed in full color. The Story of Jesus is a splendid help for parents and teachers.

PERSONAL LIFE OF DAVID LIVINGSTONE, ...$1.50
Edited by Wm. O. Blaikie, D. D., LL. D.
A new and popular edition of this standard life of the great explorer and missionary. It is the authentic edition printed from the same large type plates as the former $1.50 book.
To know this great man as portrayed in this volume is an inspiration and a blessing to any Christian heart. Herein is found a more complete history of his life than in his own books. As a man, a Christian, a Missionary, a Philanthropist and a Scientist, Livingstone ranks with the greatest of our race. 508 pages. Cloth.

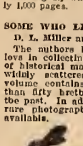


MARY SLESSOR OF CALABAR, ...$1.50
W. P. Livingstone.
The life-story of "Mary Slessor of Calabar," known in Africa as the "Great White Ma," forms one of the most amusing narratives in history. Writing in a clear, simple style, Mr. Livingstone describes Mary Slessor's youth in the slums of Dundee, her journey to the dangerous West Coast, her almost incredible adventures and hardships in the African jungles, the miracles of regeneration she worked among the black savages, and the honors accorded her by the British Government—rivals in many particulars the thrilling story of the heroism and devotion of David Livingstone. The success that rewarded her toil was very great and will multiply as the years pass."—Missionary Review of the World.

JUDSON, THE HERO OF BURMAH, ...$1.00
Jesse Page.
The stirring life story of Judson, the first missionary to the Burmese, retold for boys and girls, with illustrations.
The self-sacrifice of Judson has hardly been equalled in history. He faced every peril, short of death, for the welfare of others. The recital of such splendid deeds will inspire the reader to seek the sword of Christian chivalry and follow in his train.

PATON, JOHN G., MISSIONARY TO THE NEW HEBRIDES, ...$1.50
This large volume is really an autobiography edited by the missionary's brother. It is a new and complete edition brought down to the time of his death.
The thrilling stories of life among the cannibals as led by the missionaries in the islands show the protection by God of his servants. The stories show too, the infinite harm ungodly white traders can do in heathen lands. Nearly 1,000 pages.

SOME WHO LED, ...60c
D. L. Miller and Galen B. Royer.
The authors have rendered an important service of love in collecting and editing for the church a wealth of historical material that would otherwise have been widely scattered and perhaps completely lost. The volume contains brief sketches of the lives of more than fifty brethren who have been church leaders in the past. In addition there are reproductions of many rare photographs for the first time made generally available.



"DILLY" SUNDAY, THE MAN AND HIS MESSAGE, ...$1.00
William T. Ellis.
Explains "Billy" Sunday; as readable as fiction.
Tells the story of Mr. Sunday's eventful life, gives a keen analysis of his manner and methods, and also contains the heart of his message, which has changed the lives of over a quarter of a million. It reproduces his picturesque heart-stirring phrases and sayings, and retains all the wonderful appeal of his platform utterances. It will give any minister, teacher or other worker new ideas, new inspiration, new energy. 464 pages. Cloth.

BIOGRAPHY OF GOSPEL SONG AND HYMN WRITERS, ...$2.00
Prof. J. H. Hall.
Commencing with Dr. Lowell Mason, the compiler of this volume furnishes a personal sketch of representative American hymn and gospel song writers and composers. All the familiar names are here—William Bradbury, Philip Phillips, Root, Doane, Lowry, Palmer, McGranahan, Sankey, Fanny Crosby—together with some seventy others. A portrait accompanies each sketch. This is the only distinctive book of biography yet published dealing with men and women whose compositions have reached the hearts of millions, and helped to keep the note of evangelism vibrant throughout the world.

ANTHONY COMSTOOK, FIODTED, ...$1.25
Chas. O. Trumbull.
The biography of the man who for thirty years risked his life in the fight for purity in the United States. During this period he destroyed over 43 tons of vile books, 284,25 pounds of stereotype plates, millions of obscene pictures and about 13,000 negatives. The detailed account of how all of this was done is a most thrilling and remarkable story.

LIFE OF B. H. MILLER, ...$1.00
Elder Otho Winger.
During the latter part of the nineteenth century Elder B. H. Miller was a notable figure in the history of the church. He excelled in many lines, having been a powerful preacher, an able educator and a great leader. The author of this biography has done the church a valuable service in presenting with such graphic detail the story of this worthy man's life. An informing and inspiring book. 268 pages, bound in cloth.

BIOGRAPHY AND WRITINOS OF JAMES M. NEFF, ... Special Price, 50c
Florence Neff.
Elder James M. Neff's itinerant ministry and his long, brave search for health won for him the interest and sympathy of the whole Brotherhood. As the title indicates, this substantial volume of over 300 pages contains the story of Bro. Neff's life and the most important of his articles and letters.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Illinois

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, E. F. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor
L. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor
EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as Second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 461)

Levi Stump gave us a talk on the spiritual things they enjoyed while at Conference. Brother and Sister Stump will sail soon for China, where they expect to work. We reorganized our Sunday-school with Bro. V. Niswander, superintendent. June 29 Bro. Ray Wagoner, of Enid, Okla., gave us a good sermon on "Christian Education," and in the evening a lecture on Child Rescue work. These services were all appreciated.—W. A. Nininger, Guthrie, Okla., July 3.

Paradise Prairie church met in council July 5, with Eld. N. S. Gripe presiding. Bro. Cecil Williams and Sister Westfall were elected delegates to District Meeting. Officers were elected to serve our Christian Workers' Society, with Bro. Joseph Carrier and Cecil Williams presidents. We have secured Eld. N. S. Gripe to preach for us once each month. Our Sunday-school is progressing very nicely. June 8 our Sunday-school rendered a splendid Children's Day program. The church was well filled with people and the program was well rendered. The children especially deserve praise.—Cassie Carrier Harraman, Coyle, Okla., July 7.

OREGON

Ashland church met in council June 20, with Eld. S. E. Decker presiding. All Sunday-school officers were retained for another six months. Two have been received by letter since our last report. Delegates to District Meeting are to be chosen later.—Laura E. Goetz, Ashland, Ore., June 30.

Mabel congregation met in council June 21, and elected delegates as follows: Mary E. Ritter and Alice Lewis to District Meeting; Laura Adams and H. H. Ritter to Sunday-school Meeting. Our elder, Bro. H. H. Ritter, preached at Marcola and Donna once a month.—H. H. Ritter, Mabel, Oregon, July 2.

Newberg church met in council June 28, with Eld. David Glick presiding. Bro. Glick and Sister Moore were elected delegates to District Meeting; for Sunday-school, Brethren Albert Reed and Clinton Baron; Christian Workers' Society, Sister Mable Reed. The Newberg church sent in a call for District Meeting for 1920.—Eliza J. Moore, Newberg, Oregon, July 7.

Portland.—Our Sunday-school is glad to report a most pleasant time spent together July 4. The day was ideal for an outing, so, with well-filled baskets, we gathered at Columbia Park for an all-day picnic. One splendid feature of the meeting was a talk given by Eld. G. C. Carl. The afternoon was spent in playing games and in social visits, all of which helped to bring us closer together and to make the day pleasant.—Grace W. Hewitt, Portland, Oregon, July 6.

PENNSYLVANIA

Chambersburg church enjoyed a very interesting series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Daniel Bowser, of York, Pa. Seven accepted Christ. At the close of the meeting we had our love feast, which was well attended. Ministers present were Brethren Daniel Bowser, who officiated, Frank McCoy, M. A. Jacobs and Daniel Flohr. About 150 communed. On Sunday evening, June 27, we observed Children's Day with a nice program.—Peter S. Lehman, Chambersburg, Pa., July 7.

Codorus.—June 17 Bro. John C. Zug, of Fairmyra, Pa., began a series of meetings at the Shrewsbury house, continuing until June 28. The meetings were well attended. Not only were Bro. John Zug is a fine singer and made the song service interesting. Bro. W. K. Conner, of Harrisburg, Pa., will begin a series of meetings at the Fairview house, Aug. 2.—E. H. Lehman, Seven Valley, Pa., July 7.

Conestoga church enjoyed a pleasant love feast May 27 and 28. A number of visiting ministers were present. Eld. Hiram Kaylor officiated. June 21 we met in council at the Eby house, with Eld. S. H. Hertzler presiding. The church decided to support Sister Leah Glassmire in Sweden. June 28 Bro. W. K. Conner, of Harrisburg, preached at the Bareville house; also on Sunday morning and evening. In the afternoon the Sunday-school rendered a Children's Day program and Bro. Conner favored us with an illustrated lecture. July 1 Brother and Sister J. F. Graybill, returned missionaries from Sweden, were with us at Bareville and the following day at Earlville. Their talks were appreciated very much.—Mabel A. Myer, New Holland, Pa., July 7.

Garrett.—Eld. F. D. Anthony, of Baltimore, closed his evangelistic work June 1. He delivered eighteen inspiring sermons. Good interest was manifested. Two confessed Christ. Our preparatory service was held in the morning, and in the evening we met for the love feast. We elected three deacons previous to the service. July 6 we had a very interesting Children's Day service. Our pastor, Bro. B. F. Walter, gave us a splendid address.—Mrs. E. G. Fidler, Garrett, Pa., July 10.

Midway.—July 6 Eld. C. R. Gibbel, of Brunnersville, preached for us. Two certificates of membership have been received since the last report. Our Children's Meeting will be held July 20, when we expect Bro. Wm. N. Zeltley, of Lancaster, to be with us.—Lizzie B. Nolt, Lebanon, Pa., July 7.

Morrellville.—A few weeks ago our congregation was favored by a splendid program, given by four members of the Volunteer Band of Juniata College. Their stirring messages were all the more impressive because of the evidences of whole-hearted consecration which these young people manifested. On the evening of June 22 a very interesting Children's Day program was rendered by our Sunday-school. July 1 our church met in council, with Eld. J. F. Ream presiding.—Mrs. C. C. Sollenberger, Johnstown, Pa., July 7.

New Enterprise church met in council July 5, with Bro. D. T. Detwiler presiding. Certificates were granted and new ones accepted. Our Harvest Home Meeting will be held Aug. 10. Our pastor, Bro. G. E. Yoder, will preach the sermon. Bro. Nelson Kagarice was reelected for three years on the finance committee. Our love feast will be held Oct. 25, at 6 P. M. We have secured Bro. G. E. Yoder, of Norristown, as our pastor. We hope he may he instrumental in raising our church to a much higher standard.—Margaret Replogle, New Enterprise, Pa., July 7.

New Paris church has just closed a very inspiring and spiritual series of meetings, held by Bro. A. M. Dixon, of Parker Ford, Pa. Bro. Dorsey Peppel led the singing. One was received by baptism. The interest was good throughout the meetings.—Carrie Smith, Spring Hope, Pa., July 7.

Plum Creek.—Our meetings, conducted by Bro. John R. Snyder, of Bellefontaine, Ohio, closed with six young people added to the church. A great deal of interest was taken in the meetings, and Bro. Snyder gave us thirteen rousing spiritual sermons. The success of the meetings was also due, in part, to the inspiring song services, under the direction of G. E. Householder, of Altoona. Our Conference offering was $83.76, and plans are being made to add $100 to it. The church sent the pastor and wife as their representatives to Annual Conference. The summer is bringing a renewed interest in the Sunday-school. A teacher-training class has been organized, with an enrolment of ten. The primary department is planning to get chairs and a table, to refurnish one of their rooms.—Mrs. A. B. Replogle, Shelocta, Pa., July 1.

Springfield.—Our evangelistic meetings, conducted by Eld. J. H. Longenecker, of Palmyra, Pa., closed May 18. Our love feast, held May 17, was well attended. Bro. Longenecker preached eighteen inspiring sermons. Five were baptized and one reclaimed. On Sunday morning, May 18, Bro. R. H. Brumbaugh delivered a sermon at the Quakertown house. June 1 Bro. Geo. Rogers, of Altoona, Pa., favored us with one of his splendid discourses. Springfield congregation sent $182 to the Armenian Relief Fund. We also lifted an Annual Meeting offering. The members of the Springfield church met in business session June 21, with Eld. Benj. Hottel in charge. Many improvements were made at both houses of worship. We are now preparing a Children's Day program, to be rendered at the Quakertown house Aug. 3.—Lucina Hershberger, Quakertown, Pa., July 2.

TENNESSEE

Beaver Creek church met in council July 5, with Eld. J. Henry Peterson presiding. We elected Bro. Peterson as delegate to District Meeting. Our Sunday-school is doing nicely.—Julia E. Peterson, Fountain City, Tenn., July 7.

TEXAS

Notice.—For the benefit of delegates from Southern Texas, attending District Meeting of Texas and Louisiana, to be held at Nocona, Texas, July 23-25: Come via Fort Worth; from Fort Worth to Nocona come via Ringgold over Rock Island; from Ringgold to Nocona, come over M. K. & T. This is the best route and will save lay-overs.—D. G. Brubaker, Nocona, Texas, July 7.

VIRGINIA

Belmont.—Our church met in council June 24, with Eld. Neff presiding. We expect to hold a revival meeting at the mission point, beginning July 29, with Bro. S. D. Miller, of Mt. Sidney, in charge. Brethren George Yagel and Cameron Yagel were chosen delegates to District Meeting.—Alice Miller, Belmont, Va., July 5.

Powells Fort congregation met in council at the Oak Hill house, June 14, with Eld. H. R. Mowry, of Woodstock, in charge. Several committees were appointed to do special work. It was decided to organize another Sunday-school in the congregation at the Pine Hill schoolhouse, with Bro. Robert McClanahan, superintendent. The writer was appointed to secure an evangelist to hold a series of meetings at the Oak Hill church this fall, closing with a love feast. During a series of meetings, recently held in the congregation, six have come into the church at this place. During April Sister Mary E. Martin spent some time in this field. Her work has been of benefit to the congregation.—Wm. E. Hamilton, Brownlown, Va., July 6.

Topeco congregation met in council at the Fairview church July 5, with Bro L. M. Weddle as moderator. One applicant has been received for baptism since the last report. July 6 we met for Sunday-school, with an attendance of 150. Afterward Eld. A. N. Hylton preached on "The Shining Life." Our Sunday-school will hold a convention July 15.—Almeda Alderman, Floyd, Va., July 7.

WASHINGTON

Loomis church met in council June 28. Seven letters were received. We have a membership of about seventy now. We changed the name of our congregation to the Okonogan Valley church, as the name Loomis is rather misleading at the present time. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren J. E. Weddel and Paul Mohler. We will hold our love feast after the new church is completed, some time in April. Our average attendance in Sunday-school is eighty. We will hold a Sunday-school picnic July 4, and expect a gathering of 150 to 200.—Mrs. Alice Rothrock, Loomis, Wash., July 3.

Omak church met in council June 22, with Bro. B. E. Breshears presiding. Our present elder, Bro. M. F. Woods, was not with us. We have two preaching appointments a month—the first and third Sundays. We work in the Union Sunday-school. Our membership is eighteen at this time. Preparations for our love feast in July were made—the exact date of which will be given later.—Mrs. Allie M. Murray, Omak, Wash., June 30.

WEST VIRGINIA

Bean Settlement.—We met in council May 5, with Eld. Luther Riggleman presiding. Our series of meetings will commence Aug. 9, with Bro. Cline, of Virginia, in charge. We decided to hold our love feast Aug. 23.—E. M. Riggleman, Rockoak, W. Va., June 25.

Bethel.—June 21 Bro. E. T. Fike, of Eglon, W. Va., began a series of meetings, preaching ten interesting sermons. The meetings were attended with great interest. One accepted Christ and the members are greatly strengthened. On Sunday Bro. Fike preached both morning and evening to good-sized audiences. We expect him to be with us again in the near future.—Anna Arnold, Old Fields, W. Va., July 5.

Shiloh.—We met in council June 21, Bro. W. R. Murphy acting as moderator in Bro. Hamstead's absence. We elected Bro. George Moore, of Moatsville, W. Va., to the ministry. Brethren H. F. Wilson and A. S. Spurgeon were elected deacons. They are to be installed by letters of membership were received. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren J. B. Shaffer and H. F. Wilson, with Brethren Charlie Digman and Albert Wilson as alternates. Bro. Joseph Yoho, of Big Bend, W. Va., is going to have a Bible Term some time this coming winter. The time will depend on when we can get an instructor. Brethren A. C. Keiser, Charlie Digman, Albert Wilson, and Sisters Jennie Wilson and Loudla Spurgeon were appointed to arrange the program. Our Sunday-school is increasing both in interest and attendance. We have the best Sunday-school we have had for years. The parents are taking an active part in the work. We will have our Children's Day Aug. 10. We are going to have an all-day service.—Louella (Bolyard) Spurgeon, R. D. 1, Moatsville, W. Va., July 1.

WISCONSIN

Rice Lake church met in council June 28. Our church having purchased the building in which we have been worshiping, the following trustees were elected: L. T. Vine, N. Prytz and Wm. H. Eiler. We decided to have dedication services July 27 and a love feast July 28. Bro. Nels Prytz was elected Sunday-school superintendent. Our Sunday-school had an enjoyable time on the Fourth at the church.—Wm. H. Eiler, Rice Lake, Wis., July 7.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

July 23-25, District of Texas and Louisiana, at Nocona, Texas.
August 18-21, District of Oregon, at Portland.
August 28, District of Southern Indiana, at Rossville church.
August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.

LOVE FEASTS

Canada

July 26, Bow Valley.

Indiana

August 24, Ladoga.
August 30, New Salem.

Iowa

August 29, Libertyville.

Missouri

August 23, 7 pm, Prairie View.

North Dakota

July 19, 7 pm, Cando, at Zion house.
July 19, Bowdon Valley.
July 26, 7 pm, Kenmare.
July 26, Golden Willow.

Ohio

August 2, 6 pm, Sugar Creek, Bunker Hill house.

Virginia

August 23, Lebanon.

West Virginia

August 23, Bean Settlement.
August 30, Maple Spring.

Wisconsin

July 21, Rice Lake.

What Is My Share

In the Forward Movement of the Church?

It is time we are all beginning to think seriously on this question if we are to accomplish the ends we have in view.

EVERY YOUNG PERSON

must secure a practical and complete education if he or she is to be of greatest service to God and the world. LET US HELP YOU secure this education.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

His Grandchildren Little Heathens

It was only his dream but it
STARTED HIM TO THINKING SERIOUSLY

What if it should come true? What if It Should Come True with Your Posterity!

Remember: Christian education is the only guarantee against it.

Give your children that which cannot be taken away from them—Christian Ideals, Christian Inspiration, Christian Love for Service.

McPHERSON COLLEGE

is the standard Christian College. No better place on earth for YOUR son. Ideals highest, expenses lowest.

McPHERSON, KANSAS

Fall semester begins September 15, 1919.

(Watch this space next week.)

Pollyanna, the Glad Book

Eleanor H. Porter

Mr. Leigh Mitchell Hodges, the Optimist, in an editorial for the Philadelphia North American, says: "And when, after Pollyanna has gone away, you get her letter saying she is going to take 'eight steps' tomorrow—well, I don't know just what you may do, but I know of one person who buried his face in his hands and shook with the gladdest sort of gladness and got down on his knees and thanked the Giver of all gladness for POLLYANNA."

Price postpaid, $1.50

Pollyanna Grows Up

Eleanor H. Porter

The second "Glad Book," continuing the story of Pollyanna into young womanhood. It is considered by many to be even better than the earlier book.

Price postpaid, $1.50

Christian Workers' Booklet

Each six months sees an increased interest in the Christian Workers' Society. These booklets contain not only the topics, but a good outline to follow and will be of assistance in working out a program. Each member should have a copy. Prices: Less than 25 copies, 4c each; 25 copies, 75c; 50 copies, $1.25; 100 copies, $2.00.

Junior Christian Workers' Topic Cards

give a complete list of the Junior Christian Workers' Topics for July to December, 1919. Every Junior will want a card. Prices: 10 to 50 cards, 1c each; per 100 cards, 75c. Please do not send for less than 10 cards.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

What Is My Share

In the Forward Movement of the Church?

It is time we are all beginning to think seriously on this question if we are to accomplish the ends we have in view.

EVERY YOUNG PERSON

must secure a practical and complete education if he or she is to be of greatest service to God and the world. LET US HELP YOU secure this education.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

His Grandchildren Little Heathens

It was only his dream but it
STARTED HIM TO THINKING SERIOUSLY

What if it should come true? What if It Should Come True with Your Posterity!

Remember: Christian education is the only guarantee against it.

Give your children that which cannot be taken away from them—Christian Ideals, Christian Inspiration, Christian Love for Service.

McPHERSON COLLEGE

is the standard Christian College. No better place on earth for YOUR son. Ideals highest, expenses lowest.

McPHERSON, KANSAS

Fall semester begins September 15, 1919.

(Watch this space next week.)

Pollyanna, the Glad Book

Eleanor H. Porter

Mr. Leigh Mitchell Hodges, the Optimist, in an editorial for the Philadelphia North American, says: "And when, after Pollyanna has gone away, you get her letter saying she is going to take 'eight steps' tomorrow—well, I don't know just what you may do, but I know of one person who buried his face in his hands and shook with the gladdest sort of gladness and got down on his knees and thanked the Giver of all gladness for POLLYANNA."

Price postpaid, $1.50

Pollyanna Grows Up

Eleanor H. Porter

The second "Glad Book," continuing the story of Pollyanna into young womanhood. It is considered by many to be even better than the earlier book.

Price postpaid, $1.50

Christian Workers' Booklet

Each six months sees an increased interest in the Christian Workers' Society. These booklets contain not only the topics, but a good outline to follow and will be of assistance in working out a program. Each member should have a copy. Prices: Less than 25 copies, 4c each; 25 copies, 75c; 50 copies, $1.25; 100 copies, $2.00.

Junior Christian Workers' Topic Cards

THE GOSPEL MES

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., July 26, 1919

In This Number

Editorial—

Whetting Up the Finer Sensibilities, ...465
The Kind of Fellowship Paul Liked, ...465
"A Kingdom That Can Not Be Shaken," 465
Unjust Treatment of "Conscientious Objectors" by the British Government (D. L. M.), ...465
The Quiet Hour, ...471
Among the Churches, ...472
Around the World, ...473

Contributors' Forum—

Taking Stock (Poem), ...466
Stewardship—Bed-rock. By Carman Cover Johnson, ...466
The World's Great Error. By Roy Temple House, ...466
Burning Christians. By Galen B. Royer, ...467
The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative.—Part Two. By Chas. M. Yearout, ...467
Coöperation. By Mrs. D. F. Warner, ...468
Our Tracts. By Edgar Rothrock, ...468
Our Great Problem. By S. S. Blough, ...469
The Cry of a Soul in Distress. By C. B. Rowe, ...469

The Round Table—

The Smallest Being on Earth. By J. S. Sherfy, ...470
"Where Dwellest Thou?" By Norman W. Tweidy, ...470
The Allowances of God. By G. W. Tuttle, ...470
Lo, the Poor Preacher! By Leander Smith, ...470
Holy Communion. By Ida M. Helm, ...470
The Vine-man Is Also the Ax-man. By M. M. Eshelman, ...471
Principles Worthy of Adoption, ...471
Monuments. By John Woodard, ...471

Home and Family—

Good-bye, John Barleycorn (Poem). By Mary Stoner Wine, ...474
Applied Philosophy. By Rhetta O'Rourke, ...474
Loyalty. By Ezra Flory, ...474
Observations on a Visit to the County Home. By Elizabeth McDannel Martin, ...474

...EDITORIAL...

Whetting Up the Finer Sensibilities

THIS is one of the big jobs bequeathed to us by the war. Recognizing gladly the tremendous emphasis which the war gave to certain great moral principles, like self-sacrifice for the common good and the invincible power of a righteous ideal, there are also evidences here and there that the keen edge of popular Christian sensitiveness has been dulled. One such is found in what happened at Toledo, Ohio, July 4.

Before the war prize-fighting had been practically outlawed in this country. Nevada was about the only refuge left, and the last contest big enough to attract general attention fled to Cuba. But this time a "world's championship battle" was staged in our very midst and that too without awakening a ripple of protest. At least the "ripple" was not big enough to get itself seen or heard. It shows how we now take, as a matter of course, some things which would have shocked us a few years ago.

Now you can get almost any sort of moral out of this situation you want. You can simply say: "Yes, yes, I told you so. Things are going to the bad so fast now it's no use trying longer to stem the tide."

Or you can just as easily adopt a sensible attitude. You can reflect upon the inevitable tendency of such an era of appeal to brute force as we have passed through lately. And if sufficiently interested you can look up the history of former periods of reconstruction, following great wars, and learn much that is instructive, disillusioning and encouraging. And then you can see in the present situation the urgency of renewed diligence in propagating Christian sentiments and ideals. And you can take off your coat and go to work.

The Kind of Fellowship Paul Liked

"A Kingdom That C

A CAREFUL reader of the epistle to the Hebrews will find in it numerous reflections of the troublous times in which that book was written. Even a careless reader could hardly fail to see in the closing verses of chapter twelve a background, so much like the world we are living in ourselves, that these verses take on new meaning for us. We can understand better how it must have felt to those who had regarded Jewish institutions as everlasting, to see Judaism and Jerusalem and the temple and its ritual all crumbling.

This trembling of the earth, says the writer, and of the very heavens too, as it seemed, was only in line with what Haggai had said when he told how Jehovah would "shake the heavens and the earth and the sea and the dry land." The object of all this shaking was to remove the things which are shakable, so that the things which can not be shaken may remain.

But what were they? What could withstand such a universal shake-up? Isn't that the very question which has been foremost in your mind too, amidst the world confusion of these times? Well, here's the answer. It is as good for us as it was for the Hebrews: "Wherefore, receiving a kingdom that can not be shaken, let us have grace whereby we may offer service well-pleasing to God with reverence and awe."

That Kingdom which the Hebrews had received and which stood unmoved through all the turmoil of the first Christian century, is standing yet. And just as surely it will survive all the turmoil of these unsettled days. It is the one thing that "can not be shaken." It is the Kingdom whose King is Jesus Christ and whose domain is the hearts of all those who love him in sincerity.

Why be disturbed? Here is something you can tie to. The Kingdom of Jesus Christ is an actually existing, immovable rock-bottom fact. Its territorial boundaries are indeed very much confined. It is as nothing, in comparison with what it must become. Wherefore we labor on and pray: "Thy Kingdom come." But for you and me and all who will, it's here. And best of all, it will stay.

Institutions and organizations come and go. Religious denominations may rise and fall. But the spiritual supremacy of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, was established once for all almost two millenniums ago. A throne for it was set up in human hearts and that throne, while the thrones of Kaisers crumble into dust and Kaisers flee to exile and disgrace—that throne will never totter. Its sway must widen. There are countless millions who do not recognize it. But those who have received this Kingdom are citizens of the most substantial and enduring Kingdom in the universe.

The war did shake a great many things. One of them was the easy-going optimism with which we looked upon our modern Christian civilization. We did not know how thin-skinned it was. But this shaking, violent and painful as it was, produced not a single tremor in the rock Christ Jesus, nor the Kingdom built upon it. What principle of his was proved false?

imprisonment for his crime. Here was a good, God-fearing, honest, intelligent man, with a long life of righteousness behind him—he is about sixty years old—sentenced to ten years of cruel imprisonment with criminals of the worst character, simply because he expressed an opinion he held. He never committed a crime. Surely the sentence for saying those few words was beyond all reason—too severe.

God will not hold us guiltless if we fail to lift our voices against such action by our Government, and do our best to have our good people released from prison. Some of our conscientious brethren, who could not bear arms, contrary to the doctrine of our Divine Teacher, are in prison today. Honest, godly men are compelled to associate with criminals of the darkest dye. We most sincerely hope that our Government will release these good men, who are just as true and as loyal as are those who took up arms to slay others. They felt it were better to obey Christ and suffer imprisonment than to violate his Divine Law, his teaching and his example of peace.

In the War of the Revolution our church held the same views, conscientiously, as are now held against going to war. One of our leaders, Eld. Christopher Saur, was arrested and taken before General Washington at Valley Forge, Pa. When he explained his faith to the great general, he at once released him, believing that a man had a right to his conscientious faith. In the Civil War our people were relieved from service because of their being conscientiously opposed to war. This privilege was afforded them on the part of the Federal Government, as well as on the part of the Southern Confederacy. A small sum of money had to be paid, but no one suffered as some have suffered in this late war.

This article is closed by quoting from a writer in the Chicago Tribune:

"Human beings will always and increasingly have conscientious objections to military service, and society must decide their fate. If military training is to be made compulsory, let us clearly understand beforehand all that it implies. There will be rebellious boys who won't put on the uniform. What are we going to do to them? Are we willing to destroy them body and soul? Shall their verdicts differ with the temper of their judges, and their jailers have free rein to torture them in jail, or shall they suffer a definite prison sentence and still be treated like human beings?"

D. L. M.

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

Taking Stock

Selected by Agnes M. Geib, Manheim, Pa.

Just stand aside and watch yourself go by;
Think of yourself as he, instead of I;
Interpret all your motives just as though
You looked on one you did not know.
Let undisguised contempt surge through you when
You see the "you" shirk, O commonest of men.

Despite your cowardice, condemn whate'er
You note of falseness in you anywhere.
Defend not one defect that shames your eye—
Just stand aside and see yourself go by.

And then with eyes unveiled to what you loathe,
To sins that with "sweet charity" you clothe,
Back to yourself-walled tenement you'll go
With tolerance to all who dwell below.

The faults of others, then, will dwarf and shrink,
Love's chain grow stronger by one mighty link,
When you, with he, as substitute for I,
Have stood aside and watched yourself go by.

—The Gimlet.

Stewardship—Bed-Rock

BY CARMAN COVER JOHNSON

This matter of Christian Stewardship is not so much by way of recovery of a lost art or doctrine as it is a modern discovery of a fundamental principle in divine economics that has, like many another hitherto undiscovered and unused religious principle, been lying dormant in the great Truth of God, waiting for its time to come. Isn't it strange that right now, when public thought all around the world is agitated as never before over the problem of the distribution of wealth, there should be this hitherto unprecedented emphasis by the Christian church upon the law of stewardship, and of tithing as a method of working out this law?

Just note, for a moment, how sweeping the law of stewardship really is. It is, as the economist would say, an economic hypothesis with reference to distribution. It goes so far as to step right into the middle of a great contention and tell capitalist and socialist alike that neither of them is owner of wealth, that each of them is a steward or trustee, and that the first element of distribution, after overhead and existence-wants are taken care of, is the Lord's tithe. How daring and yet how significant, too, when one reflects that every other ism in the world starts to distribute wealth among human beings as if these same human beings were owners!

The Christian capitalist and laborer alike say "stewardship." The materialistic or pagan capitalist says "personal ownership" with a vengeance, even to the ownership of the labor which he presumes to buy as a commodity. The communist says "community ownership." The socialist says "governmental ownership." The anarchist, the Bolshevist, the syndicalist and the I. W. W.—all are negative in their attitude toward ownership, and of course would laugh at stewardship—they seek only violently to overthrow the present order, whatever it is.

We have the answer to our consciences, to the church, to the world, and to God himself. He is Creator and Owner; and man is the moral administrator, paying back to God's treasury an interest-charge of ten per cent, and this not by way of discharging all obligation to the Real Owner, but merely as an evidence that the whole subject of property administration is being permeated with the idea of a divine stewardship. Impractical, you say? Too idealistic? Too far-fetched? Look here—why should any red-blooded Christian man get frightened at the logic of his own faith? Let us be willing always to follow up any Christian principle to its practical application.

The law of stewardship, if recognized, and the practice of tithing, as a method of recognizing this great law, would not only put the Forward Movement over the top, but would make a total of $1,000,000 yearly look small to the Brethren. Is it out of place to suggest that our socially uneasy humanity may ultimately find this law of stewardship operating as a solvent in what seem to be unreconcilable differences in public thought? Suppose even the tithe of great wealth were yearly turned into the channels of the common good through the treasuries of the Christian churches, what a shrinkage of swollen fortunes would occur; and how this fact would minimize the feelings of injustice that arise in the breasts of those whose stewardship does not involve so much of the Lord's material treasure! And then—and perhaps as yet we do not have the ability to re-administer the great funds that would accrue—think of how the mighty constructive forces of the church would operate as a further modifier of differences among men! This is an endless chain, Brethren; and we do well to forge its links and start it going on its endless circuit of carrying and lifting power to all mankind.

The legalistic aspects of stewardship are not interesting—"the letter killeth." The will to stewardship is all that is needed. Net incomes, gross incomes and allowances for shortage or overhead or family maintenance or property depreciation or debt, or old age or dependence—all these matters are merely incidental and must be worked out by the individual with his God. A recognition of God's ownership and your and my stewardship is bedrock.

How we reckon God's portion of income, to whom we pay it as his further steward, how much will sooner or later accumulate, to what ends God's current own shall be applied, how the operations of this law will affect the world's social unrest, how, indeed, it will effect a sort of democratization of the church herself by increasing the number of real contributors to the various budgets of the church and so increasing the number of those who feel that the church is their immediate concern, and how it will make possible hitherto undreamed of programs of world-salvation at home and abroad—all these are corollary and derivative considerations. As compared with the thing posited—God's ownership of his own, and our stewardship of his own as a universal service to all his children—all incidental questions fade away, and we are left face to face with a real and personal problem. This is a very vital and practical part of "The Whole Gospel" for which we stand: Do I stand for it by practicing it to the satisfaction of my conscience before God?

Pittsburgh, Pa.

The World's Great Error

BY ROY TEMPLE HOUSE

If it is true that the world, in spite of its marvelous and constantly-accelerated material advance, has thus far accomplished depressingly little toward the solution of the great problem of how to make life worth the living, it is because the world, as a whole, has committed the costly blunder of assuming that men are merely individuals. There is a sense in which a man is scarcely more an independent entity than is a screw, in a complicated and delicate machine. Solely as an individual, he can accomplish little that is constructive. By dropping out of his place he can derange and ruin the rest of the mechanism; but he can not do, to its fullest, the work God meant for him, except as a part of a harmonious whole. God created not men, but man; and as long as the world is peopled by men, the world will fail as sadly of accomplishing God's full purpose as a lot of wheels and springs, scattered about on a table, fails to accomplish the purpose of the watch-maker.

This is the most tragic phase of war. War causes loss of property, but material possessions are only a means to an end, and at least in the quantities in which the modern world has accumulated them, are more or less incidental and superfluous. War causes suffering and death, but neither suffering nor death is an absolute evil, perhaps. War brings a worse affliction than these, the horrid poison called hate; and it defeats God's purpose by not merely holding the parts of the machine from union, but by setting them at mutual destruction. A world that knows war is a godless world, and a failure.

This is the peril of a competitive system. Competition which stimulates is praiseworthy, but competition which hampers and destroys—and the industrial rivalries of men and nations have been doing this through all time—is retrogression and wickedness. We have yet to learn that no individual can truly thrive except with the prosperity of the race. "Excessive competition," says Channing, "of necessity generates fraud." "Competition of riches, honors, command, or other power," wrote Hobbes, "inclineth to contention, enmity, and war; because the way of one competitor to the attaining of his desire, is to kill, subdue, supplant or repel the other." Such competition is both sinful and wasteful. The whole world has been steadily at war since Cain's first deed of violence; and since the world is one, war and selfish rivalry are suicidal folly.

But the picture must not be painted too somber. Whether or not it may always be true that every Englishman's house is his castle, it is gloriously beyond question that in my own inviolable heart I can hold constantly to the realization that all men are one in God's loving plan. I can keep on loving and serving other men, knowing that my own best good as well as theirs demands it; and I can thus do my bit toward winning the great war against war and selfishness. It is a long and tedious conflict, but the victory may come very suddenly. In material regards, Europe actually lost ground for a thousand years; but the last century has seen more technical progress than in the twenty centuries preceding. It seems possible, as a result of the recent conflict and its wholesome exposures, that our children may profit by a social and industrial reform such as will almost remake the world.

And the individual can, to some degree, be a collectivist in spite of the stubborn individualists all about him. "Why are you always doing so much for your pupils?" some one asked a high school teacher who spent hours a week helping the laggards; "you don't e considerations. As compared with the thing sited—God's ownership of his own, and our wardship of his own as a universal service to all children—all incidental questions fade away, and are left face to face with a real and personal prob-n. This is a very vital and practical part of "The hole Gospel" for which we stand: Do I stand for by practicing it to the satisfaction of my conscience fore God?

Pittsburgh, Pa.

The World's Great Error

BY ROY TEMPLE HOUSE

F it is true that the world, in spite of its marvelous d constantly-accelerated material advance, has thus accomplished depressingly little toward the solu-n of the great problem of how to make life worth living, it is because the world, as a whole, has nmitted the costly blunder of assuming that men merely individuals. There is a sense in which a n is scarcely more an independent entity than is a ew, in a complicated and delicate machine. Solely an individual, he can accomplish little that is con-uctive. By dropping out of his place he can derange d ruin the rest of the mechanism; but he can not do, its fullest, the work God meant for him, except as art of a harmonious whole. God created not men, man; and as long as the world is peopled by men, world will fail as sadly of accomplishing God's full rpose as a lot of wheels and springs, scattered about a table, fails to accomplish the purpose of the tch-maker.

This is the most tragic phase of war. War causes s of property, but material possessions are only a ans to an end, and at least in the quantities in which modern world has accumulated them, are more or s incidental and superfluous. War causes suffering d death, but neither suffering nor death is an abso-e evil, perhaps. War brings a worse affliction than ese, the horrid poison called hate; and it defeats od's purpose by not merely holding the parts of the achine from union, but by setting them at mutual struction. A world that knows war is a godless rld, and a failure.

This is the peril of a competitive system. Competi-n which stimulates is praiseworthy, but competition hich hampers and destroys—and the industrial rival-s of men and nations have been doing this through time—is retrogression and wickedness. We have t to learn that no individual can truly thrive cept with the prosperity of the race. "Excessive mpetition," says Channing, "of necessity generates aud." "Competition of riches, honors, command, other power," wrote Hobbes, "inclineth to conten-on, enmity, and war; because the way of one com-titor to the attaining of his desire, is to kill, subdue, pplant or repel the other." Such competition is both uful and wasteful. The whole world has been eadily at war since Cain's first deed of violence; and nce the world is one, war and selfish rivalry are icidal folly.

But the picture must not be painted too somber. Whether or not it may always be true that every nglishman's house is his castle, it is gloriously beyond estion that in my own inviolable heart I can hold nstantly to the realization that all men are one in od's loving plan. I can keep on loving and serving her men, knowing that my own best good as well as eirs demands it; and I can thus do my bit toward inning the great war against war and selfishness. It a long and tedious conflict, but the victory may come ry suddenly. In material regards, Europe actually st ground for a thousand years; but the last century as seen more technical progress than in the twenty nturies preceding. It seems possible, as a result of get anything for it." "That's just what makes it worth while," said the girl. "If I got anything for it, that would take all the good out of it." And eventually, no doubt, she will "get something" for it. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse," said the Lord through Malachi, "and prove me now herewith, if I will not pour out a blessing." In spite of the incredulity, the foolish selfishness and violence of the mass, certain clear-sighted individuals have been proving, through all time, that the life of real getting is the life of giving. George Washington declared his conviction that "there is no truth more thoroughly established, than that there exists, in the economy and course of nature, an indissoluble union between the genuine maxims of an honest and magnanimous policy, and the solid rewards of public prosperity and felicity." It is true that his older contemporary, Frederick of Prussia, as confidently proclaimed the diametrically opposite public policy—but the respective effects of the two theories are so evident at this moment that their relative value requires no comment. No man or nation can really or permanently thrive except by working for the good of the world. Self-seeking is the pursuit of a mirage. It is no more possible to advance yourself by your own efforts than to lift yourself by your own boot-straps.

During a residence of several months in a military cantonment, the writer came to know a number of men to whom the late war meant large material sacrifice. Salaried men whose army pay was much less than their peace-time salaries, business men whose business was suffering because of their absence—these and other difficulties were the burden of many a life-story. But in the words of a successful metropolitan minister among them, whose salary as a Y. M. C. A. secretary was half his income from the pulpit which he had left for the period of the war: "It's hard on the poor fellows, but it will prove the salvation of a lot of them. They are being pulled free, by main force, from the mammon of unrighteousness. It hurts, but it will be better for them in the end. We've gone into this thing to help mankind, and we are going to do our part of the helping, no matter what it costs. In fact, the more it costs us, the more merit there is in it, and, I am inclined to think, the more we shall be able to do." If it takes a world-upheaval to teach mankind in general that giving is better than getting, perhaps the world-upheaval is not all disaster, after all.

464 College Avenue, Norman, Okla.

Burning Christians

BY GALEN B. ROYER

THERE is an increase and decrease in spiritual experience and, much as it is to be regretted, too often it is a decrease in many lives. There are, however, glorious lives, living in the sunshine of the Eternal Presence, enveloped in the halo and filled with power. Sometimes, however, even in such lives something transpires. Men note a change. He who used to be a splendid worker, apparently is no longer one. People used to flock to hear him preach, or to assist him in his heavenly work, and this has ceased. He has no drawing power. He still goes to church regularly, has family worship and pays his dues. But something has gone wrong; he no longer is much good in the fight of faith.

Some one, speaking more exactly than he realizes, says: "Oh, he has lost the fire."

"Fire?" What is it, and how may it be gained and lost? These questions at once resolve themselves into two sides of the same thing—God's part in making one a burning Christian and man's part in becoming one.

God's part, a GIFT, is the burning power of the Holy Spirit, the baptism "with the Holy Spirit and in fire" against it—that the Spirit within us can master and drive them away.

But certain conditions are demanded of us if we are to receive this burning. Let us examine closely, for herein may be the secret of our not being burning Christians.

Perhaps the first and most important condition is the hardest of all—self-sacrifice. I mean "self-sacrifice" in its real meaning—that utter and complete giving up of self. Not the surrender of some portion of our lives, as some would emphasize, but the complete surrender of the mind, will, likes and dislikes, ambitions and pleasures, strength and time, friends and money, reputation, future—all—as a reasonable service (Rom. 12: 1). This must be carried so far that there is a willingness, if it please the Lord, to be made the "filth of the world and the offscouring of all things" (1 Cor. 4: 13) that we might save souls.

Complete sacrifice! Who has made it? Heaven and earth wait to see what God CAN and WILL do through one who fully surrenders his ALL to him. Some make the surrender for a short time. Then, how blessed it would be, could they have David's prayer as their own: "Bind the sacrifice with cords even unto the horns of the altar" (Psa. 118: 27). Some have enjoyed this power for a season, but when the spirit of selfishness in any form appears, or self-will in manner takes its place, the burning ceases and all men know it.

To self-sacrifice must be added a boly, enthusiastic aggressiveness that knows no fatigue save of the body, that sees God's promises more brightly in dark days than in light ones, that holds on unrelentingly until souls surrender and we are saved.

There is a sense in which Christians must have a bold, daring, fighting spirit (Acts 3: 13, 14; 20: 31) and then, in God's hands, the "mountains" of pride and unbelief are cast aside like piles of chaff. Such burning, fighting Christians seldom mince their words, but speak to the point. Their question is direct and personal: "Are YOU saved?" They can no more keep still than can a good terrier when he scents a rat. Every one feels the power of the burning—that same result which the multitude saw and felt on Pentecost.

It is impossible to be on fire without every one knowing it. A burning evangelist means a "warm" meeting. The hearers catch a new enthusiasm. They are hopeful that God will lead them on to victory, in spite of the odds against them. They throw themselves boldly into the fray because their leader is so far to the front and is breaking through the ranks. They answer his call and command, enjoying the fight against sin, and are bent on victory. They succeed and rejoice in the God of their salvation.

Likewise, when a layman begins to burn. His words may be few and stammering, but they go direct to the heart. There is a heavenly glow on his face, a sparkle in the eye, an accent in the voice—all of which speaks of a fresh, warm, genuine heart. These are the battering rams that break through the walls of prejudice and unbelief.

Where is not this heavenly burning needed? Surely in all mission work, for where are the walls of opposition stronger? Truly, too, there is need of divine fire on the home base, because here the walls are thick through disobedience to the heavenly vision.

So precious is this burning, and yet so easily lost (1 Cor. 13: 1)! Just permit some wrong motive to enter our hearts, or become anxious for success to please men, add to our fame, to have a name for doing things well. If you stop in the service to think of yourself, how the words sound, how your gestures appear, how well you are leading the meeting, and the flame smoulders at once. One can never learn too early in life how jealous the Holy Spirit is, and how quickly he flees from us if we but think of ourselves, our skill and our helpfulness. Because preachers want world would love his own; but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." Jesus said one time, while in the hands of his enemies: "My kingdom is not of this world: If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence" (John 18: 36).

The laws of this spiritual Kingdom are opposed to war and the spirit and encouragement of war. Pray for your enemies, do good to those who abuse you, despitefully use you and persecute you. "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for by so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head." "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." The mission of the church in the world is not to fight and kill, but to evangelize the world and bring it to Christ and salvation, and when the people are brought under the beautiful banner of the Prince of Peace, then bloody war will cease from the earth, the sword will be sheathed forever, and instead of the people being taxed to build warships and war equipment, the people will turn their attention to industrial lines and build up instead of destroy. Good will take the place of hate, and peace will reign from seashore to seashore, and from sunrise to sunset.

When this shall have been accomplished, then shall be realized fully the beautiful strain of the angel choir over the Judean plains: "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, and good will to men." Had the professed subjects of the Kingdom of the Prince of Peace been loyal and submissive to his laws, then the destructive, murderous war would never have been, and the millions of the world's best manhood—hurled into premature graves by the modern weapons of carnal warfare—would be enjoying the association of loved ones in peaceful, happy homes. Instead of sorrow and weeping over the earth, there would be joy and contentment.

"There comes to my heart one sweet strain,
A glad and a joyous refrain,
I sing it again and again,
Sweet peace, the gift of God's love."

How the subjects of this Kingdom of peace can shoot one another down on the battle-field, and kill those whom their King loved and for whom he died on the cruel cross that they might be saved and have a home in heaven, is a problem I can not solve.

Another thing I can not understand is how the subjects of this Great King can trample under foot his counsel, and ignore much of his heavenly teaching. May the day be hastened "when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters the sea."

The Law of Faith

"Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? Nay: but by the law of faith" (Rom. 3: 27). "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Hence it is a product of God's Word, directed and controlled by it. Faith reaches into the domain of the unseen and unknown, and lays hold of the promises of God. It embraces in its grasp the entire counsel of God, yielding humble obedience to his will in all things.

In this will is included repentance, baptism for the remission of sins, feet-washing, the Lord's supper—a full meal taken in the evening—the bread and cup of communion, taken at the close of the supper, the prayer-covering for prayer and prophesying, nonconformity to the world in life and dress, the anointing of the sick with oil in the name of the Lord, purity of heart and life—in short, all things contained in the Perfect Law of Liberty, which God has designed as rites, rules and regulations for the observance and government of his people. "Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." To refuse to yield submissive obedience to all these things is sin, for Jesus says: "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloak [excuse] for their sin." Sin is any thought, word, action, omission, or desire contrary to the law of God.

If Christ is our Lord and Master, then our recognition of his headship leads to a humble, submissive life of obedience in his service. As Lord, it is his prerogative to command, and as servants it is our bounden duty to obey him. "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say" (Luke 6: 46)? A faith that doesn't lead to action is dead and produces no fruitage, and God is not honored by it. There is no proof of faith outside of the work it produces. James says: "Show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works." "Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well: the devils also believe and tremble." The faith of devils does not lead them to obey God. The life that does not yield humble submission to God in all things is not under the law of faith: for faith yields submission to God's Word.

Berthoud, Colo.

Coöperation

BY MRS. D. F. WARNER

One of the secrets of success in any business is coöperation. All the employes of a factory, a store, or any commercial institution must work together to accomplish one thing—to make the business a success.

I have often wondered why we try to do church work on such a greatly different basis. Suppose we start out on the premise that everybody in the church should work to make the business of the church a success—just the business end of a spiritual proposition! What is the business of the church? Winning souls.

Not long ago Sister A said: "Well, I'm not going to work in the Sunday-school, because the superintendent doesn't do things to suit me." And Sister B said: "I'm done with the Aid Society, because Sister C tries to run everything." And Brother D said: "I'm not going to church any more, because every time I go, the preacher 'knocks.' I'm getting tired being 'slammed,' so I guess I'll stay at home."

Now Sister A and Sister B and Brother D are all members of the church, and they are engaged in the business world every day in the week. They know if they acted like that in their business, the business wouldn't succeed. They know, too, that if they talked like that they would soon lose their jobs. Yet they act on the premise that the church work will succeed under those conditions.

I wonder how many souls A, B and D have won during the past year with that kind of a program?

Now, of course, Sister A, I know you don't like the way the superintendent runs his Sunday-school, but do you suppose it would be done any better if you had the job? And I wonder how much better the Aid Society would be run if Sister B were running it. And then, wouldn't it be fine to let Brother D preach a while? I know he could just please everybody.

Not so long ago, Sister W had quite a responsible task given her. A number of women helped her, but not one was willing to take the responsibility of the job. When the work was finished, and, as far as we could see, well done, then Sister G said to Sister X: "Well, I'll never help on a job like that again. Sister W had her nose in everything. She just tried to boss the whole job." I suppose she thought to talk and act like that would help win some more souls. When I studied "soul-winning," the principles of the work were very different. But I suppose some of these people studied a different textbook.

Now, really, friends, what are you gaining by this everlasting fault-finding and criticising? Bro. S, do you remember when you were asked to take a Sunday-school class and refused? Then the church gave you another job, and you didn't stay at that very long. Then they tried again to find something that would really suit and please you, but you refused. You were not willing to do the job yourself. You loaded it over on the willing horse, and then, when he didn't do it, the way you would have done it (?) you were ready to criticise and find fault. It is so easy to criticise your brother or sister who was willing to do what you wouldn't do. The people who do the least, always find the most fault. Those who are busy working in the church, don't have time to pick flaws.

Why should your opinion prevail above that of some one else? There may be from two to eight hundred other people in the church that have exactly as much right to their opinions as you have to yours. When you begin work in an office or a factory, do you tell your employer that you will work for him just as long as you can run things your way, or do you agree to work for the good of the company? If you went to the employment bureau of any business enterprise and asked for a job, saying you had some ideas of your own as to how such a business should be conducted, and just as long as they let you run things your way, you would work for them, do you suppose you would get the job?

People who are really interested in the work of the church have no thought about pleasing themselves. Not my will, but that which will count for the most in the success of my church—that which will win the largest number of souls—is what I want to see carried out.

Could you imagine Christ balking or pouting because he couldn't have his own way? He was continually doing the will of the Father. And, oh, what harmony we could have in the church today if we all did the will of the Father! I'm sure there would be less fault-finding.

There is a time and place for just criticism. Every true pastor welcomes it. Every true church or Sunday-school worker accepts it kindly. Sometimes the criticism that is given may not be so far wrong, but the critics have taken such a queer way to get it to the proper parties—it goes through so many hands. Yes, sometimes it goes through the hands of the wholesaler, the jobber and the retailer.

Now, brother or sister, if you find any particular pleasure in spreading out people's faults and looking at them, just spread out some of your own and take a good look at them just as often as you want to. Most of us can find plenty without going away from home for them.

The next time you see a brother tugging away at a load that is most too much for him, instead of standing off and criticising, suppose you take off your coat and push. The next time the minister says something in his sermons you don't like, suppose you just forget that and think and talk about the things he said you did like. Instead of finding fault with the Sunday-school teacher because your boy doesn't go to Sunday-school, suppose you try telling him all the good things you know about the Sunday-school and church, the pastor and his wife, the Sunday-school teacher and all the rest, instead of feeding him upon the faults of everybody in the church. When your children don't come into the church when you think they ought to, suppose you spend some of the time in your home, talking "up" the church, instead of talking it down.

If people would work at their business like they do in the church, they would soon be discharged.

We would recommend, for the healthy growth of any church, less "kick" and more work. "A kicking horse can't pull and a pulling horse can't kick."

Dayton, Ohio.

Our Tracts

BY EOGAR ROTHROCK
Secretary of Tract Examining Committee

The distribution of carefully-prepared tracts has been an important part of the mission work of the church for years. In one of the strongest addresses, given at the recent Winona Lake Conference, the speaker related how, as a young man, he became interested in the Church of the Brethren through a copy of the "Brethren's Card" coming into his hands. We will do well to continue carefully to foster this line of work. We need a good, up-to-date list of carefully-selected tracts and a good system of distribution.

This work is under the direction of the General Mission Board. Years ago the Annual Conference appointed an Examining Committee, to see that only the right kind of tracts were published. There has come to be a close coöperation between the two committees just mentioned, and, encouraged by the former, the latter passes not only on what material happens to be presented, but is constantly on the lookout for new red other people in the church that have exactly as uch right to their opinions as you have to yours.

When you begin work in an office or a factory, do you ell your employer that you will work for him just as ong as you can run things your way, or do you agree o work for the good of the company? If you went o the employment bureau of any business enterprise nd asked for a job, saying you had some ideas of your wn as to how such a business should be conducted, nd just as long as they let you run things your way, ou would work for them, do you suppose you would et the job?

People who are really interested in the work of the hurch have no thought about pleasing themselves.
Not my will, but that which will count for the most in he success of my church—that which will win the argest number of souls—is what I want to see carried ut.

Could you imagine Christ balking or pouting because e couldn't have his own way? He was continually oing the will of the Father. And, oh, what harmony re could have in the church today if we all did the will f the Father! I'm sure there would be less fault-nding.

There is a time and place for just criticism. Every rue pastor welcomes it. Every true church or Sun-ay-school worker accepts it kindly. Sometimes the riticism that is given may not be so far wrong, but he critics have taken such a queer way to get it to the roper parties—it goes through so many hands. Yes, ometimes it goes through the hands of the wholesaler,
he jobber and the retailer.

Now, brother or sister, if you find any particular leasure in spreading out people's faults and looking t them, just spread out some of your own and take a ood look at them just as often as you want to. Most f us can find plenty without going away from home or them.

The next time you see a brother tugging away at a oad that is most too much for him, instead of stand-ng off and criticising, suppose you take off your coat nd push. The next time the minister says something n his sermons you don't like, suppose you just forget hat and think and talk about the things he said you id like. Instead of finding fault with the Sunday-school teacher because your boy doesn't go to Sunday-chool, suppose you try telling him all the good things ou know about the Sunday-school and church, the astor and his wife, the Sunday-school teacher and all he rest, instead of feeding him upon the faults of verybody in the church. When your children don't ome into the church when you think they ought to, uppose you spend some of the time in your home,
alking "up" the church, instead of talking it down.

If people would work at their business like they do n the church, they would soon be discharged.

We would recommend, for the healthy growth of ny church, less "kick" and more work. "A kicking orse can't pull and a pulling horse can't kick."

Dayton, Ohio.

Our Tracts

BY EDGAR ROTHROCK
Secretary of Tract Examining Committee

THE distribution of carefully-prepared tracts has been an important part of the mission work of the church for years. In one of the strongest addresses, given at the recent Winona Lake Conference, the speaker related how, as a young man, he became interested in the Church of the Brethren through a copy of the "Brethren's Card" coming into his hands.
We will do well to continue carefully to foster this ine of work. We need a good, up-to-date list of carefully-selected tracts and a good system of distribution

material to strengthen and broaden our list of tracts.

New tracts are being prepared on a number of doctrinal subjects—doctrines and principles for which the church has always contended earnestly. A tract, entitled, "America's Greatest Curse"—a good strong one on the tobacco evil—will be ready for distribution shortly. Also one entitled, "Myself," which, in a very interesting way, helps the reader to see himself. Then, too, three short, terse, evangelistic tracts are about ready for our members to use. Watch for them!

The Examining Committee feels that the church needs some more good, sound material, in a form suitable for convenient distribution, on evangelistic, devotional, and social purity subjects. Who will prepare a good tract especially to help those who are sorrowing for departed loved ones? In these days, when the fairer sex is assuming her rightful place in the home, the church, and the State, the committee thought possibly a new tract on "Woman's Work" might be valuable. Then our pastors and evangelists have cards and leaflets which they find especially helpful. The Brethren's Card was referred to in the first paragraph. Can we improve it? Do you have anything better? Send us a copy of your best—something you have found practical in your work—pastors and Christian workers.

A good fisherman selects his bait carefully. Jesus wants every follower of his to be a soul-winner. The most successful soul-winners know good tracts and how to use them. Most tracts are printed in a size that will slip into an ordinary envelope, or fit nicely in the pocket. Have you learned to keep a supply of these splendid tracts which our General Mission Board is so glad to furnish, either free or for the cost of production, and when you write a letter to enclose one that will bring a message from the Loving Father to the one addressed, or to hand kindly to the stranger you meet, or, perchance, to that associate or neighbor, or just to leave on the seat of the public car, for some one to pick up and read? "Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days."

Holmesville, Nebr.

Our Great Problem

BY S. S. BLOUGH

THE church is Christ's working body in the earth. To her he committed his work when he went back to the Father. There can be no question as to his will about her work. It is his purpose and desire that she shall always be successful.

IT is apparent to the thoughtful person that the world has been, and yet is, in a great crisis. This has been mentioned so often that it has become almost threadbare, and yet do we appreciate the gravity of this fact? He who has made world and church conditions a study, stands appalled at the urgent call for the most intense labor, if the purposes of Christ for the church shall not be thwarted.

The nation has been in a great struggle. It does not matter so much what has been the aim in it all—the minds of the people have been occupied, their young men have been drawn away from the home circles and their money has been given in a large measure for the promotion of these national and international issues. For my purpose it matters not whether it was wholly necessary or not, or even whether these conditions can be justified, the fact remains that much time and thought, as well as energy, has been withdrawn from the church. The sinews of the church have become, in a measure, the sinews of national and international welfare.

Before the fighting was over, there followed the pestilence of the influenza. This is admitted to be one of the greatest, and possibly the greatest pestilence of sickness and death that has ever scourged

Have you not felt that there was thrust upon us a danger of coldness if, indeed, it has not come upon us already?

It is true we are recovering somewhat. Some say that the church will rise out of this and do a greater work because of what we have passed through. Modern prophets are predicting such a work as has never been equaled. May it be even so, and every devout and God-fearing soul should profoundly desire it. But will all this come of itself? It will not. God has always used men to bring about results, and will do so again. Herein lies our great problem. How can the church bring these things to pass? How may we discover what our own church needs to do, so that our part of the work will not fail? What is necessary to bring about these results when we discover them? How may we not only prevent this coldness but turn it into a greater fervency?

Our problems become larger when we remember that, right at the time when we are in this crisis, we have launched a Five-Year Forward Movement which some are saying is in itself, even under normal conditions, "idealistic and impossible." It is well that we take a good look at the situation and see it in all its bearings, but let us not falter, but take upon ourselves a consecrated optimism which takes a firm grip on God and girds up its loins for the conflict. The important thing, right now, is to convince ourselves that we want it different—that we are anxious for a greater accomplishment, that we want a greater degree of holiness in ourselves and in others.

There is, in the religious world today, a strong movement in the direction of church federation. There are those who think this will be the greatest thing, to complete the task of world evangelization. Unity is a good thing, but it needs to be upon a strong Gospel foundation. We must not forget that too comprehensive a federation must mean the giving up of some things which, up to now, have been considered essential by certain religious bodies. Let us remember, too, that faith and zeal are not sufficient, but that obedience also must play its part. May we not, then, depend too much on federation to solve our problems?

Do we not agree that the first great need is a deeper spiritual life in the membership? There can be little effect upon the unsaved world by a low state of Christianity. Too much of this has helped to bring us where we are. Yes, it is necessary that we have leaders who can inspire the membership and keep it going, but this other thing is more important. Let us, therefore, look first upon our spiritual condition. The suspension of services and the vexing problems about us seem to have lowered the spiritual life. We must arouse and come to God. Let us do more devotional Bible reading and studying daily, exercise more in prayer, public and private, and let the Spirit of God come in and lead us forward. "Take time to be holy," for it takes time, these days, perhaps as not in former days. We can not influence our brother unless we are ourselves showing the benefits of these things. Too often men's actions shut their mouths when there is a large opportunity to speak.

Our churches have done well in the drive for Armenian and Syrian relief. We pray that the hearts of all were touched with compassion as was the heart of the Master when he saw those who were unfortunate. A sympathetic and loving heart-field gives opportunity for a deeper devotion to every cause of the Master. May we not hope that the response to the appeal of the Mission Board may be equally successful! This response should be from a heart of love and sympathy for those in sin.

THE ROUND TABLE

The Smallest Being on Earth

BY J. S. SHERFY

It is not an insect nor a tiny seed nor yet a microscopic germ, but is much smaller than any of these. It is a biped that walks upright, lives in a good house, has a wife and three children, and eats and sleeps like most other human beings. He owns more than a section of well-improved land in Kansas and Oklahoma and has assisted his children so that their financial situation is reasonably good.

At one time this man was in the Sunday-school when the question of Christmas treats for the children was being considered and he insisted most stoutly that he wanted his sack of candy too. This might have been excused, but later, in the Sunday-school class, when the offering was called for, he opened his well-filled purse and dug down past tens, fives, ones, halves, quarters, dimes and nickels and heaved out a whole penny and dropped it into the "collection," after consuming not less than thirty seconds of the teacher's time, waiting for him to find the coin nearest his size.

O, such infinitesimal diminution of a God-given spirit! O, atomlet of an atom, how small, how small!

Bloom, Kans.

"Where Dwellest Thou?"

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

Moses, white-bearded, and walking with the failing step of extreme age, was reviewing the Children of Israel for the last time. Through the wilderness and the desert he had guided them, despite murmurings and rebellion, until now they stood upon the borders of the Promised Land. The aged patriarch passed down a lane formed of representatives of the twelve tribes, blessing, encouraging and exhorting; calling them to a realization of their heritage. The end of the long lane was reached. The blood of youth fired in the veins of Moses; the vigor of young manhood returned to him for a moment. He faced that vast surge of his children as they strained for his every syllable. Arms upraised to Heaven, he cried: "None is like unto God, O Jeshurun, who rideth upon the heavens for thy help and in his excellency on the skies. The eternal God is thy dwelling-place and underneath are the Everlasting Arms!"

Then, with the benediction of its leader, Israel was dismissed to her God-given task; her dwelling-place, God; her foundation the Everlasting Arms.

It is to this dwelling-place we must go, and on this foundation must we build, today. When men, through history, have wandered from the dwelling-place of their fathers, when men have disregarded the foundation and tried, with faltering human skill, to build upon others, they have crashed down in the storms of life. They have builded on the sand. It is to the Rock we must go.

Men are turning to radicalism and anarchy and running hither and thither into fads and cults, for refuge from the storm of world upheavals. Society is like a rudderless ship, and the fate of such a ship will be hers if the words of Moses do not ring down through the centuries, "The Eternal God is thy dwelling-place and underneath are the Everlasting Arms."

Wealth have we made our dwelling-place. The pursuit of pleasure has been mistaken for a place of happiness. Out of the Egypt of bondage and sin have we been led and yet we look back upon the flesh-pots! Like the Israelites we set up a golden calf. Contentment has never characterized us. God showers down his blessings, and yet we murmur and rebel.

Jesus Christ has revealed the Father. Jesus Christ has brought "life and immortality to light." He has given us a hope of heaven and joy on earth, a Lamp to guide our wandering feet. Yet in discontent we seek elsewhere to build our dwelling-place, we yearn for other foundations.

Oh, Christian, there is none other foundation, none other dwelling-place! Storms of suffering and of adversity may drive our human ship into uncharted seas, but always there are the Everlasting Arms. Men may shake our faith with the battering ram of infidelity, but always we have the eternal dwelling-place, whose walls can never fall.

"Where dwellest thou?"

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Allowances of God

BY G. W. TUTTLE

We frequently judge harshly and superficially—yes, even the best of us. We know so little of each other, even of our best friends. There are so many depths that are as yet unsounded, so many handicaps that our blind eyes fail to see, while God knows them all. He knows the ill-health that drags and rasps and sets every nerve on edge. We sometimes say: "What an irritable man!" when possibly the little irritation we sometimes display is a far greater sin in the eyes of our Heavenly Father.

Just as the widow who gave her two mites gave more than they all, so some Christian who has labored under great difficulties and burdens, and who has seemingly accomplished but little, may have achieved a greater measure of success than some who have apparently had great results. God gives us credit on the books of Heaven, not only for the things we do for his sake, but for the things which we have longed—with exceeding great desire—to do, but have been prevented from doing by limitations of circumstances, health, time, etc. The difficulties that come from environment, from inherited disposition, from early training, etc., will not God make allowances for them all?

To be good-natured is absolutely no virtue for some people—all they know about temper is in the dictionary. What about the people whose blood surges hotly at the least provocation? Do they not need all the help and all the grace that God can give, in order to control this disposition and make it a force for good and not for evil? Will not God make allowances for such a disposition as this? God will forgive much in the man who strives, who fights for righteousness, who desires to be counted on his side.

What hope would we have of Heaven if it were not for the allowances of God? How tender he is with us, in spite of our failures! How he overlooks our imperfections and shortcomings! I can not but think that when we love God his eyes of love magnify our virtues, multiply our possibilities, and minimize our failures. Is not the slightest act of unselfish service great in his eyes?

Pasadena, Calif.

Lo, the Poor Preacher!

BY LEANDER SMITH

Once upon a time, a long time ago, the phrase, "Lo, the poor Indian," was quite common, but it has come to pass that the "poor Indian" draws his oil dividends, and lives in comparative luxury, and hence is no longer to be referred to as an object of charity and pity.

At the present writing, the incarnation of refined scantiness and imperial poverty can be no better expressed than by the caption of this article. Indeed, should things continue, it is only a question of time, and a very short time, when "chill penury will mark him as her own."

With the ever-increasing prices, it is not difficult for even the unimaginative mind to determine his financial condition. Everything that he consumes must be purchased at prices ranging from fifty to two hundred per cent greater than five years ago, while he receives but very little more for his services. Worse still, prices are ranging upward.

The hero that he is, he is suffering in silence and bearing, with patience, the burdens that are imposed upon him by the thoughtlessness of his people. The very fact that he "meekly waits and murmurs not" has perhaps led those, upon whom he has a right to depend, to think that all goes well with him. His very patience has served to conceal his poverty, and his smile to hide the shadows of his heart.

With a majority of our ministers it is no longer a question of buying books, but one of the bare necessities of life. Such a condition, especially with our young ministers, will inevitably lead to arrested mental progress, and this to inefficient work and a consequent discontent upon the part of their people. They have made the bed too short for the man and then attempted to amputate the man to fit the bed. The experiment has proved abortive and destructive.

After all, it is upon the wife and little ones that the blow falls heaviest. They can not live as those with whom their lot is cast. Perchance, sadder still, to be criticised for not living in a manner befitting the position of the husband, father. The wife must bear the taunt of "not knowing how to manage," though she has displayed a genius in home economics worthy of all commendation. For the power to make much out of little, and to make one dollar do the work of five, commend me to the faithful minister's wife!

"For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn. Is it for the oxen that God careth, or saith he it assuredly for our sake? Yea, for our sake it was written: because he that ploweth ought to plow in hope, and he that thresheth, to thresh in hope of partaking. If we sowed unto you spiritual things, is it a great matter if we shall reap your carnal things" (1 Cor. 9: 9-11)?

Muscatine, Iowa.

Holy Communion

BY IDA M. HELM

"For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat the bread, or drink the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord" (1 Cor. 11: 26, 27).

"To eat unworthily," "Not discerning the Lord's body," "Guilty of the body and blood of the Lord," are synonymous expressions. Each is a declaration of momentous and awful import. The whole intent of God in man's redemption centered in the sinless blood shed and the body broken on the cross, and this sublime truth is symbolized in the bread and the cup of the Eucharist.

We should approach the Lord's table with deep humility and trembling as well as rejoicing. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Just as the wholeness of Christ's character and walk in life are expressed in the cross, so is the Christian's expressed as he partakes of the bread and cup—the symbols of the atonement. If we would discern the Lord's body, our daily life must manifest the character of Christ. We take our daily life to the Lord's table. We can not be self-worshipers at home and abroad, and Christ worshipers in the church.

It is said: "The sacrament of the Lord's supper is not a snow-white parenthesis in a history of money-greed and self-pleasing and carnal indulgence. Such are Christ-murderers and self-murderers. They are guilty of mangling and scandalizing the Son of God. To live after the flesh and partake of the sacred symbols which represent the utter death of the flesh, is to be guilty of the most condemning lie and the most outrageous murder. It is to combine the sin of Iscariot and the crucifiers. It is to represent Christ as the minister of sin."

When Jesus came into the world he said: "Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body didst thou prepare for me." All the blood of all the animals that ever were offered on Jewish altars was not sufficient to atone for one sin. Human blood could not reach sin: Guilt can not be transferred from one person to another. Nothing less than the God-man, a Divine-human sacrifice, was required to take away our sin. God was incarnate in Jesus Christ. God bled and died for our sin. All is symbolized in the bread and wine. "This is my body. This is my blood." God in human nature, suffering, agonizing, bearing the stripes for our guilt, dying, going before us and opening the gates of heaven for our entrance.

Marvelous love! We must follow him closely every day and really live the Christ-life if we would enter the realms where he has gone. We can not discern the Lord's body in its symbols, unless we discern him in our own body. We can not eat his flesh and drink his blood except we have his life in us. To miss the es of life. Such a condition, especially with our ung ministers, will inevitably lead to arrested mental ogress, and this to inefficient work and a consequent scontent upon the part of their people. They have ade the bed too short for the man and then attempted amputate the man to fit the bed. The experiment s proved abortive and destructive.

After all, it is upon the wife and little ones that e blow falls heaviest. They can not live as those th whom their lot is cast. Perchance, sadder still, be criticised for not living in a manner befitting the sition of the husband, father. The wife must bear e taunt of "not knowing how to manage," though e has displayed a genius in home economics worthy all commendation. For the power to make much t of little, and to make one dollar do the work of e, commend me to the faithful minister's wife!

"For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt t muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn. Is for the oxen that God careth, or saith he it assuredly r our sake? Yea, for our sake it was written: beuse he that ploweth ought to plow in hope, and he at thresheth, to thresh in hope of partaking. If we wed unto you spiritual things, is it a great matter if e shall reap your carnal things" (1 Cor. 9: 9-11)?

Muscatine, Iowa.

Holy Communion

BY IDA M. HELM

"For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, proclaim the Lord's death till he come.' Wherefore nosoever shall eat the bread, or drink the cup of the ord in an unworthy manner, shall be guilty of the body d blood of the Lord" (1 Cor. 11: 26, 27).

"To eat unworthily," "Not discerning the Lord's ody," "Guilty of the body and blood of the Lord," e synonymous expressions. Each is a declaration momentous and awful import. The whole intent God in man's redemption centered in the sinless ood shed and the body broken on the cross, and this blime truth is symbolized in the bread and the cup the Eucharist.

We should approach the Lord's table with deep umility and trembling as well as rejoicing. "The ar of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Just as e wholeness of Christ's character and walk in life e expressed in the cross, so is the Christian's exressed as he partakes of the bread and cup—the mbols of the atonement. If we would discern the ord's body, our daily life must manifest the character Christ. We take our daily life to the Lord's table. 'e can not be self-worshipers at home and abroad, d Christ worshipers in the church.

It is said: "The sacrament of the Lord's supper is t a snow-white parenthesis in a history of moneyeed and self-pleasing and carnal indulgence. Such e Christ-murderers and self-murderers. They are uilty of mangling and scandalizing the Son of God. o live after the flesh and partake of the sacred symols which represent the utter death of the flesh, is to e guilty of the most condemning lie and the most outageous murder. It is to combine the sin of Iscariot nd the crucifiers. It is to represent Christ as the inister of sin."

When Jesus came into the world he said: "Sacrifice nd offering thou wouldest not, but a body didst ou prepare for me." All the blood of all the animals at ever were offered on Jewish altars was not suffient to atone for one sin. Human blood could not ach sin. Guilt can not be transferred from one perin to another. Nothing less than the God-man, a ivine-human sacrifice, was required to take away our n. God was incarnate in Jesus Christ. God bled nd died for our sin. All is symbolized in the bread nd wine. "This is my body. This is my blood."

truth is to miss salvation. To eat and drink without first crucifying the old man of sin is to not discern the Lord's body, and not to discern the Lord's body is to eat and drink condemnation.

We must live in peace and love with each other: "If therefore thou art offering thy gift at the altar and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift" (Matt. 5: 23, 24). Having made things right, forgive and forget even as Christ our Redeemer has forgiven us. Be really friends and brethren, as though nothing had ever gone wrong.

I once heard a man accuse another man, who belonged to the same church as he did, of doing him a wrong and he told what the offense was. The accused man said: "I'm sorry, but I don't remember of ever wronging you. Will you tell me when it was?"

"It was when you lived on the farm," was the reply.

The accused man looked his astonishment, then he said: "It's been twenty years since I moved away from there and I don't remember of wronging you."

A man, standing near, said: "You have taken communion with him every year through all these years. Do you mean to say you carried that grudge in your heart all these years? For shame!"

The man who had accused his brother hung his head, chagrined and humbled, unable to answer a word.

"For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses" (Matt. 6: 14-15).

Ashland, Ohio.

The Vine-Man Is Also the Ax-Man

BY M. M. ESHELMAN

JOHN THE BAPTIST, as recorded by Matthew, says: "The axe is laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree [person] which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire."

This truly is judgment for correction. This was said to the Jews. As salvation is of the Jews, so also salvation is to the Gentiles. So the Ax-man, spoken of by John the Baptist, began his teaching as to future judgment, and himself declared that his words would be the standard of judgment in the last day—the end of this age.

During his more than three years' teaching of that which his Father gave him—John 17—he not only exercised as the Vine-man but was exceedingly successful as a judge or a Discerner between good and evil. He was the only true Discerner of Heb. 4: 12, and he did not cease to be Judge of all judges when he was crowned Lord on the throne of his Father, thus officially receiving the mastery of all things on earth.

Before he went home to his Father, to be seated on the throne whence the Holy Spirit was sent to the earth, as superintendent of his Father's business, he said: "I am the Vine and ye [the disciples] are the branches." Every branch or member of Christ's body, who abides in him and the Father, receives nourishment from the Vine-man. Christ honors his Father by naming him the Husbandman. Notice how often the word "man" is used, as connected with God and Christ's name.

The Vine-man teaches that all that he has, by way of nourishment, for any and every member, is from his Father. As the Word of God he took on human flesh or form, so that God could be well understood. This was not only unmerited grace to man, but was also law in its purest form to man. Thus the Husbandman and the Vine-man were, are, and ever will be united. He is still the Personal Word. What he said on earth and by the Spirit, is the Spoken Word, as and judgment, and at once become nourishment to the soul, because God's ideas have been sprinkled or bathed in the blood of Christ. Therefore we truly eat the Sacrificed One or Vine-man. All this while we abide in him.

Does judgment with mercy, as a corrective power, run through from God and the Lord Christ to every one in Christ? If so, this accounts for the Vine-man teaching the branches the doctrine of self-denial and sacrifice, for by the law of sacrifice all living things in nature are nourished and continue living. The same law of grace is found in the spiritual world: "For he that hath Christ hath life; and he that hath not Christ hath not life."

So the Husbandman, as God the Father, oversees or provides nourishment through the Vine-man to every branch that abides in the Vine-man.

Glendale, Calif.

Principles Worthy of Adoption

SELECTED BY J. H. MORRIS

To respect my country.
To save as well as earn.
To steer clear of dissipation.
To make a study of my business.
To mix brains with efforts.
To respect myself and my profession.
To know my profession in every detail.
To kill doubts with a strong conviction.
To dispel ill-temper with cheerfulness.
To fight against my own weaknesses.
To hoard days as a miser hoards dollars.
To use system and method in my work.
To keep my future unmortgaged with debts.
To be honest and fair with my fellow-men.
To turn hard experiences into capital for future struggles.
To believe in my proposition, heart and soul.
To carry an air of optimism in the presence of others.
To be willing to pay the price of success in honest effort.
To expect difficulties and force my way through them.
To endeavor to be a gentleman and above all a Christian.
To cut out expensive amusements until I can afford them.
To make every day bring me dividends of increased knowledge or healthful recreation.
To find time to do every needful thing by never letting time find me doing nothing.
To base my expectations of reward on a solid foundation of service rendered.
To remember that success lies within myself, in my own brain, in my own ambitions, courage and determination.

"So I may be courteous to men, faithful to friends, True to my God; a fragrance in the path I trod."

—Gleaned from T. J. Van Alstine.

Monuments

BY JOHN WOODARD

WHEN prominent people die it is customary to erect monuments to their memory. In the case of people prominent in politics and military affairs, these monuments are frequently in the form of statues in public places. In the case of educators, buildings are often erected in their memory by the institutions which they served.

Many of our brethren and sisters who have rendered faithful, efficient service to the church and humanity are no longer with us and it is right and proper that we should erect monuments to their memory. These

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, JULY 27

Sunday-school Lesson, Christian Fellowship.—Acts 2: 42, 46, 47; Philpp. 4: 10-20.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Refreshing Christians.—Psa. 1: 1-3; John 4: 14; 7: 38, 39.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

Nine were baptized in the Bethel church, Fla.

One was baptized some time ago in the Crystal church, Mich.

Five were baptized recently in the Union Chapel congregation, W. Va.

Three were baptized in the Middle Creek congregation, Moores church, Pa.

Four have been baptized in the Shiloh church, W. Va., since the last report.

One has been baptized in the Eagle Creek church, Ohio, since last heard from.

Two accepted Christ and one was added to the Pleasant Valley church, W. Va.

Three were baptized in the Staunton church, Va.,—Bro. J. C. Garber, pastor, in charge of the meetings.

Fifteen were baptized and four reclaimed in the Laporte Mission, Ind.,—Bro. J. H. Fike, of Middlebury, same State, evangelist.

Eleven were baptized in the Hochstetler church, Greenville congregation, Pa.,—Bro. Robert T. Hull, of Somerset, same State, evangelist.

Fifteen were baptized, three reclaimed and one awaits baptism in the Cross Roads house, Clover Creek congregation, Pa.,—Bro. A. J. Beeghley, of Friedens, same State, evangelist.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. Roy Kistner, of Sabetha, Kans., to begin Aug. 3 in the Lone Star church, same State.

Bro. Ira Long, of Andrews, Ind., to begin Aug. 2 in the Solomons Creek church, same State.

Bro. Ray Wagoner, of East Enid, Okla., to begin Aug. 3 in the Washita church, same State.

Bro. Hugh Heckman, of Chicago, to begin some time in September in the Afton church, Nebr.

Bro. J. F. Swallow, of Seavey, Minn., to begin some time in November in the Osceola church, Iowa.

Bro. J. W. Lear, of Virden, Ill., to begin the second week of August in the Virden church, same State.

Bro. Moyne Landis, of North Manchester, Ind., to begin about Aug. 30 in the Yellow Creek church, same State.

Bro. H. S. Replogle, of Windber, Pa., to begin Sept. 14 at the Ridge house, Shade Creek congregation, same State.

Bro. B. B. Ludwick, of Mt. Pleasant, Pa., to begin Aug. 30 in his home church, Indian Creek, County Line house.

Bro. J. I. Baugher, of Lineboro, Md., to begin Aug. 17 in the Chestnut Grove church, Upper Codorus congregation, Pa.

Bro. A. J. Beeghly, of Friedens, Pa., to begin Aug. 9 in the Tire Hill house, Quemahoning congregation, same State; Aug. 30 in the Trout Run congregation, same State.

PERSONAL MENTION

Some weeks ago Sister Bright, the widow of Eld. J. C. Bright, found it necessary to submit to a surgical operation. She had suffered severely and her condition had become critical. She is now reported as making good progress. Friends may address her at Arcanum, Ohio.

If correspondents of Bro. D. F. Warner and wife will address them, during the month of August, at 313 N. James Street, Ludington, Mich., they will be reached more promptly. After a short vacation by the lakeside they are to return to their work at Dayton, Ohio, for the coming year.

Brother and Sister G. J. Fercken, of Switzerland, when last heard from, expected to sail from France for New York City on July 12. Upon reaching this country they will go, for a time, to their son at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., after which Bro. Fercken will be glad to consider a pastorate with some one of our churches.

The China Mission party, consisting of the new missionaries and Bro. J. Homer Bright and family, and Sister Anna Hutchison, returning, will sail from San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 6. Any mail, sent so as to reach San Francisco before Aug. 5, will reach them if addressed as follows: Care Outgoing S. S. "China," sailing Aug. 6, San Francisco, Calif.

The Miami church, N. Mex., has granted a nine months' leave of absence to their pastor, Bro. Ira J. Lapp, in order that he may devote himself to a course of special educational work. Meanwhile the congregation is continuing his salary—indicative of ideal relations of fellowship between pastor and people. Eld. Wm. Mohler will be the shepherd of the little flock during Bro. Lapp's absence.

Bro. Forest S. Eisenbise has moved from Chicago to Beatrice, Nebr., and is now in charge of the work there. He may be addressed at 1424 Grant Street.

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

The District of Oregon has arranged to hold its District Conference and affiliated gatherings in the Portland church Aug. 17-19. See programs on page 476.

The Southern District of Virginia will hold its Sunday-school Institute in the Laurel Branch church, Floyd Co., Va., July 25-27. The programs appear on page 476.

A special announcement is made among the Notes by Bro. J. H. Wimmer, concerning the District Meeting of the First District of Virginia, to be held in the Selma church July 30 to Aug. 1, inclusive.

The Southern District of Pennsylvania announces its Ministerial Meeting, Educational Meeting, and Sunday-school Meeting for Aug. 13-15, in the York church. The programs will be found on page 478.

On page 478 we publish the programs of the various gatherings of the District of Washington, to be held at Olympia Aug. 5-7. Sister Eva Trostle has been secured to give some special talks during these meetings.

The Ministerial Meeting and Sunday-school Meeting of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, are to be held in the Brummett Creek church, Mitchell County, N. C., Aug. 21. We publish the programs on page 478.

The Secretary of the Tract Examining Committee has something to say to our readers this week on page 468, which deserves thoughtful consideration. The committee is striving constantly to increase the usefulness of our tract literature.

MISCELLANEOUS

The Catalog Number of the McPherson College Bulletin has been received at the "Messenger" rooms. Thanks.

The District Conference of Northern Illinois and Wisconsin and associated gatherings is to be held Aug. 30 to Sept. 1, on the Camp Grounds, Lena, Ill.

The Annual Summer Assembly, held at Chautauqua Park, Beatrice, has been made an event of considerable significance by our Nebraska members. This year it is to be held Aug. 10-17, inclusive. Programs are to be given in next week's issue.

Bro. J. H. Moore, Sebring, Fla., would like to procure a copy of the Brethren Almanac for 1893. Those having a copy of this issue of the Almanac that they are willing to part with, will please write him. He would also be pleased to get into communication with parties having complete files, or nearly so, of all the periodicals published by the Brethren prior to 1891.

The members at Stanley, Wis., have recently purchased a very desirable church property, and are preparing to launch out upon active church work. Their urgent need, however, is a pastor who can give his entire time to the work. Any minister who may feel inclined to consider this splendid opening for real usefulness, will please address Bro. O. D. Buck, Secretary of Mission Board, Franklin Grove, Ill.

One of the wide-awake Sunday-schools in Northern Illinois recently decided to have a thirty-minute service of prayer and consecration for teachers and officers, just before the Sunday-school session. That school knows the great value of being in constant contact with the "Power House" above. We are looking for something truly worth while, when those workers go forth to their task in the strength of Divine Guidance and Power.

The Goshen City church is launching out upon an "every-member-canvass" for the "Gospel Messenger." That appears to us as being a most excellent plan, if faithfully carried out, and we predict that the Goshen church will greatly benefit by the undertaking. We trust that all our churches will, in some way, enroll each of their members as readers of the "Messenger." In no other way can they be impressed as forcibly with the spirit and genius of our church.

The Yearly Meeting of the Old Order Brethren was held at Pitsburg, Ohio, June 7-10, inclusive. Since 1909, tents have been used at these gatherings—a number of willing workers assembling on the grounds some days before, to erect the same and properly equip them with seats, etc. This year's Conference proper began at 10 o'clock on Tuesday, June 10, and closed at 3:30 P. M. on the following day. The main question before the meeting was concerning the ownership and operation of automobiles by members of their church. In 1909 their Conference decided that they "should not own or use automobiles as their own property, at least until such time as they might become more reasonable in price and in more general use." According to an editorial in "The Vindicator," to which we are indebted for these facts, "many had now become convinced that present conditions warranted a change or modification of the advice of 1909. . . . The final conclusion was to the effect that forbearance be exercised henceforth toward members who may purchase and use cheap, plain automobiles, and that such members still be amenable to the church for any misuse or abuse of their autos."

Bro. D. F. Landis, R. D. 1, Lewiston, Minn., Writing Clerk of District Conference, requests the publication of the following notice to the churches of Northern Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota: "All reports of committees, reports of unfinished business, other reports, queries, etc., intended to be a part of the business for the coming District Conference of our District, to be held at Lewiston, Minn., Oct. 8, should be in possession of the Writing Clerk of the 1918 Conference by Aug. 15."

A sister, who has recently undergone an experience of severe "trials and testings," writes us of the help the "Messenger" has been to her in this trying time. After expressing her feelings in the lines of the beautiful hymn, "The Lily of the Valley," she goes on to say, among other things: "Really, it seemed perfectly wonderful how each week, I found just the warning, just the admonition, just the encouragement or comfort—whatever special help I needed—in some form or other in the 'Messenger.' Need I tell you how I love the 'Messenger'?" We appreciate the sister's kind words and are truly glad she found the "Messenger" so helpful in her special need.

One of our contributors raises the question of the propriety of the customary use of the term "query," in referring to business for the Conference. In a recent communication he says:

"We read in the 'Messenger,' in a number of reports from District Meetings, that certain queries were sent to Annual Conference. We got the Conference Booklet and found under Unfinished Business two petitions, three requests and one recommendation. Under New Business we found ten petitions, six requests, but not a single query. Is it not about time we begin to call things by their right names? To say 'query' when we mean 'petition' is misleading."

Custom and practical convenience often get the better of scientific accuracy. Years ago the Conference business consisted mostly of queries in the strict sense. Gradually the word has come to be applied to almost any paper brought before the Conference. As in the case of many other words, usage has given the term "query" a technical sense apart from its primary meaning. If anybody wishes to institute a reform in this matter, in the absence of something more important to occupy his energies, let him go ahead. We are not very enthusiastic over it.

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

China's Appreciation of Missionary Endeavors.—According to a recent official statement it is the general conviction, on the part of the Chinese people, that through the untiring efforts of American missionaries, in establishing schools and colleges in China, through their work as translators, teachers and professors, in coöperation with those from other countries, these ardent workers have done a work of untold worth. They have awakened the interest of the Chinese masses to the value and importance of the new movement. Nothing that individual Americans have done in China has more strongly impressed the minds of the people with the sincerity, the genuineness, the altruism of American friendship for China than this spirit of service and sacrifice, so beautifully demonstrated by American missionaries.

Crime is on the increase in practically every large city of the United States. Everywhere police forces are being strengthened. Our highways have not been as unsafe for travel since the days following the Civil War, when "army hangers-on" were a menace throughout the country. Psychologists have long been predicting a crime wave, and police chiefs now say it is here. They say we need more and better policemen. Other authorities say that the cause of criminal tendencies must be removed, thus obviating the necessity of additional remedial measures. Sociologists, who have made a close study of the situation, insist that the salutary influences of Gospel principles must be impressed more fully upon the masses, creating higher aims and ideals, and raising the plane of Christian citizenship. This, undoubtedly, would go far in decreasing criminal tendencies, for, after all, only the renewed life can be counted on as the effectual cure of unlawful desires and acts.

Christianity and Business.—In conversation with a wide-awake business man, the other day, the Bystander happened to refer to the intensely-strained conditions, prevailing at this time between labor and capital. The business man coincided with the view expressed, and then proceeded to present his side of the question: "Never before, in my experience, has it been so difficult to do business honorably and honestly as at present. I am not saying that a business man can not be a Christian and at the same time make his commercial enterprise a success. I do claim, however, that at this trying time it is exceedingly difficult. The workers desire increased remuneration—in many cases far more than is warranted. If the employer yields to the insistent claims, he is forced to charge higher prices for his goods. That soon brings on the charge of being a 'profiteer,' when, as a matter of fact, he is in sore straits to keep his business going. Of course there are ways and means by which unscrupulous men succeed in keeping a large balance on the right side of the ledger, even in times like these, but if principle is regarded as being of higher value than mere policy, he must be on his guard all the while." How true that periods of stress and unwonted difficulty are a test of genuine religion!

o. D. F. Landis, R. D. 1, Lewiston, Minn., Writing k of District Conference, requests the publication of following notice to the churches of Northern Iowa, nesota and South Dakota: "All reports of committ-reports of unfinished business, other reports, queries, intended to be a part of the business for the coming rict Conference of our District, to be held at Lewis-Minn., Oct. 8, should be in possession of the Writing k of the 1918 Conference by Aug. 15."

sister, who has recently undergone an experience of re "trials and testings," writes us of the help the ssenger" has been to her in this trying time. After essing her feelings in the lines of the beautiful hymn, e Lily of the Valley," she goes on to say, among r things: "Really, it seemed perfectly wonderful each week, I found just the warning, just the admonijust the encouragement or comfort—whatever special
I needed—in some form or other in the 'Messenger.'
I tell you how I love the 'Messenger'?" We appre-the sister's kind words and are truly glad she found
'Messenger" so helpful in her special need.

ne of our contributors raises the question of the pro-y of the customary use of the term "query," in re-ng to business for the Conference. In a recent comication he says:

e read in the 'Messenger,' in a number of reports from District ngs, that certain queries were sent to Annual Conference. We e Conference Booklet and found under Unfinished Business two ons, three requests and one recommendation. Under New Busi-ve found ten petitions, six requests, but not a single query. Is about time we begin to call things by their right names? To query' when we mean 'petition' is misleading."

estom and practical convenience often get the better ientific accuracy. Years ago the Conference business isted mostly of queries in the strict sense. Gradually word has come to be applied to almost any paper ght before the Conference. As in the case of many r words, usage has given the term "query" a tech-sense apart from its primary meaning. If anybody es to institute a reform in this matter, in the absence omething more important to occupy his energies, let go ahead. We are not very enthusiastic over it.

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

ina's Appreciation of Missionary Endeavors.—Accord-o a recent official statement it is the general convicon the part of the Chinese people, that through the ing efforts of American missionaries, in establishing ols and colleges in China, through their work as trans-s, teachers and professors, in coöperation with those other countries, these ardent workers have done t of untold worth. They have awakened the interest e Chinese masses to the value and importance of the movement. Nothing that individual Americans have in China has more strongly impressed the minds of people with the sincerity, the genuineness, the altruof American friendship for China than this spirit of ce and sacrifice, so beautifully demonstrated by Amernissionaries.

ime is on the increase in practically every large city e United States. Everywhere police forces are being gthened. Our highways have not been as unsafe for el since the days following the Civil War, when "army ers-on" were a menace throughout the country.
chologists have long been predicting a crime wave, and ce chiefs now say it is here. They say we need more better policemen. Other authorities say that the cause riminal tendencies must be removed, thus obviating ecessity of additional remedial measures. Sociologists, have made a close study of the situation, insist that salutary influences of Gospel principles must be im-sed more fully upon the masses, creating higher aims ideals, and raising the plane of Christian citizenship,
, undoubtedly, would go far in decreasing criminal encies, for, after all, only the renewed life can be ted on as the effectual cure of unlawful desires and ristianity and Business.—In conversation with a wide-ce business man, the other day, the Bystander hapd to refer to the intensely-strained conditions, pre-ng at this time between labor and capital. The busi-man coincided with the view expressed, and then pro-ed to present his side of the question: "Never before,

y experience, has it been so difficult to do business orably and honestly as at present. I am not saying a business man can not be a Christian and at the e time make his commercial enterprise a success. I laim, however, that at this trying time it is exceedingly cult. The workers desire increased remuneration—in y cases far more than is warranted. If the employer ls to the insistent claims, he is forced to charge higher

AROUND THE WORLD

China's Just Grievance

After a most determined struggle the people of China succeeded in getting rid of the opium curse some years ago. To this end stringent laws were made, and these were enforced upon rich and poor alike. Now, however, a new source of danger is seen in the surreptitious efforts of Japanese traders to revive the traffic. Officials of the Japanese Bank and the Japanese postal system are secretly importing the noxious drug. Chinese customs officials are powerless, for they are not allowed to inspect parcels. In this way, it is said, eighteen tons of opium came into China in one year, and in addition to this amount nearly a million dollars' worth is smuggled in from Formosa every month.

The Get-Rich-Quick Snare

Despite repeated warnings by Government War Savings workers, and pulpit as well as press, the wily swindler is still doing a thriving business, advertising stocks that "make your money double and treble," and who offers to take Liberty Bonds in payment. One newspaper lists a thousand of these swindlers, who are garnering a rich harvest from the unsuspecting investors. Whether it be mining stock, shares in an oil well—it does not matter. The main point is to get the money, and that seems to be a comparatively easy task. The Treasury Department estimates that one section of the Middle West has patronized these sharpers to the amount of four hundred million dollars.

The Boy Who Dared

When Robert Reperti, a five-year-old boy, fell from a dock at Rockaway Park, New York, a few days ago, six strong men lustily shouted for help, but not one of them thought of diving after the little lad. Ralph Gerkenstein, a boy of only eleven, looked wonderingly at the shouting men. Then he threw off cap and coat, dived into twenty feet of water, and rescued the boy without further ceremony. And that very incident, of the shouters and the boy who rescued the perishing lad, is repeated day after day in almost every community of our land, in some form or other. It is comparatively easy to call for others to do the thing most needed; it is quite different to rush to the rescue ourselves.

Moscow's Vanishing Population

Some years ago the population of Moscow was nearly 3,000,000—the gradual growth of centuries. For some months Bolshevism has been in control, and a more striking change has never been seen by the eye of man. "By their fruits ye shall know them," we are told by Christ, and if we are to judge the dire iniquity of Bolshevism by that infallible standard, we need not be at a loss to arrive at a just decision. While several thousands of Moscow's population have fled from the city, others were unable to escape, and have been made to experience all the horrors of Bolshevism. Insufficient food has killed thousands, but many of Moscow's most intelligent and best educated citizens have fallen victims to the blind hatred, by reason of which the ignorant rabble destroys all that is good and desirable.

The Deserted Buildings

A visitor who recently passed through the great Krupp Gun Works, at Essen, Germany, describes the desolate character of the vast collection of buildings, employing 107,000 men and women during its busiest period, while war activities were still in progress. There were but 38,000 persons working at Krupp's when the war began. Up to that time ninety per cent of its output had been industrial machinery; the remainder was military ordnance. Then came the word to rush military supplies to the utmost—more and yet more. Huge buildings, covering miles of ground, sprang up—all devoted to the one aim of making guns and munitions. Now all is silence, save in one factory where locomotives are being built. And right there, so Germany's President declares, is Germany's hope for the future—the industries of peace!

A Change of Sentiment

While, hitherto, the religious leaders of Germany have justified the late war, as well as the malign and autocratic principles of their government, it is reassuring that recent utterances of German ministers indicate a more repentant and conciliatory attitude. Dr. Traub thus expresses himself: "We German people have forgotten God—not the God of armies and kings and kaisers, not the God of state and show and noise, but the God of sin which governed our lives, both as a state and as individuals, I am forced to believe that it was pride, avarice, greed, and envy of the welfare of others which were the moving powers within us. We have sinned grievously, and perhaps it is God's own way of healing us, when he casts us upon the bed of humiliation, and does not stretch out his Almighty Hand to lift us up again, until we are ready to walk with him and do his bidding."

The Unoccupied Fields

It is strange indeed that, with the many missionary enterprises in Africa, there are still vast areas with no Christian missionaries whatever. In the French Congo there are eight million almost untouched; three million in Kamerun; a quarter million in Portuguese Guinea; a million and a half in French Guinea. In the Belgian Congo there are some mission stations, but immense areas absolutely unclaimed, and something like fifteen million people wholly untouched by the ministrations of any church whatever. Summing up all the areas mentioned, together with those of the Sudan, Nigeria, Egypt, Tripoli, and others, the aggregate number of people, not yet claimed for Christ, is seventy million.

The Departing Aliens

As European affairs become stabilized, a goodly proportion of America's alien population—a large part of our toilers—is returning to their former homes in the old world. More than 300,000 Russians, Lithuanians, Jews and Poles from the Middle West have either already gone or are preparing for their early departure. Taking with them the high wages received during the war, none of them is returning to the land of his nativity with less than $2,000. Many have double that amount—their holdings being the result of thrift, to which many Americans are utter strangers. A sociological worker, who made a study of the matter recently, maintains that the average American craftsman, with equal or larger earnings, is unable to make as good a showing.

Exchanging Preachers

With the approval of the respective Governments, a linked organization has been formed by which churches of the United States and Great Britain may exchange preachers. This move was planned to promote the cause of friendship and mutual understanding with the United States. "It is felt," the commission states, "that in the new tasks which are confronting humanity, the British and American Christian churches have a specially important part to play." The point is well taken. Generally speaking, humanity has much to gain by any means that will lead to a better understanding. Much of the dislike and many of the wrongful imputations may be clearly traced to a lack of actual acquaintance. Really meeting folks is a wonderful enlightener. It breaks down prejudice and old-time misunderstandings.

Lack of Knowledge a Real Danger

A close investigation as to contributing causes of most of the fatal accidents in the mines of Pennsylvania, has conclusively shown that most of the victims are men who do not know what the printed signs mean, and who can not clearly understand the foreman's instructions. While the inability to read and write has always been deplored as a serious impediment individually, its real danger had never before been realized as conclusively as it has been by recent demonstrations. "Knowledge is power"—we are ready to admit—and there is need of better knowledge everywhere, the religious realm not excepted. "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge," said one of old, and who will question the truthfulness of his assertion? The sure foundations of all that is truly worth while, in civic as well as religious affairs, are laid in knowledge, not in ignorance; and every sneer at edueation, at culture, at book learning (which is the recorded wisdom of the experience of mankind), is the demagogue's sneer at intelligent liberty, inviting national degeneracy and ruin.

A New World

Whether we are willing to admit it or not, the fact remains that, with the end of the greatest of wars, humanity has entered upon wholly new conditions. While it is manifestly impossible to note all the changes that have been wrought—some of them, as yet, not being apparent—we may, nevertheless, refer to a few that are clearly in evidence: (1) Never again can the United States be, to the rest of the world, what it was in the days before the war. Whether we, as a nation, are ready to accept the League of Nations covenant, as now prepared, is uncertain at this writing, but one thing is sure—we are now living in a period when the fundamental policies of world

HOME AND FAMILY

Good-bye, John Barleycorn

BY MARY STONER WINE

Good-bye, John Barleycorn, good-bye, good-bye,
We come not with sorrow, with tear or with sigh,
But to see that you're dead, and to bury you low.
Good-bye, John Barleycorn; we're glad you must go.

You've opened the door to want and to woe,
And you ruin fair hope wherever you go;
You've crushed out strong manhood in vigor and youth,
You've robbed it of beauty, of strength and of truth.

You've bartered for virtue, for wealth and fame,
And given the blackness of sin, and its shame.
You've entered the hearts and the homes of the brave,
You've taken their honor, and left but a grave.

All o'er our fair nation, your hand, like a pall,
Has covered the victim that heeded your call.
When oft he had quaffed your most venomous breath,
You hung on his spirit the demon of death.

Good-bye, John Barleycorn, we bid you adieu,
We'll put in your places the good and the true.
We'll write o'er your grave, as you quietly lie,
That any may read it, who chance to pass by:

"Here lies John Barleycorn, Demon of Rum,
He died in full vigor, his race was not run,
The ballot-box stunned him with war measure ball,
And the little white ribbon ended it all."

So, good-bye, John Barleycorn, good-bye, good-bye,
We hope that you're dead, that you'll stay where you lie;
We bury you low, with no tear or no sigh,
So, good-bye, John Barleycorn, good-bye, good-bye.

Polo, Ill.

Applied Philosophy

BY RHETTA O'ROURKE

MANDY had been acting kind of pimpish for a week or more. In fact, she's a kind of pimpish cat, but on this particular morning I was sitting on the floor, trying to coax her to eat a nice piece of toast with butter and cream both on it, when I heard a step on the back porch and before I could rise from my undignified position, the door opened and in walked Jenny Nash. She had been crying, and her hair wasn't combed, and her dress was dirty and ragged. I was plumb scared and I says: "Jenny, set right down and let me get the camphor. Is any one dead or dying?"

"Nobody's dead," she says, "but I wish I was."

"Now, Jenny," I says, "you know you don't wish any such thing, but I dare presume to say that you feel bad over something, and if you'll just tell me about it, maybe I can help you."

"Well, Minerva," she says, "it's just this way: Ben and I are tired of quarreling all the time and so we have decided this morning to part and be done with it."

It was a great shock to me to hear this, for I supposed that Ben and Jenny Nash lived like two little mice, and never had a bit of trouble. Now I didn't say that I didn't think they never had a word between them, because I don't believe any couple can ever live together without getting a little put out at one another once in a while, but them little spats is like the waves on the millpond—a little wind comes along and starts them up, and they roll to the shore and never return. There are no two people that ever get married and settle down, without having a little trouble adjusting their two dispositions so the cogs of their mental machinery mesh without grating some, but when Jenny said she and Ben were going to part, I was so flabbergasted that for a minute I couldn't get breath enough to speak, even if I could have thought of anything to say. I thought to myself: "Minerva Jones, this is a case for some of your philosophy. You have got to study this case out and see what don't fit and what ought to fit, and go to work and fit it." Finally I blusters up enough gumption to ask: "When is this separation going to take place, Jenny?"

She commenced crying again, but I managed to catch that it hadn't taken place yet, but Ben told her that morning she could go back to her mother whenever she got good and ready, and the sooner the better, and she had come over to have me help her pack up.

"Well, Jenny," I says, "we'll go over and get at it, but first tell me what the scrap's about."

"It is nothing in particular, Minerva—just everything. I can't please Ben and he won't try to please me. I asked him this morning to get me a new pair of those lace curtains they are having a sale on now, and he said if I would wash what I had, I could get along all right, and that started it."

Well, I put Mandy out into the woodshed and got my bunnit and clean apern and we went over to Jenny's. On the way I says to myself, says I: "Minerva, these youngsters don't know what they want, no more than new-born kittens, and they generally think they want the opposite of what they've got, and if they think they've just got to do something, that very thing is what they don't want to do," so I just thinks to myself: I'd go by that rule. Mebbe that rule isn't in nobody's old philosophy book, but it's in the book of human nature. So I says to Jenny, when we got into the house, and I had hung up my bunnit and smoothed my hair: "Jenny, if you are going to leave we had better leave the house in pretty good shape, because if Ben brings some of his folks here you don't want them to flout out anything about your housekeeping."

She agreed, and we went at it good and strong. She is no great shakes at housekeeping and I just thought that was half the trouble. Ben's mother is as neat as a pin and naturally Ben wants his wife to be a little like his mother. We swept and dusted and washed and ironed the curtains, and put on a clean tablecloth, and got the house so it smelled sweet, and looked nice, and then I says: "Jenny, hadn't we better bake up some stuff for Ben too, so that when his mother comes over, she won't have to go to baking and cooking right off the first thing?" I says: "It will make things look solider for you." She agreed, and we baked a batch of sugar cookies and one of molasses, and a couple of pies, and roasted a big piece of meat. By that time it was getting along in the day, and so I says: "Jenny, I'll have to go home now, and you manage some way to stick it out with Ben tonight, and I'll come over early in the morning, and we'll pack up."

She agreed, but I could see she didn't seem to act so crazy about packing as she did in the morning, and I laughed to myself and said to myself, on the way home: "You meddlin' old maid; you don't intend to help anybody pack," and no more did I.

The next morning I got up middling early, and Mandy being kind of pimpish yet, I was frying a couple of oysters for her, when all of a sudden the door busted open and in come Jenny and Ben, a-holding of hands like a couple of children, and Jenny ran right up and kissed me on both cheeks, and Ben too came up and kissed me smack on the mouth, and I pretended to be surprised. So I set the oysters out, and sat down and said: "Be you both gone plumb crazy?"

Jenny began to dance around like a kitten and she says: "Minerva, you needn't come over to help me pack, because I am not going at all. The house looked so nice last night and the supper was so good that Ben said he couldn't get along without me at all, but I want you to come over and show me how to make that nice pie-crust and those cookies. Ben likes to see the house look neat, and I am going to learn to keep it that way, if you'll show me, and Ben is going to get me some new curtains and a new couch. I think we will get along all right, don't you?"

"Bless your hearts," says I, "of course you'll get along all right, if you just remember you're both human, and learn to give and take," says I. "You have to use a lot of philosophy to get along in this world—not the book kind that tells about capillarity and harmony and magnetism, and so forth, but the God-in-nature kind, and the human nature kind." They both listened to me real close, and seemed to heed what I said, and soon went home again, real happy.

That was over a year ago, but I can't help thinking of it tonight, as I sit here, holding Jenny's new baby, and along with that thought comes another about how much philosophy the Lord has to use on us, to keep us from making a mess of our lives.

Mattawan, Mich.

Loyalty

BY EZRA FLORY

ONE can not help cherishing that home where a Son lived of whom we read: "And he went down with them and came to Nazareth," at an age when the horizon of life is enlarging and wooing many a boy to explore new regions by "running off." We are not surprised to read of that Son later, "I do always the things that please him," and at the close of his brief career, "I glorified thee on earth, having accomplished the work which thou hast given me to do."

He had so inspired another that he, when facing an unsympathetic assembly, at the risk of his life, declared: "We must obey God rather than men." Another gave us our watchword in these words: "This one thing I do."

We speak glibly of loyalty. We rehearse the annals of the patriarchs and prophets and martyrs. We set up standards of loyalty and may be too censorious of those who do not measure up to the standards we have set. But did you ever try to define this virtue of loyalty and to discover its growth and development if, indeed, it has any growth at all?

Loyalty is not always even spectacular. It underlies all real achievement; it is the substance of all real character; it is a daily virtue. To be loyal is to serve one's ideal, whether it be in the field of service for the nation, in the foreign land as a missionary, in the home community, or in our relations toward a person. It is a natural human virtue. Its roots may be traced back into childhood and may be seen in their affection for others, their desire to help, their instinct to protect and care for dolls, pets and young children.

In the training of this virtue very much depends upon us, as parents. We need to know something about the development of loyalty and not appeal to it before it has appeared in experience. It is seen in the small child's interest in pets, dolls, etc., as we have said. The little fellow will stand for his papa and mama in touching loyalty and will even fight for them if he thinks his ideals have been outraged. Do we always prove as loyal to these budding lives of promise? If we would have them loyal to the church, to the State, to the home, in later life, we must respect the laws of growth and awakening in very early years. In later childhood and adolescence loyalty blossoms out in rich promise. From ten to sixteen it may be seen in spontaneous social organizations. They now formulate their own laws and have their own code of honor. They will keep their word in strict fidelity to one another and to those whom the group recognizes as friends and "square."

It is a critical time in a boy's moral development. He is reaching beyond the life of home. At no time does adult influence count for so little because his new friendships count for so much. He cares far more for what the fellows do and say than for what older folks think. In fact, he is beginning to take the ordering of life into his own hands, and is guided by such public opinion as is open to him. Fathers and mothers, let me appeal to you! If we fail to recognize this function of the boy's friendships; if we are impatient and unsympathetic; if we "put down our foot" and stand pat on precept, we shall be sure to engender conflict of loyalties within him in which home loyalties are very likely to lose out.

It would be far better for us neither to repress their rising loyalty to the "gang" or group nor let it go its way. Let us seek to understand and enlist this loyalty. Its virtues are sound but it needs enlightenment. Let us respect its code of honors for the sake of the larger loyalties yet to be!

Chicago, Ill.

Observations on a Visit to the County Home

BY ELIZABETH MCDANNEL MARTIN

A SHORT time ago, in company with several brethren and sisters, we attended services at the County Home for the Poor. There was a short sermon in the chapel, where all who were able to leave their rooms and cared to, had gathered. After that service we were escorted into the main hall of the ladies' building, where a number of poor, sick, blind

Loyalty

BY EZRA FLORY

NE can not help cherishing that home where a Son of whom we read: "And he went down with and came to Nazareth," at an age when the on of life is enlarging and wooing many a boy to ore new regions by "running off." We are not rised to read of that Son later, "I do always the gs that please him," and at the close of his brief er, "I glorified thee on earth, having accomplished work which thou hast given me to do."
e had so inspired another that he, when facing an mpathetic assembly, at the risk of his life, ded: "We must obey God rather than men." An-gave us our watchword in these words: "This hing I do."

e speak glibly of loyalty. We rehearse the annals e patriarchs and prophets and martyrs. We set tandards of loyalty and may be too censorious of who do not measure up to the standards we have But did you ever try to define this virtue of loyalty
o discover its growth and development if, indeed, s any growth at all?

oyalty is not always even spectacular. It under-ll real achievement; it is the substance of all real acter; it is a daily virtue. To be loyal is to serve ideal, whether it be in the field of service for the n, in the foreign land as a missionary, in the home munity, or in our relations toward a person. It is ural human virtue. Its roots may be traced back childhood and may be seen in their affection for rs, their desire to help, their instinct to protect and for dolls, pets and young children.

the training of this virtue very much depends us, as parents. We need to know something t the development of loyalty and not appeal to it re it has appeared in experience. It is seen in the l child's interest in pets, dolls, etc., as we have

The little fellow will stand for his papa and a in touching loyalty and will even fight for them e thinks his ideals have been outraged. Do we ys prove as loyal to these budding lives of nise? If we would have them loyal to the church, e State, to the home, in later life, we must respect
aws of growth and awakening in very early years.
ter childhood and adolescence loyalty blossoms in rich promise. From ten to sixteen it may be in spontaneous social organizations. They now ulate their own laws and have their own code of or. They will keep their word in strict fidelity to another and to those whom the group recognizes riends and "square."

is a critical time in a boy's moral development.
is reaching beyond the life of home. At no time adult influence count for so little because his new dships count for so much. He cares far more what the fellows do and say than for what older s think. In fact, he is beginning to take the order-of life into his own hands, and is guided by such ic opinion as is open to him. Fathers and mothers, ne appeal to you! If we fail to recognize this tion of the boy's friendships; if we are impatient unsympathetic; if we "put down our foot" and d pat on precept, we shall be sure to engender lict of loyalties within him in which home loyalties very likely to lose out.

would be far better for us neither to repress their g loyalty to the "gang" or group nor let it go its
. Let us seek to understand and enlist this loyalty.
irtues are sound but it needs enlightenment. Let espect its code of honors for the sake of the larger lties yet to be!

hicago, Ill.

servations on a Visit to the County Home and helpless souls spend their days. We had singing and prayer in the hall, after which we were invited to visit in the rooms and meet these poor unfortunates. This invitation we gladly accepted. The same program was followed in the men's building. We never met a class of people that appreciated a handshake and a smile as did the inmates of that Home.

Many of us are not able to do such great things—such as the world names great—but I can not think of any one who could not give smiles and handshakes to others. And now, maybe, after all, this is a greater thing than one may imagine, if we fully realized just how much it may mean to some poor, discouraged soul.

This "Home for the Poor" is beautifully located and well kept. We had every reason to believe that all was done for the comfort of those inmates that human hands could do; but yet, we thought, how different from the ideal home—one where father, mother and the children all can be together in love and union. "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." I believe a Christian home is the nearest representation of heaven we have here upon this earth. Yet, how many people do not have a happy home, and many not a home at all! We should be very thankful for our homes.

We were told that nearly all of the inmates in this Home are there as a result of sin. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." This state of affairs makes it doubly sad. If you stopped to observe closely, you could read sin in many of the countenances. Ah, did you ever notice the difference of expression in the saint and sinner? People can not indulge in sin without having it leave traces in their expression, and very noticeable too—more so than the sinner thinks. Oh, the blackness and darkness of sin! And yet many, many persons are not so much afraid of sin and its results as they are of a heavy thunderstorm.

We noticed, as we sang and prayed and spoke to these people, that some of them wept. Yes, many a sinner has had wonderful regrets over his or her past life, but the harvest must be gathered. Our sympathies were touched, and we thanked God afresh for bringing us out of sin into his marvelous light.

I believe that much good could yet be done for these unfortunate people. The speaker of the afternoon advanced many good thoughts, but one impressed us more than some others—the thought that if Christ came to this city, the poor-house, the sick-room, the sorrowing, the dying, are just the places he would go after. How different from many of us, and yet we claim to be like him and follow him. He always went about doing good. He came to minister—not to be ministered to. The world at large has gone almost wild after pleasure and leisure. This is certainly a pleasure-loving age, but if it could be said of all of us, who name his name, that our meat is to do the will of him that sent us, how much better it would be! We read in Eccl. 7: 2: "It is better to go to the house of mourning than to the house of feasting," but too many of us would rather go to the house of feasting. Immediately following the quotation, we read: "Sorrow is better than laughter; for by the sadness of the countenance the heart is made better."

Brother, sister, have you ever spent the Lord's Day, or any other day, for that matter, in such a way, that after the day was done and the evening shades appeared, you felt you should have done differently? Were you conscious that really you had not helped any one during the day, because you had spent it more for your own pleasure and benefit? Your [illegible] were heard as easily as when us for doing all the good we can, and I actually believe that God is looking for much more from us than we have yet been willing to do.

Lebanon, Pa.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

STANLEY, WISCONSIN

We have had quite a few inquiries from isolated members in Wisconsin as to whether or not there is an organized church at Stanley. We wish to inform all members that are interested and all who are thinking of coming to Wisconsin that we have an organized church here of about fifty members. We have a fine church building, purchased in March. We raised enough money to buy the church, put in a baptistry and make other improvements.

In April we organized our Sunday-school, which has been going on very successfully. At the end of this quarter there was quite a large amount of money in the treasury after expenses were paid.

We are still looking for a good live pastor to take charge of this place. It is a fine opening for any minister who can come and give his time to the work. We hope to be able to make this the largest Brethren church in Wisconsin. Any pastor who would consider a proposition of this kind, should write the Mission Board of Northern Illinois and Wisconsin.

Stanley is a town of about 3,000 population, located in a fine section of country, where land is very reasonable and of good quality, with fine school and church privileges. The Worden church is located about seven and one-half miles southeast of Stanley, and Maple Grove is about eight miles south. The writer will be pleased to answer any inquiry regarding this place. O. W. Henderson.

Stanley, Wis.

FREEVILLE, NEW YORK

We were favored recently with a visit by Brethren I. W. Taylor and John Herr, from Pennsylvania. They are members of the District Mission Board. Bro. Taylor preached a splendid sermon in the afternoon of the day they came, and Bro. Herr delivered a powerful sermon at night. From expressions made by people in attendance at these services, deep impressions were made.

We feel greatly encouraged because of the visit of Brethren Taylor and Herr. They expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the outlook here in every way. They were surprised to see our crops equalling those raised in other places, where land sells at much higher prices.

Land values are rising here. Many farms are selling. A great many people are coming from other States. We are hoping that many of our Brethren and their friends will avail themselves of the opportunities offered in the Empire State. Here, in our splendid village, are some good business openings. A number of improved farms are for sale, some of which are exceptional bargains. There is no reason why New York State should not soon contain many congregations of the Brethren. Those who are looking for a new location, would better come now, while crops are growing, and see what the country is able to produce.

Our location is ideal. Fourteen passenger trains arrive and depart daily. Macadamized roads lead to all parts of the State. This region is the tourist's paradise.

We expect to hold a series of meetings as soon as we can secure an evangelist. Pray for us and the work here, in this inviting field. Those who can, should come over and help us. F. L. Baker.

July 8.

MUSCATINE, IOWA

It has been our good fortune to have with us a number of earnest brethren, who have ministered unto us in spiritual things in a way that has been edifying to our very souls.

June 18 Bro. Frank N. Sargent, of Bethany Bible School, Chicago, came to us. He gave us two fine lectures, which were much appreciated by our people.

July 5 Bro. Floyd M. Irvin, of Creston, Ohio, came to us. He is working under the direction of our General Mission Board, in the interest of the Five-Year Forward Movement in the Church of the Brethren. He gave us four very inspiring talks on "The World's Great Needs."

Dr. Banks, of Denver, Colo., gave us a powerful temperance lecture on the afternoon of the first Sunday in

DISTRICT OF OREGON

The various meetings of the above-named District will be held in the Portland church, August 17-19.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

Sunday, August 17, 9: 30 A. M.

Responsibility of the Sunday-school in Leading to a Life of Purity: (1) Results of Sin.—Geo. C. Carl. (2) Cause of Sin.—S. E. Decker. (3) Remedy.—Thos. Barklow. (4) How Can the Sunday-school Meet the Responsibility?—H. H. Ritter. The Sunday-school and the Boy.—M. C. Lininger. The Sunday-school and the Girl.—Sister S. S. Reed. The Proper Use of Lesson Helps.—D. C. Glick. The Sunday-school Standard.—Hiram Smith.

TEMPERANCE PROGRAM

Evening, 7 o'clock

In Charge of District Temperance Committee.
Temperance Sermon by Eld. D. C. Glick.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' CONVENTION

Monday, August 18, 9: 30 A. M.

The Christian Workers' Society and the Community.—Grace Hewitt. The Value of an Education to the Christian.—Minnie Herman. The Christian Workers' Meeting as a Stimulant to Missionary Endeavor.—Harry Hewitt. Round Table: (1) Problems We Have in Our Christian Workers' Meetings. (2) How Can the Christian Workers' Society Aid in the Battle for Pure Lives for Our Young People? (3) How Can the Christian Workers' Society Aid in Soul Winning? (4) What Should We Do to Aid the Christian Workers' Society?

AID SOCIETY MEETING

Afternoon, 1: 30

Is It in Harmony With the Rules of the Church for Sisters to Prepare Food and Put It on Sale to Make Money for the Aid Society?—Sarah A. Van Dyke, Lizzie Barklow. How May Sisters Living in Churches Having No Aid Society Be Encouraged to Try to Organize an Aid Society?—Anna Reed, Cora Decker. Would It Be Advisable to Organize a Home Contributing Department of Money or Material by Those Who Can Not Conveniently Attend the Aid Society?—Eliza Moore, Mary E. Ritter.

MOTHERS' MEETING

Is It Not Advisable for Parents to Teach Their Young Children to Pray?—Mattie Dunlap, Laura Adams. Should Mothers Who Are Sisters in Our Church Dress Their Children in the Fashions of the World When the Children Are Not Old Enough to Choose for Themselves?—Etta Barklow, Lizzie Detweiler. Essay.—Mary J. Barklow.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Tuesday, August 19, 9: 30 A. M.

What Do I, As a Lay Member, Owe to the Church?—Mary E. Ritter, Eliza Moore. What Are Some of the Substantial Aids That May Be Given a Minister That Will Enable Him to Do More Efficient Work?—Geo. C. Carl. A Minister's Education: (a) Classical.—H. H. Ritter. (b) Biblical.—John Reed. In What Way May We Encourage Our Young Men to Prepare Themselves for the Ministry?—Thos. Barklow. The Work of the Ministerial Board as It Relates to the Churches.—C. H. Barklow. How May a Congregation Know When It Has Material for a Minister?—Hiram Smith.

MISSIONARY SERVICE

Evening, 7: 30

In Charge of District Mission Board.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA

The Sunday-school Institute of the above-named District will be held at the Laurel Branch church, Floyd County, Va., July 25-27.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' PROGRAM

Friday, 9 P. M.

Value of the Christian Workers' Society.—G. W. Hylton. How Made a Success.—H. K. Ober.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PROGRAM

Saturday, 10 A. M.

The New Definition of the Sunday-school.—H. K. Ober. The Sunday-school and Reconstruction.—J. A. Naff. The Sunday-school Officers and Their Work.—H. K. Ober.

Afternoon, 1: 30

The Touch of the Teacher.—H. K. Ober. The Teacher's Textbook and Its Value.—Michael Reed. The Teacher's Life and Influence.—H. W. Peters. Teaching Without Telling.—H. K. Ober.

Evening, 9: 00

Christian Education: (a) The Solution of Church Problems.—Joseph Bowman. (b) The Solution of World Problems.—Stover Bowman. Lecture: Child Rights.—H. K. Ober.

Sunday, 10 A. M.

Sunday-school Lesson. The Ideal Sunday-school.—L. A. Bowman. Qualifications of Sunday-school Teachers.—H. K. Ober.

Afternoon, 1: 30

Survey of the Field.—H. K. Ober. Sunday-school Evangelism.—J. B. Peters. The Forward Movement.—H. K. Ober.

Evening, 9: 00

Lecture: Orange Blossoms.—H. K. Ober.

An offering will be taken for the support of the Institute. There will be a meeting of the Sunday-school Board of the District.

E. E. Bowman, Secretary.

REPORT OF SISTERS' AID SOCIETY MEETING

Held at Winona Lake, Ind., June 7

The eleventh Annual Meeting of the Sisters' Aid Societies was held on Saturday afternoon in Westminster Chapel. All of the officers were present. The devotional services were conducted by Sister J. M. Blough, of India. The following program was then carried out:

1. The Part of the Aid Society in the Great Forward Movement—Mrs. W. F. Haynes, Virden, Ill.

2. What Obligations Do I, as a Member of the Church, Owe the Aid Society?—Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Pleasant Hill, Ohio.

3. How the Women of America Can Help the Women of India.—Anna Eby, on furlough from India.

The Round Table was to be conducted by Mrs. G. L. Studebaker, of Indiana, but time did not permit the discussion of these questions which, we feel, would have been of vital interest to the Aid workers. We give the list below, and the local District workers may be able to discuss them at some of their meetings.

(1) What Did Your Society Do Last Year to Increase Your Funds?
(2) Do Your Society Members Pledge Monthly Offerings?
(3) Do Your Sisters Who Can Not Attend the Meeting Contribute to Your Fund?
(4) How Get Your Younger Sisters Interested.
(5) What Has Your Society Done to Help the Child Rescue Work?
(6) How May We Get a Larger Vision of Our Opportunities?
(7) Does Your Society Contribute to Your State District to Help in Home Missions?
(8) How to Have an Ideal Aid Society.

The report of work done for 1918 was most excellent when we consider the difficulties of the past year, due to war conditions and to the epidemic of influenza. With normal conditions, we believe, the year would have been the greatest in the history of our Aid work. In harmony with the prevailing spirit of the Forward Movement, our Aid workers were ready to consider some steps to greater service. The effort to raise funds for the Quinter Memorial Hospital were practically completed. The needs of India and China were both discussed and, after due consideration, a motion to help both places was enthusiastically carried by this large body of workers. This means $12,000 for a hospital building at Ping Ting, China, and the same amount for a Girls' Boarding-school at Anklesvar, India. This is to be raised in three years. A committee was appointed to apportion this amount among the State Districts, and the District Secretary will apportion to the local societies.

The following points were adopted as a goal for the next five years:

1. An Aid Society in every congregation in the Brotherhood.

2. The average attendance of each society to be twenty per cent of the membership of the women of the congregation.

3. The sum of $20,000, annually, to be given for home and foreign work. Officers were elected for the year as follows: President, Mrs. M. C. Swigart, Philadelphia, Pa.; Vice-President, Mrs. O. L. Shaw, Des Moines, Iowa; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Eva Lichty Whisler, Milledgeville, Ill.

After four years of service as Secretary-Treasurer of the Aid work, I want to thank all who have assisted in making the work what it has been. I ask for my successor your most hearty coöperation, for under her capable leadership and Divine Guidance we feel assured that the work will go forward to greater success than ever before.

The following is report for the year 1918:

Statistical Report of Aid Societies of Church of the Brethren 1918

Name of State District	Number Societies	Enrollment	Average Attendance	Total Receipts	Home Work	Foreign Work
Southern Calif. and Arizona,	11	167	97	$ 1,010.37	$ 579.57	$ 175.61
Northern, California,	6	84	50	344.49	114.25	14.75
Dakota, N. E. Mon., W. Can.,	8	92	49	216.05	43.53	104.04
Fla., N. & S. Car. & Ga.,	1	28	10	28.10	26.10
Illinois, Northern,	1	15		144.78	76.10	62.00
Illinois, Southern,	9	156	79	1,002.28	581.22	240.84
Idaho & W. Montana,	7	58	50	160.82	68.83	70.00
Indiana, Northern,	27	580	304	2,077.48	786.91	515.50
Indiana, Middle,	22	484	256	2,268.33	829.19	431.25
Indiana, Southern,	14	286	112	1,066.74	306.77	244.03
Iowa, Southern,	3	95	59	376.01	60.22	162.00
Iowa, Middle,	11	145	98	114.16	781.82	90.00
Kansas, S. W. and S. E. Colo.,	12	187	76	1,297.71	446.48	150.00
Kansas,	14	230	97	1,062.53	579.25	113.60
Maryland, Middle,	6	93	53	433.52	143.77	189.50
Maryland, Eastern,	7	176	100	1,186.49	830.10	134.15
Missouri, Northern,	4	74	26	391.18	112.32	10.00
Missouri, Middle,	4	91	40	225.79	10.00	120.00
Michigan,	9	143	103	524.45	365.18	72.00
Nebraska,	6	104	40	233.26	60.76	90.55
Ohio, Northwestern,	13	231	117	696.06	227.46	456.80
Ohio, Northeastern,	14	397	143	1,444.47	622.29	317.30
Ohio, Southern,	22	373	169	2,322.06	891.96	292.25
Oregon,	2	37	17	129.03	41.00	93.00
Oklahoma,	1	25	17	47.50	46.00	23.75
Pennsylvania, Southern,	4	107	90	384.14	209.32	191.00
Pennsylvania, Western,	14	230	97	2,122.66	605.50	302.63
Pennsylvania, Middle,	12	221	113	2,139.21	507.11	186.00
Pennsylvania, Eastern,	10	267	76	2,635.10	987.11	318.50
Pa., S. E., N. J., & N. Y.,	12	330	107	1,779.94	772.21	100.00
Virginia, Northern,	10	272	99	1,562.00	761.32	365.75
Virginia, Second,	11	350	138	1,446.25	530.15	305.35
Virginia, Eastern,	6	97	51	290.01	186.77	61.75
Virginia,	6	116	63	829.76	225.80	193.00
Total for 1918,	323	6,161	2,707	$31,185.07	$12,863.28	$5,957.15
Total for 1917,	319	5,852	2,645	$36,852.23	$11,216.18	$3,222.62

In 1917 32 Districts reported. In 1918 34 Districts reported.

The three Districts having the largest enrollment are: Northern Indiana, 563; Middle Indiana, 481; Northeastern Ohio, 397.

The three Districts reporting largest amount of money received are: Eastern Pennsylvania, $2,635.10; Western Pennsylvania, $2,122.66; Southern Ohio, $2,322.06.

The three Districts contributing largest amount to foreign work are: Northern Indiana, $515.55; Northwestern Ohio, $456.80; Middle Indiana, $431.25.

Districts failing to report this year are: Western Colorado and Utah, Northern Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota, Northwestern Kansas, Northeastern Colorado and Washington.

Financial Report

Receipts

Balance on hand, May 27, 1918,	$ 48.57
Fees received,	74.70
Total receipts,	$123.27

Expenses

Stationery and postage,	$ 23.30
Balance, May 27, 1919,	$ 99.97

Mrs. Levi Minnich.

MIDDLEBURG, FLORIDA

We arrived here from our home in McLouth, Kans., April 24, and placed our membership in the Bethel church. We have a good churchhouse and, better yet, a body of working members. Our meetinghouse is located in Clay County, twenty miles southwest of Jacksonville, a city of one hundred and fifty thousand population. We are near a boat-landing, from where you can readily reach Jacksonville. There Atlantic steamers may be had for any part of the world. We are also near the Atlantic Coast Railroad. The church is in charge of Eld. A. D. Crist.

This is the best part of Florida for farming. The acreage of corn, potatoes, sweet potatoes, upland rice and all kinds of garden truck is large. We have a good fruit country. Strawberries bear for more than three months. Orange trees are very full. The old settlers say it has not been so wet in fifty years as it is this season. Crops are not up to the average. I know of no place where people can get homes as cheap as here.

Yesterday we gave an illustrated talk to the Sunday-school. After giving an invitation, ten came forward, and at least eight will be baptized next Sunday.

I. H. Crist.

DEATH OF BRO. C. E. NININGER

Bro. C. E. Nininger was born in Indiana, May 26, 1847. In 1870 he married Sarah Anna Rhoades, who survives him. To this union were born eleven children, five of whom—four daughters and one son—are living. Deceased is also survived by five grandchildren, two sisters and two brothers.

Bro. Nininger united with the Church of the Brethren at the age of twenty-four, and later on was elected deacon. In 1893 he was elected to the ministry. His favorite way of preaching was to find one or more persons who wanted to understand more of the Blessed Book, and then to try to teach them. He spent much time in this way as opportunity was afforded him.

Santa Ana, Calif. Mrs. M. M. Carl.

The Cry of a Soul in Distress

(Continued from Page 469)

him. How often does the same experience happen to us? Help from High Heaven is near, but we fail to recognize or appropriate it, and we blunder on in the darkness and storm, instead of crying, "Lord, save." It has been truthfully said that one-half of our troubles never come, and the largest half at that. Why not profit by their experience and let our imagination run toward the good, instead of living in constant expectation of evil? "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

They thought they saw a spirit. Well, is it not true, that Christ's spirit and not his body saves? Not only is the church saved, but the individual is. They crucified his body but were never able to curtail the work of the Spirit. "Not by might, nor power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." We are told of many things that won the war. Be it so, and yet I feel that the prayers of God's saints, in the language of the text, "Lord, save," played no little part. "For the Lord had made the hosts of the Assyrians [Germans] to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even the noise of a great host" (2 Kings 7: 6).

The Lord came walking on the sea, thus showing his power over the elements and nature, as well as his final triumph, for he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. Peter said: "Lord, bid me come to thee on the water." The Lord said, "Come," and Peter, making the effort, began to sink. Then he cried, "Lord, save me." While Peter sinks, the ship, which represents the church of the Living God, does not.

So are the Lord's promises to his church. It shall outweather all storms, overcome all contrary winds, reach its port in safety and land all on board in the desired haven. Even the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. Are you on board, my dear reader?

Peter uttered the right kind of a cry—the cry of helplessness. He realized he could not save himself, but how many today are standing on their morality or self-righteousness, which, at best, is no more stable than the waves beneath Peter. Others, we are glad to note, realize that all our righteousness is as filthy rags and, like Peter, they cry: "Lord, save," and immediately the Lord stretches forth the hand of salvation.

Peter cried to the right Person, "Lord, save." Dives, in Hades, called on Abram, depending more on his ancestry than on God or on Christ for salvation. How many today are depending on some family connection—pious father or mother, fraternal order, or even their church membership—to get them through, instead of calling on the Lord?

Peter cried in time. Although a fisherman and no doubt a good swimmer, he does not rely on that, thinking, perhaps, to call on the Lord later, but cries imme-rt of the world. We are also near the Atlantic Railroad. The church is in charge of Eld. A. D.

is the best part of Florida for farming. The acre- corn, potatoes, sweet potatoes, upland rice and all of garden truck is large. We have a good fruit . Strawberries bear for more than three months. trees are very frail. The old settlers say it has n so wet in fifty years as it is this season. Crops up to the average. I know of no place where peo- get homes as cheap as here.

erday we gave an illustrated talk to the Sunday- After giving an invitation, ten came forward, least eight will be baptized next Sunday.

I. H. Crist.

DEATH OF BRO. C. E. NININGER

C. E. Nininger was born in Indiana, May 26, 1847.) he married Sarah Anna Rhoades, who survives To this union were born eleven children, five of four daughters and one son—are living. De- is also survived by five grandchildren, two sisters o brothers.

Nininger united with the Church of the Brethren age of twenty-four, and later on was elected dea- In 1893 he was elected to the ministry. His fa- way of preaching was to find one or more per- who wanted to understand more of the Blessed and then to try to teach them. He spent much time way as opportunity was afforded him.

Mrs. M. M. Carl.

a Ana, Calif.

The Cry of a Soul in Distress

(Continued from Page 469)

How often does the same experience happen to Help from High Heaven is near, but we fail to nize or appropriate it, and we blunder on in the ess and storm, instead of crying, "Lord, save." been truth fully said that one-half of our troubles come, and the largest half at that. Why not by their experience and let our imagination run d the good, instead of living in constant expecta- of evil? "Sufficient unto the day is the evil of."

ey thought they saw a spirit. Well, is it not true, Christ's spirit and not his body saves? Not only church saved, but the individual is. They crucified body but were never able to curtail the work e Spirit. "Not by might, nor power, but by my , saith the Lord." We are told of many things won the war. Be it so, and yet I feel that the rs of God's saints, in the language of the text, d, save," played no little part. "For the Lord made the hosts of the Assyrians [Germans] to a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even oise of a great host" (2 Kings 7:6).

e Lord came walking on the sea, thus showing ower over the elements and nature, as well as his triumph, for he must reign till he hath put all ies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be oyed is death. Peter said: "Lord, bid me come ee on the water." The Lord said, "Come," and , making the effort, began to sink. Then he cried, d, save me." While Peter sinks, the ship, which sents the church of the Living God, does not. are the Lord's promises to his church. It shall eather all storms, overcome all contrary winds, n its port in safety and land all on board in the ed haven. Even the gates of hell shall not prevail st it. Are you on board, my dear reader?

ter uttered the right kind of a cry—the cry of essness. He realized he could not save himself, ow many today are standing on their morality or ighteousness, which, at best, is no more stable the waves beneath Peter. Others, we are glad to realize that all our righteousness is as filthy rags like Peter, they cry: "Lord, save," and immediately the Lord stretches forth the hand of salvation. ter cried to the right Person, "Lord, save." s, in Hades, called on Abram, depending more diately: "Lord, save." Would to God that all who read this would do likewise, regardless of what their trouble or anxiety, regardless of what caused their sinking into doubt or the slough of despond. Try it, my friend, my brother, whatever your lot or condition in life. Try it before it is forever and eternally too late.

Men going down need not be lost, providing they cry to the right person, and at the right time. Now, today, "if you hear his voice." Pharaoh said: "Tomorrow." He wanted to sleep with the frogs one more night, illustrating the reluctance of men to bid adieu to their sins and yield to God. Remember, folks, that procrastination, irresolution and languidness are the milestones on the highway of life, pointing to failure and perdition.

When Christ came into the ship, the wind ceased, and there was a great calm. So, when he comes into the soul today, there is rest, peace and happiness. The prophet of old describes the opposite, when he says: "The wicked may cry, Peace, peace, but there is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked. Their heart is like a troubled sea, continually casting up mire and dirt."

Is any one so strong that he need not cry out, "Lord, save"? "Let him that standeth take heed lest he fall." Is any so weak and sinful that he fears to say, "Lord, save"? "Though your sins be as scarlet I can make them like wool, and though they be as crimson I can make them white as snow." "A bruised reed will he not break, and smoking flax will he not quench."

"Then, sinner, why drink at the fountain of sin,
At Heaven's bright gate you can never pass in,
Give ear to the song that is heard on the shore,
Come, drink of the waters of life evermore."

Dallas Center, Iowa.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

ARIZONA

Glendale church met in council June 27, with Eld. Platt presiding. Sunday-school officers were elected for the next six months, with Bro. O. E. Gillett, superintendent. Sister Pearl Coffelt was elected president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Bro. Platt was elected pastor for the year, beginning Oct. 1. Recently we had two sermons by Eld. J. P. Dickey. He is working in the interest of Christian Education. Ministers of the Glendale church are holding regular services at Buckeye. The Sunday-school went to Granite Reef for an outing July 4.—Emma T. Whitcher, Glendale, Ariz., July 7.

CANADA

Bow Valley.—The District Conference of North Dakota, Eastern Montana and Western Canada was held here during the past week—the first meeting of this kind held in Canada. We hope to have the same privilege again in the near future, as the outlook is very promising. We certainly enjoyed the fellowship of our brethren and friends from the States, and the other churches in Canada. We also had with us Sister Sadie Miller, of India, and Bro. Emmert Stover and his sister, Miriam, who did much to create missionary sentiment not only among the young people but the older ones as well. Several volunteered to be used as the Mission Board may see proper. Bro. Finnell gave a leeture on Friday evening, that was appreieated by all.—Maude Pobst, Gleichen, Alta., Can., July 15.

FLORIDA

Bethel.—As reported last Sunday, at the close of an illustrated talk to the Sunday-school, ten decided for Christ and today, after the forenoon service, nine were baptized. There is a bright future for the Bethel church.—I. H. Crist, Middleburg, Fla., July 13.

ILLINOIS

Oak Grove church met in council July 28, with Eld. J. W. Switzer presiding. One letter was granted. Bro. Ervin Weaver and family have located with us, for which we are glad. Our series of meetings will be held in September or October and a love feast at the close. Bro. D. J. Blickenstaff was elected elder for the remainder of the year. July 6 we organized a union Sunday-school, with Bro. Weaver superintendent. Bro. H. C. Long is "Messenger" agent and the writer, correspondent.—Mrs. Jas. F. Kenyon, Low Point, Ill., July 13.

Rockford.—May 24 we held our love feast, with twenty-four members communing. Our pastor, Bro. Cox, and wife, left June 1 and Bro. Snell came July 1 to take up the work. Bro. Fannacht, of Chicago, was with us one Sunday in May, also one in June. Our deacons had charge the three Sundays we were without a pastor. Our regular quarterly business meeting was held July 3, at which time our elder, Bro. Redenbo, of Mt. Morris, was with us. Since it was impossible for Bro. Snell to find a house to rent, the church decided to contract to buy a house near the new location, to be used as a parsonage. The churchhouse here has been sold. Services will be held in the parsonage at 2709 West State Street as soon as possession can be secured. In the meantime all services will be held in the writer's home, at 1708 Carney Avenue. July 6 two more were added to our number through baptism.—Mrs. Bertha Wise, Rockford, Ill., July 14.

Waddams Grove and Yellow Creek congregations held a joint Fourth of July meeting. Bro. Jesse C. Shull, who held revival meetings at Yellow Creek, preached an excellent sermon in the forenoon. In the ceived and one was granted. Our Sunday-school was reorganized for another six months, with Bro. Elmer Crine reelected as superintendent. Delegates were elected to both Sunday-school and District Meeting: Bro. Edward Patrick and Bro. J. W. Root, respectively. We decided to have a Harvest Meeting in the near future, and our series of meetings is to begin about Sept. 1. Our love feast is appointed for Oct. 11, at 6:30 P. M.—Lulu E. Root, Lafayette, Ind., July 7.

Laporte church closed a two weeks' series of meetings July 6, held at the Mission building in the city of Laporte, conducted by Eld. J. H. Fike, of Middlebury, Ind. There were twenty-two applicants; fifteen were baptized and four reclaimed. Bro. Fike did much personal work and all were strengthened by his earnest efforts. Our love feast was held July 5, with Bro. Fike officiating.—Rachel C. Merchant, Laporte, Ind., July 7.

Miamisiannewa.—On Saturday night, June 28, Bro. Moy Gwong preached for us. June 29, Educational Day, he gave us a fine sermon on "Education and Preparation." On Sunday night he talked of the "Condition and Needs of China." July 6 the Township Sunday-school Convention was held at our church in the afternoon and evening. July 12 (at night) a fine Children's Day program was rendered.—Alice E. Miller, Gaston, Ind., July 16.

Muncie church met in council June 19. Eld. G. L. Studebaker presided, assisted by Brethren L. L. Teeter and A. C. Priddy. Brethren Oscar Winger, Wm. Dungan and Edw. Branson were chosen deacons. They were installed July 3, when Brethren L. L. Teeter and A. C. Priddy were again present and assisted in the service. Bro. G. L. Studebaker was elected delegate to District Meeting. The writer was chosen "Messenger" correspondent and agent. Since the last writing one has confessed Christ.—C. Branson, Muncie, Ind., July 7.

Pine Creek church met in council June 28, at the West house, with Eld. J. F. Appleman presiding. Eld. A. B. Peters, of Wenatchee, Wash., was also present. We had a spiritual meeting, with a good representation of members. Three letters were granted. An all-day Harvest Meeting will be held Aug. 10, instead of Aug. 24, as previously reported. Bro. I. R. Beery, of Flora, Ind., will conduct the services and also preach on Saturday evening before. Our offering for Annual Meeting at the West house was $79.25; East house, $201.99; total, $280.24. June 15 Eld. A. B. Peters preached inspiring sermons both morning and evening to a full house; also on Sunday evening, June 29. This was Bro. Peters' home years ago and we all appreciated his presence once more. Our next council will be held the fourth Saturday in September, at the East house.—M. S. Morris, North Liberty, Ind., July 8.

Pleasant Valley church met in members' meeting June 20. We will hold our Harvest Meeting August 3. The plan of raising all our money for church expenses through the Sunday-school collections has been very successful thus far. Noble Bowman was chosen president of the Christian Workers' Meeting.—Mrs. Carrie Kindy, Middlebury, Ind., July 13.

Solomons Creek church will begin a series of meetings on Saturday evening, August 2, conducted by Bro. Ira Long. Our Harvest Meeting will be held August 3, with a sermon in the forenoon and a young people's program in the afternoon.—Cecil M. Whitehead, Syracuse, Ind., July 14.

Syracuse.—The five congregations of New Salem, Bethany, Bethel, Syracuse and Pleasant View Chapel held their annual Fourth of July meeting this year at the Chapel house. The crowd was not so large as usual because of the very busy season. Most of the farmers were in the midst of harvesting and were obliged to take care of their crops. However, the meeting was well attended and a splendid program was rendered in the forenoon. An offering of $30.16 was taken. After the expenses of the meeting were deducted the remainder of the money was to be sent to the Armenian Fund. A basket dinner was enjoyed by all and the afternoon was taken up by Bro. Otho Winger, of North Manchester, who gave a splendid address on "Present Day Conditions and Opportunities." It was decided to hold another meeting next July.—Maude R. Jones, Syracuse, Ind., July 14.

Topeka church met in council June 28, with Eld. L. S. Burns presiding. Sunday-school officers were elected for six months, with the writer as superintendent. Our Harvest Meeting will be held Sept. 14. We will have a communion service this fall, also a revival meeting—the date to be announced later. We observed Educational Day. Our offering was $10, which was sent to Manchester College.—Mrs. Sarah E. Yontz, Topeka, Ind., July 10.

Walnut church will hold her Harvest Meeting Aug. 3. Bro. Silas Fisher of Mexico, Ind., will be with us and have charge of the meeting.—Helen Mowinger, Hippenauxe, Ind., July 9.

Yellow Creek church decided to have her annual Harvest Meeting Sept. 4. Bro. Moyne Landis will be with us about August 30 in a series of meetings, at the close of which we expect to hold our communion, Sept. 13.—Irvin Miller, Goshen, Ind., July 14.

Yellow River.—We are indeed glad to announce that Bro. E. B. Hoff, from Chicago, will be with us July 27, to conduct our Harvest Meeting services—an all-day meeting. The Brennen, Nappanee, Camp Creek and Yellow River churches will hold their joint Sunday-school Convention in the Yellow River church. We are expecting Bro. Ezra Flory, from Chicago, Aug. 17, to help with the programs. This also is an all-day meeting. We extend a general invitation.—Alma E. Hanawalt, Plymouth, Ind., July 17.

IOWA

Osceola church met in council June 29, with Bro. Chas. Colyn presiding. Officers for Sunday-school were elected, with Bro. John Moore, superintendent. Bro. Chas. Colyn and Sister Jennie Alexander were elected delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. Link Fisher and Sister Dolly Foreman, alternates. May 10 we held our spring love feast. Eld. A. L. Sears and wife, and our elder, Bro. S. W. Garber, were present, the latter officiating. Bro. Garber also preached for us on Sunday, on the subject of "Witnessing for Jesus." His sermon was much appreciated and enjoyed by all present. In the evening, preceding our love feast, an aged sister was anointed. We expect Bro. Roger Winger and Sister Lydia Taylor, the former will speak in the interest of the "Forward Movement" and the latter will lecture on "Dress and Character." The greatest hindrance to the work here is the fact that almost half of our membership is isolated and only get out to services on special occasions. Our revival meeting is to be conducted by Bro. Swallow sometime in November.—Nora Colyn, Osceola, Iowa, July 14.

Sheldon.—June 15 Bro. E. Musselman, of Batavia, Ill., began a two weeks' series of meetings. He visited in many homes and we feel that the church has been helped in many ways. June 28 we enjoyed a spiritual love feast, many visiting members being present. Some time ago a Junior Christian Workers' Society was organized and a great deal of interest is being shown by the children in this work. We are fortunate in having with us this summer Sister Florence Heagley, of Batavia, Ill., who is conducting singing lessons twice a week for the children and once a week for the older members. She also gives instrumental lessons.—Laura E. Kimmel, Sheldon, Iowa, July 14.

KANSAS

Lone Star church observed Children's Day with a very appropriate

JALALPOR NOTES

(Continued from Page 475)

for building, forced a change in plans, and now we will wait another year.

We were recently made glad that our gardener, a non-Christian, was made willing to move his family on the compound. These people are very poor. Just a short time before the man began to work for us, his wife walked home from Bombay—145 miles—soon after she had given birth to a child. This exertion left her in a very serious condition. A few days after they came on the compound, arrangements were made for them to go to Dr. Nickey for treatment. We trust that the physical help that will be rendered these people may show to them the love of Christ. The father has recently been reading the New Testament.

To meet the many opportunities about us, there must needs be a native church that can give a clear and convincing testimony of the power of Christ in their own lives. Far too often some of our Christians have failed to manifest that love, one for the other, by which the world is to recognize the reality of their faith. As you pray for the work, do not fail to remember these Christians, that the fruit of the Spirit may be manifest in their lives. Also pray that we, as the teachers and leaders of these people, may have a faith as big as God's promises, to enable us rightly to do our part! Lillian Grisso.

Jalalpor, India, June 5.

WHITE RAPIDS SETTLEMENT, WISCONSIN

June 26 Bro. J. M. Myers, of Stanley, Wis., came to this place and stayed over two Sundays, holding services each evening and on Sunday morning. He also made a number of visits in the community. A short song service was conducted each evening; also a Bible reading on some of the doctrines of the church. Bro. Myers made these teachings very plain, and gave us splendid sermons all through the meetings. On the last Sunday eight united with the church by baptism. These meetings were a great blessing to us all. We have been encouraged and are stronger and more determined than ever before, to follow the Bible and all its teachings.

Early in the spring Brother and Sister L. M. Bontrager started a prayer meeting and Bible study, having the first meeting in their home. Since that time we have had the meetings in the schoolhouse on Sunday afternoon or evening. A number of the young people attend and take an active part.

Our band is small, but made up of willing workers, and we have great faith in prayer, because we know our God hears and answers prayer. We need a minister who can come here to live. Much good could be done. We also need more workers—families who will come here to develop farms and grow up with the country.

Surely, many of our brethren, now living on rented farms, want to go where land is cheap, to secure homes of their own. Our soil is very productive, the water is good and the climate all that could be desired. In the fall the frosts come about the same time as in Northern Indiana. We can raise nearly the same kind of crops.

A committee of five brethren has been appointed to secure a site for a church building. They will see that the ground is cleared and gotten ready this fall.

If any of the Brethren are interested in this country, or if you want to do real mission work and at the same time provide a home for your family, write to Bro. L. M. Bontrager or Bro. Harvey McClelland, both at Amberg, Wis. They will be glad to answer any questions you wish to ask about this country. They will also help you to get in touch with men who have land for sale.

Amberg, Wis. Pearl Anglemyer Kulp.

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA

Our Annual Conference offering was $1,054.

Sunday, June 29, was Children's Day. All seemed to catch the spirit of the day. In the morning the primaries rendered a splendid program, followed with a sermon by the pastor. His subject was "Trees." Text, Psa. 1. While the sermon was mainly for the children, yet it was appropriate for all, and intensely interesting. So few people can delve into the deep things of life, that it would seem as if Jesus' method of drawing a crowd would be a wise one in our time. The common people heard him gladly and he reached them through the children, and with things that children could understand.

In the evening a program was rendered by the older children. The superintendent gave the Address of Welcome. He told the audience that those on the program—the children of today—may be the great minds of the future. "Who can tell," he said, "what great man or woman of later years you are listening to today?" Prof. Speicher and Sister Elsie Shickel, who are conducting the Vacation Bible School, also took part in the program. Sister Shickel told the children a story, and Prof. Speicher gave an address. His subject was "The Lord's Prayer in Colors." It was beautiful and impressive.

On Thursday evening, July 3, the members' meeting was held. Eld. P. S. Miller presided. Two letters of membership were received. Delegates were elected to District Meeting. One query will be sent to that gathering. The church elected a Board of Sunday-school Directors, to assist in solving the problems of the school. The members elected were Superintendent D. P. Hylton, Chairman; B. B. Garber, W. M. Shickel, J. A. Flora and Nina Moomaw. Sister Arelia Mitchell was appointed assistant home department superintendent. Bro. R. A. Poff is Christian Workers' president. A beautiful banner, with the motto, "Workers Together With God," written in the Chinese language, was presented to the church by our missionary to China, Sister Rebecca Skeggs Wampler. Our series of meetings will be held sometime in October.

The Vacation Bible School is in full swing. Prof. Speicher and Sister Shickel were almost taken off their feet when, on the first day, while expecting only about a hundred children, more than two hundred greeted them. By the third day there were 275 children present. With hardly room for the children to sit down, and more teachers needed, it was a problem, but Prof. Speicher and Sister Shickel handled the situation successfully. We will give a full report at the close of the school.

July 6 Prof. Speicher preached for us. His subject was "Education." Text, 2 Tim. 2: 5. It was a fine sermon. An offering of $23 was taken for educational work. Our pastor conducted the evening services. His subject was, "A Wise Man's Observations." Text, Eccl. 12: 13.

Sister Cheatham, our cradle roll superintendent, was delayed in beginning her work. She reported forty-two members enrolled who have been located. Several others have been added. She hopes, with the assistance of the church, to have the work grow. Mrs. John H. Shickel.

703 Third Avenue, N. W., Roanoke, Va.

ENDERS, NEBRASKA

Enders church is located in Chase County. There are only three churches in the western half of the State. Only a few ministers live in this large territory. The opportunities are great, as the field is largely unoccupied. Many communities have no Sunday-school and would welcome one. Chase County has a population of 5,000 and a Sunday-school attendance of 700, according to the County Sunday-school Convention.

Two ministers live in the bounds of the church, but are too far away to help very much with the services there, besides working at other places.

The Enders congregation has about seventy members, much scattered, with perhaps fifty living near enough to attend services there.

The congregation desires to secure a pastor to take charge of the work in the vicinity of the church on full support. They have a good house of worship and will coöperate with a wise leader in every forward movement. We would like to get into touch with a minister who would consider this field. Please address the writer.

Wauneta, Nebr. I. C. Snavely.

NORTH AND SOUTH CAROLINA, GEORGIA AND FLORIDA

The Ministerial and Sunday-school Meetings of the above-named District will be held in the Brummett Creek church, Mitchell County, N. C., August 21.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

9 to 11: 40 A. M.

(a) What Constitutes a True Gospel Minister? (b) In What Way Is He Called of God? (c) What Are the Evidences of His Call?—S. F. Jones. How Best May a Minister Meet the Requirements of the Age In Which He Lives?—A. A. Brunson. In What Way May the Congregation Help in the Preaching of the Gospel?—Clayton B. Miller.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

1 to 4: 20 P. M.

The Business of the Sunday-school: (a) Bringing Them In. (b) Keeping Them There. (c) Winning Them to Christ.—Sarah G. Feithouse. How Can We Stir Up Greater Interest in Our Sunday-school Work?—W. A. Reed. The Best Method of Presenting the Lesson to the Class.—J. H. Garst.

Evening Service, 6: 30

Sermon, The Church of Christ.—J. H. Moore.
Committee: J. H. Moore, J. H. Griffith, J. W. Webb.
Persons attending the meeting will come on C. C. O. R. R., to Relief Station.

DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

The various meetings of the above-named District will convene at Olympia, Wash., August 5-7.

TEMPERANCE MEETING

August 5, 4 P. M.

Our Attitude Toward Tobacco: (a) In the Past.—Grant Replogle. (b) For the Future.—C. N. Huffman. The Menace of the Cigarette: (a) For Girls.—Pearl Whisler. (b) For Boys.—Clyde Gockley. To What Extent Should We Aid the Government in Securing Conviction of Those Who Violate the Prohibition Law?—Warren Slabaugh.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

August 6, 2 P. M.

Delegates' Report, "What Is Your School Doing?" Give Concrete Illustration of How to Teach a Bible School.—W. H. Prine, E. J. Cline. How Would You Conduct a Junior Department?—Ed. Gensinger, Maud Thompson. "Our Greatest Need."—J. S. Zimmerman. General Discussion, "Difficulties of the Sunday-school and How Overcome Them."

MISSIONARY MEETING

August 6, 4 P. M.

The Making of a Missionary.—Paul Mohler, J. S. Zimmerman. How Can We Meet the Ministerial Needs of the District?—J. A. Eby, M. F. Woods.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

August 7, 7: 30 P. M.

The Laity Lending Inspiration and Help to the Ministry: (a) Ways and Means.—J. A. Eby. (b) Does It Pay?—E. R. Eikenberry. The Ministry and Business.—R. F. Hiner, E. S. Kale. How Should the Young Men Regard God's Call to the Ministry?—G. A. Shamberger, Marion Stanley. Is the Trend Toward Worldliness in the Church Due to Our National Inclination and Environment, or to a Lack of Teaching by the Ministry?—E. L. Whisler, H. C. Nead. Round Table: What Is the Need of the Church of the Brethren in Ministerial Work? Has the Calling of Young Men to the Eldership Had a Tendency to Lessen the Possibilities of the Office for Giving Sound and Wise Counsel? The Importance of Adapting Sermons to Young People and Children.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

The Ministerial, Educational and Sunday-school Meetings of the above-named District will be held in the First Church, York, Aug. 13, 14, 15.

Wednesday, Aug. 13, 7: 45 P. M.

Sermon.—Eld. H. K. Ober.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Thursday, Aug. 14, 8: 30 A. M.

Address of Welcome.—Eld. J. A. Long. Response.—Eld. C. R. Oellig. Our Ministerial Problems and How Solved: (a) Of the Elder.—D. A. Foust. (b) Of the Pastor.—C. H. Steerman. (c) Of the Young Minister.—Jacob E. Trimmer. The Mission of the Church in the Present Hour.—Albert E. Hollinger.

Afternoon Session, 1: 30

The Evangelist: (a) His Mission.—Jacob L. Myers. (b) His Attitude Toward the Local Organization.—C. L. Baker. The Most Effective Way of Teaching: (a) Church Ordinances.—Green Shively. (b) Church Government.—S. M. Sisniffer.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING

Evening Session, 7: 30

What Constitutes a Balanced Education?—Wm. I. Schaeffer and L. W. Leiter. What Educational Advantages Are Necessary to Meet Present-Day Requirements?—(a) In the Ministry.—G. Howard Denner. (b) In the Sunday-school.—J. I. Baugher.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

Friday, Aug. 15, 8 A. M.

Organization. Business Period. Report of District Sunday-school Secretary.—J. H. Keller. By What Standard Shall We Measure Success in the Sunday-school?—J. H. Keller and N. S. Sellers. Personality of the Teacher.—Arelie Hollinger, Trostle Dick.

Afternoon Session, 1: 30

The Sunday-school a Missionary Factor: (a) Relation of the Ministers to the Sunday-school.—J. H. Brindle. (b) Relation of the Parent to the Sunday-school.—Charles Schwenk. (c) Relation of the Superintendent to the Sunday-school.—S. C. Godfrey. (d) Benefits of the Sunday-school.—Helen Oellig. The Sunday-school Teacher at His Best.—John E. Rowland, A. S. Baugher.

SISTERS' AID SOCIETIES

EDHOLM, NEBR.—Report of Octavia Aid Society from July 1, 1918, to July 1, 1919: We held 9 meetings, with an attendance of 9. Total amount of offerings, $18.56; received from suction sale in March, $47.25; prayer-coverings sold, $2.40; received for Mary Quinter Fund, $17.40; balance from last year, $7.39; paid out $69.85, leaving a balance of $3.15. Officers: President, Sister Minnie Foutz; Vice-President, Sister Saul; Secretary, Elda Burkholder; Treasurer, Susie Burkholder. We gave toward Mary Quinter Fund, General Mission Board, India famine sufferers, Sunday-school treasury, and purchased flowers for the sick. At the present time we are preparing for a miscellaneous sale, to be held some time this fall.—Elda Burkholder, Edholm, Nebr., July 8.

HANOVER, PA.—Report of Aid Society from July 1, 1918, to July 2, 1919: We held 43 half-day meetings, with an average attendance of 5. Money received during the year for articles made and sold and donations, and balance of last year, $178.56. We made 15 aprons, 27 bonnets and 6 quilts, besides other garments. We sold 100 calendars. Money paid out during the year for charity and benevolences, $24; India Boys' Boarding School, $5; Home Missions, $27.28; Child Rescue work, $5; District Missions, $21; Foreign Missions, $10; Armenian and Belgian sufferers, $13.20. We gave to the Red Cross 4 sheets, 1 dozen towels, 2 dozen handkerchiefs; a box of second-hand clothing to the Armenians and Belgians. The whole amount of money paid out during the year was $129.05, which leaves a balance of $49.56. The officers are the same as last year: President, Annie Harlacher; Vice-President, Emma Little; Treasurer, Gertrude Weaver; Secretary, the writer.—Mrs. Lucy Shriver, Hanover, Pa., July 9.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Dore-Brumbaugh.—By Eld. W. M. Wine, at the home of the bride's parents, Ridgely, Md., June 26, 1919, Frederick Denton Dore, of Cloverdale, Va., and Alice Marguerite Brumbaugh.—Mary B. Raleigh, Denton, Md.

Farrow-Thompson.—By Eld. W. M. Wine, in the Green Hill church, Green Hill, Md., June 25, 1919, Curtis O. Farrow, of Westover, Md., and Sister June Thompson, of Westover, Md.—R. E. Wine, Woodside, Del.

Huston-Wray.—By the undersigned, at his home, July 2, 1919, Bro. Earl M. Huston and Sister Zeths M. Wray, of Overhrook, Kans.—W. B. Devilbiss, Ottawa, Kans.

Magoffin-Norris.—By the undersigned, June 26, 1919, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister J. W. Norris, Bro. Louie L. Magoffin, of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Sister Sadie Norris, of Twin Falls, Idaho.—C. Fahrney, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Shaffer-Kauffman.—By the undersigned, at his home, July 6, 1919, Bro. Walter R. Shaffer, of Windber, Pa., and Sister Minnie L. Kauffman, of Hollsopple, Pa.—N. H. Blough, Davidsville, Pa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which dlo in the Lord"

Baily, David Raymond, born near Savage, Mont., died at the same place, June 23, 1919, aged 1 year, 10 months and 10 days. He is survived by his parents and one sister. Interment in the Savage cemetery.—Eliza A. Ulery, Savage, Mont.

Garringer, Ira, son of David and Barbara Barringer, born in Elkhart County, Ind., died July 6, 1919, aged 49 years and 11 days. He married Ordelia Susan Miller in 1895. To this union were born three children who, with the mother, survive. He has been a member of the Church of the Brethren for twenty years and lived a faithful life. Services in the West Goshen church by Elders Frank Kreider and C. A. Huber.—Myrtle E. Ulrich, Goshen, Ind.

Bowser, Bro. Jos. E., died at the home of his daughter, in Reading, ry and Business.—R. F. Hiser, E. S. Kale. How Should the Man Regard God's Call to the Ministry?—G. A. Shamberger, Stanley. Is the Trend Toward Worldliness in the Church Due National Inclination and Environment, or to a Lack of Teach- the Ministry?—E. L. Whitler, H. C. Nead. Found Table s the Need of the Church of the Brethren in Ministerial Work? e Calling of Young Men to the Eldership Had a Tendency to the Possibilities of the Office for Giving Sound and Wise lf? The Importance of Adapting Sermons to Young People ildren.

OUTHERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

Ministerial, Educational and Sunday-school Meetings of the named District will be held in the First Church, York, Aug. 15.

Wednesday, Aug. 13, 7:45 P. M.

on.—Eld. H. K. Ober.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Thursday, Aug. 14, 8:30 A. M.

ess of Welcome.—Eld. J. A. Long. Response.—Eld. C. R. Our Ministerial Problems and How Solved: (a) Of the Elder. L. Foust. (b) Of the Pastor.—C. H. Steerman. (c) Of the Minister.—Jacob E. Trimmer. The Mission of the Church in esent Hour.—Albert E. Hollinger.

Afternoon Session, 1:30

Evangelist: (a) His Mission.—Jacob L. Myers. (b) His Attitoward the Local Organization.—C. L. Baker. The Most Effecday of Teaching: (a) Church Ordinances.—Green Shively. (b) Government.—S. M. Stauffer.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING

Evening Session, 7:30

t Constitutes a Balanced Education?—Wm. I. Schaeffer and L. iter. What Educational Advantages Are Necessary to Meet t-Day Requirements?—(a) In the Ministry.—C. Howard Dan (b) In the Sunday-school.—J. I. Baugher.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

Friday, Aug. 15, 8 A. M.

nization. Business Period. Report of District Sunday-school ary.—J. H. Keller. By What Standard Shall We Measure Suc- in the Sunday-school?—J. H. Keller and N. S. Sellers. Per- y of the Teacher.—Archie Hollinger, Trostle Dick.

Afternoon Session, 1:30

Sunday-school a Missionary Factor: (a) Relation of the Min- to the Sunday-school.—J. H. Brindle. (b) Relation of the Par- the Sunday-school.—Charles Schwenk. (c) Relation of the Su- ndent to the Sunday-school.—S. C. Godirey. (d) Benefits of unday-school.—Helen Oellig. The Sunday-school Teacher at est.—John E. Rowland, A. S. Baugher.

SISTERS' AID SOCIETIES

HOLM, NEBR.—Report of Octavia Aid Society from July 1, 1918, y 1, 1919: We held 9 meetings, with an attendance of 9. Total t of offerings, $18.56; received from auction sale in March, layer-coverings sold, $2.40; received for Mary Quinter Fund, balance from last year, $7.39; paid out $29.85, leaving a balance 15. Officers: President, Sister Minnie Foutz; Vice-President, Saul; Secretary, Elda Burkholder; Treasurer, Susie Burk- We gave toward Mary Quinter Fund, General Mission Board, famine sufferers, Sunday-school treasury, and purchased flowers e sick. At the present time we are preparing for a miscellane- sale, to be held some time this fall.—Elda Burkholder, Edholm, July 8.

NOVER, PA.—Report of Aid Society from July 1, 1918, to July 2, We held 43 half-day meetings, with an average attendance of 8. received during the year for articles made and sold and donated and balance of last year, $178.56. We made 15 aprons, 27 bonand 4 quilts, besides other garments. We sold 100 calendars. y paid out during the year for charity and benevolences, $24; Orphans' Boarding School, $5; Home Missions, $27.28; Child Rescue $5; District Missions, $21; Foreign Missions, $10; Armenian Belgian sufferers, $13.20. We gave to the Red Cross 6 sheets, 1 towels, 2 dozen handkerchiefs; a box of second-hand clothing Armenians and Belgians. The whole amount of money paid out g the year was $129.05, which leaves a balance of $49.56. The re are the same as last year: President, Annie Harlacher; Vice- dent, Emma Little; Treasurer, Gertrude Weaver; Secretary, the r.—Mrs. Luey Shriver, Hanover, Pa., July 9.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

se note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a age notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Mes- r" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should ade when the notice is sent, and full address given.

e-Brumbaugh.—By Eld. W. M. Wine, at the home of the bride's nts, Ridgely, Md., June 26, 1919, Frederick Denton Dore, of Clover- Va., and Alice Marguerite Brumbaugh.—Mary B. Ralrigh, Den- Md.

row-Thompson.—By Eld. W. M. Wine, in the Green Hill church, a Hill, Md., June 25, 1919, Curtis O. Farrow, of Westover, Md., Sister Jane Thompson, of Westover, Md.—R. E. Wine, Woodside, ston-Wray.—By the undersigned, at his home, July 2, 1919, Bro. M. Huston and Sister Zetha M. Wray, of Overbrook, Kans.— h. Devilbiss, Ottawa, Kans.

goffin-Norris.—By the undersigned, June 26, 1919, at the home of bride's parents, Brother and Sister J. W. Norris, Bro. Louie L. ffin, of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Sister Sadie Norris, of Twin , Idaho.—C. Fahrney, Twin Falls, Idaho.

fer-Kauffman.—By the undersigned, at his home, July 6, 1919, Walter R. Shaffer, of Windber, Pa., and Sister Minnie L. Kauff- of Hollsopple, Pa.—N. H. Blough, Davidsville, Pa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Pa., of the infirmities of old age, June 21, 1919, aged 86 years, 8 months and 4 days. He was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for many years, serving very acceptably as deacon for over forty years. He married Lydia Miller, who died two years ago. To this union were born four sons and four daughters. Two of the sons are ministers and one a deacon in the Church of the Brethren. Services at East Berlin, his former home, by Elders C. L. Baker and W. G. Group. Burial in the Mummert cemetery.—Nellie L. Kreider, East Berlin, Pa.

Dell, Sister Lydia, nee Summers, was born in Ohio, died at her home in Rockford Township, Gage Co., Nebr., June 16, 1919, aged 80 years, 10 months and 12 days. Her husband, Eld. Isaac Dell, died a number of years ago. They helped to build up the South Beatrice church through many years of faithful service. Eight children were born to them—seven of whom survive. Five years Sister Dell was correspondent for the "Gospel Messenger." The funeral was conducted by the pastor and elder. Interment in the South Beatrice cemetery.—Edgar Rothrock, Holmesville, Nebr.

Frank, Sister Martha Ann Elizabeth, nee Currier, born in Rockingham County, Va., died of paralysis, at her home in Donnelsville, Ohio, aged 76 years and 15 days. In 1866 she united with the Church of the Brethren and his ever remained loyal. In 1867 she married John Frank. To this union three sons and one daughter were born. The daughter and two sons survive. They also adopted a little girl four years old and raised her as one of their own. Services at the River Brethren church in Donnelsville by Eld. Cyrus Funderberg, assisted by Eld. I. D. Sandy. Interment in the Donnelsville cemetery. —Elsie Winget, Springfield, Ohio.

Gatos, Samuel S., born in Pennsylvania, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lena Ulery, Glendive, Mont., of paralysis, April 28, 1919, aged 75 years, 11 months and 14 days. His wife preceded him twenty-one years ago. Five children were born to them. He united with the Baptist church a number of years ago. He is survived by one daughter, one son, five grandchildren and two sisters. The remains were taken to his old home in Glens, Kans., where services were held. Interment in the Glena cemetery.—Eliza A. Ulery, Savage, Mont.

Groft, Sister Susanna Butler, wife of Oliver B. Groft, died at her home, in Westminster, Md., of heart trouble, May 23, 1919, aged 69 years, 2 months and 6 days. She was a life-long member of the Church of the Brethren and lived a consistent Christian life. She leaves her husband, three daughters, five grandchildren and one brother. Services at the church by Eld. Edward A. Snader, assisted by Eld. J. Walter Thomas. Interment in Meadow Branch cemetery.—Eugenia Groft Little, Westminster, Md.

Groves, Helen C., daughter of Brother and Sister Vernon Groves, died April 20, 1919, aged 8 years and 1 day. Her death was caused by bronchial pneumonia. Burial in the cemetery near the Brethren church at Osceola, Ind. Services by Bro. H. M. Schwaim and the writer.—Peter Huffman, Elkhart, Ind.

Hostetler, Milton, born at Somerset, Pa., Dec. 23, 1855, died at the Carrington, N. Dak., hospital, July 5, 1919. In 1897 he married Clara Bell Blough, who survives with two sons, one daughter, three sisters and one brother. Services at the Carrington church by the writer.— Alfred Keeps, Barlow, N. Dak.

Inhody, David L., born in Elkhart County, Ind., died June 24, 1919, aged 69 years, 10 months and 9 days. Bro. Inbody married Mary Kile in 1879. To this union were born three children, who, with his wife, survive. Services in West Goshen church by Elders C. A. Huber and L. P. Kurtz.—Myrtle E. Ulrich, Goshen, Ind.

Kraft, Mrs. Leah, died at her home, near Dillsburg, Pa., of paralysis, July 9, 1919, aged 53 years, 7 months and 6 days. She is survived by her husband, three children, one brother and two sisters. She was a daughter of the late Eld. Peter Myers. Her body was brought to the Mummert church. Services by Rev. Eveler, of the Lutheran church, and Eld. C. L. Baker. Burial in the adjoining cemetery.— Nellie L. Kreider, East Berlin, Pa.

Lear, Sister Margie, wife of Bro. Edgar Lear, died at the home of her parents, Brother and Sister John Kime, in New Chester, Pa., of tuberculosis, July 6, 1919, aged 24 years, 6 months and 9 days. She lived a beautiful Christian life. Services in the East Berlin house by Eld. C. L. Baker, assisted by Bro. H. Little. Burial in the Mummert cemetery.—Nellie L. Kreider, East Berlin, Pa.

Price, Rebecca, nee Long, born near Hagerstown, Md., died at her home in Reedley, Calif., June 26, 1919, aged 86 years, 5 months and 10 days. She married Wm. S. Price in 1858. Three children were born to them. Services at the Church of the Brethren by Bro. J. J. Brower. —Mabel Armantrout, Reedley, Calif.

Reinhold, Sister——, wife of Samuel Reinhold, died June 21, '19, in the bounds of the West Greentree congregation, Pa., after a failure, aged 61 years, 9 months and 21 days. She is survived by her husband and one son. She united with the church when very young and lived a consistent Christian life. Services at the home and at the Greentree church by Bro. Amos Hottenstein and the home ministers. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.—S. R. McDannel, Elizabethtown, Pa.

Saylor, Nellie, daughter of Brother and Sister Newton Saylor, died July 4, 1919, aged 6 years, 11 months and 9 days. Services in the home by Bro. T. R. Coffman.—Mrs. D. J. Fike, Meyersdale, Pa.

Scott, Mary Elizabeth, nee Plowman, born in Hanover, Pa., died at her home near Sheridan, Mo., June 28, 1919, aged 62 years, 2 months and 20 days. She married Wm. Walter Scott in 1875. To this union were born eleven children all living except two. She also leaves her husband, nineteen grandchildren, two brothers and one sister. She united with the Brethren church when a young girl and has been a faithful Christian since. Services from the Isadora church by the writer, assisted by Rev. Challie E. Graham. Burial in the Isadora cemetery.—Blair Hoover, Plattsburg, Mo.

Shaffer, Bro. Levi, born in Bedford County, Pa., died at his home in Hudson, Iowa, July 1, 1919, aged 85 years, 3 months and 15 days. Bro. Shaffer came to Iowa in 1856 and settled on a farm in Black Hawk County, where he resided for a number of years, later going west to Kansas and then to Beatrice, Nebr., where he lived some years. He was married at Johnstown, Pa., to Jane Carroll, who preceded him twenty years ago. Later he was married to Julia McBain, of Hudson, Iowa, who, with eight children, survives. Bro. Shaffer was a minister in the Church of the Brethren for nearly fifty years. His life was a constant blessing and benediction to all who came under its influence. Funeral services at the United Brethren church in Hudson, Iowa. Burial at Beatrice, Nebr.—A. P. Blough, Waterloo, Iowa.

Shepherd, Rebekah Jane, born in Jefferson County, Ohio, Oct. 23, 1838, died in Richland County, Wis., July 2, 1919, of paralysis. She married John Shepherd in 1863. To this union were born eight sons and one daughter. Three of the sons preceded her. She was a member of the Brethren church for about forty years. Services by the writer.—G. L. Fruit, Viola, Wis.

Tuttle, Anna M., nee Hane, born in Defiance County, Ohio, died at her home in the same place, June 9, 1919, aged 46 years, 6 months and 5 days. She married Clarence Philemon Tuttle in 1891. To this union were born four sons and one daughter. She leaves two sons, one daughter, her father, five sisters and three brothers. She was a

Bargain Book Counter

Good Books for t day-Schoo

The books on this counter are to be c
Look them over and see how much you can

Copies for sale	Title of Book
6	Practical Mechanics for Boys .....
2	Electricity for Boys .....
	The two books listed above are from written especially for boys in language bound. Illustrated.
10	sets Life and Works of Lincoln .....
	The Life and Works of Lincoln is a se bound in rich red cloth, gold stamped. Early Speeches, Vol. III Speeches and and Debates, Vol. V Addresses, Vol. VI
8	The Victory of the Gospel .....
	A $500.00 prize essay on missions by Re
1	Elsie's Loved Ones .....
1	Elsie and Her Namesakes .....
1	Elsie at Ion .....
1	Elsie's Vacation .....
1	Elsie on the Hudson .....
2	Elsie's Winter Trip .....
1	Elsie at the World's Fair .....
	These are all that we have left of the our special price.
1	The Castaways .....
2	The Conquest of Savages .....
1	The Trihesmen .....
1	Treasures of the Island .....
1	Capture and Pursuit .....
	These are capital books for boys. The boys and an aged professor who were who without tools or outside help, wer everything they needed. An informi series.
1	His Will (leather) .....
2	His Will (cloth) .....
	This volume classifies all the referen the Commands, the Warnings and the house of suggestion for ministers. Prin
1	John Calvin: The Stateaman .....
1	Savonarola: The Prophet .....
2	Peter: The Hermit .....
4	Fenelon: The Mystic .....
3	Cryptian: The Churchman .....
3	Athanasius: The Hero .....
1	Augustine: The Thinker .....
	These are valuable books of abiding in in Church history will find them an imp ry. Uniformly bound in cloth.
9	Self-Made Men in American Life .....
11	Straight Shots at Young Men .....
10	Tell Jesus .....
4	The Path of Duty .....
3	Miss Toosey's Mission .....
9	The King of the Golden River .....
5	Jessica's First Prayer .....
2	In Perfect Peace .....
8	The Greatness of Patience .....
3	Family Manners .....
4	The Face of the Master .....
1	Character the Grandest Thing In the W
1	Friendly Counsels .....
	The books listed just above are from Worth While Series." Every one is a

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, R. E. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor
L. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor
EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as Second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 477)

Convention, gave excellent reports of the meeting. On the evening of July 13 we reorganized our Christian Workers' Society, choosing Bro. Elmer Bechtel as president.—Zora Montgomery, Fredericktown, Ohio, July 16.

OKLAHOMA

Washita church met in council July 13. Final preparations were made for the District Meeting, to be held at our church the last of August. Delegates elected were: Brethren Bruce Tharrington and J. W. Battey from the church; for the Sunday-school, Sister Mabel Yoder and Bro. Gilbert Brubaker; Christian Workers, Sister Pearl Wilfong and Bro. Luther Hiatt. Bro. Wagoner, from Enid, will hold our series of meetings, beginning August 3.—Rae Boyd Brubaker, Cordell, Okla., July 14.

OREGON

Williams church met in council June 22, with Eld. Lininger presiding. Brother and Sister J. Kristlieb, of Grants Pass, Oregon, handed in their letters. It was decided to hold our love feast Oct. 11.—Nellie Moomaw, Williams, Oregon, July 13.

PENNSYLVANIA

Bear Run Mission.—Our meetings commenced June 24, with Eld. Irwin R. Fletcher, of Connellsville, Pa., in charge. He preached nine interesting sermons and made several visits. Three decided to unite with the church. The meetings were well attended.—A. S. Friend, Mill Run, Pa., July 10.

Falling Spring.—Bro. Ezra Flory, of Bethany Bible School, who is spending a few months in this congregation, began a series of meetings at the Browns Mill church June 15, but owing to the busy time of the year the meetings were not so well attended and it was thought best to close. There were no conversions, but we feel that much good was done. Services are to reopen next Saturday evening for one week, after which Bro. Flory will hold a meeting at Shady Grove. At the present time Bro. Flory has been giving lessons on child life, on Saturday and Sunday evenings alternately, at Browns Mill and Shady Grove, which are very instructive and much appreciated. June 29 the Shady Grove Sunday-school held Children's Day exercises, which were well attended and much enjoyed.—We gave nearly $60 to Armenian-Syrian Relief Work and our Annual Meeting offering was $237, of which $10 was given by the Shady Grove Sunday-school and $5 by the Sisters' Aid Society. We expect Bro. Geo. Griffith, of Meyersdale, Pa., who is visiting the different congregations in the interest of the "Forward Movement" of missions, to be with us at the Shady Grove church on the evening of July 16.—H. N. M. Gearhart, Shady Grove, Pa., July 13.

Greenville.—June 29 the writer commenced a series of meetings at the Hochstetler church, continuing for one week, with increasing interest. Eleven were baptized.—Robert T. Hull, Somerset, Pa., July 15.

Hanover church met in council July 2, with Eld. Daniel Bowser presiding. Four letters were granted and two received. The church decided to have the first Sunday in May and the third Sunday in October as permanent dates for our love feast. We decided to procure an evangelist for 1920. Bro. Jacob E. Myers was reelected president of the Christian Workers' Society. We appointed a committee to devise a plan for the establishment of a library in the church. Bro. Noah Sell, of Blackrock, preached an instructive sermon for us June 15. Brethren Albert and Archie Hollinger, of Gettysburg, were with us June 22. The former preached an inspiring sermon in the morning.—Mary A. Shindler, Hanover, Pa., July 14.

Harrisburg.—Our Children's Day exercises, rendered June 29, were very good. The Men's Chorus from York, Pa., twenty in number, was much appreciated. The talk by Bro. Elmer Leas was also helpful and inspiring. An offering of $40.82 was lifted, $10.60 of which was given toward purchasing twenty Bibles for the Dauphin County prison. The quota is 200 and a number of churches are helping to provide them. The total amount given to the Armenian-Syrian Relief was $277.46. The Sunday-school has given $50 toward this fund. The Annual Meeting offering amounted to $267.13. The Sewing Circle has given $25 toward this offering for the cause of helping to support a missionary. Three letters of membership were granted recently. Our prayer meetings are well attended.—Sallie E. Schaffner, Harrisburg, Pa., July 10.

Indian Creek (County Line House).—At our recent council Eld. Irvin Fletcher, of Connellsville, began a few weeks' series of meetings will begin August 30, conducted by our pastor, Bro. B. B. Ludwick. Our love feast will be held August 16, beginning at 6 P. M. The preparatory service will be held on the morning at 10:30. Bro. Ludwick will leave here shortly afterward and we will be without a pastor.—J. L. Bowman, Stahlstown, Pa., July 12.

Locust Grove church held her love feast June 29, with Brethren C. W. Harshberger and D. C. Steyer officiating. The attendance and interest were good, with about eighty communing. Previous to the feast we had a two weeks' series of meetings, conducted by Brethren C. W. Harshberger, L. B. Harshberger, M. C. Horst, P. C. Strayer, S. W. Pearce, C. C. Solenberger, D. F. Rowser and L. G. Shaffer. Interesting and inspiring sermons were preached each evening. Four were received into the church by baptism and one reclaimed.—Elizabeth Bibblett, Johnstown, Pa., July 11.

Martinsburg.—Bro. A. J. Beeghly, of Friedens, Pa., began a series of meetings in the Cross Roads house, Clover Creek congregation, June 7 and continued until June 21. The meetings were well attended and the interest increased as the meetings progressed. Fifteen were received by baptism, three reclaimed and one awaits baptism.—J. H. Crofford, Martinsburg, Pa., July 13.

Middle Creek—July 13, at Moores church, three were added to our number by baptism. These girls made application for membership without any solicitation on our part.—Robert T. Hull, Somerset, Pa., July 15.

Montgomery church began a series of meetings June 14, with Bro. Edgar Diehm, of Royersford, Pa., evangelist. These meetings continued until June 29, when we enjoyed a spiritual love feast, with about 120 communing. Bro. Brice Sell, of Blair County, Pa., officiated. Other visiting ministers were brethren W. M. Myers, D. R. Berkey and E. E. Holsopple. Four were baptized at the close of the meetings and two the following Sunday. We met in council July 2, with Eld. Oran Fyock presiding. We decided to hold a series again in June, 1920; also a Harvest Meeting some time during the coming month of August—the exact date not being set.—Mrs. Bert Fyock, Rochester Mills, Pa., July 10.

Philadelphia (First Church).—July 1 Brethren C. C. Ellis and Stover Kulp began their pastoral work with us. Sunday morning, July 6, Bro. Kulp preached on the subject, "Christ's Appeal to You." In the evening Bro. Ellis preached from the text, "For I determine not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and him crucified." Bro. Ellis also taught the Sunday-school lesson to the whole school. June 28 our Sunday-school held an outing at Hunting Park. Sunday evening, July 6, Bro. J. W. Cline and family, from Los Angeles, who are touring the East, made a very pleasant visit. Bro. Cline worked with us about twenty years ago and we were glad to have him with us again.—Mrs. Wm. H. B. Schnell, Philadelphia, Pa., July 14.

Rockton.—Delegates for District Sunday-school Convention were elected as follows: Friendship Bible Class, Ralph Smith and Robert Rowland; Main School, Wm. Smith and D. M. Hollopeter. Our local Sunday-school Convention will be held at the Greenville house on Thursday, July 31. Field worker, Foster B. Statler, will meet with us July 30 at Bethel; July 30 at Rockton; July 31 at Greenville house. Come and enjoy this worker's visit among us. We decided at our last council to hold an election for three deacons at the time of the next council, Sept. 6, at 1 o'clock at the Rockton house.—J. F. Hollopeter, Rockton, Pa., July 12.

Shade Creek.—July 4 we held our quarterly Sunday-school Convention at the Ridge house. The attendance was good and an interesting program was enjoyed by all. Our District Secretary, Bro. Foster Statler, gave us several helpful addresses. Bro. H. S. Replogle was also one of the speakers. Sister Kathryn Miller is conducting singing classes at our three churches. We feel the need of better music in our worship and hope that her work among us will be the means of arousing interest and helping the cause. We expect to begin our series of meetings at the Ridge house Sept. 14, with Bro. H. S. Replogle in charge. The church is planning for a Bible Institute at the Berlin house during Thanksgiving week. Eleven passed the Mission Study examination recently and several others will take it later on.—Mrs. J. L. Weaver, Windber, Pa., July 10.

TEXAS

Manvel church met in connell June 27. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren Samuel Badger and J. G. Raleigh, with Bro. C. C. Bowman and the writer, alternates. One of our ministers, Bro. J. D. Clear, and family, have moved to Los Angeles, Calif.—Ethel O. Peters, Manvel, Texas, July 15.

VIRGINIA

Notice.—The District Meeting of the First District of Virginia will be held in the Selma church July 30 to August 1. All coming by rail will be met at Clifton Forge, Va., C. & O. R. R. Those coming by rail will be met if the undersigned is notified of the day and time.—J. H. Wimmer, Selma, Va., July 14.

Peters Creek.—We have just closed a very interesting and instructive series of meetings at the Oak Grove house. Bro. C. D. Hylton, of Troutville, Va., began June 22 and preached seventeen sermons. Twenty-five stood for Christ, twenty-one of whom were baptized.—Each member was present and many from adjoining congregations. We went to a grove near our minister's home for our Fourth of July outing. A program of music and recitations was rendered by the children. There were 175 present, besides twenty-six colored children from an orphanage near by, who were invited for the afternoon. A collection for the orphans was taken.—Ressie M. Garber, Staunton, Va., July 12.

Troutville church met in council at the Trinity house July 12, with Eld. C. D. Hylton presiding. One letter was received. Eld. C. D. Hylton and Brethren G. B. Kinzie and W. G. Spigle were elected delegates to District Meeting. Our Harvest Meeting will be held July 20 at Troutville. An offering will be lifted for District mission work.—Frankie Showalter, Troutville, Va., July 14.

WASHINGTON

Seattle church met in council June 30, with Bro. Hiner presiding. Bro. Hiner was reelected elder for the next six months. Two delegates were elected for District Meeting—Brethren Maust and E. J. Cline. We are still without a regular pastor, but hope that the right man will soon be found.—Cora Weimer, Seattle, Wash., July 9.

WEST VIRGINIA

Harman.—We wish to correct an error made by us through a misunderstanding. Our series of meetings will begin Sept. 6 instead of 13, and our love feast will be Sept. 20 instead of 27.—Nettie Harman, Harman, W. Va., July 7.

Pleasant Valley.—A very enthusiastic Bible Institute was held June 7-15 by Bro. Obed Hamstead and daughter, Mary, of Oakland, Md., and Bro. J. B. Shaffer, of Barbour County, W. Va. Sister Hamstead conducted a song service each evening. A very interesting program was rendered each night. A large crowd was present each day, and all enjoyed themselves. The brethren delivered splendid sermons each evening. Two accepted Christ and one was added to the church.—Mary Bonnie Auburn, W. Va., July 14.

Tear Brother Jonas Flory, of Eglon, W. Va., came to our church June 14 and began a series of meetings which lasted until June 29, preaching, in all, fifteen sermons. There were no additions to the church, but these sermons were a spiritual uplift to the church. On Saturday evening, June 28, our communion services were held. On the following Sunday morning Bro. Fike preached an excellent sermon, followed by an installation service. Our Sunday-school is increasing nicely, with Bro. E. D. Combs as superintendent. —Mabel Wolford, Augusta, W. Va., July 14.

Union Chapel congregation met in council June 28, with Bro. W. R. Murphy, of Moatsville, W. Va., as moderator. Four ministers were elected: Brethren Jesse Shahan, Earl Fike, Ira F. Poling and the writer; also four deacons: Brethren Walt Nestor, S. Poling, Reed Nestor and Francis Poling. With their wives they were installed into their respective offices. Five were baptized and received into the church previous to the council meeting. Brethren G. E. Shahan and Noah Fike were elected delegates to District Meeting, with Brethren Jas. Shahan and Ira F. Poling, alternates. Our church is increasing in membership and much interest has been manifested in church and Sunday-school work within the last few months.—Nelson A. Williams, St. George, W. Va., July 10.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

July 30-August 1, First District of Virginia, Selma church.

August 5-7, District of Washington, at Olympia.

August 18-21, District of Oregon, at Portland.

August 21, District of N. and S. Carolina, Ga. and Fla., Brummett Creek church, Mitchell Co., N. C.

August 28, District of Southern Indiana, at Rossville church.

August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.

August 30-Sept. 1, District of N. Ill. and Wisconsin, Camp Grounds, Lena, Ill.

Oct. 7-9, District of Northern Iowa, Minnesota and S. Dak., at Lewiston, Minn.

LOVE FEASTS

Indiana

August 24, Ladoga.

August 30, New Salem.

Iowa

August 29, Libertyville.

Missouri

August 23, 7 pm, Prairie View.

North Dakota

July 26, 7 pm, Kenmare.

July 26, Golden Willow.

Ohio

August 2, 6 pm, Sugar Creek, Bunker Hill house.

Pennsylvania

August 16, Indian Creek, County Line house.

Virginia

August 23, Lebanon.

West Virginia

August 23, Bean Settlement.

August 30, Maple Spring.

MILLENNIUM COMING!

Book Title, "Age-Ending." 114 pages. Showing by Prophecies and Revelation how the Millennium will come; 50 cents, postpaid. All orders to Michael Montgomery, the author, Fairview, Mo.

The Full Report of Annual Meeting

This year of all years you will want the Full Report. The business was important and the Conference program of special meetings was unusually strong. The Full Report will bring you inspiration as well as information. Be sure and get your copy either from your "Messenger" agent or direct from us. Per copy, postpaid, 35c.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Have you decided to get that schooling next year?

You will need it if you are planning for life work in any of these lines:

Ministry — Teaching
Mission Work
Farming — Business

In fact, whatever your life plans may be, whether along religious or secular lines, you will find it most helpful to have a better education. Now is the time to so decide.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE
Mount Morris, Illinois

Useful and Handy BOOKS!

Handy Atlas of the World, ...50c

Find the place on the map! You need not guess where places are. Get our Handy Atlas of the World containing about 90 maps of the States and the principal countries of the world. Handy in size, 6x8 inches. Only a few dozen left at 50c each.

Ropp's Commercial Calculator

Indispensable for figuring interest, prices on grain, cattle, wages, etc. Besides interest and price tables the book explains numerous problems in mechanics and mensuration. Price: Pocket edition, leather, 50c; Office edition, cloth, $1.00.

How to Get That Position, ...35c

Of course you want to get ahead. Perhaps you are not just sure of the best way to proceed. If not, read How to Get That Position; it discusses 1,000 and one ways to find, apply and land your best job. The book will be the best investment you ever made.

Making the Farm Pay, ...$1.10

This splendid book tells how to get the biggest returns from the soil and at the same time make farm life more attractive and successful.

A wide range of farming opportunities is discussed. A few chapter headings will suggest the scope of the book:

The Modern Farmer's Opportunity.
Learn How to Go Back to the Land.
Avoid the Single Farming Interest.
Making a Dairy Farm Pay.
Irrigation by Wells.
Pin Money in Pickles.
Farm Bookkeeping.
Winter Egg Production.

Success With Hens, ...$1.10

Robert Joos

An up-to-date and practical poultry guide written by an expert. The fifty-five chapters of the book cover every phase of the poultry business from the hatching and care of chicks to the sale of eggs and fowls. Nothing but proven methods are given. A great boon to the skiller poultryman as well as to beginners.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

MILLENNIUM COMING!

Book Title, "Age-Ending," 114 pages. Showing by Prophecies and Revelation how the Millennium will come; 50 cents, postpaid. All orders to Michael Montgomery, the author, Fairview, Mo.

The Full Report of Annual Meeting

This year of all years you will want the Full Report. The business was important and the Conference program of special meetings was unusually strong. The Full Report will bring you inspiration as well as information. Be sure and get your copy either from your "Messenger" agent or direct from us. Per copy, postpaid, 35c.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Have you decided to get that schooling next year?

You will need it if you are planning for life work in any of these lines:

Ministry Teaching
Mission Work
Farming Business

In fact, whatever your life plans may be, whether along religious or secular lines, you will find it most helpful to have a better education. Now is the time to so decide.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE
Mount Morris, Illinois

Useful and Handy BOOKS!

Handy Atlas of the World, ...50c

Find the place on the map! You need not guess where places are. Get our Handy Atlas of the World containing about 90 maps of the States and the principal countries of the world. Handy in size, 6x8 inches. Only a few dozen left at 50c each.

Ropp's Commercial Calculator

Indispensable for figuring interest, prices on grain, cattle, wages, etc. Besides interest and price tables the book explains numerous problems in mechanics and mensuration. Price: Pocket edition, leather, 50c; Office edition, cloth, $1.00.

How to Get That Position, ...35c

Of course you want to get ahead. Perhaps you are not just sure of the best way to proceed. If not, read How to Get That Position; it discusses 1,000 and one ways to find, apply and land your best job. The book will be the best investment you ever made.

Making the Farm Pay, ...$1.10

This splendid book tells how to get the biggest returns from the soil and at the same time make farm life more attractive and successful.

A wide range of farming opportunities is discussed. A few chapter headings will suggest the scope of the book:

The Modern Farmer's Opportunity.
Learn How to Go Back to the Land.
Avoid the Single Farming Interest.
Making a Dairy Farm Pay.
Irrigation by Wells.
Pin Money in Pickles.
Farm Bookkeeping.
Winter Egg Production.

Success With Hens, ...$1.10

Robert Ives

THE GOSPEL MES

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., August 2, 1919

In This Number

Editorial—

Things Which Everybody "Accepts," 481
Putting On Christ in Baptism, ...481
Vacation Bible Schools and Religious Education, ...481
The Quiet Hour, ...487
Among the Churches, ...488
Around the World, ...489

Contributors' Forum—

A Call to Pray (Poem), ...482
The Delegate Body of 1919. By J. H. Moore, ...482
Money, Missionaries and Pastors. By Frank N. Sargent, ...482
The Southern Mountaineers.—Number One. By O. F. Helm, ...483
Delegates. By F. F. Holsopple, ...483
The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative.—Part Three. By Chas. M. Yearout, ...484
Love's Transforming Power. By Emma Horning, ...484
The Call of the Homeland. By J. Kurtz Miller, ...485

The Round Table—

A Forgotten Dream. By C. D. Hylton, ...486
"I Am the Light"—"Ye Are the Light." By Norman W. Twiddy, ...486
Knowledge of the Bible. By G. W. Tuttle, ...486
Shall We Know Each Other in Heaven? By Ida M. Helm, ...486
The Wife of the Pastor, ...486
Things Adjusted. By Julia Graydon, ...487
"For Those Who Despitefully Use You." By Roy Temple House, ...487

Home and Family—

Give to the Living (Poem), ...490
After Sarah Graduated. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough, ...490

...EDITORIAL...

Things Which Everybody "Accepts"

WHY should we spend so much time preaching and writing about faith and love and spiritual life—things which everybody accepts? Should we not rather give our chief attention to matters in controversy? This is the substance of a brother's inquiry.

Things which everybody "accepts"? There's the hidden mischief, exactly. It is because everybody theoretically accepts these great fundamentals without realizing what they involve. It is because "the greatest of these is love." It is because "faith working through love" is what avails in Christ Jesus. It is because Jesus "came that they may have life" and we do not know what life means. These are the big things of the Gospel, these are the heart of the Gospel message, these are what the New Testament itself deals with so largely, and yet we have hardly begun to understand them.

It is because direct argument about the "controverted points" can not amount to very much until we know the New Testament meaning of such things as faith, love and life. This is why, while we continue to give some attention to the other matters, the emphasis must be kept so strongly on these fundamental things.

Putting On Christ in Baptism

"For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ."

THAT is certainly reassuring, provided you were really baptized into Christ, and provided also you have not put Christ off since you were baptized. But why do you think you were baptized into Christ?

Is it because the words were repeated over you? That ought to have helped much. The solemn formula with your own solemn confession and pledge and the solemnity of the sacred rite itself—all this, open and before the world, was a powerful challenge to sincerity and faith. In that fact lay the value of your baptism. For the final test of its validity, its power to help you

Vacation Bible Schools a

Do you know what a Vacation Bible School is? Never heard of it? Well, in the first place it's an actually existing fact right now down in the good old State of Virginia. In the second place, it is one of the newest of a number of new signs that the Church of the Brethren is about to enter upon a new era of usefulness in the extension of the Kingdom.

It may seem a little strange to some readers that this new thing should have happened in Virginia rather than in Kansas or California, but the West must not think it has a monopoly of new ideas. The conservative East can start something too sometimes.

You may remember that one of the good things the late Conference did was the authorizing of the General Sunday School Board to organize its field for more effective work by grouping the State Districts into larger Divisions. One of the Board's ideas, in making this recommendation, was that these Divisions would then be large enough to justify it in employing for each one, so far as possible, a Director of Religious Education to coöperate with the District Secretaries and inspire the workers everywhere with a wider vision of the possibilities before them.

This action is of great significance. It looks ahead. Taken in connection with the Vacation Bible School movement, it shows that our Sunday School Board is thinking of its field in larger terms than we have been associating with the conventional Sunday-school idea. It is talking more and more about religious education and that is too big a subject to be kept within the Sunday-school. You see there are not enough Sundays in a year to do all the religious educating that is needed. So the Sunday-school is spilling over into the week-days.

Bro. Minor C. Miller, of the Second District of Virginia, is the Board's Director of Religious Education for one of these newly-formed Divisions. He has been telling his people about the Vacation Bible School and with such success that several churches decided to try it out. That is how they are spending some of these nice warm days. Perhaps you are wondering what kind of talk Bro. Miller put up to those Virginia folks, that he got them so stirred up. Just to satisfy your curiosity we are going to let him talk some of it to you:

"The Vacation Bible School is not a new movement. Several different types of Vacation Bible Schools have been conducted in different parts of the country for the past twenty years. Most of these schools have been held in cities, but during the last several years a number of schools have been held in rural churches all over the country. While this is true, in the Church of the Brethren the Vacation Bible School is a new thing.

"We have had special Bible Institutes and lectures in many of our churches, but these schools have been for adults, and were not planned or conducted as real schools of religion where the Bible could be taught systematically to all grades of children. While it is true we have never conducted this type of schools, our church has always stood for thorough Bible knowledge. It may be that we have not provided the means of giving this thorough Bible knowledge as we should have done. In fact, we have done very little in an organized way to teach our children the things for which our church has stood.

"No one feels that the present amount of Bible instruction given in the Sunday-school is adequate to the

A. The best Sunday-schools do not give more than about twenty-six hours of class room instruction in one year.

Q. How much class room instruction will be given in the two weeks' term of the Vacation Bible School?

A. Each pupil will receive about thirty hours of class room instruction in the two weeks.

Q. Will this school be of any special advantage to the Sunday-school?

A. Yes. Its high school department supplies a splendid course of teacher training, and the whole school furnishes a fine example of graded religious instruction.

Well, it looks like the Vacation Bible School is a real school, doesn't it? It is, differing from the usual day school only "in the subjects taught." Does it strike you as a good thing? In our opinion it is a good thing far beyond its possibilities in immediate results. Lasting only two weeks, these possibilities are very modest indeed, but enough, perhaps, to serve as a valuable experiment. But our present interest in it is due to its symbolic, quite as much as to its intrinsic, value.

It is a mark of the new spirit which is taking hold of the church—the new interest in constructive things. It shows we are getting ready to attack our problems at the right end. We are getting the measure of our task. We see what our real work is and are making up our minds to go after it in earnest.

We are entering a great age of reconstruction in world history—the greatest ever known. What a privilege it is to be alive and have a part, however humble, in these epoch-marking undertakings! These are the days that coming generations will look back to with wonder, trying to picture how wonderful it must have been to live in such days! And here we are, right in the midst of them and do not know it! God grant us the vision, faith and courage to do a man's part in them!

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

A Call to Pray

I cannot tell why there should come to me
A thought of some one miles and years away,
In swift insistence on the memory,
Unless there be a need that I should pray.

Old friends are far away; we seldom meet
To talk of Jesus or changes day by day,
Of pain, pleasure, triumph or defeat,
Or special reasons why 'tis time to pray.

We are too busy even to spend thought,
For days together, of some friends away;
Perhaps God does it for us, and we ought
To read his signal as a call to pray.

Perhaps just then my friend has fiercer fight,
A more appalling weakness or decay
Of courage, darkness, some lost sense of right
And so in case you need my prayer, I pray.

Dear, do the same for me: If I intrude
Unasked upon you, on some crowded day,
Give me a moment's prayer as interlude;
Be sure I need it, therefore pray.

The Delegate Body of 1919

BY J. H. MOORE

We have been studying the tabulated report of the delegates, chosen to represent the churches at the Winona Conference. In the number of delegates, the Conference exceeds any Annual Meeting ever held in the Brotherhood, and yet probably not more than half of the churches were represented.

We notice that of the 580 delegates more than two-thirds of them came from four States, viz., Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio and Indiana. With the members of the Standing Committee from these States voting with them, the delegates from the four States could have decided every question before the Conference. If our people were as selfishly disposed as are the political parties of the land, how easy it would be for a few States to ignore the wishes of all the rest of the Brotherhood!

We further notice that more than two-thirds of the delegates were elders, and that these, along with the elders composing the Standing Committee, could easily have dominated the Conference from start to finish. They had it in their power to apply the devices of priestcraft to every paper or question sent to the meeting. Now and then one, who does not know what he is talking about, accuses the elders of directing the entire policy of the church. They are charged with voting together and deciding matters according to their own notions. Here was a case in which they could have done this very thing, and yet refused to do it, showing that they have no disposition whatever to abuse their power.

Those who will give a little thought to the subject, as we are considering it, can understand what an easy matter it would be to make an episcopal gathering of our delegated body, that is, a body with the ruling power invested in bishops. Such a condition could be brought about almost unconsciously, and needs only a few conniving heads to create a very unpleasant condition.

The eldership representation has gradually grown into its present condition since 1897, at which time out of the 239 delegates present only 93 were elders, while 122 were ministers not ordained. The next year there were 136 elders and since then, with now and then an exception, the number has been moving up, and it remains to be seen whether this increase in the eldership representation is to continue.

While this might be so construed as to point to the time when the elders will decide all matters at our General Conference, still we are so thoroughly democratic in our method of church government that such an unfortunate condition is not likely to overtake our people. It has long been our policy for all of us to work together for the good of each, and in the rank and file of the Brotherhood there is no disposition whatever to turn Conference authority over to a class delegation. To do so would mean not only episcopacy, but priesthood and autocracy in the end.

For our Conferences there is no safer and wiser policy than a mixed delegation, composed of elders, ministers not ordained, deacons, laity—brethren and sisters. The Winona Lake Conference was short on the laity delegation, unless we count the 69 sisters in with the nine from the laity, making 79. While there is no way of providing for a nice balancing for the delegation, still we can and should encourage the sending of more deacons and laity. If we mean to get the laity more thoroughly interested in every department of our church work, we must see to it that this part of the membership has a stronger representation in our Conference deliberations.

Sebring, Fla.

Money, Missionaries and Pastors

BY FRANK N. SARGENT

At the present time, when people in every line of activity are endeavoring to obtain a maximum amount of efficiency, in order to realize greater results, it seems opportune to ask: "What more can we, as a people, do than we are doing?"

Recently I asked a number of people who think, "What is the greatest need in the church?" In reply I received nearly as many different answers as I had asked questions. Some suggested consecration, others teaching, and still others vision. These are, without question, of great importance, but they are quite general in their application.

Some think that this is a time when only big things are to be done. The temptation is, to effect an organization with the special aim of raising money on the mob psychology plan, with expert business men as organizers.

No sane person questions the need of doing big things, and that there is also need of better organization, with Christian business men to help, but any organization for the advancement of the Kingdom that does not include the oil of the Holy Spirit, for running its machinery, will soon burn out, and will have proved a hindrance rather than a help to the cause.

Money is needed for mission work at home and on the foreign field. Suffering humanity is pulling at our purse-strings as never before. Our educational institutions stand greatly in need of better equipment. What a pity that for the lack of the needed funds these important activities must suffer!

Ten years ago the Christian churches were on their knees, praying for the hearts of the heathen to be opened, and God has marvelously answered those prayers, for there never was a time when greater opportunities were presented to reap a large harvest of souls on the mission field than now. Think of the millions we might be able to reach, in a few years, if we only had the missionaries.

The great question before the church is: "How can we meet this need and obtain the means and workers, and, at the same time, make the church stronger for doing it?"

Much can be accomplished by missionary secretaries traveling among the churches, and by inspiration that is given in our schools, as well as at District and Annual Meetings, but the real problem must be solved through the local church.

When we consider the needs of the local church, we are compelled to admit that the paramount issue is the home life of its constituency, for no society can possibly rise above the level of its home life.

The pastor is the greatest factor through which we will be able to reach the home and make it what it should be. Christianity in the majority of our homes is far from ideal. I have been in nearly a thousand homes during the last two years and I find few of them that have family worship, and a still smaller number who take time to teach their children the Bible in the home.

The parents are first of all responsible for the large leakage of the young people from our church, but the pastor is the greatest factor through which we can reach the parents.

The pastoral problem is the greatest issue before our people at the present time, for when we solve it we have answered the call for money and missionaries, as well as all other needs.

When we consider the work of our foreign missionaries, with all the hardships and almost insurmountable obstacles to overcome, we say that the task calls for our best talent. And it does, but it also calls for men of equal if not greater strength of character and singleness of purpose to succeed in pastoral work in the home field.

When a foreign missionary leaves his homeland and goes to his chosen field of labor, he is, in a large measure, separated from many of the temptations that the pastor is compelled to face.

It is also true that the worker on the mission field has some temptations that the home man does not have.

I am convinced that the large measure of success, obtained by our foreign workers, is not due to their superiority, but rather to the concentration of their efforts on the one purpose, this being possible largely because of the absence of other interests.

Why should we not enjoy the same degree of success in the pastoral work of the home church as is experienced by the missionary?

It is possible, but the fact that we do not, leads me to believe that it is more difficult to hold strictly to the one purpose in the home environment than on the foreign field.

My experience, visiting among the churches, convinces me that it takes a big man to be satisfied with a support, and not to be drawn into the whirlpool of commercialism. I might mention a number of strong men who have given up entirely, or in part, the pastoral work, and are giving their time to making money.

I recently visited such a pastor, and while we were feeding the swine, I noticed a look of concern on his face as he remarked that one of his fine hogs was missing, and he started to search for it. I asked him what he would do if, on Sunday morning, when he arrived at church, he would discover that one of his flock was missing. He saw the point and admitted that they should be worth as much as the hogs.

Divided interest is not the only obstacle that interferes with the pastor's success. Many would-be pastors are unable to do personal work, "hence they are trying to get by with simply doing the preaching" and the church is the loser.

What should we expect of a pastor? A pastor who takes a charge and is satisfied with simply an increased attendance and offering, and a few converts during the

Ten years ago the Christian churches were on their ees, praying for the hearts of the heathen to be ened, and God has marvelously answered those nyers, for there never was a time when greater op- rtunities were presented to reap a large harvest of uls on the mission field than now. Think of the mil- ns we might be able to reach, in a few years, if we ly had the missionaries.

The great question before the church is: "How n we meet this need and obtain the means and work- s, and, at the same time, make the church stronger r doing it?"

Much can be accomplished by missionary secretaries veling among the churches, and by inspiration that given in our schools, as well as at District and nnual Meetings, but the real problem must be solved rough the local church.

When we consider the needs of the local church, we e compelled to admit that the paramount issue is the ne life of its constituency, for no society can possi- rise above the level of its home life.

The pastor is the greatest factor through which we ll be able to reach the home and make it what it ould be. Christianity in the majority of our homes far from ideal. I have been in nearly a thousand mes during the last two years and I find few of them at have family worship, and a still smaller number no take time to teach their children the Bible in the me.

The parents are first of all responsible for the large kkage of the young people from our church, but the stor is the greatest factor through which we can ach the parents.

The pastoral problem is the greatest issue before r people at the present time, for when we solve it we ve answered the call for money and missionaries, as ell as all other needs.

When we consider the work of our foreign mission- ies, with all the hardships and almost insurmountable stacles to overcome, we say that the task calls for r best talent. And it does, but it also calls for men equal if not greater strength of character and ngleness of purpose to succeed in pastoral work in the me field:

When a foreign missionary leaves his homeland and es to his chosen field of labor, he is, in a large meas- e, separated from many of the temptations that the stor is compelled to face.

It is also true that the worker on the mission field s some temptations that the home man does not have.

I am convinced that the large measure of success, tained by our foreign workers, is not due to their periority, but rather to the concentration of their forts on the one purpose, this being possible largely cause of the absence of other interests.

Why should we not enjoy the same degree of suc- ss in the pastoral work of the home church as is perienced by the missionary?

It is possible, but the fact that we do not, leads me believe that it is more difficult to hold strictly to the ne purpose in the home environment than on the for- gn field.

My experience, visiting among the churches, con- inces me that it takes a big man to be satisfied with support, and not to be drawn into the whirlpool of ommercialism. I might mention a number of strong en who have given up entirely, or in part, the pastoral ork, and are giving their time to making money.

I recently visited such a pastor, and while we were eeding the swine, I noticed a look of concern on his ace as he remarked that one of his fine hogs was issing, and he started to search for it. I asked him hat he would do if, on Sunday morning, when he rrived at church, he would discover that one of his lock was missing. He saw the point and admitted that hey should be worth as much as the hogs.

yearly revival, without getting into the homes to do personal work and to teach his people outside of the pulpit, is not a success in any large degree. When I speak of the pastor giving his time to the Lord's work in this way, it is understood that the church is to give him a full support.

While a pastor is supposed to be a leader and organizer, he is also to be a servant of the church, and is expected to give his entire time to the thought of making the church all that it should be. He should not make himself objectionable by making his calls in the homes too frequently, but he should be thoroughly acquainted with the home life of his parish. Otherwise he can not give them the spiritual food they need for proper growth. What would we think of a doctor that would prescribe for a patient without diagnosing the case?

The pastor has an opportunity which is second to none to help our young people. If he is on proper terms with them, they will come to him with their problems and will appreciate very much his coöperation in helping them to decide what their life-work shall be.

Can you measure the meaning to the majority of our churches, if a consecrated pastor, with his devoted companion, were to get into the homes of the membership and by personal work raise the standard of the home to where there would be a family altar in every home, and every one giving on a systematic basis?

There would be ample means to go ahead with the Forward Movement. There would be no lack of young people to prepare for the ministry, mission field, and other lines of Christian effort.

Funds would be forthcoming to support our educational institutions and other missionary activities.

With this plan working, we would be cultivating the plant (the church) that produces the fruit for service, instead of plucking the fruit before it is ripe for service. With the proper cultivation the plant will supply all our needs.

What I have said, should not discourage weak churches that are not able to reach this ideal at present. I have endeavored to show that we need money and missionaries, but that our greatest need is consecrated, efficient pastors.

Chicago, Ill.

The Southern Mountaineers

BY O. F. HELM

Number One

ONE of the most interesting parts of the United States is the Southern Appalachian Mountain region. The entire southern mountain country, together with the hill country immediately adjoining it, is twice as large as all New England. It is larger than England, Wales and Scotland together. It is about 600 miles long and averages 200 miles in breadth. Its population is about four and a quarter millions. It embraces an area of 101,880 square miles. Those portions of the Appalachian system which lie in the Northern States are less isolated and have partaken more of the life about them; but from Southern Virginia to Georgia and Alabama the broad extent of mountain and plateau has kept the mountaineer separate from the outside world until he has become a distinct type of American.

This section is rich in natural resources. It has vast deposits of iron ore and coal. The climate is genial and the soil well adapted to a large variety of fruits and field crops.

The people of this section are almost wholly the descendants of the English, Scotch, Scotch-Irish and French Huguenots, who settled in America before the Revolutionary War. They are a hearty, courageous, self-reliant people. Their manner of living is largely the result of the hardships imposed on them by their of their own—a world dominated largely by ignorance, vice and crime.

This section has large forests of hardwood and pine, excellent water power, rich mines of zinc and copper, large quarries of marble, granite and other building stones, clay material for concrete, and other raw materials for the most important and valuable standard manufactured products. In nearly all this section the doors to these rich treasures have never been opened, and therefore these great stores of wealth are of no benefit to the mountaineer. I firmly believe that some day this will be one of the wealthiest and most prosperous sections of the United States and that these people will become a part of the great world about them.

But when will that time be? That time will come only after years of faithful and earnest work by Christian teachers—teachers and ministers who, by their earnest, consecrated lives, will make them intelligent about the life they live, the nobility of labor, their duty toward their fellow-man and above all, teachers who will point out the way that leads to everlasting life. Then, and then only, will this land be a desirable place for people who want to live where life and property are safe from the hands of angry mobs and where feuds no longer exist. It is true that the feud was transported from Scotland with the first settlers, and it is a form of punishment or vengeance naturally brought about by the conditions of mountain isolation.

A Home in the Appalachian Mountains

As is well known the first settlers who filled the mountains were Protestant in religion. The mountaineer holds in perfect abhorrence the very name Catholic. As far as I am able to learn, it is an inheritance from their popery-hating fathers. English Dissenters and Scotch Presbyterians, who had fought papacy along with tyranny in the old country, first settled in the southern mountains. The religious movement of the early nineteenth century left the mountain church Baptist and Methodist—more largely Baptist.

Since the Civil War, however, these two denominations have been able to reach but a small portion of the mountaineers and only recently have they taken up the work to any extent. As the first settlers in the mountains were largely Presbyterians, I had often wondered why the church of the greatest numbers and influence is Baptist and not Presbyterian. I have learned, however, that it is because the Presbyterians demanded an educated ministry. This being true, it could not supply ministers enough to reach the rapidly-growing and scattered population. Thus the mountaineers were left largely without the help of ministers and teachers and too frequently large communities lapsed into irreligion and ignorance. Those who could read often lacked books for their children, who grew up with no learning but that of the woods and fields. As a result of this, these rough mountaineers grew impatient with the formal and polished Presbyterian service, and Presbyterianism then tended either to become modified in form or to be driven from the field by the simpler Baptist form of worship. Not infrequently parents, for lack of opportunity, or stress of living conditions, leave their children wholly illiterate. Many of these children, if given an opportunity, would make useful men and women.

Edison, Ga.

terion to judge his fitness, his activity, his character, his interest in the business of the church and his judgment in all the affairs of life, and although none of these things are open to the Credential Committee, yet the committee makes the final decision as to his fitness to act as a delegate. Are his clothes right? If so he passes. Is it sufficient evidence that he is fit to represent if his clothes are of the right pattern? Or, contrariwise, if the pattern is wrong, are all the other qualifications of the man, as his home church knows him, to go for naught? Of course he may, under some Committees, represent if he makes certain promises. These things may mean much or little in his home church, but he must promise if he is to "get through." It would be interesting to have the experiences of a conscientious committeeman on this point.

The Right of the Church to Select Her Delegates

Many churches in our Brotherhood today do not have the privilege of really selecting their own delegates to District or Annual Conferences. This is a startling statement and will be challenged by some as lacking in fact. That they hold an election, is true, but it is almost always formal. It is a foregone conclusion that the election of delegates must lie between a very small number of the church membership because there are only a few who can "qualify" before the Credential Committee. By long experience the churches have learned that they dare not send their most active members if they want to have them "accepted" as delegates. It is by no means enough if they have been duly elected and sent by their church and properly certified. That will not insure their permission to represent. They must meet "specifications" that have little relation to the home congregation, under which specifications the Credential Committee acts.

Some of our brethren have been wondering why there has been, in past years, such an apparent and growing indifference to the rulings of our delegate bodies. The reason is not difficult to find. These bodies are no longer representative of the churches sending them, but of Credential Committee rules that did not originate in the church that seeks representation at all. The rules under which these Committees act were not made by representative bodies, but by groups selected under the same restrictions that they in turn impose.

Any reasoning that will come to the conclusion that our church today has democratic or representative government is clearly at fault. It belongs to the type which hereafter will pass under the classification as "The German Mind."

There is a way to remedy this gross defect. That is to make our representation truly representative. Any church, that deserves to be recognized as a church, should be trusted to choose the BEST men or women she may have, as representatives. When they are thus selected and sent, then let the Credential Committees examine their credentials and on the correctness of these credentials seat them in the Conference. This will give us a truly representative body, and their rulings will be respected by those who have vested them with authority. Let us move forward in this vital matter!

New Windsor, Md.

The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative

BY CHAS. M. YEAROUT

Part Three

"And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (Isa. 2: 3). "He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for his law" (Isa. 42: 4).

THE Gospel—glad tidings, or good news—is no less the law of God than were the five books of Moses. It is God's magnified, perfected law of salvation. It is made up of doctrines, precepts, counsel, commandments and injunctions. It has all the force and power behind it that the Mount Sinai law had. The doctrine and teachings of the Gospel are just as imperative and binding upon the followers of Christ as were the Ten Commandments upon Israel of old.

For God hath said: "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him" (Deut. 18: 18). "Whosoever will not hear this prophet [Christ] shall be destroyed from among the people." Death was the penalty for a violation of the Decalogue, and death is the penalty for a refusal to hear and obey the Gospel, as delivered by Christ. We are living in a liberal age—an age of weak knees and compromise—but the children of God have no authority to compromise one jot or tittle of Gospel truth. For God is jealous of his Word and will recognize no compromise, but will shut out of his Kingdom those who make compromises.

The language of David is very applicable to the Gospel: "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward" (Psa. 19: 7-11).

By obedience to the Gospel the sinner is cleansed from sin and its polluting influences; and is purified and sanctified and made meet for the Master's divine service. There are no other elements or means on the earth that can accomplish this. All human creeds and doctrines fall far short of salvation. "As well might the leopard change his spots, the Ethiopian wash out the blackness of his skin, as a sinner save himself from sin."

The Christian religion is a practical, experimental religion, but in order to have the experience, practice must precede it. For example: Jesus says, in speaking of feet-washing and the Lord's supper: "If ye know these things happy [or blessed] are ye if ye do them." How can one experience this happiness or blessedness without complying with the condition upon which it is promised? "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God." Comply with the conditions, and the promises will follow, and by this we shall know and prove the Word of the Lord as being true. But until we put it to a practical test, we have no personal demonstration of its truthfulness. "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." Obedience here opens the gates into the beautiful city; while disobedience closes the gates, and bars admission to the glories and blessedness of the New Jerusalem.

The Immutability of the Gospel

"Wherein God, willing more abundantly to show unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath: that by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us" (Heb. 6: 17, 18).

The Gospel plan of salvation is founded upon immutable law, unchangeable and unalterable, and will stand and remain in force when heaven and earth have passed away. It will be the standard of judgment in the great and coming day, when all people who have lived under the Gospel dispensation shall appear before the Judge, and have their lives measured by the principles of eternal truth, as contained in the New Testament. Those who have yielded to its teachings and have obeyed from the heart its commandments, will hear the Judge proclaim: "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord." But those who have been disobedient and contended that a large part of the teachings of Christ and the apostles was nonessential, will hear the Judge sternly command: "Depart from me, ye that work iniquity: I know you not." Notwithstanding their boastful claims of serving the Lord they will be cast out.

Obey the Gospel and be saved. Disobey it and be lost. "Though he, Christ, were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered, and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Heb. 5: 8, 9). Outside of obedience there is no salvation. Not the hearers, but the doers of the Word shall be saved. Then "receive with meekness the engrafted word which is able to save your soul. But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves" (James 1: 21, 22). "Be not deceived, God is not mocked."

The metes and bounds of the Gospel have been established by the Great Architect of the universe. "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, if any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: and if any man shall take away from the words of the prophecy of this book, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book" (Rev. 22: 18, 19). The Scriptures are very specific and clear. In the New Testament we have the mind and will of God revealed, and we manifest our love and reverence for him by humble submission to the same. When Christ comes to earth again "he will take vengeance on them that know not God and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and the glory of his power, when he comes to be glorified in all his saints" (1 Thess. 1: 7-10).

Berthoud, Colo.

Love's Transforming Power

BY EMMA HORNING

LOVE drew Jesus from the wonderful courts of heaven to minister to the sad, the lonely, the oppressed and the sinners. Love draws the missionary away from his comfortable home, friends and loved ones to minister to the lost ones in far-away lands. At first everything seems so trying, yes, everything seems so different—dirt, sin, superstition and idolatry everywhere. At first the immensity of the undertaking overwhelms us. The density of the sins and sorrows makes us sick and dizzy. How can we cope with such overwhelming difficulties?

But as we work and live among the people, a wonderful love seizes our hearts. Love transforms the thousands of problems into glorious visions. The dense ignorance and sins of the people, the awful dirt and filth of the streets, the untold sorrows and sufferings of the women and children—these are the problems with which we wrestle, this is the atmosphere in which we live. These thoughts leave us neither night nor day. They penetrate the depths of our souls. They are bathed in prayers and tears, until the awful reality is clothed in wonderful visions of the future—towers which glitter and shine in the glorious light of God's promises.

See the hundreds of street children with dirty faces, dirty noses, dirty clothing or no clothing, underfed bodies and untrained minds! How can you love them? O, just live with them several years and all is changed. Every time you go on the street, each corner you turn, each village you enter, you are met by hundreds of smiles and sweet greetings. You forget the dirt and smells, for their smiles have won your heart. You see, in the depths of their bright, dark eyes, wonderful visions. They are the material of the future kindergartens—hundreds of clean, trained children preparing for the higher school work. They are the thousands of Sunday-school children singing hymns of praise and learning the beautiful Bible stories. In them we see the foundation of the future church which will mould the community in the years to come. Love forgets the dirt of the present, and looks at the ideal of the future till the present is changed into the future.

arge part of the teachings of Christ and the apostles vas nonessential, will hear the Judge sternly command: "Depart from me, ye that work iniquity: I know you not." Notwithstanding their boastful claims of serving the Lord they will be cast out.

Obey the Gospel and be saved. Disobey it and be ost. "Though he, Christ, were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered, and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Heb. 5: 8, 9). Outside of obedience there is no salvation. Not the hearers, but the doers of the Word shall be saved. Then "receive with meekness the engrafted word which is able to save your soul. But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves" (James 1: 21, 22). "Be not deceived, God is not mocked."

The metes and bounds of the Gospel have been established by the Great Architect of the universe. "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, if any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: and if any man shall take away from the words of the prophecy of this book, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book" (Rev. 22: 18, 19). The Scriptures are very specific and clear. In the New Testament we have the mind and will of God revealed, and we manifest our love and reverence for him by humble submission to the same. When Christ comes to earth again "he will take vengeance on them that know not God and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and the glory of his power, when he comes to be glorified in all his saints" (1 Thess. 1: 7-10).

Berthoud, Colo.

Love's Transforming Power

BY EMMA HORNING

Love drew Jesus from the wonderful courts of heaven to minister to the sad, the lonely, the oppressed and the sinners. Love draws the missionary away from his comfortable home, friends and loved ones to minister to the lost ones in far-away lands. At first everything seems so trying, yes, everything seems so different—dirt, sin, superstition and idolatry everywhere. At first the immensity of the undertaking overwhelms us. The density of the sins and sorrows makes us sick and dizzy. How can we cope with such overwhelming difficulties?

But as we work and live among the people, a wonderful love seizes our hearts. Love transforms the thousands of problems into glorious visions. The dense ignorance and sins of the people, the awful dirt and filth of the streets, the untold sorrows and sufferings of the women and children—these are the problems with which we wrestle, this is the atmosphere in which we live. These thoughts leave us neither night nor day. They penetrate the depths of our souls. They are bathed in prayers and tears, until the awful reality is clothed in wonderful visions of the future—towers which glitter and shine in the glorious light of God's promises.

See the hundreds of street children with dirty faces, dirty noses, dirty clothing or no clothing, underfed bodies and untrained minds! How can you love them? O, just live with them several years and all is changed. Every time you go on the street, each corner you turn, each village you enter, you are met by hundreds of smiles and sweet greetings. You forget the dirt and smells, for their smiles have won your heart. You see, in the depths of their bright, dark eyes, wonderful visions. They are the material of the future kinder-

Enter the hundreds of homes where the best room is not as clean as our barns at home. The women smoke till the very breath is tobacco or opium. You know that their bodies, beds, and walls are full of the crawling, creeping things that should not be there. The smells make you hold your breath and you know disease germs fill the air. But as you enter and feel their hearty welcome, you forget all the objectionable in the overcoming love. You sit down and teach them by the hour and love their dirty children till they seem a part of yourself. Why? Love has visions of transformation. You see these places changed into clean Christian homes, training Christian children for God and the community. In the old women and widows you see the future Bible women going from home to home, spreading abroad God's love throughout the city, or going from village to village, starting fires of love all over the District, till the fires of purification and regeneration shall spread to every home.

Enter the hundreds of temples around you! See the thousands of gods covered with dust! The temples are not cared for any better than the homes, but they are the best architecture of China, and they occupy the best land. At ordinary times, few people worship the gods here, but about once a year the gods of each temple are given a theatrical, when much money is spent and hundreds of people come and look on. The temple seems a very necessary part of the community, though giving no returns. Our vision again transforms these useless places into centers of usefulness for the community. Some are already being used for schools. But we see the time when they will be transformed into hundreds of schools. Then the unoccupied courts will be turned into playgrounds for the children who now have to play in the dirty streets. Then others will be changed into reading rooms for the education of the public, and the recreation of the young people, and, above all, when many of them will be changed to churches where they will worship the true God.

"The vision the heart sees is the pattern by which God works." May our visions grow till they are transformed into the reality! May we love these people till the dirt and smells are changed into cleanliness and sweetness! May we love them till their temples and shrines are changed into schools and churches, till their ignorance and superstition are changed into knowledge and wisdom, and till their sorrows and sins are changed to joy and purity.

Ping Ting Chou, China.

The Call of the Homeland

BY J. KURTZ MILLER

In John 4: 35 you will find the words of my choice, as an introduction and basis of this address: "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields."

There must first be vision, before there can be a definite call. And when the call is IMPERATIVE, it lays upon our shoulders a SUPREME TASK.

President Wilson had a vision of "world democracy," and the resources of our land were placed in his hands to accomplish the world task. Today a Greater than Pres. Wilson calls, and the task is infinitely greater than "making the world safe for democracy."

The crux of the call is to bring the soul to God! How can this prodigal world be won for Jesus Christ? How can it be turned into the one great pathway which leads back home to God, the Father? To say the least, the task abounds with difficulties! But since "difficulty is the very atmosphere of miracle," and since we have an unperplexed and undismayed Savior, who is our Guide, WHAT is there to hinder us, as a church, from accepting the challenge and doing, in our Lord's name, church has a monopoly upon the spiritual life! It is her job to win the lost and to feed the flock. It is her task to develop mighty men for God! If she fails in this, she is not true to her mission. Is the church interpreting the Message of Salvation in a manner which really gives you personal victory over sin? Or do you have just religion enough to be miserable? The low ebb of the spiritual life in some congregations is appalling! Think of a church that has not had a baptism during the past five years! How long will it take the church to win the lost if no one does any more than you are doing? Why should there be more than 30,000 young people in our Sunday-schools, ranging in age from ten to thirty years, but not in the church? Tell me two things: What kind of homes do these young people come from? What kind of Sunday-school teachers do they have? Can it be possible that we have Sunday-school teachers and Sunday-schools and even churches that do not have soul-saving as the chief objective!

2. The Call of the Homeland Is for a Church That Will Hold True to the Faith.

We are exhorted to "earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints." Could you open your Bible and place your finger upon the fundamentals of the Gospel? The new book on "Doctrine and Devotion" will greatly aid to indoctrinate the believer, and fix the heart in fundamental truth. If you are sound on the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, I shall have no fears regarding your testimony. You worship him as the Son of Mary and praise God that he touched your human level, but you also worship him as the Son of God, having Deity. It is our hope that he touched us where we are in human flesh. Then, again, because he is also Deity, therefore we may share, through the faith of the Gospel, his very quality of eternal life in our new-born hearts. This is the work of the Holy Spirit. He plants us upon bed rock truth, and ever leads us onward in the path of devoted service, for no other way leads home but by the way of the cross.

3. The Call of the Homeland Is for a Church That Will Propagate the Faith.

We have a great Gospel to preach. We also have some great hymns to sing. These two go hand in hand. We, as Christians, owe a great obligation to our Lord for salvation. There is only one way to discharge our obligation, and that is in being a channel through which the Gospel passes to the unsaved. It is a great thing to be a medium of exchange in the hands of our Lord. The real Christian lives the life of a "sent" one. If he can not go in person, he prays for missions and gives as the Lord prospers him. When we read our high calling aright, love for Christ compels us to represent him to the unsaved about us, for a real Christian MUST be a witness.

Our Heavenly Father has given unto us eternal life. We received it! This was the first relationship, and is the first relationship of all children. They receive daily what the Father gives. But as soon as the child can begin to return labor, the wise Father sets the child to work. In time the dutiful son has his Father's business in hand and manfully represents the Father's interests. Thus did our Lord. He set us a noble example. What is the Father's interest is ours. "Lo, I come to do thy will, O God!" This was Christ's life motto and it MUST be ours. What can be of greater interest than being in partnership with Jesus Christ, in winning back a lost soul? But the propagation of the Gospel means first information, then inspiration and then sacrifice or perspiration. It costs something to be a live Christian, but it is such a privilege to cast in our lot with Christ and to have a part in the BIGGEST job on this earth, viz., "making Jesus known." Why should you do less than aid to give every home a

THE ROUND TABLE

A Forgotten Dream

BY C. O. HYLTON

KING NEBUCHADNEZZAR had a very impressive dream over which his spirit was much troubled and "his sleep went from him." He was anxious to know its meaning and sent for the magicians and wise men to come and make known unto him his dream.

This language has caused some to think that the king had forgotten his dream. Again he said: "The thing is gone from me," and told them what "thing" it was that was gone from him, that it was his decree that they should be slain if they failed to make known the dream and the interpretation thereof.

He overtook them in their deception. The dream was not forgotten, but he knew when Daniel told the dream that there could be no deception with him, and the king was willing to accept the interpretation of his dream as given by Daniel.

Troutville, Va.

"I Am the Light"—"Ye Are the Light"

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

AT that period when the light of men was darkness and the world was wandering through the trackless marshes at the midnight of its history, the Light burst upon it. Just as the sun breaks through the clouds of greyish-black which have obscured its shining face, so the Christ of Bethlehem, the Christ of Olive's Mount, the Christ of Calvary, broke through the clouds of sin and lust and selfishness which had obscured God from men and brought the Perfect Revelation of the Father in his only begotten Son.

That Light has shone brighter and brighter through the ages. Eighteen hundred years of persecution and of bloodshed and today the Cross of Christ towers o'er the wrecks of time.

Christ is the Giver of Light, for "in him was life and the life was the light of men." The only Light today, which can guide men through the mazes of doubt, of fear, of hatred and of wrong, is Jesus Christ! The only hope of the world, the only solution of international problems is in following the Light of him who said: "I am the light of the world. He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

By an act of reflection, we become rays of the Light Divine. He who said: "I am the Light," also said, "Ye are the Light." How feeble, oftentimes, are the beams we send out! What precious years we waste in seeking false lights, only to find that Jesus Christ is, as he said, the Light of the world! While the souls of men are dying for the Light, while many a human ship is drifting toward the jagged rocks, are our lamps burning brightly?

Men and women, groveling in the mire of a Christless life, are looking toward us, straining their eyes for a gleam of the Light. Do their eyes stare in vain through the darkness or, radiantly spreading its broad beams, do they see our light guiding them to the Light of the world?

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Knowledge of the Bible

BY G. W. TUTTLE

LACK of knowledge of the Bible is a sad handicap in life. References to the incidents and lives of its pages by our best writers are innumerable. It is a Book that has never—and can never—be duplicated. Does not the inspiration of God, and the best of men's minds, glow upon its pages with a light that can never be hidden? When we taste the roily waters of some modern religious discoveries, or of some new-thought writer, we come back to the pellucid stream that flows from the Book, and say: "Here is God; I am content."

Well for us if the Scripture is familiar ground, if we know its characters and live by its precepts. Soul-food and mind-food crowd each other in the pages of the Book. Where can we find the equal of the Bible as literature; such simple yet forcible expression, such wonderful imagery, such illuminating comparisons, such burning denunciation of evil, and such lofty expressions of praise and adoration? How incomplete the education, how unfurnished the mind, that knows not the riches of the Word!

The Bible never loses its freshness and charm. We read a new book; then we lay it aside and the dust gathers upon it. If it has great charm or helpfulness for us we may take it up again at some future day, but with most books a single reading suffices. How different with the Bible, for the light seems to shine upon it from a different angle each day. "Is this the passage that I read only yesterday?" we say to ourselves. "Why, here is a new lesson for me, an eye-opener, a heart-encourager." We are ever learning new lessons, absorbing fresh knowledge, from its pages. What evidence this is of the inspiration of the Word!

Knowledge of the Bible is often first aid in the hour of temptation. How the words of Scripture fell from the Master's lips when he was tempted by Satan! Out of the riches of experience the Psalmist cries: "Thy Word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee." That which we hide in our hearts, of our Father's Word, will inspire our tongues and safeguard our lives.

Pasadena, Calif.

Shall We Know Each Other in Heaven?

BY IOA M. HELM

I HAVE been asked quite often whether I think we will know each other in heaven and my answer always is, We surely will. Our intellects will be enlightened far above what they are here. "For now we see in a mirror, darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know fully even as also I am fully known" (1 Cor. 13: 12).

Rev. J. R. Dummelow, in his commentary says: "Then shall I plainly know spiritual things with a knowledge like that of God; or even as God knows me." God knows each one of us. Jesus says: "But the very hairs of your head are all numbered." (Matt. 10: 30). I think we all agree that he knows each one of us today even better than we know each other; much better than we know ourselves. "For the eyes of Jehovah run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him" (2 Chron. 16: 9). How can he know whether a person's heart is perfect, without knowing the person? Even though we see through a glass darkly we know each other in this world. We have some very near and dear friends in this world and we are positive that we know them, and there are many other people whom we know. "Beloved, now are we children of God, and it is not yet made manifest what we shall be. We know that, if he shall be manifested, we shall be like him; for we shall see him even as he is" (1 John 3: 2).

On the last great day Jesus will divide the sheep from the goats. How can he do it if he does not know them? He certainly will know every person of every race and of every age. He will judge every person according as he lived in this world. "And I say unto you, that many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 8: 11). I believe we shall know Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Jeremiah, Malachi, Hannah, Sarah, Stephen, Paul, Anna, Mary Magdalene and thousands of other saints and prophets whom we never knew in this world. I am sure that our Elder Brother, Jesus Christ, will know all that are his, and surely all that are his will be like him. That is his promise and we will know each other.

On the Mount of Transfiguration "there appeared Moses and Elias talking with Christ." Peter knew the heavenly visitants even with his mortal eyes. "Lord," he said, "if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, one for Moses and one for Elias" (Matt. 17: 2-4). If Peter could recognize them so correctly, even though he had never seen them, have we not reasons to believe that we shall see and know each other more clearly when the Lord Jesus Christ shall fashion anew the body of our humiliation, that it may be conformed to the body of his glory, according to the working whereby he is able even to subject all things unto himself (Philpp. 3: 20-27)? Read Luke 16: 22-26. When Dives lifted up his eyes in Hades, his mind was clear; he knew he was in the realm of the lost. He looked across the great gulf and saw Lazarus and Abraham. He knew them both and they knew him. They all knew how each had lived in this world, and why the great gulf barred Dives from Abraham's bosom.

In this life, husband and wife, father and mother, brothers and sisters are bound into one family by earthly, fleshly ties and affections that last only while this life lasts. In the better world all these things shall have passed away. We shall all be members of one family—the family of God. God will be our only Father. I believe we will all enjoy a state of life and glory and joy such as this world can never know, and I believe we will know each other and also love each other in that world where sickness, sorrow, pain and death never come, and where parting words are never spoken.

Ashland, Ohio.

The Wife of the Pastor

THE pastor's wife, like the wife of Job, "speaketh as one of the foolish women speaketh" if she says, as in various incarnations she is frequently heard saying: "I have not been called to the pastorate of my husband's congregation; they are not paying a salary to me, and I want them to understand they can't impose the burden of their church affairs on my shoulders. I take care of my home just as any other wife does, and my husband's work is not mine any more than Mrs. Jones is responsible for her husband's carpentering."

Much might be said in reproach for the selfish lack of vision exposed by such speech—indifference to opportunity, shirking of duty.

But it suits the moment's mood to let all that pass and speak instead of the loss and impoverishment which such a mistaken view inflicts on a pastor's wife right in her own home life.

Where, in the absence of outright vice on the part of either husband or wife, dissension cleaves a home, the cause may almost invariably be traced to divergence of interests growing up between the matrimonial partners, gradually producing unlikeness of thought and taste, from which grows weariness of each other's company.

And the occasion of this drifting apart may—indeed usually does—lie in inevitable and innocent circumstances of the husband's business obligation and the wife's household responsibility.

The ordinary day in perhaps the typical American family is a day that takes the husband and father out of the home from early morning to late evening, but requires the wife and mother to spend the majority of these same hours, if not all of them, within house doors at strictly domestic tasks.

And while the man's way of earning a living, whether it be industrial, commercial or professional, consists of a multitude of technical details which the woman has no training to understand, her work, on the other hand, is made up of an ever-repeated routine too commonplace to command his concern.

Common ground for intellectual interest is thus reduced to a minimum, and unless affection and admiration hold both in a strong, reciprocal grip, married souls may soon become as strange to each other as married minds grow when their daily thinking revolves in wholly separate spheres.

At the very best, under these conditions, both husband and wife have constant reason to regret that the unity of mind which love naturally craves is so desperately hard to cultivate with business problems on the one hand and home problems on the other following grooves that practically preclude mutual participation.

What advantage then has the pastor's wife? Much all fashion anew the body of our humiliation, that it ay be conformed to the body of his glory, according the working whereby he is able even to subject all ings unto himself (Philpp. 3: 20-27)? Read Luke 6: 22-26. When Dives lifted up his eyes in Hades, s mind was clear; he knew he was in the realm of e lost. He looked across the great gulf and saw azarus and Abraham. He knew them both and they new him. They all knew how each had lived in this orld, and why the great gulf barred Dives from braham's bosom.

In this life, husband and wife, father and mother, others and sisters are bound into one family by rthly, fleshly ties and affections that last only while is life lasts. In the better world all these things all have passed away. We shall all be members of e family—the family of God. God will be our only ather. I believe we will all enjoy a state of life and ory and joy such as this world can never know, and believe we will know each other and also love each her in that world where sickness, sorrow, pain and ath never come, and where parting words are never oken.

Ashland, Ohio.

The Wife of the Pastor

THE pastor's wife, like the wife of Job, "speaketh one of the foolish women speaketh" if she says, in various incarnations she is frequently heard saying: "I have not been called to the pastorate of my sband's congregation; they are not paying a salary me, and I want them to understand they can't impose the burden of their church affairs on my shoulrs. I take care of my home just as any other wife es, and my husband's work is not mine any more an Mrs. Jones is responsible for her husband's rpentering."

Much might be said in reproach for the selfish lack vision exposed by such speech—indifference to opportunity, shirking of duty.

But it suits the moment's mood to let all that pass d speak instead of the loss and impoverishment hich such a mistaken view inflicts on a pastor's wife ght in her own home life.

Where, in the absence of outright vice on the part either husband or wife, dissension cleaves a home, e cause may almost invariably be traced to diverence of interests growing up between the matrimonial rtners, gradually producing unlikeness of thought d taste, from which grows weariness of each other's mpany.

And the occasion of this drifting apart may—indeed ually does—lie in inevitable and innocent circumances of the husband's business obligation and the fe's household responsibility.

The ordinary day in perhaps the typical American nily is a day that takes the husband and father out the home from early morning to late evening, but quires the wife and mother to spend the majority of ese same hours, if not all of them, within house doors strictly domestic tasks.

And while the man's way of earning a living, ether it be industrial, commercial or professional, nsists of a multitude of technical details which the oman has no training to understand, her work, on the her hand, is made up of an ever-repeated routine too mmonplace to command his concern.

Common ground for intellectual interest is thus reced to a minimum, and unless affection and admiran hold both in a strong, reciprocal grip, married uls may soon become as strange to each other as arried minds grow when their daily thinking revolves every way—and what she ought to value above all else is this:

She can be her husband's comrade, companion, counselor and chum in all his work, excluded from none of its perplexities, baffled by none of its technicalities, a side-line spectator of neither its successes nor its defeats.

Instead of rating herself therefore with the carpenter's wife or the plumber's wife or the banker's wife, the wife of the pastor should be every day thanking the Lord that she is not called upon to let her husband go off and carpenter without her.

Quite otherwise, if her husband bungles his carpentry, she is not reduced to Mrs. Jones' helplessness—she can turn in and help him amend his craftsmanship; she can hold the buffer that will clinch the nail he is driving.

And if the good woman truly married for love—and what other reason could be imagined for marrying a preacher?—she will need but one trial of this enlistment in her husband's work to convince her how poor a wisdom it is to insist (if she was ever so inclined) that her husband's call to the ministry did not include her.

For the unity of heart which ensues infallibly from unity of personal interests in the home is much too precious to genuine love to be forfeited after it has once been fully enjoyed—as thousands of wise wives of wise pastors may be confidently called to witness.

It is the great good fortune of the parsonage that the work of the husband centers in and radiates from his home—not compelling him as so many other men are compelled to a daily day-long divorce from his own household—and more especially that his task is largely of a nature congenial to the best feminine inclinations.

Whether the fact should be attributed to native bent or to social conventionality, it yet remains the fact that the majority of even twentieth century women, despite vast numbers engaged in business and industry, continue to be much more interested in the sentiments of life and its human relations than in its commercial processes and industrial activities.

And this not only signifies that the pastor's occupation, dealing always with folks; and usually with folks in some kind of stress or difficulty, is in full range of a good wife's natural and unforced interest, but it means too that a properly manlike pastor is not going to make out thoroughly well with most of his workaday problems unless he has the supplement of his wife's perceptions—call it "woman's intuition" if you choose—added to his masculine senses.

To be thus essential to her husband's success, so far from appearing to the "mistress of the manse" an imposition and burden, ought to be in a rational estimation of the case a badge of superior privilege. It renders her home-keeping, of course, more difficult. But the compensations are a rich overplus.

For even if she should rate lightly the actual human service she has the chance to render in enlarging, intensifying and adapting her husband's ministry, she can not, if a woman of true heart, think poorly of her altogether exceptional liberty of intellectual and spiritual fellowship with the man to whom her life is linked in wedlock—a fellowship which permits her to dwell inside one circle with him in interests which cover the whole of their living.

To estimate what the actual spiritual blessing of that advantage is, the pastor's wife needs only to compare her own estate with the lot of wives whose circle of interests crosses that of their husbands only in tiny evening segments at the very best, and whose common ground for thought and feeling, shared with their wedded companions, seems to them to be shrinking despairingly day by day.

at least a few unhappy wives within the circle of her influence something of the good art of keeping acquainted with husbands by keeping interested in their husband's work.—The Continent.

Things Adjusted

BY JULIA GRAYDON

ONE day, as I was going through a big city market, I heard two women talking very earnestly, and I heard one of them say: "But it's wonderful how things adjust themselves when you come to them."

I never forgot that remark and every now and then, when perplexed, it would come to me. Then I began to think it over, and I found it really was true.

The things we sometimes worry over are the things which do adjust themselves when we come to them. If we could only be patient enough to wait! But how often we jump at conclusions and say: "The situation is terrible; how can we face it?" And then it is that we need to be reminded of a line which is worth learning: "He was better to me than all my fears."

Harrisburg, Pa.

"For Those Who Despitefully Use You"

BY ROY TEMPLE HOUSE

JESUS is one day accosted by a Jew, learned in the law, who inquires of him, for the purpose, according to the Record, of embarrassing him: "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Jesus, recognizing that he has to do with a scholar, replies with another question: "What requirements are set you by the law?" The lawyer answers instantly, neatly combining the two commandments which most effectively cover the whole field of man's duty, the first one from Deut. 6: 5, "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might," and the other from Lev. 19: 18, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Then, recalling the definition of "neighbor," given in this same verse of Leviticus, namely, "the children of thy people," he sees, it may be, an opportunity for trapping the young Teacher. He may have known that Jesus had healed a Roman centurion's servant and had declared that he had found greater faith in this Gentile than in any of Israel's own children. Knowing that the Master's love was wider than the confines of Israel, he hoped, perhaps, to provoke an answer which would irritate the narrow, racial prejudices of his hearers.

Jesus answered, as was his wont, by an anecdote. (Is it irreverent to cite another great leader of humble origin—our sainted Lincoln—who so often clinched his point with a homely parable?) A Jew in dire distress is neglected by two of his own countrymen—men, moreover, who should have been the first to put their piety to practical use—a priest and a Levite. Then comes, not a Greek or a Roman—that would have been much less striking or significant—but a member of the poor, mongrel Northern race, which the Jews had spat upon for generations, and puts his strong, helpful arm about one of the hated nation which had so often spurned him. A Brahman might be kind to a Pariah—from a distance—but a Pariah helping a Brahman, a Bolshevik lifting a fallen Romanoff,—that is more than human nature is capable of, except as human nature may be transfigured by the love of Jesus.

And the figure is so striking that it elicits approval even from the carping lawyer. Here is neighborliness indeed! A man who can forgive one who looks down upon him with contempt! That man deserves to be loved, be he who he may. Then, says Jesus, if you show such neighborliness as that, you have inherited eternal life. Every one that loveth, writes John, is of God, is born into God's infinitude, God's immortality, for love can not die.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 3

Sunday-school Lesson, Christian Worship.—Matt. 6: 5, 6; John 4: 1-10, 19-24; Heb. 10: 19-25; Rev. 7: 9-12.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Helpful Songs.—Psa. 40: 3.

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. J. W. Lear, of Virden, Ill., in the Burr Oak church, Kans.

Bro. Jesse C. Shull, of Chicago, in the Hurricane Creek church, Ill.

Bro. C. C. Myers, of Waddams Grove, Ill., in the Zion church, N. Dak.

Bro. J. Edw. Jarboe, of Chicago, in the Brumbaugh church, N. Dak.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One accepted Christ in the Fresno church, Calif.

Two were baptized in the Lima City church, Ohio.

One was baptized recently in the Red Bank church, Pa.

One was recently baptized in the Schuylkill church, Pa.

Two were recently baptized in the Roekford church, Ill.

One was baptized July 13 in the Bethany church, Philadelphia.

Two were baptized July 16 in the Conway Springs church, Kans.

One has been baptized in the Bloom church, Kans., since the last report.

Two have been baptized and two reclaimed in the Independence church, Kans.

One has been baptized in the Uniontown church, Pa., since the previous report.

Two have been received into church fellowship at Redcliff, Alta., Can., since the last report.

Five were added to the Rummel church, Pa.,—Bro. Leonard Root, of Mt. Morris, Ill., evangelist.

Eigbt were baptized at the Zion Hill church, Ohio,—Bro. N. H. Blough, of Davidsville, Pa., evangelist.

Seven were baptized in the Salem church, W. Va.,—Bro. Obed Hamstead, of Oakland, Md., evangelist.

Eleven have been baptized in the Zion church, N. Dak.,—Bro. C. C. Myers, of Waddams Grove, Ill., evangelist.

Two were baptized in the White Pine church, W. Va.,—Bro. B. W. Smith, of Burlington, same State, evangelist.

One was baptized in the Markleysburg church, Pa.,—Bro. P. J. Blough, of Johnstown, same State, evangelist.

Three confessed Christ in the Bear Run Mission, Pa.,—Bro. Irwin R. Pletcher, of Connellsville, same State, evangelist.

Fourteen confessed Christ in the Manassas church, Va.,—Bro. Ralph G. Rarick, of Covington, Ohio, evangelist.

Four were baptized and one reclaimed in the Morrill church, Minn.,—Bro. Glen Montz, of Ramey, same State, evangelist.

Seven were baptized in the Franklin County church, Iowa, as a result of the meetings recently held in that congregation.

One was baptized and two were reclaimed in the Worthington church, Minn.,—Bro. J. A. Eddy, pastor, in charge of the meetings.

Six were baptized in the Grundy County church, Iowa,—Bro. Keller, the pastor, in charge of the meetings. Two were baptized previous to the meetings.

Eight confessed Christ, seven of whom were baptized in the Good Will church, Lost Creek congregation, Pa.,—Bro. John E. Rowland, pastor, in charge of the meetings.

Thirty-seven confessed Christ, twenty-eight of whom have been baptized and four received on their former baptism in the Ellison church, N. Dak.,—Bro. J. Edw. Jarboe and wife, evangelists.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. J. E. Young, of Beatrice, Nebr., to begin August 3 in the English Prairie church, Ind.

Bro. Isaac Beery, of Flora, Ind., to begin August 17 in the Oak Grove church, same State.

Bro. Calvin R. Wolf, of Brandonville, W. Va., to begin Sept. 4 in the Fairview church, Md.

Bro. J. H. Cassady, of Huntingdon, Pa., to begin August 31 in the Eagle Creek church, Ohio.

Bro. D. R. Murray, of Dayton, Ohio, to begin August 17 in the Cedar Lake congregation, Ind.

Bro. Daniel Bowser, of York, Pa., to begin August 31 in the Piney Creek congregation, Md.

Bro. Geo. S. Harp, of Myersville, Md., to begin Oct. 12 in the Locust Grove church, same State.

Bro. Ernest Coffman, of Harrisonburg, Va., to begin August 4 in the Summit church, same State.

Bro. B. W. Smith, of Burlington, W. Va., to begin August 24 in the Knobley church, same State.

Bro. Wm. Kinsey, of New Windsor, Md., to begin August 17 in the Pipe Creek church, same State.

Bro. D. W. Bucklew, of Mt. Clinton, Va., to begin August 24 in the South Mill Creek church, W. Va.

Bro. F. S. Carper, of Palmyra, Pa., to begin some time in November in the Lancaster church, same State.

Bro. Forrest Hostetler, of Greentown, Ind., to begin the forepart of October in the Topeka church, same State.

Brother and Sister Ralph G. Rarick, of Covington, Ohio, to begin Sept. 7 in the Bethany church, of Northern Indiana.

Bro. J. W. Meyers, of Fredericksburg, Pa., to begin August 10 in the Greentree church, West Greentree congregation, same State.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. John R. Snyder, of Bellefontaine, Ohio, is in a tent meeting in the city of Indiana, a mission point in Western Pennsylvania.

Dr. Fred J. Wampler, of our China Mission Field, made a short stop at the Publishing House last Monday morning, as he was on his way eastward.

Bro. Wm. E. Thompson, of Conway Springs, Kans., is removing this week, with his family, to Ottumwa, Iowa, where he takes up the pastoral work.

Bro. H. H. Helman, of Richwood, Ohio, has accepted a call to the "First South Bend Church," South Bend, Ind., and entered upon his pastoral duties Aug. 1.

Bro. O. B. Redenbo and wife, of Mt. Morris, Ill., were visitors at the Publishing House last week. Brother and Sister Redenbo have charge of the Orphanage at Mt. Morris and came over to Elgin primarily to visit the Larkin Children's Home of this city.

Prof. A. J. Brumbaugh, of Mount Morris College, favored the "Messenger" rooms with a pleasant interview last Monday. While at the Publishing House, Bro. Brumbaugh looked after the Gish Fund books to which he is entitled as a minister, and expressed his appreciation of the growing usefulness of this fund.

Sister Mary L. Cook, of Nevada, Ohio, who submitted to a serious operation recently, wishes the many friends who remembered her in their prayers, and sent her cheering messages, to know how much their interest was appreciated. She hopes in time to make individual reply. Her condition was critical for a day or two but was improving much when she wrote from Merey Hospital, Tiffin, Ohio, under date of July 24.

Bro. Joel A. Vancil, of Continental, Ohio, since completing his college work, eight years ago, has been engaged in business pursuits in connection with the ministry. He has recently disposed of his printing and publishing interests and Brother and Sister Vancil now desire to give their time to church work. They will be in position to hold some meetings this fall and winter, or to take up a regular pastorate with either a city or rural church. Members living where good land is cheap, and who are in need of ministerial help, are also invited to communicate with them. Address as above.

The sympathies of all our readers will be extended to Brother and Sister H. C. Early, Penn Laird, Va., on account of the death, July 17, of their daughter, Mrs. J. M. Good. Sister Good was a victim of tuberculosis, and about three months ago was taken from Harrisonburg to the home of her parents, with the hope that the country air and surroundings might prolong her life. May the recollection of her Christian faith be, to all the bereaved ones, a sufficient source of comfort. Later.—Just as we were about to go to press, we received the sad news of the death of the second daughter of Brother and Sister H. C. Early, Mrs. W. C. Good, of Cross Keys, Va., near the home of her parents. Sister Good had been ill for some time and had suffered much, but was thought to be improving when she was seized with an attack of intestinal inflammation, and died July 24—just one week after the death of her older sister, Mrs. J. M. Good. May the grace of a Loving Father be sufficient for these heavy burdens upon all the sorrowing ones.

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

Middle Indiana is to hold its Sunday-School Conference in the Spring Creek church Aug. 18-20. The program appears on page 492.

On page 494 we publish the notice of a "Special Service Day" for the Brethren's Home at Greenville, Ohio. Members of the Southern District of that State will kindly give the announcement their special attention.

The compilers of the Educational Directory, to which reference has been made in previous issues, inform us that their request for the names of college graduates has met with a splendid response. For the convenience of any who may have overlooked the earlier notices, a blank form is inserted on page 494 of this issue. Turn to it, fill it out, if possible, and mail as directed.

MISCELLANEOUS

The Seventeenth Annual Convention of the Tri-County Sunday-School Association, of Pennsylvania, is to be held at the Connellsville mission Aug. 13 and 14.

The Falls City church, Nebr., desires to get into touch with a minister who might be induced to locate in that congregation and look after its spiritual needs. For full particulars write to Bro. E. T. Peek, R. D. 2, Falls City, Nebr.

Please Note.—A Music Convention of the Middle District of Maryland is to be held in Hagerstown Aug. 13 by seven singing classes, recently taught in the District by Bro. B. F. Wampler. A special program has been arranged. Morning session 10-12; afternoon session, 2-4; evening session, 8: 30-10. Bro. H. K. Ober, in his address, will show how music can be made more helpful to the Sunday-school. Special musical talent has been secured for the program. A cordial invitation is given to all.

Notice to Northern Indiana Churches.—The District Meeting Board of Northern Indiana advises that the location of the meeting, to be held in October, has not yet been decided upon, due to the fact that no congregation has asked for the meeting. Any church, in position to take charge of the meeting at this time, should notify the clerk at once. All committees on program are requested to mail their work to the clerk as soon as possible, so that the Program Booklet may be completed.—Levi M. Neher, Clerk, Warsaw, Ind.

"Missionary Programs" is the title of one of the latest publications of the General Mission Board. It is a booklet of sixty-four large pages, containing an abundance of excellent and well-arranged "material for the use of missionary committees and leaders of children and young people." This is "Number One," from which we infer that other similar publications are in prospect. This is what you want for children's exercises with a healthy missionary flavor. The postpaid price is thirty-five cents for a single copy, one dollar for three copies, or twenty-five cents each, when six or more copies are ordered at one time.

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

"Speaking the Truth in Love."—Many of us who pride ourselves about being truthful at all times, have need to remember the last two words of the apostle, "IN LOVE." He who speaks the truth in love must sometimes, in that very spirit, omit to say what might prove hurtful. While never giving utterance to anything but the truth, and never permitting his silence to speak a lie, he will at times refrain from speaking, even though he might be dealing with facts. Truth spoken in temper, for for the sake of wounding, or to "take some one down," is no longer truth—it becomes malice, just as honey becomes vinegar when fermented.

The Test of Our Religion.—Have you ever thought of the fact that your religious profession may present a fair appearance to the people in general, but that the real test of your religion is, after all, seen in the home? Does your religion make it easier for members of your family to live with you, day after day? Does it appeal to the unconverted? Does it make you actively helpful, courageously consistent, warm-hearted and loyal to your fellow-men as well as God? The Bystander was told about a minister who tried to persuade a young man to accept Christ. Hoping to give added emphasis to his plea, he said: "Just look at your sister! There is some one who surely enjoys her religion." The lad promptly answered: "Possibly my sister does enjoy her religion, but no one else does, I am sure, in our home." What the boy criticised, is too often lamentably true of many professing Christians. They seem to derive a certain degree of satisfaction from their religious profession, but, somehow, it is not imparted to others. If our religion is to be real to others, there must be a radiance, clearly apparent to all whom we touch. "Let your light SO shine."

When He Failed to Be at Church Services.—Meeting a brother, the other morning, after we had heard an unusually good sermon the evening before, he explained his absence by pleading that he was "indisposed"—leaving us to draw the inference that some sort of physical ailment interfered with his attendance at the sanctuary. Then we got to thinking about what a lot of trivial reasons, for nonattendance at services, that one word "indisposed" is made to cover! Does it really mean more than downright unwillingness? What if all the rest of the people had been "indisposed" to attend church that pleasant Sunday evening! The empty seats would have been a serious reproach to the church in all the town. Then turn the matter around, and suppose that every seat had been filled with an eager listener. That sermon would certainly have been more than ordinarily inspiring, for the first essential of a good discourse would be insured by the expectant attitude of the audience. Do you want a sure recipe for a helpful sermon? Be in your place! Be there with eyes wide open and fixed on the preacher. Be there with a warm heart, full of love for the Gospel, and an earnest desire to get some precious truth. Be there with a prayer on your lips that both pastor and congregation may be blessed, and we can assure you that you, at least, will hear something that will do you good.

MISCELLANEOUS

he Seventeenth Annual Convention of the Tri-County day-School Association, of Pennsylvania, is to be held ne Connellsville mission Aug. 13 and 14.

he Falls City church, Nebr., desires to get into touch a minister who might be induced to locate in that gregation and look after its spiritual needs. For full iculars write to Bro. E. T. Peck, R. D. 2, Falls City, r.

lease Note.—A Music Convention of the Middle Dis- of Maryland is to be held in Hagerstown Aug. 13 by n singing classes, recently taught in the District by B. F. Wampler. A special program has been ar- ged. Morning session 10-12; afternoon session, 2-4; ing session, 8:30-10. Bro. H. K. Ober, in his address, show how music can be made more helpful to the day-school. Special musical talent has been secured the program. A cordial invitation is given to all.

otice to Northern Indiana Churches.—The District ting Board of Northern Indiana advises that the loca- of the meeting, to be held in October, has not yet decided upon, due to the fact that no congregation asked for the meeting. Any church, in position to charge of the meeting at this time, should notify the at once. All committees on program are requested ail their work to the clerk as soon as possible, so that Program Booklet may be completed.—Levi M. Neher, k. Warsaw, Ind.

Missionary Programs" is the title of one of the latest ications of the General Mission Board. It is a book- of sixty-four large pages, containing an abundance of llent and well-arranged "material for the use of mis- ary committees and leaders of children and young ple." This is "Number One," from which we infer other similar publications are in prospect. This is t you want for children's exercises with a healthy mis- ary flavor. The postpaid price is thirty-five cents for ngle copy, one dollar for three copies, or twenty-five s each, when six or more copies are ordered at one

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

Speaking the Truth in Love."—Many of us who pride elves about being truthful at all times, have need to ember the last two words of the apostle, "IN LOVE." who speaks the truth in love must sometimes, in that spirit, omit to say what might prove hurtful. While r giving utterance to anything but the truth, and r permitting his silence to speak a lie, he will at times ain from speaking, even though he might be dealing facts. Truth spoken in temper, or for the sake of uding, or to "take some one down," is no longer h—it becomes malice, just as honey becomes vinegar n fermented.

he Test of Our Religion.—Have you ever thought of fact that your religious profession may present a fair arance to the people in general, but that the real test our religion is, after all, seen in the home? Does your gion make it easier for members of your family to live you, day after day? Does it appeal to the uncon- ed? Does it make you actively helpful, courageously sistent, warm-hearted and loyal to your fellow-men as as God? The Bystander was told about a minister tried to persuade a young man to accept Christ. ing to give added emphasis to his plea, he said: "Just at your sister! There is some one who surely enjoys religion." The lad promptly answered: "Possibly sister does enjoy her religion, but no one else does, I sure, in our home." What the boy criticised, is too n lamentably true of many professing Christians. y seem to derive a certain degree of satisfaction from r religious profession; but, somehow, it is not im- cd to others. If our religion is to be real to others, e must be a radiance, clearly apparent to all whom touch. "Let your light SO shine."

When He Failed to Be at Church Services.—Meeting a her, the other morning, after we had heard an un- ally good sermon the evening before, he explained his ence by pleading that he was "indisposed"—leaving o draw the inference that some sort of physical ail- t interfered with his attendance at the sanctuary. n we got to thinking about what a lot of trivial rea- s, for nonattendance at services, that one word "in- osed" is made to cover! Does it really mean more downright unwillingness? What if all the rest of the ple had been "indisposed" to attend church that pleas- Sunday evening! The empty seats would have been erious reproach to the church in all the town. Then the matter around, and suppose that every seat had

AROUND THE WORLD

The Brief Career of a Battleship

Imposing in size, mighty in armament, and exceedingly costly in construction, in a few years the greatest battleship afloat becomes merely an "old tub." Usually it is then utilized as a target, or ignominiously sent to the scrap heap. Contemplating the brief career of these mighty engines of destruction, one can not help but wish that the money and ingenuity, so lavishly expended upon them, might be more profitably employed. Nothing illustrates the folly of great armaments more fully than the fact that a battleship may become out of date even before it is finished, or, at best, a few years later.

Great Forward Movement in China

A peaceful invasion of seventeen hundred walled cities in China is now being planned by the Presbyterian Church through Dr. Charles E. Scott, who has been given due authority for the work by the Chinese Council. Seemingly the great cities have been providentially opened for the first time to Gospel influences. Dr. Scott feels that if the present opportunity is not promptly seized, the tide will again turn, and a marvelous chance of Gospel propagation will be lost. Seemingly this is the psychological moment to present the claims of Christianity to the people of those populous cities. Through thoroughly qualified Christian leaders even the more influential residents of the great walled cities may be won for the truth.

How Far Can Mexico Go?

That question, just now, seems to be all-important, in view of the fact that our neighbor to the south has ruthlessly trampled on the rights of all aliens that happened to reside within her borders, just as she has outraged every principle of fairness and justice, so far as the United States is concerned. By an administration promise to the other powers, our Government holds a sort of de facto trusteeship over Mexico. Other nations, in recognition of the Monroe doctrine, agreed to keep hands off, if we would keep Mexico within reasonable bounds. The turbulent conditions in that country are uncalled for, and might have been largely obviated, had the authorities of our land more vigorously insisted upon the prompt establishment of orderly conditions.

Vanity's Foibles 2,300 Years Ago

Those who are inclined to attribute vanity's vagaries to the degeneracy of these latter days, might well note what a young Athenian, speaking of his wife, said to Socrates: "When I saw that she had powder on her face to make it whiter, and rouge to make it redder, and that she wore high-heeled shoes to appear taller, I told her it was as dishonorable for her to try to deceive me about her beauty as for me to try to deceive her about my property. I told her that while her arts might impose on others, they could not impose on me, who saw her at all times." The words above quoted show most emphatically that humanity, in its whims and weaknesses, has not changed greatly since the day of Socrates. "To BE, rather than to SEEM," is an adage too often unheeded.

War's Effect on Humanity

If we may judge by a recent utterance in the "Yale Review," morality—and especially sex morality—has been greatly shaken by reason of the war. While actual decadence and corruption may not have set in, it is certain that in many cases men and women are less consistent in their actions—less sure of right and wrong. It is generally conceded, also, that men and women in practically every church have vacillated in their attitude towards questions incident to the war—vital issues, concerning which public opinion was well defined before our nation entered the great world war. Are certain New Testament principles—tacitly ignored during the war, because of their divergence from public sentiment—to be restored to their rightful place? It is a question susceptible of varied application.

The Unexpected Happens

Heretofore the intrepid navigator of the air has been the chief sufferer when his craft became disabled in any way. The disaster wrought by an airship July 21, while circling over the densely-crowded streets of Chicago, is but another reminder that air navigation has many unlooked for dangers, and that the grim reaper may apply

Fashion's Folly a Real Danger

Most of us, while deploring the eccentricities of fashion, have failed, perhaps, to see therein a hidden peril to robust health. Dr. Jeanette Throckmorton, in a paper read before the American Public Health Association in Chicago, emphasizes the phase above referred to: "The majority of young girls who come into my office in winter are half clothed—from choice rather than necessity. When I see young girls on the streets, with their necks bare to the winter winds, I find myself computing how many of them, by such exposure, are making themselves liable to future tuberculosis. The 'streptococcus viridans' [pneumonia germ] has also encouragement to enter the human system when continual colds cause abnormal conditions of the tonsils and nasal membranes. Pelvic congestion, incident to insufficient clothing about the hips and legs, also leads to anæmia and other troubles."

The Jews and Palestine

According to surveys by the International Zionist organization more than 1,000,000 Jews from all parts of the globe are preparing to migrate to Palestine as soon as its political status is fixed. We are told that Emigration Committees have been formed in many countries, and that young men from all avenues of human activity have organized groups for agricultural training and the study of technical and scientific questions, bearing upon the settlement of the Jewish homeland. Thousands of Jews in Russia, Poland, Hungary, Holland, Germany, and other European countries are already arranging to liquidate their property, preparatory to settling in the "land of Promise." Jewish residents of Canada, Central and South American countries, Great Britain and the United States also expect to contribute to the quota of man-power, if the Jewish Republic is an assured success.

Schools of Bolshevism

No one in the United States needs to be told that the philosophy of destruction, spoliation and murder, that has taken possession of Russia and Hungary, and even threatens Germany, Italy and France, is a serious menace to all civilization. Efforts towards its suppression are being made in the United States, but have not been wholly successful as yet. In the opinion of many, the Government is overlooking a vital factor of Bolshevist propaganda—the schools of which, either on Sunday or through the week, implant the subtle teachings of these iniquitous opponents of law and order into the children. They are taught that patriotism or love of country is stupid and even criminal, that our republic is a hateful instrument of oppression, that there is no such a being as God or Christ, etc. Thousands of children learn such lessons every week. It is a sowing which, apparently, has not been interfered with, but what shall the harvest be?

When Sympathy Is Uncalled For

Some of the liquor dealers who happened to be caught with large stocks of whiskey unsold, July 1, are now loudly bewailing their hard lot, and are making every effort to arouse the sympathy of the public in general. As for ourselves, we refuse to become greatly wrought up over the matter. Those dealers should remember the days preceding the prohibition of whiskey manufacture. Immediately after Uncle Sam declared that food was needed to win the war, the distillers bought up all the corn they could secure, and kept their distilleries running night and day, until the very last hour that whiskey manufacture was permitted in this country. Warehouses were filled to the roofs with whiskey made from grain needed for food—the dealers taking a gambler's chance that it would be disposed of at a goodly profit ere the country went dry. If any money was lost, the liquor men must blame themselves. They knew that prohibition was coming.

The Mesopotamia of Today

M. J. J. Banninga, a Y. M. C. A. worker, who recently made a tour of Mesopotamian points of interest, gives much valuable information concerning that region. We quote a part of his graphic description: "One of the first trips I took, after reaching Baghdad, was out to Ramadie and Hit, on the Euphrates River. As these places are in the region where the Garden of Eden is supposed to have been, I was interested to see whether the country there looked like the mental picture we have of the Garden of Eden. After I had traveled through it, I concluded that there is no other spot in the world that could have a better right to having been the Garden of Eden than this place. Of course, just now there is nothing but thorns

HOME AND FAMILY

Give to the Living

If we gave unto the living as we lavish on the dead,
Kindly thoughts and gentle phrases, tender words and friendly praises,
Blotting out all imperfections, holding virtues up to light;
If we left no daily token of our love and care unspoken—
Then would life be well worth living in a world all glad and bright.

If we offered to the living, as we heap upon the dead,
Fragrant flowers of affection, blossoms of sweet recollection,
Waiting not till hands are folded on the quiet, pulseless breast,
Then the passion of our pleading would not fall on ears unheeding,
Nor our tears fall, unavailing, on the weary form at rest.

If we gave unto the living as we lavish on the dead
All our heart's long hidden treasure, all love's full, unstinted measure,
Adding, day by day, new jewels to the crown of human bliss,
Then life's burdens would weigh lightly, and the sun would shine more brightly,
And not Heaven itself were fairer than a world as glad as this.

—Ida Goldsmith Morris, in the New York Times.

After Sarah Graduated

BY ELIZABETH ROSENBERGER BLOUGH

SARAH was slow, so Katherine said. Katherine had gone through the high school course with a flourish. Then she went to college. She spent much money and came home during vacations, quite ready to tell the others what they should wear, how the house should be furnished, if they had money enough to get new furniture, and how they should behave if they went to dinners and teas.

Sarah went to school with her skirts let down and her braids tied up. She wrestled with geometry, Latin was almost too much for her, and at last she was ready to graduate when she was nineteen, for it took her five years to complete her high school course. She won no honors, but her old-fashioned father was just as proud of her as he had been of Katherine, when she was the valedictorian of her class, three years before.

Sarah was sitting now with her head resting against her father's knee, on the top step of the veranda. Her eyes, when they were not closed, were watching the fireflies flashing in the thin river mist, down in the meadows.

"Sarah and I can room together, this fall, when she goes with me back to college," remarked Katherine to her father.

Sarah touched her father's slender, white hands—the hands of a man who writes figures in a ledger all day long. He was a clerk with Lynn, Thomas & Co. Father would always be a clerk. Sarah knew this, but loved him most devotedly. Katherine sometimes talked of a promotion, when they could do many nice things, because there would be more money to spend. But Sarah knew that promotions came seldom to men who had daughters to keep. She never fretted, and only loved father a little more when Katherine was wondering whether they could afford to buy her the set of furs she really had to have this coming winter.

"I don't want to go back with Katherine," said Sarah without moving. "But please, father, let's wait with plans about me. I am too tired to talk about them tonight."

For answer, her father took her up in his arms and carried her straight to her room upstairs, where he put her carefully down in her rocking-chair by the window.

Sarah clung to him when he put her down. "Just one thing, you dear daddy. There are all those old books. Will you take them out of my room? I believe I'll sleep better if they're somewhere else."

How well her father understood. He gathered up her school-books in one armful. "They're enough to give a wooden Indian the nightmare. I'll lose 'em somewhere."

Before he got to the door, Sarah was there, kissing him again and again, without saying one word, but her father carried her books to the attic, well content. Always, in his heart, there was a deep sense of something rarely precious, when he thought of his baby girl, Sarah.

"She's like the wind flower," he thought, as she came, about a week later, saying that she was going with him to his work that morning. Sarah in her white dress—flower-like in its simple lines, its grace—took his arm. "I want to talk with you. When can we talk best?"

"In the street car, I guess," said father.

Seated in the car, her father took off his hat—the weather being so warm. Sarah looked at his white hair and said: "Your hair is lots whiter than it was a year ago."

"Sure, I am a year older than I was a year ago. Did you come with me to make remarks about my personal appearance?" said her father meekly.

The earnest look Sarah gave him proved that she had other things in mind. "Father, why did you mortgage our house?"

"Bless me! How did you even dream of that?" Her father's face was white as if she had struck him.

"Father, dear, I happened to be in the next room when you made out that mortgage. I am old enough to know why you did it."

He wiped the perspiration from his forehead: "Had to, little 'un. It costs a great deal to keep Katherine, and with one thing and another I had to have more money. But don't you worry! I want my girls to have all they should have. I wouldn't deprive you of one thing."

But Sarah's hand was on his arm again: "Oh, but, father dear, I want you to see that I don't want to go to college with Katherine. If I loved study it would be different, but I hate it. I've grubbed at tiresome books for years and even a book-worm turns at last, father dear!"

"But—" he began.

"I am not through yet. If I had a talent, it would be different, but I know enough not to worry the life out of your neighbors by practising scales which I shall never use, for I can not play the piano. I want to be happy and useful, of course. I can be that here with you."

"But—" her father tried again.

"Daddy, isn't one brilliant daughter enough for one proud father? Why can't I stay right here and help you to drive that mortgage away?"

"But a woman should be educated and cultivate—"

"Father, dear, I'll frame my high school diploma, and hang it where your friends can see it, if they have any doubts of my being able to read! Don't, daddy, that old woman has been watching us. What will she think if you love me any more, right in this car?"

So it was settled. Father left the car when the Lynn, Thomas & Co. warehouses were in sight. Sarah went down town to buy some groceries, since she was where she could take advantage of some of the bargain sales she had read of, the day before.

It was strange that brilliant Katherine had never suspected that her father was working too hard, that he was troubled because he could hardly respond to all her demands for money, for Katherine always said that she did not want to spend too much. Slow Sarah had known it for years, but never saw any way to help until now her plans were all made. She would keep house, let Katherine go on; she could do great things with her education. Sarah wanted only to stay at home and take care of father.

Children growing up in a home are such important personages in the eyes of their fond parents. When father has had a hard row to hoe in his own youth, he wants to make it easier for those he loves. True, father does not consider it a sacrifice to wear old, rusty suits, if Katherine can have her desires gratified, but I find it in my heart to urge children to be more observing, more ready to notice whether father is doing more than he is able to do. Let not the swiftly-passing years go by without showing him how much you do appreciate his loving care and sacrifice for you. Deep down in our souls there is usually love and kindly feeling for our own. Let them know it; express it in some way. Father may be an old man—dejected, lost in thought, and troubled—but the grayer his hair, the more worn and weary he is, the dearer he should be. He is a king among men, thinking of his household, working for his loved ones with a courage that belted knight might have envied and holy martyrs might have prayed for.

Johnstown, Pa.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

THE REAPING CAME

A tragedy has occurred in Los Angeles which brings vividly to my mind Gal. 6: 7 (latter part): "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

A young man, thirty-two years of age, was engaged to a beautiful young girl. Friends were making great preparations for the wedding, but of late a dark cloud of trouble had been overshadowing the engaged couple. The night before the wedding, they quarreled. The girl told him that she would not marry him, and rather than be the mother of his child, would take steps by which she would be freed from disgrace. In a rage he shot and killed her. While in jail, he despairingly exclaimed: "Love is death." "No," said the lawyer: "Love is not death. Love never dies. Sin is death."

Then the courts, upon investigating the young man's life, found that his father and mother had lived together unmarried for sixteen years. During that time, this child, now a murderer, was born. Later on, each of the two married some one else. The father, now a Senator, absolutely refuses to lay claim to the murderer as his son, but the records are against him.

The seed of sin and lust had been sown. The reaping, after many years, is now taking place.

The young girl's parents had neglected to teach to their daughter womanhood's virtues. They are of a respectable family, but the wrong seed was allowed to spring up. It ripened. "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6: 23).

The girl is dead—the mother is dying. The young man will be sent to the gallows, unless skilled lawyers can prove a sane man insane. His mother is heartbroken—suffering more than if it were her own death. The tragedy ends.

The seed was sown, the reaping was bitter—almost more than human life could endure. The reaping is never thought of at seed-sowing time. That little, tiny seed you have sown, may grow to large dimensions before reaping time. It will have to be harvested either in this generation or the next. Some one will have to gather in that crop. The price of sin must be paid. Is the price worth the sinning? It may appear to be some little, hidden sin that does not harm any one, not even you, but it will reappear, ten times magnified, some day.

It is to be regretted that the sacredness of love and marriage is no longer sufficiently taught, not even in many of our Christian homes. Preaching upon that subject is an almost unheard-of thing. Licentiousness should be fought against as vigorously as was the saloon question. It is a worse evil. What will the harvest be? "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

La Verne, Calif. Mrs. Walter Sell.

REDCLIFF, ALTA., CANADA

The brethren and sisters of the Redcliff mission have enjoyed some refreshing seasons of grace from the Lord during the last few weeks. We were made glad in that we were able to secure the Baptist church at this place, in which to hold our services for the coming year. The Baptist people have no minister at present and were not using the church at all.

Bro. Strycker, of the District Mission Board, was with us over Mothers' Day and broke the Bread of Life to us in a very acceptable manner.

In June, while Bro. Hollinger was away in a meeting, Bro. S. S. Petry preached for us one Sunday morning and evening.

July 6 a joint Sunday-school Convention was held. The Battle Creek church, of Saskatchewan, and the Milk River church, of Montana, joined with us in this meeting.

The attendance was excellent, considering the distance these churches are apart, and some very helpful suggestions were given during the day. In the evening Bro. Reish, of Montana, outlined the purpose of the Christian Workers' Meetings, and how they can be made more efficient in service in the community. Bro. Brumbaugh then delivered an excellent missionary sermon.

Some of our North Dakota brethren and sisters, who were on their way to attend the District Conference at Gleichen, stopped with us over Sunday to enjoy this meeting. It was, indeed, a great inspiration to have them with us and give us some helpful encouragement.

u do appreciate his loving care and sacrifice for you. ep down in our souls there is usually love and kindly ling for our own. Let them know it; express it in ne way. Father may be an old man—dejected, lost thought, and troubled—but the grayer his hair, the re worn and weary he is, the dearer he should be. is a king among men, thinking of his household, rking for his loved ones with a courage that belted ght might have envied and holy martyrs might e prayed for.

ohnstown, Pa.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

THE REAPING CAME

A tragedy has occurred in Los Angeles which brings idly to my mind Gal. 6: 7 (latter part): "Whatsoever nan soweth, that shall he also reap."

A young man, thirty-two years of age, was engaged to eautiful young girl. Friends were making great prepations for the wedding, but of late a dark cloud of uble had been overshadowing the engaged couple. The ht before the wedding, they quarreled. The girl told n that she would not marry him, and rather than be the ther of his child, would take steps by which she would freed from disgrace. In a rage he shot and killed her. ile in jail, he despairingly exclaimed: "Love is death." o," said the lawyer: "Love is not death. Love never s. Sin is death."

Then the courts, upon investigating the young man's e, found that his father and mother had lived together married for sixteen years. During that time, this child, w a murderer, was born. Later on, each of the two rried some one else. The father, now a Senator, absoely refuses to lay claim to the murderer as his son, but records are against him.

The seed of sin and lust had been sown. The reaping, er many years, is now taking place.

The young girl's parents had neglected to teach to their ughter womanhood's virtues. They are of a respectable nily, but the wrong seed was allowed to spring up. It ened. "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6: 23).

The girl is dead—the mother is dying. The young man ll be sent to the gallows, unless skilled lawyers can ove a sane man insane. His mother is heartbroken—ffering more than if it were her own death. The tragedy ds.

The seed was sown, the reaping was bitter—almost ore than human life could endure. The reaping is never ought of at seed-sowing time. That little, tiny seed you ve sown, may grow to large dimensions before reaping me. It will have to be harvested either in this generaon or the next. Some one will have to gather in that op. The price of sin must be paid. Is the price worth e sinning? It may appear to be some little, hidden sin at does not harm any one, not even you, but it will ppear, ten times magnified, some day.

It is to be regretted that the sacredness of love and arriage is no longer sufficiently taught, not even in many our Christian homes. Preaching upon that subject is almost unheard-of thing. Licentiousness should be ught against as vigorously as was the saloon question. is a worse evil. What will the harvest be? "Whatsoer a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

La Verne, Calif. Mrs. Walter Sell.

REDCLIFF, ALTA., CANADA

The brethren and sisters of the Redcliff mission have joyed some refreshing seasons of grace from the Lord iring the last few weeks. We were made glad in that e were able to secure the Baptist church at this place, which to hold our services for the coming year. The aptist people have no minister at present and were ot using the church at all.

Bro. Strycker, of the District Mission Board, was with s over Mothers' Day and broke the Bread of Life to us a very acceptable manner.

In June, while Bro. Hollinger was away in a meeting, ro. S. S. Petry preached for us one Sunday morning nd evening.

July 6 a joint Sunday-school Convention was held. he Battle Creek church, of Saskatchewan, and the Milk iver church, of Montana, joined with us in this meeting. The attendance was excellent, considering the distance

Over last Sunday we had the pleasure of having with us our returned missionary, Sister Sadie Miller, of India, and Bro. Finnell, who gave us several lectures and stereopticon views of the mission field and the Sunday-school activities.

Our people appreciated these lectures very much, and we hope to reap some splendid results of this sowing. This was the first time our Canadian churches had the privilege of listening to one from the field. She told us what great opportunities are waiting for each of us.

The little band of workers here is willing and ready to do its part in this great movement, as was shown by their liberal contributions for relief work and the missionary cause. Two have been received into church fellowship by baptism since our last report.

The season, thus far, has been very dry and hot. Crops over a large area of country are almost an entire failure. A few sections have already petitioned the Government for assistance that they might tide over the coming winter. Notwithstanding these conditions we still have much to be thankful for. Catharine Hollinger.

July 16.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

At one time, when parents brought their children to Christ, they were rebuked by the disciples. But Christ said: "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Is it not glorious that we have the Sabbath-schools for the benefit of the children, and that we have Graded Lessons, so that our little children need no longer digest food meant for adults? Yes, most of our Sunday-schools have modern equipment for the children. But how about the preaching hour? This is a problem. Some few churches are having a junior service, which is a distinct benefit to the young. Why lose the children to the church?

When a child becomes dissatisfied in a home, the parents put forth every effort to satisfy rather than to lose him. Should not the church do all that is just and right to hold her children? Why not have junior meetings occasionally? No, not children's meetings, but sermons prepared for the children. Let the children lead the singing and do the praying. Give them something to do and there will be little or no need of discussing ways and means of saving our children for the church.

Another place where the children have been neglected is at our District Sunday-school Conventions. How tired those dear little tots must get, who come with their parents, when they are expected to sit still throughout the sessions of a two or three days' convention. Is it any wonder they worry their mothers and occasionally disturb the meetings?

It was out of sympathy for the children and tired mothers that we asked permission to have special sessions for the children at our District Sunday-school Convention. The meetings were a grand success. Sister Stump and myself asked for a room that we might have sessions for the children each afternoon. The first session was such a success that the children begged to have one the next forenoon. Their request was granted. A great many of the adults expressed a desire to observe how the little ones were instructed. Our program was Bible instruction, songs and handwork. Bro. John I. Kaylor, our returned missionary from India, gave them a splendid talk on childhood in India. They were taught the chorus of "Blessed Be the Name" in the Indian language. They enjoyed this very much. At the close of our missionary session each child was given the name of one of our missionaries' children, and during the year they are to pray for that particular child.

Children sweet and innocent, sincere and true. Who would be guilty of offending one of God's little ones? Those whom we met were surely appreciative, affectionate and reverent. As they kissed us, and waved their goodbyes, we were made to rejoice for having had these sessions with them, though it was at the sacrifice of many inspiring talks of the Convention. I'm sure that every child will have pleasant memories of this Convention, and will want to attend future Conventions, for they were not neglected by the Sunday-school workers.

Wooster, Ohio. Zuma Heestand.

OUR FOURTH OF JULY MEETING

West Nimishillen, Canton City, Canton Center and Springfield Sunday-schools held their fourth annual Fourth of July Meeting in the Springfield church.

The meeting opened with a song service, conducted by the Springfield Sunday-school. Devotional exercises were conducted by Bro. Trainer. An address of welcome was An offering for Home Missions was taken, at which we secured $28.14. After deducting expenses, the balance, $25.14, was turned over to the Home Mission Board.

A motion was passed that a report of this meeting, and the resolutions of the committee be published in the "Gospel Messenger."

The following are the resolutions as submitted:

We, your committee, beg leave to submit the following:

1. We are thankful to our Heavenly Father in so graciously blessing us in permitting us to assemble under such favorable conditions on this our Nation's Anniversary.

2. We thank the members of the Springfield Sunday-school and church for their invitation to hold this meeting; for their generosity in providing transportation and for their hospitality in caring for this meeting.

3. We thank our officers of this meeting, those who have appeared on the program, and all who have contributed to its success in any way.

4. We render special praise to our God for his mercy in bringing to a close the awful world tragedy, committing to his care those of our boys who have met death in this awful conflict, and praising him for safely bringing back to our firesides those who have served the nation and have been permitted to return; imploring his grace that, if not against his will, they may be spared from any similar experience in the future.

5. We praise our Heavenly Father for his giving us a saloonless nation on this national holiday, and implore his benediction upon the Sunday-school and the church, that they may rally to do his will in the exceptional opportunities of the present day.

Considering the weather and the season of the year, the attendance and attention were good, and a good spirit prevailed. The meeting was a patriotic, educational and spiritual one, in its nature tending toward making us better Christians and better citizens of this liberty-loving nation.

M. M. Taylor, Moderator.
W. L. Reichenbach, Secretary.

North Canton, Ohio, July 19.

DEATH OF ELD. SAMUEL P. MAUST

The sudden death of Eld. Samuel P. Maust at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ross Smith, in Erie, Pa., June 10, 1919, was a great shock to his relatives and friends, from whom he parted a few weeks ago apparently in the best of health.

Brother and Sister Maust attended the Annual Meeting at Winona Lake, Ind., during the first week of June, going from there to Jasonville, Ind., by automobile, to visit their grandchildren, whose mother (daughter of Brother and Sister Maust) died in 1910.

From Indiana they went to Erie, Pa., by train, to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Smith, living in that city. They arrived at Erie on Friday, June 13. On Sunday Bro. Maust attended church services in the morning and evening. On Monday morning, at breakfast, he remarked what a good time he was having and how well he felt. After the meal he sat at one end of the table, reading the morning paper, and commenting on some of the world happenings, when he suddenly paused in the midst of a sentence, while the paper dropped from his hands to the table, and his head drooped forward upon his breast. Mr. Smith, seeing that something was wrong, ran around the table to his assistance, and raised his head, after which he gave a gasp or two and was dead. He died without a struggle and apparently without pain or premonition of his approaching fate.

The casket containing the body was taken home. Thursday afternoon, June 20, funeral services were held in the South Side Brethren church, where the deceased had worshiped for many years, and officiated in the capacity of preacher and elder.

The services were conducted by the pastor, Eld. T. R. Coffman, who preached an appropriate and comforting funeral sermon. He took occasion to refer to Bro. Maust's unselfish and faithful service to the church, his devotion as a husband and father, his charitableness and his good citizenship. The church was filled with mourning relatives and friends, who had come to pay their last respects to one who had long held an honored place among them. At the conclusion of the services many followed the remains to the Union cemetery, where interment was made.

Samuel P. Maust was born at Shaw Mines, Summit Township, Somerset Co., Pa., June 26, 1848. His father, the late Peter A. Maust, later removed to the old Maust homestead, where Samuel P. grew to manhood and became the fourth owner, in direct descent of the farm in Elk Lick Township, acquired by the pioneer, Jacob Maust, nearly 150 years ago—the place having passed from father to son.

Bro. Maust was elected to the ministry in 1879 and two years later was advanced to the second degree. May 5, 1915, he was ordained to the eldership.

Bro. Maust was united in marriage with Lucinda N. Beachy, daughter of the late Abraham P. Beachy, of Elk

THE SPIRIT OF THE AGE

Would God that every member of our beloved church, and especially the leading brethren, would read, at least several times, "The Spirit of the Age," on page 446, of "Messenger" No. 28, by Wm. K. Conner, of Harrisburg, Pa. It will certainly bear repeated reading. Then it will merit praying over, pondering over, preaching over, talking over. It is a most timely theme for pulpit and pew, for church council, for District council, for Annual Meeting Conference.

Our brother has found the key to "Whither Are We Drifting?" He has located the foundation of the trouble. He has pointed us to the serpent's trail, and has given added emphasis to the hymn: "Flee the Danger." It is a lesson not only to worldlings but to us. I feel very grateful to Bro. Conner for his exceedingly timely article, backed up, as it is, in every paragraph, by quotations or references to the Word of God. It is the last article in the paper, but the most momentous and weighty. It is truthful, searching, alarming. It has an Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel flavor. It smacks of all the prophets and finds its culmination in John 17.

The article is portentous, potential, prophetic—a warning, a pointer, to which it would be wise to pay attention. It rightly divides the Word, and gives to saints and sinners their due portion. Brethren, read it, ponder it, meditate upon it—especially the "leading brethren." It may do us all good. J. L. Switzer.

Carterville, Mo.

SOUTHWESTERN MISSOURI AND NORTHWESTERN ARKANSAS

July 13 the quarterly Sunday-school Convention of the above-named District was held in the Greenwood house of the Cabool congregation. The exercises began at 10 o'clock, with the regular Sunday-school services. After an hour's study of the lesson the program of the day was taken up. Our District Sunday-school Secretary, Bro. A. W. Adkins, served as Moderator.

Such topics as, "How Does the District Sunday-school Meeting Benefit Our School?" "Relation of the Sunday-school to Missions" and "How Reach and Hold the Indifferent in the Sunday-school," were ably discussed by the speakers assigned to them. Many good and helpful points were given.

When the noon hour arrived, the brethren prepared tables beneath the trees of the church lawn and a splendid basket dinner was enjoyed by all present.

A timely topic of the afternoon session was "The Sunday-school's Responsibility and Duty to the Present World Conditions." It was thought that the Sunday-school, as a part of the church, is responsible for the present world condition or crisis, so far as it is able to remedy these conditions. Its duty is to support the church in all measures it undertakes to better these conditions.

Another live topic that brought forth considerable and helpful discussion was "The Value of Music and Teacher-training." This twofold topic deals with things that are much needed in our District—better music and more Teacher-training Classes.

A Round Table, conducted by the Moderator, concluded the exercises, as scheduled on the program. A feature of the day was the good, spiritual singing. There were several duets and also numbers rendered by a mixed quartet. Although the weather was exceedingly warm, a very pleasant and profitable day was spent by all present. The evening session was given over to the Christian Workers' services. Orin Harvey.

Joplin, Mo.

LA VERNE, CALIFORNIA

We have had a number of special programs lately. The Sunday after the close of Annual Conference Eld. W. F. England and our pastor, Eld. R. H. Miller, gave reports of the Conference at 11 A. M. Later our elder, Bro. J. P. Dickey, gave his report of the Annual Conference at the morning preaching hour. June 22 Brother and Sister Fred Hollenberg were with us in both the morning and evening service, in the interest of the "Forward Movement," under the auspices of the General Mission Board.

On Educational Day we had a special program in the morning. Sister Nancy Marshburn discussed "The Relation of Our College to the Home." She gives our college credit for her children getting a vision of the real needs of the world (two of her daughters are members of the La Verne College Mission Band).

"Our Colleges and Missions" was discussed by Sister Ruth Forney in a frank and interesting manner. She not only referred to those who go out to the foreign mission fields from our colleges, but also alluded to the "band of home missionaries, to be found on the faculties of all our church schools"—many of whom are sacrificing lucrative positions because they love the church more than "the almighty dollar." She paid a touching tribute to our own Pres. Miller, and said that the fact that he is giving his "life blood" for La Verne College inspires her to consecrate her life to the Master as a missionary.

Bro. Isaiah Brenneman followed with some testimonies on "The College and the Church." He said: "One of the most inspiring things I ever witnessed was the touching one how some of our most talented young people are working their way through college." Then he said: "Here am I, Lord, send me."

Eld. I. V. Funderburgh had charge of the program and gave us some idea of the comparative standing of the different schools of the Brotherhood. Bro. E. F. Yundt, secretary of the Board of Education for our District, was with us in the evening and brought us a message from the business man's standpoint, with reference to our church's relation to La Verne College. Our congregation gave $515 toward the college deficit fund.

On Monday evening of last week we held our regular quarterly council. We decided to send two papers to District Meeting. In accordance with the recommendation of Annual Conference, we decided to begin our pastoral year with Sept. 1. (This is to take effect Sept. 1, 1920.) The church decided to elect two deacons. Christian Workers' officers were elected, with Harry Brandt as president; Mrs. C. M. Barnhizer, junior superintendent; Harper Frantz, intermediate superintendent.

July 16. Grace Hilemen Miller.

NORTH DAKOTA, EASTERN MONTANA AND WESTERN CANADA

The District Meeting of North Dakota, Eastern Montana and Western Canada was held July 8-10 in the Bow River church, Gleichen, Alta. This meeting was unique in that it was the first District Meeting of the Church of the Brethren ever held in Canada. The churches of the District have grown up largely through immigration. The first large movement of the Brethren came in the early nineties, under the direction of Eld. A. B. Peters, who settled in the vicinity of Cando, N. Dak. Then, year by year, the tide of immigration moved westward, until there was a chain of churches across the State, and several churches sprang up in Montana. The broad prairies of Canada had their appeal too, and in time several communities of Brethren were built up across the line. The Irricana church, northeast of Calgary, claims the distinction of being the most northerly church of the Brethren in America.

The Bow River church, where the meeting was held, is situated on the Blackfoot Indian Reservation, and is one of the most recently organized churches of the District. This church is under the efficient leadership of Eld. Luther Shatto, assisted by an efficient corps of ministers and deacons. They have a large membership and have provided themselves with a commodious and well-arranged house of worship.

The weather proved that the province is worthy of its name, "Sunny Alberta." However, this year the drought has been severe over a large part of the Rocky Mountain watershed, and only a partial crop of wheat will be realized.

The Conference opened on Monday evening, with a splendid appeal to consecration by Eld. D. M. Shorb, of Surrey, N. Dak. Tuesday forenoon was occupied with the Christian Workers' program. Their interest was shown in that a District organization was perfected, and definite steps taken toward providing support for a foreign missionary.

The Sunday-school Conference was under the direction of Bro. Virgil Finnell, who is serving the District as a Field Worker. His presence and his earnest messages added much to the interest of the entire Conference. On Wednesday came the Ministerial Program and in this meeting was shown the determination of these earnest workers to do their part in the Forward Movement of the church.

The high point of interest was reached in the Missionary Meeting, on Wednesday evening. The needs of the work in the District were emphasized and when it was shown that the work was going backward, in many places, there was aroused a spirit of loyalty and zeal to regain lost ground and to reach the churchless communities of the great Northwestern field. The District was made to realize that the churches can no longer be kept up by immigration, but that the time has come when more concerted effort must be made to reach the unsaved of the several communities. A splendid offering of $225 was received; but of more value than the money contributed was the offering of lives. Five student volunteers renewed their vows of consecration. Four other young people gave their lives for definite Christian service. Four young ministers, with their companions, put their services at the command of the District Board, to be placed in needy fields. Surely such a spirit of devotion, which swept over the congregation, will abound unto a bountiful harvest.

The business session convened on Thursday morning, with the retiring Moderator, Eld. Shorb, presiding. Eld. David Hollinger, of Red Cliff, Alta., was chosen Moderator. Not a great deal of business came before the meeting. The chief item of interest was a request for a separate District for Canada. The issue was earnestly discussed, but it was thought best to defer action one year. Eld. John Brubaker, of Gleichen, Alta., will represent the District on Standing Committee of next year.

Sister Sadie Miller added to the interest of the Conference in several inspiring lectures, illustrating the work of the India field.

We were further favored by the presence of Bro. Emmert and sister, Miriam Stover, who, by their personal touch as well as in a formal program of lecture and song, inspired us all to a livelier interest in God's plan for his world.

Many of the delegates came hundreds of miles to attend this District Meeting. The newer churches were well represented by those who came in their cars. All were agreed that the Conference was thoroughly enjoyable. The next meeting will be held in the Salem church, Newburg, N. Dak. Warren Slabaugh.

Wenatchee, Wash.

MIDDLE INDIANA

The Sunday-school Conference of the above-named District will be held at the Spring Creek church, August 18-20.

August 18, Monday Evening, 8 o'clock

The Public Schools and the Sunday-schools.—H. K. Ober. "The Forward Movement." Illustrated.

August 19, Tuesday, 8:30 A. M.

Address of Welcome.—Eld. Geo. Mishler. Chorus Work.—Sadie Stutsman. The Value of Doctrinal Teaching.—E. L. Reestand. The Community Survey: What It Is and How to Make It.—C. C. Kindy. The Value of the Community Survey.—T. E. George. The Sunday-school Superintendent.—H. K. Ober.

Afternoon, 1:30

Special Work for Choristers.—Sadie Stutsman. Saving Our Children to the Church.—Gorman B. Heeter. Living Beyond the Law.—H. K. Ober.

Special Conferences

At 12 o'clock on Tuesday there will be held conferences of choristers, superintendents and secretaries of Sunday-school, led by Sadie Stutsman, L. W. Schultz and H. K. Ober.

Evening, 7:30

Educational Program: The Relation of the College to the Farm.—Prof. A. R. Elkenberry. The Relation of the Church to the College.—Eld. J. W. Norris.

August 20, Wednesday, 9:30 A. M.

Temperance Program: The Possibilities of the Local Committee.—Geo. Deaton. Practical Methods of Teaching Social Purity.—H. K. Ober. The Cigarette Evil a Present-Day Problem.—Emma Bowman. Address.—E. S. Shumaker.

Afternoon, 1:30

Missionary Program: The Relation of Manchester College to the Mission Work of the District.—Otho Winger. How Raise and How Spend a Sum Equal to Two Dollars per Member in the Middle District of Indiana.—I. B. Book.

Spring Creek church is located three miles east and eight miles north of North Manchester, and three miles west and three miles north of South Whitley. Those coming by rail to South Whitley will be met.

The Call of the Homeland

(Continued from Page 485)

is our business to keep step with him. Robert Fulton applied the principle of steam to a little boat and sailed up and down the Hudson, but men caught the vision of larger things, and today the number of our large steamships, as well as their greatness, almost staggers our imagination. In proportion as our leaders catch vision and lead, will our SHIP sail out into the ocean depth of possibilities, and bring her precious cargo into the haven of eternal rest.

Frederick, Md.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

Fresno.—Under the auspices of the Sunday-school, July 4 was spent in most enjoyable fashion, picnicking in beautiful Roeding's Park. Reedley Sunday-school joined us and all listened with interest to an excellent program, rendered in the afternoon principally by that school. During our pastor's absence as delegate to Annual Meeting, Brethren J. R. Rhoads, I. L. Feightner, Geo. S. Wine, M. H. Miller, Sanford E. Setty and Eld. Brower preached to us. Sunday, July 13, Bro. Chas. M. Yearout ministered at the morning and evening services. July 20 Bro. J. Harman Stover gave us his Annual Meeting message, which was splendid. In the evening he again addressed the audience, with the result that one decided for Christ.—Mrs. O. N. Whitlow, Fresno, Calif., July 20.

Inglewood congregation had the pleasure of hearing two stirring sermons on the "Forward Movement" by Bro. Fred Hollenberg July 6. Our church has joined with the other churches of the city in holding union services each Sunday evening during July and August. Our Sunday-school had its annual picnic at Griffith Park July 17. A most enjoyable day was spent. It must have helped in the interest of the Sunday-school, for there was an attendance of eighty-five the following Sunday—quite above the average. Many of the members are planning to attend the Convention at Huntington Beach.—Susan Stoner, Inglewood, Calif., July 22.

COLORADO

Antioch church met in council July 2, with Eld. Henry F. Crist presiding. We elected a ministerial committee, which will also act as the temperance committee. We now have a minister located with us.—Bro. John Mitchell. For this we are indeed thankful. We have services twice each Sunday. We also have organized a Christian Workers' Meeting.—Nellie Nice, Yoder, Colo., July 17.

Rocky Ford.—We met in council recently with Eld. Jacob Funk presiding. The new church at Ordway is being built and we hope to have it ready for use this fall. The members at Holbrook were granted the privilege of soliciting for the construction of a new church at Cheraw, Colo. Bro. A. G. Crosswhite will remain with us for another year. The work here is progressing nicely under his direction. The Fourth of July picnic was enjoyed very much by all those who attended. Bro. Morris Frantz, formerly of Wichita, Kans., is spending his vacation here and has given us some splendid sermons. Bro. John Deeter has also been with us a few days, in behalf of missions and Sunday-school work.—Mrs. Cora Boone Henard, La Junta, Colo., July 12.

IDAHO

Nampa church met in council and called to further service a minister and deacons who were installed June 29. Bro. Silas Keim and wife were chosen as minister, Brethren Ray Keim and wife, Frank De Coursey and wife and R. A. Orr were elected as deacons. The following week Sister Eva Trostle, of Bethany Bible School, gave us were further favored by the presence of Bro. ert and sister, Miriam Stover, who, by their personal as well as in a formal program of lecture and song, ed us all to a livelier interest in God's plan for his l.

ny of the delegates came hundreds of miles to attend District Meeting. The newer churches were well sented by those who came in their cars. All were d that the Conference was thoroughly enjoyable. next meeting will be held in the Salem church, New- N. Dak. Warren Slabaugh. natchee, Wash.

MIDDLE INDIANA

Sunday-school Conference of the above-named District will be t the Spring Creek church, August 18-20.

August 18, Monday Evening, 8 o'clock

Public Schools and the Sunday-schools.—H. K. Ober. "The rd Movement." Illustrated.

August 19, Tuesday, 8: 30 A. M.

ress of Welcome—Eld. Geo. Mishler. Chorus Work.—Sadie man. The Value of Doctrinal Teaching.—E. L. Meestand. The unity Survey: What It Is and How to Make It.—C. C. Kindy. Value of the Community Survey.—T. E. George. The Sunday- Superintendent.—H. K. Ober.

Afternoon, 1: 30

cial Work for Choristers.—Sadie Stutsman. Saving Our Children t Church.—Gormao B. Heeter. Living Beyond the Law.—H. K.

Special Conferences

12 o'clock on Tuesday there will be held conferences of chorissuperintendents and secretaries of Sunday-school, led by Sadie man, L. W. Schultz and H. K. Ober.

Evening, 7: 30

cational Program: The Relation of the College to the Farm.— A. R. Eikenberry. The Relation of the Church to the College.— J. W. Norris.

August 20, Wednesday, 8: 30 A. M.

perannee Program: The Possibilities of the Local Committee.— Deaton. Practical Methods of Teaching Social Purity.—H. K. The Cigarette Evil a Present-Day Problem.—Emma Bowman. ess.—E. S. Shumaker.

Afternoon, 1: 30

sionary Program: The Relation of Manchester College to the on Work of the District.—Otho Winger. How Raise and How l a Sum Equal to Two Dollars per Member in the Middle District iana.—I. B. Book.

ing Creek church is located three miles east and eight miles of North Manchester, and three miles west and three miles of South Whitley. Those coming by rail to South Whitley will ct.

The Call of the Homeland

(Continued from Page 485)

ur business to keep step with him. Robert Fulton lied the principle of steam to a little boat and sailed nd down the Hudson, but men caught the vision of er things, and today the number of our large steam- s, as well as their greatness, almost staggers our gination. In proportion as our leaders catch vision lead, will our SHIP sail out into the ocean depth of sibilities, and bring her precious cargo into the en of eternal rest.

rederick, Md.

Notes From Our Correspondents

s cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

esno.—Under the auspices of the Sunday-school, July 4 was spent most enjoyable fashion picnicking in beautiful Roeding's Park. ley Sunday-school joined us and all listened with interest to an llent program, rendered in the afternoon principally by that ol. During our pastor's absence as delegate to Annual Meeting, hren J. R. Rhoads, I. L. Feightner, Geo. S. Wine, M. H. Miller, ord E. Setty and Eld. Brower preached to us. Sunday, July 13, Chas. M. Yearout ministered at the morning and evening serv-

July 20 Bro. J. Harman Stover gave us his Annual Meeting age, which was splendid. In the evening he again addressed the ence, with the result that one decided for Christ.—Mrs. O. N. tlow, Fresno, Calif., July 20.

glewood congregation had the pleasure of hearing two stirring ons on the "Forward Movement" by Bro. Fred Hollenberg July Our church has joined with the other churches of the city in ing union services each Sunday evening during July and August.

Sunday-school had its annual picnic at Griffith Park July 17. most enjoyable day was spent. It must have helped in the inst of the Sunday-school, for there was an attendance of eighty- the following Sunday—quite above the average. Many of the bers are planning to attend the Convention at Huntington ch.—Susan Stoner, Inglewood, Calif., July 22.

COLORADO

atloch church met in council July 2, with Eld. Henry F. Crist pre ng. We elected a missionary committee, which will also act as temperance committee. We now have a minister located with Bro. John Mitchell. For this we are indeed thankful. We have vices twice each Sunday. We also have organized a Christian rkers' Meeting.—Nellye Nice, Yoder, Colo., July 17.

ocky Ford.—We met in council recently with Eld. Jacob Funk siding. The new church at Ordway is being built and we hope four splendid talks. Bro. Stover, of California, delivered the message on Sunday evening. Our average attendance at Sunday-school, during the last quarter, was 106; the offering, $78.43.—Amanda Garber, Nampa, Idaho, July 15.

Nespelem church met in council July 1, with Eld. B. J. Fike presiding. Since our last report two letters have been received and two granted. The report of the annual visit was made. Our love feast was held June 7. We decided to hold a series of meetings as soon after Sept. 1 as we can secure Bro. Alva Long, our District Evangelist. Our Annual Meeting collection amounted to $234.37 and our Easter offering for the Armenians was $220. The Winchester and Nespelem Sunday-schools held a joint Fourth of July picnic at Winchester and spent a very enjoyable day. We expect Sister Trostle, of Bethany Bible School, to be with us July 23 and 24.—Mattie Thomas, Nespelem, Idaho, July 7.

ILLINOIS

Elgin.—All of us were out-doors Saturday afternoon, July 19, enjoying our annual appointment in beautiful Wing Park. We couldn't find a more desirable resort. No rain, sports, eats, and ice cream! . . . Sunday morning the Sunday-school was in charge of the returned soldier boys. One read Scripture, one prayed, one led the singing after rendering a solo and helped with a duet, one told of Red Cross ambulance work, one announced the numbers, and one gave a report of the Y. M. C. A. Conference at lovely Lake Geneva. Following this admirable session, Dr. J. E. Miller told us about the "Passages of the East." This part of the program was in charge of the junior congregation. We're proud of the youngsters. The evening sermon was by H. Spenser Minnich.—Adaline H. Beery, Elgin, Ill., July 25.

INDIANA

Bourgo congregation has decided to hold a Harvest Meeting Sunday, Aug. 31. We will have a harvest and missionary sermon in the forenoon and in the afternoon a home-coming.—Gieta Schwalm, Wakarusa, Ind., July 21.

Elkhart Valley church met in council, presided over by Eld. Frank Kreider. Sunday, August 17, was decided upon for our Harvest Meeting, which will be in charge of Bro. Milo Geyer, of New Paris, Ind.—Tena Smith, Elkhart, Ind., July 22.

English Prairie church will hold a Harvest Meeting on Sunday, Aug. 3. Bro. J. E. Young, of Beatrice, Nebr., will be with us and following the service will conduct a series of meetings.—Gertie May McKenzie, Howe, Ind., July 21.

Flora.—At our last quarterly missionary meeting we had with us, over Sunday, the Volunteer Mission-Band of Bethany Bible School, of Chicago, composed of four brethren and one sister. Bro. Roy Dilling was the leader of the band. The preaching hour at both the morning and evening service was given over to them. At the evening meeting a large crowd greeted them. Bro. Hershey, of Pennsylvania, told us of his experience as a Sunday-school teacher among the Chinese of Chicago. All felt well paid for attending to hear this band of Christian workers.—Mattie Welty, Flora, Ind., July 21.

Notica.—As I have many calls from Iowa, "to come over and help us," I have concluded to go in a few weeks, and will be glad to work in any of our churches desiring my services during September, October and November. I have many answering letters from Middle Iowa especially, where I have been before and where my work is familiar to our members. The "Forward Movement" calls for more and better singing in all the Brethren churches. At the Winona Conference a special committee of three competent members was selected, to look especially to the betterment of our church music. Much is expected of that committee, but we are all to help. Fill your churches with good singing and they will be filled with people. Good singing will do much to help to bring about the goal of our "Forward Movement" during the next five years. There is no church with better voices than the Church of the Brethren. I know, because I have labored with nearly all denominations. We should be encouraged in better singing. I wish we could have more said on the subject in the "Messenger" columns.—Joseph Studebaker, Flora, Ind., July 18.

Fort Wayne church again enjoyed a feast of good things when, July 13, Brother and Sister Felthouse were in our midst and delivered some fine messages. July 20 Bro. Hershey, from Manchester, also preached to the above date. These visits are highly appreciated and are productive of great encouragement.—J. Abner, Fort Wayne, Ind., July 19.

Landess.—July 20 Bro. Roy Mahon delivered an inspiring sermon. We will dedicate our church Aug. 17 and the sermon will be preached by Bro. C. H. Deardorff. He will remain and conduct a series of meetings for a few weeks, closing with a love feast, the date of which will be announced later.—Mrs. Marshal Pence, Landess, Ind., July 21.

Manchester.—Sunday, July 13, it was our privilege to have Dr. Fred J. Wampler, returned missionary from China, with us. The preaching hour of the evening was given to stereopticon views and a lecture on the China field. July 17 Prof. Lawrence Shultz gave a lecture and stereopticon views on the Sunday-school phase of the "Forward Movement." Bro. D. O. Cottrell recently dissolved our church phase of the "Forward Movement" plan. Last Sunday morning Dr. Reber emphasized the educational goals. July 22 our church met in council. One letter was granted and one read. Bro. T. E. George, our pastor, will be our elder-in-charge during Bro. J. H. Wright, who resigned after having held that position for three and one-half years. Under the "Forward Movement," for the present year, six specific phases were adopted upon presentation by committees. These goals we expect to reach by January, 1920. Sanction was given for holding a Workers' Council once each month, in which all members may coöperate and at which methods and plans for carrying out these ideas will be presented. We are expecting to have Bro. J. M. Henry, of Washington, D. C., with us this fall in an evangelistic meeting.—Ivah M. Grossnickle, North Manchester, Ind., July 22.

Oak Grove church met in council July 5. Our series of meetings, to be conducted by Bro. Isaac Beery, of Flora, Ind., is to begin Aug. 17, with a Harvest Meeting. The church has decided that the Harvest Meeting is to be a forenoon service instead of an all-day meeting, as has been our custom before. Our love feast is to be held at the close of the series of meetings, Sept. 6, in the evening. Our Annual Meeting offering was $130, and our offering for Armenian-Syrian Relief, $275.—Harry Miller, North Liberty, Ind., July 7.

Rock Run.—June 30 we held our Children's Day exercises. A good program was rendered, after which our monthly missionary offering was lifted, which amounted to $45. July 6 Bro. Geo. Phillips preached a splendid sermon on "Christian Education." We lifted an offering of $36.28 for Manchester College, for the fund from which loans are made to students preparing for the mission field. July 13 Maude Jones, from the New Salem congregation, gave us a talk on the work and mission of the Aid Society.—Mrs. Clarence R. Cripe, Goshen, Ind., July 20.

South Bend.—First Church met in council July 7, with Bro. Yoder presiding. Seven letters of membership were received and four granted. Two members were added to our missionary committee. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren C. M. Yoder and H. D. Holloway, with Sisters Burger and Cora Wise, alternates. June 22 our church met in council. Two letters were presented. The date for our love feast will be decided at our next meeting. Our council was changed to the first Friday in September. Bro. Fair will be our delegate to District Meeting, with Bro. E. C. Sarber, alternate. The Sunday-school delegate is Bro. Everett Blat, with Bro. Fair, alternate. The meeting was interesting and spiritual, and enjoyed by all.—Pearl Tomlinson, Summitville, Ind., July 21.

Topeka.—Arrangements have now been made for our Harvest Meeting. Bro. Jesse Ebey will be with us on Saturday night, Sept. 13. He will also remain for three services on Sunday. The joint Sunday-school Convention will be held at this place Sept. 28—an all-day meeting, with basket dinner. Our revival is to begin the forepart of October, with Bro. Forrest Hostetler in charge.—Mrs. Sarah E. Yontz, Topeka, Ind., July 21.

IOWA

Franklin County.—As a direct result of our series of meetings seven were received into the church by baptism. We feel sure that others are counting the cost. We enjoyed a very spiritual love feast July 5. Bro. B. F. Buckingham, of Prairie City, Iowa, gave a very acceptable address on Sunday morning, July 20. The Stovers will be with us some time during the summer, and give their missionary program.—Harvey W. Allen, Dumont, Iowa, July 22.

Grundy County.—Our series of meetings closed on Sunday, July 13, and on the following day we held our love feast. Bro. Lears being unable to come, Brother and Sister Keller, who are in charge of the pastoral work this summer, conducted the meetings. Two young people were baptized just before the meetings, and six at the close. There were a number of visitors at the feast, for which we were glad. Among them was Bro. J. M. Snyder, of Marshalltown, Iowa.—Hannah C. Messer, Grundy Center, Iowa, July 20.

KANSAS

Bloom.—One has been added to our little band by baptism since the last report. Any one, desiring to change location, will be heartily welcomed. Our pastor and wife are working hard to build up the church here.—Cassie Martin, Bloom, Kans., July 21.

Conway Springs.—Eld. Jacob Funk spent one Sunday here on his way home from Annual Meeting, giving us two encouraging sermons. Aug. 1 our pastor, Bro. Wm. E. Thompson, will leave us. We regret very much to have him and his family go. We have no one to take his place, but hope some one may be secured soon. Bro. O. H. Feiler was chosen elder for the remainder of the year. Two were received by baptism July 16. We expect Bro. Dexter here Aug. 3, in the interest of the Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Band. Four of our young people expect to be in college this year.—Ida Frantz, Conway Springs, Kans., July 17.

Independence.—July 20, after a fine sermon, one Sunday-school scholar came forward for baptism, and two were reclaimed. One had been baptized since our last report. The Gospel Team of our church is to be at Hollow, Okla., in charge of the services next Sunday evening. We hope this team will do a good work at home and in other churches, wherever they are called.—Pella Carson, Independence, Kans., July 22.

MARYLAND

Baltimore (Fulton Avenue).—We met in members' meeting July 6 with Eld. W. E. Roop presiding. Two letters of membership were granted. On the same date Bro. A. L. B. Martin began his third year as our pastor. June 19 Brother and Sister Martin celebrated their silver wedding anniversary and in the evening about sixty of the members and friends of the congregation gave them a surprise. The evening was very pleasantly spent. There were speeches by Brethren F. D. Anthony and John Baugher, also several recitations and music. Brother and Sister Martin were presented with several pieces of silver and flowers, as tokens of our love and friendship. June 28 we observed Educational Day. An offering was lifted for Blue Ridge College.—Marcus C. Angle, Baltimore, Md., July 22.

Brownsville.—July 5 Bro. Jesse Emmert, on furlough from India, gave us a temperance talk which was much appreciated. The following day we had an all-day Children's Meeting, in which a large number took part. Bro. Emmert gave a talk to the children in the morning and in the afternoon spoke on the topic: "What Relation Has the Sunday-school to Mission Work?" Brethren D. Vietor Long, McKaley Coffman and John Baugher gave splendid talks on various topics. In the evening a missionary program was rendered in which many young people took part. Brethren Bowlus and Emmert gave missionary talks. Special music was rendered throughout the program of the day and seemed to be very much appreciated. Bro. Emmert's earnest talks and interesting descriptions of the work in India arouses the missionary zeal of all who hear him. The collection of $8.09 was taken up for the expenses of the meeting and for mission work. Sunday evening a collection of $28.51 was taken for missions, to be added to our Annual Meeting offering. In my last correspondence I stated that the amount of our Annual Meeting collection included $25 from the Sunday-school. This was incorrect; but the offering, now announced as $308.51 includes the $25 from the Sunday-school. Our singing class, conducted by Prof. B. F. Wampler, has had a vacation during the hot season and will resume its work on Monday evening, July 21.—Mrs. Nellie S. Kaetzel, Brownsville, Md., July 19.

Locust Grove church met in council July 19, with Eld. David Kline presiding. Brethren A. P. Snader and C. C. Strine were also present. An election was held for deacons. Brethren Norman and Harry Kline were chosen and duly installed. We expect Bro. Geo. S. Harp, of Myersville, Md., to conduct a series of meetings for us, beginning Oct. 12. Our love feast will be held Oct. 25, commencing at 2 P. M.—Eva M. Young, Mt. Airy, Md., July 21.

MINNESOTA

Morrill.—Bro. Glen Montz began a series of meetings in the Morrill congregation June 15, which closed with a love feast July 2. Four were baptized and one reclaimed. Bro. Montz will remain with us during the rest of his vacation, and assist in the pastoral work. Our regular quarterly council was held July 12.—Mrs. Effie Johnson Ramey, Minn., July 22.

Worthington.—We have just closed a series of meetings, conducted by our home pastor, Bro. J. A. Eddy. One was baptized and one were reclaimed. We feel that much good was done. We held our love feast July 5, with about seventy communing. Bro. Eddy officiated.—Ruth Eddy, Worthington, Minn., July 17.

MISSOURI

Adrian church met in council July 13, with Eld. Ira Witmore in charge. The Aid Society gave a good report. We decided to change the name of our church from "Mound" to "Adrian." Four letters of membership were received. We made preparations for the District Sunday-school Meeting, to be held here July 20. July 1 and Brethren H. A. Claybaugh and Frank Hershey, both of Bethany Bible School, gave us two good lectures, which were greatly appreciated.—Mrs. Fern M. Wagner, Adrian, Mo., July 15.

Bethany church met in council July 12, with Eld. E. W. Mason in charge. Bro. Ernest Yancey was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school and Sister Mattie Lam, president of the Christian Workers' Meeting. Professor and Sister Morris visited us on July 4. Prof. Morris gave us an educational talk and later 12, gave an address on "A Visit to the Shire." July 8 and 9 Bro. E. W. Mason

DEATH OF ELD. GEORGE BOWMAN

(Continued from Page 491)

While not as eloquent as some in the pulpit, he was always willing to do what he could. He did a good deal of traveling by private conveyance in Franklin and other counties near by. He had charge of a mission church, about thirty miles away, for several years. He kept no records of his work, but often officiated at marriages, baptisms, etc. He was a good counsellor, was nearly always present at council meetings, District Meetings, and quite a number of times at Annual Meetings. He was one of our most liberal givers. He was sociable, kind and entertaining in his home. Many of the workers of the church have found it convenient to make his home a stopping-place. Brethren, holding series of meetings, have made his home their home during their stay at this place.

He leaves a companion, two daughters, twelve grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. All beyond the teen age are members of the church.

Funeral services were conducted at the home July 5 by Eld. J. A. Naff, assisted by the brethren. The family were all present at the services except one brother and sister living in the West. A large concourse of people were present, extending their sympathy, as well as feeling the loss that has been sustained by the community, the church and the home. L. A. Bowman.

July 18.

WAR AND THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST

I received a letter from a sister in San Antonio, Texas, recently, in which I am called to the confessional because of an alleged heretical reference to the Divinity of Christ in a communication for the "Gospel Messenger."

It seems that I stated in that article that "the doctrine of peace at any price was as fundamental as the Divinity of Christ." I do not recall the exact language used in that production but lest some wayfaring sister, like the beloved one in Texas, should be led astray, I will now say what I hope I said then, that the confession of the Divinity of our Lord, his virgin birth, or any one or all of his exceptional attributes, would not avail, in the absence of a doctrine and resultant life, absolutely clean and void of the blood of carnal war. Neither, let me affirm, will a life of total abstinence from carnal war avail for salvation without unequivocal championship of the doctrine of our Lord's divine origin.

One of the tragic tendencies of these times is the severance of the ties of pure lives from sound doctrines. It is now commonly accepted as the ultimate requisite to salvation that a formal confession of the super-excellencies of Jesus Christ, and faith in his mediatorial office, are the only conditions of divine favor. The consequent doctrine of a life of good works, as a test of that faith, is now practically thrown to the junk heap of impractical substitutes.

For example, we are constantly asked what would be our fate, as individuals or as a nation, if we would accept and practice the doctrine of peace at any price, such as our Savior taught.

As an answer to that question I will affirm, without qualification, that the results of obedience to any command of our Lord is no concern of ours. Our limitations begin and end with a correct interpretation of his teaching. As the Captain of our salvation—a title which St. Paul confers on him in second Hebrews—it is his office to issue commands to us, absolutely without the privilege, on our part, to criticise or discuss their merits. What would a military captain do with a subordinate who would not obey a command until its merits or demerits were clarified by discussion? A court-martial and verdict of death at sunrise, the following morning, would be the answer.

The only thing which interests us, as loyal servants of our Lord, is to determine whether or not the emphatic, continuous, unambiguous, unqualified teaching in favor of peace and love, which runs through every fibre of the New Testament, can be made to authorize and applaud the killing of our enemies in carnal war. Our Heavenly Father has made himself responsible for the consequences and it is treason in us to deny him that right, as fatal to our salvation as that which condemned Judas to a traitor's death. D. C. Moomaw.

Roanoke, Va.

SPECIAL SERVICE DAY

This will be held at the Brethren's Home, Greenville, Ohio, on Thursday, Aug. 7, the following program being rendered:

10 A. M.: Devotional.—William Minnich. Mission Work in the Home.—Wm. Swinger. Our Earthly Home.—M. E. Book. Our Heavenly Home.—Jacob Coppock. At noon a basket dinner will be served.

1:30 P. M.: Song Service. Miscellaneous Business. Sermon, "Golden Bowls Full of Incense" (Rev. 5: 8).—R. N. Leatherman.

Chorister, Anna Keener. Bring "Kingdom Songs No. 2."

Committee: C. L. Flory, J. Noffsinger, H. S. Weaver, G. W. Minnich.

GLENDORA, CALIFORNIA

We met in quarterly council July 10. We elected Brethren M. F. Brumbaugh and J. C. Whitmer as delegates to District Meeting, with Brother and Sister G. H. Bashor as alternates. As there was considerable money in the Sunday-school treasury, it was decided to send $50 to each new church, now in process of building. We have lately assisted, with funds, the members at Fig Dale, near Fresno, at which point a number of former Glendora members are sojourning. Boyle Heights Mission, Los Angeles, was also remembered. Another $50 was sent as a gift to a worthy elder who is doing much for the Lord, and is deserving. Another gift was to our pastor's wife, whose untiring devotion is felt everywhere, and whose capable hand in the primary department of the Sunday-school merits loving remembrance. We sent $100 to the Home Mission Board. In the recent Armenian-Syrian Relief drive, as well as our Annual Conference offering, we exceeded our allotments. A request for funds, to help rid our land of the cigarette evil, was recently answered with a donation.

We selected our elder and pastor of the past several years to continue with us another year in the same capacities.

Our Sunday-school spent a delightful "Fourth" in Live Oak Canyon. The spreading branches of the live oaks cast a welcome shade for auditorium, dining-hall, rest-rooms and playground. The everlasting hills, screened by green, served as walls. All felt we had an ideal location. Some of our boys are yet detained in service and a few are away on prolonged vacations, yet the greater number, with friends and neighbors, were present. Patriotism and loving fellowship beamed from every face, and we enjoyed a splendid program, rendered by both young and old. Loyalty, liberty, right and progress were emphasized. Nor were the physical needs forgotten. A delicious repast was spread on snowy tables, telling of the Father's mindfulness to give us our daily bread. Quiet games among the children and younger people, and happy, chatting groups of older folk filled the waning day with joy. We have reason to believe that the Lord was not ill-pleased with our "celebration" of the acknowledged birthday of our fair land, and we rejoiced in his very evident Presence.

Glendora, Calif., July 14. Mrs. Sylvia L. Netzley.

SPRING CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA

May 8, Sunday evening, Bro. Frank Carper preached the Baccalaureate Sermon at the Palmyra house. Twenty-three young men and women who constitute the graduating class of the local high school this year, attended the service. He selected "The Good Foundation" as the subject of his sermon. It was very interesting and appropriate. The male quartet gave a selection. The services were well attended.

June 22 our elder, Bro. J. H. Longenecker, gave us a very interesting talk of his trip and happenings at the Conference. The most interesting part of the Conference was the Missionary Meeting. It was inspiring to learn of so many lives willing to go forth in the harvest of the Lord. The good news of the large collection received was also most cheering.

June 29 we met for Sunday-school at the Palmyra house. We were glad to have Bro. Nathan Martin with us. He gave a very needful talk to the school on the points we lack. He also preached the morning sermon for us, basing his remarks on Sunday-school and church work. "Be Filled with the Spirit" was his text. He spoke of the two different kinds of wells—one out of which we draw water, and one out of which water flows of itself.

June 30 the church met for council at the Spring Creek house, with Eld. J. H. Longenecker in charge. Seven letters of membership were received. We decided to hold another collection for Armenian-Syrian relief. Considerable work was disposed of, and some deferred to next council. Elizabeth Blauch.

Palmyra, Pa., July 10.

An Educational Directory of the Church of the Brethren

Some weeks ago an announcement of this undertaking was published, its probable results stated, and a request made for such aid as the "Messenger" readers can render. The main point to remember is that it is planned to publish a Directory, giving briefly the qualifications, achievements, and interests of members of the Church of the Brethren who are graduates of collegiate courses, that is, courses from which no one may be graduated who has not completed a four-year high-school course or its equivalent.

The Brethren colleges are supplying the names and addresses of their graduates of collegiate courses. The names and addresses of members who are graduates of such courses in other than Brethren colleges can be accurately obtained only if every reader of the "Gospel Messenger" coöperates by furnishing the names of all such members of their acquaintance. If you know of such members, will you kindly send their names and addresses at once to the compilers, using the blank below? If you do not know of such persons, will you please hand this article and blank to some one who does, or inclose it in your next letter to some one who may know of such members?

Blank, on Which Names and Addresses of Members of the Church of the Brethren Who Are Graduates of Courses of Collegiate Grade, Should Be Filled In and Sent at Once to the Compilers, in Care of W. Arthur Cable, 5515 Ingleside Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

W. Arthur Cable, 5515 Ingleside Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Brother:—

The persons whose names and addresses are entered below are members of the Church of the Brethren and, I believe, are graduates of courses of collegiate grade; that is, courses from which no one may be graduated who has not completed a four-year high-school course or its equivalent:

Name	Address	School from Which Graduated (If Known)
.....	.....	.....
.....	.....	.....
.....	.....	.....
.....	.....	.....

Name of sender, ... Address, ...

We thank in advance all who may aid in the work outlined above. Homer F. Sanger, W. Arthur Cable.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Custer-Yoder.—By the undersigned, at his home, May 14, 1919, Bro. Josiah Custer and Sister Sallie Yoder.—J. L. Weaver, Windber, Pa.

Giel-Smith.—By the undersigned, at his residence, July 10, 1919, Mr. Abram W. Giel and Sister Nellie E. Smith, of South English, Iowa.—J. H. Brower, South English, Iowa.

Lamborn-Moore.—By the undersigned, at the Kensington Y. W. C. A., June 28, 1919, Mr. Ernest Dixon Lamborn and Miss Alice Beeson Moore, both of Wilmington, Del.—C. C. Ellis, Huntingdon, Pa.

Schick-Eggert.—By the undersigned, in the First Church of the Brethren, Philadelphia, Pa., June 18, 1919, Brother Wm. C. Schick and Sister Christiana M. Eggert, both of Philadelphia.—C. C. Ellis, Huntingdon, Pa.

Shaffer-Huey.—By the undersigned, July 12, 1919, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister B. P. Huey, of Rockton, Pa., Mr. Clair J. Shaffer and Sister Carrie Huey, both of Rockton, Pa.—J. B. Hollopeter, Rockton, Pa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Brubaker, Anna, born near Brookville, Ohio, died July 13, 1919, at the home of her daughter in New Lebanon, Ohio, aged 79 years, 5 months and 27 days. In 1859 she was united in marriage to David Baker, with whom she shared the joys and sorrows of life until his death, which occurred in February, 1891. This union was blessed with four sons and seven daughters, of whom two sons and two daughters preceded her to the great beyond. In 1893 she married John F. Brubaker, with whom she lived until his departure in 1917. Since that time, owing to ill-health, she has made her home with her children. All that loving hands could do was attended to at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Weaver. There remain seven children, twenty-five grandchildren, and fourteen great-grandchildren. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for forty-five years or more, and remained faithful until the end. Services by the Brethren in the Sugar Hill church, at West Alexandria, Ohio.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Driver, Lawrence Emerson, eldest son of Bro. J. E. and Sister Lottie C. Driver, died at his home near Eaton, Ohio, of leakage of the heart, July 12, 1919, aged 8 years, 6 months and 14 days. Services by the writer assisted by Eld. J. F. Deaton.—B. F. Petry, Eaton, Ohio.

Frye, Ida Rose, nee Martin, born in Dixon, Ill., died at her home in Sterling, Ill., July 18, 1919, aged 44 years, 9 months and 29 days. She married Henry Frye, Jr., in 1895. To this union were born two daughters and one son. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, her father, one brother and two sisters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1893 and has been a very faithful, consistent member. She has been an invalid for two years. Services in the church at Sterling by the writer. Burial in the Riverside cemetery.—H. B. Mohler, Sterling, Ill.

rooms and playground. The everlasting hills, ined by green, served as walls. All felt we had an location. Some of our boys are yet detained in ce and a few are away on prolonged vacations, yet greater number, with friends and neighbors, were ent. Patriotism and loving fellowship beamed from y face, and we enjoyed a splendid program, rendered oth young and old. Loyalty, liberty, right and ress were emphasized. Nor were the physical needs otten. A delicious repast was spread on snowy s, telling of the Father's mindfulness to give us our bread. Quiet games among the children and young- eople, and happy, chatting groups of older folk filled waning day with joy. We have reason to believe the Lord was not ill-pleased with our "celebration," ne, acknowledged birthday of our fair land, and we ced in his very evident Presence.

endora, Calif., July 14. Mrs. Sylvia L. Netzley.

SPRING CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA

ty 8, Sunday evening, Bro. Frank Carper preached Baccalaureate Sermon at the Palmyra house. Twenty- e young men and women who constitute the gradua- class of the local high school this year, attended the ce. He selected "The Good Foundation" as the ect of his sermon. It was very interesting and appro- e. The male quartet gave a selection. The services well attended.

ne 22 our elder, Bro. J. H. Longenecker, gave us a interesting talk of his trip and happenings at the erence. The most interesting part of the Conference the Missionary Meeting. It was inspiring to learn of aily lives willing to go forth in the harvest of the l. The good news of the large collection received was most cheering.

nc 29 we met for Sunday-school at the Palmyra house. were glad to have Bro. Nathan Martin with us. He a very needful talk to the school on the points we He also preached the morning sermon for us, g his remarks on Sunday-school and church work. Filled with the Spirit" was his text. He spoke of two different kinds of wells—one out of which we water, and one out of which water flows of itself. ne 30 the church met for council at the Spring Creek e, with Eld. J. H. Longenecker in charge. Seven rs of membership were received. We decided to hold hcr collection for Armenian-Syrian relief. Consider- work was disposed of, and some deferred to next cil.

Elizabeth Blauch.

lmyra, Pa., July 10.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

se note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a age notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Mes- " subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should ade when the notice is sent, and full address given.

ter-Yoder.—By the undersigned, at his home, May 14, 1919, Bro. Custer and Sister Sallie Yoder.—J. L. Weaver, Windber, Pa.

-Smith.—By the undersigned, at his residence, July 10, 1919, Mr. n W. Giel and Sister Nellie E. Smith, of South English, Iowa.— Brower, South English, Iowa.

born-Moore.—By the undersigned, at the Kensington Y. W. June 28, 1919, Mr. Ernest Dixon Lamborn and Miss Alice Beeson e, both of Wilmington, Del.—C. C. Ellis, Huntingdon, Pa.

ick-Eggert.—By the undersigned, in the First Church of the ren, Philadelphia, Pa., June 18, 1919, Brother Wm. C. Sehlgk Sister Christiana M. Eggert, both of Philadelphia.—C. C. Ellis, ngdon, Pa.

ffer-Huey.—By the undersigned, July 12, 1919, at the home of ride's parents, Brother and Sister B. F. Huey, of Rockton, Pa., Clair J. Shaffer and Sister Carrie Huey, both of Rockton, Pa.—J. llopeter, Rockton, Pa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

baker, Anna, born near Brookville, Ohio, died July 13, 1919, at ome of her daughter in New Lebanon, Ohio, aged 79 years, 5 ns and 27 days. In 1836 she was united in marriage to David , with whom she shared the joys and sorrows of life until his which occurred in February, 1891. This union was blessed four sons and seven daughters, of whom two sons and two sters preceded her to the great beyond. In 1898 she married F. Brubaker, with whom she lived until his departure in 1917. that time, owing to ill-health, she has made her home with her en. All that loving hands could do was attended to at the of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Weaver. There remain seven en, twenty-five grandchildren, and fourteen great-grandchildren, was a member of the Church of the Brethren for forty-five years rs, and remained faithful until the end. Services by the Breth- n the Sugar Hill church, at West Alexandria, Ohio.—D. M. r, Trotwood, Ohio.

ver, Lawrence Emerson, eldest son of Bro. J. E. and Sister Lot-

Garber, Amanda, daughter of Eld. Jacob and Cathrine Garber, died July 14, 1919, aged 68 years, 7 months and 7 days. She was the youngest, save one, in the first family of children. Because of ill health she could not attend to family duties as readily as others. After the death of her mother, which occurred when she was two years old, she was kindly cared for by a stepmother, assisted by the half-sisters and brothers of the home. She united with the Church of the Brethren at eighteen years of age, and has been in fellowship ever since. Her father was called from labor to reward in 1909, since which time she has been kindly cared for in the homes of her sisters. Peacefully and quietly her spirit took its flight at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ephraim Longs, of Trotwood, Ohio. In her passing she leaves two sisters, four half-sisters and one half-brother. Services by Bro. J. W. Beeghly and the writer at the Bear Creek church. —D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Markley, Sister Orie, daughter of Brother and Sister Jonathan Yoder, died at the hospital, Goshen, Ind., July 13, 1919, aged 33 years, 11 months and 5 days. She married Wm. Markley in 1896. To this union were born one son and one daughter. She is survived by four brothers and two sisters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1896 and was a faithful member. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. J. H. Schrock.—J. H. Fike, Middlebury, Ind.

McCreary, Sister Hester, nee Farmwald, born Feb. 14, 1878, died at her home in Goshen, June 27, 1919. She was married to Samuel McCreary May 26, 1894. She was anointed a few days before her death by Bishop D. L. Miller and her pastor. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, three sons and her aged mother. Services in the Goshen City church by the pastor. Interment in the West Side cemetery.—F. A. Myers, 124 North Fifth Street, Goshen, Ind.

Metzker, Sister Polly, widow of John Z. Metzker, died at her home in Martinsburg, Pa., June 7, 1919, aged 82 years, 1 month and 29 days. Feb. 21 of this year she sustained a stroke, from which she never recovered. She is survived by one son and one daughter. Services at the church at this place by Eld. M. R. Brumbaugh. Interment in the Cross Roads cemetery.—J. H. Crofford, Martinsburg, Pa.

Miller, Mary Ellen, daughter of David and Rebecca Miller, born in Kosciusko County, Ind., died at Warsaw, Ind., July 13, 1919, aged 39 years, 10 months and 29 days. An unsuccessful surgical operation resulted in her death. In 1895 she became a member of the Church of the Brethren, in which faith she lived and died. She is survived by father and mother, one brother and two sisters. Services at West Manchester church by the writer, assisted by Eld. Amos Freed. Burial in the cemetery near by.—Mayne Landis, North Manchester, Ind.

Mohler, Wm. D., son of Henry and Hannah Mohler, born near Covington, Ohio, died near Minot, N. Dak., May 27, 1919, aged 56 years, 7 months and 9 days. In 1885 he married Anna Bashore. To this union six children were born, all of whom survive. Services at the home by Eld. Addie Miller, of the Old Order Brethren, assisted by Eld. D. T. Dierdorff. The body was taken to Covington, Ohio, where services were conducted at the Sugar Grove church by Eldors O. Bowman and J. H. Goolsby.—D. T. Dierdorff, Minot, N. Dak.

Petry, Mary E., daughter of Washington and Elizabeth Ridenour, born near College Corner, Ohio, died in the bounds of the Price's Creek church, July 9, 1919, aged 75 years, 8 months and 26 days. She married John M. Petry in 1864. To this union were born four sons and three daughters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1895 and was a faithful member. She leaves her husband, four sons, three daughters, twenty-nine grandchildren, twelve great-grandchildren, two sisters and three brothers. Services at Wares' Chapel by the writer. Burial in cemetery near by.—Sylvan Bookwalter, New Paris, Ohio.

Phillips, Bro. Preston R., died at his home near Brownsville, July 13, 1919, aged 53 years, 3 months and 23 days. He was a deacon in the church and a very active worker as well as leader. He was president of our Brownsville Brethren's Temperance Union at the time of his death. He was also superintendent of the West Brownsville Sunday-school. He leaves his wife and nine children, also a number of grandchildren, two sisters and four brothers. Services at the Brownsville church by Bro. Elmer Rowland, assisted by Brethren N. P. Castle, John Bute, M. A. Stutzman and S. F. Spitzer. Interment in cemetery adjoining.—Mrs. Nellie S. Kaetzel, Brownsville, Md.

Prowant, Helena Bechtel, born in Ohio, died at Chadwick, Ill., July 13, 1919, aged 90 years, 2 months and 16 days. For the past six years she was an invalid. Services by the writer at the Milledgeville church.—J. E. Miller, Elgin, Ill.

Rader, Sarah Ella, nee Summers, born near Spencerville, Ohio, died July 6, 1919, aged 55 years and 27 days. In 1886 she married Christian Rader. To them were born five children, all of whom died in infancy. In 1912 she united with the Baptist church and lived a consistent Christian life. She leaves her husband, two daughters, one son and a sister. Services at the Baptist church by Rev. Taylor and Bro. Jas. A. Guthrie. Interment in the Mendon cemetery.—Mrs. James A. Guthrie, Spencerville, Ohio.

Roberts, Wm. Durrett, died at his home, near Nortonsville, Va., June 19, 1919, aged 84 years, 2 months and 5 days. Bro. Roberts was twice married: His second wife died five years ago. He was a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for about fifty-three years. His death was due to the infirmities of old age. Services at the Shady Grove United Brethren church by the writer.—G. A. Maupin, Free Union, Va.

Rodgers, Bro. Jacob, died at his home in Sterling, Colo., July 17, 1919, aged 64 years, 2 months and 23 days. He was married Feb. 21, 1878, to Mary Mitchel. To this union were born nine children, three of whom preceded him. He was a member of the Christian church for seventeen years. Six years ago he united with the Church of the Brethren. Funeral services were held in the Baptist church, as the churchhouse of the Church of the Brethren is being remodeled. Interment in the Sterling cemetery. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. D. B. Miller.—L. L. Alger, Sterling, Colo.

Shiflett, Maggie, daughter of Mrs. Cynthia Shiflett, died in Richmond, Va., aged about 15 years. The body was brought to the former home in Albemarle County, Va. Burial in the Pries Hill United Brethren cemetery. Services by the writer.—G. A. Maupin, Free Union, Va.

Stump, Bro. Jacob C., born in Elkhart County, Ind., Jan. 4, 1849, died May 8, 1919, in the bounds of the Goshen City congregation. He married Lydia Zentz in 1871, to which union seven children were born. The wife preceded him seven years ago. The children all survive. Bro. Stump became a member of the Church of the Brethren twenty-two years ago. He was anointed during his illness by Eld. I. L. Berkey and his pastor. Services in the Goshen City church by the pastor. Interment in the Southwest cemetery.—F. A. Myers, 124 North Fifth Street, Goshen, Ind.

Whitmer, Sister Rebecca Jane, nee Best, born in Pennsylvania. In her early childhood she moved with her parents to Stephenson County, Ill. She was united in marriage to B. B. Whitmer in 1858, installed as his faithful helper in the ministry, and, later on, in the eldership. They served the church well, in this capacity, for over fifty years. To them were born five children, all of whom died in her years. To them were born five children, all of whom died in infancy except one who died in infancy. The children and husband have lost a loving mother and companion. Services at the Brethren church of Conway Springs, where they had worked and labored for years, by the writer. They had lived in the Conway Springs church for a

What Wou

In Your Church a

-:- I

Point 5 of the Sunday-school Goal of the Fo (Daily study of the lesson by every membe new family altars, a new study of Prayer
The devotional books below will help towa

Bible R

BIBLE READERS' GUIDE,—40c

F. S. Schenck, D. D.

A complete and concise outline for studying the entire Bible in one year. Illustrated with maps, charts, etc. Contains an introductory chapter on How to Study the Bible by D. L. Moody. Clear type on thin Bible paper, 340 pages, black leatherette binding.

BIBLE SELECTIONS FOR DAILY DEVOTION,—$1.20

This book is intended to furnish 365 daily lessons for those who lead in family or in public devotions. This relieves the leader of apprehension and enables him to bring

Helpful Book

ALONE WITH GOD,—75c

J. H. Garrison

A favorite manual of devotions, being a series of meditations and forms of prayer adapted to the use of either ministers or lay members, for both public and private worship.

BEFORE THE THRONE,—85c

George Darsie

Fifteen terse and helpful chapters on prayer, taking up such topics as: "What Prayer Must Be to Be Effective," "The Effect of Prayer on God," "The Effect of Prayer on Him Who Prays," etc.

OYNAMIC OF ALL PRAYER,—75c

G.-Granger Fleming

A new and vital statement of the importance of prayer indicating its true place and power in the great redemptive plan of God. Heartily commended by the Rev. Andrew Murray, author of the "With Christ" series.

GETTING THINGS FROM GOO,—Paper, 40c; Cloth, 75c

Charles A. Blanchard, D. O.

A very thoughtful and practical book for the individual or for the family or larger Christian group. A simple and interesting treatment of the vital subject of prayer.

HOW TO PRAY,—60c

R. A. Torrey, O. D.

This is not a book of prayers, but a book of suggestions on the duty and privilege of prayer. Or. Torrey shows, by Bible references, the importance of prayer, the resistless power of prayer, why many prayers are not answered, the necessity of obedience and thankfulness, how and when to pray, the consequences of the neglect of prayer, etc.

THE MEANING OF PRAYER,—75c

Harry Emerson Fosdick

A vigorous and inspressive treatment of prayer as communion with God, as petition for the things we need and as the expression of dominant desire. The discussion of obstacles to effective prayer is also very enlightening. Art leather.

Books of

BOOK OF PRAYER FOR EVERYBOOY ANO ALL OCCASIOVS

Cloth, 25c; Morocco, 35c

Geo. W. Noble

A manual of everyday prayers carefully selected from many sources for those who desire greater unetion and more freedom in prayer in public. It contains a large variety of prayers for church service, family worship, prayer meeting, Sunday-school, etc. Vest pocket size.

MY OAILY PRAYER,—Leather, 50c

Rev. F. B. Meyer

A book of short petitions by one of the foremost writers of devotional literature. Each prayer has its message

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, R. R. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor
L. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as Second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 493)

evening, were invited to the basement, where a lunch was served. Brother and Sister Schaar were surprised by a shower, quietly planned by the women's Bible class. They received many useful presents, for which they, in a pleasing way, expressed their appreciation. July 13 one was baptized. July 27 is the tenth circuit Sunday-school Convention will be held in our church. We are preparing a Children's Day program, to be given some time soon. We have taken up several new phases of mission work which, we feel, will be very helpful to us all.—Narcissa Ferguson, New Bethlehem, Pa., July 17.

Rummel.—We enjoyed a splendid two weeks' series of meetings while Bro. Leonard Root, of Illinois, was in our midst. Five were added to the church. Bro. Root used about fifteen minutes, prior to the opening of services, to tell us about the West, especially the mysterious caves of Colorado. This was much appreciated and added spice and interest to the meetings.—Mrs. J. E. Murphy, Rummel, Pa., July 17.

Uniontown.—Our monthly business meeting was held July 7. The committee reported that work had been started on the foundation of the Fairchance church. Our pastor, Bro. Carl S. Driver, handed in his resignation, to take effect in September. We are loath to have him leave, yet we feel that a greater work, perhaps, awaits him in the foreign field. We hope to secure some one to take his place by September. Our teacher-training class is about ready for its first examination. July 6 was Field Day for the Antioch League in our city, and Rev. B. L. Scott, of Pittsburgh, gave us a fine lecture in the evening. One has been baptized since our last report.—Orpha Collier, Uniontown, Pa., July 10.

West Greentree.—July 6 we held a Children's Meeting at Rheems, which was well attended. Some of the smaller children rendered recitations and songs, and an interesting address was given by Bro. Jacob L. Meyer. Sunday, July 27, Bro. J. F. Graybill, of Sweden, has promised to be with us in the morning at Greentree and the same evening at Rheems. Aug. 10 a revival is to be opened at Greentree, with Bro. Jacob W. Meyers, of Fredericksburg, Pa., in charge.—S. K. McDannel, Elizabethtown, Pa., July 17.

TEXAS

Pleasant Grove congregation met in council July 18, with Bro. J. A. Miller presiding. Two letters of membership were granted. It was decided to hold our love feast Sept. 13, preceded by a week's series of meetings. We also had regular services on Saturday evening and twice on Sunday. Bro. J. Wm. Miller was here with his singing class the fourth Sunday in June. We highly appreciate the good services he has rendered in the instruction of our young people.—Jessie Mahaffey, Huismith, Texas, July 22.

VIRGINIA

Germantown congregation met in council at Piedmont church July 5, with Bro. R. L. Peters as moderator. One letter of membership was granted. Our "Messenger" agent, Eld. J. W. Barnhart, resigned, and Bro. J. B. Peters was appointed. July 13 Bro. G. A. Brammer, of Daleville, was with us at the Brick church, and gave a very interesting sermon.—Zaida M. Barnhart, Wirtz, Va., July 19.

Manassas church met in council July 19, with Bro. Ralph G. Earick presiding. Our Harvest Meeting will be held on Saturday, July 26, at 2:30 P. M. Bro. Leslie Blough was elected presidcot of the Christian Workers' Society. Brethren J. M. Kline and S. C. Harley were elected delegates to District Meeting; alternate, Bro. E. Blough and Sister Nora Harley. A query was sent to District Meeting. Brethren Earick, L. M. Neff and M. G. Early gave short talks on loyalty to the church. Following this, we elected Brethren Wilmer and Alvin Kline and Leslie Blough to the ministry. Brethren Henry Stusher and W. D. Kline were chosen deacons. The installation will be held on Saturday, July 26, in connection with the Harvest Meeting. July 10 Bro. Earick began a series of meetings, which will continue until July 27. There are now fourteen converts.—Nora Harley, Manassas, Va., July 22.

Red Oak Grove church met in council July 12, with Eld. W. F. Vest presiding. Brethren Samuel Bowman and A. T. Naff were elected deacons. Brethren Samuel Manon and Gilbert Hylton were with us. We met July 13 for Sunday-school, which was followed by an interesting sermon by Bro. Asa Bowman.—Sorah Ella Bowman, Floyd, Va., July 21.

Summit church is anticipating a revival to be conducted by Bro. Ernest Coffman, pastor of the Harrisonburg church, beginning August 4. We will have a Vacation Bible School during the latter part of next month, beginning August 18 and lasting two weeks. Work will be given from the kindergarten to the high school. Since our last report we have made the following collections: District Meeting, $64; Annual Meeting, $300; Educational, $61 (in the form of a scholarship to Bridgewater College); Sunday-school pledge at Conference, $50; Elementary Department, including the Glade, $50.88 for missions, which was sent to the relief of the French and Belgian refugees; total, $525.88. June 15 was observed as Children's Day, with a program and an able address by the District Secretary, Minor C. Miller. The Sunday-schools have been supplied with Bibles during the past week. Brother and Sister Wampler, from China, visited us a few weeks ago and gave some very interesting information about that country, showing pictures and costumes.—Mattie F. Wise, Bridgewater, Va., July 20.

WASHINGTON

Olympia church met in council recently. Sunday-school and Christian Worker officers were elected, with Bro. Marion P. Stanley, superintendent of the former and Bro. W. C. Lehman, president of the latter. A committee of arrangements was also elected, preparatory to the District Meeting, to be held here Aug. 5-7. Since our last report an election has been held for deacons which resulted in the election of four: Brethren Ira L. Wogoman, Homer Moore, Marion P. Stanley and Alva O. Stanley.—Mrs. W. C. Lehman, Olympia, Wash., July 14.

Spokane church met in council June 28, with Eld. C. P. Rupel presiding. Brethren H. C. Needs and S. A. Shockley were present. Bro. Sherman Clapper, from the North Side Mission of this city, opened the meeting. One letter was granted. Bro. A. Brown was elected church clerk. Bro. Rupel was chosen delegate to District Meeting. Bro. Rupel preached both Sunday morning and evening. His subjects were, "The Tree of Eternal Life," and "Eternal Death." July 6 we had our Children's Day exercises during the regular Sunday-school hour.—Truman Aschenbrenner, Spokane, Wash., July 14.

WEST VIRGINIA

Fairview church met in council July 12, with Eld. I. W. Abernathy presiding. Brethren I. W. Abernathy and D. F. Liller were elected delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. Lee Ritchie, alternate. A collection of $16.87 was taken. Two deacons were chosen: Brethren Lee Ritchie and Wesley Harvey. They and their wives were installed on Sunday morning, July 13. Our love feast will be held Sept. 13. We expect Bro. Calvin R. Wolf, of Brandonville, W. Va., to commence a series of meetings Sept. 4.—Iva E. Harvey, Gormania, W. Va., July 17.

A College With Ideals

Christian Character Sound Scholarship
Unselfish Service

Thorough training is offered men and women in the varied courses as they have been reorganized into the following departments:

I. THE COLLEGE
- (a) Course in Liberal Arts, leading to the A. B. degree.
- (b) Course in General Science, leading to the B. S. degree.
- (c) Pre-Medical Course, two years.
- (d) Home Economics Course, two years.

II. THE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY
- (a) Theological Course, leading to the B. D. degree.
- (b) Christian Workers' Training Course, leading to the B. S. L. degree.

III. THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC
- (a) Course in Piano, four years, with diploma.
- (b) Course in Voice, four years, with diploma.

IV. THE ACADEMY
- (a) Normal English Course.
- (b) College Preparatory Course.
- (c) Business Course.
- (d) Expression Course.

Of the above, the General Science and Theological Courses will be offered for 1919-20. The demands of the church and of our own patrons in it, as well as the enlarged Faculty and increased equipment are the reasons for the extension of the scope of the institution's work.

Send for new illustrated catalogue and School of Theology Bulletin.

The Fall term will open September 15, 1919

The President, Juniata College
Huntingdon, Pa.

Have you decided to get that schooling next year?

You will need it if you are planning for life work in any of these lines:

Ministry Teaching
Mission Work
Farming Business

In fact, whatever your life plans may be, whether along religious or secular lines, you will find it most helpful to have a better education. Now is the time to so decide.

MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE
Mount Morris, Illinois

Knobley.—Our love feast will be held Sept. 6, at the Knobley church. Eld. B. H. Smith will begin a series of meetings Aug. 24.—Albert L. Sites, Antioch, W. Va., July 19.

Salem church met in council July 5, with Eld. Jeremiah Thomas presiding. Bro. Obed Hamstead was also with us. The church decided to hold a Bible term at Salem and a committee was appointed to arrange for same. Bro. F. C. Barnes donated $300 to the church, to be known as the Barnes Fund,—the interest to be used for church purposes. Bro. Obed Hamstead, of Oakland, Md., began a series of meetings at the Shady Grove church June 26, continuing until July 6. Seven accepted Christ and were baptized. The attendance was very good and we feel that the church has been strengthened.—Ida D. Wilson, Brandonville, W. Va., July 17.

White Pine.—Bro. B. W. Smith, of the Beaver River congregation, began a series of meetings June 17 and continued for two weeks. Two were baptized. Bro. Smith gave us some very fine sermons and everybody seemed to enjoy the meetings.—Robert A. Rinker, Purgittsville, W. Va., July 17.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

August 5-7, District of Washington, at Olympia.

August 18-21, District of Oregon, at Portland.

August 21, District of N. and S. Carolina, Ga. and Fla., Brummett Creek church, Mitchell Co., N. C.

August 28, District of Southern Indiana, at Rossville church.

August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.

August 30-Sept. 1, District of N. Ill. and Wisconsin, Camp Grounds, Lena, Ill.

Oct. 7-9, District of Northern Iowa, Minnesota and S. Dak., at Lewiston, Minn.

LOVE FEASTS

Indiana
August 24, Lodoga.
August 30, New Salem.

Iowa
August 29, Libertyville.

Missouri
August 23, 7 pm, Prairie View.

Ohio
August 2, 6 pm, Sugar Creek, Bunker Hill house.

Pennsylvania
August 9, Georges Creek, Fairview house.
August 16, Indian Creek, County Line house.

Virginia
August 23, Lebanon.

West Virginia
August 23, Bean Settlement.
August 30, Maple Spring.

Preparation for World Tasks

THE war is over. A new era of prosperity and achievement has dawned upon our nation. We occupy a position of world leadership in industry, politics, education and religion. There are unprecedented opportunities for trained men and women. The young people of this generation fall heir to some of the world's greatest problems and therefore occupy a position of tremendous responsibility. They must have the best and most thoro preparation for the great tasks which await them.

Bridgewater College

offers that training of body, mind and soul which prepares young people for these great world obligations. The supreme aim of the institution is to train young men and women for useful citizenship, true Christian faith, and an efficient and unselfish service to the race. A standard College, extensive courses, adequate equipment, able faculty, Christian ideals, a wholesome moral and religious atmosphere. Session opens on September 15th. Catalog upon application.

Bridgewater College
Bridgewater, Va.

To Develop a Student

into an individual able to think correctly for himself and not to make him into a phonographic record of his teacher.

THIS IS THE AIM AND IDEAL OF McPHERSON COLLEGE

That is why our graduates do things.

Hundreds of successful farmers, doctors, ministers, Sunday-school teachers, housekeepers, bankers, business men, teachers, etc., etc., etc., got their first start upward with us.

We can help you too. Give us a chance.

Write us of your wants.

McPHERSON, KANSAS

Fall semester begins September 15, 1919.
(Watch our space next week.)

...ith Ideals

Sound Scholarship Service

d women in the varied courses
he following departments:

the A. B. degree.
to the B. S. degree.

ars.

B. D. degree.
e, leading to the B. S. L. degree.

iploma.
ploma.

ogical Courses will be offered for 1919-20.
s in it, as well as the enlarged Faculty and
sion of the scope of the institution's work.

of Theology Bulletin.

September 15, 1919

The President, Juniata College
Huntingdon, Pa.

Preparation for World Tasks

THE war is over. A new era of prosperity and achievement has dawned upon our nation. We occupy a position of world leadership in industry, politics, education and religion. There are unprecedented opportunities for trained men and women. The young people of this generation fall heir to some of the world's greatest problems and therefore occupy a position of tremendous responsibility. They must have the best and most thoro preparation for the great tasks which await them.

Bridgewater College

offers that training of body, mind and soul which prepares young people for these great world obligations. The supreme aim of the institution is to train young men and women for useful citizenship, true Christian faith, and an efficient and unselfish service to the race. A standard College, extensive courses, adequate equipment, able faculty, Christian ideals, a wholesome moral and religious atmosphere. Session opens on September 15th. Catalog upon application.

Bridgewater College
Bridgewater, Va.

To Develop a Student

into an individual able to think correctly for himself and not to make him into a phonographic record of his teacher.

THIS IS THE AIM AND IDEAL OF McPHERSON COLLEGE

That is why our graduates do things.

Hundreds of successful farmers, doctors, ministers, Sunday-school teachers, housekeepers, bankers, business men, teachers, etc., etc., etc., got their

THE GOSPEL MES

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 1

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., August 9, 1919

Editorial—
What Peter Could Not Understand, ...497
Practicing the Presence of God, ...497
Getting Ready to Accomplish the Impossible, ...497
The Best Explanation, ...497
The Quiet Hour, ...503
Among the Churches, ...504
Around the World, ...505

Contributors' Forum—
Repairs or Prevention (Poem), ...498
Just a Few Words to Our Young People. By Leander Smith, ...498
Competing with the World. By J. H. Moore, ...498
The Southern Mountaineers—Number Two. By O. F. Helm, ...499
"As a Man Thinketh in His Heart, So Is He." By S. Z. Sharp, ...499
Relief Work in the Near East. By J. E. Miller, ...500
The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative.—Part Four. By Chas. M. Yearout, ...501
Warning and Witnessing. By M. M. Eshelman, ...501
The Seriousness of Offending. By Galen B. Royer, ...501
The Minimum of the Tithe. By Flora I. Heff, ...501

The Round Table—
The Doctrine of Baptisms. By C. D. Hylton, ...502
Salvation Is Free. By Daisy M. Moore, ...502
Rules for Rulers. By Rebecca C. Foutz, ...502
Death or Life, Which? By Olive A. Smith, ...502
The Reassuring Smile. By Oma Karn, ...502
"God Helps Those Who Help Themselves." By Julia Graydon, 503
Think on These Things Now. By J. O. Culler, ...503
The Stream of Life. By Margaret Dudte, ...503
Lest We Forget. By Charles R. Oberlin, ...503

Home and Family—
Overthrow of Belshazzar (Poem), ...506
By the Wayside Begging. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough, 506
The Part of the Aid Society in the Great Forward Movement. By Etta B. Haynes, ...506
When the Guests Did Not Come. By Ira H. Frantz, ...506

...EDITORIAL...

What Peter Could Not Understand

PETER was familiar with the practice of washing one's own feet with water provided by the kindness of the host as well as with the practice of servants washing the feet of their masters. But the idea of the master so disrespecting his own dignity as to stoop down and wash the feet of the servant—that was unthinkable. Peter simply wasn't going to have it. "Thou shalt never wash my feet."

This was not the first time Peter had misinterpreted the spirit of the new brotherhood. He was not going to have a scorned and criminally-branded Christ either. But he had to learn that self-denial was a universal law, a law of discipleship as well as of Messiahship.

At the last supper Peter got another good lesson. Jesus explained to him and to all the rest, "when he had washed their feet, and taken his garments and sat down again," what his new way of doing things meant. He told them all about the new relationship between servants and lords and between fellow-servants, the new bond that was to bind them together and determine their feelings and actions toward each other.

What a social leveler the simple service of feet-washing is! May be, rather. It does not do the leveling itself. It provides the opportunity. It creates favorable conditions. Are you utilizing them?

Have you learned Peter's lesson? Do you understand the great principle which seemed so strange to him? Are you putting it to practice?

Practicing the Presence of God

THAT is what the psalmist must have been doing. "I have set the Lord always before me," he said. He had the Lord's picture always in his mind. His im-

Getting Ready to Acc

ONE does not need to endorse everything connected with the great Methodist centenary celebration, recently held at Columbus, Ohio, to appreciate the one big outstanding fact which it forced upon the attention of the world. You may have your own opinion as to the wisdom of some of the methods employed. The celebration itself, in attendance and extent of preparations and programs, far surpassed anything in previous Christian denominational history. In the exhibits gathered from the four quarters of the globe, illustrating the field of missionary activities of this body, it almost rivaled some of the great world expositions.

The Methodists have just completed the greatest money raising campaign ever attempted by any church. To finance their activities for the next five years they have raised a fund of over one hundred and forty million dollars. Some of the press reports put the figures as high as a hundred and sixty-five millions. But the lower figure is sufficiently remarkable to excite wonder and admiration. Only the big "drives" to which we grew accustomed during the war enable us to understand how such an achievement is possible. It is an average of about twenty dollars for every man, woman and child in the Methodist communion.

Now it is not merely the big pile of money nor the big celebration they had over it that has called forth these remarks. It is the testimony which these things bear to the reality of a living religious interest. That is the "big fact" we referred to above. And it is a fact much too big to be ignored by any student of the signs of these unsettled times.

It is very true that the world can not be Christianized with money. It takes something much more alive than that. But money is a convenient symbol of human energy and when that energy is sanctified by a worthy ideal, the money which represents it becomes a mighty instrument for good. And human nature is not in the habit of putting vast quantities of money into enterprises in which it does not believe. It is the hint which this achievement of the Methodists gives of undiscovered possibilities that interests us so much. It is, in fact, a pledge that when the Christian forces of the world become conscious of two things, their own latent power and the urgency of the world need, they will do something analogous to what America did in the great war.

That, you may remember, was absolutely "impossible." The Kaiser fully realized what it would mean for America to raise an army of millions of men, train and equip them, transport them without ships across a submarine-infested ocean and maintain them there thousands of miles from the base of supplies—the Kaiser "knew" that such a thing was out of the question. All that need be said on that now is that the said Kaiser, regardless of what the Allies do with him, will never live long enough to recover from his surprise.

As for poor, simple-minded America, not having had experience in such gigantic military operations,

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

Repairs or Prevention

'Twas a dangerous cliff, as they freely confessed,
Though to walk near its crest was so pleasant;
But over its terrible edge there had slipped
A duke and full many a peasant;
So the people said something would have to be done,
But their projects did not at all tally.
Some said, "Put a fence round the edge of the cliff":
Some, "An ambulance down in the valley."

But the cry for the ambulance carried the day,
For it spread through the neighboring city.
A fence may be useful or not, it is true,
But each heart became brimful of pity
For those who had slipped over that dangerous cliff;
And the dwellers in highway and alley
Gave pound or gave pence, not to put up a fence,
But an ambulance down in the valley.

Then an old sage remarked: "It's a marvel to me
That people give far more attention
To repairing results than to stopping the cause,
When they'd much better aim at prevention.
Let us stop at its source all this mischief," cried he;
"Come, neighbors and friends, let us rally:
If the cliff we will fence, we might almost dispense
With the ambulance down in the valley."

—Joseph Malines.

Just a Few Words to Our Young People

BY LEANDER SMITH

Are you going to college? This question is now being considered by many of our young men and women. That it is one of paramount importance will be conceded by all who are competent to pass judgment. There is probably no other question, apart from that of the salvation of the soul, the answer to which means quite so much to the young man or woman.

A college education is not acquired in a day, or lost in an hour, but it is a lifetime possession and hence of lifetime value.

It is a question, so far as the coming schoolyear is concerned, and it may be for all the years, and it is one that must be settled speedily. Time will not wait for your decision, or atone for an unwise one. The question confronts you, and must be disposed of in one or two ways—for or against the college.

The very fact that you can not "make up" your mind, is a decision against a college career. You may be willing, but have you willed to go to college?

In deciding the question, several things will be considered. Perhaps, first of all, will come the matter of financial ability. Comparatively few have felt financially prepared for a college course. There are many things, and this among them, that we feel ill able to afford, and yet less able to do without. Many will be forced to borrow the money or forego the benefits of a college education.

It should not be forgotten that a college education is an investment, and that the best financiers borrow money to invest. In fact, most of the great fortunes have been made on borrowed capital. Without hesitation we will say: "If necessary, borrow the required amount to finish your education."

It may be replied that banks will not lend money without good collateral. While this is true, the prospective college student is not restricted to the bank in negotiating a loan. In well nigh every community there can be found some man or woman who, from personal or philanthropic motives, will gladly advance the comparatively small sum necessary for a college course.

As a matter of fact, we can not now recall the case of a deserving young person, who steadfastly set his face towards the college, for whom the way was not opened. We have known of many who were really anxious to go, but were without the unalterable determination that would have made possible a college education. Some will, of themselves, open the way, while with others their friends must take the initiative.

Just a word here to our readers who are seeking a profitable investment. It is probably true that not a few of our readers have been somewhat perplexed to find a safe and profitable investment. To all such we wish to suggest, yea, to urge, that they make possible a college education for some aspiring young man or woman of their community. The chances are greatly in favor of the fact that the money will be repaid, with interest, and in any event, would not be lost. Better invest in mind than in matter; in people than in things. Help to develop humanity. In the last analysis the only justification for making money is, that we may help mankind, and glorify God.

A final word to the candidate: Settle the question, and settle it now. When all is said and done, it is a question that you must decide. You can not evade the obligation, or shift the responsibility. If you are a child of God, settle it on your knees, in prayer to him.

Muscatine, Iowa.

Competing with the World

BY J. H. MOORE

In these days of excitement and thrilling entertainments, must the pastor run an amusement bureau to compete with the moving picture show? This is the question that an editorial of the Messenger for July 12 wishes some one to answer. We realize that it is not a fanciful question, propounded merely to call out a lot of answers. It deals with a live problem and a condition that every pastor in the land is up against. The moving picture shows are here to stay. So are the lecture platforms and other intellectual entertainments. Along these lines people, young and old, are privileged to enjoy the best of the sort there is in the land, if they are only willing to pay for it. Really, it is a matter of money to have or not to have. The man who is willing to hand out the money, can have excitement and thrilling entertainment to his heart's content. We mean the unconsecrated heart.

Shall the pastor ask his church to supply the money with which to provide entertainments fully as exciting as those furnished by the world? Then, shall he ask all his members, the poor as well as the rich, to pay the price of such entertainments? Or, is there a church in all the land that is willing to stand for such methods? Would not those who now regard our church services as entirely too tame for them, object to remodeling our churchhouses and making of them places of up-to-date entertainment? Some of them will pay one dollar for a reserved seat in a theater, but would they be willing to pay a like sum for the best pew in their home church?

Another thing: Would the young man, who feels that the services at church are too tame for him, like to have his sisters play the role of half the young women he sees on the stage? Would he like to hear young men, and older ones too, make the undertone remarks about his sisters that he hears them make about the stage girls? Would he want to see his intended on the theatrically-equipped stage in the church of his community, the church where his godly father and mother worship? We should say not. And this is just what must come to pass when the church decides to compete with the amusements of the land.

But why not provide for moving pictures in our church buildings, so as to keep the young people from patronizing the shows down town? Well, what is the difference between attending a show in one of the business blocks and the one provided for in the church on Saints' Avenue? Possibly the environment for the latter may be a bit better. After all, it is only a matter of bringing the evil to your church or in permitting the worshiper to go to the place where the evil properly belongs. It is like the parents who install the billiard table and the card table in their home, in order to keep their children from attending the games on some of the down-town streets. Instead of such a policy keeping young men and young women from evil, it only whets their appetite for a greater degree of excitement than can be provided for in the most wealthy homes. Not only so, but it unfits them for the duties and responsibilities of such homes as they may some day be able to establish.

And so it would be with the pastor who would undertake to provide exciting and thrilling entertainment for his members. The more of the questionable doings he brings into the house of God, the greater temptations he places before the weaker members of his flock. It is a clear case of bringing the world into the church, or of opening wide the doors of the church to the world and the allurements of sin. It is a clear case of going to the world for something to draw and hold people, instead of looking up to God for grace, strength and wisdom.

And since the services at church are too tame to interest the young man—and there are hundreds just like him—shall we lower the standard of the church to the level of the young man's thinking and living, or shall we, by teaching, prayer and personal effort, endeavor to bring the young man up to the standard of what the church of Jesus Christ really should be? Shall we bring all of the godly men and women of the congregation down to the level of the young men, who love the theater and moving picture show more than the house of God, or shall we urge the devout to remain steadfast in the faith, while striving for a still greater degree of holiness in themselves as well as in the people who are being led astray by exciting and thrilling entertainments?

Here is the problem: As it was in the days of Noah, when the whole world went headlong into sin, and as it was in the days of Sodom, when ninety-nine persons out of every one hundred lined up with the ungodly world, so it is today. It is history all over again. It is laying anew the foundation for the displeasure and wrath of God. People, whose names stand on the church roll, are lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God and his righteousness. They frequent the house of mirth so often that the prayers, songs and sermons seem too tame for them. This is plain talking, but it is the truth all the same.

And yet we must do something to win and hold the hearts of all the young people—the young man who loves exciting entertainments as well as others. We must compete with the world, not by appropriating the sinful methods of an ungodly world, but by introducing and maintaining services and entertainments that are uplifting and purifying in their character.

What the world offers leads to sin. What the church offers must lead to righteousness and holiness. In this manner the church can compete with the world, and it is her only lawful way of engaging in competition. It is the world and sin on the one side and the church and holiness on the other. The world is not coming to us for our spiritual worship, our prayers, sacred songs, Scripture reading and ordinances, nor should the church go out into the world for entertainments that have only the world behind them.

But what shall we do for our young people? Improve our services all along the line. We need better sermons, better singing, better prayers and a set of members who will take more interest in the work and services of the church and in the young people as well. We must have a body of members who are as energetic about their religion as they are about their various occupations—members who are thoroughly alive in the church services and who, with the preacher, will put real life into all of the services. Every member who can sing ought to do his best in the songs. If he does not feel like singing he must, by the aid of the Holy Ghost, make himself feel like it, and sing until he gets in the spirit. Then he should listen to what the preacher has to say, and let it be seen that he is listening. Also let the preacher have something to say worth listening to. After dismissal, let everybody meet everybody else. Something of this sort will help the young man to sit up and take notice.

Our Sunday-school and the Young People's Meetings need to be real lively gatherings. They need life and brain, and work as well. Let nothing drag. Add a variety of things that are in keeping with the spirit of the occasion. There will be other gatherings and other entertainments that need equal care, attention and wisdom. In and out of these gatherings the social feature cuts an important inment for his members. The more of the ques-onable doings he brings into the house of God, the eater temptations he places before the weaker embers of his flock. It is a clear case of bringing e world into the church, or of opening wide the ors of the church to the world and the allurements sin. It is a clear case of going to the world for mething to draw and hold people, instead of look-g up to God for grace, strength and wisdom.

And since the services at church are too tame to terest the young man—and there are hundreds st like him—shall we lower the standard of the urch to the level of the young man's thinking and ing, or shall we, by teaching, prayer and personal ort, endeavor to bring the young man up to the andard of what the church of Jesus Christ really ould be? Shall we bring all of the godly men and omen of the congregation down to the level of the ung men, who love the theater and moving pic-re show more than the house of God, or shall we ge the devout to remain steadfast in the faith, ile striving for a still greater degree of holiness themselves as well as in the people who are beg led astray by exciting and thrilling entertain-ents?

Here is the problem: As it was in the days of oah, when the whole world went headlong into n, and as it was in the days of Sodom, when nine-
-nine persons out of every one hundred lined up ith the ungodly world, so it is today. It is history over again. It is laying anew the foundation for e displeasure and wrath of God. People, whose mes stand on the church roll, are lovers of please more than lovers of God and his righteousness.
ey frequent the house of mirth so often that the ayers, songs and sermons seem too tame for them.
is is plain talking, but it is the truth all the same.

And yet we must do something to win and hold e hearts of all the young people—the young man ho loves exciting entertainments as well as oth-
s. We must compete with the world, not by ap-ropriating the sinful methods of an ungodly world, t by introducing and maintaining services and enrtainments that are uplifting and purifying in eir character.

What the world offers leads to sin. What the urch offers must lead to righteousness and holiess. In this manner the church can compete with e world, and it is her only lawful way of engaging competition. It is the world and sin on the one de and the church and holiness on the other. The orld is not coming to us for our spiritual worship, ir prayers, sacred songs, Scripture reading and rdinances, nor should the church go out into the orld for entertainments that have only the world ehind them.

But what shall we do for our young people? Im-rove our services all along the line. We need bet-r sermons, better singing, better prayers and a et of members who will take more interest in the ork and services of the church and in the young eople as well. We must have a body of members ho are as energetic about their religion as they re about their various occupations—members who re thoroughly alive in the church services and who, ith the preacher, will put real life into all of the ervices. Every member who can sing ought to do is best in the songs. If he does not feel like sing-ng he must, by the aid of the Holy Ghost, make imself feel like it, and sing until he gets in the pirit. Then he should listen to what the preacher as to say, and let it be seen that he is listening.
lso let the preacher have something to say worth istening to. After dismissal, let everybody meet verybody else. Something of this sort will help figure. To win and to hold young as well as old, there is nothing like real friendship. And above all, let it be ground into the people, young and old, that the church is dealing with living issues that lead into eternity, and that the church and all her activities are in the world to mould the world and not to be moulded by the world. We are here to master the situation and not to have the situation master us.

Sebring, Fla.

The Southern Mountaineers

BY O. F. HELM

Number Two

CIVILIZATION must be brought to the mountain people, for the mountain people are not coming to civilization, and the schoolhouse alone will not solve the problem. It is one in which the school and mission must work hand in hand. The mountain people are not weak, but our long neglect of them, and our failure to develop them, because it will take a little of our time and means, has been a dark blot on the pages of our history.

During the selective draft it was shown that the boys from the mountains were not the healthy, vigorous type that people of their stock should produce. On account of being physically unfit, many were turned down. There were those mentally defective, while the quota of illiteracy among them dragged the southern mountain section to a very low place in the scale of national statistics. The mountain people, as a rule, seem to think that national problems do not apply to them and are of no interest to them whatever, so they go on with their hunting and fishing, or sit around with apparently no care in the world. This year the mountaineer made a fairly good crop of cotton, but the scarcity and the high prices of foodstuffs is bringing home to him a sad experience. He came in contact with the food shortage and felt it, and that has been about the only thing, concerning the war, that has been brought home to him.

It is likely that the war will do more for the mountain people than has been done for them in several generations. I have talked to several boys from the mountain sections who had been drafted, and I have read letters sent by others from France. Their eyes have been opened and they will not be the same boys when they return. They have seen the world outside, and they will demand more from their own people than they have had in the past. It has been proved time and again, that no matter how humble it may be, the highlander in every land comes back always to the little home in the hills. So will these boys come back, but the question is whether they will return only to sink back into their old shiftlessness, or to find that some earnest, thoughtful Christian people have taken steps to better conditions in the mountains.

The mountaineer of the Central South has, as a type, all that we, as a people, love to claim as a national characteristic. This is the stock that gave us such men as Lincoln, and now, after almost a century of neglect, it is time to turn some of our efforts, in the way of mission work, toward these people who constitute so valuable an asset, to whom we owe so much and have given so little. Perhaps there is no other people in our country about whom more has been said and written, and for whom less has been done, than the mountain people. Their virtues and shortcomings have been elaborated in magazines and even in books. Their sayings and doings have made interesting reading for the stranger far away, as he sits by his fireside on a winter's night, but ere the magazine or book is closed, the mountaineer is forgotten and left to his fate, to get along as best he can, in his own little world.

The mountaineers are fearless and feudistic; they advantage and opportunity she has, and finally her status in the family, makes one of the saddest pages in the history of the mountain people. Laws pertaining to social conditions or those pertaining to marriage, are scarcely known of in the more isolated mountain districts.

In some parts of the mountains the roads are almost impassable. There can be no community spirit possible where people are prevented from coming together. In some of the more isolated parts children can not go to school because the roads are impassable, and the church messengers—but few of them of course—will put themselves out to visit the spiritually impoverished of the mountain coves. Too many mountain people do not know how to live and they can not offer much in the way of food or comfort to messengers of God or any other kind.

Quite frequently men and women of wealth, who live in the North and West, make a journey through the mountains for no other purpose than to see for themselves just what the condition of mountain life really is, and to satisfy their own curiosity. When they leave, they perhaps carry something with them as a souvenir. Then they are gone, never to return or offer assistance of any kind; and the condition of the mountaineer is made no better by their coming. What the mountaineers need, most of all, are men and women of character and ability, who will take up their abode in the mountains, live and mingle with these people daily, and thereby be able to lead them to a higher and nobler life.

Edison, Ga.

"As a Man Thinketh in His Heart, So Is He"

BY S. Z. SHARP

Proverbs 23: 7

DID you ever think how much depends on what we think—that our thinking moulds our character? If we continually think evil, we become evil. This was the case of the inhabitants of the earth before the flood. The Bible tells us: "When men began to multiply on the face of the ground, . . . the wickedness of man was very great in the earth, and . . . every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." The result was that the whole human race, save one family, was destroyed from the face of the earth. Such was the result of evil thinking. Thinking leads to action, action to destiny.

It is wonderful what great things have sprung from thinking. Alexander, Cæsar, Napoleon, and the Kaiser thought they would conquer and rule the world, and came near doing it, but think of what streams of blood they shed, what millions of lives they extinguished, what billions of money they squandered, what property they destroyed, what awful anguish and suffering they produced—all the result of the "imagination of the thoughts of their hearts."

It is amazing what great things can be crowded into human thought. Once, in company with a Presbyterian minister from Kansas City, we went to the top of Pike's Peak, walked all over it, looked in every direction and took in its dimensions. "Now," said the preacher, "I have Pike's Peak—fifty miles long, twenty miles wide, fourteen thousand one hundred and forty feet high, all in my head—in thought."

All the great works and achievements of man in all ages once existed only in thought before they materialized. Think of "The Great Wall of China," fifteen feet thick, twenty feet high and over fifteen hundred miles long; "The Seven Wonders of the World," consisting of "The Pyramids of Egypt," "The Hanging Gardens of Semiramis" at Babylon, "The Statue of Zeus," at Olympia, "The Temple of Diana," at Literature presents the most extensive field of thought. It is all thought done up in packages called books. By means of literature, the men who lived thousands of years ago, still speak to us. The great libraries of all civilized countries are vast storehouses of thought. The Congressional Library at Washington, D. C., has over two millions of books and each book is a package of thought, preserved for future use. The largest library in the world is in London, with over five millions of books.

Students are especially interested in literature. It is by means of packages of thought that they get their education. Their business is thinking and drinking in the thinking of others. In the study of the Natural Sciences they follow the thoughts of the Great Creator. When they study Botany or Zoölogy and observe the beautiful arrangement of orders, families and species, they are following the thoughts of the Almighty. The great astronomer, Kepler, upon discovering the laws governing the heavenly bodies, with rapture exclaimed: "O God, I am thinking thy thoughts after thee." The same sentiment animated the Psalmist when in Psa. 139 he exclaimed: "How precious are thy thoughts to me, O God!"

However extensive are the thoughts exhibited in sculpture, in painting, in architecture and in literature, there are thoughts infinitely greater than all these, and more vast than all the thoughts in all the libraries of the world. They are the thoughts of the Creator before he created the universe. When every star and planet and world was as yet only contemplated, when every object in each, with all its parts was minutely preconceived, from the mighty leviathan of the deep to the tiniest microbe or bacillus, too small to be perceived with the most powerful microscope—all these were thought out by the Creator before they were called into being.

If what the text says is true, "As a man thinketh, so is he," then, by studying the thoughts of the wise and great and good, we become like them, and if we study the thoughts of God, as contained in the Bible, we become God-like, fitted for the unspeakable enjoyment in store for all those who love and serve God. Therefore we close with the words of Paul, found in Philpp. 4: 8: "Whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, . . . think on these things."

Fruita, Colo.

Relief Work in the Near East

BY J. E. MILLER

It may be well to repeat a few statements that have been made before. The American Committee for Relief in the Near East has general rules under which workers are sent out. Among these are a few simple statements that it will be well to remember:

1. They will send no one under twenty-five years of age.

2. They prefer those whose ages are in the thirties or forties.

3. They are not sending old people. From one and two you will be able to determine whether you would qualify, so far as age is concerned.

4. They desire to send those who are strong leaders, good organizers, well balanced in judgment and have the knack of getting along with others.

5. Those going to the Near East should have a record of good health. There is much hard work to do, in which physical and mental strength will be sorely tested.

A few are being sent from time to time. Such as wish to go should not be too exacting as to the particular field in which they will work, or the kind of work they are willing to do. Men with special fitness for some work and a general fitness for all around work are in demand.

As to the kind of work that is being done in relief stations I can only say that it includes all kinds of work. Relief stations must look after children who have just come into the world and must also care for those who are gray and bent with age, and all the ages between these two. They must tend to all the needs of the people under all conditions. Relief workers do not know in the morning what all they will be called upon to do during the day. They must be ready for every emergency. Planting and harvesting, building and repairing, feeding and clothing, securing work for those who can work, reëstablishing in their homes those who have long been away from them, reconciling family troubles, nursing the sick and lecturing the indifferent, are all a part of the relief worker's work.

Just now we are having trouble with race riots in America. Labor strikes are numerous and unrest is general. The Near East has its race troubles. The refugees do not always have the kindest feeling towards those who drove them out from their homes. And the Turks and those who have been in power are not always kindly disposed toward the returning refugees. Such conditions call for wisdom on the part of the relief worker. The sounder his judgment and the greater his experience, the more nearly will he fill his position with credit.

The boys and girls need special attention. They must be clothed and fed and housed. Their schooling must not be neglected. Unfortunately the Near East Committee is not in position to look after the spiritual needs of the people. It would be a most serious mistake to feed and clothe the boys and girls, and not to school them, and it would be a much more serious mistake to feed and clothe and school them, and then not give them religious training. For this reason it is well for those who go to the Near East, as workers, to be men and women who have deep religious convictions, and who will, in addition to the work that is required of them, be able and willing to give spiritual advice and direction whenever needed.

If the problem of transportation were solved, so that the food supplies in the Near East could be quickly and economically distributed, the question would be much more easy of settlement. But where railroads are few, good roads scarce and gas and trucks almost out of the question, distribution of food is much more serious than one at first might imagine. The fact that the people have not been accustomed to satisfy many wants, but have been simple in their living, enables them to adjust very quickly to necessary conditions, however poorly their wants are met.

I feel certain that among the good things that the Church of the Brethren has undertaken for the present year, none shows better her application of the spirit of service than the large sum she has raised to care for the refugees in the Near East. These liberal gifts prove that our church has caught the meaning of "ye have the poor always with you, and whensoever ye will ye can do them good." If you could see how appreciative those people are for the help that America has given, you would thank the Lord for the opportunity that came to you to take part in this work.

Elgin, Ill.

The Gospel Law of Faith Imperative

BY CHAS. M. YEAROUT

Part Four.—The Law of Righteousness

"All thy commandments are righteousness" (Psa. 119: 172).

Righteousness is doing right or right doing. Unrighteousness is leaving righteousness undone—not doing right. The doctrine of the Gospel is called "the word of righteousness." "He that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous." "And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before the Lord our God, as he hath commanded us." "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness" (Rom. 6: 16)? "Everyone that doeth righteousness is born of God." "Whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God." The righteousness of the law is fulfilled in those who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit, and the Spirit leads into all truth. "The work of righteousness shall be peace; and the result of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever."

If the people would live righteous lives there could be no war and devastation, because it is not right to kill and destroy. "For righteousness and peace have kissed each other." The principles of righteousness, as established in Christ, comprise all the commands and duties laid down in the plan of human salvation, as originated in the mind of the Eternal Father, and sent to this earth by his Son, for the government and direction of his children, that they might be made to conform to his will in all things. The New Testament reveals the righteousness of God from faith to faith. As it is written, "The just shall live by faith. For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness" (Rom. 1: 17, 18).

How does a person hold the truth in unrighteousness? By holding the truth in disobedience. Righteousness is doing the truth, and unrighteousness is leaving the truth undone. When Jesus came to his forerunner, John, and demanded baptism at his hands, John forbade, saying: "I need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?" Jesus replied: "Suffer it to be so now; for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." Baptism, then, is a righteous act, and to refuse or fail to be baptized, as Jesus commanded, is unrighteous, because it is refusing to do right, and so it is with every other commandment in the Gospel. Unrighteousness does not necessarily mean the committal of some crime or willful sin, but simply the leaving of right-doing undone. Refusing to obey God—which is right—is sin. "For all unrighteousness is sin" (1 John 5: 17).

Most of the people in Bible Lands, where they are brought under Bible teaching, will tell you that it is very wrong to do things which God has said we shall not do, and yet they seem to think it of little consequence to disobey the same God in leaving undone the things he has commanded his people to do—as though we had a right to obey God negatively, and to disobey him affirmatively; as though it made any difference whether we ignore the Word and counsel of God in doing the things he has forbidden, or leaving undone the things he has commanded. One is just as wrong as the other, for in either case the word and will of God are disregarded and his law set aside. The creature presumes to dictate to the Creator. "He that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin" (James 4: 17). All people that believe in God must admit that it is good and right to obey him. The greatest commandment in the Bible is positive, and our observance of all other commandments is wholly dependent upon our compliance with this. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind." And if a man love God, as set forth in this great command, he will delight to do everything that God has commanded.

Jesus says: "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me" (John 14: 21-24). We manifest our love and reverence for Christ by doing what he has commanded us, and to do otherwise, is to disown him as Lord and Master.

If the people under civil government did not obey the laws of the land any better than many of those professing to be in the Kingdom of God obey the laws of that Kingdom, then disorder, confusion and anarchy would reign; and civil government would cease to govern, and law and order fall into chaos. Jesus, in giving his last and great commission, makes his dominion and reign world-wide over the saints. "And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen" (Matt. 28: 18-20).

This commission includes everything commanded by Christ, and has behind it all power or authority in heaven and in earth, and is binding upon all who desire to do right, by obeying the laws of the heavenly king-stablished in Christ, comprise all the commands duties laid down in the plan of human salvation, riginated in the mind of the Eternal Father, and to this earth by his Son, for the government and ction of his children, that they might be made to form to his will in all things. The New Testament eals the righteousness of God from faith to faith. it is written," The just shall live by faith. For the th of God is revealed from heaven against all unliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the h in unrighteousness" (Rom. 1: 17, 18).

low does a person hold the truth in unrighteous-s? By holding the truth in disobedience. Right-sness is doing the truth, and unrighteousness is ving the truth undone. When Jesus came to his erunner, John, and demanded baptism at his hands, n forbade, saying: "I need to be baptized of thee, comest thou to me?" Jesus replied: "Suffer it be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all nteousness." Baptism, then, is a righteous act, and refuse or fail to be baptized, as Jesus commanded, unrighteous, because it is refusing to do right, so it is with every other commandment in the spel. Unrighteousness does not necessarily mean committal of some crime or willful sin, but simply leaving of right-doing undone. Refusing to obey d—which is right—is sin. "For all unrighteous-s is sin" (1 John 5: 17).

Most of the people in Bible Lands, where they are ought under Bible teaching, will tell you that it is y wrong to do things which God has said we shall do, and yet they seem to think it of little conse-ence to disobey the same God in leaving undone ngs he has commanded his people to do—as though had a right to obey God negatively, and to disobey n affirmatively; as though it made any difference ether we ignore the Word and counsel of God in ing the things he has forbidden, or leaving undone things he has commanded. One is just as wrong the other, for in either case the word and will of d are disregarded and his law set aside. The eature presumes to dictate to the Creator. "He that oweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin" ames 4: 17). All people that believe in God must mit that it is good and right to obey him. The eatest commandment in the Bible is positive, and our servance of all other commandments is wholly de-ndent upon our compliance with this. "Thou shalt ve the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all y soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy nd." And if a man love God, as set forth in this eat command, he will delight to do everything that od has commanded.

Jesus says: "He that hath my commandments, and epeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth e shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, d will manifest myself to him. If a man love me, will keep my words: and my Father will love him, d we will come unto him, and make our abode with m. He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: d the word which ye hear is not mine, but the ather's which sent me" (John 14: 21-24). We anifest our love and reverence for Christ by doing hat he has commanded us, and to do otherwise, is to sown him as Lord and Master.

If the people under civil government did not obey e laws of the land any better than many of those rofessing to be in the Kingdom of God obey the laws f that Kingdom, then disorder, confusion and anarchy ould reign; and civil government would cease to overn, and law and order fall into chaos. Jesus, in iving his last and great commission, makes his ominion and reign world-wide over the saints. "And esus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is iven unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, dom. Among the "all things" we find feet-washing practiced and commanded by our Lord and Master. He says: "If I your Lord and Master have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash the feet of one another: for I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you." The word ought carries with it great force. Luther translates it "sollt"—shall. In the "Emphatic Diaglott" it is translated "are bound." It is an act of righteousness and should be observed by God's people.

Berthoud, Colo.

Warning and Witnessing

BY M. M. ESHELMAN

IN Biblical typology Egypt stood for the unregenerated world. Joseph was perfected for rulership by sufferings, as was the Antitype, Jesus our Lord. Joseph and Jesus both witnessed through perfections.

Achan's intense covetousness met its just doom near Jericho, as a warning witness for every age. One example is quite enough.

When Uzzah put his hand to the ark, to steady it, his good intentions were rebuked by death, as a warning witness that good intentions, contrary to law, are out of place, not counted good in heaven, but will meet their just doom. Godly grace—not human presumption—is characteristic of the disciples of Jesus.

Ananias' and Sapphira's hypocrisy was quickly revealed, and they were sentenced and executed as a warning and a witness against every form of hypocrisy. Every disobedience receives its just recompense of reward.

Glendale, Calif.

The Seriousness of Offending

BY GALEN B. ROYER

"Please explain what Christ means in Mark 9: 43, 45, 47."—Mrs. C. T. S., Michigan.

IN the verses mentioned, Christ declares it were better to cut off the hand, the foot, or pluck out the eye, if any one of these "cause thee to stumble," than to keep these, and thereby miss entering "into life" or the "kingdom of God." As a result, the offender would be "cast into hell, where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched."

Such an unusual statement from the lips of one so gentle as Jesus, should have careful study in the light of its context, to gather rightly the Master's meaning.

It was very difficult, apparently, for the disciples to catch the Master's meaning of the "kingdom of heaven." Little did they appreciate his idea of an unworldly kingdom, a moral dominion, a purely religious community, held together only by the bonds of a common faith. On the way from the Mount of Transfiguration to Capernaum they disputed among themselves as to which one of them would be greatest in the Kingdom about to be established (Mark 9: 34). This dispute was carried on, too, while Jesus was teaching them about his sufferings and death (Mark 9: 31). How strangely preoccupied were their minds! How remarkable, too, when, through being apostles, ALL of them were assured greatness, that they were not satisfied, and wanted to know who would be greatest?

Jesus answers them through the eye-gate, as he calls a little child to him and declares they themselves must be humble like this child, and quit their unrighteous ambitions if they are to be in the Kingdom at all. Christ's teaching on this point, even today, is hard to reconcile with some things seen in the church. But if we remember that ambition may thrive in the church, but never in the Kingdom of heaven on earth, the difficulty is easily removed.

At this point Peter was either absent, or for some other reason John assumes leadership, and tells how demons were cast out by some one who did not follow erally can see nothing good beyond their own circle or following.

While the little child was still with him, Jesus rebuked their contentious and ambitions still further by declaring that "whosoever shall cause one of these little ones that believe on me to stumble, it were better for him if a great millstone were hanged about his neck and he were cast into the sea." Not a handstone for grinding, as used by the women in Palestine, but a large stone, turned by a donkey, is here referred to. Such a stone would drag one to the bottom never to rise.

"It were better for him"! Yes, it suits such a one—it is what he deserves. Though not expressed, it is strongly implied that this is what will come to pass to such a wicked one when judgment overtakes him. He who would mount to high places, regardless of the injuries to others, designated as "little ones," shall be cast down, not to earth, but to the lowest depths of the sea, to the very abyss of hell, with a heavy weight of curses tied to his neck, to sink him down, to keep him down—never to rise again.

It is an awful doom, but it is the end of selfish ambition and he is a wise one who anticipates God's judgment by judging himself. This is why Jesus repeats a stern warning, uttered before in the Sermon on the Mount—the words which the dear sister asked to be explained—the cutting off of the offending member of the body, rather than to cause another to stumble.

Then, are we to conclude that offenses against another—even little ones—are offenses against ourselves? That is just what Christ is seeking to teach his disciples. To restate the Master's words: "Rather than harm one of these little ones by your hand, foot, eye or tongue, mutilate that God-given body by removing the offending member; for if you sin against the least of these little ones, you sin against yourself."

Truly, the awfulness of the sin of causing another to stumble is forcibly depicted, and should prompt every one to apply the acid test to his own conduct. Who wants to go to hell? Shall I not, therefore, cut off the offending member of the body?

Some, in their zeal have so done and erred. Jesus does not say or even give permission to dismember any portion of the body to keep from sinning. Who does not prize his hand, foot, or eye, next to his life? Our bodies are God-given, are to be temples in which may dwell the Holy Spirit, and it is wrong to mutilate them in any manner unless thereby physical life is saved or health restored. Much less is it needful to cut off the member, to save from sin. In this instance, as in adultery, Jesus is seeking to lead us to have a right mind. Pluck out the sinful look and cut off the hand of violence and vengeance, through having the Spirit of Christ reign in the heart and life. Think on the things that are "honorable," "just," "pure," and "of good report" (Gal. 4: 8) and "God shall supply every need." Not thus to depend upon God and to turn to mutilating the body, is sinning in distrust and refusing Christ's real remedy for all sin.

Who Are the Little Ones?

1. The innocent, dependent children whom God gives the parents. What a responsibility in no way to mislead them!

2. The humble-minded, simply-trusting, full-of-faith ones who are in the fold of Christ. Think of the large number of children seven years old and older that come in this class! Then recall how many, in years gone by—as they grew towards manhood and womanhood—have left the faith and ask: "Why? What caused them to stumble?" Perhaps the immediate situation justified the church in cutting them off, but the stumbling—that first start—Jesus is after. How about that?

Paul, when a child, acted and talked like a child,

THE ROUND TABLE

The Doctrine of Baptisms

BY C. D. HYLTON

THE author of the Book of Hebrews, in the sixth chapter, refers to some fundamental doctrines of the New Testament.

We must accept these doctrines and then go on to perfection. A Christian character and life must be built on the foundation here referred to, which is repentance, faith, the doctrine of baptisms, laying on of hands, the resurrection from the dead and eternal judgment. These six foundation stones are essential, being taught by Jesus.

Did Christ teach more than one baptism? Evidently he taught water baptism and Holy Ghost baptism—both being necessary to a Christian life. The traditional washing of "pots" has nothing to do with our Christian lives.

Troutville, Va.

Salvation Is Free

BY DAISY M. MOORE

IT has often been said, and is, in great measure, true, that we value most what costs us most. When we can have something for nothing, it seems cheap and undesirable, many times. What we sacrifice most for, we appraise most highly.

Salvation is free, and is not offered to a chosen few, but to "every one."

It is the greatest blessing in life. Every one must know the craving for spiritual food, whether he realizes its import or not, and many seek to satisfy the appetite with false foods. As a result, there is spiritual anæmia.

As the body positively requires certain kinds of food, to continue in health, just as surely certain soul food is needed, and we need not buy it. There are no dreaded "high prices" in this case.

Salvation is free to us. It is ours for the taking—but why? Never forget WHY.

Because the great sacrifice of another for us, made it free—makes it free.

Without the death on the cross there never would have been salvation for a single soul of us. If tempted to underestimate this highest gift, pause and question why such a value is ours without price.

Some one else paid the price for us. We are bought with a price, you know.

Salvation is free to us—but it takes funds to send it to other hungry, thirsty ones. That is another tale, however.

Fairfield, Pa.

Rules for Rulers

BY REBECCA C. FOUTZ

WE hear much about the great advancement which the human race and civilization have made during the centuries, but it is worth while to stop and note that we have never outgrown the need of instructions which God gave a few thousand years ago. All our boasted progress has not made them in the least obsolete or out-of-date.

God knew that once his chosen people had attained the dignity of a nation, with a land of their own, they would want to be ruled by a king like the nations round about were. His simple method of judges would not be modern enough for them. So, among the commands—Deut. 17: 14-20—he gave through Moses for their future well-being, he told how the king should live, so that both he and his people could prosper and be blessed.

First, he was to be one from among them. This has never been difficult to follow, because people naturally want one of their own kind and race to be their leader, no matter what title they give him as ruler.

Second, he was not to multiply any kind of material wealth unto himself. Naturally, if he did, it would be acquired at the expense of his subjects. This, if obeyed, would keep him more on a level with them, and remove any temptation to make great show or display.

Third, he was to have a copy of God's law. In those days copies of God's Word were not to be had like they are nowadays. Making one was laborious and expensive work. The priests had an authentic copy and were supposed to teach the people what the law commanded. But God did not seem to consider this method sure enough for the guidance of the king. What if the priests failed to give him the necessary instructions? He could have the excuse that he did not know how the Lord expected him to live and rule his people. But no, he was to have no such excuse. He was to have a copy all his own, and the following words of the nineteenth verse tell very plainly the use he was to make of it: "And it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life: that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all the words of this law and these statutes, to do them."

And lastly and importantly, his heart was not to be lifted up above his brethren—fellow-countrymen, we would say. He must not get haughty or proud if his kingdom is to endure. He was to be one of them, serving them in humility of heart and in the fear of God.

Certainly, all this advice is as much needed now as when given. In fact, there never was a time when it was not applicable. And what a different history not only Israel, but the world ever since would have had, if these few plain rules had been followed by rulers.

But it seems that the many examples of those who have disobeyed them and because of which both they and their kingdoms have suffered and fallen, did not deter others from piling up wealth, using it for great show and pomp, trampling God's Word under foot and exalting themselves in his place. We have seen enough demonstration of this recently, well to know that those set up as rulers can not thus violate without bringing ruin upon themselves as well as others. Yes, God's commandments are sure and enduring, and are given for the people's own good, and for the highest as well as the lowest.

Waynesboro, Pa.

Death or Life, Which?

BY OLIVE A. SMITH

THERE is much disappointment abroad in the land because the Peace Conference decided not to impose the death penalty upon the ex-Kaiser. It is not strange that there should be this dissatisfaction. There have been 7,582,300 human lives sacrificed. The cash costs amount to between $180,000,000,000 and $195,000,000,000. Property damage, due to battle, troop movements and devastation, amounts to $22,000,000,000. These are the estimates sent out from Washington.

Why, indeed, should the man, who is supposed to be personally responsible for all this, be exempt from the penalty which he has inflicted, multiplied by millions, upon others? And even if there were any reason for preserving his physical life, it is argued that future generations must be provided for. The exile of Napoleon did not deter Wilhelm from his attempt to establish a world empire. The limit of human punishment, the death penalty, is urged as the only means of furnishing the necessary horrible example to future generations.

All of this argument sounds reasonable, but it is based upon that old, old fallacy which the world is outgrowing because it is inadequate to human needs. Life for life, "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," was tried for many centuries as a true basis for the administration of justice. But it could not endure.

If Napoleon had been executed, if he had suffered tortures indescribable and been torn to pieces instead of being exiled, would Wilhelm have taken the gentle hint and acted differently? We who know the least of his propensity to take hints can not but smile at the idea. And Wilhelm's grandchildren, will they be more likely to take from history the moral involved, should the nations decide to reverse their decision and execute him?

Do our statistics show that the criminal record is the lowest in those States where the death penalty is inflicted? Do hanging and burning at the stake deter human fiends from the commission of their crimes? There is scant proof of it. On the contrary, the States where capital punishment has been discarded show the lower per cent of crime.

The first principle of true punishment is that it should grow out of the offense as naturally as the branch of a tree springs from its mother trunk. Arbitrary punishment is not adequate punishment. We know from our own experience that the greatest punishment for our own sins, our mistakes and shortcomings, is to live with them, facing them day after day, week after week, and becoming more and more conscious of them as time passes.

There has always been a great deal of discussion as to whether the death penalty is really a more severe punishment than life imprisonment. As for real exile—the kind which should be meted out to Wilhelm—it has horrors which few of us can even imagine. The human mind is a mysterious organism. When it faces the inevitable, it has a marvelous power of adapting itself. We have been astonished, many times, at the manner in which condemned criminals have met the death penalty. And we are continually horrified at the suffering which is entailed upon those whose only task is to meet the conditions of life, as they themselves have made them.

Edward Everett Hale made every loyal citizen of this country forever indebted to him when he gave our school boys and girls the story of "The Man Without a Country." It will grow in meaning to them as they grow into maturity, and find exemplified, in their own experiences, the sufferings of the soul which sins against its fellows and brings upon itself the horrors of isolation and solitude. Homesickness has always been called one of the most harrowing of human emotions. And the homesickness of the exile, from which there can never be a respite, the weird necessity of living apart from human touch and sympathy, as this man must, in time, come to live, is it not a living death?

How should we endure it—we who fancy that we have been fairly good all our lives—if we were cut off from the human life about us and forced to live with nothing but our past, with its sins and failures? "Where there is no conscience there is no suffering," some one says. But conscience or, at least, consciousness of conditions, is an inevitable growth. Even this man—deluded or willful murderer—must, in time, be forced into consciousness.

This view may not be acceptable to those who believe that human justice, as we administer it, is all the justice there is. The man who has no faith that there is a higher court which still speaks in these words: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay," may wish to see Wilhelm's body made to go through some of those things which he brought upon the thousands of victims to his brutality. But there is a goodly chorus of voices to say: "Let Wilhelm live. Let him be the man without a country, the man without a home, without human love and human ties. Let him live the life that can have no hope, no responsibility, no purpose! Let him live with that awful past of his own creation! Let him have nothing to do but eommune with the God whom he dared to claim as the partner of his bloody work! Let him prepare to meet that God, through the years that are left to him." Such a verdict would be in harmony with the true purpose and dignity of international law.

Emporia, Kans.

The Reassuring Smile

BY OMA KARN

IT was evening time at Winona. A period of intermission afforded an opportunity to stroll down to the lake shore for a few minutes. A father—one of the Conference visitors at the place—with his three small children was just starting out in a boat for a ride on the lake. Evidently it was the first time the children had ever experienced anything of the kind. It was plain, as well, that the father was a proficient oarsman. One might not be far from the truth, to hazard the guess that at no very remote date in his life he has ke deter human fiends from the commission of r crimes? There is scant proof of it. On the trary, the States where capital punishment has n discarded show the lower per cent of crime.

he first principle of true punishment is that it uld grow out of the offense as naturally as the nch of a tree springs from its mother trunk.
itrary punishment is not adequate punishment.
know from our own experience that the greatest ishment for our own sins, our mistakes and rtcomings, is to live with them, facing them day r day, week after week, and becoming more and e conscious of them as time passes.

here has always been a great deal of discussion
o whether the death penalty is really a more re punishment than life imprisonment. As for exile—the kind which should be meted out to helm—it has horrors which few of us can even gine. The human mind is a mysterious organ-

When it faces the inevitable, it has a marvel-power of adapting itself. We have been as-shed, many times, at the manner in which con-ned criminals have met the death penalty. And are continually horrified at the suffering which ntailed upon those whose only task is to meet conditions of life, as they themselves have made n.

dward Everett Hale made every loyal citizen of country forever indebted to him when he gave school boys and girls the story of "The Man hout a Country." It will grow in meaning to n as they grow into maturity, and find exempliin their own experiences, the sufferings of the which sins against its fellows and brings upon f the horrors of isolation and solitude. Home-ness has always been called one of the most rowing of human emotions. And the homesick-of the exile, from which there can never be a ite, the weird necessity of living apart from hutouch and sympathy, as this man must, in time,
e to live, is it not a living death?

ow should we endure it—we who fancy that we e been fairly good all our lives—if we were cut rom the human life about us and forced to live nothing but our past, with its sins and failures?
here there is no conscience there is no suffering,"
e one says. But conscience or, at least, con-usness of conditions, is an inevitable growth.
n this man—deluded or willful murderer—must,
ime, be forced into consciousness.

his view may not be acceptable to those who bee that human justice, as we administer it, is all justice there is. The man who has no faith that e is a higher court which still speaks in these ds: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay," may wish ee Wilhelm's body made to go through some of e things which he brought upon the thousands ictims to his brutality. But there is a goodly us of voices to say: "Let Wilhelm live. Let be the man without a country, the man without me, without human love and human ties. Let live the life that can have no hope, no responsiy, no purpose! Let him live with that awful of his own creation! Let him have nothing to ut commune with the God whom he dared to n as the partner of his bloody work! Let him are to meet that God, through the years that left to him." Such a verdict would be in har-y with the true purpose and dignity of interonal law.

mporia, Kans.

The Reassuring Smile

BY OMA KARN

was evening time at Winona. A period of inter-figured as a star member in the boating contests of some one of our various institutions of learning. Anyway, he furnished proof of his ability to take care of himself and of others on the face of the waters. With one sweep of his strong arm, the boat put forth from land.

The effect upon the children, of this unexpected move on the part of their father, was interesting to see. A variety of emotions—surprise, dismay, fear—all mingled together upon their round, chubby countenances. They were grouped around him, the youngest partly on his lap, the other two, one on each side of him, clinging to his knees. When the boat took on the unexpected motion it did, with one accord they cast an inquiring look, a lovely, earnest regard, speaking eloquently of implicit trust, up into the eyes of their father. His ready response to this mute appeal on their part was a reassuring smile. The effect upon the children was instant and complete. Smiles took the place of the fear so recently moving their faces. Grasping their protector the more firmly, again with one accord, they settled down to the enjoyment of the novel experience of which they found themselves a part.

There are times when we children of a more mature age become afraid. Trouble arises, and doubt and fear attend our way. Not always are we as wise as were the little children of our narrative. Trusting in the power of our own might we continue fearing. Sometimes we even lose our way for a time, because we forget or neglect to look up into the Heavenly Father's face for the assurance that all is well. Why can not we exercise and command a faith and a trust in the care that has never yet failed us, such as is manifested by little children in a faithful, earthly father? The reassuring smile is there, awaiting our looking for it, quite as ready and quite as comforting as it was in the case of the father described. We fail to see and feel it because we do not look for it.

Ashland, Ohio.

"God Helps Those Who Help Themselves"

BY JULIA GRAYDON

How often we say it, in a laughing way, not giving it the real meaning. I have been forcibly reminded of it this last year—a year in which I tried to do what everyone else was doing, economize in everything. I found so often that when I made an old thing take the place of a new, some way turned up by which the old thing renewed was better than ever.

Ideas of all kinds suggested themselves to me as to what I could do to make the old things last longer, and I really began to say to myself: "God helps those who help themselves."

And I believe our God is on the side of the right kind of economy—the kind we have to practice so much nowadays.

Let's tell others to try it and see whether it is not true.

Harrisburg, Pa.

Think on These Things Now

BY J. O. CULLER

Supposing there should be an official announcement sent out by the Government that somehow, by a mistake, about twenty-five per cent of this year's output of tobacco had been mixed with enough arsenic (poison) to prove fatal to any one using it; that the mistake was not discovered until the arsenic was so mixed with all the rest as not to be detected from the pure; and that some of it had already been sent out to all the dealers, with an official warning that any one buying and using tobacco would do so at his own risk—what would be the result?

Those of you, whether brethren or sisters, who deliberately persist in adorning your bodies with unnecessary ornaments, whatever they may be, should remember that, even though Annual Conference does not decide that these inconsistencies be made a test of fellowship, she does advise her members to avoid all unnecessary appendages. This makes it equivalent to being a test of fellowship. Her united sentiment is, that it is a violation of the Gospel; and those who persist in disregarding her advice, do so at their own risk. The church is free. But remember that the Judge with whom we have to do may make it a test of discipleship, as in the case of the guest who did not have on the wedding garment, to whom the king said: "Take him and bind him hand and foot and cast him into outer darkness."

Here we approach a subject about which to speak is a shame. But shall sin of the worst kind go on in the church unrebuked, because it makes us blush to do so? Let us suppose that our Lord, who knows all about us, would, with all authority step up before you in person and say: "You assume the position of disciple in my Kingdom, called out from the world, pure and virtuous, but what is your object in wearing that low-necked dress? Why do you do it?" What would you say? Could you give him a respectable answer, No, you would simply be "speechless." Would you want the experience repeated? We trust you will repent while there is a chance to be forgiven. "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish" (Luke 13: 3).

Goshen, Ind.

The Stream of Life

BY MARGARET DUDTE

Out here in Manitou, Colo., as I sit watching one of the streams that, an hour before, was clear as a crystal and running at a moderate rate of speed, but now is rushing madly on in its angry way, I am made to think of life. How, at times, we go on in our own quiet way, with nothing to interfere with our happiness or routine of life and then, all of a sudden, something happens that throws us into a turmoil that lasts for hours and even days. Then all will be clear again and we will be our own sunny selves.

As the water strikes the stones in the bottom, it rises, then falls again and goes on with the rushing stream. How like that are we bound to run up against some obstacle which is bound to affect our lives. It wears upon us just as the water wears away the rocks little by little. Then we go on with the stream of life again, letting it carry us whither it will.

It is hard to get away from the obstacles. We must meet them everywhere. With the determination to overcome all hindrances—no matter where they are or no matter where we meet them—we will find our own place in the stream of life and come out more than conquerors.

Manitou, Colo.

Lest We Forget

BY CHARLES R. OBERLIN

Did you see that electric light above the platform, on Missionary Day, go on and off every few seconds? And did you catch its meaning? And did it really impress you to the extent of being willing, henceforth, to make a real sacrifice for the salvation of souls?

Did you know that that group of outgoing missionaries was the largest number ever sent out by the church in any one year? And that they numbered more than twice the number set as the goal in the Five-year Forward Movement?

Did you know the Conference offering almost reached $160,000? And did you help to put it over the top? Do you know that the 1920 Conference

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 10

Sunday-school Lesson, Winning Others to Christ.—Acts 16: 9-15; James 5: 19, 20.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Our Opportunities.

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. J. S. Showalter, of Roanoke, Va., in the Spruce Run church, W. Va.

Bro. D. K. Clapper, of Meyersdale, Pa., during the middle of October at Markleysburg, same State.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. Homer E. Blough, of Wichita, Kans., to begin Sept. 14 at Shannon, Ill.

Bro. W. L. Hatcher, of Rossville, Ind., to begin Sept. 7 in the Somerset church, Ind.

Bro. H. S. Randolph, of Chicago, to begin August 30 in the Maple Spring church, Pa.

Bro. W. E. West, of Mt. Morris, Ill., to begin Sept. 7 in the Panther Creek church, same State.

Bro. Claud V. Coppock, of Tippecanoe City, Ohio, to begin the latter part of October in the Stonelick church, same State.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One has been baptized in the Big Swatara congregation, Pa., since the last report.

Thirteen were baptized in the Willow Creek church, S. Dak.,—Bro. Leonard Root, of Mt. Morris, Ill., evangelist.

One confessed Christ in the Colorado Springs church, Colo.,—Bro. Ira J. Lapp, of Miami, N. Mex., evangelist.

Six were baptized in the Poplar Valley church, Mont.,—Brethren Deardorff and Reed in charge of the meetings.

Three confessed Christ in the Myrtle Point church, Oregon, Bro. G. C. Carl, of Portland, same State, evangelist.

Seven more, making eighteen in all, were baptized at Zion, N. Dak.,—Bro. C. C. Myers, of Waddams Grove, Ill., evangelist.

Two more, making thirty-nine in all, confessed Christ in the Ellison church, N. Dak.,—Bro. J. Edw. Jarboe, of Chicago, evangelist.

Twenty-nine confessed Christ—twenty-six of whom have been baptized—at the Cannon Branch house of the Manassas church, Va.,—Brother and Sister Ralph G. Rarick, of Covington, Ohio, evangelists.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. Samuel Edgecomb announces his removal from Fresno, Calif., to Eva, Okla.

Bro. J. I. Byler changes his address from Box 727, Youngstown, Ohio, to R. D. 2, Poland, Ohio.

The new house of worship in the Landess congregation, Ind., is to be dedicated Aug. 17—Bro. C. H. Deardorff delivering the sermon for the occasion.

In accordance with the change of location, announced in our last issue, Bro. H. H. Helman should now be addressed at 1004 E. Indiana Ave., South Bend., Ind.

Bro. W. G. Cook, of Billings, Okla., who since April 4 has been suffering from the effects of a stroke of paralysis, is—we are glad to learn—on a fair way to recovery.

Bro. S. W. Garber, who has been in charge of the pastoral work in Ottumwa, Iowa, since Dec. 1, 1916, has resigned from that work, and should now be addressed at 724 W. Division Street, Decatur, Ill.

Bro. G. L. Wine, pastor of the Polo church, Ill., accompanied by his wife and little daughter, gave the "Messenger" rooms a pleasant call last week, while on his way to the Burnetts Creek church, Ind., to conduct evangelistic meetings.

North Dakota, Eastern Montana and Western Canada is to be represented on the 1920 Standing Committee by Eld. John Brubaker, of Gleichen, Alberta. The late District Meeting at that place is noteworthy as being the first ever held within the Dominion of Canada.

Writing from Marash, Turkey, under date of July 12, Bro. A. J. Culler says: "Enclosed find three articles which I am sending by courier going direct to America. They aim to give a good idea of a well-operated station. Our station has been most highly complimented of late. It must be borne in mind that not everywhere is work so advanced as here. In many places there is still no real work done. Am well, working hard, and enjoying it immensely. It is now midsummer and very hot, and full of all sorts of insects." This letter reached the "Messenger" rooms July 29, having been mailed from New York by the courier. This was unusually quick communication. It was just a little too late for mention last week. The articles referred to will begin in our next issue and will be of exceptional interest.

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

The Second District of Virginia is to hold its various gatherings Aug. 20-22 in the Buena Vista church. We publish the programs on page 508.

Northern Indiana is to hold her District Sunday-school Convention and Bible Institute in the Goshen City church Aug. 19-22. The programs appear on page 510.

The Ministerial Meeting of Northern Virginia is to be held Aug. 28 and 29 in the Linville Creek church, at Broadway. The program will be found on page 510.

On page 508 we publish the programs of Oklahoma, Panhandle of Texas and New Mexico, to be held in the Washita congregation, near Cordell, Okla., Aug. 26-29.

The Ministerial Meeting and District Conference of Northeastern Ohio are to be held Aug. 27 and 28 at the Reading church. A further announcement is given on page 509.

If you are interested in far-reaching and aggressive plans for the progress of the Kingdom, be sure to turn to page 508, and read what Bro. J. H. Morris has to say about a wide-awake giver in the District of Texas and Louisiana. Incidentally you may note how his liberal proposition touched a responsive chord in the assembly. Did you ever see a finer illustration of the Scriptural precept: "Provoking one another to love and good works"?

There are various ways of honoring the memory of departed ones, or of showing our appreciation of those still living, but new visions will be given, perhaps, to most of us, by reading Bro. P. S. Miller's communication on page 507. As will be noted, Bro. D. C. Moomaw and wife gave $20,000 to the General Mission Board for educational purposes in Shansi Province, Northern China, in memory of their son, Lieut. Daniel Clovis Moomaw, who was killed in the battle of the Argonne Forest in France, Oct. 5, 1918. A further gift of $10,000, to Daleville, Va., College Endowment, is presented as a memorial to a little daughter, Mamie Bell Moomaw, who died more than thirty years ago. Not forgetting the faithful wife, who for fifty-four years has cheered him on life's journey, Bro. Moomaw gives $10,000 to Juniata College Endowment, Huntingdon, Pa., as "a memorial to Rebecca A. Moomaw," thus honoring most appropriately one who is still living. Imposing monuments may, in a way, express our love and respect. Far better, after all, are memorial gifts, such as referred to above, perpetuating from generation to generation the loving thoughtfulness of the donor who delights to be known as one "who loves his fellow-men."

MISCELLANEOUS

The District Conference of Oregon, and affiliated gatherings, will be held Aug. 17-20, as now arranged, instead of convening on the date previously announced.

The Full Report of our recent Conference has been mailed to all who ordered it. Any of our readers who neglected to order a copy of this very interesting Report, may still be supplied by sending his order at once. Only thirty-five cents per copy.

Notice to Members of Southern Illinois.—All reports of committees, reports of unfinished business, queries, programs, etc., intended to be a part of the business for the coming District Conference of Southern Illinois, to be held in Decatur Oct. 8, should be in possession of the Writing Clerk of the 1918 Conference by Aug. 25.—J. A. Smeltzer, Writing Clerk, Girard, Ill.

Indications point to large enrollments in our colleges for the coming school-year. A number of them have been using our advertising columns for the purpose of directing attention to the facilities they offer. These announcements are worthy of the careful reading of our people, both young and old. In this issue one of them offers opportunities of special interest to some person or persons who may desire to render service to the cause in a college kitchen.

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

Daily Bible Study.—Have you ever really weighed the importance of a daily study of the Word of God? It is not worth while figuring and considering how to do God's work, and to meet practically life's great demands, unless we have the inspiration and strength which come from daily dependence upon God's Word. It is as necessary for a man to read the Holy Oracles, if he would grow spiritually, as it is for him, daily and regularly, to eat food, if he is to grow physically, or to think and read, if he is to grow mentally. The sad plight of the sick, the infirm and dormant people, both within and without the church of Christ, is largely due to the fact that predigested food is substituted for the wholesome Word of God. Men are taking what others say about the Bible, instead of studying and reading the Word itself. They are utilizing all kinds of man-made devices, instead of going to the sources of supply, and dipping down into the great, deep, cold Well-spring of God's Eternal Truth. The asset of daily and habitually reading and studying the Bible should be recognized as an investment truly worth while by every devoted Christian.

A Good Definition.—Some one, who has the happy faculty of compressing a mighty truth within a very few words, offers the following: "Aristocracy is a brain without a body of real vigor. Bolshevism is a rugged body without a brain." It is well said, and quite suggestive of the thought that, after all, there is a happy medium between the two extremes—that equitable form of social organization which guarantees to every citizen life at its best, liberty in all things lawful, and the pursuit of happiness along well-recognized lines of discretion and for the general good of all.

When Principles Are Tested.—The Society of Friends is, like the Church of the Brethren, opposed to the taking of oaths. In their relief work in France they are called called upon, every now and then, to attest to the reliability of their declarations by means of a sworn statement, but they never violate their religious convictions—no matter how great the pressure. A quotation from a letter by one of their workers will be of interest: "We were summoned before the judge to make an official identification of stolen articles, and as we refused to swear to our statements, we are to be subject to a fine of from one to one hundred francs each, and such fine may be imposed as many times as we refused to take the oath. The fine has not been settled yet, as it is not finally decided by the judge himself but by a group of men higher up. Of course, they can make us pay quite an amount, but under the circumstances, I think, they will let us off very easy."

A Hard Task, But a Needful One.—A brother, who had been seriously wronged by a fellow-member, once remarked: "I believe that the hardest task of the Christian is to forgive fully and freely, but that is no reason why we should shirk our duty. The point is right here—unless we forgive others, we have no right to expect forgiveness for ourselves." The brother was right in his deductions. Even prayer—needful as it is—becomes a mere farce if we are all the while bearing a grudge against some one. The moment a man or a woman decides to forgive, there comes a new happiness into the heart, and religion becomes a reality. Right at that most critical point many people have failed, and as a consequence, have never been able to enter into peace. Neglecting to forgive some one who did them a wrong, perhaps years ago, they are nursing bitter feelings and strong resentment. As a result, no real joy can sweeten their lives. The peace of God can not abide in an unforgiving heart.

Interesting the Non-church Goer.—The pastor of a western church makes use of a card, bearing the following message: "This church is a power-house of religion. The message from its pulpit is for YOU—not for the other fellow. Are you keeping the batteries of your religion charged? Are you conserving your birthright? Every thinking, purposeful man has his standard of life. What is yours? Are you in the habit of attending church? You know that habit often determines conduct and action in the most vital issues. Are you satisfied with your point of view in religion? Or have you any really well-defined point of view? If you have no church home, or if you have one that is not satisfactory, come to this church. Step inside, look around, hear the minister, listen to the songs, open your heart to the wholesome influences of worship. Get acquainted with the earnest men and women in the service of the King. Be sure to attend the church services! Try the spiritual tonic of acquaintance with some of the best things the Master has in store for you. Get the uplift of the soul-sustaining sermon and cheerful songs. A cordial welcome awaits you."

The Sacrifice.—We were greatly impressed, the other day, by a little incident reported from far-away Russia: "She died that we might live," is the epitaph of a little Russian girl, Feodora Hurtat, who saved her younger sister and brother, but who, in so doing, sacrificed her own life. Down through the ages the supreme sacrifice of giving one's own life for the good of others has been offered again and again. It is, however, for the child heroes and heroines that the heart beats in its greatest sympathy. Little Feodora was taking a walk with her brother and sister. So interested were the children in gathering the pretty flowers along the way that they forgot that danger lurked while strolling on the railroad track. Suddenly looking up, Feodora saw the train approaching—in fact, nearly upon them. With lightning speed she seized her little brother and sister and hurled them off the track. She could not, however, get away herself from the impact of the onrushing train, and was dragged beneath the wheels of the engine. Terribly injured, she was lifted from the track and conveyed to the American Red Cross hospital. There everything humanly possible was done in her behalf, but to no avail. For five days the little sufferer lingered on; then she fell into the sleep that knows of no awakening until the dawn of the life beyond. Her unhesitating sacrifice of herself for those she loved is a renewed reminder to humanity that love is stronger than death—that it counts no sacrifice as being too great.

t of daily and habitually reading and studying the e should be recognized as an investment truly worth e by every devoted Christian.

Good Definition.—Some one, who has the happy lty of compressing a mighty truth within a very few ls, offers the following: "Aristocracy is a brain out a body of real vigor. Bolshevism is a rugged without a brain." It is well said, and quite suggest-of the thought that, after all, there is a happy medium een the two extremes—that equitable form of social nization which guarantees to every citizen life at its liberty in all things lawful, and the pursuit of happi-along well-recognized lines of discretion and for the ral good of all.

hen Principles Are Tested.—The Society of Friends ke the Church of the Brethren, opposed to the taking aths. In their relief work in France they are called d upon, every now and then, to attest to the reliability eir declarations by means of a sworn statement, but never violate their religious convictions—no matter great the pressure. A quotation from a letter by of their workers will be of interest: "We were moned before the judge to make an official identifi-n of stolen articles, and as we refused to swear to statements, we are to be subject to a fine of from to one hundred francs each, and such fine may be osed as many times as we refused to take the oath.
fine has not been settled yet, as it is not finally ded by the judge himself but by a group of men higher
Of course, they can make us pay quite an amount, under the circumstances, I think, they will let us off easy."

Hard Task, But a Needful One.—A brother, who had seriously wronged by a fellow-member, once re-ked: "I believe that the hardest task of the Chrisis to forgive fully and freely, but that is no reason we should shirk our duty. The point is right here—ss we forgive others, we have no right to expect ivcness for ourselves." The brother was right in his deions. Even prayer—needful as it is—becomes a mere e if we are all the while bearing a grudge against e one. The moment a man or a woman decides to ive, there comes a new happiness into the heart, and ion becomes a reality. Right at that most critical t many people have failed, and as a consequence, never been able to enter into peace. Neglecting to ive some one who did them a wrong, perhaps years they are nursing bitter feelings and strong resent-
t. As a result, no real joy can sweeten their lives.
peace of God can not abide in an unforgiving heart.

teresting the Non-church Goer.—The pastor of a tern church makes use of a card, bearing the follow-message: "This church is a power-house of religion.
message from its pulpit is for YOU—not for the r fellow. Are you keeping the batteries of your re-on charged? Are you conserving your birthright?
ry thinking, purposeful man has his standard of life.
at is yours? Are you in the habit of attending church?
know that habit often determines conduct and action the most vital issues. Are you satisfied with your t of view in religion? Or have you any really well-ned point of view? If you have no church home, or ou have one that is not satisfactory, come to this
rch. Step inside, look around, hear the minister, listen he songs, open your heart to the wholesome influences worship. Get acquainted with the earnest men and nen in the service of the King. Be sure to attend the rch services! Try the spiritual tonic of acquaintance n some of the best things the Master has in store for . Get the uplift of the soul-sustaining sermon and erful songs. A cordial welcome awaits you."

he Sacrifice.—We were greatly impressed, the other
, by a little incident reported from far-away Russia:
e died that we might live," is the epitaph of a little sian girl, Feodora Hurtat, who saved her younger er and brother, but who, in so doing, sacrificed her own

Down through the ages the supreme sacrifice of ng one's own life for the good of others has been red again and again. It is, however, for the child oes and heroines that the heart beats in its greatest apathy. Little Feodora was taking a walk with her ther and sister. So interested were the children in hering the pretty flowers along the way that they for-that danger lurked while strolling on the railroad
k. Suddenly looking up, Feodora saw the train ap-aching—in fact, nearly upon them. With lightning ed she seized her little brother and sister and hurled m off the track. She could not, however, get away her-from the impact of the onrushing train, and was

AROUND THE WORLD

Why Crime and Violence Abounded

According to the report of a missionary in a small town in the interior of the Philippine Islands, at least four thousand gallons of alcohol were consumed each month by the people of that section—the native drink, tanduay, having an alcoholic percentage of at least eighty. The pernicious results of such a constant debauch were clearly in evidence on all sides. Physically, mentally and morally the curse of strong drink left its destructive impress upon the people. Now, since prohibition is to reign supreme on the islands, a new day has dawned for the Filipinos. It will mean stronger bodies, clearer minds and higher principles.

Newspaper Evangelism

While the possibilities of newspaper publicity have not been tested to any great extent in the United States, so far as an evangelistic propaganda is concerned, Christians in Japan have come to the realization that the daily newspaper may be made a powerful medium of reaching the masses. As ninety-seven per cent of Japan's rural population are quite untouched by Christian influences, but nearly all of them are newspaper readers, the journalistic plan of evangelism has proved a great success with them. Much information has thus been given about the real value of Christianity, and a great deal of prejudice has been successfully removed. In that way the Christian religion has become a general topic of conversation in the family circle as well as in public places.

Disappointing Harvests

Reports from the wheat-growing sections—especially those in which mainly winter wheat is raised—are decidedly disappointing. Several of the States report a yield that is millions of bushels below the most conservative estimate of a month ago. The sudden change from very cool, wet weather to an extremely hot and dry temperature caused the wheat to ripen prematurely and too rapidly, so that the berry is much shrunken. Though there will be a loss in quantity as well as in quality, in most of the wheat-raising States, there will be plenty for the people of this country, and considerable to spare for the needy ones across the waters. There is surely abundant reason to thank the Giver of all good, for all the bounties of earth are ours only through his favor.

Congressional Investigation of Lynching

By means of a strongly-endorsed petition, a number of prominent citizens are urging Congressional investigation of mob violence and lynching throughout the United States. "Patriotic citizens," the petition reads, "feel the shame which lynchings have cast upon the nation, but they have assumed partial responsibility for this shame by their silence and acquiescence. The time has now come when citizens of the United States no longer can contemplate, without protest, the setting at naught of the fundamental principles upon which their citizenship is based." The petition recounts that in 1918 sixty-seven persons were "done to death without trial or any process of law," and declares that often the innocent, with the guilty, "suffer the cruel infliction of mob violence."

Worldwide Prohibition

For the next few years, at least, worldwide prohibition is to be urged as the great foreign missionary activity of all religious denominations, according to plans of the "World League against Alcoholism." Ernest H. Cherrington, the executive secretary, announces that in various ways the church is being made to see that everything that touches human interest is a proper aim for the church's activity. In this he is right, for the liquor traffic has ever been the strongest single foe of the church and those things for which the church has been standing. This has been true at home as well as abroad. The liquor traffic has, with might and main, sought to defame the church during the past, and interfered with its highest achievements. Let there be a fight for prohibition in every land.

The Orphanage on Mt. Zion

Upon a hill that overlooks the Holy City, the Mount of Olives, the mountains of Moab, and the hills back of Bethlehem, is the Home for children orphaned by the war. "The Mount Zion Home" was founded some months ago by the American Red Cross Commission for [illegible] been entrusted to the Junior love, that they may become physically normal girls and boys again. Secondly, a school has been provided, where they may fit themselves for real usefulness. Thirdly, there is a church where moral strength is imparted to meet the trials and temptations of life.

Victims of Industrial Pursuits

During the war the total number of amputations among the American soldiers was less than 4,000. According to the most reliable statistics, about 26,000 amputations are made necessary each year by the various accidents in American industrial plants. The country is very much interested in having its crippled soldiers put in condition to resume their old jobs. In cases where this is impossible they are taught some new work, by which to maintain themselves. One is made to wonder why America's industrial establishments should not do as much for the cripples created by the accidents—which seemingly can not always be wholly avoided—as the Government is doing for the men who fought and bled in Europe.

Brewer Busch's Sunken Gardens

Built at an expense of $2,000,000, and one of the show places for tourists, Brewer Busch's sunken gardens at Pasadena, Calif., are to be sold either as a whole or in separate tracts. The gardens cover sixty acres. It required the buying of several million dollars' worth of beer to construct these gardens for the wealthy brewer and his family. No one will ever know how many beer drinkers had to contribute to the immense fund required for the creation of the charming sylvan retreat, nor can any one tell for how many years their families had to be stinted in order to provide for the construction of this earthly paradise. With the passing of the gardens into other hands, we are forcibly reminded of the fact that our land has entered upon the new era of nation-wide sobriety.

Italian Earthquake Relief

Amid so many appeals for assistance, one almost loses sight of some cases of need that, under ordinary circumstances, would arouse general sympathy. It is well that the Red Cross is ever watchful for just such cases. An appropriation of $50,000 worth of supplies and nearly $8,000 in cash has already been made to assist in the relief of the thousands of victims of the earthquake in the Mugello district, near Florence, Italy. Red Cross workers on the scene tell of great suffering as the result of the earthquake. Several towns were wholly wiped out, scores of persons killed, and thousands rendered homeless. The suffering is the more acute since many of the victims are widows and orphans of the war. Red Cross officials are to be commended that relief began to be furnished within a few hours after news of the disaster reached Paris.

The Power of a Hymn

It was but a village in South Africa, into which a British officer, weary from a long journey, entered one evening. Though the natives were partly under missionary influences, some still persisted in drinking the fiery native rum, and that evening had partaken of it rather freely. When the officer asked for sustenance for himself and his horse, the chief of the village gruffly refused, and even threatened his life if he did not immediately depart. Undismayed, the officer led his horse to a pool of water, and while it was drinking and grazing, sat down by the wayside. Unconsciously he began to sing: "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." He had hardly begun to sing when the Christian natives drew near, with food in plenty for the weary traveler and his beast. Stepping forward, their leader explained: "You sang a missionary hymn. All missionaries are our friends, and so you must be, too. You are welcome to be our guest." The hymn was a passport to their complete favor.

Deplorable Conflicts

Recent race riots—first in Washington, D. C., and other points, and of late in Chicago—impress one with the unwelcome fact that there is much uncalled for friction between the white and the colored races. In the Western Metropolis there have been a number of deaths and many cases of serious injury—all because irresponsible mobs of either race persisted in frenzied acts of violence without the least justification. As matters developed, city and State officials were confronted by a situation of things that was most critical. The issue was sharply drawn. The colored people did not seem to be inclined to recede from what they considered a just position in the community, and the whites seemed to be just as determined not to give way in the least, in their position of refusing to

HOME AND FAMILY

Overthrow of Belshazzar

SELECTED BY ANNA LESH

Belshazzar is king: Belshazzar is lord:
And a thousand dark nobles all bend at his board;
Fruits glisten; flowers blossom; meats steam, and a flood
Of the wine that man loveth, runs redder than blood.
Wild dancers are there, and a riot of mirth,
And the beauty that maddens the passions of earth;
And the crowds all shout
Till the vast roofs ring—
"All praise to Belshazzar, Belshazzar, the king."

"Bring forth," cries the monarch, "the vessels of gold,
Which my fathers tore down from the temples of old.
Bring forth and we'll drink while the trumpets are blown,
To the gods of bright silver, of gold and of stone.
Bring forth." And before him the vessels all shine,
And he bows unto Baal; and he drinks the dark wine;
While the trumpets bray,
And the cymbals ring—
"Praise, praise to Belshazzar, Belshazzar the king."

Now what cometh? Look, look! without menace or call,
Who writes with the lightning's bright hand on the wall?
What pierceth the king like the point of a dart?
What drives the cold blood from his cheek to his heart?
Chaldeans! Magicians! the letters expound.
They are read; and Belshazzar is dead on the ground.
Hark! the Persian is come
On a conqueror's wing;
And a Mede's on the throne of Belshazzar the king.

By the Wayside Begging

BY ELIZABETH ROSENBERGER BLOUGH

You have heard the story so many times that you can almost see the eager, questioning crowd around Jesus. Just when he was teaching them the greatness of service, just when they were wrought up to a high pitch of excitement—for Jesus was saying how each one might achieve greatness just then—the cry of blind Bartimæus was heard.

"'Why this outcry?' ask the people.
Hold, Bartimæus!
'Silence, silence, man! Why need you Clamor thus?'
But he did not cease his prayer,
Louder still it rent the air
As he pleaded
With his might,
'Son of David, give me sight!'

"Not the volume of his pleading,
Nor the uttered word,
But the spirit of entreaty
Jesus heard,
For his onward steps were stayed.
Quick he called for him who prayed;
Eager he
The Lord to find
Staff and mantle left behind."

Then Jesus stood still. He must see the man who was calling for help. The large crowd of people, to whom he had been preaching, were waiting to hear what he would say next, but Jesus was waiting too—waiting to help a blind beggar. It may have taken only a few moments—then Bartimæus, blind no longer, followed Jesus in the way. In the rush and whirl of things today it is good for us to think of this wayside beggar. Jesus had the most important work on hand that any mortal man ever undertook, but he stopped by the wayside to heal Bartimæus.

There were great places and mighty stations where Jesus lingered—Bethlehem, Bethany and Jerusalem. But these were not all. He had an interest in people and places by the wayside. He stopped often to help the suffering, to listen to those in trouble. Do you take time to hear the tale of woe that the chance stranger at your door wants to tell you? So often we read that "Jesus was passing by" when he stopped to do something for one who was in trouble. Such a wonderful mission! Yet he stopped often for the kindly deed, the loving word, just as happenings along the way. Little towns, and neglected sufferers, like the ten lepers, and unnoticed children, stretched their fringe of human want and woe the length of the wayside, along which Jesus walked. He was not impatient. One might almost think that he was glad to stop and heal Bartimæus. The interrupted journey did not worry him. He seems to have thought that the healing of the blind beggar was as important as his teaching the scribes in the temple.

Oh, we do so differently today! We think that some great task must be completed—that some great achievement must take every minute of our time and every atom of nerve force and strength—so we have no time for one other thing. We do not stop to realize that there is a hint of cruelty, of the ruthless, in all this haste and rush, this cold selfishness which overlooks everything else in our desire to reach the goal. Punctuality, thrift and thoroughness are noble and necessary things, but just because we love success, we extol achievement, and neglect the spiritual possibilities that fringe our wayside with pure gold.

How much chance would blind Bartimæus have when you are rushing for the train? You never see the little fellow, pale and thin, who is trying to help his mother by mowing the neighbors' lawns! He will not need your friendly word or encouragement, of any kind, a few months after this, for he is bound to succeed too. Even so, right now his heart is heavy and he wonders whether he shall ever be able to care for mother and go to school, but his mute pain and brave endurance mean nothing to you.

We make life beautiful on certain days—Christmas and birthdays and anniversaries—but I wish we could beautify every moment. If we could keep in mind that the roadside—dusty and hot—has its work for us, that on the warmest July day we are likely to have occasion to do something for some one forlorn, we shall have less to regret in the coming years. For there is nothing trivial, nothing to be evaded or set aside, nothing to be hurried over. Everything has its purpose and its place in God's plan.

There are so many blind men today who can not be cured. This war has left many men wandering in the night-time of blindness. There are so many sorrows that can not be removed or even sweetened. Then, too, there is a world of pain that need not be—a world born of sour looks and ungracious words and cruelty. What is the trouble with our family life? Unkindness—it means a world of pain that need not be. Oh, stop by the way and do what you can to cheer your brothers. God does not give you the Water of Life to be thrown upon the ground. Stop by the wayside and give your cup of cold water.

It is said that Gabriel, the angel, was given two tasks: One was to prevent King Solomon from the sin of forgetting the hour of prayer, when he had so much to enjoy. The other was to help a little yellow ant on the slope of Ararat, which had grown weary in getting food for its nest and which would otherwise perish in the rain. To Gabriel one behest seemed just as great and kingly as the other—seeing that God had ordered it.

"Silently he left
The presence, and prevented the king's sin,
And helped the little ant entering in."

Johnstown, Pa.

The Part of the Aid Society in the Great Forward Movement

BY ETTA B. HAYNES

(An Address Given at the Meeting of the Aid Societies at Winona Lake Conference)

When I think of the Aid Societies, I am reminded of a remark a Methodist minister made in a western city, some years ago: "The time was when the men were the pillars of the church, but now the women are the pillars, and the men are the pillowshams."

Our societies have become no small part of our church. Taking a glimpse of the past, we find that at the Conference of 1885 permission was given to organize such a Society, and that in September of the same year the first one was organized at Huntingdon, Pa. Not until 1909 was there any Aid Society Meeting at the Conference, but from that time on the work has grown. In 1910 the report showed 135 Societies, with a membership of over 3,000; money received, $5,407. In 1916, $28,595 was raised, so you can readily see the rapid growth of the Societies. Think of the $13,000, given for the Mary Quinter Memorial Hospital, and later the money for the equipment, besides many other charities. Stop a moment and think of the many who will learn of our Blessed Master through these efforts. We realize that there has been some splendid work done, but the past will not suffice for the future. We are not growing in grace unless we are going forward, and do more in the next five years than we have in the past.

In Philpp. 3: 13, 14 we have these words by Paul: "Brethren, I count not myself yet to have laid hold: but one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal, unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." May we, as workers, not spend too much time in thinking how we might have done better in the past, but let us stretch forward unto the things that are before.

Does our Aid Society stand for aid? It should be the goal of every Society to help those in need within her reach. The aim of the Society should not alone be to make money. Many souls have been born into the Kingdom through the efforts of the Society, and many a mother has taken new courage by a little lift from the Aid. Through these efforts we may have our eyes open to the need around us, and may learn to love our neighbor to the extent of really helping him.

While Paul, in his letter, was thinking of the higher goal, yet he felt that, without something to strive for, he might labor in vain. In all our daily walk we strive toward a goal, or at least we should, provided the goal is the right kind. The person who does not have some kind of a goal, towards which to work, will not likely amount to much; neither can we expect much of a Society when it has nothing in the future to look to.

Have the leaders set the standard too high? Can we attain unto it? I think we can encourage in all the standards, but here are a few I think we can especially help in reaching:

1. Systematic Giving.—If all the sisters in the church would set aside a given amount for the Aid work—not only those that go, but some that can not share in the work, but still do their part in giving—it would be possible to have a large share in the remaining six points that I want to mention.

2. One New Mission Station Under Each Board.—We might not only furnish the means, but some of the workers as well might come from the consecrated Aid members.

3. One Hundred New Schools Started.—Here again we could help both financially and with workers, and only time will reveal the amount of good done and souls won for Christ.

4. Fifteen Hundred New Scholars Enrolled.—I consider this a great work for the Aid—going out and gathering children for the Sunday-school, to help clothe them, to encourage the parents to send them to Sunday-school and to make it pleasant for them when they do come.

5. Every Sunday-school Scholar a Christian.—If we get pupils into the Sunday-school, we must treat them right and teach them, with all sincerity, the true Word. Let them know that we expect them to become members.

6. Fifteen Thousand Added to the Church.—The Aid workers should be interested in all the phases of church work. The one great motto for the Society should be: "Souls for Christ." If we have lived up faithfully to the points before mentioned, this, I believe, will not be very hard, if we pray earnestly and work as though we were really stretching forward.

7. Fifteen New Missionaries for Foreign Work.—If there is a Christian young man or woman in your congregation that would make a good missionary, pray for that one, that he may decide to do such work. Then help him to make the preparation. I believe that some societies could readily support a worker on the field.

Our societies are greatly in need of consecrated leaders, if we would reach the goal, unto which God has led us. God, in all ages, has had leaders. Leadership, with an ambition to attain, has been God's plan, all down the ages. Look at Moses, as he reached the Red Sea as leader of Israel. He saw the problems confronting him, with Israel in a discontented mood, almost ready to give up, perhaps. The only thing God ities. Stop a moment and think of the many who learn of our Blessed Master through these efforts. realize that there has been some splendid work e, but the past will not suffice for the future. We not growing in grace unless we are going forward, do more in the next five years than we have in the Philpp. 3: 13, 14 we have these words by Paul: ethren, I count not myself yet to have laid hold: one thing I do, forgetting the things which are be- , and stretching forward to the things which are re, I press on toward the goal, unto the prize of high calling of God in Christ Jesus." May we, as kers, not spend too much time in thinking how we nt have done better in the past, but let us stretch ward unto the things that are before.

oes our Aid Society stand for aid? It should be goal of every Society to help those in need within reach. The aim of the Society should not alone o make money. Many souls have been born into Kingdom through the efforts of the Society, and y a mother has taken new courage by a little lift n the Aid. Through these efforts we may have our open to the need around us, and may learn to love neighbor to the extent of really helping him.

While Paul, in his letter, was thinking of the higher , yet he felt that, without something to strive for, night labor in vain. In all our daily walk we strive ard a goal, or at least we should, provided the goal e right kind. The person who does not have some l of a goal, towards which to work, will not likely unt to much; neither can we expect much of a iety when it has nothing in the future to look to.

Have the leaders set the standard too high? Can we in unto it? I think we can encourage in all the dards, but here are a few I think we can especially in reaching:

Systematic Giving.—If all the sisters in the rch would set aside a given amount for the Aid k—not only those that go, but some that can not e in the work, but still do their part in giving—it ld be possible to have a large share in the remain- six points that I want to mention.

One New Mission Station Under Each Board.— might not only furnish the means, but some of the kers as well might come from the consecrated Aid nbers.

One Hundred New Schools Started.—Here again could help both financially and with workers, and time will reveal the amount of good done and ls won for Christ.

Fifteen Hundred New Scholars Enrolled.—I con- r this a great work for the Aid—going out and nering children for the Sunday-school, to help he them, to encourage the parents to send them to nday-school and to make it pleasant for them when do come.

Every Sunday-school Scholar a Christian.—If we pupils into the Sunday-school, we must treat them t and teach them, with all sincerity, the true Word. them know that we expect them to become mem- s.

Fifteen Thousand Added to the Church.—The workers should be interested in all the phases of rch work. The one great motto for the Society uld be: "Souls for Christ." If we have lived up hfully to the points before mentioned, this, I be- e, will not be very hard, if we pray earnestly and rk as though we were really stretching forward.

Fifteen New Missionaries for Foreign Work.—If re is a Christian young man or woman in your gregation that would make a good missionary, pray that one, that he may decide to do such work. en help him to make the preparation. I believe that ne societies could readily support a worker on the d.

gave him, to solve the problem was: "Speak to them that they go forward." What for? To accomplish the task. It meant failure to stay where they were. It meant success to go on.

We can all help, and should, in the standards already set, but the Society should have a standard of her own, just as much so as any other organization of the church. One of the first things in it should be: "Every sister in the church an active member of the Aid." With that, and consecrated leaders, the wonderful things the Society may accomplish, only time will tell.

Let us pray earnestly that we may be directed aright in this great Forward Movement, that the greatest possible good may be derived, and that it may be said of us, as of Mary of old: "She hath done what she could."

Virden, Ill.

When the Guests Did Not Come

BY IRA H. FRANTZ

MA was fixing for company. John and Will, with their families, were coming for dinner. She got out her best linen and silver and china. She cleaned two young chickens. It was rather early yet for fried chicken. John would be surprised. And Ma knew how well John liked fried chicken. In fact she knew just what each one of them liked, down to three-year-old Bobbie, and she planned her dinner so that every one of them would enjoy it. She knew just how to flavor the ice cream. She sprinkled pink sugar on the cake-icing, to please the little folks. She thought about making doughnuts—the boys liked them so well—but then she remembered that the doctor had advised Will to avoid rich pastries. So she did not make doughnuts. She opened her finest can of peaches—the one she had been saving for the time when the children should come home. Ma was humming a tune as she worked. She did enjoy fixing for company.

Dinner-time arrived at last, and Ma had everything in perfect readiness. John and his family came, but Will's telephoned that they had changed their plans and would not be there.

Ma's disappointment was proportionate to the care with which she had prepared the dinner. Of course John's enjoyed it and Ma enjoyed having them. But there was plenty for all, and all who ate could have enjoyed it more if the rest had been there to share it with them. Ma can get dinner for Will's some other time—get a good dinner too, for she is not poor. Yet there was only one finest can of peaches. Then, too, she will not want to make the next dinner exactly like this one, especially if John's come again. This dinner itself has been a great disappointment—because Will and his family did not come.

* * *

The pastor was preparing his Sunday sermon. As he studied and planned, he had in mind each member of his congregation and he tried to prepare food for all. He had discovered in his text a striking missionary thought which, he was sure, would be an inspiration to young Brother Smith and his wife who were making missions the end of their business. Here was an illustration that would help Brother Brown over his perplexity. Why, it illustrated the point so well that it seemed to the pastor it must be a God-send and he said: "Lord, I thank you for this. Oh, may it help him to see the truth."

Here, again, was an idea contained in his text which would be comfort and strength to Sister Baker, who had unusually heavy burdens to bear. Carefully and sympathetically the pastor prepared this dish.

He must have something yet for Will Freeman and Jimmie Hart. Dear boys, there was the making of text was just what he wanted. Strange he was so slow to see it! What a wonderful text this was! Again he thanked the Lord.

Here was something for Deacon Jones. It might be a bit dietetic, almost medicinal even, and the deacon might not find it very palatable, but surely he needed a little reminding on the subject of brotherly love. The pastor prepared this part of his sermon with prayer and care. He tried to make it as palatable as possible without making it indigestible. The Word was plain and he prayed it might help to restore Bro. Jones to spiritual health.

Thus he went on, considering the needs of each and all, and lovingly preparing to supply those needs.

Sunday morning dawned beautifully, and the pastor's hopes beat high. Surely, his people would all come today. His soul was aflame with the spirit of his message. Then Sister Brown telephoned that they would not be there. They had wanted for so long to go to see Uncle Jonathan, who was not very well, there was no time during the week, etc., and she hoped the pastor would excuse them. As Sunday-school was drawing to a close, and several families were still absent, including Sister Baker and the Harts, the pastor's spirits began to fall. Then—to add to his discomfiture—at the close of Sunday-school, Deacon Jones came around and said that some relatives from a distance were motoring over to his house for dinner, and that, therefore, he could not stay for preaching. Then, too, the Freeman family, without even taking the trouble to apologize, got up and left to go visiting. Is it to be wondered at that the pastor's disappointment was almost more than he could bear?

With a heavy heart he got up to preach. His enthusiasm was gone. The anecdotes and illustrations, with which he had so carefully spiced his sermon, seemed flat and tasteless to him. To be sure, there were a good many people there, including young Smith and his wife—God bless them, they never failed him. They all enjoyed the message and the pastor was glad to give it to them, for he loved them all. But they would have enjoyed it even more if the rest had been there to share it with them. And there was plenty for all.

Of course the pastor can prepare another sermon—praise God there is no dearth of material. And yet there is only one John 3: 16. Even though he could preach from the same text again, it will not do to give the same sermon nor to use the same illustrations. That particular sermon had a message for some people which they will never get. It was a fifty per cent failure—just because they did not care enough to come and hear it.

No wonder Monday morning finds the pastor out in the garden early, with his hoe, trying by vigorous physical exercise to work off his disappointment and to gather up new courage. Next Sunday, of course, he must have another feast prepared for them, even though he knows it will be half wasted. It takes a week to prepare a good sermon, so he must soon be at it.

Did you think, Brother Brown, that a pastor simply sat down and wrote his sermon and polished it to make it look nice and then, on Sunday, got up and preached it, satisfied if the attendance was fairly good and a few people complimented him and his salary was forthcoming at the end of the month? Then you do not know pastors! He wants to see you there. No one else can take your place.

Beattie, Kans.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

GIVE FIRST EVANGELISTIC MEETING BY THE

SECOND DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA

The Sunday-school and Ministerial Meetings of the above-named District will be held in the Buena Vista church, August 20-22.

August 20, 8: 30 P. M.

Sermon.—A. R. Coffman.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

August 21, 10 A. M.

Address of Welcome.—Pastor of Buena Vista church.. Response.—Moderator of the Meeting. Why Are We Here?—Dr. J. S. Flory. The Pastoral Problem: (a) In the City.—N. W. Coffman. (b) In the Country.—J. T. Glick.

Afternoon, 1: 30

The Duty of the Stronger to the Weaker Churches.—W. H. Zigler. The Ministers' Relation to the Forward Movement: (a) In a More Effective Local Ministry.—S. D. Miller. (b) In Evangelism and Conservation of Its Results.—A. S. Thomas. (c) In Increased Use of Our Church Literature.—Nannie Miller. (d) In Increased Missionary Activity: (1) Through the Organized Local Church.—Dr. R. E. L. Strickler. (2) In Relation to the Home Mission Goal.—P. F. Cline. (3) One Part in the Foreign Mission Goal.—M. G. Sanger. (e) In the Christian Workers' Meeting.—A. C. Miller. Round Table Discussion.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING

Evening, 8 o'clock

Addresses by Ernest Craun, N. D. Cool and Dr. Paul H. Bowman.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

August 22, 9: 30 A. M.

The Forward Movement in the Sunday-school: (a) How Can We Reach the Standard in Enrollment and Attendance?—E. P. Carper. (b) By What Agencies Can Sunday-school Pupils Be Brought to Christ?—J. C. Garber. The Sunday-school's Part in the Missionary Goal of the Forward Movement.—D. A. Evers. The Daily Study of the Bible in Every Home.—Dr. Paul H. Bowman. The Community Surveys: (a) Their Importance.—C. A. Glick. (b) How to Conduct Them.—Peter Garber. Reports from the Sunday-schools. Echoes from the Bible Training School.—Charles Wine, Nannie Miller, Joseph Caricofe, J. S. Wright, Quinter Miller, Lottie Key.

Afternoon, 1: 30

How Did the Vacation Bible School Help Our Church?—(a) Bridgewater.—H. G. Miller. (b) Middle River.—D. C. Cline. The Monthly Report.—L. V. Miller. How Provide and Use a Sunday-school Library.—J. T. Glick. How to Increase the Teaching Efficiency of the Sunday-school.—Homer Zigler. The Advisability of a Standard of Efficiency of Teaching in the Sunday-school.—N. W. Coffman. Business Session.

OKLAHOMA, PANHANDLE OF TEXAS AND NEW MEXICO

The various gatherings of the above-named District will be held in the Washita congregation, near Cordell, August 26-29. Elders' Meeting, Tuesday, August 26, 2 P. M.

Tuesday Evening, 8: 30

Temperance Meeting: Victories for Which We Rejoice.—V. K. Meek. The Fight Just Ahead of Us.—J. H. Morris. What We Have Done the Past Year.—Delegates. Report of the Temperance Secretary.—Charity Holsinger. Men's Meeting.—Ray S. Wagoner. Women's Meeting.—Birdie Morris.

Wednesday, August 27, 10 A. M.

Ministerial Meeting: The Minister as a Leader: (1) In the Financial Work of the Church.—Henry Holderread, Wm. Batty. (2) In the Sunday-school.—G. T. McGuire, Geo. Prentice. (3) In Community and Foreign Missions.—Jos. Hardy, N. S. Gripe. (4) In Loyalty to the Principles of the Church.—Ray S. Wagoner, J. H. Morris. (5) In Organizing the Church Forces.—B. Booze, D. E. Cripe. (6) The Cost of Leadership.—Jos. Sala, Jos. Nill.

Afternoon, 2 o'clock

Educational Meeting

Evening, 8: 30

Missionary Meeting

Thursday, August 28, 10 A. M.

Sunday-school Meeting: The Officers of the Sunday-school: (1) The Superintendent.—Nellie Kinzie. (2) Assistant Superintendent.—F. E. Marchand. (3) The Secretary.—J. A. Root. (4) The Treasurer.—Clark Garst. (5) The Librarian.—Marietta Byerly. (6) Cradle Roll Superintendent.—Charity Holsinger. (7) Home Department Visitor.—Minnie Rodes. A Model Adult Class.—John R. Pitzer.

Afternoon, 1: 30

Christian Workers' Meeting: What Constitutes a Christian Workers' Meeting? (1) As to Officers.—Oms Holderread, Albert Williams. (2) As to Music.—Jesse Smith, Wm. Root. (3) As to Field of Work.—Mary Prentice, Olive McNeil.

Evening, 8: 30

Child-Saving Meeting

Friday, August 29, 10 A. M.

District Meeting

Evangelistic services will be held each evening, except Friday, beginning at 6: 30.

DEATH OF THE J. F. ULLERY FAMILY

Sunday, July 20, Bro. Kurtz, of McPherson College, preached at Nampa. He had visited the Boise Valley church Friday and Saturday and a number of the Valley members came to the morning services. Eld. J. F. Ullery and family, consisting of his wife and two daughters, Lena and May, aged sixteen and twelve, respectively, were of this number. Bro. Ullery assisted in the services.

After church Bro. Ullery took his sister, Mrs. Chas. Shellaberger and her husband to visit a sick niece in Boise, twenty miles away. As they were returning to Nampa in the evening, their automobile collided with the trolley car, and all of the six were killed or fatally injured. Brother and Sister Ullery and their daughters, and Mrs. Shellaberger, were dead within an hour and Mr. Shellaberger, without regaining consciousness, passed away early next morning.

The tragedy was appalling. There were no services that night in the Nampa or Boise Valley churches. The Ullery funeral was held on Wednesday morning by the writer, assisted by Bro. J. H. Graybill. The bodies were laid to rest in the Kohlerlawn cemetery. The Shellabergers were buried next day on an adjoining lot.

Memorial services in memory of the Ullery family were held last Sunday. All were worthy members of the Boise Valley church. Bro. Ullery was financial manager of the church; Sister Ullery was solicitor for World-wide Missions; Sister Lena was treasurer and teacher in the Sunday-school; Sister May was a lovely flower, bringing sunshine to the home and church. Howard H. Keim.

Nampa, Idaho.

DEATH OF ELD. DAVID F. HOOVER

David F. Hoover was born in Henry County, Ind., Nov. 9, 1846. He was the youngest son of Eld. Geo. and Katherine Hoover. The family consisted of three sons and four daughters. David spent most of his life on the farm near the place of his birth. He taught fifteen terms of school, served as trustee of his township and also as County Probation Officer.

Eld. David F. Hoover

He was active in both District and Annual Meetings, serving as an officer of District Meetings many times and as Reading Clerk of Annual Meeting in 1905. He was on many committees, both from the local and general Conference. He was much interested in benevolent institutions, and was greatly instrumental in the establishment of an Old People's Home and Orphanage which was located near his home church. He was trustee and treasurer of the institution for twenty-four years.

Eld. Hoover married Mary C. Bonslog in 1872. To them were born seven children. Five sons survive, Paul S., the youngest, being in the ministry. With his wife he united with the Church of the Brethren in 1875. Two years later he was chosen to the ministry and ordained June 26, 1886. He served the church faithfully, doing some evangelistic work and also working among the mission churches of the Southern District of Indiana.

His wife died in 1908 and about seven years later he married Sister Minerva Haber.

He died at his home in Henry County, Ind., July 11, 1919, aged 72 years, 8 months and 2 days. He leaves his wife, five sons, seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Services in the Bethel church near his home by Eld. L. W. Teeter and the writer. Interment in the cemetery near by. Geo. L. Studebaker.

Muncie, Ind.

A TRIP TO THE DISTRICT MEETING OF TEXAS AND LOUISIANA

The writer attended the District Meeting of Texas and Louisiana in the interest of our historical work. The District Meeting is not like some of our Eastern gatherings in attendance, where we have such a large membership, but it has live workers.

Among the problems of the South is the Mexican. He is coming to the United States and what can we do with him? He needs to be Christianized, but before that he needs to be taught industry, thrift, cleanliness, etc. Those who know him, told of his habits. Bro. John Stump, of Miami, Texas, has been in Cuba and on the border of Texas and Mexico. He has seen the conditions and desires to do something. In order to get together, Bro. Stump proposed an industrial school for the Mexican children between the ages of six and twenty. He offered to give $35,000 if the Texas District would add $20,000 to it, and get 200 acres of land for the industrial farm. More than that, he would give $10,000 endowment, if they guarantee an equal sum.

After some discussion, the Texas District decided to accept his proposition and to get busy to raise the $20,000.

We came from there thinking of the far-reaching effects of such a move: Mexico about to be opened for missionary work and this industrial school to train natives to help their own people to be thrifty, clean, good farmers and, above all, to be Christians. Brother, offer up a prayer for its success! J. H. Morris.

Oklahoma City, Okla.

PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

Our annual Sunday-school picnic was held July 12 at Schenly Park, with an attendance of about one hundred. Picnickers and food were conveyed by automobiles to the park, and notwithstanding the fact that we had several showers, the picnic was enjoyed by all. About supper time we had, what threatened to be, a lasting rain, and as no one desired to spoil a good dinner under dripping umbrellas, we decided to finish the picnic in comfort in the church basement, where we had supper and a sociable time. We were sorry not to have our pastor, Bro. C. W. Warstler, present at this annual event, but he had been called back to Indiana for a few days. Services the following Sunday were conducted by Bro. S. W. Bail.

Some months ago we purchased the "No. 2 Kingdom Songs," and as we are not familiar with many of the songs, our regular Wednesday evening prayer meeting has been converted into a short devotional service, followed by song practice under the direction of our church chorister.

The Ladies' Aid Society continues to meet all day on Wednesday, and has been doing some very commendable work. They also spend one day a month at the Pennsylvania Workshop for the Blind, assisting in the cutting and preparing of materials for the workmen. Recently the Society purchased a quantity of brooms from the workshop for resale purposes. These sales yielded an additional income to their treasury, and also helped the workshop.

The mission at Birdville, Pa., is making rapid progress, with a steady increase in attendance and collection. We have also opened a mission at Hayes Station—an Italian settlement—in Pittsburgh. There is nothing special to report on this last project, but believing that "out of little acorns, great oak trees grow," we hope to be able to make an encouraging report in the near future.

5878 Burchfield Avenue. Nelle Forney.

The Minimum of the Tithe

(Continued from Page 501)

Papa meditates a little and then says: "Well, I believe there is a mistake; you worked very hard and there is no credit in the diary to your work. Many times the children did work and ran errands, which, had we hired it all done, would have amounted to quite a sum. Had you not been able to work and we had been compelled to hire a woman to come and perform the labor you have done, to say nothing of the extra hours you have given for the welfare of the children, it would have cost us, including her board, not less than one dollar and fifty cents each working day of the year, or four hundred and sixty-nine dollars and fifty cents. Now, adding that to the credit column for your labor, with even a small sum for work done and errands run by the children, we find that our income must have been considerably more than what the diary shows. There certainly was a mistake, a big one, and the great pity of it is, mother, that we have spent it nearly all on ourselves and given so little to others. Will we not henceforth give the tithe of our living expenses in money or first fruits?"

How many of us are living just according to the illustration given? If we are not able to run much of a bank account, buy an extra farm every ten or twelve years, make improvements in our houses and build larger barns, we think we are not prospering.

The fact is that we calculate and calculate to find out how much we have made above our living expenses, in order to ascertain how large or small our gift shall be, while we never stop to think that from our living expenses we must make our first estimate. "Will a man rob God?" Yes, the Bible says he will, in tithes and offerings.

Would it not be wise for all Christians to resolve that the minimum of our giving to others shall be a tenth of our approximate living expenses, and make our maximum gift a certain portion of our income above the living expenses?

Some families live more economically than others. As a rule it does not cost as much, proportionally, to support a large family as a smaller one. In the example given above, the average cost per week for each member of the family would be four dollars and thirty-three and a third cents. While very few Americans live for less, the cost is far too low for many families, when conveniences, luxuries, etc., are considered.

However, let us take the above estimate as a basis for computation. We find the tenth of the weekly income or living expense to be two dollars and sixty cents. Now that seems big when you count it out for the year, but does not that much at least belong to the One who gives us all we have? Should not father divide the part set aside as the Lord's portion among the members of his family, so that all may have a share in the blessing of giving? He shares the temporal things for their physical needs. But you say: "If it takes all I can make to keep my family, how can I give that which I do not have?"

Then, my dear brother and sister, there is something wrong with your management. Do not wait until the end of the year to pay the Lord his dues. Begin as the Scriptures say, "upon the first day of the week," and lay by. Deny yourself some pleasure or unnecessary apparel, and put to practice some of the things you

d by song practice under the direction of our church ister.
e Ladies' Aid Society continues to meet all day on nesday, and has been doing some very commendable
c. They also spend one day a month at the Pennsyla Workshop for the Blind, assisting in the cutting preparing of materials for the workmen. Recently Society purchased a quantity of brooms from the kshop for resale purposes. These sales yielded an tional income to their treasury, and also helped the kshop.
e mission at Birdville, Pa., is making rapid progress, a steady increase in attendance and collection. We also opened a mission at Hayes Station—an Italian ement—in Pittsburgh. There is nothing special to rt on this last project, but believing that "out of acorns, great oak trees grow," we hope to be able ake an encouraging report in the near future.
78 Burchfield Avenue. Nelle Forney.

The Minimum of the Tithe

(Continued from Page 501)

apa meditates a little and then says: "Well, I bee there is a mistake; you worked very hard and e is no credit in the diary to your work. Many es the children did work and ran errands, which, we hired it all done, would have amounted to quite
m. Had you not been able to work and we had n compelled to hire a woman to come and perform labor you have done, to say nothing of the extra rs you have given for the welfare of the children, vould have cost us, including her board, not less n one dollar and fifty cents each working day of year, or four hundred and sixty-nine dollars and cents. Now, adding that to the credit column for r labor, with even a small sum for work done and ands run by the children, we find that our income st have been considerably more than what the diary ws. There certainly was a mistake, a big one, and great pity of it is, mother, that we have spent it rly all on ourselves and given so little to others.
ll we not henceforth give the tithe of our living enses in money or first fruits?"
How many of us are living just according to the stration given? If we are not able to run much of ank account, buy an extra farm every ten or twelve rs, make improvements in our houses and build ger barns, we think we are not prospering.
The fact is that we calculate and calculate to find how much we have made above our living exnses, in order to ascertain how large or small our t shall be, while we never stop to think that from r living expenses we must make our first estimate.
Will a man rob God?" Yes, the Bible says he will,
tithes and offerings.
Would it not be wise for all Christians to resolve t the minimum of our giving to others shall be a th of our approximate living expenses, and make r maximum gift a certain portion of our income ove the living expenses?
Some families live more economically than others.
a rule it does not cost as much, proportionally, to pport a large family as a smaller one. In the ex-ple given above, the average cost per week for each mber of the family would be four dollars and rty-three and a third cents. While very few Amer-ns live for less, the cost is far too low for many milies, when conveniences, luxuries, etc., are conered.
However, let us take the above estimate as a basis r computation. We find the tenth of the weekly in-me or living expense to be two dollars and sixty nts. Now that seems big when you count it out for e year, but does not that much at least belong to the he who gives us all, we have? Should not father vide the part set aside as the Lord's portion among e members of his family, so that all may have a share the blessing of giving? He shares the temporal learned during the war concerning conservation, and the Lord will bless you according to his promise in Mal. 3: 10: "Bring ye the whole tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith Jehovah of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

You say that was for the Jew? Well, what did the Master mean in Luke 11: 42: "But woe unto you Pharisees! for you tithe mint and rue and every herb, and pass over justice and the love of God: but these ye ought to have done, and not to leave the other undone."

If you ever feel that you are too poor to give to the Lord, just pray to your Heavenly Father for faith to try it and he will give it you, and, not only the faith but such joy as you have never before had in giving and such a prayerful spirit to go with your gift that your soul will never again want to go back into its selfish tabernacle.

Wooster, Ohio.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

ALABAMA

Fruitdale church met in council July 5. The mission committee also met later and arranged preaching appointments for this year. We only have three ministers left out of five. Brethren Ralph White and Walter Replogle went north, a few months ago, and we were sorry to see them go. We have an evergreen Sunday-school—the average attendance being fifty. They report a good time. We also have Christian Workers' Meeting every Sunday evening, and a prayer meeting and song service every Friday evening.—J. Z. Jordan, Fruitdale, Ala., July 28.

COLORADO

Colorado Springs.—Our revival meetings, which began July 6, closed on Sunday evening, July 20, with a love feast, at which sixty-eight communed. The meetings from the beginning were a spiritual feast. One confessed Christ. Sister Clara Michael, of Bethany Bible School, Chicago, formerly of Colorado Springs, conducted the song service in a very efficient manner. Bro. R. F. McCune, of Ottawa, Kans., officiated at the love feast, assisted by Bro. R. F. Jennings, of Denver. Visiting members were present from the Denver, Rocky Ford and Antioch churches. Sunday afternoon we held our quarterly council. Bro. John Truesdell was elected to the deacon's office and, with his wife, duly installed. Sunday was indeed a big day—a day of blessings long to be remembered.—Bettie Root Crist, West Colorado Springs, Colo., July 25.

FLORIDA

Arcadia.—Although few in number, and in spite of the rainy season, we are enjoying an interesting Sunday-school. Our elder, Bro. J. H. Garst, of Schring, is putting forth every effort to locate a permanent minister in our midst and we feel sure he will meet with success. Therefore we expect to have regular preaching services soon. Bro. J. M. Elliott and wife, of Holden, Mo., came to us with a view of locating here. All members, planning a trip to the Southland this winter, will be warmly welcomed to Arcadia.—M. Cloe Tracy, Arcadia, Fla., July 27.

Bethel church met in council with a good representation of members. The committee on redecorating the churchhouse reported the work done and paid for. The church decided to be represented at District Meeting, and Eld. A. D. Crist is our delegate. The Bethel church calls for the District Meeting to be held here in 1920. Bro. D. E. Baxley was elected church trustee, to fill the unexpired term of Bro. Towns. Sister J. H. Crist was appointed "Messenger" agent; the writer, church clerk and correspondent. Those desiring to assist in building up the Master's cause in the great Southland, and who want good, cheap homes are invited to investigate our country.—I. H. Crist, Middleburg, Fla., July 28.

ILLINOIS

Cerro Gordo church met in council July 12, with Eld. R. H. Nicodemus presiding. He remained over Sunday and gave us an excellent message. The letters of our pastor and wife were received. June 29 our pastor gave us a splendid sermon along educational lines, after which an offering was lifted. The Annual Conference offering amounted to $393—our quota being $300. Okaw, Oakley and Decatur churches met with the Cerro Gordo church on the morning of the Fourth of July and rendered a joint program, which was much appreciated by all present. Sunday, July 27, the Bethany Bible School Male Quartet rendered a program of music. In several numbers Mrs. Dilling sang with them. We appreciated the program very much.—Nettie Leedy, Cerro Gordo, Ill., July 28.

Liberty church met in council July 5, with Bro. H. G. Shank presiding. We decided to hold a revival meeting as soon as the committee can secure an evangelist. A reception was given Bro. Shank and family June 17. Members and friends are glad to have a pastor in our congregation again. July 4 the different churches met on the church lawn, and enjoyed a bounteous supper, which was followed by a short program. July 25 and 26 Bro. Wagoner gave two very instructive lectures. Fourteen children from Chicago are spending two weeks among the different families of the community. Since Bro. Shank's coming, everything has begun to prosper.—Lucas Akers, Liberty, Ill., July 28.

Woodland.—July 18 Bro. I. J. Gibson, from Chicago, brought a number of "Fresh air" folks to spend two weeks on the farms of the members of the Astoria and Woodland congregations. July 20 he gave us a much appreciated sermon. July 20 the Woodland church met in council, with Eld. S. G. Bucher presiding. Bro. Clayton Wherley and S. J. C. Senger are delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. C. Walters, alternate. The visiting brethren gave their report. An offering was taken for the Home at Girard and another will be taken the coming Sunday. Not having sent in our share toward the to our pastor, Bro. Charles R. Oberlin, and wife. We regret very much their leaving us. They are preparing to enter school, in order to be better fitted for the Master's work. We hope to secure the services of another pastor soon. July 13 Bro. Miller gave an interesting temperance sermon all the town house, which was highly appreciated. We are expecting Bro. David Hummer to be with us August 10. We expect to hold our Harvest Meeting August 17 at the Bethel Center house, beginning in the morning with Sunday-school at 10: 30, services following, and dinner at the church. Services will also be held in the afternoon and evening.—Mrs. Lydia Waters, Hartford City, Ind., July 28.

Ladoga church held her Harvest Meeting service July 27. Eld. D. C. Campbell, of Colfax, delivered a good sermon, after which an offering of $30 was lifted. The young people rendered a fine program in the afternoon. A large crowd was in attendance at both services.—Lula Goshorn, Ladoga, Ind., July 28.

Somerset church enjoyed a very instructive temperance talk given by Bro. J. B. Moore on Sunday morning, July 20. Our series of meetings will begin Sept. 7, in charge of Bro. W. L. Hatcher. Our communion will be held Sept. 20.—Ruby Tinkle, Marion, Ind., July 26.

Turkey Creek church met in council July 26, with Eld. Henry Wysong presiding. The work of remodeling our house is almost completed. Dedicatory services will be held on Sunday forenoon, August 10, with a Harvest Meeting in the afternoon. Bro. Otho Winger, of North Manchester, will deliver the address both morning and afternoon.—Sarah Miller, Nappanee, Ind., July 28.

Wawaka church met in council July 26, with Eld. Hess presiding. Eld. Huber, of Goshen, and Bro. Burns, of Topeka, were also with us. One letter of membership was received. We have decided to hold our Harvest Meeting August 17, with Bro. A. C. Wieand as the speaker. We held an election for deacons and three were chosen. Installation services will be held later.—Mrs. J. A. Miller, Wawaka, Ind., July 29.

Yellow River.—We were indeed glad to have with us Sunday, July 27, Bro. E. B. Hoff and wife, from Chicago. Bro. Hoff gave us three very good sermons. Sister Hoff gave a talk to the children in the afternoon, which was quite inspiring to the little folks. An offering of $42 was lifted for missionary purposes.—Alma E. Hanawalt, Plymouth, Ind., July 30.

IOWA

Brooklyn.—Our two weeks' series of meetings began June 15. In spite of the busy season, the attendance and interest were good. Following the revival meetings Sister Sadie Manges, of Bethany Bible School, gave us instruction in singing. This work lasted almost three weeks and was very much appreciated. July 20 a recital was given by the class. July 4 we enjoyed a community picnic, with an appropriate program and suitable games. Rev. J. W. Pool, of the Methodist church, was the principal speaker of the day. He was followed by Bro. Frank N. Sargent, of Bethany Bible School, and Bro. Clarence Gnagey, of Dysart, Iowa. In the evening Dr. Fred Wampler was to give an illustrated lecture at the church, but the rain interfered. Educational Day was observed July 20. The sermon was given by Eld. D. H. Fouts, of Fredric, Iowa, followed by a short talk by the pastor. The collection amounted to $138.—Mrs: Rose D. Fox, Brooklyn, Iowa, July 25.

Coon River.—On Sunday evening, July 20, Bro. Carman Lookingbill gave us a splendid sermon on "Drifting." The following Sunday Bro. Floyd M. Irvin, of Creston, Ohio, gave three fine talks, one in the morning at our country church, one at the Yale church in the afternoon and another in the evening. He is working in the interest of the "Forward Movement," and conferred with the Sunday-school superintendents at all three places; also the missionary committees. He met with the organized Sunday-school classes and persuaded them to take up Mission Study. They elected Sister Edna Royer as their instructor.—Mrs. Zona B. Ott, Panora, Iowa, July 30.

Grundy County.—Since our last report one more Sunday-school boy was baptized, making ten in this year. The three divisions of Christian Workers reorganized last Sunday evening. They are planning to accept the invitation to give programs at the Old Folks' Home, Rest twenty-five miles away. Bro. Sunday Bro. Frank Sargent, of Bethany Bible School, expects to be with us.—Hannah C. Messer, Grundy Center, Iowa, July 29.

MARYLAND

Meadow Branch church enjoyed a fine all-day program July 27, rendered jointly by the Sunday-schools of District No. 4 of Eastern Maryland. The Sunday-schools represented were: Meadow Branch, Westminster, West Point and Blue Ridge College. Those who took part from other Districts were Brethren Jacob Baugher and N. S. Zellers, of Southern Pennsylvania, and Bro. Leonard Reichard, of Middle Maryland. Bro. J. W. Englar, District Sunday-school Secretary, gave some very interesting facts and figures in a general survey of our large opportunities for Sunday-school work. Bro. Geo. Early recently gave a very fitting address at the graduating exercises of our Mission Study Class of eleven members. At the close diplomas were presented.—W. E. Roop, Westminster, Md., July 28.

Westminster Sunday-school had a splendid outing recently in the grove at Meadow Branch. The entire school was treated to refreshments, which included ice cream. The school had a similar gathering on the afternoon of July 25. About 200 assembled for the occasion and were addressed by Bro. J. W. Thomas. Afterward all enjoyed the cake and ice cream, served in the basement of the church, and had a splendid social time together. Bro. H. Reichard preached a good sermon in the Meadow Branch house July 27.—W. E. Roop, Westminster, Md., July 27.

MISSOURI

Cahool church met in council June 28, at the Cahool house, with Eld. C. W. Gitt presiding. Bro. Howard Oxley, who recently returned from Naval Hospital, Annapolis, Md., gave a talk on the "Forward Movement of the Church." A committee of three was appointed to solicit funds for repairs for both Cahool and Greenwood, July 13 our District Sunday-school Convention was held at this place. The attendance was good. Bro. P. L. Flora, of Peace Valley, and Bro. A. W. Adkins, our Sunday-school Secretary, of Osceola, Mo., were present, as were several other visitors. June 10 we enjoyed lectures by Brethren Chayhaugh and Hershey, of Bethany Bible School. Bro. S. F. Miller and family, of Holmesville, Nebr., have just moved among us. Bro. Miller's assistance in the ministry will be appreciated. We have over 100 members scattered over a large field, calling for services.—Mrs. J. W. Oxley, Mt. Grove, Mo., July 29.

Deepwater church had the pleasure of hearing a splendid sermon on Saturday evening, July 26, by our elder, Bro. T. J. Simmons, from Osceola, Mo. Eld. W. T. Bray, of Empire, Calif., also gave us two very much appreciated sermons. Our aged deacon, Bro. Jacob Fahnestock, also met with us.—Lizzie Fahnestock, Montrose, Mo., July 27.

Wakenda.—A few weeks ago our District Sunday-school Secretary, Bro. J. W. Deeter, gave two splendid lectures on "Child Life" and "Sunday-school Activities." July 4 our church, with the other two neighboring churches, held the annual Sunday-school Convention at the Rockingham church. A good program was rendered. July 6 Prof. and Mrs. Charles Morris, of McPherson, Kans., were with us. Prof.

SOME VERY COMMENDABLE GIFTS

(Continued from Page 507)

ful to him in life's struggles, he feels to be but a small tribute of respect for the more than fifty-four years' travel they have enjoyed together on life's voyage. Many, who read, may be profited by taking notice of Bro. Moomaw's liberality, and doing likewise—some more, some less. May we not pray that this note may prove effective to the extent of turning many thousands of dollars into the treasury of our God, in whom we live and move and have our being? P. S. Miller.

Roanoke, Va.

THE DISTRICT MEETING OF NORTH DAKOTA, EASTERN MONTANA AND WESTERN CANADA

The various gatherings of the above-named District convened July 10, in the Bow Valley church, fourteen miles south of Gleichen, Alberta, Can. The Conference proper was preceded by the Ministerial and Missionary Meetings July 9, and by the Christian Workers' and Sunday-school Meetings, July 8. The Conference throughout was characterized by vigor and decision—inherent qualities of the people of the American and Canadian Northwest. This was very noticeable in the way in which the various gatherings—more especially the Christian Workers', Sunday-school and Ministerial Meetings—laid bold of the Five-Year Forward Movement program, and began planning for the carrying out of the same. We are very thankful for the presence and assistance of Bro. Warren Slabaugh, of Bethany Bible School, Bro. Virgil C. Finnell, of Elgin, Ill., Sister Miriam and Bro. Emmert Stover, of Mt. Morris College, and Sister Sadie Miller, of India.

This Conference was a significant and epoch-making event in the history of the Church of the Brethren in the Northwest, in that it was the first Conference to be held in Canada. Most of the churches of North Dakota and Montana were represented, but the larger part of the attendance came from the churches of Alberta. There are six organized churches in Canada—four in Alberta, one in Western Saskatchewan, and one in Eastern Saskatchewan. The churches of Alberta being approximately six hundred miles from the main body of the District in Dakota, this meeting gave an opportunity to many, who had not attended a Conference for years, to be present. The opportunity was surely appreciated and improved.

Probably the most important question that came before the Conference proper was a query from the Irricana church (the most northerly church of the Brethren in North America), asking that the churches of Alberta and Western Saskatchewan be organized into a separate District. Some idea of the vast extent of the Canadian Northwest can be gained, when we consider that the boundaries of this proposed new District enclose a territory seven hundred miles from north to south and approximately five hundred miles from east to west. After considerable discussion it was decided to table the query for one year. Whatever disposition is ultimately made of this query, the fact remains that it is one of great importance, and will be productive of much good, whether a new District is formed soon or not. The Church of the Brethren in Canada has twenty-one ministers and elders and about four hundred members. While these may be enough to organize and carry on the work of a new District, the fact remains that, either as a separate District or as a Brotherhood at large, we have before us, in Canada, an opportunity unparalleled in the history of Christianity.

Much credit is due the members of the Bow Valley church and to all whose attendance and assistance contributed to the success of the meeting.

Irricana, Alta., Can. E. C. Cawley, Clerk.

A STEP TOWARD THE FORWARD MOVEMENT GOAL

It was the writer's privilege to drive a distance of three miles each evening, for two weeks, into one of our mountain districts, to hold a revival service. There being no churchhouse, an abandoned canning factory was temporarily arranged for the service. The "surplus" benches, the discarded oil hanging-lamps, and the song books, no longer used at our central churchhouse, made up our equipment.

Though the weather was very rainy, these splendid people set a real example of regular and prompt church attendance. Fifteen sermons were preached and twenty-five precious souls were made willing to accept Christ. At the last service seventeen received the rite of baptism. Five others applied for baptism, to be administered later.

A Sunday-school was organized with an initial attendance of forty-five. Steps have already been taken to build a churchhouse in their immediate community. This report may be suggestive of what may be done in other isolated places, thus enabling us to reach the goal in the Forward Movement. C. S. Ikenberry.

Daleville, Va.

THE STANDING COMMITTEE FOR 1919

This is a list of the elders that served on the 1919 Standing Committee:

State District	Delegate	Age	Years in the ministry	Terms served on S. C.
Ark., First and S. E. Mo.,	Not Represented,
California, Northern,	U. G. Stuberson,	58	24	2
Calif., So. and Arizona,	W. F. England,	63	34	2
China, First District,	Not Represented,
Colorado, Western and Utah,	Not Represented,
Denmark,	Not Represented,
Idaho and Western Montana,	B. J. Fike,	41	16	1
Illinois, No. and Wisconsin,	John M. Moore,	42	26	2
Illinois, Southern,	W. T. Heckman,	44	18	3
Indi., First District,	J. B. Emmert,	46	13	2
Indiana, Middle,	Frank Fisher,	63	37	6
Indiana, Middle,	Otho Winger,	41	22	3
Indiana, Northern,	Manly Dexter,	54	22	4
Indiana, Southern,	D. W. Bowman,	49	13	1
Iowa, Middle,	H. L. Royer,	42	17	1
Iowa, No. Minn. and S. Dak.,	A. P. Blough,	52	26	4
Iowa, Southern,	W. N. Glotfelty,	50	26	1
Kansas, Northeastern,	Geo. Manon,	63	37	6
Kansas, N. W. and N. E. Colo.,	G. O. Stutsman,	34	10	1
Kansas, Southeastern,	J. B. Fisher,	58	34	1
Kansas, S. W. and S. E. Colo.,	Jacob Funk,	41	20	1
Maryland, Eastern,	John J. John,	58	26	2
Maryland, Middle,	John S. Bowman,	50	30	2
Maryland, Western,	A. C. Auvil,	47	17	2
Michigan,	C. E. Wilkins,	42	20	3
Missouri, Middle,	Ira Witmore,	50	23	1
Missouri, Northern,	E. G. Rodabaugh,	48	27	4
Missouri, S. W. and N. W. Ark.,	H. B. Hylton,	63	37	6
Nebraska and N. E. Colorado,	S. G. Nickey,	53	23	2
North and S. Car., Ga. and Fla.,	J. W. Felthouse,	54	30	1
N. Dak., E. Mont. and W. Can.,	Luther Shatto,	41	23	1
Ohio, Northeastern,	D. R. McFadden,	48	15	2
Ohio, Northwestern,	S. C. Guthrie,	40	23	2
Ohio, Southern,	D. M. Garver,	63	35	8
Ohio, Southern,	J. W. Pidley,	58	26	6
Oklahoma and New Mexico,	J. R. Fitzer,	50	22	2
Oregon,	Geo. C. Carl,	51	28	4
Pennsylvania, Eastern,	H. B. Longenecker,	57	30	10
Pennsylvania, Eastern,	S. H. Hertzler,	65	22	3
Pennsylvania, Middle,	John Bennett,	68	34	3
Pennsylvania, Middle,	H. Cassady,	47	16	3
Pa., S. E., N. J. and N. Y.,	G. E. Yoder,	38	13	1
Pennsylvania, Southern,	C. L. Baker,	52	28	4
Pennsylvania, Southern,	D. A. Foust,	52	21	2
Pennsylvania, Western,	Herman B. Heisey,	28	10	1
Pennsylvania, Western,	Edgar M. Detwiler,	36	13	2
Sweden,	J. F. Graybill,	45	16	1
Tennessee,	S. D. Clark,	60	30	2
Texas and Louisiana,	J. F. Hoke,	39	13	1
Virginia, Eastern,	D. M. Glick,	62	20	1
Virginia, First District,	A. S. Miller,	70	46	12
Virginia, Northern,	H. C. Early,	64	39	10
Virginia, Northern,	P. S. Thomas,	58	28	4
Virginia, Second District,	A. S. Thomas,	59	27	6
Virginia, Second District,	Jno. S. Flory,	53	18	1
Virginia, Southern,	L. A. Bowman,	48	25	2
Washington,	E. L. Whisler,	37	17	1
West Virginia, First District,	Ezra T. Fike,	49	23	1
West Virginia, Second District,	Not Represented,

Herman B. Heisey, aged 28 years, was the youngest member of the 1919 Committee.

Fifty-four elders made up the 1919 Standing Committee. Seventeen elders served their first term this year. P. S. Miller served his twelfth term. H. C. Early and J. H. Longenecker have served ten times. D. M. Garver and C. L. Wilkins served eight times, and Frank Fisher, Chas. L. Baker and A. S. Thomas served six times.

The most aged elders of the 1919 Committee are these: P. S. Miller, 70 years old; John Bennett, 68; J. H. Longenecker, 67; J. V. Felthouse, 66; S. H. Hertzler, 65; Geo. Manon, 65; H. C. Early, 64.

The oldest in the ministry are as follows: J. H. Longenecker and John Bennett were elected in 1876; P. S. Miller in 1878; H. C. Early and J. V. Felthouse in 1880.

Our Annual Meeting convened at Winona Lake, Ind., in 1910, 1913, 1916, and 1919. The following elders served three times at Winona Lake on the Standing Committee: L. W. Teeter, C. L. Baker, H. J. Lilly, E. G. Rodabaugh, W. F. England.

The 1908 and 1919 Conferences were special meetings, as will be remembered. The following-named elders served on Standing Committee in 1908 and also in 1919: H. C. Early, Frank Fisher, P. S. Miller, J. H. Longenecker, C. L. Wilkins, Manly Dexter, Geo. Manon, Geo. C. Carl. The following-named elders of the 1908 Committee have crossed the silent river: John Calvin Bright, Wm. H. Naff, James Murray, D. C. Flory, T. J. Kolb and J. C. Minix. The Lord knows who will be called first of the 1919 Committee. May God bless our dear elders who served on the 1919 Committee, and all his children in Jesus' name. Edgar M. Hoffer.

Elizabethtown, Pa.

NORTHERN INDIANA

The District Sunday-school Convention and Bible Institute of the Church of the Brethren of Northern Indiana will be held at the Goshen City church, August 19-22.

Tuesday, August 19, 9: 30 A. M.

Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Program: Causes and Remedies of the General Decline of Interest in Sunday-school Work of the Brotherhood.—O. W. Stine. The Sunday-school as an Evangelizing Power.—Ezra Flory.

Afternoon, 1 o'clock

The Forward Movement, as It Applies to Christian Workers' Society.—Noble Neff. The Forward Movement as It Applies to the Sunday-schools of Our District.—Clay Syler. The Greater Forward Movement.—Ezra Flory.

Evening, 7: 30

Missionary Meeting: The Challenge and Our Response to the Missionary Call.—C. C. Cripe. The Essentials of a Missionary Church.—Frank Kreider. The Missionary Message of the Present.—R. C. Wenger.

Wednesday, August 20, 9 A. M.

Bible Institute Program: A Study in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. The Folks We Teach.—Ezra Flory. Thoroughly Pastoring a Church.—R. C. Wenger.

Afternoon, 1: 15

Sources of Sunday-school Power.—Ezra Flory. A Study in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. Coöperation in Church Work.—Ezra Flory.

Evening, 7: 30

The Fundamental Laws Governing the Spiritual Life.—R. C. Wenger.

Thursday, August 21, 9 A. M.

The Test of Efficient Teaching.—Ezra Flory. A Study in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. Tests of a Well-Balanced Sermon.—Ezra Flory.

Afternoon, 1: 15

A Study in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. Personal Elements in Leadership.—Ezra Flory. The Minister's Place in Society.—R. C. Wenger.

Evening, 7: 30

Christian Ideals for the Home.—Ezra Flory.

Friday, August 22, 9 A. M.

A Study in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. The Recitation.—Ezra Flory. The Vices of the Ministry.—R. C. Wenger.

Afternoon, 1: 15

Expressing the Lesson in Life.—Ezra Flory. A Study in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. Young People and the Church.—Ezra Flory.

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA

The Ministerial Meeting of the above-named District will be held August 28 and 29 in the Bank Creek church, at Broadway, Va.

Thursday, 10 A. M.

Address of Welcome.—J. L. Humbert. Minister's Preparation: (a) When Is It Complete?—J. Carson Miller. (b) How to Get It.—C. E. Long.

Afternoon, 1: 30

Interpretation of the Forward Movement in Our District Along the Lines: (a) Missions.—L. S. Miller. (b) Sunday-school.—J. W. Wampler. (c) Education.—Paul H. Bowman. The Problems of Evangelism.—S. I. Bowmse. What Preparation Should Be Made for a Successful Revival on the Part of the (a) Minister—S. W. See. (b) Congregation.—B. S. Landes. The Need of More Pastoral Work.—P. S. Thomas. How to Supply the Need.—J. C. Myers.

Evening, 8: 30

Doctrinal Sermon.—E. S. Coffman.

Friday, 10 A. M.

The Minister's Part in the Life of a Community.—L. R. Dettra. To What Extent Should a Minister Be Engaged in Business?—Wm. C. Hoover. Essay.—Cleda Clinedinst. The Demands Made of the Minister Today, as Compared With the Past.—O. S. Miller. Missions: (a) The Needs of the Field of Northern Virginia.—I. N. Zigler. (b) How to Supply the Need.—I. W. Miller.

Afternoon

Round Table.—C. H. Wakeman. Benefits Derived from This Meeting.—J. C. Sanger. The Outlook for a Greater Church of the Brethren.—D. H. Zigler.

Committee: A. J. Fitzwater, J. Wm. Harpine.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Caslow-Poeder.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, July 17, 1919, Brother Winfield H. Caslow and Sister Adah L. Poeder, both of Grand Rapids, Mich.—C. L. Wilkins, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Freed-Sword.—By the undersigned, July 16, 1919, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister M. B. Sword, of Detroit, Kans., Brother Clarence R. Freed, of Abilene, Kans., and Sister Hazel Grace Sword, of Detroit, Kans.—Geo. Manon, 203 E. Tenth Street, Abilene, Kans.

Gangiver-Coffey.—At my residence, Feb. 13, 1919, Brother Irs Gangiver and Sister Ada Coffey, both of Girard, Ill.—M. Flory, Girard, Ill.

Leisure-Rieger.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride, Colorado Springs, Colo., July 21, 1919, Mr. William E. Leisure, of Benton, Mo., and Naomi E. Rieger, of Colorado Springs, Colo.—H. F. Crist, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Nyce-Price.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's mother, July 12, 1919, Brother A. Lincoln G. Nyce and Sister Annie A. Price, both of the Indian Creek congregation, Vernfield, Pa.—A. A. Price, Harleysville, Pa.

Weybright-Falkerth.—By the undersigned, at his residence, July 10, 1919, Brother Ira E. Weybright, of Rocky Ford, Colo., and Sister Josephine M. Falkerth, of Union, Ohio.—S. A. Blessing, West Milton, Ohio.

Yoder-Thomas.—By the undersigned, at his residence, July 19, 1919, Dorsey C. Yoder and Sister Sadie Elva Thomas, both of Hollsopple, Pa.—N. H. Blough, Davidsville, Pa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Berkebile, Susan, nee Ewalt, born in Somerset, Pa., died near Adrian, Mo., July 3, 1919, aged 73 years and 5 months. In 1864 she married Ephraim Berkebile. To this union eleven children were born. Her husband died fourteen years ago. At an early age she united with the Church of the Brethren, of which she remained a faithful member. Services by Eld. Ira Witmore.—Fern M. Wagner, Adrian, Mo.

Boggs, Archie Boon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Boggs, died at his home near Colorado Springs, Colo., of apoplexy, July 5, 1919. In 1902 he married Miss Bessie E. Looper, who survives with one daughter and two brothers. Services by the writer.—H. F. Crist, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bruzee, Cyrus, born in Massachusetts, died near Peebles, Ohio, July 21, 1919, aged 95 years, 5 months and 23 days. Services by the writer. Burial in the Locust Grove cemetery.—Van. B. Wright, Peebles, Ohio.

Compton, Emma, wife of Jos. Compton, born in Ross County, Ohio, died in Champaign, Ill., July 17, 1919, aged 58 years, 2 months and 17 days. She leaves her husband, two sons, five daughters, a brother, a half-brother and a half-sister. Sister Compton and her husband united with the Church of the Brethren six or seven years ago. Services by the writer in the home church. Burial in Mt. Hope cemetery.—J. W. Kitson, Champaign, Ill.

Croyle, Bro. James Allen, son of John and Ruth Wilson Croyle, died at his home, 1241 Franklin Street, Johnstown, Pa., July 1, 1919, aged 62 years, 1 month and 27 days. He is survived by his wife, six sons, three daughters, sixteen grandchildren, four sisters and three brothers. One daughter preceded him in death. Bro. Croyle was a faithful member of the West Johnstown church for about six years. Services at his home by Eld. E. M. Detwiler. Interment in Grandview cemetery.—Jerome E. Blough, 1309 Franklin Street, Johnstown, Pa.

We Teach.—Ezra Flory. Thoroughly Pastoring a Church.—R. nger.

Afternoon, 1: 15

ces of Sunday-school Power.—Ezra Flory. A Study in Par- R. C. Wenger. Coöperation in Church Work.—Ezra Flory.

Evening, 7: 30

Fundamental Laws Governing the Spiritual Life.—R. C. Wenger.

Thursday, August 21, 9 A. M.

Test of Efficient Teaching.—Ezra Flory. A Study in Parables.— Wenger. Tests of a Well-Balanced Sermon.—Ezra Flory.

Afternoon, 1: 15

udy in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. Personal Elements in Lead- —Ezra Flory. The Minister's Place in Society.—R. C. Wenger.

Evening, 7: 30

atian Ideals for the Home.—Ezra Flory.

Friday, August 22, 9 A. M.

tudy in Parables.—R. C. Wenger. The Recitation.—Ezra Flory. fices of the Ministry.—R. C. Wenger.

Afternoon, 1: 15

ressing the Lesson in Life.—Ezra Flory. A Study in Parables. . Wenger. Young People and the Church.—Ezra Flory.

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA

Ministerial Meeting of the above-named District will be held t 28 and 29 in the Linville Creek church, at Broadway, Va.

Thursday, 10 A. M.

ress of Welcome.—J. L. Humbert. Minister's Preparation: (a) Is It Complete?—J. Carson Miller. (b) How to Get It.—C. E.

Afternoon, 1: 30

epretation of the Forward Movement in Our District Along the (a) Missions.—L. S. Miller. (b) Sunday-school.—J. W. Wamp- (c) Education.—Paul H. Bowman. The Problems of Evangelism. Bowman. What Preparation Should Be Made for a Successful l on the Part of the (a) Minister.—S. W. Sec. (b) Congrega- B. S. Landes. The Need of More Pastoral Work.—P. S. n. How to Supply the Need.—J. C. Myers.

Evening, 8: 30

trinal Sermon.—E. S. Coffman.

Friday, 10 A. M.

Minister's Part in the Life of a Community.—L. R. Dettrn. To Extent Should a Minister Be Engaged in Business?—Wm. C. r. Essay.—Cleda Clinedinst. The Demands Made of the Min- Today, as Compared With the Past.—O. S. Miller. Missions: he Needs of the Field of Northern Virginia.—I. N. Zigler. (b) to Supply the Need.—I. W. Miller.

Afternoon

nd Table.—C. H. Wakeman. Benefits Derived from This Meet- I. C. Sanger. The Outlook for a Greater Church of the Breth- D. H. Zigler.

mittee: A. J. Fitzwater, J. Wm. Harpine.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

low-Peeder.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's ts, July 17, 1919, Brother Winfield H. Caslow and Sister Adah eder, both of Grand Rapids, Mich.—C. L. Wilkins, Grand Rapids, ed-Sword.—By the undersigned, July 16, 1919, at the home of the parents, Brother and Sister M. B. Sword, of Detroit, Kans., er Clarence R. Freed, of Abilene, Kans., and Sister Hazel Grace , of Detroit, Kans.—Geo. Manon, 203 E. Tenth Street, Abilene, giver-Coffey.—At my residence, Feb. 14, 1919, Brother Ira Gan- and Sister Ada Coffey, both of Girard, Ill.—M. Flory, Girard, Ill.

ure-Riegar.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride, ado Springs, Colo., July 21, 1919, Mr. William E. Leisure, of n., Mo., and Naomi E. Rieger, of Colorado Springs, Colo.—H. F. olorado Springs, Colo.

e-Price.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's mother, 12, 1919, Brother A. Lincoln G. Nyce and Sister Annie A. Price, of the Indian Creek congregation, Vernfield, Pa.—A. A. Price, yaville, Pa.

wbright-Folkerth.—By the undersigned, at his residence, July 10, Brother Ira E. Weybright, of Rocky Ford, Colo., and Sister hine M. Folkerth, of Union, Ohio.—S. A. Blessing, West Milton, ler-Thomas.—By the undersigned, at his residence, July 19, 1919, y C. Yoder and Sister Sadie Elva Thomas, both of Hollsopple, N. H. Blough, Davidsville, Pa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

rkebile, Susan, nee Ewalt, born in Somerset, Pa., died near in, Mo., July 3, 1919, aged 73 years and 5 months. In 1854 she ied Ephraim Berkebile. To this union eleven children were born. husband died fourteen years ago. At an early age she united the Church of the Brethren, of which she remained a faithful ber. Services by Eld. Ira Witmore.—Fern M. Wagner, Adrian, ggs, Archie Boon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Boggs, died at nome near Colorado Springs, Colo., of apoplexy, July 5, 1919. 02 he married Miss Bessie E. Looper, who survives with one ther and two brothers. Services by the writer.—H. F. Crist, ado Springs, Colo.

nzee, Cyrus, born in Massachusetts, died near Peebles, Ohio, 21, 1919, aged 95 years, 5 months and 23 days. Services by the r. Burial in the Locust Grove cemetery.—Van B. Wright, les, Ohio.

Crowe, Bro. Merle Melbourne, born at Fredrick, S. Dak., died July 4, 1919, aged 24 years, 4 months and 15 days. Death was due to drowning. He united with the Church of the Brethren at the age of sixteen, and remained faithful. He leaves his father, mother, seven sisters and four brothers. Services by Bro. Glen Mentz, assisted by Eld. I. N. Wagner.—Mrs. Effie Johnson, Ramey, Minn.

Eby, Sister Mary, nee Geib, born in Stark County, Ohio, died near White Pigeon, Mich., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Young, July 14, 1919, aged 81 years and 2 days. She married Bro. S. I. Eby in 1855. A few years later she united with the Church of the Brethren and lived a faithful Christian life. Two sons and three daughters survive, also nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Services at the house by Eld. J. L. Mishler. The remains were taken to Springfield Center, where services were held at the Springfield church by Bro. Wm. Bixler. Burial in the cemetery near by.—Alice C. Mumaw, Mogadore, Ohio.

Ernst, Sister Lydia F., nee Glick, born in Rockingham County, Va., died at her home in Burr Oak, Kans., July 6, 1919, aged 66 years and 4 days. Death was due to a paralytic stroke. In 1875 she married Wm. Ernst. Eleven children were born to them, five of whom died in infancy. She leaves six sons, three daughters, thirteen grandchildren and two sisters. At the age of sixteen, Sister Ernst united with the church and continued steadfast in the teaching and practice of the faith. The eldest son, J. J. Ernst, now of Red Cloud, Nebr., is an elder of the church. Services in the Burr Oak church by Eld. G. O. Stutsman. Burial in the Mankato cemetery.—Carrie E. Wagoner, Burr Oak, Kans.

Freaman, Bro. Garland, died July 22, 1919, aged 22 years. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1916 and was a member of the Rowland Creek congregation. He went to Camp last summer. After returning in December, he had influenza and contracted tuberculosis. In 1917 he married Miss Jennie Myers, who survives with his father, mother, brothers and one sister. Burial in the South Fork cemetery. —Nancy J. Suit, Seven Mile Ford, Va.

Grogg, Sister Cathrine, daughter of the late Benj. Fisher and wife, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edw. Sandrock, of Hanover, July 16, 1919, aged 87 years, 4 months and 24 days. Sister Grogg was the oldest member of our congregation. She united with the Church of the Brethren fifty-three years ago and remained faithful. Her husband died twenty-six years ago. She is survived by two sons, two daughters, a number of grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. Short services at her late residence and at the Blackrock church by Brethren Bruce C. Whitmore and Edw. Miller. Interment at the Blackrock cemetery.—Mary A. Ritschard, Hanover, Pa.

Haldeman, Bro. Frank, died at his home, near Pine Grove, Pa., July 17, 1919, aged 43 years, 3 months and 26 days. Death was due to the effects of influenza. He united with the Church of the Brethren early in life and remained true to his convictions. He was called to the office of deacon, and he and his wife served the church faithfully for a number of years. He is survived by his wife, six brothers, three sisters and an aged father. Services at the Big Dam churchhouse by Brethren E. M. Wenger and J. Plautz. Interment in the cemetery near the church.—Cora M. Becker, Pine Grove, Pa.

Kapler, Sister Louisa, wife of Everett Kepler, of the Lost Creek congregation, died at her home, of heart trouble, July 19, 1919, aged 71 years, 9 months and 20 days. Surviving are the father, six children, thirty-eight grandchildren, forty-five great-grandchildren. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for about forty years. Services by the writer. Interment in the Lost Creek Mennonite cemetery.—John E. Rowland, Bunkertown, Pa.

Loomis, Viola Maude, daughter of Bro. Harry and Sister Etha Loomis, died July 7, 1919, aged 1 year, 2 months and 18 days. Services at the Willow Creek church by Rev. Dubois, of Wetonka.—Mrs. Lizzie Tooker, Wetonka, S. Dak.

Lovett, Mrs. Jane, born near Gaston, Ind., died at her home in Muncie, Ind., July 6, 1919, aged 74 years, 2 months and 12 days. She married Edmund Lovett in 1864. To them twelve children were born. Seven of these, with her husband, preceded her. She united with the Methodist church when a girl, and was true to the church of her choice. She leaves three daughters, two sons and several grandchildren. Services by the writer in the Allen Christian church. Interment in the Union cemetery, near Eaton, Ind.—Geo. L. Studebaker, Muncie, Ind.

Miller, Laura May, daughter of John M. and Lydia Miller, born near Middletown, Ind., died at the home of Eld. L. L. Teeter, of Moorefield, Ind., July 13, 1919, aged 36 years, 4 months and 26 days. At the age of four her mother died. She was then taken into the home of Brother and Sister Teeter, and brought up as their own child. When twelve years old she became a member of the church. She graduated from the common schools June 11, 1919. She leaves her foster father and mother, her father, stepmother, four brothers and two sisters. Services in the Buck Creek church by the writer, assisted by Brethren L. W. Teeter and A. C. Cross. Interment in the Miller cemetery, near Middletown, Ind.—Geo. L. Studebaker, Muncie, Ind.

Mowen, Sister Sallie R., died July 15, 1919, aged 63 years, 1 month and 1 day. Death was due to a complication of diseases. Sister Mowen was a member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years. She is survived by four sons, one daughter, five brothers and two sisters. Services in the Price's church by Brethren Samuel Gearhart and Daniel S. Flohr. Interment in cemetery adjoining.—H. N. M. Gearhart, Shady Grove, Pa.

Otto, Sister Eliza, nee Miller, died at the home of her brother, Otho Miller, Keedysville, Md., Manor congregation, of general debility, July 9, 1919, aged 78 years. She united with the Church of the Brethren many years ago. She is survived by three sisters and a brother. Services by Eld. D. V. Long. Interment at Sharpsburg, Md.—M. Portia Rowland, Fair Play, Md.

Silfer, Sister Laura, wife of Otho Silfer, died at her home in Hagerstown, Md., of injuries received in an auto accident, June 28, 1919, aged 58 years. Sister Silfer united with the Church of the Brethren when fifteen years of age and lived an exemplary Christian life. She is survived by her husband, four daughters and a son. Services in the Manor church by Eld. D. V. Long, assisted by Elders W. S. Reichard and John Rowland. Interment in the Manor cemetery.—M. Portia Rowland, Fair Play, Md.

Snavely, Sister Anna M., nee Files, born in Richland County, Ohio, died at her home, near Ramey, Minn., of cancer, May 26, 1919, aged 64 years, 8 months and 10 days. She married John B. Snavely in 1871. Four sons and one daughter were born to them. Services by Bro. I. N. Wagner.—Mrs. Effie Johnson, Ramey, Minn.

Williams, Jay Homer Bee came July 27, 1919, to gladden the home of Brother and Sister J. H. B. Williams, but was not allowed to remain with them. Funeral services by the editorial force of the Brethren Publishing House.—J. E. Miller, Elgin, Ill.

Younce, David W., born in Miami County, Ohio, died at the home of his daughter, in Eaton, Ind., July 14, 1919, aged 78 years and 5 days. He married Sarah S. Rench in 1861. To this union were born seven children, four of whom preceded him. His wife died in 1902. He and his wife united with the Church of the Brethren in the Mississinewa congregation and were faithful in all the services. He leaves one son, two daughters, one brother, one sister, seven grand-

CHARACTER

What material are you furnishing your chil
the newspaper and other equally ephemeral matt

Bible Bi

former Secretary of the worthiest of cha interesting. Thousa
Bible Biographies fo
$2.80. The Titles A

Moses the Jesus the Jesus the Joseph the Samuel th

Weed's B

Universally commended by Christian teache ard works for those who are charged with the in tions from the work of master artists. The styl being at once reverent and practical, simple and

A Life of Christ for the Young, ...
400 pages with 74 ful

A Life of St. Paul for the Young, ...
350 pages with 48 fu

A Life of St. John for the Young, ...
360 pages with 48 fu

A Life of St. Peter for the Young, ...
296 pages with 48 fu

BRETHREN PUBLISHIN

Do You Sin

don't sing you v
new song book---

KINGDOM SONGS NO. 2

Our newest and best Sunday-school song book is Kingdom Songs No. 2. It contains the best of the old and new favorites. The press work is unusually good; there are no hymns or songs in fine print. Either shaped or round notes may be had. Shaped notes sent if no preference is indicated.

Single copy, 35c postpaid; per 100, carriage extra, $25.00.

Leather Bindings

Many persons have ordered Kingdom Songs No. 2 in a leather binding with their name and address stamped on in gold. To all who wish a well-bound book for their personal use we are glad to say that either edition may be had in the following special bindings; Half leather, 85c per copy, postpaid; Stiff leather, $1.00 per copy, postpaid; Limp leather, $1.25 per copy, postpaid.

We can stamp your name or name and address in gold on any hymnal or song book for 20c per line. The charge for stamping name of church on hymnals is $1.00 for the first dozen and 50c for each additional dozen.

REVIVAL SONGS AND BEST HYMNS

In nearly every church extra books are needed for revival meetings. The songs in this book are num-

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, R. E. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor
L. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as Second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 509)

on Christian Education. At our temperance program, on the evening of June 15, Eld. J. H. Cassady gave the address. The heavy rains interfered with the attendance. Children's Day services were held on Sunday evening, June 22, under the direction of Sisters Fay Hochstein and Anna Baumgardner. July 20 our Field Secretary, Bro. Foster E. Statler, gave an address. Among other good things he emphasized the Sunday-school's part in the Forward Movement. In the evening Elder and Sister J. M. Blough gave us two interesting talks. While in the city, their home is with the writer, at 1309 Franklin Street. Our Conference offering amounted to $501. Of this amount the Helping Hand Bible Class and the Women's Bible Class each gave $50, and the Berean Class gave $20. Eld. Charles O. Beery has promised to hold a series of meetings here the coming fall. We are looking forward to, and are planning for, the Ministerial Meeting and Sunday-school Convention, which convenes in our church Aug. 19, 20 and 21. Those coming on the trains will take the Roxbury car and get off at Sell Street, in plain sight of the church.—Jerome E. Blough, 1309 Franklin St., Johnstown, Pa., July 26.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Willow Creek.—Bro. Root was with us in a three weeks' evangelistic campaign, assisted by Sister Elma Stump as song leader. We feel that we were greatly benefited and that the Lord blessed our efforts. Thirteen were baptized. July 4 we had a picnic dinner in a grove, after which Bro. Root gave a splendid talk, which was enjoyed by all. Our love feast was held July 5 and the meetings closed the following day.—Mrs. Lizzie Tooker, Wetonka, S. Dak., July 26.

VIRGINIA

Rowland Creek church met in council July 19. We had a fine talk by Bro. R. L. Suit. On Sunday we had four preachers with us and a rousing sermon was delivered on baptism. The audience was large and very attentive. Our Sunday-school is still growing. We now have 102 enrolled, with an average attendance of sixty or seventy.—Nancy J. Suit, Seven Mile Ford, Va., July 26.

WEST VIRGINIA

Old Furnace church met in council July 12, with Eld. B. W. Smith presiding. Brethren Dennis Culp and Daniel Whitacre were elected deacons and installed after services on Sunday morning. An offering of $10.57 was taken for the Bible teacher of Blue Ridge College. Our Annual Conference offering was $57. Our Children's Day services will be held August 10. Our series of meetings begins Sept. 27, and our love feast will be held Oct. 8.—Mrs. Effie Abe, Old Furnace, W. Va., July 24.

Spruce Run congregation met in council July 12, with Bro. J. S. Showalter presiding. Bro. Dewey D. Fleshman was elected to the ministry by a unanimous vote of the church. The writer was chosen delegate to District Meeting. Bro. Showalter expects to begin a series of meetings at our church about August 1.—Mary E. Bradley, Lindside, W. Va., July 29.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

August 17-20, District of Oregon, at Portland.
August 21, District of N. and S. Carolina, Ga. and Fla., Brummett Creek church, Mitchell Co., N. C.
August 26-29, District of Oklahoma, Panhandle of Texas and New Mexico, Washita church, near Cordell.
August 28, District of Southern Indiana, at Rossville church.
August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.
August 30-Sept. 1, District of N. Ill. and Wisconsin, Camp Grounds, Lena, Ill.
Oct. 2-9, District of Northern Iowa, Minnesota and S. Dak., at Lewiston, Minn.

LOVE FEASTS

Illinois

Sept. 13, Panther Creek, all-day meeting.

Indiana

August 24, Ladoga.
August 30, New Salem.
Sept. 6, Oak Grove.
Sept. 6, 7 pm, Wabash.
Sept. 6, Auburn.
Sept. 6, Maple Grove.
Sept. 13, 7 pm, Yellow Creek.
Sept. 20, Center.
Sept. 20, Somerset.
Sept. 20, 7:30 pm, Bethany.
Sept. 27, 7 pm, Cart Creek.
Sept. 28, 6 pm, Santa Fe.

Iowa

August 29, Libertyville.
Sept. 22, Dry Creek.

Maryland

Sept. 13, Fairview.
Sept. 13, 10:30 am, Piney Creek.
Sept. 14, Maple Grove.
Sept. 20, 2 pm, Sams Creek.

Missouri

August 23, 7 pm, Prairie View.

Ohio

Sept. 6, 10 am, Sugar Creek.
Sept. 7, 6 pm, Akron.
Sept. 27, 10 am, New Carlisle.

Pennsylvania

August 9, Georges Creek, Fairview house.
August 16, Indian Creek, County Line house.

Texas

Sept. 13, Pleasant Grove.

Virginia

August 23, Lebanon.
Sept. 20, Rowland Creek.

West Virginia

August 23, Bean Settlement.
August 30, Maple Spring.
Sept. 6, White Pine.
Sept. 6, Salem.
Sept. 6, Knobley.
Sept. 20, Harman.
Sept. 21, Shiloh.

DOES YOUR CHURCH NEED LEADERS OF SINGING?

Manchester College School of Music can prepare you for this work. Did you hear the Oratorio at Conference? Training for such work is received here. Three able teachers give full time to our music department. Voice, Piano, Chorus singing, Sacred music, Harmony and History emphasized. Write today for our new catalogue. Address

Manchester College
North Manchester, Indiana

A College With Ideals

Christian Character Sound Scholarship
Unselfish Service

Thorough training is offered men and women in the varied courses as they have been reorganized into the following departments:

I. THE COLLEGE
(a) Course in Liberal Arts, leading to the A. B. degree.
(b) Course in General Science, leading to the B. S. degree.
(c) Pre-Medical Course, two years.
(d) Home Economics Course, two years.

II. THE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY
(a) Theological Course, leading to the B. D. degree.
(b) Christian Workers' Training Course, leading to the B. S. L. degree.

III. THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC
(a) Course in Piano, four years, with diploma.
(b) Course in Voice, four years, with diploma.

IV. THE ACADEMY
(a) Normal English Course.
(b) College Preparatory Course.
(c) Business Course.
(d) Expression Course.

Of the above, the General Science and Theological Courses will be offered for 1919-20. The demands of the church and of our own patrons in it, as well as the enlarged Faculty and increased equipment are the reasons for the extension of the scope of the institution's work.

Send for new illustrated catalogue and School of Theology Bulletin.

The Fall term will open September 15, 1919

The President, Juniata College
Huntingdon, Pa.

WHAT WILL IT COST
to Attend McPHERSON COLLEGE One Year?

Tuition per semester (half year or 18 weeks),	$ 35.00
Board and furnished room in Dormitory, for same time,	$ 81.00
Total,	$116.00
For entire year, paid in advance,	$227.00
Books, Society Fees, Lecture Course, and such like, estimated to be about,	$ 15.00

Other expenses are just what each student makes them.
Experience has proved that IT ALWAYS COSTS LESS IN McPHERSON COLLEGE.

Now Compare a Little

In the average State school or commercial school total expenses for the year are often two or three times this amount.
The instruction is no better and in many cases is much inferior.
The moral atmosphere where dancing and cigarette smoking are popular pastimes among the students is vicious and degrading.
The social life going with these things is exceedingly costly.
Take no chances. Send your children to a thoroughly Christian college.
It is always cheaper in dollars and superior in results.
Write us for reservation of room at once.

Address, McPHERSON COLLEGE, McPherson, Kansas.

Mount Morris College

is a leader in preparation for Mission Work. Of the thirty-two missionaries going out this year, thirteen were trained in our school.

OUR SEMINARY COURSE

is a long step in advance in preparing religious workers along the lines of our own particular needs.

THE REVISED AGRICULTURE COURSE,

with equipment to correspond, is an equally great advance in that direction.

SEE THE JULY BULLETIN

for further information. And decide today that you will be among the leaders in service for God and for humanity.

Our opening date is September 16

Mount Morris College
Mount Morris, Ill.

McPherson College

desires to get into communication with suitable help for the kitchen and dining-room.

¶A competent cook and manager is desired. Perhaps a man and his wife who are skilled in this line of work will find here a splendid opportunity.

¶Three young women are wanted, steady work, in kitchen and dining-room, at splendid wages.

Write to McPHERSON COLLEGE
McPherson, Kans.

Vith Ideals

Sound Scholarship Service

d women in the varied courses
ne following departments:

he A. B. degree.
to the B. S. degree.
ars.

B. D. degree.
, leading to the B. S. L. degree.

iploma.
ploma.

ogical Courses will be offered for 1919-20.
s in it, as well as the enlarged Faculty and
sion of the scope of the institution's work.

of Theology Bulletin.

September 15, 1919

The President, Juniata College
Huntingdon, Pa.

L IT COST
COLLEGE One Year?

..... $ 35.00
..... $ 81.00

..... $116.00
..... $227.00
ated to be about, ... $ 15.00
m.

SS IN McPHERSON COLLEGE.

e a Little ol total expenses for the year are often two or is much inferior.

rette smoking are popular pastimes among the dingly costly.

oroughly Christian college.
results.

HERSON COLLEGE, McPherson, Kansas.

McPherson College

desires to get into communication with suitable help for the kitchen and dining-room.

¶ A competent cook and manager is desired. Perhaps a man and his wife who are skilled in

THE GOSPEL MES

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., August 16, 1919

In This Number

Editorial—
The Essence of Repentance, ... 513
Who Is to Be Helped by It? 513
This Is the Kind of a Vision You Need, ... 513
Don't Lose! Invest! 513
The Quiet Hour, ... 519
Among the Churches, ... 520
Around the World, ... 521

Contributors' Forum—
Prayer (Poem), ... 514
The Two Programs. By J. Harman Stover, ... 514
The Neglected Flocks. By J. H. Moore, ... 514
Some Thoughts on John 13: 1-17. By S. S. Blough, ... 514
The Day's Work in Marash.—I. By A. J. Culler, ... 515
Elder H. B. Brumbaugh. By W. J. Swigart, ... 516
Money, Money, Money—Stewardship. By F. H. Crumpacker, .. 517
The Southern Mountaineers.—Number Three. By O. F. Helm, 517

The Round Table—
Going and Returning. By M. M. Eshelman, ... 518
Learning to Listen. By Ezra Flory, ... 518
A New Love. By Wm. K. Conner, ... 518
Fundamentals in Education. By John S. Flory, ... 518
A Dead Weight. By Daisy M. Moore, ... 518
Diffidence and Leadership. By Roy Temple House, ... 519
Notes and Jottings.—I. By I. J. Rosenberger, ... 519

Home and Family—
Once in a While (Poem), ... 522
What Obligation Do I Owe the Aid Society? By Mrs. John A. Robinson, ... 522
The Feet of David. By Oma Karn, ... 522

...EDITORIAL...

The Essence of Repentance

ONE of the very finest illustrations of repentance to be found anywhere is the little book of Jonah. That King of Nineveh had a better understanding of the doctrine of repentance than some preachers of to-day. He told his people to fast and cover themselves with sackcloth and cry mightily unto God. But he did not stop at that. He added something still more to the point: "Let them turn everyone from his evil way."

That is the essence of repentance,—turning from sin. No amount of regret and remorse can constitute repentance. There must be a change of purpose. There must be a turning around, a right-about face. The strength may seem too small to make the turn in outward life, but God will take care of that if the turn is really made in the heart.

The choice of righteousness is the crucial thing. When that is made in sincerity and truth, the way is opened to the divine approval and the bestowal of the needed grace to put the choice into practice.

Who Is to Be Helped By It?

SUPPOSE you are writing an article, or a book, or preparing an order of service, a program, or a sermon—how do you tell when it suits you? What is your test question?

Perhaps you are wondering what Bro. So-and-So will think of it. Or how it will strike the audience as a whole, or the readers, as the case may be. And there is nothing necessarily wrong about such wonderings.

Are all the statements true? is a question, of course, of primary importance. Others not to be despised are such as: Is the arrangement logical? Is the form attractive? Is the subject-matter interesting?

But all of these are worth while only as they be-

This Is the Kind of

WAS there ever such a time of universal perplexity and uncertainty as this? What is going to happen next?

The war is over. This is peace time. And yet it seems the world could never have been so full of the spirit of unrest as now. Many of the smaller nations are still fighting and some of the larger ones keep looking on the situation and the possibilities with mingled hopes and misgivings. But one does not have to look at the relations between nations to discover this unrest. More significant, probably, is the economic and industrial discontent so much in evidence everywhere. The race riots in Chicago, in progress as these words are written, and the big strike of the street-car men which has spread to Elgin and other Fox River Valley cities are signs too close home to be overlooked.

The churches too have their share of uneasiness. What is the proper message for the hour? A good deal has been said about the new religion which post-war times would demand. Not many leaders have lost their heads over this, but all the level-headed ones realize that there is urgent need of something to make the old religion more effective. But what is it?

What is the proper program? What should we try to do? Is there much use in trying to do anything in such uncertain times as these? Something might happen to upset it all. Oh, if we only knew what's coming! Is there no one with a clear vision of the road ahead? Isn't this suspense dreadful?

Speaking of visions reminds us of a certain great man who once had a vision of his future program which gave him great peace of mind and a very large and wholesome influence on the subsequent history of the world. Possibly it would help us a little to see just what effect that vision had on him.

He began preaching the Gospel of Jesus in Damascus but soon stopped short and went off eastward into the desert country for three years. Just what he was doing there we can only guess, but any supposition leaves his course a little strange for a man who had just had a vision of his future work. He next visited Jerusalem and met some other apostles of his new faith, but his association with them was very limited and very brief. Several years, possibly as many as five or six, he spent in comparative obscurity somewhere in Syria and Cilicia. Indeed, it is with almost a shock of surprise that we find that from the time when his life program was laid out for him in that vision, something like ten years elapsed before he entered definitely upon it.

And even then, during that period of marvelously successful missionary activity, it is surprising to see how much of uncertainty and perplexity there was in it. Surprising, it seems to us, for a man who had seen in a vision just what he was to do. Once he set out from his Antioch headquarters with a view of evangelizing the populous province of Asia but soon found himself "forbidden of the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia." He then thought to go with his companion evangelists into the northernmost province of Bithynia but the "Spirit of Jesus suffered them not." What, didn't this great ambassador, called of the Lord,

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

Prayer

Selected by Viola Priser, Sidney, Ind.

Prayer was appointed to convey
The blessings God designs to give;
Long as they live should Christians pray,
For only while they pray they live.

And shall we in dead silence lie,
When Christ stands waiting for our prayer?
My soul, thou hast a Friend on high;
Arise and try thy interest there.

If pain afflict, or wrongs oppress,
If cares distract, or fears dismay;
If guilt deject, if sin distress:
The remedy's before thee—pray!

Depend on Christ, thou canst not fail;
Make all thy wants and wishes known.
Fear not: his merits must prevail,
Ask what thou wilt, it shall be done!

The Two Programs

BY J. HARMAN STOVER

THE two memorial years, 1908 and 1919—the first marking the two hundredth anniversary of the organization of the church at Schwarzenau, and the latter the bicentennial of the Peter Becker migration to America—close a period of the past and open one of the future, which, judging from the view-points of each, had more than human wisdom in their conception and rendering.

The 1908 program was characteristically a review of the past. The personnel, rendering that program, were the strongest and most talented men and women found in the Brotherhood—men and women who could appreciate the virtues of the fathers and mothers of the church of the past, their splendid achievements leading up to the present consummations. They told the story with such effect as to leave lasting pictures on memory's wall—not only of a proud past, but of a splendid present heritage.

The emphasis of the past, so impressed a very highly esteemed educator, not a member of the Church of the Brethren, but one who often speaks from our Conference platform, that he called attention to the fact that it might appear to some, from the addresses made, that the church was like a potato field—the best being under the ground. This convulsed the writer, and no doubt the audience, but looking deeper into the whole tenor of the program, a real preface or introductory to the 1919 program is clearly seen.

The Becker Bicentennial program was decidedly a forward look, with just enough reference to past activities—reverently expressed—as to mark clearly past and present assets. The talent, made responsible for this program, surely made good, with added spirit and emphasis. Language fails properly to express my appreciation. Eleven years of epoch-making history lie between the two memorial years—years of tragical world-life. The entrance into that epoch was black as night, but the experience of it, and the emerging therefrom, has had the effect of showing the world and the church how narrow and close and selfish enlightenment has been with her endowments. It has shown the church, as never before, the world's need and the mission of the church in meeting it. It has loosened up our close-fisted hold on our children, causing us to consecrate them more to God's use than to entangle them in the meshes of industrialism as before. It has wonderfully loosened our purse-strings to the need of suffering humanity.

Well, all this and more seemed to permeate the 1919 program atmosphere. Each session and each talk seemed like an opening wedge, awakening to the ready and waiting mind new visions of larger things in the future.

It is the consensus of opinion, of all communicated with, that, as the program closed, the goal of our objective was set upon a wider view of our mission horizon, than we ever comprehended before. At the close of the program all seemed filled with a realization of the meaning of the query uttered by the Master: "Children, have ye any meat?" "No, we have toiled all these years and still have the same number we had before—100,000." "Launch out into the deep. Let down your net on the right side." And on that last day—the great missionary day—signs of moving the boat toward deeper waters were neither fiction nor a myth.

It is a fine thing to take a look backward sometimes and take an inventory of the present. This the 1908 program did, and did it well. But we should not stand and gaze upon past achievements, even though it be gazing into heaven, for this same Jesus will come again and will require results that speak for themselves. This changes us about-face, to a forward look.

So it is with the communion, "as oft . . . show death" (Calvary). But we can not look long on Calvary until the real man of faith sees "near by" the resurrection of him whose life is the light of men, and directs us to the future hope—the first resurrection.

The very thing that makes us admire our fathers of the past, was their forward vision and forward movement. They lived ahead of the times. The persecutions, perplexities and problems arose from their vision of the deeper things that God had in store for the world.

Looking at the one program we detect, perhaps, only the exuberance of praise for the faithful—only a seeming symbol to the potato field. May we, however, also see, at the closing of the other program, an awakened Brotherhood, with a vision that grasps the largest possible mission of the church! The one program said in a related sense: "Farewell," "good night." The last says, in exuberance of hope and joy, "good morning." Perhaps we, like the Wise Men of old, are just again discovering our "Star of Bethlehem," after having lost it in the maze of seeking the Lord with executives of the law.

"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Shall we know the "time of our visitation"? Shall we know our opportunity?

Fresno, Calif.

The Neglected Flocks

BY J. H. MOORE

IN the New Testament a good deal is said about feeding and looking after the Lord's flock. Paul, in Acts 20: 28, told the elders at Ephesus to take heed to all the flock over which the Holy Ghost had made them overseers, and to feed the church of God. In 1 Peter 5: 2 we are given like instructions: "Feed the flock of God which is among you." He adds that the oversight should be taken willingly, "not for base gain, but with all your heart" as the Syriac rendering has it. Then, in Luke 12: 32, Jesus, speaking to his followers as a "little flock," tells them not to fear. We are also told of the time when "grievous wolves shall enter, not sparing the flock." As a last thought there is an emphatic warning against overseers becoming lords over the Master's flock. It is more desirable that they become examples to the flock.

In the Brotherhood we have some very large flocks, some of them rather large for one set of overseers. Then, on the other hand, there are a number of small flocks, some of them very small, and not a few of them are reported to be without shepherds. Somebody is failing to take heed to these little flocks, and that is why they are left alone. We sometimes wonder if the Holy Ghost made overseers of the men who have left the little flocks without some one to look after them. There might be such a thing as an elder becoming the overseer of a flock in which the Holy Spirit plays no part. It is an easy matter for a man to be induced to settle at a point where there is a good financial opening, and in this way become the shepherd of the few members residing in that locality. When the minister is to furnish his own support, and help with the church expenses besides, the plan is to be encouraged. In this way the foundation for some of our strongest churches has been laid. No one should fail to see the hand of God in all such movements. But when it becomes an exceedingly easy matter for a minister, influenced solely by his personal financial interest, to pass rapidly from one congregation to another, leaving each one wholly shepherdless, we would not like to be too sure about the leadership of the Holy Spirit in that method of carrying on the Lord's work.

We are not saying that the minister who permits his financial interests to prompt him to change his place of residence every year or two, is doing little or nothing for the Lord's Kingdom. Wherever he goes he gives a certain amount of his time to his Master's flock. It may not be the ideal way of overseeing and feeding a little flock, but it is better than leaving the flock entirely alone. However, it is not in this kind of work that the Spirit is most interested.

The Spirit is of an abiding type. He comes to his people and remains with them. This being true, it is but natural that Spirit-filled ministers should be strongly disposed to stay by their flocks, especially if they have been made overseers by the Spirit. When an elder feels, deep down in his heart, that he has, by the Holy Spirit, been called to feed and care for one of the little flocks of the Master, it is not such an easy matter for him, on a small pretext, to leave the Lord's sheep to the mercy of the wolves. And every well-informed member in the Brotherhood knows that a great deal of this kind of work has been done. Small congregations, and large ones too, have been left to shift for themselves, wholly on account of money considerations. One of the saddest things in the experience of an earnest minister is to see a little group of discouraged members left as sheep without a shepherd.

Possibly some of us have not thought seriously along this line. Prompted by various considerations, we go from place to place, not realizing what a serious thing it is to leave the Master's flock without the tender and fatherly care it needs. We would censure the mother who would leave the children entrusted to her care, though some of them may not be her own, and yet, as ministers of the Gospel, we excuse ourselves when we think it will be to our interest to leave a little band of the Father's children, while we go elsewhere. In the one instance the children are deprived of a mother's care and interest, while in the other souls are endangered for the want of spiritual nourishment and guidance.

In all probability hundreds of our ministers have not taken their call to the Lord's work as seriously as they should have done. In fact, this may be the case with all of us. We like to think of our call as being from God and yet, without any compunction of conscience, we can behold flock after flock of the Master's sheep left without a shepherd. We may, at times, have good reasons for leaving a post of duty, but do we take it to heart as we should? It pained the Master's heart to look upon a group of people who keenly felt that they were as sheep without a shepherd, to feed and direct them. The absence of this heartfelt feeling in us, as ministers, may account for some of the neglected flocks.

It was the Master's purpose that his flocks, be they large or small, should be fed and cared for, and it was further his intention that this should be done by those placed in charge of the flocks of the Holy Spirit. And the mere fact that so many little groups of members have, from time to time, been left shepherdless, shows that the Holy Spirit has not been able to secure for such flocks the shepherds that are so much needed. To us it seems that this is a matter demanding serious consideration.

Sebring, Fla.

Some Thoughts on John 13: 1-17

BY S. S. BLOUGH

Prepared and printed by order of the General Sunday School Board, to correct some teachings in the Junior Textbook for August 17.

The Circumstance of the Lesson

1. Time.—The last evening before Jesus' betrayal and death. It was most likely Thursday evening, according to our reckoning of time—just twenty-four hours before the Passover. "It seems to me, . . . that Jesus ate his last supper with the disciples on the evening of Thursday, Nisan 13, i. e., at the time when, according to Jewish reckoning, the fourteenth of Nisan began; that this supper was not, and was not intended to be, the actual paschal meal, which neither was nor m one congregation to another, leaving each one olly shepherdless, we would not like to be too sure out the leadership of the Holy Spirit in that method carrying on the Lord's work.

We are not saying that the minister who permits his ancial interests to prompt him to change his place residence every year or two, is doing little or noth- for the Lord's Kingdom. Wherever he goes he es a certain amount of his time to his Master's ck. It may not be the ideal way of overseeing and eding a little flock, but it is better than leaving the ck entirely alone. However, it is not in this kind of rk that the Spirit is most interested.

The Spirit is of an abiding type. He comes to his ople and remains with them. This being true, it is t natural that Spirit-filled ministers should be rongly disposed to stay by their flocks, especially if ey have been made overseers by the Spirit. When elder feels, deep down in his heart, that he has, by e Holy Spirit, been called to feed and care for one the little flocks of the Master, it is not such an easy atter for him, on a small pretext, to leave the Lord's eep to the mercy of the wolves. And every well-formed member in the Brotherhood knows that a eat deal of this kind of work has been done. Small ngregations, and large ones too, have been left to ift for themselves, wholly on account of money con-derations. One of the saddest things in the experi-ice of an earnest minister is to see a little group of scouraged members left as sheep without a shepherd.

Possibly some of us have not thought seriously along is line. Prompted by various considerations, we go om place to place, not realizing what a serious thing is to leave the Master's flock without the tender and atherly care it needs. We would censure the mother ho would leave the children entrusted to her care, ough some of them may not be her own, and yet, as inisters of the Gospel, we excuse ourselves when we ink it will be to our interest to leave a little band of ie Father's children, while we go elsewhere. In the ie instance the children are deprived of a mother's are and interest, while in the other souls are en-angered for the want of spiritual nourishment and uidance.

In all probability hundreds of our ministers have not aken their call to the Lord's work as seriously as they hould have done. In fact, this may be the case with ll of us. We like to think of our call as being from God and yet, without any compunction of conscience, re can behold flock after flock of the Master's sheep eft without a shepherd. We may, at times, have good easons for leaving a post of duty, but do we take it to eart as we should? It pained the Master's heart to ook upon a group of people who keenly felt that they vere as sheep without a shepherd, to feed and direct hem. The absence of this heartfelt feeling in us, as ninisters, may account for some of the neglected locks.

It was the Master's purpose that his flocks, be they arge or small, should be fed and cared for, and it was further his intention that this should be done by those placed in charge of the flocks of the Holy Spirit. And the mere fact that so many little groups of members have, from time to time, been left shepherdless, shows that the Holy Spirit has not been able to secure for such flocks the shepherds that are so much needed. To us it seems that this is a matter demanding serious consideration.

Sebring, Fla.

Some Thoughts on John 13: 1-17

BY S. S. BLOUGH

Prepared and printed by order of the General Sunday School Board, to correct some teachings in the Junior Textbook for August 17.

The Circumstance of the Lesson

1. Time.—The last evening before Jesus' betrayal could be legally eaten till the following evening."—Canon Farrar.

2. Place.—An upper room in Jerusalem, where some of the disciples had made preparation.

3. Occasion.—Jesus met with his disciples in order that he might teach them some important lessons, and institute some special ordinances. He, with the twelve, had come to this room where they surrounded a table in Oriental fashion, on which was served a full meal. This was the Lord's supper and by Jesus' command became a fixed ordinance in the Christian church. At this time, just previous to the partaking of the full meal, Jesus girded himself and washed his disciples' feet. This was an entirely new feature for such a time and place, and the disciples questioned and were surprised.

The Lesson Text in Its Divisions

1. The statement of the time (v. 1a): "Before the feast of the passover." Really twenty-four hours before. Approaching almost immediately the hour of his departure out of the world.

2. The Father's attitude toward the Son (v. 1b).

3. The devil's attitude toward Jesus (v. 2). The betrayer named—one of Christ's chosen ones.

4. Jesus using his authority to establish the church more completely—by instituting sacred ordinances and sacraments (v. 3 on).

5. Details of Jesus' action in instituting feet-washing as a Christian duty (vs. 4, 5).

6. Peter's attitude toward what he considers a menial act, and his changed attitude when he understands that it really had a spiritual significance (vs. 6, 8, 9).

7. Jesus' statement to him shows: (a) That it is not a common but a particular and significant act (vs. 7, 8). (b) That it must be kept within the prescribed limits of its purpose (vs. 9, 10). (c) Humble submission to this rite is necessary to salvation (v. 8b). (d) This washing represents a spiritual cleansing (vs. 10, 11).

8. Jesus emphasizing the command (vs. 12-15).

9. Humble obedience followed by a great blessing (vs. 16, 17).

Discussion

True to his life-long action, Jesus is doing good right up to the end of his earthly life. He wants the church to understand him fully and to complete his teaching and work. As the time for his going away approaches, he is anxious to introduce some things which will continue a true understanding of his mission and spirit. Among these things is the ordinance of feet-washing. Because of the importance of these teachings, he planned to have the apostles alone.

The Meaning and Importance of Feet-washing.—"Jesus seems to have begun his work without a word of explanation. The disciples had never seen such an action before, either by Jesus or any other person. There was a practice of washing feet for cleansing, but that was done at a different place and in a different way. The priests had washed their own feet, but here there were no priests (Ex. 30: 19). The visitor in Palestine, as he entered the house, was given water to wash his feet (Gen. 43: 24; Judges 19: 21). Here, too, the person washed his own feet. These cases were for cleansing the body, but the washing of Jesus was not the same. Jesus said to Peter: 'What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt understand hereafter' (John 13: 7). If it had been the ordinary custom, Peter would have understood. He does understand after he thinks of Jesus' teaching later. This would help everyone to understand. When Jesus had washed them all, he said they were not all clean. But why not? He referred to Judas and, therefore, must have meant his mind and heart. This feet-washing, then, must have been for soul-cleansing, or spiritual cleansing, instead of physical cleansing."—Quoted ye also should do as I have done to you' (John 13: 14, 15). Just as baptism in water symbolizes an inward cleansing, so feet-washing symbolizes the continuance of that cleansing." Feet-washing is intended to be a church practice, for Jesus instituted it with disciples only present.

Direction to Teachers.—Follow your Junior Textbook as far as the Scripture permits, but do not fear to vary from its teaching where there is a clear misinterpretation. Your teaching in the class should be in harmony with the practice of your church on the matter in hand. It is needless to say that the Church of the Brethren practices feet-washing, having accepted it as a Gospel-requirement. Pray earnestly for light to teach this lesson as it was intended by the Lord. The more you meditate upon the different sections, the clearer the teaching becomes, if you are honest. The Spirit will educate and guide into the truth. Be sure that every pupil in your class has a clear conception of the teaching here given.

Astoria, Ill.

The Day's Work in Marash

BY A. J. CULLER

I. In the City

MARASH is a city in Central Turkey with a pre-war population of 60,000. It lies in the foothills of the Taurus Mountains, a little over a hundred miles from the dent which the Mediterranean Sea makes into the land that separates Syria from Asia Minor. It lies at one of the ancient passes through the Taurus and is the natural gateway from North Central Asia Minor, down to Syria, and east to the Euphrates. It is one of the ancient Hittite cities, the scene of battles between mighty kingdoms in the hoary past, between them and the Egyptians on the one hand and the Assyrians on the other. At the present time it is the extreme northern outpost of occupation by the British army which made the wonderful advance from Egypt through Palestine and Syria. It is about 125 miles from the nearest railway station and thus presents great problems in transportation.

This city suffered the usual deportation of Armenians, though not as severely as some others, and with not as much property destroyed as in many sections. There is a good body of Armenians who were never driven out, though the business of most of them was destroyed. Being at the natural pass to the north, and also at the extreme of British occupation, and therefore the farthest point to which the refugees can go for the present, the city is full of people from Sivas, Marsovan, Trebizond, Erzroom, and other northern provinces. These depend upon us for support until they can return to their own villages which, of course, can not be until order is more fully restored. Our work here is as well organized, I find, as any on the field, and so this account hopes to give a fair picture of relief work as it is now carried on.

We are at present conducting five Orphanages, with a capacity of a little over 1,000, and are making arrangements for another Boys' Orphanage. There will then be three for boys and three for girls. Most of these are orphans with both parents and most of the relatives dead. The orphan problem is not as large as we had anticipated, simply because of the sad fact that most of them died. Instead of there being 400,000 orphans in the Near East, there are nearer 100,000, with the list of dead correspondingly larger. At present these orphans are well fed and look like a strong lot of children, for naturally only the stronger and more enduring survived. They are well provided with staple foods and the necessary comforts of living.

One of the largest aspects of the work is the fighting of disease. Under deportation conditions disease developed with a frightful toll of death. The refugees attached and homeless men who can earn their own living, if we can take them off the streets and provide a place for them to sleep.

It is useless, of course, to talk of the difficulties of a task. At every turn one is met by problems which seem almost insurmountable. The war has so depleted this section of the world of commodities on which life depends, as to make one feel that it is almost hopeless. The things which we need in our hospital are not obtainable, supplies for plumbing and sanitation are unheard of, and lumber has gone to a price about six times its cost in America. Supplies or raw materials in every line are very low, but every time we plan to do something, there is the forbidding fact of nothing to do it with. This means that we must bring it in. We must haul every pound, brought in a distance of 140 miles over rough roads. Eighteen miles away is the Aksu River, whose bridge will not support our trucks, and we must haul it from the river with the army mules and wagons.

But out of the chaos, order is being brought and the community is being put back on its feet. None are seriously suffering from lack of food, and plans are in operation whereby none shall, this winter, suffer from lack of clothing. Those who have been to see us, pronounce this to be one of the best organized units in the field, having the problem well in hand. The work is directed by a committee of three, composed of one of the missionaries and myself as the directors in charge, and one of the surgeons representing the medical end of the work. We have a personnel of seventeen American workers, who are working hard at their tasks and, we believe, are doing it, for the most part at least, in the spirit of the Christ who is today feeding many times five thousand, healing multitudes of the sick, and comforting the sorrow-racked souls of his children in this bleeding land.

Marash, Turkey.

Elder H. B. Brumbaugh

BY W. J. SWIGART

Henry Boyer Brumbaugh was born in Penn Township, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, April 1, 1836. His father was Eld. John Brumbaugh. The children of this household consisted of six sons. The only surviving one is Eld. J. B. Brumbaugh, of Huntingdon. Henry spent his boyhood days on the farm along the Raystown Branch of the Juniata River. He attended the public schools in the country, Williamsburg Academy and the Cassville Seminary, and studied Greek and other subjects afterwards at Juniata College. He taught in the public schools of Huntingdon County, and also farmed for several years. He was baptized June 15, 1856. June 24, 1864, he was called to the ministry and preached his first sermon from John 11 : 25, Aug. 14, 1864. In 1889 he was ordained elder and has since been in charge of the Huntingdon church. Sept. 20, 1860, he was married to Susan Fink Peightal, who died Jan. 22, 1904.

Jan. 1, 1870, he, with his brother, J. B. Brumbaugh, issued the first number of the Pilgrim from an office at James Creek, Pa. The publication office of the Pilgrim was moved to Huntingdon in the fall of 1874. Oct. 31, 1876, a consolidation was effected between the Pilgrim and the Primitive Christian. The Primitive Christian was edited and published up to that time at Meyersdale, by Eld. James Quinter. Then the papers were united and published as the Primitive Christian and Pilgrim, under the firm name of Quinter and Brumbaugh Brothers.

Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh was a man of sensitive vision, great faith, indomitable courage and of sincerest motive. He was a man of vision. He doubtless dreamed dreams when he became older, but he also saw visions from his youth. While tilling his little farm, within sound of the purling waters of the tortuous river, beneath the inspiring mountain cliffs, he conceived the possibilities of a church printery and religious publication, and in due time the Pilgrim, a religious weekly, was launched on an unknown and uncertain voyage.

Eld. H. B. Brumbaugh was probably not the first to conceive the necessity and the possibilities of an educational institution within the church. Eld. James Quinter and others had advocated and encouraged such a project. But Bro. Brumbaugh was probably the first to conceive and perceive from the distance, and through the mists and obstacles that existed, an actual church educational institution, and proceeded to make it real and existent. With his brother, Eld. J. B. Brumbaugh, who yet survives, and the late Dr. A. B. Brumbaugh, he went forth to make reality out of that vision, which is apparent in our midst here, consisting of practically ten buildings, thirty acres of ground, and endowment pressing towards the four hundred thousand mark, and altogether embodying what now is Juniata College.

Bro. Brumbaugh was a man of rare intelligence and a profound and logical thinker. He was one of the editors of the Religious Department in the making of the Standard Dictionary, published by Funk and Wagnalls thirty or more years ago. He was not distinguished as a preacher or public speaker—although his sermons were always logical and edifying.

He was a great writer. Probably his greatest literary works were his letters of travel—especially those pertaining to Palestine and other countries in the East, and his editorials. Especially were his writings noted because of their pungency, and often for their poetry and imagery—especially in the descriptions of his travels. Many thousands of people, when they learn of his death, will regret the fact that they may read after him no more, in current writing. His little book of Biblical romance, "Onesimus," which he was pleased to call "The Child of My Old Age," is a work of real merit, both in conception of plot and in literary completion.

Eld. H. B. Brumbaugh

Results of His Life

How much these eighty-three years have meant! (1) In the church publications. He started the Pilgrim, helped to start the Primitive Christian and Pilgrim, and has been identified to the end with the Gospel Messenger and all the publication interests of our church. In all these his life and the purpose of his life have been a molding, projecting and determining influence and factor on the church. (2) The Huntingdon church. Dr. A. B. Brumbaugh and family, Eld. H. B. Brumbaugh and family, and Eld. J. B. Brumbaugh and family may well be said to have been the originators, and at the beginning almost constituted the congregation of the Church of the Brethren in Huntingdon, consisting now of four or five hundred members.

At the organization of the Huntingdon congregation, Eld. James Quinter, of revered memory, became the elder. Bro. Quinter died in 1888. Soon after this, Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh was ordained and has, with love and skill, acted as shepherd of this flock until his repeated request for release, on account of infirmity, was granted a year or two ago.

I have spoken already of his faith, and his faith knew no wavering. He was identified with this church and this College from the beginning. He was a counsellor in the home church and in the General Conferences, through the most critical epochs of the church's history. Much, very much, depended on him and he withheld nothing. Through it all and in all of these years of effort and struggle and crisis, he never faltered or doubted. Never did I hear him give expression to a doubt, as to the continuance, permanency and efficiency of the church, in the fulfilling of its functions, nor did he fear for the permanency of the College, either now or after he or the rest of us would be gone.

I think he was almost immune from fret and worry. If he experienced anxiety and worry, he did not show it. A few times have I seen him excited and occasionally in a hurry, but his was an even life.

A Great Man

Ofttimes, in my associations with him, I have, within my own thought, esteemed him a great man, in that he was unaffected by the things that influence and sway most men. I have watched, from ship-deck or from the wharf in the harbor and landings, the vessels there. The small craft—the skiffs and fishing-boats—were tossed and rocked and disturbed by the waves and slushing of the waters, while the great seagoing ships rested or sailed on unaffected, noticing not the splashing and surging of the waters.

I loved Bro. Brumbaugh much for his amiable and lovable qualities. I had respect unto his mature judgment but I have ofttimes looked upon him in sublime admiration of his greatness, as I saw him walk on in life, undisturbed and unaffected by the things that annoy and sometimes seduce and destroy smaller lives.

Personal

If you would know a man, you should live with him. If you would know him well, deal with him. Would you know him very well, take your recreations and off-days with him. I have had every opportunity of knowing Bro. Brumbaugh. For forty-two years we have had associations intimate and almost constant. In church, in school, in business, in recreation, as neighbors, as brethren, as partners, as coworkers, as companions—as friends. We have mingled in ways and times only known to us. We were more than brethren—we were friends and companions. I am debtor—and always have been—to him. I owe much to him and loved him dearly.

Of the men with whom I have associated he was as nearly a normal and sane man as any I have known. I mean by this his habits of thought, the methods of his life, the conclusions reached, the decisions arrived at, the formation of his judgments, the choice of his pursuits, his estimates of values in life and its possessions, his faith and courage in undertakings, the foree and power and assiduousness of his labors, his willingness and readiness for proper and needed recreations, his determination to improve and better conditions that could be improved and bettered, and his readiness to yield and submit to the inevitable and unchangeable. Even in the suffering, the sorrows and the bereavements of life, he could compose himself, after such experiences had fallen upon him, and go on unquestioning, courageously and cheerfully to the duty and labor that devolved upon him. In short, he could make the most out of life and any condition of life that was upon him. All these were qualities that indicated the simple and sane operation of a well-balanced and sound mind in an extraordinary measure.

Bro. Brumbaugh was not, by nature or habit, what might be called a demonstrative man. His characteristics and strongest qualities were rather held in reservation and showed themselves only in mature acquaintance. Some who knew him little may have thought him even cold and distant, but when the deeper fountains of his nature opened out, he proved a fond friend, whose adoption, tried and proved, "We grapple to our soul with hoops of steel."

Bro. Brumbaugh has been a factor in forming the polity of the church, and in giving impetus to its work. Many of the things for which he contended years ago have become the leading and the main issues of the church today. But his was a pioneer function in bringing them about; he blazed the way, he advocated these things when they were new and were regarded as inno-llor in the bome church and in the General Conferces, through the most critical epochs of the church's story. Much, very much, depended on him and he thheld nothing. Through it all and in all of these ars of effort and struggle and crisis, he never falred or doubted. Never did I hear him give expresn to a doubt, as to the continuance, permaneney and ficiency of the church, in the fulfilling of its funcns, nor did he fear for the permanency of the Colge, either now or after he or the rest of us would gone.

I think he was almost immune from fret and worry. he experienced anxiety and worry, he did not show

A few times have I seen him excited and occasionly in a hurry, but his was an even life.

A Great Man

Ofttines, in my associations with him, I have, with my own thought, esteemed him a great man, in that e was unaffected by the things that influence and vay most men. I have watched, from ship-deck or rom the wharf in the harbor and landings, the vessels ere. The small craft—the skiffs and fishing-boats—ere tossed and rocked and disturbed by the waves nd slushing of the waters, while the great seagoing hips rested or sailed on unaffected, noticing not the plashing and surging of the waters.

I loved Bro. Brumbaugh much for his amiable and ovable qualities. I had respect unto his mature judgment but I have ofttimes looked upon him in sublime dmiration of his greatness, as I saw him walk on in fe, undisturbed and unaffected by the things that nnoy and sometimes seduce and destroy smaller lives.

Personal

If you would know a man, you should live with him. f you would know him well, deal with him. Would ou know him very well, take your recreations and ff-days with him. I have had every opportunity of nowing Bro. Brumbaugh, For forty-two years we ave had associations intimate and almost constant. n church, in school, in business, in recreation, as neighbors, as brethren, as partners, as coworkers, as companions—as friends. We have mingled in ways nd times only known to us. We were more than rethren—we were friends and companions. I am debtor—and always have been—to him. I owe much o him and loved him dearly.

Of the men with whom I have associated he was as nearly a normal and sane man as any I have known. I mean by this his habits of thought, the methods of his life, the conclusions reached, the decisions arrived at, the formation of his judgments, the choice of his pursuits, his estimates of values in life and its possessions, his faith and courage in undertakings, the force and power and assiduousness of his labors, his willingness and readiness for proper and needed recreations, his determination to improve and better conditions that could be improved and bettered, and his readiness to yield and submit to the inevitable and unchangeable. Even in the suffering, the sorrows and the bereavements of life, he could compose himself, after such experiences had fallen upon him, and go on unquestioning, courageously and cheerfully to the duty and labor that devolved upon him. In short, he could make the most out of life and any condition of life that was upon him. All these were qualities that indicated the simple and sane operation of a well-balanced and sound mind in an extraordinary measure.

Bro. Brumbaugh was not, by nature or habit, what might be called a demonstrative man. His characteristics and strongest qualities were rather held in reservation and showed themselves only in mature acquaintance. Some who knew him little may have thought him even cold and distant, but when the deeper fountains of his nature opened out, he proved a vations, and when some of them were decidedly unpopular. He did not wait for sentiment to make it safe for the advocacy of these things. He started things and made sentiment. He never was a "policy" man. He only satisfied his mind as to what was right, and was then ready to project it. In his writings and in his counsels he sometimes startled his hearers; but he was never "contentious" or "heady." When a conclusion was reached, as to what was right, he was unwavering, and hesitated not to express himself. He never posed as a reformer. He never "posed" as anything. He just formed his convictions and found his bearings and went on. He was not a disintegrator—he was always constructive. He was never a "knocker" but always a builder. If his views were not accepted, or his ways were rejected, he joined up and worked on. His quiet and calm counsel dissipated threatened storms and aborted apparently imminent breaks.

He was independent in his thinking and often wrote and spake things that may have made him unpopular. But the simplicity and frankness of his mind, the freedom from selfish purpose, and the honesty of his conclusions, gave him a respectful hearing. He had nothing personal either to ask or to fear, and wrote and spake out of the depth and conviction of his heart. "Whatever is best for the cause," was a frequent expression of his, and this seemed to be the standard of his counsel and basis of his judgment, as well as the object of his labors in his dealings with his own congregation, the affairs of the College and for the Brotherhood at large.

So far as the powers of his body and mind were concerned, he was feeble in his last years. It was a natural, orderly and beautiful decline. His good sense and saneness of mind never forsook him. His willingness to let go the things of this life, his freedom from fret, his submissiveness, which merged into childlike gentleness, were interesting and pathetic to contemplate.

The End

His race ended, his course run and finished, the volume of his life completed, the fight well fought, the faith steadily kept, henceforth to receive the glorious crown laid up for him—on Saturday afternoon, June 28 (and nearly at the same hour when his more aged colaborer, Eld. Andrew Spanogle, passed over), after several days of unconsciousness, the end—or the beginning—came peacefully, and "he fell on sleep."

Huntingdon, Pa.

Money, Money, Money—Stewardship

BY F. H. CRUMPACKER

WHEN the Lord said to the young man that he should sell what he had and give his money to the poor and then follow him, he was probably dealing with a special case. But I wonder if the Lord were talking to the people of today, if he would not find a lot of special cases to deal with.

As I view the proposition, the Lord would today find a lot of people who are using money much the same as this young man. How do we know this? The evidence is on the face of the matter. The disciple is to administer affairs on earth for the Lord, and he will sanction his action in heaven.

The church, by means of her agents, comes to a man, gifted with the ability to make money, and puts up this proposition to him: "Give a hundred or a thousand of your last year's income to the Lord." He refuses to hear the Lord's messenger. He turns away from him. Why does he turn away? Because he is rich.

I have been studying the question of money very carefully, for about ten years, and have come to a conclusion which I want to give to the MESSENGER

This, at least, is a hard thing to handle, for most people consider all earned money to be theirs, while I am convinced that it is not theirs at all, but that they are STEWARDS of it. All are stewards. I wonder what the Lord will think of me for rearing a family of strong, hearty, sensible, capable boys and girls, and then handicapping them by giving each of them ten thousand dollars to begin life for themselves. My guess is that the Lord will not, in any sense, approve of my action of dealing with his money in that way. These young people are capable. I have given them a good chance in school. They can make money as well as any of the other young people in the community. Why should I put in a wedge of ten thousand dollars that would serve to make a gulf between them and a lot more of their associates, who are just as good as they are, but whose parents have not been as well gifted to make money as I have. I feel that I am really putting in a ten thousand dollar wedge that will tend to separate the young people of the community, rather than help them to be a COMMON family of young people with an equal footing, and thus a brotherhood feeling. I use the word "brotherhood" advisedly, for the same feeling of brotherhood is not likely to exist among a class of four boys, if two have the ten thousand dollar wedge and two have their good, clean lives, and just as good education as the other two fellows, though but little money. The gulf is fixed and the only way to get this hindering wedge away is to take it away. Let the fellows begin life with a reasonable sum and then they will get on well and really be brothers.

"But what can I do with this ten thousand?" the father asks. Do as the Lord says: Give it back to him and let him use it. "How can I do this?" you ask. Do it regularly, through his established church.

"Shall I quit making money, then?" you ask next. No, surely not, if you recognize that you are the Lord's and that you are handling his money.

"What about the Bible fellow with but the one talent, the one that he hid?" No, don't hide the talent, but if you can make money, by all means make it and MAKE IT FOR THE LORD.

Keep as your working capital a sum that you can REASONABLY well handle, and go on making money for the Lord. Make sure, though, that this capital is so arranged for that, when you are through working it, it, too, goes back into the Lord's treasury. We are to give account of our all to him. We don't want to forget that our Lord has a time when he wants to reckon up accounts. How would I feel if, on the reckoning day, the Lord would say: "Well, Brother C, did I not entrust you with about $50,000? What have you done with it?" Now, I have only this to say: "I had four children and my wife. I made my will, so that each child was to get ten thousand, and my widow was to get the other ten thousand." The Lord will likely ask: "Where is my part coming in?" At least, I should think him a rather peculiar Lord if he did not ask for his share. The just steward came with the original capital and what he had gained in addition, and the Lord said: "This is the kind of a servant I can use. Come up higher."

Brother with money, think a moment before you make a definite addition to the already uneven Christian democracy. May God help you to see that, after you have given your own children a REASONABLE few hundred, the rest of your talents are spent for the Lord.

I can't find in Holy Writ where any man has a right, at the end of the year, to balance his books, and, seeing that he is seven thousand dollars to the good, lean back and spend a few sleepless nights, wondering how he is to invest this, while his schoolmate and brother, who is a pastor at a salary of $1,200 per year, comes

THE ROUND TABLE

Going and Returning

BY M. M. ESHELMAN

When God sent King Saul utterly to destroy the Amalekites—a type of world conditions—Satan did not seem concerned, for he owned the Amalekites. But he was anxious about King Saul's return to Jerusalem. He said: "Take King Agag back to Jerusalem as a trophy." What else would Satan want King Agag in Jerusalem for, but to exhibit him? "Take the best of the cattle, sheep and goats. This will enrich Israel. Besides, I will have my fingers in God's business. Some of the best of the stock can be sacrificed to God, thus saving some of Israel's stock."

Does the professed Christian go out in the world, get filthy gain, and bring it back for mission work for God? Does any congregation of the Lord, instead of hewing down the world's Agag, take him into its counsels and get his opinion of God's work? Do any of the Lord's people seek the money of the Amalekites to build fine churchhouses, and install costly furnishings? How about these mixed conditions? Is God beckoning for admixtures—good and evil—or for absolute purity in the hearts of his people?

Glendale, Calif.

Learning to Listen

BY EZRA FLORY

How few learn to listen! Men listen and God speaks. "The Lord Jehovah hath given me the tongue of them that are taught, that I may know how to sustain with words him that is weary: he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth mine ear to hear as they that are taught" (Isa. 50: 4).

It is a poverty-stricken soul who has not learned to get caught in the meshes of great thought by reflective listening. As men listen, God speaks. The earth was dark (silence brooded). God spoke; an orderly universe stood forth. "God walked in the cool of the day," may have been spoken wiser than the author knew.

Samuel listened and heard that which made him a prophet of God. As we can not enter a crowded house, so God will not come into a bustling life. "Be still and know that I am God." "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." Preceding the Day of Pentecost, a group of one hundred and twenty were listening before they delivered their message.

The Master said to a zealous, clamoring group of followers, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye can not bear them now." Some prayers are loud, as though they were addressing God. The "Lord, teach us to pray," is not so.

The Israelites were under covenant to labor six days. Along that line most people succeed well still. But the seventh day was one covenanted in rest—to listen. Here many fail.

We shall do well to heed the injunction: "Be swift to hear, slow to speak." It is through listening that men have received the messages to be spoken. If God had a better chance at our ears, he could use our tongues better. Peter often spoke when he should have been listening. He was very much like ourselves. "He that hath an ear, let him hear."

Chicago, Ill.

A New Love

BY WM. K. CONNER

Jesus brought a lot of new things into the world. A new way of speaking—"never man spake like this man." He spoke as one having authority. It was so new that it was sensational. Everybody was talking about it. All had heard some of the greatest men, but nothing like this. They were astonished beyond measure. They marveled. One new thing after another was sprung on them. But it seems to me that the most wonderful of all was the new way of loving each other that he told them about, that last night during the first "love feast"—one of the last new things. Stop here and think about that time. Read John 13 again and again. Especially read verses thirty-three to thirty-five. Meditate!

That new love. John's mother loved her boy. And what a love is mother love! None better. All who know a mother, know that no love, of the many kinds of love, surpasses in any way a mother's love. But as I meditate on this new love that Jesus said should fill their hearts now, it is even a bit beyond the wonderful love of mother, it seems to me.

Is it a bit more holy, a bit more tender, a bit more heavenly? Yes, a bit more of God? "God is love." So it looks to me as I hold it up beside the loveliest mother love. It must be, for it is new—like his love. And none ever loved like he loved, from Eve to Jesus. What love! How wonderful to think about! And what must it be to have it! But can we? Can our hearts be full of such love as that? Yes, they can, and more, they must be, if we are his disciples. Only his disciples have such love. It's new love. It's different from the love that we find in the world. The world can't love like that. It does not have the capacity or power to do it. Sin has destroyed the power. But after becoming a new creature in Christ, then this new love can and does manifest itself. All see it. It is visible everywhere. It is never eclipsed. It is recognized by all. Though new, yet all know what it is. It clearly shows where the possessor belongs.

And this new love is symbolized in the love feast, yea, in that trinity of ordinances, instituted at the same time this new love commandment was given. When we come out from the feast, do we bring the new love along? Does it run through our lives as it ran through the feast? Or do all men know that we are his disciples because we go to the feast? What manner of persons ought we to be? What manner of persons are we, if we are obeying this new love commandment? May we not forget that "by this [new love] shall all men know that ye are my disciples."

Harrisburg, Pa.

Fundamentals in Education

BY JOHN S. FLORY

There are frequently perplexing questions that come up when young people are making decisions about their future educational plans. The same questions sometimes disturb parents. One of these relates to the kind of educational work one should take, whether technical or general training. Now this is an important matter, and mistakes long regretted are oftentimes made at this point.

To some of us, educational institutions look much alike, and education is education. Short courses look attractive. But it is not the nature of the human mind to receive its training in a few weeks or months, or even years. The natural educational period of our lives comprises many years, and to try to crowd this training into a brief compass is to defeat the very ends of education.

True education looks to the development of all the powers of mind, soul and body, and these in proper relation to each other. To begin specializing in any line before a broad, solid foundation of liberal culture is laid, means to develop abnormally. To emphasize one side of our nature to the exclusion of the others is to defeat normal development. This is what all kinds of technical training tend to do, if it is taken before the liberal education has been completed.

So much stress is placed nowadays upon vocational training that if we do not watch we will warp the whole educational system out of its true proportions. Frequently a boy or girl can take a course in stenography or bookkeeping without much high school training and go into an office at $10 or $12 a week. For a few years the salary will increase moderately and then come to a standstill, and before the person reaches middle life he will find himself incapable of rising in his profession and equally incapable of entering any other. To such, old age is not an inviting prospect. In the race of life these people are left behind. But it is not because of a lack of natural ability or of conscientious effort or of diligent application, but because of the lack of vision in the preparation.

Dr. Edmund J. James, President of the University of Illinois, referring to this matter in an address recently said: "Friends, I would today, if I were a betting man—which I am not—bet my money on a graduate of the college of liberal arts and sciences who had decided to go into engineering after he graduated, and had never studied engineering a single hour before he left the institution and went into the practical work, than on a graduate engineer who had failed to get this liberal outlook; far more certainty of his making a success if he has the right attitude toward the world and the right feelings in himself, than the man who has had four years of technical work, preparing to be an engineer, without having gained this correct point of view."

Dr. James has been president of the University of Illinois for fifteen years. The school of engineering, to which he refers, is one of the largest and strongest in the United States, so his estimate, as to the relative value of the course in engineering and the regular college course, is of value. And he goes on to say: "Now, one may say that is true of engineering, but it is not of medicine. But I am willing to join issue with him on that. I would rather take a man who goes out from college without having any training in the specific things that lead to medicine, if he has got the right kind of stuff in him, and then takes up the study of medicine, than the man who has spent two or four years of that time in a medical school, and failed to get this fundamental training."

And what is true of engineering, medicine and shorthand, is true of bookkeeping, normal training, music, Bible, or any other specialized line of work. If the broad and solid foundation of liberal culture is not first laid, the life must be circumscribed and our life activities limited. What we need in our training, above everything else, is not the minutia of detail in a definitely limited field of thought and enterprise but a vision, a breadth of view—ability to see things in their relations to each other, and power to think, to sum up our thinking and to reach conclusions. This is manifestly not the work of a few years but is exactly what is contemplated in a well-graded course of study, culminating in the college course.

So, without much reference to what a young man may plan to make his life-work, whether he is to be a farmer, a lawyer, a minister of the Gospel, an engineer, an architect, or whatever, the best possible preparation is the training that he can receive through a good college course. This gives him culture, perspective, vision, grasp and a sense of proportion that give balance to his thinking, and weight to his conclusions. Such training prepares one in the largest and best sense for any useful work, and for happy and successful living.

Bridgewater, Va.

A Dead-Weight

BY DAISY M. MOORE

The young man was strong, vigorous, intellectual and talented in no ordinary degree, fitted by birth and personal achievement to rise to the high places.

Apparently nothing could prevent him from forging ahead and reaching the high planes at which his ambitions aimed.

Then, one day—when he was well on the way—sin entered his fine young life, and his friends, who were watching his upward progress with pleasure and pride, were puzzled at the abrupt termination of his rise.

It was not for lack of effort. If anything, he strove harder than ever to reach his goal, but always he was baffled, always he beat in vain against the seemingly adamant bars that had ruthlessly cut short his advance.

His friends were nonplussed, but to the young man himself was revealed the reason for his failure to mount higher. It was the sin which had entered into his life, which dragged incessantly at his spiritual being, impairing his mental faculties and numbing him physically.

Held down and back by the handicap of one sin! Pitiful, is it not? Some of us know this experience in our own lives.

Surely the words, "For I the Lord your God, am a jealous God," are true. He wishes not to SHARE in-

Dr. Edmund J. James, President of the University Illinois, referring to this matter in an address re-ntly said: "Friends, I would today, if I were a ting man—which I am not—bet my money on a aduate of the college of liberal arts and sciences who d decided to go into engineering after he graduated, d had never studied engineering a single hour before left the institution and went into the practical work, n on a graduate engineer who had failed to get this eral outlook; far more certainty of his making a ccess if he has the right attitude toward the world d the right feelings in himself, than the man who has d four years of technical work, preparing to be an gineer, without having gained this correct point of w."

Dr. James has been president of the University of nois for fifteen years. The school of engineering, which he refers, is one of the largest and strongest the United States, so his estimate, as to the relative ue of the course in engineering and the regular cole course, is of value. And he goes on to say:
Now, one may say that is true of engineering, but it not of medicine. But I am willing to join issue with n on that. I would rather take a man who goes out m college without having any training in the specific ngs that lead to medicine, if he has got the right kind stuff in him, and then takes up the study of medie, than the man who has spent two or four years of t time in a medical school, and failed to get this ndamental training."

And what is true of engineering, medicine and short-nd, is true of bookkeeping, normal training, music, ole, or any other specialized line of work. If the ad and solid foundation of liberal culture is not first d, the life must be circumscribed and our life activi-s limited. What we need in our training, above erything else, is not the minutia of detail in a defin-ly limited field of thought and enterprise but a ion, a breadth of view—ability to see things in their ations to each other, and power to think, to sum up r thinking and to reach conclusions. This is mani-stly not the work of a few years but is exactly what contemplated in a well-graded course of study, lminating in the college course.

So, without much reference to what a young man y plan to make his life-work, whether he is to be a rmer, a lawyer, a minister of the Gospel, an engineer, architect, or whatever, the best possible preparation the training that he can receive through a good col-ge course. This gives him culture, perspective, ion, grasp and a sense of proportion that give bal-ce to his thinking, and weight to his conclusions.
ich training prepares one in the largest and best nse for any useful work, and for happy and success-l living.

Bridgewater, Va.

A Dead-Weight

BY DAISY M. MOORE

THE young man was strong, vigorous, intellectual d talented in no ordinary degree, fitted by birth and rsonal achievement to rise to the high places.
Apparently nothing could prevent him from forging ead and reaching the high planes at which his ambi-ons aimed.

Then, one day—when he was well on the way—sin tered his fine young life, and his friends, who were atching his upward progress with pleasure and pride, ere puzzled at the abrupt termination of his rise.

It was not for lack of effort. If anything, he strove rder than ever to reach his goal, but always he was ffled, always he beat in vain against the seemingly lamant bars that had ruthlessly cut short his advance.
His friends were nonplussed, but to the young man himself was revealed the reason for his failure in fluence in the lives of humans, with the evil one.

* * *

A huge eagle was shot, and the hunter was much surprised to find that one strong claw was held fast in a steel trap, to which were attached a few feet of chain.

Notwithstanding the evidently powerful efforts of this magnificent bird, he had been powerless to free himself from the cruel jaws. He could fly, but ever the heavy, hateful weight wearied him and kept him from reaching the dizzy heights he loved to frequent, and finally brought him within range of the rifle.

Beware of such a dead-weight!

Fairfield, Pa.

Diffidence and Leadership

BY ROY TEMPLE HOUSE

IN the days of Moses and Joshua the very existence of a nation depended on the leadership of one man. After the Jews were established in their own country, divided into settlements scattered all the way from Dan to Beersheba, the fortunes of the various tribes and communities were only in a slight degree interdependent. The southern kingdom stood long after the fall of Samaria. The executive acts of the king in his capital were not a matter of supreme importance to an isolated, self-supporting rural community. But it was different in the wilderness. If the leader had made a serious blunder or proved faithless, it might have meant the destruction of a whole people.

Both Moses and Joshua clearly felt a crushing weight of responsibility, and feared inability to discharge it properly. We know of Moses that when the prophecy and the command came from the burning bush, he hesitated and protested: "Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt" (Ex. 3: 11)? "O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant; but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue" (Ex. 4: 10). And the Lord answers him in both cases, not by assuring him, as men estimate him nowadays, that he is the ablest leader the race will produce, nor by maintaining that his slowness of speech is unconscious eloquence, which is more effective than the fluency of others, but in the one case he responds: "Certainly I will be with thee" (Ex. 3: 12), and in the other he questions: "Who hath made man's mouth? . . . Have not I the Lord" (Ex. 4: 11)? Then he adds: "I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say."

If Moses was, more or less unconsciously, "fishing for compliments," he had not a word of satisfaction from God. There is rather a rebuke for his error, in expecting that his pitiful human talents would be depended upon to effect the result.

We find exactly the same condition of affairs when Joshua is called to assume command. His Divine Adviser assures him: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." And why? Because Joshua was so brave and gifted a general that no captain of the enemy's host could approach him? No, not by any means. Simply because "as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee; I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee" (Josh. 1: 5). "Change kings with us, and we'll fight you again," said one of the defeated Irish after the Battle of the Boyne, but the Canaanites and the Hittites could have driven Joshua ingloriously back to the south, if their chiefs had had God with them.

All this is not intended to imply a doubt that God accomplishes his ends through human instrumentalities, and that he chooses the best material available for the accomplishment of his ends. If the Sunday-school superintendent needs a teacher for the young men's do not have education enough to gain the respect of those boys in high school and college," "I shouldn't be able to give time enough to preparation to do the class justice," " Mr. Jones is a much abler man than I am; ask him." A little dexterous flattery may help matters on, but, after all, the thing of importance to bring home to that man's heart is this: It seems clear that God has pointed you out for this particular work. Since that is the case, your duty is plain. Take charge of the class, do your level best, taking care to ask God's guidance at every turn, and God will do the rest. It makes very little difference whether your talents are large or small, if you are doing God's work at the point where he intends you to stand. If you are clever and amusing in your handling of the lesson, it may make a difference to some members, but those boys are mind-readers, and if they see God looking out of your earnest eyes, they will listen and profit; while, if your voice is empty of him, they will prefer to stay at home on Sunday morning with the graphophone, which is much more amusing than you can possibly be.

How can a man be diffident at God's work? And how can a man be other than diffident at work that is not God's? God has spoken through many foolish and imperfect men. You can find grave faults with both the mind and the heart of Peter, Luther, Wesley, Spurgeon, if you choose to hunt for them, but the message they brought was God's. And if you and I are single-mindedly determined to help on God's cause here on earth, it is absolutely impossible for us to fail; not because God has made any man infallible, but because he himself is infallible.

Why were the children of Israel allowed to wander all their lifetime in the desert, so that Moses himself and all that generation but one man died before the Promised Land was reached? Not because of lack of knowledge or skill, but because they failed of confidence in God and disobeyed him. Moses became discouraged now and then—he lost that faith which might be defined as self-confidence in one who is busy at God's work—and as a result he failed to finish a task which another man carried through successfully. And Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, entered the Promised Land alone of all his generation, because he believed God and therefore never doubted his own success.

As the father of the possessed child cried out before Jesus: "Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief," so we, who are sometimes in danger from that diffidence which is perilously near infidelity, have need to pray every day of our lives: "Lord, I am brave in theory; help thou my practical cowardice."

Norman, Okla.

Notes and Jottings

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER

I. Being Preserved

I AM quite familiar with my subject, for I often watched my mother when she preserved fruits in our old home. She had a fixed process or recipe for preserving fruits so that they would keep. There is need of a preserving agency in the church also—so many people will not keep. So many shrink, fade away, and dwindle more and more. Horticulturists call it "the dry-rot" in plant life. Hence Jude gives us a brief recipe for preserving souls in these words: "To them that are sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Jesus Christ." This is a brief, but very comprehensive recipe.

1. I Noticed That Mother Gathered Fully Ripe Fruit Only, to Preserve.—I see that our missionaries in China and India commonly defer the baptism of their converts until after a period of instruction—until they are ripe. That is the wise thing to do. To gather in converts not ripe would not only be useless but

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 17

Sunday-school Lesson, Christian Missions.—Acts 1: 8; 13: 1 to 14: 28.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Our India and China Fields.

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. J. W. Lear, of Mt. Morris, in the Virden church, Ill.

Bro. Saylor Greyer, of Indianapolis, Ind., in the Pleasant View church, W. Va.

Brother and Sister Ralph G. Rarick, of Covington, Ohio, in the Selma church, Va.

Bro. S. H. Flory, of Nokesville, Va., at Dranesville in the Fairfax congregation, same State.

Bro. W. K. Conner, of Harrisburg, Pa., in the Fairview house, Codorus congregation, same State.

Bro. Levi Mohler, of Elizabethtown, Pa., at the Kemper house, Spring Grove congregation, same State.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One was baptized in the Annville church, Pa.

Five have been added to the Bartlesville Mission, Okla.

Three were baptized in the Bachelor Run church, Ind.

One was recently baptized in the New Paris church, Pa.

Four were recently baptized in the Loon Creek church, Ind.

Four were recently baptized in the Hutchinson church, Kans.

One was recently baptized in the Grundy County church, Iowa.

Four were recently baptized in the Independence church, Kans.

One has been baptized since the last report in the First Church, York, Pa.

Two have been baptized in the Killbuck church, Ind., since the last report.

One was baptized in the Richland Valley Mission of the Centralia church, Wash.

One has been baptized in the Eagle Creek church, Ohio, since previously heard from.

Two were baptized in the Hurricane Creek church, Ill., —Bro. Jesse Shull, Chicago, evangelist.

One confessed Christ in the Sugar Ridge church, Mich., —Bro. O. B. Maplis, of Chicago, evangelist.

One was baptized in the church at Latty, Ohio,—Bro. Roy S. Mishler, of Kewanna, Ind., evangelist.

Eighteen were added to the Cando church, N. Dak.,—Bro. Clark Myers, of Waddams Grove, Ill., evangelist.

Fifteen were baptized in the Silver Lake church, Nebr., —Bro. J. R. Smith, of Lincoln, same State, evangelist.

Thirteen were baptized in the Columbia church, N. Dak.,—Bro. Ed Hoffman, of St. Joseph, Mo., evangelist.

Three were baptized at the Koontz house, Snake Spring congregation, Pa.,—Bro. S. S. Shoemaker, of Hartville, Ohio, evangelist.

Twelve were baptized and one awaits the rite, in the Brumbaugh church, N. Dak.,—Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe and wife, evangelists.

Five confessed Christ at Sandy Ridge schoolhouse, W. Va.,—Brethren Edgar S. Kiracofe and Ollie Kerlin, of Bridgewater, Va., evangelists.

Five were baptized in the Bunker Hill house, Sugar Creek congregation, Ohio,—Bro. G. S. Strausbaugh, of Fredericktown, same State, evangelist.

Eight were baptized and one reclaimed at the Hartville church, East Nimishillen congregation, Ohio,—Bro. Otho Winger, of North Manchester, Ind., evangelist.

Eighty confessed Christ, seventy of whom have been baptized in the Brick church, Greenland congregation, W. Va.,—Bro. J. H. Cassady, of Huntingdon, Pa., evangelist.

One was restored recently in the Mountain Grove Chapel, Mount Carmel congregation, Va.; one was baptized at Dyke and one was restored at Pimple Hill in the same congregation.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. J. E. Young, of Howe, Ind., to begin August 17 in the Bellwood church, Pa.

Bro. W. E. West, of Mt. Morris, to begin August 31 in the Panther Creek church, Ill.

Bro. J. F. Robertson, of Winston-Salem, N. C., to begin some time in November in the Redoak Grove church, Va.

Bro. Harrison S. Gipe, of Palmyra, Pa., to begin Oct. 13 in the Pleasant Hill house, Codorus congregation, same State.

Bro. Homer E. Blough, of Wichita, Kans., to begin Sept. 14 in the Shannon church, Ill.

Bro. O. H. Feiler, of Hutchinson, Kans., to begin Nov. 5 in the Sterling congregation, Colo.

Bro. L. H. Root, of Mt. Morris, Ill., to begin Sept. 28 in the Hutchinson congregation, Kans.

Bro. Wm. E. Roop, of Westminster, Md., to begin about Oct. 18 in the Ainwell church, N. J.

Bro. Chas. Walter, of Summum, Ill., to begin about Sept. 20 in the Shelby County church, Mo.

Bro. J. W. Switzer, of Roanoke, Ill., to begin some time in October in the Romine church, same State.

Bro. Chas. R. Oberlin, of Hartford City, Ind., to begin August 21 in the Bachelor Run church, same State.

Home Mission Sunday in the Brotherhood

Sunday, August 31

In its recent sessions much attention was given by the General Mission Board to the question of Home Mission Work. As an outgrowth of the consideration it was decided at the April Board meeting, to employ a Home Mission Secretary, with various duties outlined, who should give his whole attention and energy to the mission interests of our own country. His endeavors are not intended, in the least, to supplant efforts of the District Boards, but to reinforce their efforts in every way possible, and to serve as a sort of "clearing-house" for their activities.

Interest in the home field, as a missionary territory, is constantly growing. Our rural territories, pioneer districts, the great Southland, the mountaineer, the negro, the immigrant, the industrial situation—all these and more, which have received but scant attention from us, are now projecting themselves into our life for consideration as never before.

To cope with this situation and to aid in the normal development of our church along Home Mission lines, the Board is desirous of establishing a Home Mission Fund, and has set apart Sunday, August 31, as a day upon which it requests that our churches consider the great question of Home Missions. (If this date should not be suitable, either the Sunday before, or the one following may be designated.)

Will you please consider this question, brethren? As you plan your sermon for that day, deliver a message on some phase of Home Mission Endeavor, and lift an offering for this new fund. Send the money to the General Mission Board, Elgin, Illinois, and it will be receipted for and acknowledged through the "Visitor" in our usual manner.

We should accept our share of this great Home Mission task, and your answer to this appeal will constitute something of a basis upon which the General Mission Board may act.

Thanking you for your considerate attention to this matter, we are,

Most Fraternally,

General Mission Board.

Bro. S. H. Flory, of Nokesville, Va., to begin August 30 in the Trevilian house, Trevilian congregation, same State.

Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe, of Chicago, to begin the latter part of September in the Richland Valley Mission, Centralia congregation, Wash.

Bro. Virgil C. Finnell's Institute Schedule for the next few weeks is as follows: Aug. 19, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Aug. 20-26, Miami, New Mexico; Aug. 27-29, Rocky Ford, Colo.; Aug. 30 to Sept. 5, Wiley, Colo.; Sept. 7, Salem church, Nickerson, Kans.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. J. H. Moore says in a recent communication: "I have just finished the 'Full Report.' To me it is interesting reading, and helps one to understand quite fully what was done at the Conference." Bro. Moore also tells of the visit of Bro. Grant Mahan at Sebring. Bro. Mahan was on his way from Omaja, Cuba, to Delhi, N. Y., whither his family had already gone.

Bro. H. C. Early and wife wish to make grateful acknowledgment through the "Messenger" of the many messages of condolence which have come to them. But let them speak to you in their own words: "To our many friends, scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, who have remembered us in our recent bereavement and sorrow in the loss of two daughters in one week, and who have sent us letters and telegrams of sympathy and comfort, we gratefully acknowledge the receipt of these many beautiful words. We appreciate them, and thank you, dear friends, from the depth of our hearts. They have helped us, and we keenly appreciate such manifestations of interest, but only God is sufficient for such an hour. His grace alone is sufficient for the needs of the broken, sorrowing heart, and we are laboring more and more to cast our burden and cares upon Jesus, for he careth."

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

Ministerial and Sunday-School Meetings of Middle Pennsylvania are to be held Aug. 26 to 29 at Huntingdon, Pa. Programs are published on page 526.

Northern Illinois and Wisconsin will hold the various meetings of the District on the Camp Grounds at Lena, Ill., Aug. 30 to Sept. 1. See programs on page 526.

Western Pennsylvania announces its Ministerial Meeting and Sunday-school Convention for Aug. 19 to 21, to convene in the Roxbury church, Johnstown. The programs will be found on page 526.

"The Midsummer Assembly" of Southern Ohio is to be held in the Harris Creek church Aug. 19, 20 and 21. See Bro. D. G. Berkebile's announcement among the Notes, and the programs on page 524.

Transportation arrangements for those who desire to attend the District Meeting of Southern Indiana, to be held at Rossville Aug. 26 to 28, inclusive, will be found in Bro. Amos Cripe's announcement among the Notes.

The Sunday-School Convention and Ministerial Meeting of Northwestern Ohio are to be held at the Deshler church Aug. 26 to 28. The programs appear on page 524. Bro. David Lytle makes a special announcement concerning transportation facilities, among the Notes.

MISCELLANEOUS

Manchester College has been kind enough to send us a copy of her latest Bulletin, thus adding another to our collection of school catalogs. Thanks.

Add this, also, please, to what is said elsewhere on this page about Vacation Bible Schools: Bro. E. E. Eshelman, pastor of the church at Fostoria, Ohio, is conducting a school, if not quite of the regular V. B. S. variety, yet somewhat on that order. He meets the Juniors each Tuesday and Friday from 8 to 9:45 for Bible Study, Music and Mission Study. It is to continue six weeks and will close with a Sunday evening program, covering the work done. Who can guess how many Vacation Bible Schools there will be next summer?

Notice.—The District Meeting of Oklahoma, Panhandle of Texas and New Mexico is to be held in the Washita congregation, Cordell, Okla., August 26-29. Tuesday, 2 P. M., Elders' Meeting; Temperance Meeting, Mothers' and Men's Meetings in evening; Wednesday, Ministerial and Educational Meetings, with a Missionary Meeting at night; Thursday morning, Sunday-school Meeting; afternoon, Christian Workers' Meeting; Child Rescue Meeting at night. Evangelistic services will be held during the earlier part of each evening.—V. K. Meek, Cushing, Okla., August 5.

The Fourth Annual Summer Assembly held at Chautauqua Park, Beatrice, Nebr., is in progress this week. The Assembly is managed by a number of Brethren of Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, and makes a strong appeal to the membership of that territory. The program provided for the present session is one of unusual strength and we greatly regret that the copy intended for publication in the "Messenger" did not reach us until after last week's issue had gone to press. If this notice should enable any to take advantage of the closing numbers, we have no doubt they would be well repaid. The Assembly closes on Sunday evening, the 17th.

Just before going to press we received the following notice from Bro. O. C. Hahn, Homeworth, Ohio: "Those who wish to attend the Ministerial Meeting and District Conference of the Northeastern District of Ohio, to be held in the Reading church, Aug. 26-28, will please note the following train schedules: C. & P. R. R., east-bound, 7:31 and 10:31 A. M.; 4:41 P. M.; west-bound, 10:15 A. M.; 5:17 and 7:21 P. M. These trains will be met on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Those coming on P., F. W. & C. R. R. and by trolley, will make connection with C. & P. R. R. at Alliance, Ohio. Autoists, after reaching Canton, will come by Louisville, Freeburg and Homeworth. The Reading church is located two miles east of Homeworth."

Speaking of Vacation Bible Schools it turns out that those Virginia folks have been even more aggressive in the matter than we knew when the editorial was written which appeared in our issue of two weeks ago. The brethren of the First District had already held several successful schools of that sort, at Roanoke and other places. Bro. J. Allen Flora, Chairman of the Sunday-school Board of that District, has been particularly instrumental in promoting them. Among other brethren of the same District, who have been active in the work, are C. S. Ikenberry, E. E. Speicher, and W. M. Kahle. It will be remembered that Bro. Virgil C. Finnell spent some time last winter in that territory in his religious education work and it is said that he did much to stir up sentiment on this subject. We expect some interesting reports for "Messenger" readers on the results of these efforts. Let the good work go on!

broken, sorrowing heart, and we are laboring more more to cast our burden and cares upon Jesus, for areth."

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

nisterial and Sunday-School Meetings of Middle sylvania are to be held Aug. 26 to 29 at Huntingdon, Programs are published on page 526.

orthern Illinois and Wisconsin will hold the various ings of the District on the Camp Grounds at Lena, Aug. 30 to Sept. 1. See programs on page 526.

estern Pennsylvania announces its Ministerial Meet- and Sunday-school Convention for Aug. 19 to 21, to ene in the Roxbury church, Johnstown. The pro- is will be found on page 526.

The Midsummer Assembly" of Southern Ohio is to eld in the Harris Creek church Aug. 19, 20 and 21. Bro. D. G. Berkebile's announcement among the rs, and the programs on page 524.

ansportation arrangements for those who desire to d the District Meeting of Southern Indiana, to be at Rossville Aug. 26 to 28, inclusive, will be found ro. Amos Cripe's announcement among the Notes.

e Sunday-School Convention and Ministerial Meeting Northwestern Ohio are to be held at the Deshler ch Aug. 26 to 28. The programs appear on page 524. David Lytle makes a special announcement concern- transportation facilities, among the Notes.

MISCELLANEOUS

anchester College has been kind enough to send us py of her latest Bulletin, thus adding another to our ction of school catalogs. Thanks.

ld this, also, please, to what is said elsewhere on page about Vacation Bible Schools: Bro. E. E. lman, pastor of the church at Fostoria, Ohio, is con- ing a school, if not quite of the regular V. B. S. va- , yet somewhat on that order. He meets the Jun- each Tuesday and Friday from 8 to 9:45 for Bible y, Music and Mission Study. It is to continue six cs and will close with a Sunday evening program, ring the work done. Who can guess how many ation Bible Schools there will be next summer?

otice.—The District Meeting of Oklahoma, Panhandle exas and New Mexico is to be held in the Washita regation, Cordell, Okla., August 26-29. Tuesday, 2 ., Elders' Meeting; Temperance Meeting, Mothers' Men's Meetings in evening; Wednesday, Ministerial Educational Meetings, with a Missionary Meeting at ; Thursday morning, Sunday-school Meeting; after- , Christian Workers' Meeting; Child Rescue Meet- at night. Evangelistic services will be held during earlier part of each evening.—V. K. Meek, Cushing, ., August 5.

he Fourth Annual Summer Assembly held at Chau- ua Park, Beatrice, Nebr., is in progress this week. Assembly is managed by a number of Brethren of raska, Kansas and Missouri, and makes a strong al to the membership of that territory. The program ided for the present session is one of unusual strength we greatly regret that the copy intended for publi- on in the "Messenger" did not reach us until after week's issue had gone to press. If this notice should le any to take advantage of the closing numbers, have no doubt they would be well repaid. The As- bly closes on Sunday evening, the 17th.

st before going to press we received the following re from Bro. O. C. Hahn, Homeworth, Ohio: "Those wish to attend the Ministerial Meeting and District ference of the Northeastern District of Ohio, to be in the Reading church, Aug. 26-28, will please note following train schedules: C. & P. R. R., east-bound, and 10:31 A. M.; 4:41 P. M.; west-bound, 10:15 .; 5:17 and 7:21 P. M. These trains will be met on sday, Wednesday and Thursday. Those coming on . W. & C. R. R. and by trolley, will make connection C. & P. R. R. at Alliance, Ohio. Autoists, after hing Canton, will come by Louisville, Freeburg and neworth. The Reading church is located two miles of Homeworth."

peaking of Vacation Bible Schools it turns out that e Virginia folks have been even more aggressive in matter than we knew when the editorial was written ch appeared in our issue of two weeks ago. The hren of the First District had already held several ressful schools of that sort, at Roanoke and other es. Bro. J. Allen Flora, Chairman of the Sunday-

AROUND THE WORLD

Systematic Gospel Propaganda

Whenever a business house decides upon a systematic campaign, to introduce its goods among the people of a certain section, neither time nor money is spared to perfect the most comprehensive and thorough-going plans. A similar method is to be applied to a movement now being carried on by the Provisional Church Council of Nanking, China. By the plans now perfected, the Gospel Message is to be carried to every man, woman and child in Nanking, of whatever rank—student, coolie, merchant, rich or poor. Such a plan, if successfully carried out, impresses us as being not only Scriptural but also as being productive of permanently fruitful results. It means a specialization, for the time being, of the "one thing needful."

Needless Destruction of Army Supplies

Returning soldiers are reporting the wholly uncalled for destruction of valuable army supplies, supporting their charges by the corroborative testimony of dependable witnesses. In one instance—according to the "Independent"—more than 100 army airplanes, valued at $11,000 each, were wrecked and then burned by the American military authorities at Combey-les-Belles in France. Those who have wondered at the appalling cost of the late war, may find a partial explanation, at least, in the revelations above referred to. If a few of the lessons on "thrift"—so constantly urged by the authorities upon the people in general—had been practiced by the officials above alluded to, the result would no doubt have been most gratifying.

A World Citizenship Gathering

Nov. 9-16 has been announced as the date of the third World's Christian Citizenship Conference at Pittsburgh, Pa. Mormonism is to have a prominent place in the deliberations of the gathering—its dangers being fully recognized. Forty-seven allied and neutral nations will send representatives, among them Henry Peel, of Liverpool, an authority on Mormonism in Europe, and Mrs. Theodore Cory ("Winifred Graham"), who also is well acquainted with the underhanded campaign of Mormons among the young women of Great Britain. Other distinguished representatives will also help in the consideration of the moral problems of the world and of means toward their solution.

Rains Bring Joy to India

Thousands have earnestly been praying that refreshing and copious rains might insure plentiful harvests in that stricken land. With the coming of the belated monsoon, once more hope is arising that the millions, threatened by famine, may be assured of better conditions. The many "Messenger" readers who have contributed to the needs of India's sufferers, may rest assured that their generous gifts have been the means of saving many precious lives. If the rains prove to be as plentiful as we are assured by latest reports, crops will be harvested in three months, and the grave danger will have passed. Meanwhile continued assistance will have to be given, to complete the work of conservation so splendidly carried on hitherto.

Ohio Rules Out Pugilist Films

Film manufacturers, in attendance at the disgraceful fight of the two noted pugilists at Toledo, Ohio, secured views of the encounter from start to finish, in order to cater, by their exhibition, to the sensation-craving patrons of moving-picture shows. Fortunately at least one State—Ohio—has a censor board which passes on all films to be exhibited in that commonwealth. It has unanimously decided to reject the pictures of the fight as being unfit for exhibition in Ohio. What the film censors of that State have so courageously decided upon, well deserves to be followed by censors of other States and cities of our land. Young people are greatly impressed by moving picture scenes during the plastic period of their lives, and much care should be exercised lest they be influenced detrimentally.

The Chinese Leper Camp

It may not be generally known, perhaps, that the largest hospital in the world, exclusively for Chinese, is not in China but in France. There were 140,000 Chinese laborers employed in that country during the war, and the hospital, with accommodations for 1,500 patients, was weeks before I saluted President Wilson in Paris and the famous generals of France, and shall not forget those salutes. Now I add another—the last one the salute of a coolie—a leper—thousands of miles from home and near to death."

Japan Awakens on Prohibition

A recent memorial by the Japanese Temperance Society urges the Government to prohibit the manufacture of "sake." At present 15,000,000 busbels of rice are consumed annually to manufacture this intoxicant—the main alcoholic stimulant of that nation. Since the population of Japan increases at the rate of 60,000 yearly, and the nation's rice crop diminishes because of decreased acreage, it is justly argued by the Temperance Society that the immense quantity of rice, required for the manufacture of "sake," might more profitably be used for food purposes. Growing discontent among the people of Japan has directed the Emperor's attention to causes incident thereto. He will not miss it by ruling out the manufacture of the national intoxicant.

The Aftermath of War

It is generally conceded that, in some way or other, every country, directly or indirectly connected with the great world war, will reap some of the deplorable results now developing. In order to aid the sufferers in the devastated regions of France and Belgium, a lottery of $20,000,000,000 is to be authorized by the French Chamber of Deputies. While a lottery of any sort is admitted to be destructive of good morals and contrary to the best interests of any country authorizing it, its proposed introduction at this time seems strange indeed. Another deplorable departure is seen in proposed measures to "liberalize" existing marriage laws in some of the European countries, in the furtherance of an increased birthrate. Attempts of this sort can not be justified.

Where Stars Abound

With the naked eye about 6,000 stars may readily be seen, and by a telescope of even small dimensions more than 600,000 stars are revealed. Latest improvements in the telescopes of the best observatories have shown millions. The sensitive photographic film, however, catches light from stars in such abundance that it portrays the midnight sky literally ablaze with starlight. The man whom sorrow has enclosed like an all-enveloping darkness, feels the intensity of the gloom because his sight is not keen enough to see the light. As a matter of fact, his sky is ablaze with the stars of hope, but his limited vision can see mostly darkness, with only a lonesome star emphasizing the gloomy desolation. Nothing is more valuable to mental buoyancy than the far-away look through faith's mighty telescope. Then stars abound.

Strange Flowers on French Battle-Fields

Commenting upon the fact that flowers are now blossoming on the battle-torn fields of France, not seen there for centuries, a well-known British botanist says: "It is known that seeds have been buried for sixty years or more without losing their power of germination. Seeds of wheat and other grains, buried with Egyptian mummies thousands of years ago, have been planted in recent years and have germinated in the ordinary way. It is readily explained why strange flowering plants—unfamiliar to the local inhabitants—are now blooming on French battle-fields. The heavy shell-fire has so torn up the earth as to create conditions favorable for their growth, after lying dormant so long." And so it seems to us, some of the most precious flowers of the spiritual life, may, by the tempests of affliction and suffering, be caused to bloom in beauty we never knew before. The Great Creator knows what is needed to awaken them to splendor and fragrance.

The Need of a Steady Aim

At no other period of our national existence has there been so pronounced a need of steadfastness as just now. With strikes everywhere, a remarkable state of unrest has been produced. So acute is the constantly-increasing cost of living that President Wilson is taking steps to curb the conscienceless profiteers. Apparently "golden rule" principles have been discarded for the time being—each dealer having but the one rule of action: "Charge all that the public will stand." As a consequence, investigators have found that in some instances as much as two hundred per cent profit was exacted from the luckless purchaser. Unless relief is provided for at an early day, the consumer will have to keep on paying

HOME AND FAMILY

Once in a While

Selected by Marguerite Bixler Garrett, Liberty Center, Ind.

Once in a while the sun shines out,
And the arching skies are a perfect blue;
Once in a while, 'mid clouds of doubt,
Hope's fairest stars come peeping through;
Our paths lead down to the meadows fair,
Where the sweetest blossoms nod and smile,
And we lay aside our cross of care,
Once in a while.

Once in a while within our own
We clasp the hand of a steadfast friend;
Once in a while we hear a tone
Of love, with the heart's own voice to blend;
And the dearest of all our dreams come true,
And on life's way is a golden mile,
Each thirsting flower is kissed with dew,
Once in a while.

Once in a while in the desert sand
We find a spot of the fairest green;
Once in a while from where we stand
The hills of paradise are seen;
And a perfect joy in our hearts we hold,
A joy that the world can not defile;
We trade earth's dross for the purest gold,
Once in a while.

What Obligation Do I Owe the Aid Society?

BY MRS. JOHN A. ROBINSON

Delivered at Annual Conference, Winona Lake, Ind., June 7, 1919, and Submitted by Request

THE Aid Society is one of the greatest and most important organizations of the church. It is so because of the great missionary work it has done and is doing at the present time. We look back a few years to the time when it was thought the Aid Society was only for our "aged sisters" or those who did not have much to do (?). We are thankful that time is past, and that now every one is requested and even urged to attend.

The Aid Society did a splendid work when it assisted in the erection of the Mary Quinter Memorial Hospital. None except the missionaries know how much real missionary work was done when this was built. Those of us, who heard Sister Shumaker tell of the missionary work done through this hospital, regret that we did not do more. We are facing even greater opportunities. May we all do our part!

The Aid Society also responded nobly to the Red Cross call. Nearly every Aid Society helped in one way or another in this work, and much was accomplished. Much could be said of the good works of the Aid Society. Will we not do greater work in the future?

There are at least four obligations we owe the Aid Society. Every sister can help in one or more of these:

1. OUR MORAL OBLIGATION.—Every sister should attend the Aid Society meetings if possible. There are at least 25,000 sisters in the Brotherhood. If each one gave two hours per week, we would more than double our attendance of last year. Surely we can do this. The Aid Society is the only organization of the church, fostered entirely by women. No other gives our sisters such an opportunity for work. Some who can not give financially, can give their service.

2. OUR FINANCIAL OBLIGATION.—It is impossible for some of our sisters to attend the Aid meetings. These sisters can help financially. As said before, there are no less than 25,000 sisters in the Brotherhood. If each gave five cents per week, we would have a collection of $65,000 yearly. We would no longer need to say no to the many missionary calls that come to us.

I know of one Aid Society the members of which were not satisfied with the standard set forth of giving one dollar each, but pledged themselves to give five dollars each. How did they do it? Some of the country sisters gave their Sunday egg money, some did crocheting and sold it, another did a day's work in the city, still another did several washings and ironings, etc. If we really want to do a thing we generally do it. "Where there is a will there is a way."

3. OUR SOCIAL OBLIGATION.—The Aid Society meeting is a good place to become acquainted. We do not know each other as we should. It is not a gossiping place, as has been said by some, or it should not be, at least. It is a place where work is done for the Master and his great cause. It is a place where much can be learned from the Bible, if the devotional exercises are conducted properly.

4. OUR SPIRITUAL OBLIGATION.—If we can not attend the Aid meetings or give financially, we can give it our prayers. It should be remembered in prayer, just as we do our missionaries, our ministers, the poor, and many other things. Too often we do not pray enough for it. It is a charity organization, and not a business proposition. Many an overburdened mother has been helped by a sewing circle. It is a real soul winner. Many families have been won to Christ through assistance from the Aid Society.

Under which of these obligations are you going to work, my sister? Or will you help in each of them? My prayer is that at the next Conference meeting the report will be "EVERY SISTER A WORKER."

Pleasant Hill, Ohio.

The Feet of David

BY OMA KARN

A FATHER, at his place of business, was apprised by telephone that his young son had run away. As the father was replacing the receiver, the small offender—the light of achievement radiating from his flushed countenance and sparkling eyes—walked into the store.

"What made you run away?" the father sternly demanded to know.

The astonishment of the child was great. "Daddy," he said, "I didn't runned—I walked."

The father was sufficiently wise to read the working of the child's mind aright and to correct and discipline accordingly. The little lad had not meant to do wrong. There was no consciousness of disobedience or wilfulness governing the action in which he had just indulged, only a boy's inborn, natural desire to explore, to dare, and to accomplish.

Not all parents are as wise as was the one mentioned. The manner in which eager, active child nature is repulsed, dwarfed, and turned aside from its natural, perfectly lawful inclinations, by thoughtless, inconsiderate parents, is a source of sorrow and regret to those who have the best interest of the coming generation at heart. "As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined." Too much severe discipline in misdemeanors, such as described, is not good. The mind must be trained, not forced. The small feet, which, apparently, are acting from a motive of disobedience and a total disregard of parental authority, are only moving to the dictates of that spirit which is father to the man—the proper following of which determines the worthiness or unworthiness of that same future man. Investigate, question, and become acquainted with the thoughts and the motives which are moving your child to action. Help him to work out the good, and dispose of the bad. Give him his rights with the same fairness that you expect and claim yours—the right to a hearing and a careful consideration of the facts of the case, when one has intentionally or unintentionally done wrong. There is danger of feet taking the wayward way through too much restraint as well as through too much laxity. A child's sense of justice is quick and keen and most always right. Once you outrage that sense of justice, betray his trust, and you lose his respect. Take the matter into your own heart and experience. The person for whom you have lost all respect, what and where is his influence over you? The feet of David need guiding—not driving.

Ashland, Ohio.

Notes and Jottings

(Continued from Page 519)

sight to the blind man. Then the disciples received and preserved them.

3. When Fruit Is Preserved So It Will Keep, It Loses Its Former Fruit Taste.—When the brethren at Jerusalem first met Paul, after his conversion, they had fears of him. They thought him to be that sour, cruel Saul, but when they came to taste his preaching and fine conversation, they found there were no Saul properties about him, that he was lovely Paul, that he was "consecrated by God the Father and preserved by Jesus Christ." And he kept fine, for all converts, preserved in that way, keep. But the brother who is at church only when society calls do not interfere, and that sister who watches up the changes in the fashion plate, just as in days of yore—all such are not likely to keep. Their conversation and manner are just as they were formerly. Such are not sanctified by the Father and, of course, they are not preserved by Jesus Christ.

II. A Mistake or a Sin—Which?

A mistake is an error of the head, of judgment, and not of the heart. A mother gave her sick babe deadly poison, thinking it was a curative. Her motive was good. Her action was a mistake, but not a crime, and so no arrests were made. Another mother gave her babe the same deadly drug, knowingly. Her motive was bad. She was a murderess. Arrest followed. The motive determines the moral aspect of the deed. Two boys were out hunting. One, by accident, shot his comrade. The morning papers report: "A man shot his wife; and then sought to shoot himself. His arrest followed." It was death by shooting in either case. In the first, there was no bad motive, hence it did not affect the heart. No sin, therefore, was in evidence. In the second case the motive was bad. The heart was affected, hence it was a grave sin. The foregoing facts have led to the common saying, so frequently quoted:

III. "If the Heart Is Right, All Is Right"

It needs to be well understood that man's duty is indicated by the two tables of the Law. The first table embraces God's commandments; these we owe to him. They are easy, and they are required of all. "If we keep the whole law, but offend in one point, we are guilty." They are unchangeable. The second table embraces the duty man owes to man. These vary and are changeable and, in a large measure, are left to judgment, hence we may, and often do, make mistakes.

I said in the foregoing that the motive determines the morality of the deed. This is true, but has allusion mainly to man's duty as found on the second table—the duties we owe to each other. I feel sure that the motives and purposes of those very distinguished ministers, whom Christ represents as coming to him with their pleas in the last day, will be severely questioned. They doubtless were honest, and the evidences show that they lived and died happy. Their motives and purposes doubtless were all right. But they were neglectful and lived in open violation to man's duty—God's perfect law—as found on the first table of duties. Listen to these words of Jesus: "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him." All such being obedient, are drawn by the Father—are sanctified. Then they are "preserved by Jesus Christ." These are the class and kind included in my proposition. Of these we can say: "If the heart is right, all is right." Those who do not obey the commandments of Jesus, as found on the first table, are not in covenant relationship with him, hence their alleged good motives and purposes will avail them nothing, and will not prove that their "heart is right with God."

Jesus once inquired: "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things that I say? . . . In vain do they teach for doctrine the commandments of men." "If the heart is right, all is right," is true, therefore, only of those who are drawn of the Father. These are his obedient children, and are sanctified and preserved by Jesus Christ.

IV. A Saying of General Sherman

General Sherman was a very distinguished general, who efficiently served our country during the Civil War. He was not only a distinguished general of the army, but had large literary ability, and was a fine orator. Among his sayings that have gone down in history, is this: "War is hell." That is a very forceful saying, and had all the effect and force the general salem first met Paul, after his conversion, they fears of him. They thought him to be that sour, el Saul, but when they came to taste his preaching fine conversation, they found there were no Saul perties about him, that he was lovely Paul, that he " consecrated by God the Father and preserved by is Christ." And he kept fine, for all converts, pre- ed in that way, keep. But the brother who is at rch only when society calls do not interfere, and sister who watches up the changes in the fashion e, just as in days of yore—all such are not likely keep. Their conversation and manner are just as were formerly. Such are not sanctified by the her and, of course, they are not preserved by Jesus ist.

II. A Mistake or a Sin—Which?

mistake is an error of the head, of judgment, and of the heart. A mother gave her sick babe deadly son, thinking it was a curative. Her motive was d. Her action was a mistake, but not a crime, and no arrests were made. Another mother gave her e the same deadly drug, knowingly. Her motive s bad. She was a murderess. Arrest followed. e motive determines the moral aspect of the deed. o boys were out hunting. One, by accident, shot eomrade. The morning papers report: "A man t his wife; and then sought to shoot himself. His est followed." It was death by shooting in either e. In the first, there was no bad motive, hence it not affect the heart. No sin, therefore, was in dence. In the second case the motive was bad. The rt was affected, hence it was a grave sin. The fore- ng facts have led to the common saying, so fre- ently quoted:

III. "If the Heart Is Right, All Is Right"

't needs to be well understood that man's duty is icated by the two tables of the Law. The first le embraces God's commandments; these we owe to n. They are easy, and they are required of all. "If keep the whole law, but offend in one point, we are lty." They are unchangeable. The second table braces the duty man owes to man. These vary and e changeable and, in a large measure, are left to lgment, hence we may, and often do, make mistakes. I said in the foregoing that the motive determines e morality of the deed. This is true, but has allu- n mainly to man's duty as found on the second le—the duties we owe to each other. I feel sure that e motives and purposes of those very distinguished nisters, whom Christ represents as coming to him th their pleas in the last day, will be severely ques- ned. They doubtless were honest, and the evidences ow that they lived and died happy. Their motives d purposes doubtless were all right. But they were glectful and lived in open violation to man's duty— d's perfect law—as found on the first table of duties. sten to these words of Jesus: "No man can come me, except the Father which hath sent me draw n." All such being obedient, are drawn by the ther—are sanctified. Then they are "preserved by sus Christ." These are the class and kind included my proposition. Of these we can say: "If the art is right, all is right." Those who do not obey the mmandments of Jesus, as found on the first table, e not in covenant relationship with him, hence their leged good motives and purposes will avail them thing, and will not prove that their "heart is right th God."

Jesus once inquired: "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, d do not the things that I say? . . . In vain do ey teach for doctrine the commandments of men." If the heart is right, all is right," is true, therefore, ly of those who are drawn of the Father. These are s obedient children, and are sanctified and preserved intended it to have. This saying is quoted far and wide by both press and pulpit. Possibly it had a semblance of truth under the circumstances and at the time when it was uttered, but from a Biblical standpoint it is not correct, and hence should not be repeated by the religious press or pulpit. We so conclude from the following:

1. Hell is awarded on the basis of justiee. "Who shall reward every man according to his works." The goal in war is conquest—victory—while justice—if it exists at all—is a feeble element.

2. Hell will include the guilty alone, but war, O war! How the innocent do suffer!

3. Hell can be averted. We are "warned to flee the wrath to come." But war, eruel war, eomes like an avalanehe and at times there is no escape.

Greenville, Ohio.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

"THAT LAST TRIBUTE OF RESPECT"

When the providences of God make it necessary for us to give up and to hide away the beautiful and loved, it tries our faith to the utmost. The soul is torn and bleeding. The wound is deep. We cry aloud in grief. We wonder why things of that sort happen. In that most sacred and solemn hour the wounded soul looks heavenward. It is then that the minister brings to us anew the sweet prospects of a reunion just across the mystic stream.

And how gracious the thought! We long for that day, for that hour. What happy experiences, as we meet loved ones here on earth in our reunions! We love to greet them. We listen with pleasure as they relate to us their experiences in meeting the deep tbings of life. Yes, we usually inquire about many things. And I wonder how it will be over there?

A friend of mine, a good neighbor, a father, is called to yonder shore. He leaves an unfinished task. During his sickness the one great concern of his soul was: "My little boy, my little girl. Oh, I want to live for them." But the summons said: "Come." Do you see a sad home? Mother, children, relatives and friends follow to the grave and weep. Many words of sympathy are uttered. There the last tribute of respect is paid. Too bad indeed! Yet only too true.

Mother and children return to a lonely home, there alone to struggle on in the great battle of life as best they can. The responsibility is great. The task is a hard one. The trials and disappointments are many. While neighbors and friends enjoy their sweet repose, the mother prays and plans in tears. But who cared? The battle proves too hard for a frail woman. The tender cords of life are severed. Then there is but the blessed hope of a reunion over there. "Oh, how happy!" you say. Yes. But should father ask: "Mother, how did you fare? Who came to comfort and help you while alone? Where are the children?" (Dear reader, you may supply the answer.) We know too well they are here. But in whose care? Would you like to tell?

And when brother and sister join in that reunion over there, will mother not say: "Dear sister, did you care for my dear children? Did you pity and love them? Did you speak a kind word of encouragement to them? Did you pray for them when you knew my voice was stilled in death? In their struggles and temptations and waywardness, did you throw a mother's arm of love about them and for my sake point them to a better life? My sweet child needs your tenderest care. And, oh, my poor crippled boy! Who, yes, who was a mother to him? And there were those unfinished garments for the children."

Yes, the sun set at midday. Will the afternoon of life be revealed over there? The guilty will say: "Oh, such can not be." But those who have sacrificed and done their duty will welcome the thought. The truth will be revealed over there. And if we have betrayed the confidence, imposed in us, shall we enjoy that reunion?

David gave to us a beautiful example of that last tribute of respect, when he said: "Is there not yet any of the house of Saul?" . "Yes," came the answer, "Mephibosheth, a poor crippled boy, is left." "Bring breeze in the summer, as we are only sixteen miles from the occan. Four boulevards pass through the city.

We need a shepherd—the type described by Bro. Leander Smith—a gatherer with the flock to make holy lives. There are twenty-two members, nearly all laborers striving to earn an honest living. We have a good church-house in a good location. We can reach eleven congregations any time within two hours' time by auto or eleetric. We have a fine climate, splendid water and drainage, all modern conveniences, and good all-the-year-round roads. Glendale is an excellent place for old people to live a quiet life and for the young to be active.

All inquiries will be faithfully answered. We need shepherds who faithfully help to gather and keep holy practices. M. M. and Salome Eshelman.

1247 S. Maryland Avenue, Glendale, Calif.

MANASSAS, VIRGINIA

While we were enjoying the refreshing showers, and nature was responding to them by breaking forth anew in its beauty, we were also experiencing wonderful spiritual blessings through the efforts of the evangelist then with us. Our thoughts were turned to our Heavenly Father, the Giver of it all, so we met on the afternoon of July 26 in our annual Harvest Meeting, to thank him for his unfailing love, so clearly manifest to us. Bro. Ralph Rarick brought some splendid thoughts to us along the natnre of thanking God and giving back to bim some of the temporal blessings. The audience responded by raising $20, which will be given to the endowment of Hebron Seminary.

Following this service, the deacons and ministers, that had been elected at the council meeting of the previous Saturday, were installed in their respective offices: Brethren W. D. Kline, Henry Slusher and their wives to the deacon's office, and Brethren Wilmer Kline, Alvin Kline and Leslie Blough to the ministry.

Sunday evening, July 27, witnessed the close of the greatest evangelistic campaign held at the Manassas church. The crowd on Sunday night was composed of folks who came from miles around to hear his closing sermon, "Remember Jesus Christ." Though extra benches had been placed at every available spot, and the children sat on the rostrum, the seating capacity was not sufficient. Autos and carriages were placed near the windows in order that all might hear the message. When the invitation was given, six more volunteered in the service of King Emmanuel, raising the number to twenty-nine who during this campaign made the supreme choice. The earnestness of the speaker, plus the presence and working of the Holy Spirit, made the work count for the Kingdom of God. Bro. Rarick's deep, appealing voice proclaiming the messages from night to night, instilled into each Christian a determination to work more for the hastening of the Kingdom.

In the stream, about a mile from the church, Brethren Rarick and Kline administered the sacred rite of baptism on Monday afternoon, as the crowds on either bank witnessed the impressivé ceremony.

Bro. Raricks left Manassas July 30, for Selma, Va., where they will begin another evangelistic campaign Aug. 3. We think often of their splendid work among us and are glad that they can go to other congregations and help them as they have helped us. Nora Harley.

Manassas, Va., July 31.

THE DEATH OF SISTERS GRACE AND FLETA GOOD

The Mill Creek congregation was reminded very forcibly of the words, "Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep," when in one week the death angel took two of Brother and Sister H. C. Early's daughters. The oldest, Fleta, was ill for about eighteen months. The second one, Grace, was ill for about five months. All residents of the vicinity felt that a gloom had been cast over the neighborhood.

Very seldom is a family called upon to give up two of its loved ones in one week, and it was made doubly sad because of the circumstances which surrounded their illness. They were only a few hundred yards apart, and yet were not permitted to see each other, because of their condition. Each one was very anxious about the other.

After Fleta was gone, kind friends carried her to Grace, and there, in her weak, and almost dying condition, she looked into her face, cold in death. The scene was enough to melt a heart of stone. In just one week Grace, too, died, passing away in an unconscious condition, making it almost more than her family could bear.

I have known Bro. Early for years, as many of the read-

CHIPPEWA CHURCH, OHIO

Frequently, during the hot months of summer, there is a marked decrease in attendance at the Sunday morning services, in most places of worship. This has not been the case at the Beech Grove house thus far. The average attendance is increasing and the interest at all services is keeping pace.

The Sunday-school is doing splendid work and is pressing onward to reach the goal in the Forward Movement program. The opening exercises, on the last Sunday of each month, are in charge of the Local Missionary Committee. This opportunity of putting the school in touch with mission's is very helpful.

We use the Standard Missionary Picture Roll and can thus educate through the eye as well as the ear. Last Sunday morning the four Volunteers of this church had charge, and they gave good evidence of the sincerity and devotion to the pledges taken by them.

Such exercises afford opportunities for giving expression to our religion. This means an activity much needed in the church, to promote spiritual growth and development. Dr. J. Campbell White, in a recent address, said: "I see no hope of a conquering church until we have an active church. We do not have it now. Instead of 10,000 missionaries we need 50,000. I believe we can get them in the next ten years."

The Triangular Sunday-school Meeting of East Chippewa, Paradise and Beech Grove, was held at the latter place on the Fourth of July, and proved to be a very successful one in spite of the busy time with the farmers.

The forenoon was given to talks by the ministers of the congregations. The noon hour held a large place on account of the sociability and good fellowship which it engendered, as well as providing sustenance for the physical man.

In the afternoon the several schools rendered a most excellent program, consisting of recitations, exercises and special music.

The Young Men's and Ladies' Classes, anticipating a warm day, ordered twenty gallons of ice cream. This was disposed of and the profits turned over to missions. Certainly, such an observance of the Fourth is a very sane one, and productive of much social and spiritual good.

The second Mission Study Class is now reviewing their textbook, preparatory to examination, which they expect to take ere long.

Last Sunday, at the East House, Bro. DeLauter, of Canton, gave two addresses. He was there under the direction of the Temperance Committee of the District. It was our privilege to hear him on "The Challenge of the Hour." This splendid address was directed to the young folks. His message was brief, however, as President Winger, of North Manchester College, was in the audience. Having just closed a series of revival services in the Hartville church, Ohio, he, with his wife and son, motored to the home of Eld. D. R. McFadden.

The telephones were used to such good advantage that when Bro. Winger arose to speak, he said he almost felt as if he were in attendance at a Manchester Reunion. His remarks were in keeping with Bro. DeLauter's, on the need of preparation for the great work of giving Christ to the nations.

The subject that is now most talked on in this congregation is the coming revival meeting, which is to begin August 17, with Eld. Early in charge. The adult Sunday-school classes and Christian Workers are planning special prayer services in this campaign for souls.

May the Holy Spirit direct all to the honor and glory of his name! Flora Irvin Hoff.

Wooster, Ohio, August 1.

NORTHWESTERN OHIO

The District Sunday-School and Ministerial Meetings of the above-named District are to be held at Deshler, Ohio, Aug. 26-28.

SUNOAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION

August 26—Evening Session, 8 o'clock

Sermon.—W. C. Detrick.

August 27—Forenoon Session, 10 o'clock

Devotional. The Graded Primary Department—What It Is and What It Does.—Bertha Miller. Discussion. Song. The Community Survey.—Roscoe Koogler. Special Music by Green Springs. India Sunday-schools.—John Kaylor. Song.

Afternoon Session, 1:30

Roll Call. The Sunday-school as a Missionary Factor in Church Activity.—Mary Cook. Discussion. Song. Experiences on the Field.—John Kaylor. Music by the Wampler Quartet. The Sunday-school Forward Movement.—Leo L. Wise. Song. The Chorister's Part in a Successful Sunday-school.—G. D. Armentrout, Ella E. Karn. Discussion. Solo.—Mahle Stayrook. Round Table.—Conducted by Walter D. Landes. Dismissal.

Evening Session, 7 o'clock

Christian Workers' Hour.—Conducted by Blanche Byerly. Lima and Pleasant View Quartet. Sermon: "Atonement."—L. I. Moss.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

August 26, Forenoon Session, 9 o'clock

Devotional. The Consecrated Layman.—John R. Snyder, Arthur Sellers. Exposition of Matt. 18.—David Byerly. Song. The Pastor or Elder as Shepherd.—Geo. E. Deardorff. Song. How Secure a Better Attendance at Our Councils?—John Flory, B. P. Snyder.

Afternoon Session, 1 o'clock

The Church: (a) Its Authority.—Jacob Keiser. (b) Its Mission.—G. A. Solder. Discussion. Song. The Simple Life from a New Testament Standpoint.—E. E. Eshelman. Closing Thoughts. Dismissal.

SOUTHERN OHIO

The thirtieth Annual Ministerial Meeting and twenty-first Sunday-School Meeting or First District Assembly is to be held with the Harris Creek congregation on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 19, 20 and 21.

Tuesday Morning, August 19, 8:30

D. G. Berkebile, Moderator

An Enlarged Ministry: The Need of More Efficient Ministers.—W. W. Peters. Proper Distribution of Same.—Chas. L. Flory. Leading the Membership into Greater Spiritual Activity.—L. A. Bookwalter. The Minister and the Community.—R. H. Nicodemus. The City and the Ministry.—Otho Winger.

Afternoon Session, 1:30

Sisters' Aid Society: The Aid Society in the Forward Movement: The Goal and Our Attitude.—Mrs. Levi Minnich, Greenville. Our Part as a Greater Evangelizing Factor.—Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Pleasant Hill. Round Table: (1) What Are You Worth to the Aid Society? (2) What Is Your System of Raising Funds and Disbursing Same? (3) How Educate Your Young Girls in Aid Work? (4) What Does Your Aid Need Most? (5) Has Your Local Aid Society Been Benefited by the District Aid Meetings? (6) How Do You Keep from Gossiping at Your Aid Meetings? (7) How May We Have an Ideal Aid Society? (8) Explain the Office of an Informatioo Secretary in District Aid Work.—Mrs. Mina H. B. Miller, District Secretary.

The Church of Tomorrow.—Otho Winger. Bible Doctrine.—R. H. Nicodemus.

Evening Session, 8 o'clock

Levi Minnich, Moderator

Lessons the War Has Taught Us.—R. N. Leatherman. Peace.—Otho Winger.

Wednesday Morning, August 20, 8:30

D. D. Funderburg, Moderator

The Two Ends of a Sunday-school Session.—Ralph Hatton. The Graded Lessons—What They Have Done for Us.—Cora Smith, Pearl Leatherman. Southern Ohio's Part in the F. Y. P. M.—L. C. Bloeher. Relation of the Sunday-school to the Ideals and Standards of the Church and Community.—R. H. Nicodemus. The Sunday-school Teacher.—Otho Winger.

Afternoon Session, 1:30

Progress of Prohibition.—S. A. Blessing. The Modern Cigarette. —Rev. W. A. Vorhis. Recitation. The Simple Life.—R. H. Nicodemus.

Evening Session

I. G. Blocher, Moderator

Acceptable Worship: Through Song.—Cora Stabley. Through Prayer, Meditation and Service.—J. C. Inman.

Thursday Morning, August 21, 8:30

Jacob Coppock, Moderator

The Christian Workers' Society: Adults. —— Juniors.—J. A. Robinson. Manchester College Program. What I Live For—Illustrated Talk.—Katie Crawford.

Afternoon Session, 1:30

Our Missionary Scope: Home Field.—J. W. Fidler. Foreign Field.—Anna Eby. Consecration for the Kingdom Needs.—R. H. Nicodemus.

The Southern Mountaineers

(Continued from Page 517)

was consigned to the earth. The entire service was simple but very impressive. Most of the graves were marked with rough stones, while a few had a small wooden slab and a very few had small marble stones, with an old-time inscription. Before leaving the cemetery, I copied in my note-book the following words from one of them:

> "Little Annie has gone to heaven,
> Where the angels stay,
> She will not come back to earth,
> But we must go her way."

The little group of mourners was composed of plain, hard-working, God-fearing people, who have a firm conviction that all the teachings of the Holy Bible are true, and are the Inspired Word of God. They believe that the bodies that now slumber in the graves will rise again and live forever. There were no unbelievers or skeptics among them, but all were firm believers in the Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

That night, while meditating on the events of the day, I thought to myself: What a pleasure it would be to be pastor of a congregation like that! I do sincerely hope that some of our ablest ministers will find this an inviting field, for "the harvest truly is great but the laborers are few." This section I feel free to speak of as the land of homes, where the day sees the united efforts of family workers, and the evening sees their gathering around the fireside, the work table and the festive board. In many of the more populous sections of our country commercialism, irreligion and urban life have broken up the family group. In these sections the average home today is little more than a lodging-house and a restaurant. Rarely does it hear the voice of family prayer or parental instruction.

What grand opportunities this field affords for the earnest, faithful missionary! These people are religiously inclined. They are kind-hearted and hospitable, but through lack of opportunities they have become careless and indifferent. In many ways they are happy and contented, but one thing they need, above all else, and that is men of character and ability, who will be willing to locate here, live and mingle with them and lead them onward and upward to a higher plane of life.

Edison, Ga.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

Patterson church was much edified by the talk of Sister Hollenberg, our outgoing missionary. She spoke on the "Forward Movement."—D. J. Fink, Patterson, Calif., July 27.

IDAHO

Moscow.—Sister Eva Trostle, from Bethany Bible School, Chicago, came to us July 28 and delivered four very interesting talks on the Dress Reform Movement. Several young people are very enthusiastic about Bethany Bible School and expect to go there for one term at least.—Arrie Lyon, Moscow, Idaho, August 1.

ILLINOIS

Hudson.—August 2 Bro. W. W. Gibson and son, Arlie, were with us. Bro. Gibson gave us two splendid sermons. Bro. Geo. Miller and father were also present and we were glad to have these brethren visit us. August 17 we expect Eld. W. T. Heckman to preach again for us. We have a fine Sunday-school.—Rebecca L. Snavely, Hudson, Ill., August 4.

Hurricane Creek.—Bro. Jesse Sbull closed a very successful revival meeting at this place August 3. Many inspiring sermons were preached. Two accepted Christ and were baptized. It was decided at our last council to hold a love feast at the close of the revival, but since we had the meetings earlier than was expected, we decided to have the love feast later in the season. Bro. J. E. Wagoner will be with us August 15 and 16, to present the "Forward Movement" of the church from the missionary standpoint.—Pearl, Parker, Mulberry Grove, Ill., August 5.

Mt. Morris church held a special council July 22, in the interests of a new church building. At that meeting a strong start was made in the form of pledges, which by this time total over $22,000. We expect the matter to be moved on as rapidly as possible. Our church is looking forward to the coming of Eld. F. E. McCune and family, of Lawrence, Kans., to assist us in a pastoral capacity. They expect to take up the work here some time in October.—Nelson E. Shirk, Mt. Morris, Ill., August 2.

Panther Creek.—The date for our series of meetings has been changed to August 31, closing on Sept. 10, to be conducted by Bro. West, of Mt. Morris. We expect Bro. Emmert and Sister Miriam Stover to be with us the first Sunday and Monday. Our love feast will be held Sept. 6, with an all-day meeting and dinner at the church. Our council meeting will be held August 29, when the annual visit will be made.—Elsie Noffsinger, Benson, Ill., August 4.

Romine church met in council July 26, with Eld. Urias Blough presiding. Our series of meetings will be held in October, beginning immediately after District Meeting, with Bro. J. W. Switzer in charge. We have secured Sister Edith Bubb, of Astoria, Ill., to lead the singing. Our love feast will be held at the close of the meetings.—Mrs. Katy Baker, Salem, Ill., August 4.

Virden.—On Educational Day, June 29, our pastor gave us two addresses in keeping with the day and an offering was lifted for that work. In the evening the Christian Workers rendered a program. July 20 was Cradle Roll Day. An interesting program of little songs, recitations and readings was enjoyed by a goodly number of our Cradle Roll mothers and babies. We have thirty-eight babies on our roll. Following the program Bro. Haynes gave a splendid message on "Mothers and Babies." Bro. Elmer Wagoner and wife, outgoing missionaries to India, were with us on Sunday, August 3. Bro. Wagoner gave two addresses on the "Forward Movement" and mission work. Our Christian Workers favored us with an inspiring program about the Boarding Schools of China and India and on what is being done for young people in our Sweatch Mission. Sister Elmer Wagoner made a touching appeal for volunteers. Next Sunday, August 10, our revival begins, with Bro. J. W. Lear, evangelist, and Bro. Friend Couser, song leader.—Stella Brubaker, Virden, Ill., August 4.

INDIANA

Killbuck.—On the evening of July 28 a few of our members, with our elder, met at the home of Bro. A. J. Miller for the anointing service. Brother and Sister Miller left for Rochester, Minn., on account of the ill-health of the latter. Since our last report two have been received into this congregation by baptism.—H. E. Millspaugh, Muncie, Ind., July 31.

Leon Creek.—July 11 Bro. J. B. Moore, of Chicago, gave us a temperance lecture, which was very inspiring. Several days later Bro. C. Walter Warstler, of Pittsburgh, Pa., gave us two splendid sermons. Our Decision Day and Children's Day exercises were held July 20. In the morning our pastor preached a sermon especially for the children, at which time an invitation was given and three of our Sunday-school scholars confessed Christ. The children rendered a very good program in the evening to a crowded house. July 27 our District Sunday-school Secretary, Bro. Lawrence Shultz, gave a splendid sermon in the morning and an illustrated lecture in the evening. In the afternoon four were baptized. Recently our pastor, Bro. B. B. Hive, and Bro. Chas. Oberlin made a canvass of the church and received $210, to be used for the construction of the Logansport church.—Mae Hoover, Huntington, Ind., July 31.

Lower Deer Creek church met in council August 2, with Eld. Stinebaugh presiding. Our elder was chosen as delegate to District Meeting and Sister Ella Dilling and the writer, delegates to the Sunday-school Meeting. The date of our revival is changed to about the middle of September, beginning with a Harvest Meeting on Sunday—Bro. Day Minker, of Wawaka, to conduct both. Our love feast will be held Oct. 4.—Mary Dilling, Delphi, Ind., August 4.

Middletown.—We met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of electing a minister. The lot fell on one of our worthy young brethren, Oren Zirkle, and we feel that he will be efficient. He and his wife were installed. Brethren Bowman, Fred Fesler, Edd Norris and our elder, Bro. Roof, were present. We expect the Secretary of the Missionary Board to be with us August 30 and 31.—Florida J. Greene, Middletown, Ind., August 4.

Nettle Creek.—The White Branch Sunday-school observed Home Department Day July 2. Eld. D. W. Bowman preached a splendid sermon. July 27 was a very busy day and a day that was enjoyed by all. In the forenoon our District Secretary, Bro. L. W. Teeter, preached for us. The meeting was conducted as it was fifty years ago. It was much appreciated by both young and old. Sister Helen Guynn, of Indianapolis, our District Secretary, gave us a good talk at the close of the Sunday-school. In the afternoon we convened for an Educational program. Sister Guynn gave us a talk on "The Forward Movement of the Church," which was followed by the program. In the evening Bro. C. O. Miller preached a sermon to the young people on the subject "The Future Church."—Chas. W. Miller, Hagerstown, Ind., August 4.

Notice.—Those wishing to attend the District Meeting of Southern Indiana, to be held at Rossville, August 26-28 inclusive, will find e all else, and that is men of character and ability, will be willing to locate here, live and mingle with and lead them onward and upward to a higher e of life.

ison, Ga.

Notes From Our Correspondents

eold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

eran church was much edified by the talk of Sister Hollen- our outgoing missionary. She spoke on the "Forward Move- —D. J. Fink, Patterson, Calif., July 27.

IDAHO

eew.—Sister Eva Trostle, from Bethany Bible School, Chicago, to us July 28 and delivered four very interesting talks on the Reform Movement. Several young people are very enthusi- about Bethany Bible School and expect to go there for one at least.—Arrie Lyon, Meservey, Idaho, August 1.

ILLINOIS

son.—August 2 Bro. W. W. Gibson and son, Arlie, were with Bro. Gibson gave us two splendid sermons. Bro. Geo. Miller father were also present and we were glad to have these breth- visit us. August 17 we expect Ed. W. T. Heckman to preach for us. We have a fine Sunday-school.—Rebecca L. Snavely, on, Ill., August 4.

rican Creek.—Bro. Jesse Shull closed a very successful re- meeting at this place August 3. Many inspiring sermons were hed. Two accepted Christ and were baptized. It was decided r last council to hold a love feast at the close of the revival, since we had the meetings earlier than was expected, we de- to have the love feast later in the season. Bro. J. E. Wagoner e with us August 15 and 16, to present the "Forward Move- " of the church from the missionary standpoint.—Pearl, Parker, erry Grove, Ill., August 5.

Morris church held a special council July 22, in the interests new church building. At that meeting a strong start was in the form of pledges, which by this time total over $2,000. spect the matter to be moved on as rapidly as possible. Our h is looking forward to the coming of Ed. F. E. McCune family, of Lawrence, Kans., to assist us in a pastoral capacity. expect to take up the work here some time in October.— n E. Shirk, Mt. Morris, Ill., August 2.

pine Creek.—The date for our series of meetings has been ged to August 31, closing on Sept. 10, to be conducted by Bro. of Mt. Morris. We expect Bro. Emmert and Sister Miriam rt to be with us the first Sunday and Monday. Our love feast he held Sept. 6, with an all-day meeting and dinner at the ch. Our council meeting will be held August 29, when the al visit will be made.—Elsie Noffsinger, Benson, Ill., August 4.

pine church met in council July 26, with Ed. Urias Blough siding. Our series of meetings will be held in October, beginning ediately after District Meeting, with Bro. J. W. Switzer in charge. have secured Sister Edith Bubh, of Astoria, Ill., to lead the ng. Our love feast will be held at the close of the meetings.— Katy Baker, Salem, Ill., August 4.

rden.—On Educational Day, June 29, our pastor gave us two esses in keeping with the day and an offering was lifted for work. In the evening the Christian Workers rendered a ram. July 20 was Cradle Roll Day. An interesting program ttle songs, recitations and readings was enjoyed by a goodly ber of our Cradle Roll mothers and babies. We have thirty babies on our roll. Following the program Bro. Hoyer gave splendid message on "Mothers and Babies." Bro. Elmer Wag- and wife, outgoing missionaries to India, were with us on day, August 3. Bro. Wagoner gave four addresses on the "For- d Movement" and mission work. Our Christian Workers fa- for its work with an inspiring program about the Boarding Schools China and India and on what is being done for young people our Swedish Mission. Sister Elmer Wagoner gave a touching ress to volunteers. Next Sunday, August 13, our revival be- , with Bro. J. W. Lear, evangelist, and Bro. Friend Couser, y leader.—Stella Brubaker, Virden, Ill., August 4.

INDIANA

llbuck.—On the evening of July 28 a few of our members, elder, met at the home of Bro. A. J. Miller for the anointing ice. Brother and Sister Miller left for Rochester, Minn., on unt of the ill-health of the latter. Since our last report two e been received into this congregation by baptism.—H. E. Mills- gh, Muncie, Ind., July 31.

oon Creek.—July 11 Bro. J. B. Moore, of Chicago, gave us a pentence lecture, which was very inspiring. Several days later . C. Walter Warstler, of Pittsburgh, Pa., gave us two splendid rmons. Our Decision Day and Children's Day exercises were held y 20. In the morning our pastor preached a sermon especially the children, at which time an invitation was given and three our Sunday-school scholars confessed Christ. The children dered a very good program in the evening to a crowded house. y 27 our District Sunday-school Secretary, Bro. Lawrence Shultz, e a splendid sermon in the morning and an illustrated lecture the evening. In the afternoon four were baptized. Recently pastor, Bro. B. D. Hirt, and Bro. Chas. Oberlin made a can- s of the church and received $205, to be used for the construction the Logansport church.—Mae Hoover, Huntington, Ind., July 31.

ower Deer Creek church met in council August 2, with Ed. schaugh presiding. Our elder was chosen as delegate to Dis- t Meeting and Sister Ella Dilling and the writer, delegates to Sunday-school Meeting. The date of our revival is changed about the middle of September, beginning with a Harvest Meet- on Sunday.—Bro. Roy Mishler, of Kewanna, Ind., to conduct h. Our love feast will be held Oct. 4.—Mary Dilling, Delphi, Ind., gust 8.

Middletown.—We met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of ecting a minister. The lot fell on one of our worthy young thren, Ora Zirkle, and we feel that he will be efficient. He and wife were installed. Brethren Bowman, Fred Fesler, Edd Nor- and our elder, Bro. Roof, were present. We expect the Sec- ary of the Missionary Board to be with us August 20 and 21.— rida J. E. Green, Middletown, Ind., August 4.

Creek.—The White Branch Sunday-school observed Home train service over the Monon R. R. as follows: No. 32, leaving Indianapolis at 7:45 A. M., arrives at Rossville at 9:15 A. M., stops daily; No. 38, leaving Indianapolis at 12, noon, arrives at Rossville at 1:35 P. M., stops on Tuesday and Wednesday only; No. 18, leaves Indianapolis at 5:30 P. M., arrives at Rossville at 7:41 P. M., stops daily. All trains will be met.—Amos Cripe, Rossville, Ind., August 4.

Salamonie.—Bro. L. W. Shultz, of North Manchester, District Sunday-school Secretary of Middle Indiana, gave an illustrated lecture on the "Five-Year Forward Movement of the Sunday-school" July 26. Bro. H. K. Ober will begin a series of lectures August 19, continuing for five days. A Harvest Meeting program has been arranged for August 30—an all-day meeting. Dinner will be served in the basement. Sunday evening, August 3, the Primary Department of the Sunday-school gave a splendid temperance program.—Hampton Zook, Huntington, Ind., August 3.

IOWA

Ottumwa.—With this date, July 26, expires my term as pastor of the South Ottumwa church. Since taking charge of the work, Dec. 1, 1916, the membership has increased about one hundred per cent; the average Sunday-school attendance has increased about fifty per cent. Our work has been pleasant and harmonious in the different departments. As a token of special appreciation of our services and friendship, we were accorded a surprise farewell party July 23, at which about eighty members were present. We bespeak a welcome reception for Eld. Wm. Thompson and family who will be in charge of the work August 1. The work is under the care and support of the Mission Board of Southern Iowa. Although our connection with the District was but two years and eight months, yet we were accorded many special favors and courtesies by the different members of the Board, also by the District in its work.—S. W. Garber, Ottumwa, Iowa, July 28.

KANSAS

Independence.—Sunday morning, July 27, after a very interesting Sunday-school, Bro. Geo. W. Holmes delivered an able sermon on the subject of "Love." After Christian Workers' Meeting in the evening, led by Sister Lizzie Corn, Bro. Holmes delivered another powerful sermon, his subject being "The Road." Afterward three of our Sunday-school scholars desired to unite with us. Last night our weekly prayer-meeting was one of the best. Bro. Edw. Longstaff was our leader. Each one present took part. After the services four of our scholars were baptized. The young people take an active part in all services. We have a singing class which meets each Tuesday evening, with Bro. John Denny in charge.—Pella Carson, Independence, Kans., August 1.

Scott Valley church met in council August 3, with Eld. Frank Smith presiding. Five letters were received, since our last report nine letters have been received, among them those of Brother and Sister Frank Smith. Our series of meetings will begin Oct. 14, with Bro. J. Clyde Forney, of McPherson, Kans., as evangelist. We decided to have our love feast at the beginning of the meetings.—Mrs. E. D. Leavell, Westphalia, Kans., August 5.

MARYLAND

Pipe Creek.—Friday, July 18, a special Sunday-school Convention was held in the Pipe Creek house. Locust Grove, Sams Creek, Beaver Dam, Edgewood and Pipe Creek schools were represented. This was one of the first conventions held during the week and was largely attended. We had Bro. Minor Miller with us and he pleaded for a greater Sunday-school and for the carrying out of the "Forward Movement" in all the churches. The community survey was taken up and fifty-seven homes were visited.—Ida M. Engler, Uniontown, Md., July 31.

Pleasant View.—Bro. Minor C. Miller, of Bridgewater, Va., spent one evening with us in the interest of Sunday-school work, and strongly urged us to become a Front Line Sunday-school. Bro. A. F. Summer, of Northfield, Mass., gave us several stirring talks on missions. These meetings were very much appreciated and have aroused a greater missionary zeal among us, inspiring us to greater things in the future.—Mrs. F. W. Wampler, Accident. Has been reaching singings in the different congregations of the Middle District of Maryland, is about to finish his work among us. We feel we have been greatly benefited by his untiring efforts.—Mrs. J. S. Bowlus, Burkittsville, Md., August 5.

MICHIGAN

Sugar Ridge.—Brother and Sister O. B. Maphis began a series of meetings July 20 and continued until August 5. Sister Maphis helped to conduct the singing. Our members were much encouraged. One confessed Christ. Bro. Price Hylton, of Virginia, preached for us July 13. Bro. D. P. Wise, of Dayton, Ohio, is to come and spend-ing their vacation at this place.—Mary E. Teeter, Scottville, Mich., August 6.

MINNESOTA

Root River church met in council June 27, with Bro. Jonathan Broadwater presiding. Two letters of membership were granted and three received. Bro. R. H. Cox took charge as pastor June 1. Bro. A. F. Blough was chosen elder for the remainder of the year. The Sunday-school enjoyed the picnic on the 4th of July, also a short program. The new electric light plant, to be placed in church and parsonage, is nearly complete. The Sunday-school is increasing in attendance and interest. Sunday, July 27, Bro. Cox gave a special talk to the children.—Amy J. Owen, Preston, Minn., July 31.

MISSOURI

Shelby County church met in council July 22. We decided to have a series of meetings this fall, to commence about Sept. 20, with Bro. Chas. Walter, of Sumnum, Ill., in charge. Our pastor is anxious that the church here meet in prayer meeting and song service, preparatory to the meetings. We will have a love feast at the close.—Merle Stauder, Leonard, Mo., August 5.

NEBRASKA

Silver Lake.—Our regular council was held on the first Thursday in June. Our church has taken on new life since our series of meetings, held in June by Bro. Smith, of Lincoln. Fifteen new members were added to the church by baptism. Sister Smith has been giving assistance, especially in the consecration service. Bro. Edgar Stauffer was retained as pastor for the coming year. We have Christian Workers' Meetings now each Sunday evening. The young people all seem to take an active part. Though our number is not large, the spirit is good.—Lee R. Grabill, Roseland, Nebr., August 2.

NORTH DAKOTA

Cando.—Sister Sadie Miller visited our two churches last Sunday. In the evening she spoke to a crowded house in Cando. Her lecture was much appreciated by all who heard her. An offering of $29.19 was taken for mission work. June 29 we observed Educational Day at the Cando house. Bro. Geo. K. Miller preached on Christian Education. An offering of $31.05 was taken for Mt. Morris College.—Mrs. Mary Miller, Cando, N. Dak., August 1.

Cando.—July 19 we held our love feast, which was well attended. Bro. Roy S. Mishler, of Indiana, did the preaching. The meeting were held in a tent. The members at this place are much built bring our school to the Front Line, and now it remains for us all to work earnestly and faithfully to carry out the plans. July 14 Bro. E. N. Huffman and wife, from St. Joseph, Mo., opened our series of meetings, which closed July 27. Thirteen were added to the church by baptism. The same evening, July 26, we held our love feast, with about fifty-six members present. Eight of the above converts were from a mission point near New Rockford, where Brethren W. Deardorff, D. Miller and A. Kreps have been filling appointments when it is possible to do so. July 30 Bro. Emmert and Miriam Stover gave us a miscellaneous program of music and talks on the work in India. Owing to the busy season, the audience was small, but those who were fortunate enough to hear them, enjoyed it very much. A collection of $21.96 was taken for Mt. Morris College.—Vada Rose, Brantford, N. Dak., July 31.

Egeland.—July 30 and 31 we enjoyed hearing Sister Sadie Miller, missionary from India. A collection was taken for the work in that country. July 3 we enjoyed a splendid time at Brumbaugh. We had an all-day meeting. Brother and Sister Jarboe were with us and the former preached three fine sermons.—Nellie Kahl, Egeland, N. Dak., August 6.

Ellsinn.—Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe and wife came to us July 5 in a revival effort and continued for seven weeks with a love feast. Thirty-six were received into the church, many of them heads of families, and several entire families. It was surely a time of rejoicing for us. July 29 Sister Miller, of India, gave a lecture on her work, which was much enjoyed by the large audience. Bro. J. E. Stouffer, of the Brumbaugh congregation, filled the pulpit here last Sunday. August 10 we expect to hold an all-day meeting, which will be in charge of Bro. Finnell. We are looking forward to a helpful and interesting program.—Alice E. Stevens, Rock Lake, N. Dak., August 6.

Golden Willow.—July 24 Sister Sadie Miller, from Waterloo, Iowa, gave a very interesting talk on India, plainly showing the needs of more workers as compared with the work. July 26 the church met in council, with Eld. W. J. McCann in charge. Eld. Alfred Kreps, of Carrington, N. Dak., was also present. The report of the visiting brethren was read and accepted. Bro. Douvin McCann was elected to the ministry and was installed into office. We held our love feast the same evening, with thirty-four communings. We appreciated the presence of visiting members and ministers, and we feel much strengthened by these meetings.—Nona McCann, Sykeston, N. Dak., July 28.

Williston.—Bro. Emmert Stover and his sister, from Mt. Morris College, were with us July 22. They gave us an interesting program on India and educational work. July 27 Bro. Finnell came to us and remained for several days, giving us six lectures. They were instructive and he had a message for all.—Lora Marsh, Williston, N. Dak., July 31.

OHIO

Akron church met in council, with Elder David Snader present. The following officers were elected: Sunday-school Advisory Board, Mary E. Wolf; Sisters' Aid Society, Mary B. Wolf; Lookout Committee, Susie Longenecker; Temperance and Missionary Committee, David H. Snader, Jr. It was decided to hold a Children's Meeting, the date not yet decided. Our love feast will be held on Saturday, Oct. 25, at 1:30 P. M.—David H. Snader, Jr., Akron, Ohio, August 2.

Black River church met in business session July 26, with Elder D. R. McFadden presiding. The following church officers were elected: Clerk, D. B. Garver; "Messenger" agent and correspondent, Anna Nolt. Delegates to District Meeting are Brethren A. H. Horst and J. M. Meyers. Bro. J. Scott Smith, of Ohio, is to begin a series of meetings here August 3, at the close of which we expect to hold our love feast. Our elder remained to preach for us on Sunday. A goodly number came out to hear his discourse on Home Missions. In the evening we had a missionary program. An offering of nearly $50 was lifted during the day for the New Philadelphia church. July 20 Sister Emma Rohrer, our District Sunday-school Secretary, delivered an address, which was much appreciated.—Mrs. Anna Nolt, Ohio, July 31.

Black Swamp.—On Educational Day an offering was taken for that work. Our church and Sunday-school leaders are pushing the "Forward Movement." The Christian Workers' Society is a tempting meter aggressive work. July 20 Bro. J. E. Kaylor returned missionary from India, gave a very interesting talk on problems in the India mission field. An offering of $11.50 was taken, to be devoted to educational work.—Mrs. Asenath Baker, Lemoyne, Ohio, August 4.

Eagle Creek.—Our Annual Meeting offering amounted to $136.4 $23.54 of which was given by the Mission Band Class. August a musical program will be given at the church, with Prof. Lehman of Bluffton, Ohio, in charge. Recently one has been baptized.—Pearl Rodabaugh, Williamstown, Ohio, August 5.

East Nimiahillen.—Bro. Otho Winger, of North Manchester, Ind., began a series of meetings at the Hartville church July 14, continuing for two weeks. The attendance and interest were good. Eight were received into the church by baptism and one was reclaimed. The meetings closed July 26 with a love feast, at which Bro. Winger officiated. We met in council August 2. Elders D. R. McFadden and A. H. Miller, from adjoining congregations, were present, the former acting as moderator. Bro. Andrew Cordier was elected and installed into the ministry. We decided to support Sister Anna Brumbaugh, one of our number, on the India mission field. Our delegates to District Meeting are Brethren E. W. Wolf and S. Shoemaker. Our love feast at the Brick church will be held Oct. 11, beginning at 10 A. M.—A. J. Carper, Middlebranch, Ohio, August 4.

Goshen church met in council July 28, with Eld. G. S. Straubaugh in charge. Brethren L. H. Gray and J. F. Shrider were chosen deacons and together with their wives were duly installed. Bro. I. E. Horn was chosen delegate to our District Conference, with Sister Rena Horn, alternate. Considering our small membership we had an excellent attendance at our council and the spirit of the meeting was fine. Our Sunday-school is gradually growing in both houses, as we alternate at Goshen and White Cottage. Our Sisters' Aid is small in numbers, but doing good work. Bro. G. S. Straubaugh gave us two good sermons July 29. Bro. A. B. Horst, who has been with us since the middle of February, goes to another field. He has done good work here. We hope some one may come in his place to help us out. Brethren H. Gray and J. F. Shrider and Sister Rena Horn were chosen as ministerial committee and wish to get in touch with any one interested. Correspondence should be directed to J. F. Shrider, Zanesville, Ohio, R. D. 2.—Mrs. J. F. Shrider, S. Zanesville, Ohio, August 2.

Latty.—We have just concluded a three weeks' series of meetings with Bro. Roy S. Mishler, of Indiana, did the preaching. The meetings were held in a tent. The members at this place are much built up. One was baptized and others are expected to follow. Bro. John A. Kaylor was with us July 22 and gave us an instructive talk. We raised $10 for World-wide Missions. Sister Sylvia Straubaugh helped much in these meetings by conducting the song service.—D. D. Thomas, Latty, Ohio, August 4.

Marble Furnace.—We observed Children's Day August 3. T

GEMS FROM LAKE GENEVA STUDENTS' Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE

(Continued from Page 523)

"Owing to neglect during the war, the forces of evil are pressing in on all sides. I've never seen such gigantic problems back in the colleges to solve. Solve the social life problem by making it a by-product. There is no social life like the one where men and women have a great work. God give us men who will stand alone, and not be bought in politics, journalism, etc. 'Birds of a feather quickly get together,' as far as evil is concerned. How about the good?

"The 'highbrows' may get along after a fashion without religion, but the mass can not bave its problems solved and keep them solved without the individual life being dealt with. If you do not give extra self-control and extra social usages, you invite vice by extra wages and leisure. Christian personality is the only solution."

Be true to yourself! Let Jesus run your machine! Have the conscious fellowsbip of the Spirit Power, ruling your physical being, keeping your brain steady, giving you spiritual power! Every evil power will fail before God. Be honest with yourself and do the best you know! May no man here so live that it does not seem worth wbile for the Savior to have died. Leo Blickenstaff.

Oakley, Ill.

BARTLESVILLE, OKLAHOMA

We met in council July 12, with Bro. N. S. Gripe, of Ripley, Okla., in charge. The meeting was called to arrange for our work for the coming year, as our pastor, Bro. James Hardy, bas asked to be released. The church was unwilling to let him go, for he has done much good work, in spite of the many discouragements.

By request of the elder in charge we decided to send delegates to District Meeting. Bro. Hardy was chosen. Five bave been added to the church since our last report. We elected our Sunday-school officers for the remainder of the year, with the writer as superintendent. Interest is growing in botb Sunday-school and church work. We are very much bindered on account of location and the very dilapidated condition of the church building and we are anxiously looking forward to better conditions. When Bro. Hardy first came to us, there were five present at the first services. Our Sunday-school attendance now will average about forty, and prospects are very favorable.

We wish to say to the Ladies' Aid of the Brotberbood that help is very much needed here. Our pastor, in bis calls, has found many cases of children almost destitute of clothing. These little ones are anxious to attend Sunday-scbool and we need them, bnt the sisters here can not begin to look after them all. Any one desiring to help, may send his offerings to the writer or to Bro. James Hardy, R. D. 1, No. 36, Bartlesville, Okla.

H. M. Williams.

116 S. Cheyennc, Bartlesville, Okla.

FROM MANCHESTER COLLEGE, INDIANA

Our summer school is nearing its close. We have had an enrollment of 205 students, all of college standing. From every point of view it has been the best summer scbool yet held, and makes it certain that our summer school pays.

Tbis bas been a busy summer for our school workers. Six of our college faculty, for the next year, are in universities, doing post graduate work. President Otho Winger bas spent mucb of his time in the field, looking after various school interests. Tbe Vice-President, L. D. Ikenberry, bas been very busy with building and repair work. Tbe new bospital will soon be ready for use. Work is being rushed on the new apartment house. The demands for rooms for light housekeeping were so many tbat tbe college decided to provide this new apartment house, modern in every way.

Our field representatives, Mr. and Mrs. Mote, bave covered a great deal of territory by means of the "College Ford." They report an unusually large number of students.

The college is equipped for work better than ever before. Seventeen teachers will give full time to College, Normal and Bible work. The faculties of the Academic and Music Departments have each been increased by one member. With full recognition as one of the standard colleges of Indiana, Manchester has a bright future.

The annual college reunion on the campus has been recalled. Instead of this, there will be local reunions, held at the various District Meetings of the school territory.

Clara Harper.

MOUNT CARMEL CHURCH, VIRGINIA

We met in council July 25, with Eld. S. A. Sanger presiding. The visiting brethren and sisters gave a favorable report. A good spirit prevails among the larger part of the members. A sister was restored to fellowship. Our series of meetings is to begin about Aug. 15. Bro. W. W. Hartman, of Port Republic, Va., is to do the preaching. We decided to hold our love feast at the close of the meeting.

After the council several of us accompanied Bro. Sanger four miles to Dyke, where he baptized a young man who is sick. On Saturday morning we went with Bro. Sanger to the top of the mountain, and anninted Brn. Isaac Morris' wife, wbo has been sick for a long time.

In the afternoon the Evergreen church met in a visit council. A goodly number was present. Quite a lot of business was before the meeting, but a Christian spirit was manifest. A committee was appointed tn make a survey of the Mt. Carmel congregation, in order so to distribute the work that it may be done more efficiently. Brethren G. A. and H. S. Knight and Sister Wampler are the committee. It was decided to hold a love feast some time this fall. The time will be decided later.

Since our last report a special council has been held and the following deacons were elected: Brethren G. A. Knight, J. W. Allen and his son, Geo. Allen.

Eld. G. A. Maupin, assisted by Sister Ellen Hutchison, held a week's series of meetings at Pimple Hill the last week in May. As a result, one sister was restored to fellowship.

We are glad to report one of tbe one hundred new Sunday-schools, to be organized in the Forward Movement this year. The school was organized at the Parrot schoolhouse, with Sister Fannie Snow as superintendent. They have an enrollment of sixty-one. Some one from the Evergreen Sunday-school has been assisting them.

Bro. D. M. Glick, our District Secretary, gave us a call, a few weeks ago. His aim is to visit every school in the District.

We are looking forward to a visit from Bro. Moy Gwong Aug. 16 and 17. Nelie Wampler.

Pirkey, Va.

TEXAS AND LOUISIANA

The District, Ministerial and Sunday-school Meetings of Texas and Louisiana were held in the Nocona congregation, Montague County, Texas, July 23-25. There were only eight delegates, representing four congregations. Eld. J. A. Miller was Moderator, Bro. D. G. Brubaker, Reading Clerk.

Aside from the regular routine of mission and other reports, election of officers, etc., there were two items of business carried over from last year, one being a proposition from Bro. John Stump, of Miami, Texas, to give to tbe District $35,000 for an industrial school and orphanage, primarily for Mexican children between the ages of six and twenty, provided the District would raise $20,000 and provide not less than 200 acres of land. He also will duplicate every dollar secured above said amount, to the amount of $10,000. The proposition was accepted by the District Meeting and a committee appointed on location and raising of funds. Provision was also made for the appointment of trustees, as soon as the means are assured.

Last year a committee was appointed on a history of the Districts of Texas and Oklahoma. The matter was presented so far as practicable and was accepted, subject, however, to the action of the District of Oklahoma.

The next District Meeting will be held with the members of the Manvel congregation, Texas.

The Ministerial Meeting was presided over by Bro. J. A. Miller, assisted by Bro. D. G. Brubaker, Reading Clerk, and Bro. J. Wm. Miller, Writing Clerk. The Five-Year Forward Movement was discussed during the morning session. A few of the many points made are as follows: Right teaching goes farther than numbers. Additions should be one hundred per cent conversions. God can use possible talent with the Christian element in a young man better than too much learning where natural talent is not available. To reach the goal six members are needed to bring one to Christ.

To reach the mission goal we must make use of Scripture texts, Matt. 28: 19, 20 and Mark 16: 15. Every member must sacrifice as a missionary does. The Sunday-school goal is not too high. The Texas District is nine times as large as Maryland but we will try to lead every scholar to Christ. As for the Christian Workers' goal, they should be workers together with God. Everybody must work wherever placed. In striving to reach the Educational goal we must back up our colleges and develop the latent talent of our boys and girls.

In the Sunday-school Meeting the essential characteristics of a superintendent were discussed, as well as the qualifications of a teacher. Another helpful talk dealt with the Sunday-school being a strong factor in forming ideals, morally and spiritually. Other subjects were: "Music, a Great Factor in Worship," "The Organized Class," "Why Train Teachers?" One topic of special interest was: "What Can Be Done to Enlist the Fullest Coöperation of the Young, and Develop a More Spiritual Life in the Indifferent?"

The work of the meetings was helped by the presence of Bro. E. M. Studebaker, of McPherson, Kans., and Bro. J. H. Morris, of Oklahoma City, Okla. The Nocona brethren and sisters were equal to the task of entertaining, and we trust that much good may result from these meetings, for the spread of the Kingdom in this great Southland.

Fort Worth, Texas. A. J. Wine, Clerk.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS AND WISCONSIN

The various meetings of the District will be held at Lena, Ill., Aug. 30 to Sept. 1.

ELDERS' MEETING

The first session will be held on Saturday at 1 P. M. Other sessions as needed.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Saturday, 9: 30 A. M.

General Theme.—The Five-Year Forward Movement. Devotional.—Chas. Delp. The Forward Movement in Calling Men to Christian Leadership.—A. C. Wieand. The Forward Movement in Training Men for Christian Leadership.—John Heckman. The Forward Movement and the Minister's Message.—J. W. Lear.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

Saturday, 2: 00 to 4: 00 P. M.

Reading.—Fidelia Franta. Ten-Minute Addresses: (1) The Arrangement of Programs.—Neil Sites. (2) Outside Activities for the Christian Workers.—Lucile Royer. (3) Ten Per Cent Increase in Attendance.—H. S. Randolph. Reading.—Jane Ritenbaugh. Address: Suggestions for Life Work.—J. E. Miller. Chorus.

During this program the Junior Christian Workers will bold a meeting under the leadership of Mrs. S. L. Whisler.

BUSINESS MEETING OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND CHRISTIAN WORKERS' DELEGATES

Saturday, 4: 00 to 5: 00 P. M.

Each Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Society sbould appoint two delegates to serve at this meeting.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LIFE WORK CONFERENCE

Saturday, 5: 00 to 7: 00 P. M.

Conference in charge of Spenser Minnich. It will be conducted very informally, in connection with a picnic supper. Ages, fifteen to twenty-four.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING

Saturday, 7: 30 P. M.

Special music. Address: Some Visible Results from Our Educational Efforts.—J. E. Miller.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONFERENCE

Sunday Morning, Afternoon and Evening

Sunday-school, 9: 30 to 11: 00 A. M. Offering for the morning to be devoted to Armenian and Syrian Relief Work. Children's Story Hour, 11: 00 to 12: 00, in charge of Viola Eisenbise. Addresses to Adults, 11: 00 A. M., Sunday-school Forward Movement: (1) Winning Every Sunday-school Scholar for Christ.—J. Hugh Heckman. (2) Daily Study of the Sunday-school Lesson from the Open Bible in the Home.—Wilbert Horner.

Evening Address, 7: 00 o'clock, The Sunday-school's Part in the Present World Problems.—Edward Franta,

MISSIONARY PROGRAM

2: 00 P. M.

The Sunday-school and Missions: (1) Five-Year Program for Missions.—J. H. B. Williams. (2) Tha Relation of the Sunday-school to Missions.—James Moore. Forward Movement Song.

The Children's Hour during this session will be in charge of Mrs. Wilbert Horner.

BUSINESS SESSION OF DISTRICT MEETING

The business session of the District Meeting will open on Monday at 8: 00 A. M. James M. Moore, Reading Clerk.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

The Ministerial Meeting and Sunday-school Convention of the above-named District will be held August 19-21 in the Roxbury Church of the Brethren, Johnstown, Pa.

MINISTERIAL PROGRAM

Tuesday Evening, August 19, 7: 45

Address.—E. M. Dotwiler. Address, "Fundamentals."—Dr. T. T. Myers.

Wednesday, August 20, 9 A. M.

Business Session. Western Pennsylvania's Quota: Two Hundred and Thirty-five Students in Brethren Colleges.—B. F. Waltz. Twenty Ministers Elected.—M. J. Brougher. One Thousand New Members.—H. S. Replogle. Church Management.—M. Clyde Horst. The Devotional Life.—J. M. Blough.

Afternoon, 2 o'clock

The Layman's Responsibility.—A. B. Replogle. The Ladies' Aid Society and Its Forward Plans.—Mrs. H. S. Replogle, Mrs. P. J. Blough. Address, "Fundamentals."—Dr. T. T. Myers.

Evening, 7: 30

Address.—Mrs. J. M. Blough. Address.—J. M. Blough.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PROGRAM

Thursday, August 20, 8: 30 A. M.

Business Session. The Home Study of the Bible and Sunday-school Lesson.—D. P. Hoover. The Social Needs of Our Young People.—Meyers B. Horner. Who Is Responsible?—T. R. Coffman.

Afternoon, 2 o'clock

The Community Survey.—H. B. Speicher. Vacation Bible Schools.—S. S. Blough. The Mission Period.—In Charge of the Mission Committee and the Student Volunteers.

Evening, 7: 30

A Devotional Thought. Sunday-school Dynamics.—Dr. T. T. Myers.

MIDDLE PENNSYLVANIA

The Ministerial and Sunday-school Meetings of the above-named District will be held August 26-29 in the Church of the Brethren, Huntingdon, Pa.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Tuesday Evening, August 26, 7: 45

The Forward Movement and District Missions.—W. H. Holsinger. Illustrated Lecture.—J. B. Emmert.

Wednesday Morning, August 27, 8: 45

Business Session. The Minister: (1) His Call.—W. S. Long. (2) His Life.—J. C. Swigart. (3) In His Study.—Ira Holsopple. (4) Outlining a Sermon.—T. T. Myers. (5) In His Pulpit. (6) In His Community.—M. R. Brumbaugh. (7) Pastoral Work Though Not a Pastor.—John Bennett.

Afternoon, 1: 30

Meeting the Educational Goal of the Forward Movement: (a) By the Churches.—J. C. Stayer, H. A. Spanogle. (b) By the College.—I. Harvey Brumbaugh. Cultivating School Sentiment in Our Churches.—Wm. P. Harley. How Shall Our Young Ministers Be Prepared to Meet the Demands of the Reconstruction Period?—Galen B. Royer.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

Evening, 7: 45

How Shall the Sunday-school Help to Answer the Call for More Missionaries?—Galen B. Royer. The Opportunities and Immediate Problems of the India Mission Field.—Jesse B. Emmert.

Thursday Morning, August 28, 8 o'clock

Theme, Sunday-school Extension

Survey of a Rural Community.—Grace B. Stayer. Survey of a City Community.—C. O. Berry. Report and Forward Look of the District Secretary.—A. E. Wilt. The Work of Sunday-schools of Middle Pennsylvania in India.—Jesse B. Emmert.

Afternoon, 1: 15

Theme, Evangelism Through Home and School

Home Study of the Bible as an Evangelistic Agency.—S. N. Brumbaugh. How Can We Secure a Study of tha Lesson in the Home?—Lawrence Ruble. The Essentials of an Evangelistic Sunday-school.—W. M. Ulrich.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Saturday, 9:30 A. M.

eral Theme.—The Five-Year Forward Movement. Devotional.—
Delp. The Forward Movement in Calling Men to Christian rship.—A. C. Wieand. The Forward Movement in Training Men ristian Leadership.—John Heckman. The Forward Movement
e Minister's Message.—J. W. Lear.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

Saturday, 2:00 to 4:00 P. M.

ling.—Fidelio Frantz. Ten-Minute Addresses: (1) The Arrangaof Programs.—Nell Sites. (2) Outside Activities for the Chris-Workers.—Lucile Royer. (3) Ten Per Cent Increase in Attend-
-H. S. Rondolph. Reading.—June Puterbaugh. Address: Sugns for Life Work.—J. E. Miller. Chorus.
ing this program the Junior Christian Workers will hold o ng under the leadership of Mrs. S. L. Whisler.

BUSINESS MEETING OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND CHRISTIAN WORKERS' DELEGATES

Saturday, 4:00 to 5:00 P. M.

h Sunday-school and Christian Workers' Society should ap-two delegates to serve at this meeting.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LIFE WORK CONFERENCE

Saturday, 5:00 to 7:00 P. M.

ference in charge of Spenser Minnich. It will be conducted informally, in connection with a picnic supper. Ages, fifteen enty-four.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING

Saturday, 7:30 P. M.

cial music. Address: Some Visible Results from Our Educational s.—J. E. Miller.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONFERENCE

Sunday Morning, Afternoon and Evening

day-school, 9:30 to 11:00 A. M, Offering for the morning to be ed to Armenian and Syrian Relief Work. Children's Story Hour, to 12:00, in charge of Hattie Steenbine. Addresses to Adults, A. M., Sunday-school Forward Movement: (1) Winning Every y-school Scholar for Christ.—J. Hugh Heckman. (2) Daily Study e Sunday-school Lesson from the Open Bible in the Home.—
ert Horner.
ning Address, 7:00 o'clock, The Sunday-school's Part in the nt World Problems.—Edward Frantz,

MISSIONARY PROGRAM

2:00 P. M.

Sunday-school and Missions: (1) Five-Year Program for Mis-
—J. H. B. Williams. (2) The Relation of the Sunday-school sions.—James Moore. Forward Movement Song.
Children's Hour during this session will be in charge of Mrs.
ert Horner.

BUSINESS SESSION OF DISTRICT MEETING

business session of the District Meeting will open on Monday 00 A. M. James M. Moore, Reading Clerk.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

Ministerial Meeting and Sunday-school Convention of the -named District will be held August 19-21 in the Roxbury ch of the Brethren, Johnstown, Pa.

MINISTERIAL PROGRAM

Tuesday Evening, August 19, 7:45

ress.—E. M. Detwiler. Address, "Fundamentals."—Dr. T. T. s.

Wednesday, August 20, 9 A. M.

siness Session. Western Pennsylvania's Quota: Two Hundred Thirty-five Students in Brethren Colleges.—B. F. Waltz. Twenty ters Elected.—M. J. Brougher. One Thousand New Members.—
. Replogle. Church Management.—M. Clyde Horst. The De-
nal Life.—J. M. Blough.

Afternoon, 2 o'clock

r Layman's Responsibility.—A. H. Replogle. The Ladies' Aid
y and Its Forward Plans.—Mrs. H. S. Replogle, Mrs. P. J.
gh. Address, "Fundamentals."—Dr. T. T. Myers.

Evening, 7:30

dress.—Mrs. J. M. Blough. Address.—J. M. Blough.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PROGRAM

Thursday, August 29, 8:30 A. M.

siness Session. The Home Study of the Bible and Sunday-school on.—D. P. Hoover. The Social Needs of Our Young People.—
rs B. Horner. Who Is Responsible?—T. R. Coffman.

Afternoon, 2 o'clock

e Community Survey.—H. B. Speicher. Vacation Bible Schools.
S. Blough. The Mission Period.—In Charge of the Mission Come and the Student Volunteers.

Evening, 7:30

Devotional Thought. Sunday-school Dynamics.—Dr. T. T. Myers.

MIDDLE PENNSYLVANIA

e Ministerial and Sunday-school Meetings of the above-named rict will be held August 26-29 in the Church of the Brethren, lingdon, Pa.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Tuesday Evening, August 26, 7:45

e Forward Movement and District Missions.—W. H. Holsinger, trated Lecture.—J. B. Emmert.

Wednesday Morning, August 27, 9:45

siness Session. The Minister: (1) His Call.—W. S. Long. (2)
Life.—J. C. Swigart. (3) In His Study.—Ira Holsopple. (4) Out-g a Sermon.—T. T. Myers. (5) In His Pulpit. (6) In His Comity.—M. R. Brumbaugh. (7) Pastoral Work Though Not a or.—John Bennett.

Afternoon, 1:30

eeting the Educational Goal of the Forward Movement: (a) By Churches.—J. C. Stayer, H. A. Sprsuogle. (b) By the College.—
arvey Brumbaugh. Cultivating School Sentiment in Our Church-Wm. P. Horley. How Shall Our Young Ministers Be Prepared feet the Demands of the Reconstruction Period?—Galen B. Royer.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING

Evening, 7:45

ow Shall the Sunday-school Help to Answer the Call for More ssionaries?—Galen B. Royer. The Opportunities and Immediate blems of the Indio Mission Field.—Jesse B. Emmert.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Beach-Eyer.—June 24, 1919, in the Stone church, Huntingdon, Pa., by the undersigned, Bro. Guy K. Beach and Ethel M. Eyer, both of Akron, Ohio.—T. T. Myers, Huntingdon, Pa.

Brubaker-Martin.—By the undersigned, at their home, 219 E. Harrison Street, Kokomo, Ind., Bro. Levi Brubaker and Emma Martin, O. D. Werking, 1614 Buckeye, Kokomo, Ind.

Culp-Bosgle.—By the undersigned, July 3, 1919, at the residence of the bride's mother, Brother Russel Culp and Sister Gladys Beagle, both of Gleichen, Alberta, Canada.—J. H. Brubaker, Gleichen, Alta., Canada.

Rhodes-Metzger.—By the undersigned, at his home, July 26, 1919, Brother Roy M. Rhodes, of Nampa, Idaho, and Sister Chlova Ada Metzger, of Rossville, Ind.—F. G. Replogle, Rossville, Ind.

Woher-Nelson.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, near Warrensburg, Mo., Clinton I. Weber, of Vermont, Ill., and Maggie Alice Nelson.—Jesse D. Mohler, Warrensburg, Mo.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Assen, Sister Louise, born in Norway, died at her home in the bounds of the Myrtle Point church, July 17, 1919, aged 75 years, 8 months and 19 days. She married S. E. Assen in 1865. To this union were born seven children, all of whom survive except one son. She united with the Church of the Brethren twenty-five years ago and was ever a faithful member.—Rachel Michael, Myrtle Point, Oregon.

Bolton, John H., born in Lee County, Va., died at Council Bluffs, Iowa, July 29, 1919, aged 77 years, 7 months and 17 days. He leaves his wife and seven children. Bro. Bolton was a man of strong Christian character.—A faithful member of the Brethren church. Services by the writer. Interment in Walnut Hill cemetery, Council Bluffs, Iowa.—Jas. Q. Goughnour, Ankeny, Iowa.

Bucklin, Margaret, died of tuberculosis, May 16, 1919, aged 12 years, 1 month and 13 days.—Dollie Shanholtz, Levale, W. Va.

Bules, Wayne, infant son of Brother and Sister Marvin Bules, died of cholera infantum, July 21, 1919, aged 2 years and 6 months. Services at the Stony Point church by Bro. Appleman, of Nappanee, Ind. Interment at the Stony Point cemetery.—Laura Harley, Ema Green, Ind.

Crist, infant daughter of Brother A. B. and Sister Nola Crist, was born July 19, 1919, and after gladdening the hearts of the parents for seven short hours, fell asleep in Jesus, at the parental home, 1858 West Fiftieth Street, Los Angeles, Calif. A tiny twin sister and the sorrowing parents hopefully look forward to the time when they shall see this tiny bud, plucked from earth's home-garden, of the full-grown flower in the Paradise of God.—Services at the grave by the writer.—F. M. Beery, 1301 E. Fiftieth Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Fiscus, Mary Ann, born in Clinton County, Pa., died at Shannon, Ill., July 20, 1919, aged 79 years, 3 months and 22 days. In 1850 she married Geo. Bixler, who died a number of years ago. Eight children were born to this union. In 1892 she married Philip Fiscus, who survives. Services in the churchhouse at Shannon by the writer. Interment in the Brethren cemetery.—D. Rowland, Dixon, Ill.

Fouts, Sister Martha (nee Helsel), wife of Joel A. Fonts, wos born in Ohio. With her family she come to California in 1901. She died of cancer at Los Angeles, Calif., July 11, 1919, aged 71 years and 2 days. She leaves o husband, two sons and three daughters. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for fifty-two years. Her last three years were full of bodily affliction and intense suffering, but this served only to draw her nearer to her Lord. She was o notable example of those who find the fullness of joy in the midst of the bodily sickness and pain. She received the onointing a few weeks before her departure. Funeral services by the writer. Text, 1 Peter 2: 20, 21.—F. H. Beery, Los Angeles, Calif.

Gilbert, Bro. S. Dondridge, born in Amherst County, Vo., died at his home, Buena Vista, Va., of a complication of diseases, July 6, 1919, aged 78 years. He married Martha Whiteside. To them were born seven daughters and four sons, nine of whom survive. His first wife died about twenty-five years ago. His second wife, who survive died about twenty-five years ago. Bro. Gilbert assisted largely in building the churches at Oroooco, Buena Vista and Alwood. Services by Brethren S. I. Flory, Robt. Figgers and L. G. Humphreys. Burial in the old Oonico churchyard.—L. G. Humphreys, Buena Visto, Va.

Good, Sister Anna Groce, second daughter of Bro. H. C. and Mary A. Early, died July 24, 1919, aged 36 years, 6 months and 29 days. She leaves her husband, two daughters, one son, father, mother, three sisters and one brother. She died of intestinal poisoning, following a long attack of nervous trouble. Services by Bro. C. E. Long, ossisted by Brethren Joseph and Samuel Pence. Interment in Mill Creek cemetery.—Ida Wilberger, Port Republic, Va.

Good, Sister Fleta E., eldest daughter of Bro. H. C. and Mary A. Early, died of tuberculosis, July 17, 1919, aged 42 years, 4 months and 16 days. She married J. M. Good Dec. 24, 1895. She was baptized in December of the same year. She leaves her husband, one son, father, mother, three sisters and one brother. Services by Bro. C. E. Long, assisted by Bro. H. G. Miller. Interment in Mill Creek cemetery.—Ida Wilberger, Port Republic, Va.

Hertzler, Bro. Tobias, died at his home in Cumminstown, Pa., after a lingering illness of twelve years, aged 40 years, 1 month and 7 days. His suffering was very great during the last week of his sickness, yet it made his faith the stronger. He is survived by his wife, father, two sisters and two brothers. Services by Eld. S. M. Wolfe, father, two sisters and two brothers. Services by Eld. S. M. Stouffer, assisted by Rev. Glenn, Bro. W. I. Sheaffer and the writer. Interment at Mechanicsburg.—A. A. Evons, Carlisle, Pa.

Korfoot, Rhoda E., died at her home July 29, 1919, aged 74 years. She married W. H. Korfoot. Two children were born to them. In girlhood she become o member of the Disciples church, to which faith she remained loyal. Services by the writer at the Lawshe Christian church. Interment in the Newport cemetery.—Van B. Wright, Peebles, Ohio.

Korgan, Mr. Fred John, born in Germany, Jan. 24, 1847. He came to Amcrico at the age of twenty-two years, and was married in July 16, 1919, aged 72 years, 5 months and 20 days. A wife, a son, two brothers and other relatives survive him. He became a member ago. She leaves one son and four daughters. She united with the Church of the Brethren in Maryland in 1876, and lived a consistent Christian life. Services at the West Branch church by Eld. S. S. Plum. Interment in the cemetery near by.—D. A. Rowland, Dixon, Ill.

Morris, Lucinda, died at the home of her daughter, at Nimrod, Va., July 20, 1919, aged about 100 years. She was a member of the Christian Church. She is survived by five daughters, a large number of grandchildren and almost a hundred great-grandchildren. Her husband was killed in the Civil War. Burial in the old family graveyard. —Nelie Wampler, Pirkey, Va.

Rladon, Sister Altha, nee Burgess, wife of Nathaniel Rladon, was born in Allen County, Ind., Aug. 29, 1841. With her husband she moved to Garnett, Kans., in 1872, and to Southern California in 1900. She died at her home in Los Angeles July 3, 1919, aged 77 years, 10 months and 12 days. The husband, five sons and one daughter survive her. She became a member of the Church of the Brethren in 1870, and lived in this faith to the end. Services by the writer. Text, John 14: 1-3.—F. H. Beery, Los Angeles, Calif.

Roberts, Bro. Durrett William, died at his home at Cedarmere, Va., June 17, 1919, after a long illness, of a complication of diseases. He was about 80 years old. He was a patient anfferer and longed for the time when the Father would call him home. He was twice married. His second wife preceded him several years. Several children survive. He was a faithful member of the church for many years. Funeral service by Eld. G. A. Maupin.—Nelle Wampler, Pirkey, Va.

Ross, Bro. Frank W., eldest son of Joseph and Mary Ross, deceased, died at his home in Jelloway, Ohio, July 21, 1919, aged 52 years, 4 months and 26 days. In 1889 he married Sister Alice Justice, who died several years later. To this union was born one daughter, who died in 1915. Three years later he married Sister Ida E. Pryor. Two daughters were born to them, one of whom died in infancy. He united with the Church of the Brethren at the age of fourteen, and lived a faithful Christian life. He leaves his wife, one daughter, two grandchildren and two brothers. Services ot the North Bend church by Bro. G. S. Straushaugh. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.—Ivie Mae Workman, Danville, Ohio.

Routson, Israel, second son of Geo. and Naney Able Routson, born in Miami County, Ohio, died July 23, 1919, aged 83 years, 9 months and 25 days. In 1863 he united with the Church of the Brethren, continuing in fellowship with the Harrist Creek congregation. In 1869 he married Elizabeth Rarick, who died in 1883. Two years later he married Miss Eliza Swank, who survives with an adopted son, one brother and one sister. Another adopted son preceded him. Services at the home by Eld. D. C. Rarichide. Interment in the Harris Creek cemetery.—Mrs. Mica H. B. Miller, Bradford, Ohio.

Shonholtz, Elizabeth C., died of tuberculosis May 23, 1919, aged 68 years, 8 months and 15 days. She was a faithful member of the Brethren church for many years.—Dollie Shanholtz, Levels, W. Va.

Sherfy, Sister Sallie, nee Hunt, born in Washington County, Tenn., died of parnlysis, July 15, 1919, aged 47 years, 11 months and 21 days. She united with the Church of the Brethren when a girl and remained loyal. She married Sam H. Sherfy who died a few years ago. To this union were born nine children, seven of whom are living. Services at the Pleasant Valley church by Eld. S. W. Beals. Interment in cemetery near by.—Pearl Sellers, Jonesboro, Tenn.

Shiflet, Bro. George, died at his home at Pirkey, Va., July 5, 1919, after an illness of one month, aged 58 years and 2 months. Bro. Shiflet was a hard-working man all of his life, and lived for his family. He was baptized last year and enjoyed his Christian experience. Surviving him are his companion, two sons and six daughters. Services at the Evergreen church by Eld. S. A. Sanger.—Nelie Wampler, Pirkey, Va.

Shiflet, Bro. Peels, died at the University Hospital, June 15, 1919, aged 22 years. Bro. Shiflet was never very strong physically but he was ready to help his parents in every way he could. Three years ago he was baptized and remained faithful. He is survived by his mother, two brothers and six sisters. His father died a few weeks later. Burial at the Evergreen church.—Nelie Wampler, Pirkey, Va.

Shiflet, Rebecca, daughter of Bro. George and Sister Lulu Shiflet, died July 27, 1919, aged 15 months. The child has been delicate from birth. Besides its parents it is survived by two brothers. Burial in the family graveyard.—Nelie Wampler, Pirkey, Va.

Smith, Athalonia Adaline (Duncan), born near Willis, Va., died July 26, 1919, in Girard, Ill. Sister Smith united with the Church of the Brethren when fourteen years of age. She was married to James M. Smith in 1885. She was a member for two years with tuberculosis. Services in charge of the pastor, ossisted by Eld. Jesse Smeltzer. Burial in the Girard cemetery, July 27.—D. Warren Shock, Girard, Ill.

Steeple, John, born in Leek, Staffordshire, England, died at the home of his daughter, Sister Guy Kso, of a complication of diseases, June 29, 1919, aged 54 years, 9 months and 25 days. He came to this country in 1907. He leaves his wife and three daughters. Burial in Grandview cemetery.—Mrs. Chariner Bailey, Froid, Mont.

Stroop, Sister Catherine, nee Ulry, born in Montgomery County, Ohio, died July 12, 1919, aged 75 years, 3 months and 2 days. She was the only child of John C. and Susan Ulry. In 1859 she married Moses S. Stroop. To this union were born nine children, five of whom preceded her. Her husband died in 1887. She was a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for fifty-eight years. Services at the home of her daughter at Logansport, Ind. The remains were taken to Chattanooga, Tenn., where burial took place in Forest Hill cemetery.—Ruth Dailey, Peru, Ind.

Thachor, Lucy, born in Susquehanna County, Pa., died ot the Old Folks' Home, Morshalltown, Iowa, July 17, 1919, aged 89 years, 6 months and 8 days. Services at the Home. The remains were brought to Preston for huriol.—Amy J. Owen, Preston, Mina.

Thomas, Laura Jane, born in Franklin Grove, Ill., died July 28, 1919, aged 65 years, 6 months and 2 days. She married Levi Thomas in 1873. To this union were born six children, all of whom are living except one. For more than forty years she wos a faithful and consistent member of the Brethren church. Services by the writer. Burial in the Olive Branch cemetery, near Ames, Iowa.—Jas. Q. Goughnour, Ankeny, Iowa.

Trimmer, Absalom, died July 17, 1919, aged 78 years, 10 months and 1 day. Bro. Trimmer was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for many years. He leaves his wife and six children. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. C. H. Altland. Burial in the Bermudion cemetery.—O. W. Cook, Dillsburg, Pa.

Willett, Sister Mary A., daughter of Samuel ond Jane Henry, born in Franklin County, Va., died at the home of her son, J. B. Willett, at Poages Mill, Va., July 15, 1919, aged 76 years, 3 months and 16 days. In 1866 she married Marion F. Willett, who died nineteen years ago. To this union were born one daughter and three sons. She was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren for about thirty-five years. She was confined to her bed for more than four months with asthma and heart dropsy, which caused her death. She is survived by four children, one brother, nineteen grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. Services at Mt. Union church by Eld. C. E. Eller and Bro. D. H. Shover. Burial in the home cemetery.—Nannie F. Henry, Poages Mill, Va.

Wolf, Emma Elizabeth, daughter of Brother and Sister Elmer Wolf, died July 28, 1919, aged 7 months. She is survived by her

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, R. E. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor
EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor
L. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as Second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorised August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 525)

was also very interesting. July 28 Bro. Geo. Griffith, of Meyersdale, Pa., gave two very interesting talks on the subject of "The Forward Movement." At our Sunday-school business meeting, held a few days later, we decided to call a special meeting in the near future, to organize a Mission Study Class. August 3 Bro. Moy Gwong, of North Manchester, Ind., gave us a very interesting talk on the necessity of sending more missionaries to China. One has been baptized since our last report.—Alice K. Trimmer, York, Pa., August 5.

VIRGINIA

Christiansburg church met in council June 14, with Bro. J. F. Keith, our new elder, presiding. Eight letters were received and two granted. We elected officers as follows: A. J. Reed, clerk; F. P. Hollow, "Messenger" agent; the writer, correspondent.—W. B. Spangler, Christiansburg, Va., August 6.

Fremont.—June 29 Bro. A. N. Hylton and the writer went to Fremont, a mission point in Carroll County, Va., belonging to the Pleasant Hill congregation, and held a church council. Two young men, Bro. Rupert S. Alderman, of Stur, Va., and Bro. Marcus B. Alderman, of Hillsville, Va., having expressed a desire to work in the ministry, we consulted the church, and all present expressed a willingness for them to be advanced to the ministry. We also held services for them on the following day. We had a large crowd and the service was appreciated.—S. P. Reed, Floyd, Va., July 31.

Redoak Grove.—We met in council August 2. Eld. Asa Bowman presided and gave a good talk. Our annual missionary meeting will be held at Stone Wall August 31. We expect Bro. J. F. Robertson, of Winston-Salem, N. C., to begin a series of meetings at Stone Wall in November. Six letters were granted.—Clara V. Vest, Floyd, Va., August 2.

WASHINGTON

Omak church met in a love feast and communion meeting July 26. We had with us Bro. G. W. Sellers and wife of Bryan, Ohio, Bro. Geo. A. Shamberger, Bro. Paul Mohler and wife, of Orrville, Wash., and Bro. J. L. Weddle, of Tonasket, Wash. Eld. M. F. Woods, of Tonasket, Wash., presided over a short council meeting previous to the feast. We decided to hold a series of meetings this fall or winter. Bro. B. E. Brothers was elected delegate to District Meeting.—Mrs. Allie M. Murray, Omak, Wash., July 29.

Richland Valley Mission of the Centralia church met in council July 15, with thirty-six present. It was unanimously decided to petition District Meeting for the organization of a church at Richland Valley, to take place this fall. We have preaching services twice a week, with an average attendance of about eighty. A Sunday-school has recently been organized with splendid attendance. We have only had prayer meeting a very short time, but it looks very promising, as we have an average attendance of thirty. We are expecting to organize a Christian Workers' Meeting soon. July 6 one was received into the church by baptism. We are expecting Bro. Edwin Jarboe, of Chicago, to be with us in a series of meetings the latter part of September. Our elder, Bro. E. L. Whisler, and family expect to make this their future home.—Mrs. Anna Rea, Ajlune, Wash., August 1.

WEST VIRGINIA

Pleasant View.—Bro. Saylor Geyer, of Indianapolis, Ind., will begin a series of meetings here August 8. Our love feast will be held August 23, at 5 P. M. The Mission Study Class gave a program on Sunday, August 3. Nine received diplomas. Eld. J. S. Zigler is in Pennsylvania at the present, holding a series of meetings.—Cyntha Fox, Fayetteville, W. Va., August 5.

WISCONSIN

Rice Lake.—July 27 and 28 were a spiritual feast to the members of the Rice Lake congregation. Eld. D. F. Landis, of Lewiston, Minn., conducted our dedicatory service, preaching three times on Sunday. The next evening we enjoyed a quiet love feast together. Bro. Landis officiated. Bro. Salshury, of Mondovi, was present also. On the morning following, Sister Barton, one of our aged sisters, and the wife of the writer, were anointed. We have prospects of more members coming among us and would be glad to have more.—Wm. H. Eiler, Rice Lake, Wis., August 4.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

August 17-20, District of Oregon, at Portland.

August 21, District of N. and S. Carolina, Ga. and Fla., Brummett Creek church, Mitchell Co., N. C.

August 26-28, District of Northwestern Ohio, Deshler church.

August 26-29, District of Oklahoma, Panhandle of Texas and New Mexico, Washita church, near Cordell.

August 28, District of Southern Indiana, at Rossville church.

August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.

August 30-Sept. 1, District of N. Ill. and Wisconsin, Camp Grounds, Lena, Ill.

Oct. 7-9, District of Northern Iowa, Minnesota and S. Dak., at Lewiston, Minn.

LOVE FEASTS

Illinois

August 30, Big Creek.

Sept. 16, Panther Creek, all-day meeting.

Indiana

August 24, Ladoga.

August 30, New Salem.

Sept. 6, Oak Grove.

Sept. 6, 7 pm, Wabash.

Sept. 6, Auburn.

Sept. 6, Maple Grove.

Sept. 13, 7 pm, Yellow Creek.

Sept. 20, Center.

Sept. 20, Somerset.

Sept. 20, 7:30 pm, Bethany.

Sept. 27, 7 pm, Cart Creek.

Sept. 28, 6 pm, Santa Fe.

Iowa

August 29, Libertyville.

Sept. 22, Dry Creek.

Maryland

Sept. 12, Fairview.

Sept. 13, 10:30 am, Piney Creek.

Sept. 14, Maple Grove.

Sept. 20, 2 pm, Sams Creek.

Missouri

August 23, 7 pm, Prairie View.

Ohio

Sept. 6, 10 am, Sugar Creek.

Sept. 7, 6 pm, Akron.

Sept. 27, 10 am, New Carlisle.

Pennsylvania

August 16, Indian Creek, County Line house.

Sept. 28, Codorus, at Shrewsbury.

Texas

Sept. 13, Pleasant Grove.

Virginia

August 23, Lebanon.

August 30, Greenmount.

Sept. 6, Trevilian.

Sept. 20, Rowland Creek.

West Virginia

August 23, 5 pm, Pleasant View.

August 23, Bean Settlement.

August 30, Maple Spring.

Sept. 5, North Mill Creek, at Sycamore.

Sept. 6, North Mill Creek, at Bethel.

Sept. 6, White Pine.

Sept. 6, Salem.

Sept. 6, Knobley.

Sept. 8, South Fork, at South Mill Creek.

Sept. 23, Harman.

Sept. 21, Shiloh.

That talk to the Children ---oh dear, what shall I say?

Don't rack your brain trying to think up an experiment that may not work. Dr. Stall has a pleasant surprise for you in his book called, "With the Children on Sundays." It is a large, beautiful volume containing 52 illustrated talks for children.

Don't be a quitter! Teachers, superintendents, ministers and parents, you will get real help from Dr. Stall's book. He will show you how to talk to children about the most commonplace things. Here are a few of the titles of the 52 illustrated stories for children showing at a glance what Dr. Stall will enable you to do with ordinary subjects:

Bread—Universal Soul Hunger.
Banks—Gathered and Guarded Treasures.
Husks—The Disappointed Pleasure Seeker.
Nuts—God Means That We Must Work.
Ropes—Habits and How They Become Strong.
Reaping—The Harvest Time of Life.
Traps—Unsuspecting Mice and Men.

With the Children on Sundays is bound in olive green vellum cloth. It contains 330 pages, 9 full page color plates by C. M. Burd, over 130 line drawings illustrating the text, and 52 talks to children. Originally sold by subscription at $2.00 per copy. Our special price on "With the Children on Sundays" is $1.20 postpaid.

Save Money By Ordering Today From

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Will a College Education Pay in Hard Cash?

Can I afford four years' time and attending expense to get a college education? A fair question.

An expert on effects of education upon earning ability says: "The average boy who left school at 14 has earned $5,122 when he is 25. The average boy who stayed in school until he was 18 has earned $7,387 when he is 25. Gain $1,665.

Richmond P. Hobson says, "Though less than 2% of the men of America go through college, yet from this 2% the nation draws 7,700 of the 10,000 leaders in all walks of life."

Carnegie declared near the close of his life, "The business men of America have at last come to realize that a college education has a commercial value."

Get ready for that business life you intend to enter by coming to

JUNIATA COLLEGE
HUNTINGDON, PA.

Grounds, 23 acres; 7 major and 3 minor buildings with equipment worth $212,000 00
Endowment, ... 350,000 00

Dormitories for men and for women; Library of over 28,000 volumes; Complete Laboratories; Special up-to-date Domestic Science Equipment.

Degrees in Art and Sciences and Bible; Diplomas in Business, Expression, Music, Art and Academy.

Physical Training.

Splendid Social and Religious Atmosphere. Fall term opens Sept. 15; Winter term Dec. 30.

JUNIATA COLLEGE, Huntingdon, Pa.

Order a copy of the Full Report of Winona Conference

Brethren Publishing House, Elgin, Illinois

Preparation for World Tasks

THE war is over. A new era of prosperity and achievement has dawned upon our nation. We occupy a position of world leadership in industry, politics, education and religion. There are unprecedented opportunities for traioed meo and women. The young people of this generation fall heir to some of the world's greatest problems and therefore occupy a position of tremendous responsibility. They must have the best and most thoro preparation for the great tasks which await them.

Bridgewater College

offers that training of body, mind and soul which prepares young people for these great world obligations. The supreme aim of the institution is to train young men and women for useful citizenship, true Christian faith, and an efficient and unselfish service to the race. A standard College, extensive courses, adequate equipment, able faculty, Christian ideals, a wholesome moral and religious atmosphere. Session opens on September 15th. Catalog upon application.

Bridgewater College
Bridgewater, Va.

Mount Morris College

is a leader in preparation for Mission Work. Of the thirty-two missiooaries going out this year, thirteen were trained in our school.

OUR SEMINARY COURSE

is a long step in advance in preparing religious workers along the lines of our own particular needs.

THE REVISED AGRICULTURE COURSE,

with equipment to correspond, is an equally great advance in that direction.

SEE THE JULY BULLETIN

for further informatioo. And decide today that you will be among the leaders in service for God and for humanity.

Our opening date is September 16

Mount Morris College
Mount Morris, Ill.

he Children
t shall I say?

eriment that may not work. Dr. Stall has th the Children on Sundays." It is a large, children.

s, ministers and parents, you will get real to talk to children about the most com-ie 52 illustrated stories for children show-with ordinary subjects:

versal Soul Hunger.
hered and Guarded Treasures.
e Disappointed Pleasure Seeker.
Means That We Must Work.
oits and How They Become Strong.
he Harvest Time of Life.
suspecting Mice and Men.

Vith the Children on Sundays

ve green vellum cloth, It contains 330 ge color plates by C. M. Burd, over 130 llustrating the text, and 52 talks to chil-y sold by subscription at $2.00 per copy.
e on "With the Children on Sundays" is Money By Ordering Today From

N PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Preparation for World Tasks

THE war is over. A new era of prosperity and achievement has dawned upon our nation. We occupy a position of world leadership in industry, politics, education and religion. There are unprecedented opportunities for trained men and women. The young people of this generation fall heir to some of the world's greatest problems and therefore occupy a position of tremendous responsibility. They must have the best and most thoro preparation for the great tasks which await them.

Bridgewater College

offers that training of body, mind and soul which prepares young people for these great world obligations. The supreme aim of the institution is to train young men and women for useful citizenship, true Christian faith, and an efficient and unselfish service to the race. A standard College, extensive courses, adequate equipment, able faculty, Christian ideals, a wholesome moral and religious atmosphere. Session opens on September 15th. Catalog upon application.

Bridgewater College
Bridgewater, Va.

Mount Morris College

is a leader in preparation for Mission Work. Of the thirty-two missionaries going out this year, thirteen were trained in our school.

OUR SEMINARY COURSE

is a long step in advance in preparing religious workers along the lines of our own particular needs.

THE REVISED AGRICULTURE COURSE, with equipment to correspond, is an equally great

THE GOSPEL MES

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., August 23, 1919

In This Number

Editorial—
In the Days of Reconstruction, ... 529
The Best Season for Religion, ... 529
What About This Interchurch World Movement? 529
Your Unit of Thinking, ... 529
The Quiet Hour, ... 535
Among the Churches, ... 536
Around the World, ... 537

Contributors' Forum—
Praise (Poem). By B. F. M. Sours, ... 530
Keeping the Church Pure. By James M. Moore, ... 530
The Day's Work in Marash.—No. 2. By A. J. Culler, ... 530
On the True Foundation. By J. H. Moore, ... 531
Christian Education and Democracy. By Edna A. Dotterer, ... 531
Fundamentals in Education. By John S. Flory, ... 532
Sermons Plus Sermons. By D. C. Moomaw, ... 532
Emblems of the Holy Spirit. By W. J. Hamilton, ... 533
Signs of the Times. By Julia Graydon, ... 533

The Round Table—
The Bond of Blindness. By M. M. Eshelman, ... 534
A Missionary Thought. By Daisy M. Moore, ... 534
"Wells." By A. E. Hecker, ... 534
How Character Is Made. By Margaret Dudte, ... 534
The Brook. By Normae W. Twiddy, ... 534
The Humility of Jesus. By Ezra Flory, ... 534
The Personality of Love. By John E. Mohler, ... 535
One Hundred Thousand. By Eleanor J. Brumbaugh, ... 535
Wanted: An American Language. By Olive A. Smith, ... 535

Home and Family—
God (Poem), ... 538
Better Religious Instruction in the Home. By Albert C. Wieand, ... 538
Ruth the True-hearted. By Mrs. June Weller Miller, ... 538
The Sin of Gossip. By Chester E. Shuler, ... 539
Naughty No-good Stuff. By Oma Karn, ... 539

...EDITORIAL...

In the Days of Reconstruction

WHY didn't we know that the trials of the reconstruction period would be greater, in some respects, than those of the war itself? Because the younger ones of us never had the experience, and the older ones of us forgot. And because, further, not even the older ones ever had such an experience. The world had never had such a complete shaking up. And because, finally, we are just naturally so foolish and thoughtless.

While the war was on, everybody thought of the common welfare first. Everybody, we mean, except those who did not. Everybody except those who took advantage of the opportunity to make private gain out of the world's necessity and who are still pressing that advantage. But we all expected to relax a little by this time.

Consider the destruction and waste of the last five years. Consider that it will take time for production to catch up again. Add to this the greed of the conscienceless profiteer and the resentment and impatience and selfishness of all the rest of us, and there is no mystery at all about the present social disturbances.

In the first flush of joy at the return of peace we just didn't think. Better plan to practice patience and mutual forbearance and economy and self-sacrifice for another five years or so. The MESSENGER will let you know promptly when the need for these virtues has passed by.

The Best Season for Religion

SUMMER temperatures encourage languor and indolence. Religious activities, in common with most others, tend to less strenuousness. But the rewards of a little extra effort to overcome this tendency are great. Reasonable activity is more favorable to physical comfort even than idleness. Did you never figure out why

What About This Interch

ORGANIC union of all the churches, or even of most of the churches, of Christendom is a long way off. Union of certain bodies, mostly branches of a once united stock, has taken place occasionally and such instances are likely to be repeated. Churches, separated by only minor differences of polity and not by fundamental differences of doctrine, surely ought to find a way to get together. It must also be admitted that it would be a tremendous gain for the common cause if all churches, professing the name of Christ, could unite upon a platform which all could accept as being in harmony with New Testament demands. But such a consummation is not in sight. Differences of viewpoint are too great. Union at the expense of honest and deep convictions of right, even if this were possible, would be an outward union only and of no value.

We have learned to be more tolerant of those whose religious convictions differ from our own, and this is right. But we can not be expected to sacrifice our convictions on matters we consider vital, for the sake of a mere appearance of union which does not really exist. We need not challenge the sincerity or Christian character of the members of other churches. Every man must give account of himself to God. But we must ask to be allowed to interpret our Bibles as seemeth to us right and to practice its teaching as we understand it. What we ask for ourselves we must, of course, freely grant to others.

In view of the foregoing considerations we have been particularly interested in the new Interchurch World Movement which has now been commanding some public attention for several months. It looked like it was going to be something different, something really useful, and we have wondered whether the outcome would justify our hopes. It is still too soon to say much of the "outcome," but matters have progressed far enough to make possible some estimate of the prospects. Its working organization is assuming definite form and its surveys, the first of its proposed tasks, are actually under way.

We quote from an authorized statement, recently issued: "The Movement has nothing to do with any proposal for organic church union or any discussions as to matters of doctrine, and does not purpose the establishment of any supercommission to control the working machinery of the constituent bodies. It simply offers an opportunity for all the churches to ascertain all the facts about their common problems and then to take counsel together what they shall do about them. . . . The first undertaking of the movement and the one upon which everything else depends, has been a comprehensive census of the spiritual, moral, social and industrial environments of humanity down to the last community and the ultimate household."

It will require a few moments' reflection, at least, to appreciate the size of the undertaking described in the last sentence, and the value of its successful completion. Its purpose is to make it possible for the Protestant forces to "visualize their whole task." It has already been begun and is divided into two main divisions, a home survey and a foreign survey. Question-

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

Praise

BY B. F. M. SOURS

O Father, in the heights divine
Thy attributes of glory shine;
Thy wisdom, infinite in power,
And all the boons thy kindness shower,
Repeat, where streets in glory shine,
They own thy attributes divine.

Where crystal flows the limpid rill,
Where birds are soaring at their will,
Where angel in far heaven sings
With heaven's glory on his wings,
O may the anthem linger still Till thou hast wrought on earth thy will.

Then all the powers of sin shall be Subdued by thy great majesty.
There Christ, incarnate love of God,
Shall rule the nations, glory-shod.
Hail, hail the day when victory
Shall float her banners, Christ, to thee.

Immortal life! Immortal life
Shall take the place of death and strife;
And thou who burst the bars of death
And rose in new, immortal breath,
Eternity with praise is rife,
Thy resurrection-power is life.

And so today and all the days
In myriad and unnumbered ways
We lift our happy hearts to thee,
We humbly sing thy majesty,
On amethyst and jasper gaze
And lift our voices in thy praise.

Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Keeping the Church Pure

BY JAMES M. MOORE

THE church was established by Jesus Christ. A study of the scriptures, relating to its purpose and work, will easily reveal the fact that it, like the Sabbath, was made for man, and not man for the church. In other words, the end in view was not merely an organization, but the salvation of men.

The church is not a saints' rest, where perfected souls lie in wait until the Father gets ready to call them home. Nor is it a harbor for sinners who wish to hide from the wrath of an angered God. It is rather a developing institution, having for its aim the building of Christian character in accordance with the highest ideals possible in the lives of all who will yield themselves to such a purpose.

This will not mean, on the one hand, that those in the church will be perfect, nor, on the other, could it be inferred that the holding of ideals in conflict with the Gospel could be tolerated in its members to an unlimited extent. Whatever is done, we must keep in view the spiritual good of those with whom we have to deal, both those in the church, as well as those without.

The purer the church body, the more powerful is the influence in building character among its members, as well as in bringing, within its borders, those who need the benefit of its uplifting power. Yet, in our desire for a pure church, we must not lose sight of the fact that the final purpose is the good of the individual.

The greatest purifier in nature, as well as in spiritual things, is healthy growth. The growing tree heals its scars, the healthy body is continually eliminating poisons, and the working and growing church is helping its members to a greater degree of holiness in life day by day. "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John 1:7). "Beloved, now are we children of God, and it is not yet made manifest what we shall be. We know that, if he shall be manifested, we shall be like him; for we shall see him even as he is" (1 John 8:2).

Let that healthy, growing condition be lacking, however, and there is nothing that can purify and keep alive. This is true in spiritual things as well as in nature.

Take that church whose Sunday-school attendance is decreasing and whose preaching services have all but died. Some of the members are attending places not in keeping with their profession, while a number are not living up to the ideals of the Gospel as they should along other lines. Divisions exist, and there are unkind remarks and sometimes harsh criticisms that find expression.

True, there are those who are faithful, and are working as best they can under the circumstances. They attend the services, and are holding to the principles of the Gospel.

The work in general, however, is not prospering, and the question arises as to what is best to get things on a better basis. Some feel that the thing to do is to clean house, get rid of all who will not line up, and then take a new start with those who are left. The feeling is strong that it is better to have a few consistent members than a larger number, many of whose lives are not as they should be.

While in general the conclusion is right, it must also be borne in mind that while amputation is sometimes necessary, the body is far more likely to survive if it is in a healthy condition. The more serious the operation, the more important is a recognition of the truth. Many a church has thus cleaned its ranks, and by so doing has received such a shock to itself and the community that it will require years, if not generations, to recover.

The first thing to do is for the faithful ones to get together in prayer until there develops a harmony that will not break. As others gather in and the work picks up, we must not let anything interfere with the harmony, for therein is the cause for the failure of many noble efforts.

When the church gets into a healthy and harmonious working condition, some amputation will likely be necessary, but the great majority of the cases will respond to the positive and uplifting influence of the growing and active body of workers. Furthermore, the church and the community will escape the paralyzing effect that comes from going at things from the wrong end.

We need to recognize more fully the healing and purifying power of growth. The past is as it is, and we can not change it. The future is before us, and will become just what we make of it. In the working out of our present-day problems the past need not concern us only as its experiences give us encouragement, or help us to avoid repeating the unfortunate mistakes made.

Lanark, Ill.

The Day's Work in Marash

BY A. J. CULLER

No. 2.—In the Villages

MARASH is the natural center of a group of villages, about forty-six in number, some of them quite small and insignificant, but others of some size. In fact, several of them had eight or ten thousand inhabitants before the war. Some of these villages are largely Moslem and were undisturbed, while others are almost wholly Armenian. A good many of these villages were the center of a very remarkable missionary work—eighteen or twenty of them having well-established and self-supporting churches, with pastors graduated from the Marash Theological Seminary. In fact, this section is regarded as one of the best developed mission fields in Turkey, if not in the world, and had, before the war, a high type of the established native church, under the general direction of the Central Turkey Mission. These pastors have been driven out. Their churches, for the most part, have been torn down, their congregations decimated by death and scattered by deportation, and only now are the fragments coming from the south to Marash as a center, waiting to be repatriated to their homes and churches. Some of them, with five hundred people, now have fifty, and others even a smaller proportion. One village, with 170 men, will have ten men returning. In some of the villages, however, a very much larger proportion are returning. Some of the villages are totally destroyed, with only a blank wall or lonely chimney left standing, while others can soon and easily be repaired. In some of the villages the homes are in a fair condition, but inhabited by Circassians, Kurds, Lazes, Bosniaks or other tribes, who must be gotten out before the Armenians can be returned.

The repatriation problem is appalling in its magnitude and must be done gradually. Lumber is scarce, and while the houses are nearly all mud or stone, yet some lumber is necessary. Many families will live over this winter, at least, on the ground of their mud or stone homes with scarcely a stick of wood to cheer their gray and somber life. We are, however, doing something and are buying quantities of timber, and furnishing this to such as will and can fix up their homes. In most cases we have to pay them some wages while working on their own homes, so as to give them something to live on until they can earn a little in the field or market. It seems wise not to try to enter into a great rebuilding program ourselves, but rather let each one oversee his own repairs, for the natives can get labor cheaper, and will do more than if we undertake the task. We furnish the material only under certain conditions and requirements, which they must meet.

Out of the soil must come the wealth of the people. The principal crops here are the vineyards—of which there are thousands on every hillside—the wheat, rice in the lowlands, barley and feed crops and all sorts of tropical fruits. Goats and cattle are plentiful, and in some sections sheep are raised in abundance. I have eaten so much goat meat that I feel as if I had taken on some of the qualities of the animal. In some places most of the land has not been cultivated, but in others it was taken by the Turks, in the vain hope that it was to be their permanent possession. One of the delicate questions is getting this land back to the proper owners.

We have had much consultation with the British Army Officers and with the Turkish officials in regard to restoring the land to the proper owners. I can not enter into the mazes of Turkish law and all the evasions of Turkish officials. It is simply utterly impossible for any one to conceive the depths of deception and chicanery of Turkish officialdom. It is a long way between promise and performance when one is in Turkey. Suffice it to say that the farms are being returned and the shops and homes are handed over. This is due to a combination of tact, persistence, and the very persuasive presence of the British army. It has also been decided, after much negotiation, that the Turks are to pay rent for the land they farmed this year. This rent has been fixed at twenty per cent of the crop value, and this is to be free of tax. This is fairly good, considering conditions of high cost of seed, farming, and the fact that the Government always takes one-eighth as a tax. This rental from their farms will put hundreds of villagers above want for the coming winter. The Government has also agreed to pay the rental for the farms during the years when the Armenians were in exile. Now this is true in theory where we are, but whether it will be carried out, and whether the Turkish Government is even able to carry it out, remains to be seen.

Another peculiar Turkish law, of which we are preparing to take advantage, is interesting. The Turkish Government takes a tax of one-eighth of all crops. This is taken in kind, at the time of threshing or gathering and should make all Americans thankful for our light taxation. This amount, taken in tax, is then offered for sale. If an individual bids on it, another can bid against him and it will be sold at the highest price obtainable. But the law provides that a village can bid for it at its own figure and none can raise the price against it. The village can buy the grain at its own price, which may be only a third, or even less, of what it is actually worth. It is only a peculiar bit of generosity, which Turkey mixes up with her usual forms of oppression. We are bidding in this wheat in the name of the villages, and make a loan sufficient to make the first payment to the Government. The village can then sell enough of the grain to pay for the whole amount, and use the rest to feed the villagers.

We have established a Village Loan Fund, to be loaned to farmers in sums of $125 each, which will purchase one team of oxen and a few simple agricultural implements. This money is loaned without interest, to be repaid in two equal payments of one and ner tribes, who must be gotten out before the Arnians can be returned.

The repatriation problem is appalling in its magni-le and must be done gradually. Lumber is scarce, d while the houses are nearly all mud or stone, yet ne lumber is necessary. Many families will live er this winter, at least, on the ground of their mud stone homes with scarcely a stick of wood to cheer eir gray and somber life. We are, however, doing nething and are buying quantities of timber, and rnishing this to such as will and can fix up their nes. In most cases we have to pay them some ges while working on their own homes, so as to give em something to live on until they can earn a little the field or market. It seems wise not to try to enter o a great rebuilding program ourselves, but rather each one oversee his own repairs, for the natives n get labor cheaper, and will do more than if we dertake the task. We furnish the material only unr certain conditions and requirements, which they ust meet.

Out of the soil must come the wealth of the people.
ne principal crops here are the vineyards—of which ere are thousands on every hillside—the wheat, rice the lowlands, barley and feed crops and all sorts tropical fruits. Goats and cattle are plentiful, and some sections sheep are raised in abundance. I have ten so much goat meat that I feel as if I had taken some of the qualities of the animal. In some aces most of the land has not been cultivated, but in hers it was taken by the Turks, in the vain hope that was to be their permanent possession. One of the licate questions is getting this land back to the oper owners.

We have had much consultation with the British rmy Officers and with the Turkish officials in regard restoring the land to the proper owners. I can not ter into the mazes of Turkish law and all the eva-ons of Turkish officials. It is simply utterly imposble for any one to conceive the depths of deception d chicanery of Turkish officialdom. It is a long way tween promise and performance when one is in Tur-
y. Suffice it to say that the farms are being rerned and the shops and homes are handed over.
his is due to a combination of tact, persistence, and e very persuasive presence of the British army. It as also been decided, after much negotiation, that the urks are to pay rent for the land they farmed this ear. This rent has been fixed at twenty per cent of ne crop value, and this is to be free of tax. This is irly good, considering conditions of high cost of eed, farming, and the fact that the Government alays takes one-eighth as a tax. This rental from their rms will put hundreds of villagers above want for ne coming winter. The Government has also agreed o pay the rental for the farms during the years when ne Armenians were in exile. Now this is true in neory where we are, but whether it will be carried ut, and whether the Turkish Government is even able o carry it out, remains to be seen.

Another peculiar Turkish law, of which we are prearing to take advantage, is interesting. The Turkish Government takes a tax of one-eighth of all crops.
This is taken in kind, at the time of threshing or gath-ring and should make all Americans thankful for our ight taxation. This amount, taken in tax, is then ffered for sale. If an individual bids on it, another an bid against him and it will be sold at the highest rice obtainable. But the law provides that a village an bid for it at its own figure and none can raise the rice against it. The village can buy the grain at its own price, which may be only a third, or even less, of what it is actually worth. It is only a peculiar bit of generosity, which Turkey mixes up with her usual forms of oppression. We are bidding in this wheat in two years. We have not enough to loan to all, and so have to assign five hundred or a thousand dollars to a village, in the hope that they will loan to each other, and cultivate as much of the land as possible. It was our fond dream to introduce tractors for farming, but that has long since gone the way of dreams. We can not secure gasoline in sufficient amounts. We can not get the tractors over the mountain passes into the valleys, the natives can not work them, and then, too, they would require expensive repair-shops. It is still best to let them farm with the patient and ever-present oxen and donkeys.

The largest of these villages is Zeitoun, situated in a veritable Switzerland of scenery. The snow-covered mountains about it are sublime in their naked beauty.
About fifteen thousand people lived here before the war. They are known all through Turkey for their sturdy qualities and their love of freedom. Zeitoun has never been captured, although, at one time, an army of 32,000 besieged it, when seventy-two of their men, in a mountain pass, held off the enemy. These people seem to be a class among themselves—virile, energetic, daring almost to foolhardiness, and yet having a remarkable intermixture of the finer qualities.
Into this town we expect to put a loan fund of ten thousand dollars, one-half of which is contributed by the Armenians of Egypt and Turkey, one-fourth by the British and one-fourth by ourselves. With this we expect to open up some iron mines in the mountains and furnish at least a beginning in the iron industry.
We are expecting to put a man there to have charge of relief work and to start an orphanage, and are hoping that the British will put an officer in charge of a few troops. Best of all, they have called for a pastor, and one has accepted. Not only the Protestants but the Gregorians and Catholics are going to attend the church with a Protestant pastor. I hasten to say, of course, that none of the relief money is used for mission or religious work. That money comes from other sources. We know, however, that it is not enough to give these people the loaves and fishes without the spiritual food.

Many of the people on our hands in charity at Mar-ash are these villagers. Several of the village groups have already gone home. We are hoping to get most of them back in time to sow wheat this fall and also to get the advantage of their rental this year. Just now the problem is at its height, and the demands for money the greatest. Just to give out charity is easy, but it is wrong. We must set the communities back on their feet. This takes thought and work. We sometimes seem to be cruel in our insistence that people must not rely on foreign help, but that we are only here to help them to help themselves. More and more are we cutting off charity, and demanding that each family and village become a part of the newly-created social and economic life of the group. This work is a laboratory of social and economic reconstruction. I shall say more of the industrial and educational work in the next and last article of this group.

Marash, Turkey.

On the True Foundation

BY J. H. MOORE

RAIN had been falling the greater part of the afternoon, and as the hours slipped away, we began wondering if the rain would let up in time to make it possible for our people to attend the prayer meeting announced for the evening. But the rain did not entirely cease, so, when the hour for the service drew nigh, we slipped into a long coat, hoisted the umbrella and were soon in the prayer meeting room.

There were just eight persons present. The subject was "Trusting God and Making the Best of the Situation." Each one in the room had something to say or blessing. They all got the blessing, even to the saving of their lives.

But we pondered more over the splendid results following the efforts of the eight consecrated men and women, who at Schwarzenau, Germany, in 1708, were fully set apart to serve the Lord. There were only eight of them, but that was enough to make a good beginning. They began right and started in the right direction, having their faces set Zionward. They cut entirely loose from the influence of an unconverted world, as well as from the misleading religious bodies of the age.

It was a great undertaking, and only brave hearts could be depended upon to make such a venture. It was not an impulsive movement. Every step was the result of mature deliberation. Everything was carefully thought out before any move was made. Having settled on the New Testament as their rule of faith and practice, they first determined to understand the Book, before laying their plans. Under the influence of the Spirit the Sacred Volume soon became to them an open revelation, with light from above shining upon every page. The more they studied the Word the plainer became the path of duty.

Finally they felt that they knew enough to begin. In their simple way of taking God at his word it was clear to them that faith, repentance, along with confession and baptism, were divinely-appointed conditions of pardon. These conditions they most cheerfully accepted. They were surrounded by Christian bodies, having different methods of administering what they regarded as the rite of baptism. Some sprinkled the water of baptism, some poured it, while others observed immersion—some dipping the candidates once and others three times. Also, in affusion, some ministers or priests applied the water three times and others but once. From this multiplicity of methods the eight selected trine immersion, believing that this was the form of baptism taught in Matt. 28: 19, where we read: "Baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Since none of them had been baptized in that way, it became a matter of deep concern as to how each one might be permitted to receive what they justly regarded as New Testament baptism. Alexander Mack, a man of considerable information as well as a man of means and standing in the community, and a preacher of marked ability, had been their leader and teacher.
The other seven of the group were quite willing that he should administer the rite, but as he considered himself unbaptized, he did not feel at liberty to comply with their request.

Had the little group known of a religious body that fully lined up with the New Testament in their church principles, they might have gone to this body for fellowship. Not knowing of a church of that type, their only course was to form themselves into a church and thus be prepared to put into operation the plain teachings of Christ and the apostles.

Since there was no one in any of the churches of the day from which they had cut loose, on whom they desired to call for baptism, they decided to select one of their own number to baptize Mack. Mack having thus received the rite, baptized the remaining seven.
A few hours later they met and organized, and thus,
by the guidance of the Holy Spirit, brought into existence a church duly authorized and equipped for anything that the New Testament would enjoin upon the children of God. In other words, they, as a body of new-born creatures, born of water and of the Spirit, had given the church of God a new start in Europe.

Had they been so disposed, they might have started out in their undertaking by receiving baptism from another source. Mack might have gone to England and received baptism at the hands of a bishop of the Church of England. At this time there was consider-tyranny. Russia has dethroned her Czar and there is found only anarchy and confusion. Having been held so long in slavery and ignorance, she knows not how to plan her government, in order that the rights of all may be made equal. Mere freedom is not sufficient to make the world safe for democracy. The first problem to consider, therefore, is whether the democracy of which the allied nations have so much talked—the cause for which millions of lives have been sacrificed—is safe for the world. If it has failed in the past, something must be done in order that it may be effective in the future. Democracy must he made safe for the world.

Only the government which is founded upon the principles of our Lord, who ushered into the world peace and good will toward men, will stand the test of the ages. This principle embodies the Christian doctrine of brotherhood, self-sacrifice in service and love for all mankind. Unless such principles are adopted and practiced, nations can not long maintain, even in a league, their freedom, bought at such great price. Nations in the past have proved this to be true.

The real problem, then, is, How can these principles be maintained? The one and only solution seems to be through Christian education—not as training in military tactics, as some would advise—but in that threefold development of head, hands and heart. A quotation from Longfellow well illustrates the thought:

> "If half the force which fills the world with terror;
> If half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts
> Were given to redeem the world from error,
> There'd be no need of arsenals and forts."

The recent draft has shown that an alarmingly large number of the young men of our country could neither read nor write. Statistics show that there are over 3,000,000 native-born Americans who do not possess the simplest rudiments of an education. For every one of these there are three illiterate foreigners. This condition, in a land which boasts of such highly-developed educational opportunities, is a shame, to say the least.

The principles of Christianity should be a part of the earliest training of the child. The child who can not agree with his playmates and is selfish in his sport will, if not otherwise directed, grow to be an antagonist. The teaching which aims to give the child only book knowledge, has missed its mark. The child must be taught to be a good citizen and made to understand that he is an important part of the great mass of individuals which go to make a nation.

Because of the complete separation of the church from the state, laws of such a nature have been passed as to make it impossible to include in the curriculum of the public schools any of the teachings of religion. These laws, in many cases, have been unduly pressed, and no systematic instruction as to duty toward parents, teachers, friends, or country, or reverence toward God has been arranged for. As a result, the disrespect of the young for their elders and teachers, and irreverence for things divine, are alarmingly on the increase.

Will such conditions make a democracy safe for the world? No, emphatically no! If this lack of moral and religious training is continued, American citizenship will fall so far below the normal state that America, to whom the whole world is now looking, will be unable to hold her lofty position. No national or State law exists which prohibits the teaching of the principles of morality, reverence and, above all, the doctrine of the brotherhood of man. Without these no true democracy can long exist.

Not only should the education of the child be properly directed, but the higher institutions of learning should give more place to religious education. The arts and sciences are taught to the extent that America bids fair to become a rival of Germany in its great accomplishments along these lines. But what will all this avail unless supplemented by the necessary religious training? Science and religion should go hand in hand, if the ideal citizenship is desired. Germany was devoid of the latter and all have observed the result. Does America wish to sink to Germany's level? Then she should take warning and remedy her defects.

Not only should America seek to enlighten her own citizens, but she should do all within her power to carry the truth to nations less fortunate. A nation without the proper enlightenment is a dangerous neighbor. History verifies this fact. Then, in order to make the world safe for democracy, the whole world must know the truth. This last bitter struggle might have been avoided if the Christian nations had been willing to do their duty. Because of their unwillingness, the penalty had to be paid. Will they retain and practice the lesson so recently learned?

Our Government called for funds, and the citizens' money poured forth like water into the national treasury. Such a great amount has been appropriated that one can scarcely comprehend its greatness. What would happen if a like amount would be appropriated for the cause of Christian education? If billions were given to educational institutions, would there be any further danger of war? No more certain plan of securing world peace and democracy could be inaugurated.

How little the world has realized this in the past! Will it awaken to the fact before it is too late? Will it not, instead of training the youth in methods of destruction, rather employ the constructive principles of righteousness in the educational institutions, and thus not only make the world safe for democracy, but democracy safe for the world?

True Americans, will you use your influence in behalf of this momentous cause? You owe this sacred duty to your country and your God. Not until you and every other citizen is willing to do this, will America remain as a government for the people, by the people, and be directed according to God's plan. May the spotless banner of peace to all mankind—the banner of Christ himself—ever float by the side of our beloved Stars and Stripes!

New Windsor, Md.

Fundamentals in Education

BY JOHN S. FLORY

ANOTHER question that is perplexing the minds of young men and women and their parents also, just now, is with reference to the kind of a school they shall attend the coming year—a State school or a church school. And in deciding this question, mistakes will be made, just as they will be made by some beginning their specialized work before they have laid the foundation in general training.

It is so easy to allow the claims of secondary importance, such as convenience, cheap rates, doing as others do, to outweigh the more important considerations of environment, Christian influence, church affiliation and the like. But this is a matter of so much importance that I wish parents might look it straight in the face and do some careful, sober thinking before they decide the question in favor of the State schools.

Now, this paper is not intended as an indictment against State institutions. Generally speaking, they are doing a valuable service to the country. And while they are good, the question with us is not one of the positive degree, but should be decided on the basis of what is best.

I have in mind now a brother who lived near a State institution and, because of convenience, he sent all of his four sons to this school. Today not one of them is a member of the Brethren church. He frankly admitted, in a recent conversation about the matter, that he did not think of the influence under which he was placing his boys when he sent them to the State school. Now he confesses, with tears in his eyes, that if he had it all to do over again he would pay any reasonable sum to have his sons educated in one of the Brethren schools. His experience is the experience of many others.

Let us look, therefore, very frankly at some of the conditions that make State schools inadvisable as places for the education of our children. First of all the State school trains for citizenship. To exalt the State, to understand the workings of Government, to be patriotic, to love one's country and to be ready to fight for it—these are ideals emphasized by the State schools.

The atmosphere of a State institution is secular. The State has no religion. State institutions give no preference to any religion or form of worship, but tolerate all. Anything of a denominational character is not allowed. Consequently the atmosphere of a State institution is the atmosphere of the modern business world. Those nice proprieties of social life, and the high standards of private morality and true Christian living, which we, as a people, prize so highly, are of secondary consideration.

The natural impression that young people get, in these institutions, is that one church is as good as another—that in religion there is no difference. They are apt to be liberalized to the extent of disregarding most, if not all, of those time-honored principles of the Church of the Brethren which we hold so sacred and so dear.

The ways of society become their standards of social life. They may become addicted to the constant use of tobacco. Card parties, dancing and theater-going may become the usual forms of social recreation. These are thought of as in no way inconsistent with good standing in the church and activity in the church work. Where these things are practiced, taught, and generally observed by people of great respectability, we can not wonder if our young people will accept these standards as proper standards for their own conduct.

Again, in these institutions, worldly success has a large place. The man or the woman who makes a career for himself is the one who is regarded as successful. The particular way in which this career is made, is not a matter for nice investigation. Society opens its arms to the brewer or the stock gambler who can afford to live in a large house and maintains the outer forms of respectability. Emphasis is laid on the career. To make a mark in the world, to amass a fortune, to hold positions of influence and power—these are the things to work for—these are the marks of success.

The question underlying all of this, then, is, Are we training our boys and girls for worldly careers? Do we desire that their lives count in a positive way for the upbuilding of Christian ideals and high standards of Christian manhood and womanhood?

It is the mission of our church schools to emphasize the worth of Christian living in its largest and most unselfish forms. Does the education we are giving them help them to do this? The trend of their lives will be largely determined by the spirit of the schools they attend. If this is worldly, emphasizing material prosperity, honor, position, society, wealth, we may expect them to be engrossed with these ideals. If, on the other hand, these young people spend the impressionable years of their lives in an atmosphere of religious thought, where the ideals of service prevail, they will naturally be imbued with the altruistic spirit of love and helpfulness to their fellow-men.

So this is one of the big questions for parents to decide. When your child leaves the influence of your Christian home, to go away to school, be sure that he goes to an institution that fosters these same ideals and will exert upon him those influences that you wish to dominate his life.

Bridgewater, Va.

Sermons Plus Sermons

BY D. C. MOOMAW

THERE is no feature of current conditions in so-called Christian countries more significant, more productive of results, good, bad and indifferent, or more attractive or repulsive to society than the product of that part of the church edifice called the pulpit. And there are no men in any of the multitudinous, conglomerate vocations for the edification, amusement, elevation and perfection of the people, who are more active than those who occupy the pulpit.

There was a time, not a hundred years ago, when they were next to Deity in the popular estimation. They were the diviners, the oracles, the prophets, the heads and leaders of all social, political and religious crowds before whom the masses bowed their heads, doffed their hats and bent the cringing knee.

The atmosphere of a State institution is secular. he State has no religion. State institutions give no reference to any religion or form of worship, but lerate all. Anything of a denominational character not allowed. Consequently the atmosphere of a tate institution is the atmosphere of the modern busi- ess world. Those nice proprieties of social life, and e high standards of private morality and true Chris- an living, which we, as a people, prize so highly, are f secondary consideration.

The natural impression that young people get, in ese institutions, is that one church is as good as an- her—that in religion there is no difference. They re apt to be liberalized to the extent of disregarding ost, if not all, of those time-honored principles of e Church of the Brethren which we hold so sacred nd so dear.

The ways of society become their standards of social fe. They may become addicted to the constant use f tobacco. Card parties, dancing and theater-going ay become the usual forms of social recreation. hese are thought of as in no way inconsistent with ood standing in the church and activity in the church ork. Where these things are practiced, taught, and enerally observed by people of great respectability, re can not wonder if our young people will accept ese standards as proper standards for their own nduct.

Again, in these institutions, worldly success has a rge place. The man or the woman who makes a areer for himself is the one who is regarded as suc- essful. The particular way in which this career is ade, is not a matter for nice investigation. Society pens its arms to the brewer or the stock gambler who an afford to live in a large house and maintains the uter forms of respectability. Emphasis is laid on the areer. To make a mark in the world, to amass a ortune, to hold positions of influence and power—ese are the things to work for—these are the marks f success.

The question underlying all of this, then, is, Are we raining our boys and girls for worldly careers? Do e desire that their lives count in a positive way for he upbuilding of Christian ideals and high standards f Christian manhood and womanhood?

It is the mission of our church schools to emphasize he worth of Christian living in its largest and most nselfish forms. Does the education we are giving hem help them to do this? The trend of their lives vill be largely determined by the spirit of the schools hey attend. If this is worldly, emphasizing material rosperity, honor, position, society, wealth, we may xpect them to be engrossed with these ideals. If, on he other hand, these young people spend the impres- ionable years of their lives in an atmosphere of re- igious thought, where the ideals of service prevail, hey will naturally be imbued with the altruistic spirit f love and helpfulness to their fellow-men.

So this is one of the big questions for parents to lecide. When your child leaves the influence of your Christian home, to go away to school, be sure that he goes to an institution that fosters these same ideals and will exert upon him those influences that you wish o dominate his life.

Bridgewater, Va.

Sermons Plus Sermons

BY D. C. MOOMAW

THERE is no feature of current conditions in so-called Christian countries more significant, more productive of results, good, bad and indifferent, or more attractive or repulsive to society than the product of that part of the church edifice called the pulpit. And there are no men in any of the multitudinous, conglomerate vocations for the edification, amusement, But that day and condition belong to the eternal past. Men are not judged in groups now. Each one, whatsoever his dignity or achievements or abilities, stands alone before the judgment seat. He has reached that stage where and when every man must give an account of himself to God and the people.

After this digest of the character and qualities and possibilities of the holy office and its honored occupant, I want to offer a few pertinent suggestions as to to one feature of the Sunday performance—that of its conclusion.

There are two distinct, yet correlative purposes which will animate the preacher who has the spiritual welfare of his audience foremost in his heart, one of which is the convincing and the other the conversion of his hearers.

However, the masses of the congregation, who attend the meetings, do not need the convincing elements of a sermon. They know a lot of things which go to the making of a changed life, to wit, the existence of God, the mission of his Son in the world, the personality and ministry of the devil, the possession of a soul or spiritual nature, the identity of heaven, of hell-fire and brimstone, the truths of revelation, of Holy Ghost inspiration of the New Testament, a personal judgment, etc. In this country a congregation needs an occasional reminder of the above fundamental facts—say about once a month. We have such frail memories that our "minds need stirring up by way of remembrance."

The conclusion of the sermon is the most vital part of star performance. If it is not pungent, if it is not spiritually hot, if it is pointless, if it is not aimed at the heart, if it is void of intense, fervent, gushing emotion, something akin to the state of mind and heart that the pulling of a beloved friend out of a blazing fire would inspire, the preacher may write, as the sequel of his work: "I have lost a day!"

More can be accomplished, during the last five minutes, than in all the time preceding—more in the form of decisive results, the conversion and confession of the repentant hearers. A sermon that does not close with a specific, definite appeal for immediate response to the divine call is, in a large measure, lost. What would a commercial traveler accomplish for his employer if he would limit his performance to the praise and extolling of his wares and then dismiss his audience, repack his grip, buy his ticket, settle his hotel bill and hurry to the next town, without an urgent appeal to them to buy?

I hope the worthy occupants of our pulpits will weigh the suggestions herein and put them to the test by an invitation, at the close of every sermon, to come to the front, give him the hand of fellowship, make the confession, and begin the new life by baptism.

One or more words to the teachers of the Sunday-school classes: Make an appeal to them at the close of every session, to come out from the world, confess the dear Savior, join the church, and begin the journey to heaven. A school consisting of a hundred or more boys and girls, above eight years of age, and a congregation up in the hundreds, should yield converts almost every Sunday. Let us all work together, pray together, and God will give the increase.

Roanoke, Va.

Emblems of the Holy Spirit

BY W. J. HAMILTON

THE HOLY SPIRIT is invisible to us, hence it seems difficult, for many people, to get a true conception of his nature and work. To help us get a correct idea of his vital relation to our salvation, Bible writers have used emblems of the Holy Spirit to reveal his char- ing of creation we read that "the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters" (Gen. 1:2). And again, a few days later: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:7). As a further proof of the Holy Spirit's part in our creation we quote: "The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life" (Job 33:4).

We should notice, however, that the "breath of life" and the "breath of the Almighty" seems to cause spiritual life, as well as natural life. Ezekiel says: "The hand of the Lord was upon me, and carried me out in the Spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones. . . . Then said he unto me, Prophesy unto the wind ["breath", in margin], prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind [breath], Thus saith the Lord God; Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live" (Ezek. 37:1, 9).

That this vision only represented their spiritual death, is clear, for in the eleventh verse of the same chapter we read: "Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel." And then comes the promise to "put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live; and I shall place you in your own land" (Ezek. 37:14).

Also, after the resurrection of Christ, "The same day at evening, . . . when the doors were shut . . . came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. . . . And when he had said this he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Spirit" (John 20:19, 22).

So the emblem of "breath" is used to explain the very vital relation between the Holy Spirit and our spiritual lives, as children of God, or saved souls.

Emblem of Wind

However, the emblem of breath is not always the best symbol to use in explaining the operation of the Holy Spirit. Sometimes he comes, not with the silent life-giving breath, "but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power" (1 Cor. 2:4).

This power is suggested in the "four winds" of Ezekiel's vision, and in Christ's explanation to Nicodemus about the wind and the Spirit (John 3:8).

But perhaps the best illustration of the Holy Spirit's presence being typified by the wind, was on the Day of Pentecost: "And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. . . . And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit" (Acts 2:2, 4; also see Acts 4:31 and 16:26).

When the "wind" is the emblem of the Spirit today, we may safely look for some of the results of Pentecost, i. e., the salvation of many souls.

Emblem of Rain

The wind and the "rain" often work together, so we notice this emblem next.

The sixth verse of Psa. 72 states that "he shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: or showers that water the earth." And Ezekiel says, speaking of the Lord making a covenant of peace: "I will cause the shower to come down in his season: there shall be showers of blessing" (Ezek. 34:26), causing much growth and fruit-bearing among the men of God.

The same idea of spiritual growth is conveyed in the last words of David: "The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, . . . he shall be . . . as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain" (2 Sam. 23:2, 4).

Emblem of Water

But while rain conveys the idea of outward bles

THE ROUND TABLE

The Bond of Blindness

BY M. M. ESHELMAN

I AM asked: "Why did God let you go blind?" I am a bond-servant of the Lord—a prisoner of Jesus Christ. God gave me good eyes for seventy years. I used them in the obtaining of much good knowledge, in reading proof-sheets, in beholding God's creations. I overused them and am now paying the penalty. This is my bond. I must pay it by grace of the Lord, which is sufficient. These light afflictions are payments of the bond. They work for me a far more and exceeding weight of glory. Here I must suffer the penalty—over there is abounding glory. By this payment my private and public pen ministry is enhanced.

I thank God for the loving helpers who share with me in much sympathy, and provide needed means for paper and postage. Heaven will bless them, as, in my limitations, I can not. Payment of the penalty-bond will be by favors in joy—not in grief.

Glendale, Calif.

A Missionary Thought

BY DAISY M. MOORE

PETER, at the time of Pentecost, announced that salvation was free, and exhorted his hearers to come and receive spiritual food and drink "without money and without price."

It is as free to us today as it was then, but we must have money in order to send the Word to those who have not heard the story of Christ.

In these days communism is not practiced as it was in the day of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the one hundred and twenty apostles and disciples. We are told that many sold their possessions, brought the money and put it in a common fund for the carrying on of the work committed to them.

Our churches—the direct descendants of the church then establisbed—are not conducted on that principle, so it is necessary for each and all to contribute of their worldly goods, that the work may go on spreading. In spite of the mighty efforts of Christians in many lands, since the Day of Pentecost, there are still many nooks and crannies of the earth where human creatures are still in ignorance that there is such a thing as salvation—much less that it is free—for the taking.

Men and women in all ages have given their time and lives to the mission fields. Is it not a glorious work! Think of the compensation of having "many souls for their hire"!

But even they are powerless unless the churches contribute the necessary money to carry on the work.

Too often, in our joy and gratitude that we live in a Christian land, we are unheedful that many are denied our privileges.

It is wrong for us to be indifferent to the call for funds to carry on missionary work. It is certain proof that something is amiss in the house of our life and a house-cleaning is in order.

Give that others may know the grand story of the Bible.

Fairfield, Pa.

"Wells"

BY A. E. HECKER

"And Isaac digged again the wells of water which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father: for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham" (Gen. 26: 18).

EVEN unto this day the Philistines are at work endeavoring to fill the wells of the "father." There are many wells they would delight to pollute with evil. Among these we might consider the well of reverence. Lack of reverence begins in the home where the children are permitted to call the parents the "old man" or the "old woman," and, as a natural result, they follow this with disrespect to their elders, teachers, the church services and all things holy.

Then the well of faith is attacked by those Philistines who would teach and write in doubtful strains about the divinity of Christ and the truths of the eternal Kingdom, and who would discourage any hope that God's children might entertain concerning the heavenly home. Plain neglect in this matter, and willingness to leave it to some one else to do, closes to them an inestimable source of power. This is encouragement to the Philistines, who, having no power themselves, would so destroy the greatest obstacle to overcome in the lives of those whom they are trying to defeat.

"And Isaac's servants digged in the valley and found there a well of springing water." The well of springing water was given to us through the Reformation. The "Bible" was brought out into the open. For years America has enjoyed the privilege of meeting and studying it in public worship. This has been a decided victory over the Philistines. Nevertheless, they have not yet given up in despair. One of the greatest channels through which this "springing water" could flow is the public schools and universities, but here the Philistines have had an initial victory. Books on any subject or cult may be studied, until some one proposes the Bible, the Book of books. That is not to be found in either the curriculum or the library.

May it not be that the modern Philistines have found the way in which eventually to stop up the well of Biblical knowledge? The war is over. Much Christian literature was distributed among soldiers of many nations. In the face of death eternal truths were driven home as never before. Is not this the opportune time to wrest the advantage from the Philistines and give all, in this boasted Christian land, a working knowledge of the waters of life? "And Isaac sowed in that land, and found in the same year a hundredfold; and Jehovah blessed him."

Great Falls, Montana.

How Character Is Made

BY MARGARET DUDTE

CHARACTER is what we are. Reputation is what we are thought to be. These words impressed me greatly when but a child. Character is the vital thing. It alone will stand when all else will have passed away.

Sometimes we need to go through heavy trials in order to obtain strong characters. We should not fear nor dread them, but face them bravely, and know that we will have strength. God does not test us more than we are able to bear.

"True greatness consists in carrying out our inner convictions, independent of the praise or blame of the world." This may be hard to do but we can do it with God's help. God takes care of the lilies of the field, so he will take care of us, and help us to grow, if we have faith in him. We grow by bearing the infirmities of our fellow-men, helping them to find God, who is able to make strength out of their weakness.

This growth is not made all in one day, any more than the athlete's growth is made in one day. Does he not train day after day and abstain from those foods that hinder him? Well, so should we, if we wish to have well-rounded characters. Yes, I know it is easier to be good when the road is smooth, but he who makes progress is the one who stands by his principles through thick and thin. I am made to think of Socrates, who did not sacrifice his principles, but drank the cup of poison unshaken and cheerfully.

Every thought we think adds to the thought current of the world. Every act we do affects our own characters and the characters of our fellow-men.

We are dual beings. One part of us is seeking the physical and the other part the spiritual. Sometimes these parts conflict. If we uphold the spiritual part, we get freedom. We must at all times be masters and not slaves. Evil does not overcome. We overcome evil. We must stand firm and not think of self. We must hold ourselves at the disposition of the universal mind, permitting that to be the master and us the instrument through which it works. Can we not keep in mind that the Universal Mind is sufficient as our help?

God has given us higher powers. Are we using them? Are they showing forth in our lives? We must relate ourselves closer to the Supreme Source of all wisdom. Sometime, somewhere we must come to ourselves. We must stand alone with our God. Nothing else avails. We can make friends, but we will come to a time when they can not help us. Only God can. Every unselfish word and action is bound to be fraught with good results. The highest characters are the result of perfect unity between them and God. That which is lasting is found only in spirit. So when we build our charaeters upon the spiritual foundation, we have something that can never be destroyed. Where are we building?

Manitou, Colo.

The Brook

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

CONSIDER the brook. On and on it bubbles over the whitened stones, giving off silvery music as it goes. There is something subtly soothing to us as we sit upon the rock on its bank, listening to that gentle gurgle, and watching the transparent silver of the water. That brook is not a powerful Niagara, thundering into rocky gorges; it is not a mighty Atlantic, riding great liners on its bosom; it is not even a majestic Hudson, reflecting scenic glories on its surface. It is only a little brook. But it is doing its best. It is bringing rest to the weary traveler; it is giving drink to the birds and animals which refresh themselves in its waters; it is granting moisture to the roots which break the earth along its banks. That is all God expects of it.

All that God expects of us is that we do our best, like the brook. We can not all be great, but we can all be good. We can live at the topnotch of our God-given capacities. All of us can not be brilliant statesmen, like Lincoln or Roosevelt; all of us can not be potent preachers like Beecher or Jowett; all of us can not be immortal poets like Longfellow or Kipling; all of us can not be successful financiers like Rockefeller or Carnegie. But certainly we can all do well the task at hand. We can cheer the lonely, comfort the sad, love the wretched. No life is unimportant in the divine scheme of God. No task is small which is done for the Master. We all have a life, a Christ and a tremendous responsibility. May we not learn a lesson from the brook?

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Humility of Jesus

BY EZRA FLORY

WHEN Jesus said: "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart," he for the first time called attention to one of his characteristics. He did not say: "I am patient, or courageous or self-sacrificing." This trait of Jesus' character may be the most misunderstood of the Christian virtues. Pagans looked upon this grace as something low and cringing and belonging to slaves. Greeks considered it an insult to be called humble.

There are at least three lessons given by Jesus directly upon this trait. One is in Matthew eighteen, where he made a child the object of concretion in teaching adults willingness to learn, freedom from self-sufficiency and vanity, and prayer the very language of humility. Another lesson is given in Matthew 20: 25-28 and embodies the idea of willingness to serve. Again we find the lesson of humility taught in an acted parable (John 13). Only as one is sure of God does he possess the secret of humility—"Knowing that he came from God and was going back to God," he took a towel, etc. The vainest form of humility is that vanity which apes humility.

Paul says: "He emptied himself" (Philpp. 2: 7), referring to his incarnation; "he took the form of a servant" (Philpp. 2: 7)—his earthly life; "he became obedient unto death" (Philpp. 2: 8)—his atonement; "God greatly exalted him" (Philpp. 2: 9)—his ascension and glory. In this connection Paul charges us: "Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

The humility of Jesus is also seen in his not seeking his own glory (John 8: 50); in his silence under false accusations (1 Peter 2: 23): "When he was reviled, reviled not again: when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously."

Isaiah describes his silence under injustice thus: "He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth" (Isa. 53: 7). Here is a real test of humility. Under such outrages it is far more difficult to remain quiet than to speak, and at the same time a greater test of virtue.

Jesus' humility is seen again in his associating with the despised and outcast. He ate with publicans (Matt. 9: 10), he was followed by publicans and sinners (Luke 15: 1, 2). Think what this meant in a time like his.

Jesus avoided notoriety and praise. When the masses would have forced him to be their King he withdrew to pray (John 6: 15). Isaiah described him as one who would "not cry, nor lift up his voice nor cause it to be heard in the streets" (Isa. 42: 2).

His humility is seen in his coming "not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many" (Matt. 20: 28). He performed the humblest and most menial and repulsive service for others (John 13). He chose the lowliest place of service and taught what he himself practiced (Luke 14: 7-11). When humility becomes conscious of itself, it vanishes or, rather, is transformed into vanity, for "every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

Jesus embodies the essentials of this grace of humility and taught it by example rather than by preeept. He did not herald it but inspired it.

Chicago, Ill.

The Personality of Love

BY JOHN E. MOHLER

THE people at large, who know love as a power in all the affairs of life, regard love as a principle. I also know it as a principle, and more than a principle. I know Love as a Person.

The distinction I make between love as a principle, and Love as a Person, is this: When I show one side of my life to others, the principle of love shines forth in what I do or in what I say, or in my manner of action. But when I show the other side of my life, I manifest hate, criticism, jealousy, envy, or selfishness, all of which are the opposite of love. These are all principles of darkness, which may show forth in any person to at least some extent, even where the principle of love is the greatest power.

But the Person of love is different. When this Person is manifested in my life, I may be seen from any angle, and only love is seen. In church, in the family, in the school, in my chores, in my business, it is all the same. Love is all that is seen, and it is like the love that goes into the pulpit with me. It is recognized by the same mark, wherever I go, and in whatever situation I am placed. Love as a Person is like any other person. To illustrate: I know my friend as a person. So familiar is his person that whether seen in the face, or from the side, or glimpsed in any position, I know it is the person of my acquaintance. Even the manner of walk, the gesture of a hand, or a shred of clothing suffices to make me recognize him. So it is with love as a Person.

Now Love as a Person was never seen upon earth until it was seen in Jesus Christ. Others had manifested the principle of love, but there was an angle of their lives from which another principle manifested itself. Therefore they were not the "Person of Love." The statement that Christ was "God manifest in the flesh" means that the "Person of Love" was thus manifest, because "God is love."

Furthermore, not since the advent of Jesus Christ upon earth has the "Person of Love" been manifest in human form. Through faith in him the principle of love has made many lives a benediction, and the glory of God has rested upon many saints, but there was an angle of life from which love was not seen. There was a crack in the armor through which the human shone forth.

Be not discouraged. We are told to "put on Christ," and this is the "Person of Love." It is possible, or we should not have been told it. It is impossible to men, but "with God all things are possible." We can not reach perfection by following Christ. But while following him we may reach the place where we can so "put on Christ" that his "Person of Love" is all that is seen of us. We must have steadfast faith, persistent hope, and humility of mind, in order that the human self may not break through the clothing of the "Person of Love" that is over us. God will not trust us with the "Person of Love," to manifest through us to the world until the human self is under subjection to love in all things. Only God and his Son, Jesus Christ, know when we are ready for this glory.

Therefore must we be patient, and seek to grow daily in the grace of our Lord, that the very power of Christ may go forth in our lives, to a world in great darkness.

222 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Calif.

One Hundred Thousand

BY ELEANOR J. BRUMBAUGH

How long will we count ourselves one hundred thousand? For years we have said: "We have one hundred thousand members in the Church of the Brethren." So many added each year will surely change this number. Will not some one make a new estimate? Suggest another number. With all of this forward movement we must move on. We are moving on. Say farewell to the old number, or use the word over before it. The time is here to change these figures. We ought to be nearing the two hundred thousand mark. Drop the old number, and take a step in advance.

"Forward, forward, forward! Pass it down the line.
Lift the banner higher, Jesus' cross the sign!
Over every nation let it be unfurled.
May it blazon freedom, wide as all the world!"

Huntingdon, Pa.

Wanted: An American Language

BY OLIVE A. SMITH

THE war is over. The treaty of peace is signed, even though the manner of its signature has not been, on the part of all concerned, just what was desired. Now we may look longingly toward the fulfillment of a dream which was put into words, months ago, by the editor of the Ohio State Journal. In speaking of words which have been used, as never before, during the past few years, he said: "These words are war-expletives, and so, when peace returns, the avoidance of them will come with it, for the purity of language is one of the conditions of peace. He who swears, even mildly, is at war with humanity. Any first-class psychology will tell you this."

Even our great military leader himself, General Pershing, has set the standard for soldiers of war and peace alike. He admitted that he was once addicted to the habit, but he quit it "because it is useless and it shows a lack of self-control. The perfect soldier must have perfect control of himself."

We have always claimed to speak and write the English language. But if, for any reason, that language is inadequate to our present needs, let us begin to compile our own vocabulary, with some reference to educational standards and moral decency. Laying aside the matter of profanity, which has been growing so common during the past few years, it is a lamentable fact that a large per cent of our conversation is carried on with small regard for the principles of accuracy or the rules of grammar. We use slang, provincialisms, exaggerations and ungrammatical expressions to a great extent, and we seem utterly oblivious of the fact that a majority of the words, used in our conversation, could not be found in any standard dictionary, or, at least, could not be found in connection with the meanings we ascribe to them.

Any conscientious grade teacher will probably testify that the most annoying feature of her work is the struggle to secure any satisfactory results in the use of language among her pupils. Even those children who come from good homes, adopt the vernacular of the street. And a group of teachers themselves, removed from the restraints of the class-room and the stimulating effect of being examples for the young, will lapse into habits of speech which would surprise them, could their conversation be placed on paper for their own perusal.

Oh, we are getting far, far away from cleanliness and purity of language and, whether we like to admit it or not, we must confess that it is "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." It is useless to argue that we are reverent, careful and accurate in our hearts and minds, when our speech is irreverent, careless and inaccurate. Everywhere is the plea for "Americanism." Then, why not an American language?

Emporia, Kans.

THE QUIET HOUR

Suggestions for the Weekly Devotional Meeting Or for Prayerful, Private Meditation.

Life's Supreme Choice

Joshua 24: 15

For Week Beginning August 31, 1919

1. The Influence of a Wise Choice upon Character.—Every Christian needs the strength which open confession brings. It braces one to let men know that he has identified himself with a noble cause. The consciousness that men have their eyes upon us, is one of the ways God has of holding his servants true to their appointed task. Let a man commit himself in public to an important undertaking, and the very fact of general attention being riveted upon him will keep him from turning back. Public confession is sure to bring abundant strength.

2. It Is Glorious to Be on the Lord's Side.—Moses was on it, and so were all the Bible characters, as they cast their lot on the side of truth and righteousness. The loftiest spirits of history have taken their stand on the side of the best and the highest. Have we? All would be "on the Lord's side" did they but know how right and good that side is. Those who are "on the Lord's side" are on the side of all that is pure and spiritual and kind and beneficent. "The Lord's side" is a phrase which, like many Old Testament expressions, has acquired a deepened significance in these days, when the Christian's faith is sorely tried. "The Lord's side" now means Christ's side—the side of "righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost."

3. Those on the Lord's Side Are Pardoned.—Many of them know it, and all may know it. The Christian rests secure in the forgiveness of his sins, because he has abundant assurance that Divine Pardon has blotted out the record of all his transgressions. He has inward peace and the far-shining hope which are the seal and the guarantee of his acceptance.

4. When We Are "on the Lord's Side," Our Whole Nature Is Renewed.—Verily, we are "born again." All the old things have become new. We love the good and hate the evil. We watch and we pray that we please God. Cheerful holiness becomes the passion of our lives. Not that we are without temptations. By no means. As long as we are in this mortal flesh, we are sure to have "manifold temptations." And the more our zeal for Christ increases, the more insidious and disconcerting are our temptations. But even these dark experiences have their strong compensations. They are sure signs that we are "on the Lord's side." Satan would not lure us, were he not persuaded that it is to that side we belong. And we must never forget that in all our varied temptations the Lord always provides a way of escape.

5. Those Who Are "on the Lord's Side" Must So Declare Themselves.—Those who "halt between two opinions" can not be counted among the soldiers of the Lord. In practically all matters of importance we are required to take the side that tells for truth and righteousness. Moses demanded (Ex. 32: 26) that those who were "on the Lord's side" should avow it in that critical time. And today a Greater than Moses appeals to us for instant decision. Sooner or later we must all respond to the Divine Challenge in a manner that can not be questioned. "Ye can not serve two masters" is language that admits of no compromise. Our eternal destiny depends upon the stand we take at the critical time when the supreme choice must be made.

6. Suggestive References.—"I have set before you life and death" (Deut. 30: 19, 20). When the Ninevites made their choice (Jonah 3: 10). Christ's choice: "Father, . . . as thou wilt" (Matt. 26: 39). Our decision to "abide in Christ" (John 15: 6, 7). We must decide to remain "steadfast unto the end" (Heb. 3: 14). Elijah's appeal (1 Kings 18: 21). Isaiah's decision (Isa. 50: 7). Paul's heart-felt conviction (Rom. 8: 38, 39). The choice is inevitable (Rom. 11: 22). We must be "doers," rather than "hearers," only (James 1: 4, 12, 25).

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 24

Sunday-school Lesson, Social Responsibility.—Luke 10: 25-37; Gal. 6: 2, 9, 10; James 2: 14-16.

Christian Workers' Meeting, Dorcas, the Almsdoer.—Acts 9: 36-43.

MEETINGS IN PROGRESS

Bro. C. B. Smith, of Morrill, Kans., in the Mt. Vernon church, Va.

Bro. C. D. Hylton, of Troutville, Va., in the Johnsville church, same State.

Bro. W. M. Kahle, of Troutville, Va., at the New Bethel house, Troutville congregation, same State.

Bro. Phineas L. Fike, of Peace Valley, Mo., at a mission point, six miles from his home church.

GAINS FOR THE KINGDOM

One was recently baptized in the Carthage church, Mo.

Two were baptized recently in the Lima church, Ohio.

One was recently baptized in the Bethel church, N. Dak.

Three have been baptized in the Nocona church, Texas, since the last report.

One was baptized in the Patterson church, Calif.,—Bro. M. H. Miller, of Reedley, same State, evangelist.

Ten confessed Christ in the Iowa River church, Iowa,—Bro. O. H. Austin, of McPherson, Kans., evangelist.

Eight were baptized and one reclaimed in the Kremlin church, Mont.,—Bro. D. M. Shorb, of Surrey, N. Dak., evangelist.

Eight were baptized and one reclaimed in the Sams Creek church, Md.,—Bro. Geo. Early, of New Hope, Va., evangelist.

Three were baptized and one reclaimed in the Pleasant Valley church, N. Dak., Brother and Sister O. F. Shaw, evangelists.

Six were baptized at the Rocky Ridge House, Monocacy congregation, Md.,—Bro. H. M. Stover, of Wayesboro, Pa., evangelist.

Nine were baptized and two reclaimed in the Schoolfield church, Va.,—Bro. H. J. Woodie, of Winston-Salem, N. C., evangelist.

One was baptized at the Blainsport house, Springville congregation, Pa.,—Bro. J. H. Longenecker, of Palmyra, same State, evangelist.

One more, making thirty in all, has been baptized at the Cannon Branch house of the Manassas church, Va.,—Brother and Sister Ralph G. Rarick, evangelists.

CONTEMPLATED MEETINGS

Bro. Isaac Frantz, of Covington, Ohio, to begin Aug. 17 at Liberty, Ill.

Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe, of Chicago, to begin about Nov. 1 in the Lindsay church, Calif.

Bro. B. F. Waltz, of Elk Lick, Pa., to begin Sept. 8 at the Cherry Grove church, Md.

Bro. Michael Flory, of Girard, Ill., to begin Sept. 20 in the Camp Creek church, same State.

Bro. W. C. Detrick, of Bryan, Ohio, to begin Oct. 20 in the Owl Creek church, same State.

Bro. Geo. W. Flory, of Covington, Ohio, to begin August 27 in the Pine Creek church, Ill.

Bro. E. D. Kendig, of Stuarts Draft, Va., to begin Aug. 23 at Mt. Olivet, Augusta County, Va.

Bro. D. G. Brubaker, of Nocona, Texas, to begin Aug. 28 at Griggs, Okla.; Oct. 5 at Carthage, Mo.

Bro. David Metzler, of Nappanee, Ind., to begin about Sept. 20 in the New Paris church, same State.

Bro. J. Clyde Forney, of McPherson, Kans., to begin Oct. 14 in the Scott Valley church, same State.

Bro. J. W. Harshbarger, of Jeffersonville, Ill., to begin Sept. 20 in the Martin Creek church, same State.

Bro. D. M. Glick, of Trevilian, Va., to begin Aug. 30 in the Hollywood church, near Fredericksburg, same State.

Bro. Roy Mishler, of Kewanna, Ind., to begin about the middle of September in the Deer Creek church, same State.

PERSONAL MENTION

Bro. J. H. B. Williams spent last Sunday with the members at Waterloo, Iowa. His plans included a brief visit to other points in that State, in the interests of the mission work.

Bro. Chas. M. Yearout is now located at Chowchilla, Calif., and those desiring to correspond with him will please address him as indicated. He is in position to hold a number of series of meetings, if requested by any of our congregations. Those who may desire his assistance in evangelistic services will please notify him as soon as possible. If so informed, he is also prepared to deliver a series of doctrinal discourses.

Bro. A. B. Miller changes his address from 135 East North Street, Hagerstown, Md., to Bridgewater, Va., care of College, having entered on his new pastorate.

Bro. D. L. Miller and wife, following Bro. Miller's meetings at Goshen and Nappanee, Ind., are spending a few weeks in rest at the old home town, Mount Morris, Ill.

Bro. L. L. Alger, who has been engaged in pastoral work in Sterling, Colo., since Jan. 1, 1916, has resigned from that work. He begins his pastorate at Larned, Kans., Sept. 1. His correspondents will please address him accordingly.

Last Saturday the Mission Rooms received a cablegram announcing the death of Raymond Arnold, the little son of our India missionaries, Brother and Sister S. Ira Arnold. The sorrowing parents will have the deep sympathy of the whole "Messenger" family.

Bro. A. B. Horst, who has been in pastoral charge of the Goshen church, Ohio, has resigned from that work, which leaves the congregation without a pastor. Applicants for the position are invited to address Bro. J. F. Shrider, R. D. 2, S. Zanesville, Ohio.

Bro. F. F. Holsopple, who resigned the presidency of Blue Ridge College some time ago, has accepted and entered upon the pastorate of the Hagerstown church, Md. His address is accordingly changed from New Windsor, Md., to 120 East Washington Street, Hagerstown.

Prof. John W. Wayland, of the State Normal School, Harrisonburg, Va., has put into a little book, called "Christ as a Teacher," the substance of lectures given from time to time before normal schools and Sunday-schools. It discusses the method, aim and matter of Jesus' teaching, and other related topics, in very brief but very inspiring chapters. The author's effective way of putting things is well illustrated in his reference to the parables of Jesus as "windows admitting light into the temple of truth," but at the same time "windows with curtains." It sells for seventy-five cents. The Publishing House will be pleased to handle your orders.

ELSEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE

Middle Iowa members will please read Bro. W. H. Royer's announcement among the Notes.

The Auditing Committee for Middle Iowa desires to attend to its allotted task at once. Please turn to the request of Bro. H. B. Sipling among the Notes.

Members of Eastern Virginia who purpose attending the Conference of that District Aug. 28, at Nokesville, will please note Mrs. D. B. Showalter's request among the Notes.

Churches of Middle Indiana will please note the announcement of Ira E. Long, Writing Clerk of the last District Conference, and furnish the desired items of information at once.

As noted elsewhere, the building committee for the erection of the new church at Bradford, Ohio, finds it impossible to commence work on the structure this fall, but hopes to begin early next spring. Churches of Southern Ohio will please note this change in plans.

All of our readers, who have been attending the Conferences at Winona Lake, Ind., are fully impressed with the fact that a larger auditorium is greatly needed. At the last Conference a movement was set on foot to provide a more commodious place of assembly. On page 542, Bro. Wm. E. Overholser, Secretary of the sub-committee, representing the Church of the Brethren on the building committee, gives full particulars regarding ways and methods of raising funds for the much needed structure. His communication should be read by every member residing in the Districts, composing the Middle-Western Zone.

MISCELLANEOUS

We are informed that the Committee of Arrangements for the 1920 Conference met in Kansas City, Mo., August 8, and organized by electing J. Q. Goughnour, of Ankeny, Iowa, Chairman; M. J. Mishler, 314 E. Ninth Street, Newton, Kans., Secretary; and J. S. Gabel, Lincoln, Nebr., Treasurer. Steps have been taken, looking toward a location for the Conference.

The United Conventions of Southern California and Arizona will be held at Huntington Beach, Calif., August 22 to 31. The announcement has just reached us—too late, we regret, for insertion of the complete program. The principal features are as follows: Opening address, Friday evening, August 22; Ministerial Session, Saturday forenoon and evening, August 23; Sisters' Aid Session, Monday forenoon and afternoon, August 25; Educational Session, Tuesday forenoon and evening, August 26; Christian Workers' Session, Wednesday forenoon and evening, August 27; Sunday-school Session Thursday forenoon and evening, August 28, and Friday forenoon, August 29; Mothers' and Daughters' Session, Saturday forenoon, August 30; Temperance Address, Saturday evening, August 30; Sermons and Addresses, both Sundays, August 24 and 31; Bible Hour, 9 A. M. each week-day The District Business Meeting will be held at La Verne, Calif., Saturday, Sept. 6, 8 A. M. Elders will meet at the church on Friday, Sept. 5, at 1 P. M.

The next meeting of the General Mission Board is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 3. This is two weeks later than the usual time of the summer meeting—so arranged in order to make possible a joint meeting with the General Sunday School and General Educational Boards, which will have their meetings also that same week. The joint meeting is set for Sept. 4.

The Brethren's Home of the Southern District of Ohio, located at Greenville, has been successfully managed by the present superintendent and matron for more than eight years. The failing health of the latter, compels the trustees to relieve the present superintendent and wife. Any information that may lead to the securing of a suitable brother and sister for the place, will be highly appreciated by the trustees.

Letters from our India correspondents tell of the great satisfaction brought to the workers on the field by the news from the Winona Lake Conference. Reports by mail had not yet had time to reach them when these letters were written. They are probably enjoying these now. But they had learned by cable that the Conference offering went "over the top" and that twenty missionaries were to come to their relief. Is it any wonder there was "rejoicing in India over this news"?

Juniata College and Hebron Seminary have favored the "Messenger" rooms with copies of their latest catalogs. Our file for the current school-year is now almost complete. One has only to look through these late issues to see what improvements in strengthened faculties and equipment our educational institutions have made in recent years. If there was ever any excuse for our young people not patronizing our own colleges, on the ground of inadequate facilities, no such excuse exists now.

A cable message, recently received by the American Committee for Relief in the Near East, reports the following: "Many Orphanages and Refuge Homes have to refuse worthy and desperately needy applicants because of inadequate food supplies. Will not 300,000 benevolent Americans pledge to support orphans at a cost of $180 each, yearly, until they become self-supporting? America is the only hope of these children of pathetic tragedy, and America must not fail in this dark crisis. An immediate response is imperative, as destructive forces are alert and deadly."

Special Message for the Ministers and Sunday-school Workers of Northwestern Ohio.—As a program committee we are sending this special appeal to you, to plan to attend the Ministerial and Sunday-school Meeting, to be held at Deshler the last of August. Don't forget the dates: Aug. 26-28. Important topics will be discussed, upon which we should be united, as ministers, in our work for the Master. Can we not, as ministers, make this a record year in attendance? Sickness may prevent my going, but I pray that every minister, well and strong enough to go, will do so.—S. P. Berkebile, Chairman of Committee, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

The action of the last Conference, in appointing a General Christian Workers' Board, gave us the opportunity last week for very pleasant interviews with three new visitors to the Publishing House, Sister Eva Lichty Whisler, of Sterling, Ill., Bro. I. V. Funderburgh, of La Verne, Calif., and Bro. A. B. Miller, recently of Hagerstown, Md., but now of Bridgewater, Va. These are the members of the new Board. They held their first meeting on Thursday, August 14. An organization was effected and plans laid for doing things. The Board evidently has the impression that it was not created solely for ornamental purposes. It intends to make itself useful. Bro. Funderburgh is Chairman, Sister Whisler, Vice-Chairman, and Bro. Miller, Secretary-Treasurer. The Secretary will tell you more about the meeting soon—perhaps next week.

Notice to the Sunday-schools of the Middle District of Iowa.—The Sunday-school Board of the Middle District of Iowa has been very fortunate in securing the valuable services of Bro. Orlo Messamer, of Bethany Bible School, who is devoting his entire time to Bible study problems, topics of a religious nature, and the ministry of the Gospel, to visit each school in the District as follows: Muscatine, Sept. 7; Brooklyn, Sept. 8; Prairie City, Sept. 9; Ankeny, Sept. 10; Des Moines Valley, Sept. 11; Des Moines, Sept. 12; Dallas Center, Sept. 14; Panther, Sept. 15; Panora, Sept. 16; Yale, Sept. 17; Bagley, Sept. 18; Beaver, Sept. 19; Indian Creek, Sept. 21, morning meeting; Maxwell, Sept. 21, evening meeting; Fernald, Sept. 22; Marshalltown, Sept. 23; Garrison, Sept. 24; Robbins, Sept. 25; Cedar Rapids, Sept. 26; Clarence, Sept. 28. We hope for a hearty coöperation of all the schools with Bro. Messamer, that these meetings may be a spiritual uplift in every community.—Wm. Cordis, Chairman of Sunday-school Board, Panora, Iowa.

AROUND THE WORLD

An Unlooked for Result of Prohibition

Most travelers in the "wet" States of the Union, previous to the ruling out of liquor, well remember the everpresent har that was a conspicuous feature of practieally all hotels. Now we are told by the hotel men that they will have to raise their rates or lose in the operation of their places of entertainment. They argue that the main source of revenue—the bar—has been cut off, which leaves them without the needed resources. But as there are compensations with every loss, so in this case there is a decided gain also. The absence of all liquor from hotels will tend towards making them far cleaner and more respectable places. Somehow liquor has always been a close associate of the criminal element, and its influence has notoriously been towards the downward trend.

Railway Shopmen Return to Work

There is at least one rift in the clouded sky of industrial unrest—delegates representing the 500,000 members of the striking railway shopmen voted to return to work on the morning of Aug. 16. According to newspaper reports, the more conservative of the workers gained control of the situation, which fact is a decidedly hopeful sign of the dawn of a better day. In some of the terminals there was grave danger that the irrational element, with a strong leaning towards "I. W. W." methods, would succeed in their plans of obstruction, but saner counsels fortunately prevailed. As matters now stand, the transportation systems of the United States will operate unhindered, and there will be no delay in the distribution of food supplies and other essentials to all parts of the country. That, in itself, is an item of vast importance.

Negroes to Go South Again

With special reference to the recent race riots in Chicago, remedial action has already been taken by the Commissioners of Agriculture of Louisiana and Mississippi. Plans have been worked out to induce the colored people of Chicago to return to those States, where comprehensive efforts are being made to locate them on farms. Just how successful the committees will be, which are to visit Chicago for that purpose, remains to be seen. Negroes who have lived in the western metropolis for years, and have become a part of its industrial system, will hardly turn their steps southward, and their present employers will undoubtedly use every means to retain their services. Such of the colored people as came to Chicago during the days of war activity, may possibly be prevailed upon to return to the South, though even that is not very likely. Under normal conditions the colored man is as safe in Chicago as in the South.

What the War Cost France

Will the war cost France more per capita than it will cost defeated Germany? One of the Paris journals believes that it will, and offers these figures in evidence: Of the $25,000,000,000 demanded by the Allies from Germany, the share of France will amount to only about $13,000,000,000. Consequently France will have to produce from her own resources about $50,000,000,000 in liquidation of its war debt. That makes the total cost, $63,000,000,000. The war has reduced France to a population of but 35,000,000. Germany has not been invaded and her industries can quickly be put in running order. Her Minister of Foreign Affairs has said officially that the German nation expended $34,000,000,000 in the war. Adding the indemnity that she will have to pay—$25,000,000,000—the total amounts to $59,000,000,000. The population of Germany is approximately 68,000,000. These figures show that even the victor is ruined by war.

What Can We Do About It?

Are we, the favored people of America, going to wait for European affairs to "straighten out in the long run"? Will the hungry men and women over there wait till we are ready? We must help now, and the best way for our nation to help is by credit extension. Europe needs food, raw material for her factories, ships—in fact, just about everything America can send her. She must have these things before her factories can get busy—before she can make money to pay back the $10,000,000,000 she owes us. This idea of giving credit to Europe is a practical business proposition—one which works both ways—for Europe has been our best customer, and if we want our own industries and mines to keep on working, we must help the Old World back to a money-making job. Provisions to this end are being made by the "Owen Bill," now before Congress, which is to supply Europe with credit for raw materials. The money for this is to be raised by the sale of bonds in the United States. In this each one can do his part. By buying the bonds we can help Europe, and at the same time make a safe investment.

Palestine Not to Be for Jews Only

Heretofore the Jewish movement, known as Zionism, has stood for the restoration of Palestine as a distinctly Jewish State, more or less independent. Now other claimants are coming to the fore and are urging that Palestine should not be a sacred country for the Jews only. It should be a hallowed realm to Christians as well. To the earnest Bible student the land of Christ's journeyings will always be a peculiarly sacred place, and it would seem but fair that at this time the best of facilities should be afforded, by which every believer who so desires may become familiar with the land by exploration and travel in general. As the matter appears to us, the Land of Promise should be, like the Gospel Message—for all the world.

The New British Ambassador

In the interest of maintaining cordial relations between Great Britain and the United States, the appointment of a tactful representative is rightfully regarded as a matter of importance. The selection of Viscount Grey—better known by his earlier title of Sir Edward Grey—is gratifying indeed to those who have to deal with diplomatic affairs. Lord Grey is one of the most influential statesmen in Great Britain. His ability, his lofty principles and his independence of thought have earned for him universal respect and admiration. It is creditable to the present Government of Great Britain that it delegates Viscount Grey to represent it in the American national capital, to take charge of the important negotiations, preliminary to a final readjustment of financial relations, and revision of Anglo-American treaties.

Another Vagary of Fashion

According to a reliable report from Paris, fashionable women of that city have recently decided upon various eccentricities of apparel—the most conspicuous being to dispense with the wearing of stockings. It had been thought that the practice in this country, of being attired in invisible or transparent stockings, had about reached the limit, but the innovation of the Paris ultra-fashionable set is undoubtedly going beyond the line of all conventionality, usually regarded as proper. Just what will be the next move, in changing women's apparel to suit the ideas of the Paris dictators of fashion, is hard to predict. While some of the women of our land are eagerly awaiting the latest news from Paris, might it not be well to suggest that a closer adherence to modesty would be a valuable help in avoiding questionable extremes of fashion?

Can It Be Done?

It is a little rash, perhaps, in these days of wonderful achievements, to maintain that certain proposed scientific undertakings can not be accomplished, and yet we confess to a feeling of doubt when told about the contemplated venture of a Massachusetts college professor. He is planning to go up 10,000 feet in an airplane to establish some sort of communication with the inhabitants of Mars. He is superintending the construction of his airship, and by means of a special apparatus he hopes to signal and talk to the people of the sister world. Some astronomers claim to have discovered mountains and rivers on that planet, and even canals are said to have been dug by the inhabitants. Of course, some of the skeptically-inclined condemn the professor's attempt as that of a visionary, but we all remember that the Wright brothers' early aëronautical attempts were similarly ridiculed. One thing is sure, the limit has not yet been reached in astronomical science, though marvelous progress has been made in past decades.

He Realized His Responsibility

In noting the passing of Andrew Carnegie at his home in Lenox, Mass., Aug. 11, a brief reference to his remarkable career naturally suggests itself. Born in Scotland in 1835, he came to the United States at the age of ten years, and a little later began work in a cotton factory at but $1.20 per week. Subsequently he was employed as telegraph operator, railway employé, etc., but all these activities were merely introductory to his life-work in the great steel mills at Homestead, Pa., the skillful management of which proved him to be a veritable "captain of industry." And yet his business acumen was not manifested so much by shouldering all responsibility single-handed, as by surrounding himself—as he frankly admitted—by "men better than himself," thus being able to achieve results otherwise unattainable. While amply rewarded financially for the initiative, energy and industry applied to his business, Mr. Carnegie was the first of America's multi-millionaires to realize that wealth entails responsibilities and duties—that it is a "trust," to be administered in the interest of the whole community, rather than of the family, individual or group that has legal title thereto. Acting on that conviction, he began, some years ago, to appropriate his millions to purposes conducive to general human welfare. After apportioning $350,000,000 wisely and well—as he considered it—waning mental powers, about two years ago, unfortunately prevented further distribution of his remaining wealth. Otherwise he would have carried out his plans of administering his estate while yet alive. It is worthy of note that the many Carnegie library buildings, scattered here and there, throughout the United States, are significant memorials of a man who considered that the diffusion of knowledge, by means of good books, is the best safeguard of human welfare and national security.

Helping the World to Health

Most of us are quite familiar with the Red Cross as an agency of relief in time of war, flood, famine, or pestilence, but according to latest plans it is to widen its activities to a still broader field. "The world now needs more than remedial agencies. It needs highly-concentrated and strongly-supported preventive activities that can control, minimize or eradicate, as nearly as is humanly possible, those ills of humanity we have been helping to relieve." These are the words of Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the "League of Red Cross Societies of the World." As outlined, the newly-contemplated activities assume three phases: (1) Promotion of Red Cross organizations in every country of the world. (2) Collection and distribution of scientific information for the prevention, the control, and the cure of disease, and the betterment of health generally. (3) The coördination of international relief efforts in times of disaster.

Their Last Hope Gone

Whatever hopes may have been entertained by the advocates of the liquor traffic, as to possible loopholes in the enforcement of the bone-dry prohibition enactment, there is no possibility of evading its issues. By a vote of 287 to 100 the House of Representatives passed the drastic dry enforcement bill, which will be adopted substantially by the Senate. The latest frantic proposition by the liquor men, to have the courts decide that 2.75 per cent beer is permissible under the new law, vanished when the House declared that all drinks containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol are ruled out by the terms of National Prohibition. Without question, the people in general are done with the saloon, and have killed it for good reasons. Science and big business were instruments in the destruction of the liquor traffic, but it was due to the moral influence of the church that public sentiment was so thoroughly aroused against the vile traffic.

The Disappearing Indian

At a recent meeting of the Montana Health Society Dr. Russell urged strongly that something be done about the Indians, not only for their protection but also for that of the whites. Dr. Russell's experience has been mainly with the "Crow" tribe of Indians, but his observations apply to other tribes also. There were 8,000 "Crows" when the white man first came in touch with them. In 1862 there were 4,600. Now there are only 1,689. Other Indians are dying out in about the same ratio. Their birth rate is not very high, but their death rate is out of all bounds,—about thirty-seven per 1,000, as compared with only about twelve per 1,000 for whites. Twenty-five per cent of the deaths are due to consumption. One-third of the children die before they are three years of age. It is said that the Indians, as Government charges, are not instructed along lines of personal hygiene, nor are they taught disease prevention. Are they to perish wholly, because of this lack of instruction?

Those Who Fell on Europe's Battle-Fields

Less than one-half of one per cent of the American soldiers who died on the battle-fields of France were buried unidentified, according to Col. Joseph S. Herron, of Cincinnati, commander of the 15,000 troops who interred the fallen Americans, and who returned to New York July 28. Under the most adequate supervision, the dead were removed from the temporary graves dug for them under fire, or at night on the field where they fell, and were laid to rest in large concentration cemeteries. Each of these places of sepulture is surrounded by a painted fence, and the grass on the graves is kept green, and cared for by a detachment of soldiers left on duty as caretakers. The largest graveyard is at Romagne, where lie 22,000 Americans who died in the Argonne and Meuse sectors. The next largest is at Thiaucourt, where 4,300 soldiers, who fought at St. Mihiel and Toul, are buried. The advisability of bringing back the American dead from France is seriously questioned by Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, member of the French Senate, who recently returned to France after a brief visit to this country. His counsel is this: "Do not act hurriedly. The French people have high respect for American soldiers now resting beneath its soil. They look upon these heroes as their own sons, and their graves will be so honored." Latest decrees by the French Government indicate that a general removal of bodies, for the purpose of final interment in the United States, is regarded as highly detrimental from a sanitary standpoint. By reason of possible infection, the danger to the people would be too imminent.

HOME AND FAMILY

"God"

An Ode by Gabriel Romanovitch Derzhavin

O Thou Eternal One! whose presence bright
All space doth occupy, all motion guide;
Unchanged through time's all-devastating flight;
Thou only God! There is no God beside!
Being above all beings! Three in One!
Whom none can comprehend and none explore;
Who fill'st existence with thyself alone;
Embracing all—supporting—ruling o'er—
Being whom we call God—and know no more!

In its sublime research, philosophy
May measure out the ocean-deep—may count
The sands of the sun's rays—but, God! for thee
There is no weight, no measure: none can mount
Up to thy mysteries; Reason's brightest spark,
Though kindled by thy light, in vain would try
To trace thy counsels, infinite and dark:
And thought is lost ere thought can soar so high,
Even like past moments in eternity.

Thou from primeval nothingness didst call
First chaos, then existence; Lord! on thee
Eternity had its foundation; all
Spring from thee: of light, joy, harmony,
Sole origin: all life, all beauty thine.
Thy word created all, and doth create;
Thy splendor fills all space with rays divine.
Thou art, and wert, and shall be! Glorious! Great!
Light-giving, life sustaining Potentate!

Thy chains the unmeasured universe surround
Upheld by thee, by thee inspired with breath!
Thou the beginning with the end hast bound
All beautifully mingled life and death!
As sparks mount upwards from the fiery blaze,
So suns are born, so worlds spring forth from thee;
And as the spangles in the sunny rays
Shine round the silver snow, the pageantry
Of heaven's bright army glitters in thy praise.

A million torches lighted by thy hand
Wander unwearied through the blue abyss:
They own thy power, accomplish thy command;
All gay with life, all eloquent with bliss.
What shall we call them? Piles of crystal light—
A glorious company of golden streams—
Lamps of celestial ether burning bright—
Suns lighting systems with their joyous beams?
But thou to these art as the moon to night.

Yes, as a drop of water in the sea,
All this magnificence in thee is lost:—
What are ten thousand worlds compared with thee?
And what am I then? Heaven's unnumbered host,
Though multiplied by myriads, and array'd
In all the glory of sublimest thought,
Is but an atom in the balance weighed Against thy greatness; is a cypher brought Against infinity! What am I then? Nought!

Nought! But the effluence of thy light divine,
Pervading worlds, had reached my bosom too;
Yes, in my spirit doth thy spirit shine
As shines the sunbeam in a drop of dew.
Nought! But I live, and on hope's pinions fly
Eager towards thy presence; for in thee
I live, and breathe, and dwell, aspiring high,
Even to the throne of thy divinity.
I am, O God! and surely thou must be!

Thou art! directing, guiding all, thou art!
Direct my understanding then to thee;
Control my spirit, guide my wandering heart:
Though but an atom midst immensity,
Still I am something, fashioned by thy hand!
I hold a middle rank 'twixt heaven and earth,
On the last verge of mortal being stand,
Close to the realms where angels have their birth,
Just on the boundaries of the spirit-land!

The chain of being is complete in me;
In me is matter's last gradation lost,
And the next step is spirit—Deity!
I can command the lightning, and am dust!
A monarch, and a slave; a worm, a god!
Whence came I here, and how? so marvelously
Constructed and conceived? unknown! this clod
Lives surely through some higher energy;
For from itself alone it could not be!

Creator, yes! Thy wisdom and thy word
Created me! Thou Source of life and good!
Thou Spirit of my spirit, and my Lord!
Thy light, thy love, in their bright plenitude
Fill'd me with an immortal soul, to spring
O'er the abyss of death, and bade it wear
The garments of eternal day, and wing
Its heavenly flight beyond this little sphere,
Even to its source—to thee—its Author there.

O thoughts ineffable! O vision blest!
Though worthless our conceptions all of thee,
Yet shall thy shadowed image fill our breast,
And waft its homage to thy Deity.
God! thus alone my lowly thoughts can soar;
Thus seek thy presence—being wise and good!
Midst thy vast works admire, obey, adore:
And when the tongue is eloquent no more,
The soul shall speak in tears of gratitude.

Translated by John Bowling (in 1821). London, England.

Better Religious Instruction in the Home

BY ALBERT C. WIEAND

It is frequently said that there is less religious instruction of children in the home today than there used to be. Whether or not the charge is true, is not the important question. One thing is obvious—there is far too little of it done.

The important question is: What is the reason for the delinquency, and how shall it be remedied? I do not believe that people are less religious, on the average, than formerly. Modern life, of course, is more strenuous, and this might account for some of it. There are more other things to occupy our time, more reading, more social life; and this might account for it in part. On the other hand there is a feeling that the religious education of the children is taken care of by the Sunday-school. Doubtless this also is a contributory factor.

But probably the chief reason is the fact that average parents do not know just how they shall proceed to give religious instruction, considering that it is already being given in the Sunday-school. The remedy will be to supply the needed help and guidance. It is the business of the church, through the Sunday-school, more fully to organize the home religious instruction, to direct it, to inspire it, to provide for it, and to see that it is accomplished.

Certainly the motive for this is adequate. Nothing else can ever take the place of religious instruction in the home. However well and thoroughly the work is done in the church and the Sunday-school, it can not substitute for what the home should do, for it is at home that life must be lived, and there the problems arise in every-day experiences. There, if anywhere, they must be met. Here religion must be lived. And therefore, unless the home manages to carry over the instruction received in the Sunday-school, no real and vital results in character and conduct will be achieved.

Perhaps no better statement of the ideal has yet been given than the one recorded in Deut. 6: 4-9. This injunction is really a marvelous statement. It is a marvelously complete and thoroughgoing statement. It goes right to the heart of the matter, and it covers almost every essential phase of the subject: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."

See how the passage begins with a basic principle, "There is only one God," and therefore we must love him supremely and absolutely. Certainly, without this supreme and absolute love of God, we shall not care to teach about him to any one else. But where this love of him is in such measure, certainly parents will take pains to make him known to their children.

Then notice the second point: "The words of God must be upon our hearts," for unless there is such a love for the Word of God pressing upon our hearts, and urging us on from day to day, we will not amount to very much in teaching them to our children.

Now then, with such a love for God and for his Word in our hearts, pervading our whole being, and dominating all our affections, we are to be diligent in teaching them to our children. Diligence is about the only thing that can be added.

But now, how shall the opportunity be found in the busy walk of life? Well, first of all, when we sit with our children in the house, in our association together and the every-day conversation, we shall speak of these things of God.

Then, too, when we walk out by the way and meet the different things that are new, and in the day's events, the thought of God should be present and called up. And at night, when we lie down, and in the morning when we get up the first thing of which we ought to be reminded, and of which we should remind our children, should be the Lord and his work.

In other words, the teaching of religion is to be bound up with everything that we do and say, and think. And this is precisely the unique feature of home religious instruction, and it can never be substituted for by anything else.

This it is that makes religion vital, for, however good, scientific, thoroughgoing, and vital the religious instruction in church and Sunday-school may be, it can never be quite as vital and practical as the proper religious instruction in the home. The home is the place where the habits of life are formed, where conduct and character are in operation.

What, then, is the meaning of the last two expressions in the passage from Deuteronomy: "And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand"? On everything that we touch we must leave an impress of the Word of God. In all that we do we must exemplify the religion which we profess. Likewise in all that we see, and observe, and look at, we must remember our religion.

So also "Thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates." Whenever we enter our own courtyard, whenever we go inside our house, or dwelling, we must remember the Word of the Lord. As we go into the house, God's teachings must be observed, and as we go out of the house, into the world, we must still remember our religion.

Now, suppose that a child has been brought up under this atmosphere and with such discipline and training, such example and inspiration—all of it growing out of a fundamental faith in the one Living God, and a supreme and absolute love for him, and a like love for his Word! And suppose that to this there is added all diligence to spur one's self up to do what one's heart longs for! What should be the outcome? How could the results help but be desirable? What else ever could take the place of it?

It is this religious instruction in the home, after this ideal, that the church, through the Sunday-school, must provide for, and she must see to it that it is accomplished. This also we must organize and provide for, and see through, according to the principles of good organization, right management and execution.

All of this can be done only, and should be done only, in coöperation with the work of the Sunday-school. This home religious instruction ought not to be something apart from the religious instruction given in the Sunday-school regularly. The home should review these lessons in family worship. This is entirely practical, and will add zest and interest to the family worship, and motivate it. If properly done, this will be adequate, so far as the intellectual instruction is concerned. Then, from time to time, as the incidents in life arrive which exemplify the principle which has been taught, the home should see to carrying them through in conduct and life.

Oak Park, Ill.

Ruth the True-Hearted

BY MRS. JUNE WELLER MILLER

Nothing can be more beautiful than the simple, happy and godly life which the Book of Ruth unfolds. True religion is there seen, sweetening the intercourse of rich and poor, lightening the burdens of labor and poverty and cheering the hearts of the afflicted.

This beautiful story had Bethlehem for its scene, and may, perhaps, be regarded as a sort of type and picture of the effects of that benign religion with which, thirteen hundred years after, the Divine Babe of Bethlehem was to bless the world.

Naomi, a Hebrew matron, goes to the land of Moab in a time of famine. There she loses her husband and her two sons, but gains the attachment of the two Moabite young women whom they had married, one of whom, Ruth, a pattern of filial piety, returns with her to her own country.

Among the abounding instances of Hebrews perverted to worship the gods of Moab and other idols, it is delightful to find even one such case as that of Ruth, the young Moabite widow, whose heart had been completely won by the loving and godly spirit of Naomi, and who so simply yet beautifully expressed her deepest feelings for her mother-in-law. "Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so to me, and more also if ought but death part thee and me."

With a light heart she goes to glean in the field after the reapers, willing to take life as it comes, never complaining of her condition in life, but singing while she gleans:

> "Forth to the harvest fields away,
> Gather your handsful while you may,
> All the day long in the field abide,
> Gleaning close to the reapers' side."

Happy are the moments when sorrow forgets its cares, and misery its misfortunes; when peace and gladness spring up upon the radiant wings of hope, and the light of contentment dawns once more upon the disconsolate, unfortunate and unhappy heart. "The past unsighed for, and the future sure."

Ruth attracts the notice of Boaz, a man of wealth and property in Bethlehem, a relative of her husband's family, who ultimately makes her his wife. Thus we see the happiness of her life was made up of little kindnesses, little courtesies, pleasant words, genial smiles and good deeds.

If we, like Ruth, make the little events of life beautiful and good, then our whole life is full of beauty and goodness. He that labors and strives, spins gold. Then let us strive that in some way we may assist our fellow-men.

One of the purest and most satisfying amusements is to see some one's need and by our own exertions to supply it, and it is surprising how many opportunities of helpfulness one may find if eyes and ears are opened by true kindness of heart. Do not let the shadow of discouragement fall on your path, if you have to support a widowed mother, or sick sister, or unfortunate relative, for this has been the road to eminence of many a proud name. This is the path which many working people have often trod—thorny enough at times, at others so beset with obstacles as to be almost impassable, but the way was cleared, sunshine came, success followed—then the glory and renown.

However weary you may be, the promises of God will never cease to shine, like the stars at night, to cheer and strengthen. A hopeful spirit will discern the silver lining of the darkest cloud, for back of all planning and doing, with its attendant discouragements and hindrances, shines the light of divine promise and help.

Everybody, like Ruth, can encourage virtue and religion. Every virtue in woman's heart has its influence on the world. A virtuous woman in the seclusion of her home, breathing the sweet influence of virtue into the hearts and lives of its beloved ones, is an evangel of goodness to the world. She is a star shining in the moral firmament. She is a princess administering at the fountains of life. Every prayer she breathes is answered to a greater or less extent in the hearts and lives of those she loves. Her piety is an altar fire where religion acquires strength to go out on its merciful mission. We can not overestimate the utility and power of woman's moral and religious character. The world would go to ruin without it.

There is great need of wisdom in all the affairs of life; for no man liveth unto himself, and our lives are intertwined and mingled together with the lives of others until it is a very solemn thing to live, as our influence must either be for good or for bad and that to extend to all eternity.

Since our earthly life is so brief, "and the night will soon come when the murmur and hum of our days shall be dumb evermore," it were well to have milestones by the way, pointing to a better land. Ah! these are the true laborers in the world's great harvest field in any and in all its varied departments. How blest are the recollections of those who, like the setting sun, have left a trail of light behind them, by which others may see the way to that rest which remaineth for the people of God!

Huntington, Ind.

The Sin of Gossip

BY CHESTER E. SHULER

Few evils in the world today are more productive of serious results than the habit of gossiping. Every small city, town, and community is made to feel the sting of this social scorpion. Few, if any, other evil influences are so prevalent.

We are all acquainted with the man who finds pleasure in "knocking" his neighbor; with that woman who, to all appearances, has no higher aim in life than to be able to relate innumerable "they say's," concerning her acquaintances and neighbors. To a person whose mind has become so perverted, nothing or no one is too noble or too great to become grist for the scandal mill.

The gossiping tale-bearer is a menace to the welfare of any community. Such a person is invariably a trouble maker. How innumerable are the instances in which a false insinuation has resulted in the ruin of a previously untarnished reputation, or, perhaps, the social ostracism of the innocent victim!

Gossiping is indicative of mental idleness. It has bad kin. It goes with narrowness, ignorance, viciousness, malice and selfishness. It is easy to tell a habit by the company it keeps. And, to a keen observer at least, the fostered habit betrays the real individual.

It is said that the heights and recesses of Mount Taurus are much infested by eagles, who are never better pleased than when they can pick the bones of a crane. Cranes are prone to chatter noisily, especially while they are flying. The sound of their voices arouses the eagles, who spring up at the signal, and often make the noisy travelers pay dearly for their chattering. The older and more experienced cranes—so the story goes—sensible of their besetting weakness, and the peril to which it exposes them, take care before venturing on the wing to pick up a stone large enough to fill the cavity of their mouths, and consequently to impose silence on their tongues. Thus they escape the danger.

To the gossiper too, as well as to the victim, gossiping brings danger. Do you know a person who is continually pouring into ears, willing or unwilling to listen, little tales that begin with, "Have you heard about So-and-So? They say—" or "Folks are talking about—. They say—," etc., etc. How about your faith in such a person? You don't confide in the habitual gossiper, do you?

There are persons who seem unable to bear hearing a good word spoken about some one else. Their own conversation is habitually poisoned by malice or fault-finding, and they imagine every one else to be the same. The stranger within the gates of such an one, if he inquires no further, will be likely to receive the impression that no other respectable folks exist in that portion of the universe.

The person who does not gossip, and who loves his fellow-men sufficiently to think and speak charitably of all, is peculiarly the prey of the chronic gossiper. Such person, if he will give ear, is made to listen to the disparagement of his neighbors in general, and, not infrequently, some of his own friends in particular. The gossiper is a bore, and the absence of this public nuisance is to be desired by all who would be clean of heart and pure of soul.

Gossiping is a sin in the sight of God. Its evil influence upon a community and the lives of individuals can not be overestimated. God's Word condemns it, and tells of its source (James 3: 14, 15). The gossiper is invariably untrue in the remarks made. A story is almost never repeated verbatim. Thus the commandments of God: "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" and "Thou shalt not lie" are openly violated. "Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile" is the Psalmist's injunction. And surely all would do well to heed it.

The sin of gossip is not sufficiently emphasized from the pulpit. With the many plain, definite admonitions in the Word against the evil practice, let our ministers preach and exhort concerning this grave evil as never before.

Much can be done by individuals, too, toward allaying this evil. Let us guard well the portals of our speech that we do not repeat the unkind things we hear of others. No matter how interesting a current bit of "talk" may be, let us, before repeating it, apply what some one has called the "three tests": "Is it true?" "Is it kind?" "Is it necessary?" Judged by these standards, many a bit of "news" that we are eager to repeat, will be at once thrown into the discard of our minds.

Let us not believe evil reports about any one, so long as absolute proof is lacking. It is only fair to give the "other fellow" the benefit of the doubt. And surely it is the Christian spirit—the spirit that we are reaching toward when we pray: "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight."

R. D. 3, Newport, Pa.

Naughty No-Good Stuff

BY OMA KARN

The Bissell sweeper refused to work properly. Examination revealed the ends of the rollers so tightly wrapped with ravelings and other refuse that the brushes failed to revolve. A few minutes' work and the sweeper was relieved of the impediment to its usefulness. A small maid of five summers was an interested eye-witness of the removal of the waste matter, causing the trouble. Very daintily, with the tips of her fingers, she picked it up and deposited the same in the waste paper basket. "Naughty no-good stuff," she said, as she vigorously dusted off her small hands, "you go into the furnace and be burned."

One could not but smile over this terse, energetic way of summarily disposing of the thing that was causing the trouble. Sober reflection followed. What a similarity between those carpet ravelings and the useless rubbish which is allowed to clog the mind and impair the usefulness of both mind and body! The ravelings of life are as easily picked up by the mind, and as easily retained, as were the floor ravelings by the carpet-sweeper. Once permit them to begin to accumulate, and the machinery of the mind soon becomes clogged. The gray matter in our head will not function properly and our physical health is impaired. It is best not to permit these injurious impediments ever to begin to accumulate. If they do, or already have begun their work, then the best method of disposing of the rubbish is to follow the drastic action, exemplified by the child of our narrative, when she relegated the offending matter to the ash heap. Naughty, mischief-making, no-good stuff it is, whatever he its character and composition, and it is worthy only to be cast out of one's heart and be burned—every thread of it.

Ashland, Ohio.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

WAYSIDE THOUGHTS

In John 3: 1 we read: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God." Thus we are heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ. We are given an inheritance that the world can neither give nor take away. We have eternal redemption, eternal salvation, a crown of eternal life. How wonderful! The human mind can not comprehend the length of eternity.

To our recollection there never was such a time to

(Continued on Page 542)

GREENVILLE, OHIO

The annual gathering at the Brethren's Home at Greenville was held August 7. Early in the day the people began to arrive, and by the time announced for the services to begin, the seating capacity of the large tent was fairly well occupied, showing that the people of Southern Ohio are taking an interest in the mission of the Home.

The committee in charge of the meeting had a well-prepared program, with able speakers, who brought out many inspiring thoughts, creating greater interest in behalf of the Home, and inspiring the management to put forth an effort for greater work in the future, especially in caring for homeless children. Hearts were moved upon to the extent that homes were opened for the reception of five children. An impressive feature of the day took place just before the noon hour, when the children of the Home were brought before the audience and sang and recited in a pleasing way.

Just at this time a problem is facing the management of the Home. The present matron, who has so efficiently served the Home for more than eight years, has failed in health to the extent that it is necessary to relieve the superintendent and wife. Any information that would lead to the securing a suitable brother and sister for the place would be highly appreciated by the trustees.

Greenville, Ohio. Jerry Hollinger.

TRINITY CHURCH, VIRGINIA

The above-named church is a part of the Troutville congregation. In this immediate vicinity we have, at present, forty-five members. In 1902 we built a good, substantial church, with two special Sunday-school rooms, besides the main audience room. This church was dedicated to the Lord on the first Sunday of June of the above year. We then had twenty-one members. A Sunday-school was organized, which has now developed into a full-fledged Evergreen school. We have baptized more than forty members since we organized our Sunday-school. Eight of our number have gone to their eternal home and several have moved to other fields.

Our sisters organized an Aid Society here and have been doing a quiet but substantial work for humanity.

The ministers of the Troutville congregation alternate with our pastor in preaching here twice each month, and we have a Christian Workers' Meeting each Sunday evening. Our pastor has been giving us a weekly Bible lesson each Thursday evening. August 3, at our regular meeting, one applied for membership and will be baptized in the near future.

August 2 the writer went to Arnolds Valley in Rockbridge County and held two meetings. One applied for membership and we promised to hold a series of meetings there in the very near future. C. D. Hylton.

Troutville, Va.

DEATH OF ELD. GEO. S. MYERS

George Snyder Myers was born near Lewistown, Mifflin County, Pa., March 28, 1842. He was the eldest of eight children, four of whom survive. His father, Reuben Myers, was a farmer and after his death, when George was eighteen years old, the son with the mother kept the family together. In 1864 he married Susannah Reiff, of Bedford County, Pa. To this union were born one daughter and two sons. His wife died in 1886. Later he married Rose Snowberger, who survives, with one son and two grandchildren. Bro. Myers died at his late home, Curryville, Pa., after an illness of several weeks from a complication of diseases, aged seventy-seven years, three months and twenty-seven days. In April he contracted influenza, after which time he never regained his usual health.

In 1863 he united with the Church of the Brethren, which denomination he served as a minister for fifty years. He maintained throughout his life an active interest in all the work of his church. He served as a member of the Mission Board of the Middle District of Pennsylvania for eighteen years; was treasurer of his church District for sixteen years, and a member of the Historical Committee at the time of his death. Bro. Myers was very active in the latter work, his one desire above many others being to see the History of the Church of the Brethren of the Middle District of Pennsylvania in print before the close of the year. For nearly forty years he attended almost regularly the Annual Conferences. He was a great reader, taking many papers and magazines, and adding to his library from year to year until his death.

Services at his home church July 29, by Eld. D. T. Detwiler, assisted by Brethren J. R. Stayer and L. B. Hoover. Interment in the New Enterprise cemetery.

Curryville, Pa. Alice M. Baker.

NOTES FROM VADA, INDIA

Since our last writing, several months have passed, during which time the workers at Vada spent the hot season at the hill-stations. Sister Garner and the writer were at Mahableshwar and Sister Powell at Landour. These stays of several weeks on the hills, refresh one very much for the work. We returned earlier than some, as there were many things to be gotten ready for the rains. June 6 the first rains fell and within the next ten days about fourteen inches of water had fallen. At this time our men, along with their neighbors, began to prepare their seed beds for rice, and a little later the fields.

It may be timely here to say that about six months ago a young man, with his wife and child, came to us, and asked that we give them work and a place to live. He said he had worked long enough for his old money-lender and that from now on he was going free. We gave them a place, and some help to build a house. Now he, with his wife and child, father and mother, brother and sister, is living in their fifteen by eighteen foot house and still have enough room, on one side, to house three or four heads of cattle. This man knows the Indian system of farming, and so is quite useful in looking after that work. Not only that, but we have bright hopes of this family becoming useful in the work of the Lord, in harvesting souls for the Master.

For over a week the rains were quite light, and the people were beginning to get anxious, but last Friday they again began and we have hopes for a normal monsoon in this part. Pray with us that India may have an excellent rice harvest this year, to relieve the suffering of the millions!

Just now are the most trying days for the people for food, and thefts are being reported on every hand. We have regular daily callers at the bungalow for help, such as a palsied man, a blind woman, several dumb women, some crippled, and some aged. How we long to do more for these poor people, but our means are limited.

During these strenuous days we have received into our Boarding-school three homeless girls. We have also taken under our care an aged man with two small boys, and a woman with her three girls—the smallest one having died since with us. This aged man and the woman are working, but the children are in school. We dole out to them, day by day, their food. Now the oldest of the two girls wants to go into the Boarding-school and the old man says he wants his boys to go into the Boarding-school also. These two people are very appreciative of all they get, and I think the most willing workers we have. Pray with us that these aged ones may find God, and that the children may be raised up to become great workers for the Kingdom of God!

We have now five or six who say they want baptism, but we feel that they yet need more teaching. Some difficulties must also be removed before we can admit them. It is hard to turn a man aside when he wants to come, but there are many more things to be considered here than at home. These people must be given work. They must be given a place to live. They must be protected from their old caste men, who have now become their enemies. A Mussulman teacher—a good friend of Bro. Berkebile—has asked for baptism, but he is afraid to live in Vada and we have no place at any other station where they can accommodate him.

May the day soon come when the caste system of India may be discarded, and when the people may have "personal liberty" to do according to their convictions. Pray with us and for us in this work! H. P. Garner.

June 28.

VILLAGE AND FAMINE RELIEF NOTES

The first rains came to this part of India June 7 and 8. Though but little over an inch fell, yet how rejoiced every one was to see it! A week later more fell, but since then we have had only several very light showers. The farmers have been busy planting their cotton and juwar and if more rain comes soon, all will be well. The daily paper reports more favorable monsoon conditions south of us, and a much wider area of the country receiving rain. The high winds, that continued for about ten days, have ceased. Today it is warm and cloudy. "It is God's work to send the rain," said one of the men on the compound, recently, "our work is to pray." We trust that the earnest prayers of his people for rain will be answered in due time!

While the rain has improved conditions in the villages, in many places there will not be plenty of work for the poor day-laborer in his own village until more rain comes and the fields need weeding. Many of this poor class are still coming to the mission at Vali for work.

The giving out of grain to the children, or one meal a day in five village schools of the Raj Pipla State, and ten in Anklesvar County, has helped to keep the schools in normal condition during this trying time. Only in about half the schools of each district was help given to the children in this way.

For a time it was very difficult to get grass in Anklesvar except at very unreasonable prices. The selling of grass and also of grain and oil has been under control of the Government for several months. By special permission Bro. Stover was able to get two cars of baled grass to help relieve the situation. This was sold at Rs. 7-4 a bale, which was four rupees less than it could be had elsewhere. The people were very glad for this help, and much more could have been sold. A cheap grain shop has been in operation, here on the compound, for several weeks. At Vali the mission secured one hundred two-bushel sacks of rice from the Government, and sold it to the people, at a saving of twenty-five per cent.

At Jitali we have seventy-five Christians. Unfortunately most of them do not attend church services regularly.

Of the fifty-four boys from twelve villages (including two from Anklesvar), of this county, who are in the Boarding-school at Vali, nineteen are from Jitali. Of the thirty-two girls from the surrounding villages in the Boarding-school at Anklesvar, eight are from Jitali. That the people are hungry, is shown by the report that at night a crowd of people get together, kill some one's cow or bullock, and before morning it is eaten up. One of our Christian farmers lost a valuable bullock in this way.

At Mortalav lives one of our independent farmers, who is making good financially and is zealous for the Lord's work. He was one of the orphans of the famine of 1900. Afterwards he became a mission worker, but as a farmer he is doing more for the work of the Lord than when employed by the mission. Of the thirty-five Christians who attend services at Mortalav, twenty-one have been baptized since the beginning of this year. This village is twelve miles east of here in Raj Pipla, but being more accessible to Anklesvar than to Vali, it is counted in this district.

Ahwa.—Concerning conditions in the Dangs, Bro. Adam Ebey's letter of June 17 states: "People are hungry in the villages. I do not think there is much danger of them starving yet. That will come later, perhaps. There has been an abundance of fruit and seeds that people can live on. It is surprising how they get along. Now, of course, the fruits and seeds are about finished, and 'greens' may be had, but the people must have grain to keep up strength; yet the ox eats grass, is strong, and works hard.

"In most of the villages, where we have schools, the people will not send their children. The amount I am able to give is so small that even a six-year-old can make more on Government work than he gets from us. Our schools are poor excuses at present. In fact they had not recovered from the 'flu' before the scarcity struck the people. I hope that with a good crop this year we may be able to get the schools in good order again."

Five days later Sister Ebey writes: "We are having a little rain today—the first since we left Bulsar. The grain fields need rain. Corn is growing nicely. If rains do not fail, the people can eat corn after August. What the poor are to do for the next two months, the Lord only knows. There will be much suffering and some, perhaps, will starve. We had hoped that the work on the bungalow could go on. In that way we could help a number—but we can't do that without money. We are giving a little work and helping a few with rice—but our rice will not nearly reach even for our own community. Government has shut down all relief work and the Government rice has gone into the hands of shopkeepers. We fear the shopkeepers will put up the price of rice and try to make a harvest from the necessity of the people. The next two months will be hard for us, but we are hoping for plenty of rain and good crops in due time. . . . Several people have been eaten by tigers lately, so it is not safe to be alone in the jungle."

Jalalpor.—Our best village schools are in the Jalalpor and Bulsar districts. As yet there has been no large turning to Christianity, like in the villages of the Vyara and Anklesvar talukas. Caste has a stronger grip on the people, which makes it more difficult for them to turn to Christianity. The village schools and the Boarding-school at Wankel are doing much, it is believed, to pave the way for large numbers from these villages to become Christians. Sister Grisso reports as follows concerning the village schools we have in Jalalpor county:

"There are at present three village schools under Sister Shumaker's care. One at Bhatt, with an enrollment of ninety, Muchad with eighty-eight enrolled, Condaral with eighteen. Besides these, the school, here on the compound, has twenty-six enrolled. The attendance at Muchad, however, has been very irregular, largely owing to the wedding season, and then, too, the teachers there do not seem to have been doing the most faithful work. One school, with an enrollment of eighteen, has an attendance almost equal to the enrollment. That teacher seems to be doing faithful work. Bhatt also has a good attendance.

"There is one Christian man living at Muchad (not a teacher) and caste seems to be breaking, which gives hope. This village is expected to be the feeder for our Boarding-school here. The men want their girls educated, but the mothers hinder a great deal in the education of their girls. One of the big needs is faithful, worthy Christian teachers. Challibhi and his wife came to us about a month ago, but his wife has been sick, so they have, as yet, been able to do very little. When they can take up the work at Muchad, we trust that conditions will improve.

"The Bhatt school has been running for many years. We found records as far back as 1902, yet, so far as we can find out, there has been no baptisms from that school, so it seems to be weak from an evangelistic standpoint."

Bulsar.—Concerning the village work of East Jalalpor and Bulsar areas, Bro. Ross reports the following: "At Wankel the attendance, due to a number of causes, is irregular. About fifty-five are there now, and more than half of these are from third standard up. In fact, a short time ago, there were thirty-nine in the standards from third to sixth. We have two industries here—carpentry and gardening. Last Sunday two boys and two young men from Wankel were baptized. Three from one village, and a teacher from that same village, are asking for baptism, also several boys in the Boarding-school want to be baptized.

"Yesterday a village man brought his boy here. This boy is in the third standard and has been at Wankel, but he got sick several times, as a result of epidemics, and his father thinks Bulsar may be a better place for him, so we let him try it. If there is no trouble arising over this, we can hope soon to see the way opening for the people, who have kept aloof from us, to come to us and to accept the Gospel Message. Some time ago a Dordia boy was brought here almost starved. Now the one who came yesterday is the second. These and the Dubloes are the ones who have kept aloof from us for these many years.

"Now our schools are again in much better condition. After the influenza they were almost broken up. There are twenty schools under my charge, including Wankel. My great regret is that I can not get out oftener to visit them, and to give more time to the village work. I feel that by exercising care, the time is nearing when Bulsar and Jalalpor areas will give a big harvest for the Lord. We think the prospect is brightening all the while."

The Famine Relief Committee met in Anklesvar, June 26. Bro. Arnold came to attend the meeting, bringing his family with him. Bro. Ross came up from Bulsar. The treasurer reported that rupees 30,089, annas 15, had been received—2,000 of which was from the "Christian Herald" Relief Fund. There was Rs. 6,889-15 still in the treasury, which was apportioned to the different stations. This is being used to help support the increased numbers in Boarding-schools for village schoolchildren, Widows' Home, Foundlings' Home, as loans to Christian farmers and others, to provide food for the helpless and labor to those who can work, especially at Vali and Ahwa. May the Rs. 1,000, granted to Ahwa, enable them to continue their work of mercy!

A. T. Hoffert.

Anklesvar, India, June 27.

CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA

The third Annual Reunion of the church and Sunday-schools of Central Pennsylvania was held at Juniata College, on Thursday, July 31. We have felt for years that meetings of this character could be helpful to the people in different ways, and the results have justified our anticipations.

Early in the day people began to arrive by train and automobile, and so continued until the noon hour, the attendance being much larger than either of the former years.

The morning program consisted of an address on "Landmarks of the Church," by Eld. Jas. A. Sell. In the afternoon Bro. C. F. McKee, of Oaks, Pa., spoke on "The Church a Spiritual Power." Bro. Galen B. Royer spoke on the value of "reunions" from various viewpoints. Bro. Jesse Emmert pleaded for deeper and continued consecration to the work of the Lord. Much helpful matter was given by each speaker. Some special music added to the joy of the hour.

At the business session an important move was taken by enlarging the committee from three to five, authorizing its members to inquire into the wisdom of providing additional time, in connection with the reunion of next year, for Bible study lectures, and other helpful work, and to arrange for the same, if found practicable.

All returned home strengthened and blessed by having this day of fellowship, and we thank the Lord for this privilege enjoyed.

W. S. Long.

Altoona, Pa.

Notes From Our Correspondents

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

Lindsay.—Our new pastor, Eld. M. S. Frantz, came with his family July 18. On the evening of July 29 a formal reception, or "get-acquainted" meeting, was arranged for them at the church. About 250 were present, including the neighboring ministers from Lindsay and Strathmore. These ministers all had a part in the program and welcomed Bro. Frantz as a member of the local ministerial association. Coöperation was the spirit of the evening. Bro. R. H. Miller, of La Verne, was with us on Educational Day. Since then Bro. Fred Hollenberg has made us a visit. Each of these brethren preached two very helpful sermons. We expect Bro. J. Edwin Jarboe to be with us in a revival about Nov. 1.—Mrs. Emma V. Yoder, Lindsay, Calif., August 5.

Patterson.—Last Sunday Bro. M. H. Miller, of Reedley, gave a splendid sermon both morning and evening. In the afternoon he administered baptism to one applicant. Bro. Miller, with his family, will move to Patterson in the near future, to take up pastoral work.—D. J. Fink, Patterson, Calif., August 9.

South Los Angeles.—On Sunday morning, June 6, Bro. Coffman, of Pomoona, Calif., occupied our pulpit. In the evening Bro. J. D. Cleaf, who has recently located in this county, also preached for us. Bro. Fred Hollenberg and wife were with us July 1 and 2, in the interest of the "Five-Year Forward Movement." We held our Sunday-school picnic in Sycamore Grove on July 16. This grove is a beautiful place for recreation and rest, and all had an enjoyable time. Bro. J. W. Cline occupied our pulpit on Sunday morning, Aug. 3, and gave a splendid report of the Winona Conference. In the evening Bro. George Hilton addressed us in behalf of the Chinese work in this city. The task of educating these foreigners, and bringing them to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ is a noble work, and Bro. Hilton is making a strong appeal to the church in this District for their loyal support.—Lena I. Swank, 1156 East Forty-fifth Street, Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 4.

COLORADO

Denver.—Our church is progressing nicely in every department. We were very glad to give our pastor, Bro. G. W. Burgin, a ten days' vacation at Estes Park. This was a great educational treat to him, as well as to the church on his return. Bro. D. W. Kurtz, of McPherson, Kans., was one of the many able speakers at this fine resort,—one of the finest in the State. We have decorated our church most appropriately, and have a fine collection coming to our greeting. Denver for health and cheap lands. Many churches have been built in our State during the last few years by our people, and many other members are moving in. Since our last writing we had a splendid sermon by Bro. D. W. Kurtz, of McPherson, Kans.—W. R. Cline, Denver, Colo., Aug. 10.

First Grand Valley.—July 13 Bro. S. P. Van Dyke, of Newberg, Oregon, gave us two fine sermons. Our Annual Meeting collection was $90. Our Christian Workers have taken charge of one room for the support of our India orphan. One of our fore ministers is absent from the home church, filling appointments where there are no resident ministers.—Mrs. M. E. Hixson, Grand Junction, Colo., August 8.

ILLINOIS

Elgin.—"The Chicago Boys' Club," a bunch of clean-looking fellows just blooming into young manhood, occupied the "regular preaching" hour last Sunday morning, and I do not think there was one in the audience that was not pleased with the "irregularity." We have had proved to us again that a boy can be a Christian without being a "sissy." Some chaps think "all" come across" to the side of the Lord, and exhibited joy in testifying to the fact. Their influence on their former companions in the city is most wholesome, and many are won through the medium of various activities—gymnasium, carpenter shop, etc. Their summer camps have been the salvation of many. All nationalities are touched—including the Jew. Their evenings of sport and work are closed with prayer and testimony. Even then the "hand" Christian hurries. Here we have half as much "ginger"? Owing to a strike affecting the light and power systems, our city has been in darkness for two weeks, but J. H. B. Williams illuminated the auditorium with an unusually good sermon in the evening.—Adaline H. Beery, Elgin, Ill., Aug. 11.

INDIANA

Center Point.—August 2 and 3 Bro. A. D. Helser, from Thornville, Ohio, gave us interesting and much appreciated talks on the "Forward Movement." Sunday evening, August 3, Lick Creek and Maple Grove congregations had a joint meeting. An offering of $26.90 was lifted. On morning services, that Sabbath, were conducted by Bro. S. A. Hylton, from Indianapolis. August 5 Bro. S. S. Blough gave some very interestiog facts and figures in a prayer-meeting of our opportunities for Sunday-school work.—Mas Mitchel, Center Point, Ind., August 11.

Clear Creek church, Huntington County, Ind., expects to have a homecoming in that church Aug. 24—an all-day meeting. The church has decorated the walls of the Sew auditorium, and wants all who formerly worshiped there to be present.—I. B. Wike, Huntiogton, Ind., Aug. 10.

New Hope church met in council August 2, with Eld. Jeremiah Barnhart presiding. Bro. Eld, J. W. Root, of Lafayette, Ind., was also present. Officers were elected for the church as follows: Clerk, Leonard Davis; trustee, Elleck Carpenter. We decided to use the individual pledge system for raising money. Bro. Root will be held Sept. 2. Bro. W. L. Ross was elected delegate to District Meeting. A movement was started for the repairing of our church-house.—Leouard Davis, Seymour, Ind., August 4.

New Paris church met in council, presided over by Eld. Chas. Arnold, Saturday evening, Sept. 27, and decided upon as the date for our love feast, to be preceded by a week's meetings, with Bro. David Metzler, of Nappanee, in charge.—Levi Arnold, New Paris, Ind., August 6.

Notice to Middle District of Indiana.—Churches having papers to come before the coming District Conference, and those responsible for programs which should appear in the Conference Booklet, will please have the material in my hands on or before Sept. 15. Other servants of this will greatly assist in getting everything ready for Conference, and thus facilitate the work when we meet.—Ira E. Long, Writing Clerk, Andrews, Ind., August 8.

Pleasant Hill church met in council August 9, with Eld. Hiram Forney presiding. We took our quarterly collection. The time of our Harvest Meeting was appointed for Sept. 15, and our love feast for Oct. 25—an all-day meeting. We chose one delegate for District Meeting.—Sarah Gump, Churubusco, Ind., August 11.

Spring Creek.—We met in council August 2, with Eld. Geo. Mishler presiding. Three letters of membership were received and seven were granted. Bro. Moyne Landis was chosen elder for the coming year, and Bro. Elmer Ross, trustee. Our delegates to Sunday-school Meeting are Reuben H. Hardman and Moyne Landis; delegates to District Meeting, Brethren Moyne Landis and Geo. Sneil. We expect Bro. I. D. Heckman, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., to be with us in a series of meetings this fall. A love feast will follow the meetings, the date to be announced later. Our District Sunday-school Secretary, Bro. L. W. Shultz, and wife, of North Manchester, were with us August 3. Both forenoon and evening addresses were given. Both illustrated talk was very interesting, as well as instructive. Next Sunday we expect to have a special meeting for the old people.—M. Amanda Rusher, Pierceton, Ind., August 4.

Turkey Creek church enjoyed a splendid meeting on Sunday, August 10. After the Sunday-school hour Bro. Leeper opened the meeting. Bro. Wioger then gave a brief history of the founding of the Turkey Creek church, followed by the dedicatory sermon. A basket dinner was served in the wood back yard, which Bro. Winger gave a fine address on "Thanksgiving and Harvest." An offering of $36.50 was lifted at the afternoon meeting.—Sarah Miller, Nappanee, Ind., August 12.

Upper Fall Creek church met in council August 2, with Brethren Bowman, Teeter and Rarick present. Bro. L. L. Teeter was elected as our elder in Bro. Hoover's stead.—Rachel E. Dellinger, Middletown, Ind., August 14.

IOWA

Iowa River.—June 1 Bro. O. H. Austin began a series of meetings, continuing for three weeks. Ten confessed Christ. Bro. Frank Sargent, of Bethany Bible School, Bro. Floyd Irvin, of Creston, Ohio, and Bro. Sam Fike, of Waterloo, have all been with us at different times since our meetings closed. Since our last report six letters have been received, among them those of an elder and a young minister. We expect Bro. Emmert and Sister Miriam Stover to be with us August 10.—Susie Kinzie, Marshalltown, Iowa, August 9.

Notice to the Churches of Middle Iowa: All reports, queries and business for the District Conference to be held in the Fernald church Oct. 7-9, must be in the hands of the clerk Sept. 8, in order to appear in the Conference Booklet.—W. H. Royer, Writing Clerk, Dallas Center, Iowa, August 12.

KANSAS

Morrill.—Sunday, August 10, Bro. Clyde Forney, Sunday-school Secretary for the Northeastern District, gave us a splendid address both in the morning and evening. He was with us four days, during which time he held several consecration services with the Fernald workers. He is earnest and energetic in his work as secretary, and his words of encouragement and help were greatly appreciated. An offering of $32 was takeo.—Mrs. Delilah A. Maxey, Morrill, Kans., August 12.

MARYLAND

Broadfording.—July 10, 11 and 13 Bro. B. F. Summer, who has been appointed as one of the outgoing missionaries to India, was with us, and gave us a number of interesting talks. Bro. Summer tried to impress upon us the necessity of a fully-surrendered life. July 27 we were favored by having Bro. H. R. Rowland, our District Sunday-school Secretary, with us. He addressed the Sunday-school and then preached for us immediately following the Sunday-school. The burden of his thought was to move forward in the work of the Master. Aug. 9 we held our Harvest Meeting, at which time we lifted an offering for our Old Folks' Home.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md., August 13.

Monocacy congregation held a two weeks' series of meetings, with Bro. H. M. Stover, of Wayoesboro, Pa., evangelist. The attendance and interest were good. Six confessed Christ.—Allen D. Hoover, Gracetham, Md., August 10.

Sams Creek church closed a two weeks' series of meetings August 3, held by Bro. Geo. Early, of Virginia. He gave us many helpful thoughts, and all were strengthened and built up. Eight were baptized, all young people, and one was reclaimed. July 26 our Sunday-school had its annual gathering. The school was addressed by Bro. Garber, of Washington, D. C., and Bro. Early, after which all were treated to cake and ice cream. Sunday morning, August 10, Eld. A. P. Snader preached a wonderfully fine sermon to the new members. In the evening we held our Children's Day exercises and a good program was rendered. Bro. C. D. Bonsack also made a few remarks, after which a missionary offering was lifted.—Alice E. Rigler, New Windsor, Md., August 11.

MICHIGAN

Homestead church met in council July 26. In the absence of Eld. J. Edson Ulery, our pastor, Bro. A. B. Hollinger, took charge of the meeting. We decided to hold a series of meetings the first of September. We hope these meetings may be a help to the church.—Ray Sells, Benzonia, Mich., August 11.

MINNESOTA

Bethel.—The members in the south end of the Bethel congregation organized a Sunday-school at the beginning of the quarter, with Bro. Abner Boone, superintendent. Though the attendance is small at present, we feel that seed is being sown for a future harvest. Children who have never before attended Sunday-school are being reached. Interest, we do need more workers. The attendance is small at present, with plenty of rain and warm weather. Grain and hay crops were excellent, garden produce plentiful and wild fruit of almost all kinds was to be had in abundance. We urge any one who is interested to organize in this country.—Mary Brower, Bemidji, Minn., August 11.

Minneapolis (First Church).—Sister Sadie Miller and Bro. Emmert Stover and sister, Miriam, spent Sunday, August 3, with us. They took charge of all meetings both morning aod evening. We enjoyed their programs very much, and were moved an inspiration to our workers. An offering of $21 was takeo. A few weeks ago we gave our Sunday-school a week's outing at Lake Minnetonka. It proved to be a real treat to our youngsters and gave us an opportunity to get better in touch with their lives. August 9 our Sunday-school will meet with parents and friends at Camden Place for an outing.—Mrs. I. D. Leatherman, Minneapolis, Minn., August 7.

MONTANA

Kremlin.—Bro. D. M. Shorh came to us July 13. He preached seventeen inspiring sermons and his work among us was much appreciated. Eight were baptized and one reclaimed. Bro. Emmert Stover and sister, Miriam, visited our church and gave a program, which was enjoyed by all. Bro. Virgil C. Finnell was also with us July 19 and 20, and gave us a talk in the evening. Sunday afternoon and evening he gave us a stereopticon lecture on the "Rural Church." July 26 we held our love feast, with Bro. D. M. Shorh officiating. A few of our members had the pleasure of attending the Sunday-school Convention, held at Red Cliff, Alta., Can., July 6, and also the District Meeting, held at Gleichen.—Vivian Wood, Kremlin, Mont., August 11.

NEW MEXICO

Miami church will hold an Institute with Bro. Virgil C. Finnell as instructor, August 20-26. Since our last report one has heeo brought into the church by baptism.—Mrs. M. N. Mikesell, Miami, N. Mex., August 12.

NORTH DAKOTA

Pleasant Valley church held her love feast July 12, followed by a series of meetings by Bro. Shaw and wife. Three were baptized and one reclaimed. August 3 Bro. Virgil Finnell gave two interesting stereopticon lectures on Sunday-school work, which were enjoyed by all.—Ethel Buros, York, N. Dak., August 4.

OHIO

Lima.—Bro. Kaylor, returned missionary from India, gave us a good talk a few weeks ago. The Christian Workers of Lima and Baker had a joint meeting at the latter church on Sunday evening, August 10. The Lima church met with us in the evening at one of the city parks July 31, which was much enjoyed. Two were baptized during July.—Mary E. Roberts, Lima, Ohio, August 11.

Marion.—The work at this place is still growing nicely. Bro. L. H. Dickey, of Fostoria, filled the pulpit July 20. The following Sunday our District Superintendent, Bro. Walter Landes, of Lima, gave some splendid addresses. August 3 Bro. J. I. Kaylor, of Degraff, Ohio, gave an address on "Missionaries" in the morning and on "The Church" in the evening. Both were very interesting and inspiring. We are devoting one evening each week to Bible study, led by our pastor, Bro. Geo. E. Deardorff. We are now studying the Sermon on the Mount. Much interest is being manifested.—Rachel Bowman, Marion, Ohio, August 7.

Notice.—The Bradford church wishes to inform the churches of Southern Ohio, which have been canvassed for funds for our new church, that because of unforseen conditions confronting the building committee, they have decided not to commence the building this fall, but to postpone till next spring, and to commence as soon as weather conditions will permit. The blue-prints and specifications are now being prepared, and advertising for bids will be done as soon as advisable.—Ora Stover, Bradford, Ohio, August 12.

Owl Creek church met in council August 9. Four letters were granted. We are expecting Bro. W. C. Detrick to conduct a series of meetings for us, beginning Oct. 20. We decided to have a Harvest Meeting August 24, with a sermon in the forcoon aod a program in the afternoon. Our Sunday-school expects to go to Rogers Lake in the near future, for an outing. August 10 Bro. Ora De Lanter delivered an excellent sermon along the temperence line. We chose Bro. G. S. Straubaogh as delegate to District Meeting, with Bro. O. H. Bechtel, alternate.—Zora Montgomery, Fredericktown, Ohio, August 12.

Sidney church will have its annual Auto Day Sept. 7. Eld. D. W. Kurtz, of McPherson, Kans., will deliver three messages—10:30 A. M., 2 P. M. and 7:30 P. M. Bro. Van B. Wright, of Peebles, Ohio, will have charge of the Sunday-school hour. Mrs. Nora Shively will have charge of the Sunday-school hour. Mrs. Nora Shively Wright will lead our song service. The Conser Quartette will render

(Continued on Page 544)

Notices to the Churches of Middle Iowa: All reports, queries and business for the District Conference to be held in the Fernald church Oct. 7-9, must be in the hands of the clerk Sept. 8, in order to appear in the Conference Booklet.—W. H. Royer, Writing Clerk, Dallas Center, Iowa, August 12.

WAYSIDE THOUGHTS

(Continued from Page 539)

grasp for wealth as at the present, but what can a man give in exchange for his soul? Billions of dollars can not purchase that crown of life and yet it is easy to obtain. Come, kneel at the foot of the cross! Look up and see a bleeding, suffering Savior, who shed his blood for our redemption! Learn of him and obey!

Man may use his authority and tell us to advance our time-piece one hour, but Jehovah reigns and rules. The sun rises in the East, as decreed by the Creator. It continues its daily course with regularity, the same as it did in Father Abraham's days. At the established time it sinks down behind the hills and the mountains. The wild animals of the forest go to their accustomed place for the night, the domestic animals lie down to rest, the fowls of the air seek their roosting-place. All nature is obedient to the Maker of all things. Man only turns a deaf ear to the kind invitation: "Come unto me, learn of me, and you shall find rest to your soul."

Some of us have lived more than fourscore years, but what is that, compared with eternity? More than nineteen hundred years have passed since Christ was born, but that is a short time, compared with eternity. "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth."

Girard, Ill. Cornelius Kessler.

ABOUT A NEW AUDITORIUM AT WINONA LAKE

Many who attended the Annual Conference at Winnna Lake remember the movement set on foot to raise some funds for the building of a larger tabernacle.

Later this movement took more definite form, when Dr. Sol C. Dickey, general secretary of the Winona Assembly and Bible Conference, called a committee of brethren, and presented some concrete plans for the building of the tabernacle.

The building of the commodious tabernacle is practically assured and will be welcomed by our people, for Winona Lake lacks but one thing to make it an ideal place for the Annual Conference, and that is a large tabernacle.

Briefly, the plans as outlined by Dr. Dickey, provide for a permanent, all-season tabernacle, with a seating capacity of between seven and eight thousand, costing approximately one hundred thousand dollars. Ten thousand of this amount is to be given by our people, ten thousand each by the Methodists, Presbyterians and Baptists.

A committee of five of each of these churches constitutes a building committee, and will have entire charge of the affairs of the new auditorium. The committee appointed by Dr. Sol C. Dickey consists of: J. L. Cunningham, Flora, Ind., Chairman; Wm. E. Overholser, Warsaw, Ind., Secretary; L. M. Neber, Warsaw, Ind.; C. M. Wenger, South Bend, Ind.; G. A. Snider, Lima, Ohio.

There seems to be an enthusiastic response by the Brethren for this work, for nearly one thousand dollars has already been sent to Dr. Dickey for this work.

After the next meeting of the committee it hopes to give a definite plan of procedure. In the meantime it might be well not to remit any more money to the Assembly until a plan is worked out.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 8. Wm. E. Overholser, Sec.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK IN TENNESSEE

L A Visit to an Isolated Church

Pleasant Mount congregation, in Hawkins County, is one of our most isolated churches in Tennessee and is not very often visited by those of other congregations. As District Sunday-school Secretary I have had a desire for some time to visit it, so, on Saturday, July 12, Sister Swadley and I went to the church. The connections on the train were such that it would have taken a part of two days to get there, consequently we drove in a car thirty miles and then left the car, as the roads were too rough to drive farther. We then had a walk of three miles to the church.

We had services on Saturday evening, also on Sunday morning and afternoon, with dinner at the church. There was a good attendance at all of the services. There has been no Sunday-school in the new church, which has been in use for three years. Last summer a union Sunday-school was held at the schoolhouse with one of our members as superintendent, but since that time there has been no Sunday-school in the community.

Those to whom we talked on the subject said: "We need a Sunday-school." "I wish we had a Sunday-school."

On Sunday, at the ten o'clock hour, I spoke on "The Importance of the Sunday-school" and Sister Swadley followed with a discussion of "The Essential Factors of the Sunday-school." We urged the people to discuss, at the noon hour, the advisability of starting a Sunday-school. At the beginning of the afternoon session a Sunday-school was organized.

Will you not pray for this isolated church? A number of the members asked us to pray for them. Some of you can help in another way. The people there enjoy singing, but they had no books except a few brought by individuals. They do not have a great deal of this world's goods, so if you have "Kingdom Songs No. 1" in a usable condition, which you no longer need, kindly write me, telling how many copies you can donate, and I will send you the address of the person to whom they should be sent. Will you not grasp this opportunity to be of real service to others?

II. District Sunday-school Institute

The District Institute was held on Saturday and Sunday, July 26 and 27, in the New Hope church. Saturday Prof. Coffman, from Daleville, gave two lectures on teaching. Sister Mahel Pence, who has been teacher of music in Hebron Seminary, gave a lecture on "How to Conduct Congregational Singing." Sister Laura White conducted a demonstration lesson on teaching juniors, and Sister Laura G. Swadley one on teaching a primary class. Sister Swadley spoke also on "Story Telling."

Sunday morning the Sunday-school was held as usual. This was followed by a story for the children by Sister Swadley and a talk on "The Importanee of Music in Our Religious Services" by Sister Pence. In the afternoon Sister White gave a talk on "How to Help Our Young People." This was followed by a Round Table discussion, during which a number of different ones gave good short talks.

The New Hope people showed their hospitality in entertaining the visitors in their homes, and on each day providing a good basket dinner, which was served under the trees.

Those present showed good interest in the work, but it is to be regretted that several schools had no representatives. Leadership is one of the greatest needs of our schools, as was brought out in the Round Table discussion. Our schools, therefore, should use such opportunities as these to develop workers.

Johnson City, Tenn. W. H. Swadley.

PATTERSON, CALIFORNIA

The Ministerial Board of Northern California has, for some time, been endeavoring to locate a minister at Patterson, where there are about thirty members, with an active body of workers. They have been maintaining a Sunday-school, with about forty in attendance, but they were greatly in need of a permanent minister, who could give his time to the work of the church.

Eld. Martin H. Miller, of Reedley, Calif., through some persuasion, has consented to serve the Patterson church, and I feel that there is now a brighter future for this congregation.

Patterson is a new town of about ten years' existence. It has a number of stores, shops, several hotels, a bank, a fine grammar school and new high school. The town is surrounded by a fine section of country. Any one seeking a home in this climate, with all these privileges and good things, will do well to investigate this section of the State. Bro. Daniel Fink will be glad to give information to inquirers. His address is Patterson, Calif.

Our Ministerial Board is also arranging to locate several other ministers in the Sacramento Valley, north of us about two hundred miles. It is our object to supply all vacancies, or to open up new fields of activity, where there are suitable openings.

The tide of emigration seems to be moving northward, where lands are cheaper and opportunities are better for starting up new homes in this coast country. The high prices of the products of the soil, as well as a desire to extend the borders of Zion, are inducing many members to change locations and lines of business activity. Those interested, especially in church extension, will be welcomed.

Information about these new locations and churches will be given by the writer, if stamp is enclosed.

Empire, Calif. S. F. Sanger.

AID SOCIETY OF EPHRATA, PENNSYLVANIA

Following is the report of our Sisters' Aid Society from August 1, 1918, to August 1, 1919: During the year eleven meetings were held, with an average attendance of eleven. The articles made for sale during the year are as follows: Aprons, 441; dusting-caps, 32; sun-bonnets, 75, quilts, 32; comforters, 11. Meals were served for four funerals during the year. May 30 nineteen members and friends of the society went to the Neffsville Orphanage to sew. Over 100 articles were made. The donations given by the Society are as follows: 11 bushels of potatoes for a needy family; $25 to the Relief and Reconstruction Fund; $25 to the Belgian Relief Fund; $25 to the Y. M. C. A.; $25 to the Red Cross; $10 to the Soldiers' Testament Fund; $10 and a basket of fruit to three sick people; $10 to each of our four ministers as a Christmas gift; groceries, coal and $5 for clothing for a needy family; paid for services rendered a family during illness; bed and furnishings to needy family; $50 to Elizabethtown College; $100 to the Armenian Relief fund; $100 to the building fund for a church in Sweden; $10 to the Shamokin church. At present there are sixty-four members enrolled who pay a monthly due of five cents. Balance on hand August 1, 1918, $217.28; donations, $11.40; dues, $36.90; receipts, $759.58; total, $1,025.16; expenditures, $912.28; balance, $102.88. Officers: President, Emma Hildebrand; Vice-President, Emma Seltzer; Secretary, the writer; Treasurer, Alice Taylor.

Ephrata, Pa., Aug. 7. Gertrude R. Shirk.

FACTS ABOUT OUR 1919 CONFERENCE

The following is a list of our ministers that were delegates at our 1919 Annual Conference and 60 years of age and over. It will be noticed that some of these delegates are well advanced in years:

Jesse Stutsman, Arcanum, Ohio, 86; Solomon Bucklew, Morgantown, W. Va., 79; Isaac L. Berkey, Goshen, Ind., 78; David Lytle, Deshler, Ohio, 78; Leonard Wolfe, McCune, Kans., 76; J. C. Stoner, Palestine, Ill., 75; S. J. Swigart, Lewistown, Pa., 75; Jacob Coppock, Tippecanoe City, Ohio, 75; John Zuck, Clarence, Iowa, 74; Amos B. Petchers, Wenatchee, Wash., 74; Aaron Coy, Dayton, Ohio, 73; Joseph Longanecker, West Manchester, Ohio, 71; Peter Knavel, Windber, Pa., 71; Isaac Deardorff, Marion, Ohio, 71; S. W. Garber, Decatur, Ill., 70; W. H. Eisenbise, Mt. Carroll, Ill., 70; E. S. Rothrock, Carlisle, Nebr., 70; B. W. Neff, Quicksburg, Va., 70; Riley L. Peters, Wirtz, Va., 70; L. T. Holsinger, Brethren, Mich., 69; W. J. Swigart, Huntingdon, Pa., 69; W. H. Oberholtzer, Myerstown, Pa., 69; Peter Garber, Weyers Cave, Va., 68; Amos S. Hottenstein, East Petersburg, Pa., 68; J. C. Swigart, Mattawana, Pa., 68; Isaac N. Wagoner, Ramey, Minn., 68; J. H. Brubaker, Virden, Ill., 67; Hiram Forney, Goshen, Ind., 67; Joseph D. Rife, Roann, Ind., 67; Isaac M. Neff, Fairfax, Va., 67; Geo. A. Phillips, Waynesboro, Va., 67; Amos J. Nickey, Monticello, Minn., 66; R. A. Yoder, Sabetha, Kans., 66; J. A. Long, York, Pa., 66; Geo. S. Harp, Myersville, Ind., 66; S. B. Fahnestock, Manheim, Pa., 66; John M. Smith, Woodland, Mich., 66; J. S. Dickey, North Manchester, Ind., 66; David T. Detwiler, New Enterprise, Pa., 65; E. M. Wenger, Fredericksburg, Pa., 65; J. R. Kindig, Waynesboro, Va., 65; J. D. Sandy, New Carlisle, Ohio, 65; F. P. Cordier, Celina, Ohio, 64; Israel M. Bowser, York, Pa., 64; D. P. Wine, Forestville, Va., 64; D. C. Campbell, Colfax, Ind., 64; Geo. A. Branscom, Campobello, S. C., 64; Ellis S. Brubaker, North Manchester, Ind., 64; Jefferson Mathis, Ankeny, Iowa, 64; Isaac W. Taylor, Elizabethtown, Pa., 63; J. W. Jarboe, Collyer, Kans., 63; Tobias S. Fike, Thurmont, Md., 63; W. L. Desenberg, Ashland, Ohio, 63; J. B. Shisler, Harleysville, Pa., 63; Isaac A. Miller, Nokesville, Va., 63; L. L. Teeter, Mooreland, Ind., 62; N. P. Castle, Brownsville, Md., 62; Calvin F. Eiler, North Manchester, Ind., 62; Peter B. Messner, Lake Odessa, Mich., 62; I. F. Yaney, Decatur, Ind., 62; Wm. B. Fretz, Hatfield, Pa., 61; S. H. Flory, Nokesville, Va., 61; G. B. Heeter, Burnetts Creek, Ind., 61; John S. Fike, Eglon, W. Va., 60; Samuel Z. Witmer, Elizabethtown, Pa., 60; Wm. L. Hatcher, Rossville, Ind., 60; Reuben Shroyer, North Canton, Ohio, 60; J. A. Landis, Harrisburg, Pa., 60; Geo. N. Falkenstein, Elizabethtown, Pa., 60; D. P. Miller, Kinross, Iowa, 60; Samuel Pence, North River, Va., 60; D. D. Thomas, Latty, Ohio, 60; B. F. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa., 60; D. M. Brubaker, Weilersville, Ohio, 60; Isaac L. Hoover, Lone Star, Kans., 60; J. R. Stayer, Woodbury, Pa., 60; J. Harman Stover, Fresno, Calif., 60; S. F. Henricks, Plymouth, Ind., 60.

Bishop Jesse Stutsman, of Southern Ohio, is eighty-six years old, and was the oldest delegate this year. He attended forty-six of our Annual Meetings, and was delegate thirty-two times. The Annual Meeting was held on his farm in 1886. May God bless our dear Bro. Stutsman!

Some of our aged pilgrims attended the 1919 Conference. Among these was our dear brother, Bishop S. R. Zug. He attended forty-six Annual Meetings. He was delegate twenty-five times, and also served four times on Standing Committee. Bishop Zug is truly a "Father in Israel." Bishop John McClane, of North Dakota, is also seen each year at our Conference. He is well preserved for his age. He takes much interest in the work of the church. May God bless our dear aged elders!

The 1919 Conference was the last one for many of our dear brethren and sisters. The first delegate that died of the 1919 Conference was Eld. David F. Hoover, of Indiana. He crossed the chilly river July 11. He served five times on Standing Committee, and was Reading Clerk of Annual Conference in 1905.

Many of our ministers attended our 1919 Conference. The first of these that died was Eld. S. P. Maust, of Meyersdale, Pa. He attended Conference, and died June 16. "There is but a step between me and death" (1 Sam. 20: 3).

A number of the 1919 Conference delegates are not in the ministry, but love the church and her work. Among these delegates we mention Bro. George V. Arnold, of Maryland. He represented the Pleasant View congregation of Middle Maryland. Bro. Arnold is an active worker for the Master, and is interested in missions. The congregation he represented is full of the missionary spirit. May God bless them! Their elder, Bro. John S. Bowlus, was a member of the Standing Committee this year.

The 1919 Conference is over, but it will never be forgotten. May we all work on, and on, and on, for Christ and the church, and not for the world! "Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days" (Eccl. 11: 1). Edgar M. Hoffer.

Elizabethtown, Pa.

DEATH OF WILLIAM H. KOONTZ

Bro. William H. Koontz died June 20, 1919, at the Memorial Hospital, Johnstown, Pa., aged fifty-three years, nine months and nineteen days. He died several days following an operation. Funeral services were conducted by Eld. P. J. Blough, of Johnstown, Pa., at the Maple Spring church. Interment in the Maple Spring cemetery. It was the largest funeral ever conducted at the Maple Spring church, there being about 1,500 people present. He is survived by his wife, two brothers and two sisters.

Bro. Koontz was married to Miss Annie E. Zimmerman, youngest daughter of Eld. S. B. Zimmerman, of Jerome, Pa. Two years after marriage Bro. Koontz united with the Church of the Brethren, his wife being a member before marriage. June 2, 1907, Bro. Koontz was elected and installed as deacon. He served in that capacity up to the time of his death.

Bro. Koontz lived the greater part of his life on the old Koontz homestead, on the shores of the Quemahoning reservoir.

While engaged in farming, primarily, Bro. Koontz was gifted along many lines. He served as treasurer of the Quemahoning congregation for many years. He grew with the Sunday-school, being superintendent of the Maple Spring, Pine Grove and Hooversville Sunday-schools. At the latter place he has been superintendent for many years and was acting in that capacity at the time of his death. The church and Sunday-school feel they have lost one of their most ardent supporters.

Bro. Koontz and his wife, not having any children, always went by the name of "Uncle Will and Aunt Annie." They were both very fond of children. Many a child's heart was made happy by a kind word or act of theirs. Bro. Koontz always remained young at heart, and the young people feel they have lost one of their best friends.

Bro. Koontz always worked hard, and by careful management was able to save for the Lord. He has set up for himself a memorial that shall last forever by donating his entire fortune to the Lord. His will provides that at the time of his death $4,000 is to go to each of the following institutions: Bethany Bible School, Juniata College, Old Folks and Orphans' Home of Western Pennsylvania, and the General Mission Board. He also provides that some be given to the orphanages of India and China. He has vested all his entire fortune, of between fifty and seventy-five thousand dollars, to be equally divided among the above institutions after the death of his wife.

Hooversville, Pa. W. D. Rummell.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Crumpacker-Heckman.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister S. J. Heckman, of Overbrook, Kans., July 29, 1919, Bro. Harold B. Crumpacker, of McPherson, Kans., and Sister Modena R. Heckman.—W. A. Kinzie, Nickerson, Kans.

Kuhleman-Derr.—By the undersigned, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Hannah Derr, Lena, Ill., June 4, 1919, Bro. Milton H. Kuhleman and Sister Mary Derr.—I. E. Weaver, Kent, Ill.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Auspaugh, Bro. Jacob Wm., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Auspaugh, died July 20, 1919, aged 37 years, 5 months and 23 days. He united with the Church of the Brethren in early youth. He leaves his father, three brothers and three sisters. His mother and one sister preceded him. Services at the La Fayette Christian church by Bro. W. K. Guthrie. Burial in La Fayette cemetery.—Bessie L. Guthrie, La Fayette, Ohio.

Bowman, John, died at his home in Briceton, Ohio, July 23, 1919, at the ripe age of 82 years, 11 months and 9 days. He was born near Lancaster, Pa., in 1836, and with his parents came to Ohio when he was but a child. They located in Darke County, where he grew to manhood. In 1860 he was united in marriage to Elizabeth Jones. To this union were born four sons and six daughters, of whom one son and five daughters survive. Two daughters preceded the mother to the above survive. For a number of years he lived in Illinois. He then returned to Ohio, and located in the vicinity where he lived the rest of his days. He made application for baptism, lamenting that he had put off the matter so long. Owing to his weakened condition the rite could not be attended to. Services at St. Paul church by the writer, assisted by Bro. Roy Mishler.—D. D. Thomas, Latty, Ohio.

Bowser, John, born in Montgomery County, Ohio, in the bounds of the Ft. McKinley congregation, died June 18, 1919, aged 48 years and 23 days. Death was due to blood poisoning, resulting from an operation. He was converted at the age of fourteen. He was married to Mary McKinley. Bro. Bowser served his church faithfully on the board of trustees for many years, also serving helpfully on the building committee. He leaves his wife, one daughter, father, four grandchildren and one brother. Services at Ft. McKinley by the brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Boyer, Sister Lauretta, nee Slifer, born near Jefferson, Md., died in the Frederick City Hospital, July 11, 1919, aged 73 years, 3 months and 25 days. About ten days ago she was severely burned, which was the direct cause of her death. She became a member of the church in her girlhood days. Services by Eld. John S. Bowlus. Burial in the Pleasant View cemetery.—Mrs. J. S. Bowlus, Burkittsville, Md.

Brown, Martha Jane, daughter of Benjamin Franklin and Mary Ellen Shultz, born in Huntingdon County, Pa., died May 24, 1919, aged 61 years, 10 months and 14 days. In 1874 she married Wesley Brown. To this union were born five daughters and five sons. She leaves her husband, three daughters, five sons and seventeen grandchildren. About thirty years ago she united with the Church of the Brethren. Services at the Buck Creek church by Bro. Isaac Wike.—Clara Sheets, Moorcland, Ind.

Daybool, Sister Ida M., wife of Bro. Carl Daybool, of Georgia, died at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. Odie Daybool, of Harford County, Md., June 26, 1919, aged 34 years, 8 months and 11 days. Besides her husband she leaves a son and daughter, her widowed mother and a number of brothers and sisters. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren while quite young and later became a zealous teacher in the Lang Green mission. Services in the Long Green Valley church by the writer, assisted by Elders J. M. Prigel and W. T. Miller. Interment in the adjoining church cemetery.—W. E. Roop, Westminster, Md.

Dinges, Andrew Jackson, born in Shenandoah County, Va., in 1864, died at his home near Detrick, Va., of paralysis, July 25, 1919. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren for over twenty-five years. He is survived by his wife, five children, one grandchild and three brothers. Services at the home by the writer. Burial in near by cemetery.—William E. Hamilton, Brownstown, Va.

Ebey, Irma Jane, daughter of Abraham Z. and Cynthia A. Foote, born in DeKalb County, Ind., died at the Mercy Hospital, in Manistee, Mich., where she had undergone an operation, August 1, 1919, aged 41 years, 7 months and 23 days. At the age of fourteen she united with the Church of the Brethren at Cedar Lake, Ind. In 1897 she married Lemon A. Ebey. Five children were born to them. One son died in infancy. She also leaves her husband, three brothers and two sisters. Services at the Marilla church by Bro. L. T. Holsinger and the writer.—J. E. Ulery, Onekama, Mich.

Fackler, Elizabeth Watters, daughter of Jacob and Hannah Watters, wife of Bro. Samuel Fackler, of Ely, died August 3, 1919, aged 77 years, 4 months and 17 days. She is survived by her husband, two children, seven grandchildren and one sister. She united with the Church of the Brethren in her youth and lived a devoted Christian life. Services by the writer at Ely, Iowa. Burial in the Dry Creek cemetery, near Toddville, Iowa.—S. B. Miller, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Gahagan, Oscar Reiman, died in France, some time in September, 1918, aged 22 years, 9 months and a few days. He united with the church Feb. 10. He left for Camp May 28 and sailed for France July 10, 1918. His parents, three brothers and three sisters survive. Memorial services were held at the Windber church on the afternoon of July 27, in charge of Bro. H. S. Replogle.—Mrs. Harvey Knavel, Windber, Pa.

Lambert, Sister Leah Catharine, wife of Bro. Lewis Lambert, died at the home of her son in York, Pa., July 18, 1919, aged 76 years. She is survived by her husband, one son and one daughter. She was a consistent member of the church for many years. Services at the house by Eld. Daniel Bowser, also at the Pipe Creek church by Bro. W. P. Englar. Interment in Pipe Creek cemetery.—Alice K. Trimmer, York, Pa.

Loucks, Malinda, daughter of Elder and Sister John Metsler, born near Wabash, Ind., died at her home, at Lapaz, Ind., of paralysis, July 29, 1919, aged 80 years, 9 months and 23 days. She united with the Church of the Brethren at the age of sixteen and lived a faithful Christian life. She was survived by her husband, one son, one daughter, two sisters and three brothers. Services by the writer, assisted by Eld. H. M. Sebwalm. Interment near Wakarnsa.—Chas. C. Cripe, Bremen, Ind.

Morris, Earl, son of Friend Robert and Sister Josephine Morris, died of cholera infantum, July 20, 1919, aged 1 year, 1 month and 10 days. Its parents and an older brother survive. Burial in the Morris graveyard.—Nelie Wampler, Pirkey, Va.

Musselman, Jane, son of Henry and Magdalene Musselman, died July 26, 1919, aged 27 years, 3 months and 12 days. He was born near New Lebanon, Montgomery County, Ohio, and has always lived in this vicinity. More recently, when his health failed, he removed to Trotwood, in which place he spent the last part of his days. He was the youngest in a family of five sons and two daughters. July 1, 1880, he was united in marriage to Barbara Hull, Eld. Isaac Bright officiating. This union was blessed with seven sons and two daughters, the latter with the Church of the Brethren in 1884, being baptized by Bro. Jno. Calvin Bright. He remained faithful to his God and to his church. For some years he served on the Board of Trustees in Trotwood, where, because of his enfeebled health, he asked to be relieved of this responsibility. He suffered much. An operation gave him only partial relief. He was greatly comforted by the anointing service, administered some time before his death. He leaves a devoted and affectionate wife, seven sons, one daughter, seventeen grandchildren and two brothers. Services in the Trotwood church by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Petry, Clarence D., son of Clarence F. and Bertie Lechrone Petry, died at the home of his parents, at West York, Pa., July 27, 1919, aged 3 months and 16 days. Services at the house by Eld. Daniel Bowser. Interment in the Greenmount cemetery.—Alice K. Trimmer, York, Pa.

Pletcher, Martha, F., wife of Bro. Daniel Pletcher, of the Indian Creek congregation, died July 24, 1919, aged 67 years, 11 months and 3 days. Sister Pletcher, mother of Eld. I. R. Pletcher, of the Connellsville mission, was for many years a consecrated member of the Church of the Brethren. She served as deaconess for more than forty years. She was happy in the service of her Master. Her sunny disposition enabled her to make and hold a very large circle of friends. She was one of the earnest, faithful members of the Indian Creek congregation, and the place vacated by her death will not be easy to fill. She leaves, besides her companion, three sons, three daughters and several grandchildren. Services, in charge of Eld. I. R. Beery, of Somerset, were largely attended. Also by the dear Father sustain Bro. Pletcher and the children in their loss, and keep them faithful till Jesus comes!—J. L. Bowman, R. D., Stahlstown, Pa.

Rohrer, Mrs. Sophia Elizabeth, nee Shank, born in Montgomery County, Ohio, died in the bounds of the Sugar Hill congregation, near West Alexandria, Ohio, July 25, 1919, aged 60 years, 7 months and 25 days. She married Geo. Rohrer in 1887. She leaves her husband, one sister and four brothers, one of whom is Eld. Emanuel Shank, of Trotwood. Services at the Sugar Hill church.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Sheaffer, Bro. David, died at the home of his son, in Southampton, near Allentown, Pa., aged 91 years, 1 month and 20 days. Bro. Sheaffer made his home with his children, his wife having died seven years ago. He had been an invalid for more than thirty years, yet he bore his suffering with patience and Christian fortitude. He is survived by four daughters and two sons. Services at Huntsdale by Eld. S. M. Stouffer. Interment at Huntsdale cemetery.—A. A. Evans, Carlisle, Pa.

Smith, Bro. Wm. Henry, born in Brown County, Kans., Feb. 16, 1866, died April 15, 1919, in Topeka, Kans., in the St. Francis Hospital. He leaves his wife, one daughter, three sons and two sisters. When he was a young man he united with the Church of the Brethren and about four years before his removal to the west and was an earnest worker. Services in the home near Grove, Kans., by the writer, assisted by Bro. F. E. McCune.—Benj. Forney, Lawrence, Kans.

Sollenberger, Clara Alice, daughter of John and Susan Wagner, and wife of Henry Sollenberger, died June 24, 1919, aged 43 years, 1 month and 4 days. She was the youngest in a family of four children, born and reared in Madison Township, Montgomery County, Ohio. June 14, 1896, she married Henry Sollenberger, with whom she lived happily. In February, 1914, she was baptized and the same evening partook of her first communion. She greatly enjoyed her church relation. In her passing she leaves her husband, four sons, two daughters and one brother. Services in Trotwood.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Wallace, Mary Margaret, nee Sala, born in Randolph County, Ind., died July 28, 1919, aged 77 years and 4 months. In 1863 she married Aaron Wallace. To this union seven children were born, four daughters and three sons. She united with the Church of the Brethren and lived a faithful Christian life. She leaves her husband, four sons, two daughters, three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Services at Yellow Creek. Burial in cemetery near by.—Harvey W. Schwalm, Wakarusa, Ind.

Williamson, Caroline, died July 25, 1919, aged 79 years, 10 months and 18 days. She was the daughter of Fred and Sarah Spangler. In 1867 she married George Williamson. To this union were born five sons and three daughters. By a former marriage she leaves three sons and one daughter. She is also survived by thirty-four grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren and remained faithful. She died at the home of her daughter, Lillie B. Lutz, near Pitsburg, Ohio. Burial from her own home at Verona, Ohio. Services by Eld. J. W. Pidler and Bro. Albert Beachler.—Mrs. J. W. Eikenberry, Arcanum, Ohio.

Wolverton, Sister Caroline, daughter of Elizabeth and James Day, died July 29, 1919, aged 69 years, 3 months and 17 days. She was married to Chas. F. Wolverton in 1874. To this union were born eight children, seven of whom survive with the father, seven grandchildren, two brothers and two sisters. She was a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years. Services by Eld. H. R. Mowry and the writer, at the Columbia Furnace church. Interment in the cemetery near by.—M. H. Copp, Maurertown, Va.

Vice Flourishes Through Ignorance. These Books Let in the Light

FOUR BOOKS TO MEN

By Sylvanus Stall, D. D.
Condensed Tables of Contents follow

What a Young Boy Ought to Know, ...$1.20

Part I.—How God reproduces the flowers, insects, fishes and animals.—The two natures in the oyster.—The bird's eggs and the baby bird. Part II.—The manner in which the reproductive system is injured in boys by abuse. Part III.—The consequences in boys of abuse. Part IV.—How boys may preserve their purity and strength. Part V.—Our duty to aid others. Part VI.—How purity and strength may best be regained. Part VII.—The age of adolescence.

What a Young Man Ought to Know, ...$1.20

Part I.—Strength.—The manly mastery of self. Part II.—Weakness: How to overcome.—Part III.—Evils to be shunned and consequences to be dreaded. Part IV.—Reproduction.—All life from the seed or egg. Part V.—Who should not marry.—Selection of a wife.—Early and late marriages, etc., etc.

What a Young Husband Ought to Know, ...$1.20

Part I.—What he ought to know concerning himself.—What is excess.—Purity and fidelity. Part II.—What he ought to know concerning his wife.—Wedding joys.—The mother nature.—The wrongs of wifehood. Part III.—What he ought to know concerning his children.—Heredity.—Parental influences, etc.

What a Man of 45 Ought to Know, ...$1.20

Part I.—What he ought to know concerning himself. Physical changes in men at middle life. Part II.—What he ought to know concerning his wife.—The menopause, and the physical changes which follow.

FOUR BOOKS TO WOMEN

Condensed Tables of Contents follow

What a Young Girl Ought to Know, ...$1.20

By Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M. D.

Part I.—The origin of life.—Plant life, bees and insects. Part II.—Fishes and their young.—Lessons from the birds. Part III.—Animals and their young.—Human infants the most helpless. Part IV.—Care of the body.—Mothers dealing honestly with their children.

What a Young Woman Ought to Know, ...$1.20

By Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M. D.

Part I.—Girlhood and growth.—How to obtain health and development. Part II.—Womanhood.—The crisis in the girl's life.—Causes and cures for wrong physical conditions.—The consequences of mistakes. Part III.—Love.—What are the requisites in a husband.—Engagements.—Weddings.

What a Young Wife Ought to Know, ...$1.20

By Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M. D.

Choice of a husband. The marital relations. Parenthood. Maternity and health. The stages of prenatal culture. Expectant maternity. Baby's wardrobe. Physician and nurse. The birth-chamber. Care of baby. Guarding against vice. Helps for mothers.

What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know, ...$1.20

By Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M. D.

Physical changes in middle life. Causes, symptoms, etc., etc. Importance of right mental attitude. Valuable suggestions.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Pollyanna, the Glad Book

Eleanor H. Porter

Mr. Leigh Mitchell Hodges, the Optimist, in an editorial for the Philadelphia North American, says: "And when, after Pollyanna has gone away, you get her letter saying she is going to take 'eight steps' tomorrow—well, I don't know just what you may do, but I know of one person who buried his face in his hands and shook with the gladdest sort of gladness and got down on his knees and thanked the Giver of all gladness for POLLYANNA."

Price postpaid, $1.50

Pollyanna Grows Up

Eleanor H. Porter

The second "Glad Book," continuing the story of Pollyanna into young womanhood. It is considered by many to be even better than the earlier book.

Price postpaid, $1.50

Christian Workers' Booklet

Each six months sees an increased interest in the Christian Workers' Society. These booklets contain not only the topics, but a good outline to follow and will be of assistance in working out a program. Each member should have a copy. Prices: Less than 25 copies, 4c each; 25 copies, 75c; 50 copies, $1.25; 100 copies, $2.00.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

Official Organ of the Church of the Brethren

Published weekly by Brethren Publishing House, R. E. Arnold, General Manager, 16 to 24 S. State St., Elgin, Ill., at $2.00 per annum, in advance. (Canada subscriptions fifty cents extra.)

D. L. MILLER, Editor EDWARD FRANTZ, Office Editor
L. A. PLATE, Assistant Editor

Entered at the Postoffice at Elgin, Ill., as second-class Matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized August 20, 1918.

Notes From Our Correspondents

(Continued from Page 541)

several selections during the day. The full program for the day will appear later.—S. Z. Smith, Sidney, Ohio, Aug. 7.

PENNSYLVANIA

Big Swatara church met in council August 11, with Eld. J. H. Witmer presiding. The ordination was conducted by Elders J. B. Longenecker and E. M. Wenger were with us for the purpose of ordaining and installing Brethren Thomas Patrick and David Etter to the eldership. The Moonshine church and vicinity were given over to the Fredericksburg church, and a committee of four was appointed to help form a reasonable boundary line. Our delegates to the Sunday-school and Missionary Meeting were chosen at this time. Our Harvest Home services will be held on Saturday afternoon, August 23, at the Hanoverdale house. We have decided to hold our love feast Oct. 30 and 31, at 10 A. M.—Ulysses L. Gingrich, Palmyra, Pa., August 12.

East Petersburg church met in council July 30 at Petersburg, with Eld. A. S. Hottenstein in charge. Our Harvest Meeting is appointed for August 23 at the East Petersburg house, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. Our love feast will be held Oct. 29 and 30, at the Salunga house. Bro. Graybill and wife, who are assisting their efforts to the Swedish mission field, spoke to us at Salunga on the evening of July 30, and the following evening at Petersburg. An offering was taken both evenings, which amounted to $74.74, to be used for the building of the Swedish churchhouse.—Phares J. Forney, East Petersburg, Pa., August 11.

Ephrata church met in council August 3, with Eld. David Kilheiner presiding. Our Harvest Meeting will be held on the afternoon of August 24. We will hold our love feast Nov. 2. At this meeting we also decided to support a missionary. The missionary committee was appointed to secure plans and report to the church. The officers for the Sisters' Aid Society were elected for the coming year.—Gertrude R. Shirk, Ephrata, Pa., August 7.

Falling Spring.—The series of meetings, which began July 26 at the Shady Grove church, with Bro. Ezra Flory in charge, came to a close very abruptly on the evening of July 30, on account of Bro. Flory being called to the bedside of his father. We were very sorry to have the meetings close, as we appreciated Bro. Flory's services. We held our Harvest Meeting at the Falling Spring house August 2. Eld. L. R. Oellig preached, after which a collection was taken for Home Missions in the Southern District of Pennsylvania.—H. N. M. Gearhart, Shady Grove, Pa., August 12.

Hanover.—July 22 Bro. Geo. S. Griffith, of Meyersdale, Pa., spoke on "Home and Foreign Missions." On the following evening he spoke on "The Unfinished Tasks." A temperance program was rendered July 13 under the auspices of the temperance committee. An offering was lifted for the benefit of the Anti-Saloon League. Bro. Moy Gwong, of North Manchester College, preached for us on Sunday evening, August 3. He vividly impressed upon our minds that we are to think of China as it was 1,000 and not as it was twenty years ago. He also told us that the Chinese are very eager to know about the Christian religion.—Mary A. Rhinehart, Hanover, Pa., August 8.

Harrisburg.—Hummel Street Sunday-school held an outing July 31 at Reservoir Park. In the afternoon Bro. Hoffer sent his truck to the church and about forty-six children and older folks were taken to the park. A ball hour was spent in song service, and then Bro. W. K. Conner gave an interesting talk on "Trees." Lunch was served to 127. August 3, in the absence of Bro. Conner, Bro. Abrsm Holling filled the pulpit. August 10 Bro. A. L. B. Martin, of Baltimore, pastor of the Fulton Street church, preached both morning and evening. His morning theme was "Faith Without Works," and evening, "Blessed Are the Peacemakers."—Sallie E. Schaffner, Harrisburg, Pa., August 11.

Marsh creek.—Bro. Griffith came to our congregation July 18, in the interest of the "Forward Movement." Friday evening he talked at the Gettysburg house and Saturday evening he was to talk in the Mummasburg house, but because of the continued heavy rains there was no meeting. Bro. Griffith is very much pleased with the work. August 8 Bro. H. A. Claybaugh and son, of the Bethany Bible School, delivered a lecture at the Gettysburg house and exhibited pictures of the vice district of Chicago. While we had a fair audience, we were sorry that the church was not filled to see and hear the vice in that city, and also the good that has been accomplished there. Sunday morning, August 10, Bro. Cover, pastor of the Progressive church at Hagerstown, preached for us at the Marsh creek house. His theme was "The Ideal Church." That evening Bro. J. E. Steinour, of Murtaugh, Idaho, gave us a fine sermon on "The Coming of Christ."—Ida Eichner, Gettysburg, Pa., August 12.

Midway.—Our Children's Meeting was held at Midway July 20, with a good attendance. After the program Bro. Wm. Zobler gave a very interesting talk on "Bees." His text was 2 Cor. 6: 1. August 23 our council will be held, and Sept. 6 our Harvest Meeting at Midway in the afternoon.—Lizzie B. Nolt, Lebanon, Pa., August 11.

Mt. Olivet congregation was favored with two discourses August 3 and 4 by Bro. Geo. Griffith, of Meyersdale, Pa., which were very much appreciated. He explained the "Forward Movement" and its mission. We have decided to organize a Mission Study Class in the near future.—Mrs. Ada Brandt, Millertown, Pa., August 8.

Springville church held her council August 4. One letter was granted. An offering of $65.85 was taken for a meetinghouse at Malmo, Sweden. Our elder, Bro. Jacob Royer, presided, assisted by Eld. John Herr. The Ministerial Meeting of Eastern Pennsylvania will be held at the Mohler house in November. We appointed our Harvest Meeting for August 24 at 1:30 P. M., at Springville. Bro. H. B. Longenecker, of Palmyra, began a series of meetings at the Blainsport house August 9 and recently baptized one. Our love feast is appointed for Oct. 28 and 29, at 1:30 P. M. at the Mohler house.—Aaron R. Gibbel, Ephrata, Pa., August 11.

Windber.—August 3 we had the pleasure of listening to Brother and Sister J. M. Blough, on furlough from India. The Sunday-school and preaching hours were given to them to use as they chose. A large audience listened attentively to the splendid talks they gave. In the evening they spoke in the Scalp Level house. The following Tuesday evening Sister Blough spoke to the women at the same house and Bro. Blough to men at the Lutheran church.—Mrs. Harvey Knavel, Windber, Pa., August 9.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Melvin Hill church met in council August 9, with Eld. G. A. Branscom in charge. We had quite a good attendance. We had a fine talk by Bro. Branscom. Delegates were elected to District Meeting. We also decided to begin a series of meetings August 25.—Jennie M. Robb, Campobello, S. C., August 12.

TENNESSEE

Pleasant View church met in council July 15. The annual visit was reported. Sept. 13 our love feast will be held. Bro. R. G. Edwards conducted the service yesterday, and Bro. J. D. Clark had charge today. It was decided by the brethren in the council not to allow any refreshments to be sold on the church grounds during the time of the love feast, or no the Sunday following.—N. T. Larimer, Jonesboro, Tenn., August 9.

TEXAS

Nocona church met in council August 2, with Eld. J. A. Miller, of Manvel, presiding. Bro. Walter Shelton was called to the ministry. Brethren Elmer Bowman, L. L. Morse, C. A. Johnson and N. A. McCarty were chosen deacons. All were installed except Brethren Shelton and Morse. The latter was not present and the former asked for some time for consideration. The District Meeting of Texas and Louisiana was held in the Nocona congregation July 24-28. The attendance was small but a good spirit prevailed, and a good interest was manifested throughout the meeting. Bro. E. M. Studebaker, from McPherson, Kans., gave us three splendid addresses on "The Essential Elements of Righteousness," and one on "Christian Loyalty." Bro. J. H. Mooris, of Oklahoma City, preached one sermon on "What Is Man?" Bro. John Stump, of Miami, Texas, made a liberal proposition in regard to the education and training of Mexican children. Our love feast was held July 26, with seven souls communing. Three have been added by baptism since our last report.—Florence Brubaker, Nocona, Texas, August 11.

VIRGINIA

Beaver Creek.—We held our Harvest Meeting August 2. Bro. Ernest Coffman presented a very interesting sermon. His subject was "The Sin of Ingratitude." We had dinner in the basement and a fine social hour was enjoyed together. The rest of the day was spent in singing. A very interesting meeting is in progress at Monterzuma, conducted by Eld. N. J. Miller. We met in council August 2, with Eld. N. J. Miller presiding. One letter was granted. It was decided to call for the Ministerial Meeting in 1920. Sept. 27 is the time set for our communion at Beaver Creek. A committee was appointed to arrange for services alternately at Beaver Creek and Monterzuma on Sunday evenings. We will have a temperance worker with us at Beaver Creek August 31, at 3 o'clock, and at Mt. Bethel at night.—Minnie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va., August 10.

Greenmount church met in council August 9, with Elders B. B. Miller and J. W. Wampler presiding. The visiting brethren gave an encouraging report. Seven letters of membership were given. Our communion meeting will be held on Saturday, August 30.—Annie Miller, Harrisonburg, Va., August 12.

Nokesville.—On Sunday night, August 10, Bro. Moy Gwong, our Chinese brother from Manchester College was with us for the evening service. The meeting had been previously announced and the Seminary chapel was well filled. He spoke in a very impressive way of the opportunities now open in China for the propagation of the Gospel. He showed that those opportunities, together with the great need, create a responsibility for the Christians of America. It is his conviction that by Christianizing China we will not only cause her to become a great blessing to the world, but also remove the problem of the Orient becoming a world menace. The congregation greatly appreciated hearing one who knows the needs and conditions of his people, and who can plead their cause so well.—F. J. Byer, Nokesville, Va., August 11.

Notice.—Those coming by rail to the District Meeting of the Eastern District of Virginia, to be held at the Valley church August 28, will be met at Nokesville by notifying Bro. M. M. Shirkey, Nokesville, Va., stating on what train they will arrive.—Mrs. D. B. Showalter, Bryan, Va., August 12.

Schoolfield.—July 5 Brethren H. J. Woodie and J. F. Robertson, of the Ministerial Board, came for the purpose of attending to an ordination service. The purpose of this meeting was to advance the writer to the full ministry. This state was also the beginning of our series of meetings, in charge of Bro. H. J. Woodie, our elder. Bro. Robertson preached two sermons for us while here, returning home on Monday. Nine were baptized, making a total of eleven received, since our last report, by letter and baptism, and two reclaimed.—A. T. Prather, Schoolfield, Va., August 13.

Unity.—We met in council at the Newdale house August 2. This was our quarterly, and we had a very good report from the brethren. Bro. J. T. Glick, of Bridgewater, who had been among us in the interest of the endowment fund for Bridgewater College, opened the meeting and gave us some good instruction. Unity went over the top in giving her share of the endowment for the college. We decided to have a love feast at Fairview this fall, to follow our series of meetings, to be held by Bro. B. F. Landes. Two were received by letter. Eld. I. N. Zigler presided.—Anna R. Roller, Timberville, Va., August 10.

Valley church met in council August 9, with Bro. S. H. Flory presiding. Three letters were received and two were granted. Arrangements were made for the District Meeting, to be held August 28 and 29. Brethren W. E. Garber and D. B. Showalter are our delegates to District Meeting. The visiting brethren gave their report, after which Bro. J. F. Britton and others made appropriate remarks.—Mrs. D. B. Showalter, Bristow, Va., August 11.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DISTRICT MEETINGS

August 26-28, District of Northwestern Ohio, Deshler church.
August 26-29, District of Oklahoma, Panhandle of Texas and New Mexico, Washita church, near Cordell.
August 27, District of Southern Indiana, at Roesville church.
August 28-29, District of Eastern Virginia, at Valley church.
August 29, 30, District of Western Maryland, Oakland, at Pine Grove church.
August 30-Sept. 1, District of N. Ill. and Wisconsin, Camp Grounds, Lena, Ill.
Sept. 6, 8 a.m., District of Southern California and Arizona at the La Verne church, Calif.
Oct. 7-9, District of Northern Iowa, Panora and S. Dak., at Lewiston, Minn.
Oct. 7-9, District of Middle Iowa, Fernald church.

LOVE FEASTS

Illinois

August 30, Big Creek.
Sept. 16, Panther Creek, all-day meeting.

Indiana

August 24, Ladoga.
August 30, New Salem.
Sept. 6, Oak Grove.
Sept. 6, 7 p.m., Wabash.
Sept. 6, Auburn.
Sept. 6, Maple Grove.
Sept. 13, 7 p.m., Yellow Creek.
Sept. 20, Center.
Sept. 20, Somerset.
Sept. 20, 7:30 p.m, Bethany.
Sept. 27, 7 p.m, Cart Creek.
Sept. 27, New Paris.
Sept. 27, New Hope.
Sept. 27, 6 p.m, Santa Fe.

Iowa

August 29, Libertyville.
Sept. 6, 7:30 p.m, Mt. Etna.
Sept. 22, Dry Creek.

Maryland

Sept. 13, Cherry Grove.
Sept. 13, Fairview.
Sept. 13, 10:30 a.m, Piney Creek.
Sept. 14, Maple Grove.
Sept. 20, 2 p.m, Sams Creek.

Minnesota

Sept. 6, Bethel.

Missouri

August 23, 7 p.m, Prairie View.

Ohio

Sept. 6, 10 a.m, Sugar Creek.
Sept. 7, 6 p.m, Akron.
Sept. 13, 10 a.m, Blue Creek.
Sept. 27, 10 a.m, New Carlisle.

Pennsylvania

Sept. 14, 6 p.m, Indian Creek, County Line house.
Sept. 28, Codorus, at Shrewsbury.

Tennessee

Sept. 13, Pleasant View.

Texas

Sept. 13, Pleasant Grove.

Virginia

August 30, Greenmount.
Sept. 6, Treviltan.
Sept. 20, Rowland Creek.
Sept. 27, Beaver Creek.

West Virginia

August 30, Maple Spring.
Sept. 5, North Mill Creek, at Sycamore.
Sept. 6, North Mill Creek, at Bethel.
Sept. 6, White Pine.
Sept. 6, Salem.
Sept. 6, Knobley.
Sept. 6, Sandy Creek, Salem house.
Sept. 8, South Fork, at South Mill Creek.
Sept. 20, Harman.
Sept. 21, Shiloh.
Sept. 27, Sandy Creek, Mt. Dale house.

Will a College Education Help a Man in Business?

Ex-Mayor Strong of New York, a shrewd business man, answered that question thus: "If I had to choose between two applicants for a position, the one a college-bred man, the other a smart young fellow with only a common school education, I would engage the college graduate if he displayed an equal capacity for work."

A college education makes a better farmer of a man. "The survey [an agricultural one in Hopkins Co., N. Y.] shows that a high school education is worth as much to a farmer as $6,000 worth of 5% bonds. A college education is worth nearly twice as much."

WHY? The college trains the man to reason, think clearly, reach sound conclusions, express himself forcibly, work systematically, be prompt and never give up till success crowns his efforts.

Just such training for life can be had by entering

JUNIATA COLLEGE
HUNTINGDON, PA.

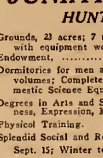
Grounds, 23 acres; 7 major and 3 minor buildings with equipment worth $212,000 00
Endowment, ... 350,000 00
Dormitories for men and for women; Library of over 28,000 volumes; Complete Laboratories; Special up-to-date Domestic Science Equipment.
Degrees in Arts and Sciences and Bible; Diplomas in Business, Expression, Music, Art and Academy.
Physical Training.
Splendid Social and Religious Atmosphere. Fall term opens Sept. 15; Winter term Dec. 30.

JUNIATA COLLEGE, Huntingdon, Pa.

The Man Who Discovered Himself

By Willis George Emerson

In this book you will see how the hero goes forth into the wilderness, poor in purse, broken in health, yet indomitable in his resolve to win health and the power to accomplish things. And he does accomplish it—he does big things, and yet all within the range of possibility. He becomes great, not only in achievement but in the development of his soul.



To thousands of people this wholesome book will come as a golden message of hope and to every reader it will give joy; for it is a fine, true picture of life, drawn with skill and with a sympathetic understanding of human nature. The characters are real, the scenes are real, the thoughts are real, pulsing thoughts; the whole story is convincing in its reality. "The Man Who Discovered Himself" is a book that will be widely read. It is well illustrated by Arthur Hutchins.

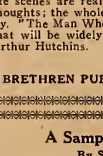
Price, $1.50

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

A Sample Case of Humor

By Strickland Gillilan

Author of "Sunshine and Awkwardness," etc.



America's favorite humorist has written another book to make everybody happy. It has all the clever, original wit that has made his former book, "Sunshine and Awkwardness," one of the present leading humorous sellers. There is fun all through the book, more laughs to the square inch than can be found anywhere else.

"Strickland Gillilan is the official dispenser of sunshine to the American people."—The Lookout. Price, $1.25.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

"Till we all attain unto . . . the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Eph. 4: 14.

Vol. 68 | Elgin, Ill., August 30, 1919 | No. 35

In This Number

Editorial—

The Scope of the Christian Objective, ... 545
Looking Out for Soul Leanness, ... 545
But Look at the Things We Agree In, ... 545
The Quiet Hour, ... 551
Among the Churches, ... 552
Around the World, ... 553

Contributors' Forum—

Jesus Is Calling Thee (Poem). By J. O. Barnhart, ... 546
The Claims of the Christian Ministry.—Part One. By L. S. Shively, ... 546
True Soldiers of the Cross. By Chester E. Shuler, ... 546
The Day's Work in Marash.—No. 3. By A. J. Culler, ... 547
Delegates. By Sadie Price Whisler, ... 547
The Southern Mountaineers.—No. 4. By O. F. Helm, ... 548
Meeting of the General Christian Workers' Board. By A. B. Miller, ... 548
"If a Man Die Shall He Live Again?" By S. Z. Sharp, ... 549
Is There Anything Left? By Rebecca C. Foutz, ... 549

The Round Table—

Where Absence Is Presence. By M. M. Eshelman, ... 550
Christ's Program. By Leander Smith, ... 550
The Master's Enriching. By G. W. Tuttle, ... 550
The Closed Way. By Oma Karn, ... 550
The Things We Leave Behind Us. By Lee W. Pollard, ... 550
Music. By Norman W. Twiddy, ... 551
Our Brave Parents. By Sara Zigler Myers, ... 551

Home and Family—

When Mother Sang (Poem), ... 554
Interesting the Children in Family Worship. By Albert C. Wieand, ... 554
Betty's Secret. By Ida M. Helm, ... 554

...EDITORIAL...

The Scope of the Christian Objective

THAT was a splendid golden text for a lesson on Social Responsibility, wasn't it? Remember it? "As we have opportunity, let us work that which is good toward all men."

Paul was always in for doing somebody good and his somebody was everybody, as nearly as possible. The only limit he knew was opportunity. And what a way he had of expanding his opportunity to the utmost! "As much as in me is." That was his measure of obligation.

"Good toward all men." How do you like that for a Christian objective? Can any program be big enough to go beyond that?

Whence comes this fear of attempting too much for God? Are we apprehensive lest we accomplish more than he wants done? Or lest we sacrifice something needlessly? Something we might have kept and still have saved as many as God cares about!

Do you suppose Paul really meant we ought to "work that which is good toward all men"? Well, certainly not unless "we have opportunity." And shall we go out of our way and put ourselves to a lot of bother just to find the opportunity? What matter a few human beings more or less!!

Looking Out for Soul Leanness

THERE is a fine old hymn which says in one of its stanzas:

> And he gave them their request,
> But sent leanness into their soul.

Don't think that isn't good poetry just because it doesn't rhyme. Or a good hymn just because you can not find it in "Kingdom Songs" or the "Brethren Hymnal."

They wanted meat, and they got it. And something else too. The second line tells what that was.

In making a request of God, or in determining whether to make a request of him, the first point to be considered is not how to insure a favorable response. Before that comes the question of its bearing on your spiritual health.

Will it make your soul lean, if God grants it? Better settle that point before going further.

But Look at the Things We Agree In

IT was not only the power of unity but the beauty of it that impressed the Psalmist when he remarked "How good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Do you get the full force of his illustrations, the exquisiteness of his appeal to the delicate fragrance of the anointing oil and the refreshing dampness of the dew of Hermon? It is a pretty picture, truly, and the reality which it symbolizes, fraternal harmony, is just as fine.

Wouldn't it be great if we could all be of the same mind and speak the same thing? How the Lord's work would move forward! How the Kingdom would grow! How the blade would give place to the ear and this to the full corn in the ear!

Or would it? Would we stagnate and dry up if we all agreed about everything? Do we need variety in view-point to keep us from going to sleep? Are differences a hindrance or a help? Was Paul right? And David?

The evident answer is that perfect accord in everything is the ideal state if the position reached is absolutely right and final. It is better that two persons should think alike if what they think is true. If not, it is better that they differ. There is more hope of progress. Paul and David were right. But that does not mean that brethren can not dwell together in unity unless they think exactly the same thing on all subjects. Nor does it mean that it is better for finite minds to force immediately an artificial unity than by healthy growth to approximate the "unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God." Nor that such minds can not at once, in spite of many differences of opinion, "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

There are some differences among us—some differences in opinion and practice. Of what sort are they? How should we regard them? Suppose we glance at a few of them.

In respect to our doctrine of simplicity in dress, we are not entirely agreed as to the method of its application. Not always, but for many years the body of our membership has held that the best way, the only successful way, to deal with the evils of fashionable dress, is for the church to prescribe a simple form of dress as one of the conditions of membership. Others would recommend and urge, as a means of combating these evils, simple standardized styles of dress, but would not press the matter to the point of making them a test of fellowship. Still others would leave the subject entirely to individual choice, while laboring by continued teaching to instill the principle of simplicity in the heart.

There are also differences of opinion as to the use of musical instruments. In the former days it was quite generally held that any use of such instruments was improper. Of late years most of us have approved the possession and use of musical instruments in our homes, but have not considered it right to use them in the public worship. At the present time not a few of our people consider their use in worship as entirely proper.

Another point of difference pertains to the participation of Christians in the affairs of civil government. Some hold, and this has been the prevailing view among us in the past, that the obligations of civil government are, by their very nature, incompatible with those of a follower of Christ. Others, influenced by the fact that civil government is of divine appointment and a necessity to human welfare, consider it the privilege and even the duty of Christians to assume its obligations. Some would attempt to distinguish between civil obligations which compromise Christian principles and those which do not.

The above-named are some of our most outstanding differences at present. They probably cover the matters concerning which the greatest uneasiness has been felt. By action of the last Conference a committee has under advisement "the difference of practice and teaching in the various churches of the Brotherhood" and will, no doubt, give the subject earnest and conscientious consideration and bring to the Conference some helpful recommendations. Meanwhile, what should be our attitude? How should we feel about the situation?

Looking at any object long and intently tends to exclude everything else from the field of vision, with the result that the object looked at grows in size and importance out of all proportion to other things. If you have been looking at the differences among us until they seem rather large and portentous, possibly it would conduce to a fairer estimate of the whole case to look a while at the things in which we agree. Have you ever tried it?

Are we having any discord about the ordinances? None that has come to our attention. Consider what that means. And what about those great fundamental doctrines of God, Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit, Salvation, Faith, Love, etc., etc.? Any trouble along these lines? Suppose, just for convenience, you take your little book, "Studies in Doctrine and Devotion" and look through the subjects listed and discussed in it and consider how united we are on the doctrines treated. O, yes, you and I both would have wanted to state them in our own way, but when it comes to their essential content, isn't it wonderful what a great body of truth there is on which we are thoroughly agreed?

Better still than taking the book suggested, take your New Testament and as you read note how much of its teaching we are united on. Mark the passages which are called in question. Any queries coming up from your District on the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians? Or the Sermon on the Mount? Or the Great Commission? Before you get through with this you will probably discover a very interesting fact: that the specific points of difference among us are scarcely touched in the New Testament. That is to say, our differences are mainly differences in polity, not doctrine; in method, not principle.

Last week we had occasion to remark upon the differences which prevent the churches generally from effecting an organic union. But it is manifest that our differences belong to an entirely different class. It would be absurdity to the point of ridiculousness to think of making such differences a pretext for further division and adding to the number of the already much too numerous denominations. The ground we hold in common is so large and rich that the disputed territory must look very small and barren. The bonds that unite us are so many and so strong that the discordant tendencies must seem as nothing in comparison.

And while we labor, as we should, to harmonize even these differences as much as possible, we need meanwhile only patience and Christian charity to "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." With a good measure of faith and love we can easily exemplify the Psalmist's picture: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

CONTRIBUTORS' FORUM

Jesus Is Calling Thee

BY J. O. BARNHART

Jesus is calling thee, tenderly, tenderly,
Pause in sin's revelings, list to his voice,
Earth hath no place where earth's joys are abiding,
But they that forsake them forever rejoice.

Jesus is calling thee, pleadingly, pleadingly.
Oh, with what loving, compassionate tone.
Will you not list to his tender entreaties?
The voice of the Shepherd is calling his own.

Out on the mountain the voice of the night-wind
Repeateth the call from the drear, trackless wild,
While you are wandering deeper in darkness,
He calleth, he calleth his prodigal child.

Nearer and nearer the call now reechoes,
Oh, joy, he has found thee, though starving and cold.
How warm he enfolds thee! Rejoice, all ye ransomed,
The lamb that was lost is now safe in the fold.

Oakley, Ill.

The Claims of the Christian Ministry

An Address Delivered at the Winona Lake Conference, June 5, 1919, by L. S. Shively, President of Mount Morris College

In Three Parts—Part One

One of the most difficult things which men and women are called upon to do, is to be fair and impartial in their consideration of the issues and questions which come up for consideration. Nearly every question that can possibly arise, in whatever connection it may present itself, is one in which the judgment is called into action. This very simple fact is sufficient to explain the great differences of opinion which are to be found upon every question which comes before the public. Add to this the thought that in many cases the facts, connected with the subject in question, are very meager and are not fully understood, and we can readily see how very hard it is to give just that importance to the subject which it rightfully deserves.

I am speaking upon a subject which I believe to be a very important one. I believe it is sufficiently important to deserve a prominent place in such a Conference as this one in which we are now engaged. Whenever and wherever the question of the life work of young people is being fully and fairly considered the claims of the Christian ministry ought to be set forth.

Since this subject has been assigned to me, I have thought about it a great deal. I have tried to come to some conclusions, basing them largely upon my own observation and experience. I can not hope to be wholly correct in all these conclusions, but I believe that if I err, it will be in not being able to see as fully as I should, the great importance of the matter in hand. In other words, the danger at this time will be on the side of not understanding completely the high and exalted place which the Christian ministry should hold among us.

The Christian ministry is a high and a noble calling. We have the best of authority for this; this authority is the seal of God himself. When our Lord sent his Son into the world to minister to others, he thereby gave his approval to the idea that this work is a highly important one. It is true that the work of Christ and also of his disciples was somewhat different from that which is today thought of as being the task of the minister of the Gospel. But in the light of changed conditions, social and otherwise, we need not hesitate to identify, in purpose and objects to be attained, the daily work of ministry of our Master and the work of the Christian minister of today. It is possible that there would be a distinct gain to the cause of present-day Christianity, if the modern minister would, in his work, follow a little more closely the methods and practices which were used by Christ and his immediate followers.

But the problem before us, at present, is not that of comparison of the present-day situation, relative to the ministry, with that of any other age or day. It is rather the problem of facing the situation as it is today, studying some of the various phases of it, and determining, as well as we can, what are the most important claims of the Christian ministry.

I presume the thought that first comes to the mind of one, as to what constitutes the principal work of a minister is that it is his Sunday work in the pulpit. That is to say, as we have come to think of these two words, minister and preacher, they are very nearly synonymous. In both our thinking and our speaking, we use them somewhat interchangeably. Now I feel that when we place the duty of preaching first and foremost among the various duties of the minister, we are giving it the place which it deserves. The injunction which we find in Holy Writ, as given by one who had seen a great deal of service, to one who was younger and less experienced in the ministry is: "Preach the word." Paul had about as varied a set of experiences in his Christian ministry as any one who ever attempted to follow the bidding of his Master. He preached, but he did not make preaching the whole of his work. He did a multitude of other things which were very necessary and important to the success of the great work which was laid upon him by his Master. But when he exhorts Timothy, the young minister in whom he was as much concerned as ever a father was concerned for his son, he places foremost the thought of proper attention to his preaching of the Word. In view of all of this and the further fact that Paul knew the field as thoroughly as any one who ever did Christian work, we may well conclude that the most important business of the minister is to preach.

Closely related to this thought of the importance of the preaching phase of the work of the minister, is the thought of the great responsibility which is laid upon him when he takes up this work. You have, most of you, been present at a service of the election and installation of ministers, and during that service the great responsibility of the work was frequently mentioned. It may be that you did not quite understand why so much emphasis should be placed on the idea of responsibility at this time. This is partly made clear by the fact that the one who is delivering the charge and who is emphasizing this point is one who is himself a minister and who understands from experience what the Christian ministry means. I dare say that there is not a minister in the Church of the Brethren, or in any other church, who has taken his ministry at all seriously, who does not feel that he is engaged in a most responsible work. He may devote all of his time to the work, or only a part of it, but it can not be otherwise than that he understands its responsibility. The responsibility of which I am now speaking is a many-sided one. But of all its phases which come up, as we consider this responsibility, to me the one of leading importance is the responsibility of faithfulness to God's own Word, as it is declared from the pulpit. This responsibility would be very materially lessened if the masses of people did their own original thinking. But the fact is that in this day of many books and an abundance of opportunity to lean, through their writings and their public speaking, upon the thought of others; there are too few people in the world today who do independent thinking. This is fully as true, with reference to religious and spiritual matters, as any others. The large majority of people require direction in these things and here is where the opportunity of the minister, as preacher, presents itself in a very large way. If he has a correct interpretation of God's message to man, it is his duty and his great responsibility to give that direction to the thought of his hearers which they need and must have.

I shall have more to say later on about the fact that men and women who do not profess Christianity read from the lives of those who do so profess. But just now I am concerned with the thought that a most important method of bringing to those who need it, the Gospel of Jesus Christ, is the delivery of the message through the pulpit. It is a lamentable fact that too few people are regularly in the churches to hear the message, but those who do go to church get it in that way. And it is here that the preacher, through his spoken words, is able to touch and impress those who come to hear him. There is a great deal of satisfaction for him in the thought that those who do come, week after week, to hear his message are in large part his strong supporters in the work of the church, and in this way he is able, indirectly through them, to reach out and touch the lives of some people in the community who rarely or never come inside of the church.

When we think a little farther concerning other phases of the minister's work and duties, we are led at once to various classes into which this work divides itself. There has been, even as far back as the apostolic day, a division of labor in the work of the ministry. There were then, according to Paul, "Some apostles and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers."

I do not care to dwell specifically upon this division, nor to take up any of these various phases of the ministry separately. I do, however, want to point out first the fact that such a classification exists today, thereby giving opportunity for the exercise of a variety of talents; second, that the common element to all these divisions is the fundamental function of the Christian ministry, namely that of preaching; and third, that the preparation for these different kinds of ministerial work, while differing in details to some extent, is after all very much the same.

True Soldiers of the Cross

BY CHESTER E. SHULER

The first duty of a soldier is to obey. It is said of Napoleon that, while leading his army across the Alps, a difficult pass was reached. Singling out one of his men, the great general stationed him at the entrance to the pass, with orders to guard it till he, Napoleon, should return.

The army passed on, their leader doubtless thinking to come back that way in a short time. Meanwhile, the soldier entered upon his lonely duties. Hour after hour, he paced slowly up and down, up and down, guarding the mountain pass.

Night came, and still Napoleon had not returned. Days passed, and no word had come from him. Weeks lengthened into months, which in turn slipped rapidly away, and the lonely sentry remained true to the trust reposed in him.

Now and then men passed that way, and ridiculed the sentry. But, obedient to his General's command, he continued to guard the pass.

At last, victorious, Napoleon recrossed the mountain. Coming to the pass, he found the soldier still obedient to the command given so long ago.

During the recent world conflict, a great many of our young men have learned, in a very practical manner, the meaning of obedience. About the first thing which was impressed upon the mind of the recruit, when he entered the military service, was that he must do "what he was told, when he was told, because he was told." Prompt, unhesitating, unquestioning obedience to the orders of a superior officer was required. Learning to be obedient was not always easy nor very pleasant. Often it was rather chafing to these high-spirited American youths to know that they had to do this thing or that. However, after a little while, the constant practice of obedience became a sort of "second nature," as it were, and less of a hardship.

When an order is given by a superior officer, it is expected that it will be obeyed promptly and cheerfully by his subordinates. Hesitation will not be tolerated in the army. Disobedience of a superior officer's orders is one of the gravest crimes which a soldier can commit.

Why do we, as "Christian soldiers," not observe a similar spirit of loyal obedience to the commandments of the Great Captain? Why are we so frequently guilty of disobedience and failure to do his will? If disobedience is a grave offense in the sight of military authorities, how terrible must our acts of disobedience to God's commands appear to him!

If professing Christians everywhere gave as diligent heed to the commands and admonitions of the Christ

r, through his spoken words, is able to touch ress those who come to hear him. There is deal of satisfaction for him in the thought se who do come, week after week, to hear sage are in large part his strong supporters work of the church, and in this way he is directly through them, to reach out and he lives of some people in the community rely or never come inside of the church.

n we think a little farther concerning other of the minister's work and duties, we are nce to various classes into which this work itself. There has been, even as far back as stolic day, a division of labor in the work of nistry. There were then, according to Paul, apostles and some prophets, and some evan-and some pastors and teachers."

not care to dwell specifically upon this divior to take up any of these various phases of nistry separately. I do, however, want to out first the fact that such a classification today, thereby giving opportunity for the e of a variety of talents; second, that the n element to all these divisions is the fundafunction of the Christian ministry, namely preaching; and third, that the preparation se different kinds of ministerial work, while g in details to some extent, is after all very he same.

True Soldiers of the Cross

BY CHESTER E. SHULER

first duty of a soldier is to obey. It is said of on that, while leading his army across the Alps, lt pass was reached. Singling out one of his e great general stationed him at the entrance to ss, with orders to guard it till he, Napoleon, return.

army passed on, their leader doubtless thinking
e back that way in a short time. Meanwhile, lier entered upon his lonely duties. Hour after e paced slowly up and down, up and down,
g the mountain pass.

t came, and still Napoleon had not returned.
assed, and no word had come from him. Weeks ned into months, which in turn slipped rapidly nd the lonely sentry remained true to the trust l in him.

and then men passed that way, and ridiculed
try. But, obedient to his General's command, tinued to guard the pass.

ast, victorious, Napoleon recrossed the moun-Coming to the pass, he found the soldier still it to the command given so long ago.

ng the recent world conflict, a great many of ung men have learned, in a very practical mane meaning of obedience. About the first thing was impressed upon the mind of the recruit, e entered the military service, was that he must hat he was told, when he was told, because he ld." Prompt, unhesitating, unquestioning obedi-o the orders of a superior officer was required.
ng to be obedient was not always easy nor very
t. Often it was rather chafing to these high-d American youths to know that they had to do ing or that. However, after a little while, the nt practice of obedience became a sort of "sec-ature," as it were, and less of a hardship.

en an order is given by a superior officer, it is ed that it will be obeyed promptly and cheerfully subordinates. Hesitation will not be tolerated army. Disobedience of a superior officer's ors one of the gravest crimes which a soldier can it.

y do we, as "Christian soldiers," not observe a they claim to love and follow, as a good soldier gives to the orders of his leaders, what wonderful things for God would be accomplished!

The Word of God contains our "orders"; there are some "General Orders" for all; and then, too, there are many "Special Orders" for us individually—some special task which God is expecting us to accomplish for him, and which no one else can do.

How important that we prove always faithful to our tasks as followers of the Christ! How necessary that each of us faithfully endeavor to perform our special work in life! In war, the failure of a single soldier, properly to execute some order, may result in the defeat of the entire army. Failure on the part of Christian soldiers to perform their special parts in God's great campaign of soul-winning delays the victory.

Let us resolve, then, to be more loyal to our Captain! Let us never play false to him by compromising with Satan, the enemy! By fervent prayer and faithful reading of the Word let us keep always in communication with our Commander, that we may learn his will for our lives—the special work he has for each of us—and then, obeying, "put on the whole armor of God," hasten the defeat of the adversary, Satan, and march onward to victory in the wake of the One who has gone on before. Let us prove true soldiers of the cross!

Montgomerys Ferry, Pa.

The Day's Work in Marash

BY A. J. CULLER

No. 3.—Industrial and Educational

ANYONE who thinks of Armenian Relief as doling out food and clothing for a time, has not yet grasped the first elements, either of its principles or its magnitude. The work of relief in this stricken land is as large as life itself. All that goes to make up their life has been broken up—their business, their homes, their community, social and religious being, and all that nexus of relationships which makes the thing we call environment. A new social and economic fabric must be built up, and the individuals, under conditions which are entirely different, must be fitted into the new order of things.

In the first place, they are hopelessly lost from each other and must be reunited. It is estimated that one hundred thousand women and girls are lost beyond recovery among the nomad tribes of the desert. We have an Intelligence Department whose business it is to hunt the lost members of the family. A family of five people may today be in five places, each alive, but none of them knowing whether any of the others are alive, or, if so, where they are. Rarely a day goes by with us but some mother finds a child, or sister a brother, or friend a friend.

An idle mind or hand is the devil's workshop. It is tragic beyond expression to see thousands of people lying about with nothing to do. You almost feel their character disintegrating in this useless life. It has been our principle, all along, to set ourselves with the utmost rigor to the problem of industrial reconstruction. In the first place, we have established a Loan Fund for those who will start up in business. This fund is made up of three equal sources. The Armenians who have something give a third, the British one-third and we one-third. We make loans ranging from $20 to $60, which they begin repaying after six months at the rate of from two to five dollars per month until it is all paid, and this is free of interest. We are making these loans by the hundreds and are considering it our best investment.

The Armenians are counted by many as the most thrifty people on earth and their reputation for as three bakeries, two shoemaking shops, besides running about twenty farms and as many vineyards. Some of these were turned over to the missionaries and we now use Armenians to work them and use the products for supporting the orphanages and the poor. The largest industry in this city is the weaving. We have altogether, in coöperation with the Armenian Church Committee, about ninety looms at work. We buy the wool and cotton in the raw state and have it beaten and spun by our needy workers. We also give out the cloth for sewing into clothing and beds. We can not give exact estimates of the people employed, for much of the work is given in bulk to native women who have groups of the widows and poor work at it, but perhaps three thousand are working at spinning, weaving, and sewing, at the present time.

It is expected that very soon the British army will enter upon a program of road building, which will give employment to large numbers. By means of the Village Loan Fund and also the fund of ten thousand dollars for Zeitoun, spoken of in the last article, we are hoping that many thousands more will soon be engaged in productive employment. Just now the harvest and later the vineyards will furnish labor to thousands. We also recognize that as individual Armenians get their business reëstablished, they will be able to give employment to some of their less fortunate brethren.

We are trying to have all the boys in the Orphanage learn a trade, and to have all the girls learn to work. One of the bad twists in the character of Oriental peoples is, that when they get an education they consider themselves above work and soon become a separate class, with a false pride. They are, what we know in America, as the "clean shirt" people. These "Effendis"—for such is the title of honor for an educated man who does not do manual labor—are likely to become the bane of their people. I have the hardest time getting the young fellows, who later wish to go to college, to get to work at something. Our principle with the Armenians is the same as that which Booker T. Washington applied to the negroes of the South. We demand that they learn to do useful work. The most pitiful people today are the ones with white hands, who are absolutely useless when placed at manual toil. There is nothing I have more persistently preached among the Armenians than the Gospel of work. Their distinction between the mental and manual is false and leads to disastrous results.

We have schools organized in the orphanages which go about as far as the first year of high school in America. They have about the same studies as we, except that we require reading and writing in Armenian, Turkish, and English; with also a year of French, if they desire it. Music and religion are required, as also are the athletic exercises. I have already mentioned that with their school-work must go the learning of a trade.

I have said that I preach nothing with more consistency than the Gospel of work. Another ideal must be placed along with that. There is a danger in Armenia which we fear, and to avert which we ardently work and pray. It is the tendency towards nationalism. There are those—and their number is large—who think the time has come for Armenia to assert her nationalistic claims. They think that if America takes Armenia over, they will send an unlimited number of soldiers, to be placed at Armenia's disposal, and they will set up their rule over others. This movement idealizes force. It is imperialistic in nature, and disparages religion. It calls to Armenia not along the line of their ideals and spiritual possibilities but along nationalistic lines. This is deadly.

so, too. And her best men are always found living closest to the Bible and the Conference decisions. We sometimes find wolves in sheep's clothing, but it would be a rare sight to find a sheep in wolves' clothing. So I say: "Our best members stand by our church decisions and do not find them grievous." There is so much truth in that beautiful song,

"The Savior is dearer to me every day,
The closer I live to him;
And brighter his glory illumines my way,
The closer I live to him.

"His service grows sweeter and sweeter to me,
The closer I live to him;
And more of his goodness and mercies I see,
The closer I live to him.

"I long more and more in his likeness to be,
The closer I live to him,
And surer I am that his face I shall see,
The closer I live to him."

The reason why so many people do not enjoy their Christian life is because they live so far from him. How we enjoy to do his will when we have been close to him and received the Spirit, and where can we get the Spirit better than at our Conferences? If we will go hungering and thirsting for righteousness we shall be filled. And oh, how I wish all of our members who possibly can, would attend all our church Conferences! We would surely see an awakening in our own church. Still I am glad to know that a larger per cent of our members attend these meetings than of almost any other organization.

While at Winona this year, I was staying with a lady (not a member) who said to me: "Your people are all of them interested in the church, aren't they?"

I was sorry I could not say yes, but I replied: "Most of them." And on reflection I wondered if that was an exaggeration, but it surely inspires one to see so many earnest Christians interested enough to come hundreds of miles to gain spiritual power, and to see them mostly in the order—the sisters, young and old, with their prayer-veils and bonnets, and the young brethren not ashamed of their garb, which at once shows them to be in the service of the Master. We know the soldier is not ashamed of the uniform which marks him as a soldier of the Government. And how much more should we not all be uniformed to combat sin in the world?

But back to the question of the delegate. While I believe we should each one be known by our dress, as soldiers of the cross, still it is yet more important that the leaders be so. As to the restrictions concerning tobacco, it needs no argument to the informed, unbiased mind. So I can see nothing in the list of specifications that would hinder a really spiritual member acting as a delegate. Let those who would be delegates, line up with scriptural requirements, as they should anyway. Then they may be chosen to help make the rules to govern the church of Christ. And let us not say that our beloved church has not a democratic or representative government, for we may have if we are only obedient to her. If we haven't, it's our own fault, not the fault of the church.

Udell, Iowa.

The Southern Mountaineers

BY O. F. HELM

Number Four

In some of the more isolated districts of the Southern mountains there is living today a very peculiar people known as "clay-eaters." They are so called because they partake daily of clay which is of a dark blue color and abounds in some of the remote districts. This habit of clay-eating is hereditary and is very injurious to health. Rarely does one of these people live to be fifty years old. Their skin is almost ash color and their sunken eyes, pale lips and tottering forms tell the sad story of their wasted lives.

It was my privilege to spend a few days with these sad, neglected people. The little colony I speak of is located in a very lonely and desolate part of the Blue Ridge Mountains, about thirty miles northwest of the city of Asheville, N. C. It is rather difficult to give an accurate description of their little cabins, or perhaps I had best say mud-daubed huts, for they all admit very freely both wind and rain. As a rule, however, they are built of logs hewn on one side only and contain but one room. Occasionally the builders had enough ambition to cut a window in one end and a door at the side, but I visited at least a dozen of these little homes of the "clay-eaters" that were walled on three sides only, with the fourth side open to the weather. The mule or ox occupies a shelter similar to that of the mountaineers, or perhaps I had best say "clay-eaters," for they differ very much from all other people of the mountains with whom I have mingled. They have no regard whatever for the laws of health. How can they have any regard for that of which they are entirely ignorant? It is a common thing for both old and young to go through the cool, damp winter with bare feet, or if shoes are worn at all, it is only during a few days, now and then, when the weather is very cold indeed.

Many of these people have never heard the whistle of a locomotive, nor seen a train of cars. They dwell in a section where good roads are unknown and where railroads have not been built, and while they are not so far away from modern civilization in actual distance, the rough, hilly condition of the country makes one mile seem like ten. In the well-developed sections of our country one can travel ten miles much easier than he can travel one mile in some parts of this section.

Just when and how these people began this dreadful habit of clay-eating, I am unable to state, but it must have developed from a lack of sweets, for sugar with these people is a luxury, and the soil, I am told, will not grow sugar cane. On tasting this clay I found it to be very sweet, reminding me of granulated sugar mixed with dough. Their daily fare is very meagre, consisting largely of corn-bread, black-eyed peas and sweet potatoes. They usually had some kind of game, but it was always so poorly prepared that I was unable to eat but a bite or two. During my short stay with these people I had the following standing order from their bill of fare, for breakfast, dinner and supper: Two medium-sized sweet potatoes, a small piece of cornbread and a glass of cool spring water.

Since being here I have often asked myself the question: Is there not some way by which we can help them to become useful, law-abiding, God-fearing people? After a very careful study of the situation I am convinced that the only way it can be done is through a mission school—a school that will prepare them for usefulness in this world and at the same time prepare them for the life to come. It would, indeed, be necessary to begin with the children—the little tots—before they become addicted to this terrible habit of "clay-eating." Of course, as stated before, the habit is hereditary, but it undoubtedly could be largely overcome by proper care in early life. To the little child nature presents an unfailing source of instruction and delight. The heart not yet hardened by contact with evil, is quick to respond to the Presence that pervades all created things, and the ear is attentive to the voice that speaks through nature's utterances.

As the dwellers in Eden learned from nature's pages, as Moses discerned God's handwriting on the Arabian plains and mountains, and as Jesus, when a Child, gathered information on the hillsides of Nazareth, so these little children, in the most isolated parts of the Southern mountains, may learn of their great Creator and become more and more like him.

Of course, patient, painstaking effort would necessarily have to be made for the encouragement and uplifting of the entire community, and for their education along industrial and sanitary lines. The school and all its surroundings should be object-lessons, teaching ways of improvement and appealing to the people to reform, so that taste, industry and refinement may take the place of coarseness, uncleanliness, disorder, ignorance and sin. Even the poorest and most miserable can improve their condition by earnest, careful efforts, and we, by our lives and Christian courtesy, will be able to do much for them.

It has often become the habit of modern Christianity to regard truth too much in the abstract. Then the next natural step is to regard truth—the abstract—as unimportant. It was not so with the Christianity of Christ and the apostles. The healing of the sick went on with the telling of the principles of truth. The life was reformed as the mind was instructed. The salvation of Christ meant higher living, better methods, greater life and power. I believe the best method by which we can reach these people is to reveal the doctrine by a practical application in life, and upon this basis a mission school could proclaim the truth to these neglected people who are so sadly in need of Christ.

Edison, Ga.

Meeting of the General Christian Workers' Board

BY A. B. MILLER, SECRETARY

The General Christian Workers' Board, created by the Annual Conference of 1919, met at Elgin Aug. 14. Three sessions were held, at which all three members were present. After spending some time in general discussion, in order to get its bearings, the Board proceeded to definite work, organizing as follows: Chairman, I. V. Funderburgh, La Verne, Calif.; Vice-Chairman, Mrs. S. L. Whisler, Milledgeville, Ill.; Secretary-Treasurer, A. B. Miller, Bridgewater, Va. Bro. J. E. Miller, Elgin, Ill., was chosen as Acting Secretary of the Board.

The Board appreciated the counsel of Bro. J. E. Miller, Sunday-school Editor, who placed himself at their service and offered every possible aid and advice. It was largely through his help that the Board feels that, at its first meeting, it at least got started.

Certain definite work was assigned to each member of the Board. The Chairman is responsible for plans, organization and general supervision of the work, the Vice-Chairman is to have supervision of literature and publications, and the Secretary-Treasurer is to collect the statistical reports.

A multitude of questions came before the Board for consideration, plans were discussed, the task entered upon enthusiastically and the work proceeded with most harmoniously. The Board believes that it will have some interesting plans to announce ere long. Until then it must be content to give this brief account of its work.

Many Societies have found it difficult to secure the active support of the church membership because the young people were not trained early enough. To meet this need, the General Sunday School Board had organized the Junior Department. There has been a feeling that the step between these two departments was too great and in order to meet this, the present Board has planned three departments—i. e., Senior, Intermediate (high school age) and Junior.

Editors of these departments have been selected and will be announced later. The topics and "write-ups" will appear, as heretofore, in the Young People and Our Boys and Girls under the direction of the Sunday-school Editor.

It is the desire of the Board that the District Sunday-school Secretaries continue to serve as Christian Workers' Secretaries also, until further arrangements can be made, and that the officers of all Societies and, indeed, that all Sunday-school and church workers give the new Board every possible aid. Your coöperation is most earnestly requested. There can be no success without you.

The Chairman was instructed to care for the program at Annual Conference and the Vice-Chairman is to represent the Board at the joint meeting of the Boards of the church in September. It is the plan of the Board to render its full share in pushing the Forward Movement and to so coördinate its work with other activities that there will be no duplication of effort on the part of the Christian Workers' Societies, nor the Sunday-school and other organizations.

The Board decided to renew its affiliation with the Young People's Section of the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations.

A questionnaire will be sent to the churches, through the Sunday-schools, in December, when it is hoped full and complete reports can be had of the Christian Workers' Societies all over the Brotherhood.

The Board finds itself with an empty treasury. For this reason we are urging every Society to send in its Annual contribution now, not waiting until December.

nd the apostles. The healing of the sick went the telling of the principles of truth. The life ormed as the mind was instructed. The salva-Christ meant higher living, better methods, life and power. I believe the best method by ve can reach these people is to reveal the doc-a practical application in life, and upon this mission school could proclaim the truth to these ed people who are so sadly in need of Christ.
on, Ga.

ng of the General Christian Workers' Board

BY A. B. MILLER, SECRETARY

General Christian Workers' Board, created by nual Conference of 1919, met at Elgin Aug. 14.
sessions were held, at which all three members resent. After spending some time in general ion, in order to get its bearings, the Board proto definite work, organizing as follows: Chair-
V. Funderburgh, La Verne, Calif.; Vice-Chair-
Irs. S. L. Whisler, Milledgeville, Ill.; Secretaryrer, A. B. Miller, Bridgewater, Va. Bro. J. E.
Elgin, Ill., was chosen as Acting Secretary of ard.

Board appreciated the counsel of Bro. J. E.
Sunday-school Editor, who placed himself at ervice and offered every possible aid and advice.
largely through his help that the Board feels its first meeting, it at least got started.

ain definite work was assigned to each member Board. The Chairman is responsible for plans, ization and general supervision of the work, the hairman is to have supervision of literature and itions, and the Secretary-Treasurer is to collect istical reports.

ultitude of questions came before the Board for eration, plans were discussed, the task entered enthusiastically and the work proceeded with harmoniously. The Board believes that it will ome interesting plans to announce ere long. Unit must be content to give this brief account of k.

y Societies have found it difficult to secure the support of the church membership because the people were not trained early enough. To meet ed, the General Sunday School Board had ord the Junior Department. There has been a that the step between these two departments
o great and in order to meet this, the present has planned three departments—i. e., Senior, ediate (high school age) and Junior.

tors of these departments have been selected and announced later. The topics and "write-ups" ppear, as heretofore, in the Young People
Our Boys and Girls under the direction of the y-school Editor.

s the desire of the Board that the District Sunhool Secretaries continue to serve as Christian ers' Secretaries also, until further arrangements made, and that the officers of all Societies and,
, that all Sunday-school and church workers
he new Board every possible aid. Your coöpera-s most earnestly requested. There can be no ss without you.

Chairman was instructed to care for the pro-at Annual Conference and the Vice-Chairman is resent the Board at the joint meeting of the ls of the church in September. It is the plan of oard to render its full share in pushing the For-Movement and to so coördinate its work with activities that there will be no duplication of on the part of the Christian Workers' Societies, he Sunday-school and other organizations.

e Board decided to renew its affiliation with the

We must have funds. Send your offering in now to the Secretary-Treasurer, A. B. Miller, Bridgewater, Va. Send all other communications to General Christian Workers' Board, Church of the Brethren, Elgin, Illinois.

"If a Man Die Shall He Live Again?"

BY S. Z. SHARP

Job 14: 14

THIS question agitated the mind of Job about four thousand years ago and has occupied the minds of many great thinkers ever since. To the Christian, who accepts the statements of the Bible, no further arguments are needed, but the majority of the people in the world are not Christians. The Scriptures say: "Be ready always to give answer to every man that asketh you a reason concerning the hope that is in you." This requires us to go outside of the Bible to meet the arguments of the skeptic, the materialist and the heathen. The reasons we offer are drawn from science, from reason and from the Book of Nature, which has the same Author as the Book of Revelation and is in harmony with it.

1. Nature Suggests the Immortality of the Soul.—One of the great truths revealed by nature is that of design, as, for example, the wings of birds for flying, the fins of fish for swimming and the structure of plants for propagation, hence, if we find in nature that man is adapted to immortality, the argument is valid.

If a heathen, who had never seen or known anything about a watch, should find one on the desert, and its fine mechanism and the use to which it is adapted, were pointed out to him, he would at once conclude that the watch did not come into existence by blind chance, but that it was constructed with a design to meet some purpose, and therefore must have had a designer or a maker. But the mechanism of a watch and its evident design are not more wonderful and clear than the mechanism of the human body with its network of nerves and arteries, the functions of the vital organs, and the pulsations of the heart, like the ticking of a watch, hence there must have been a design in man's creation. When it is further proved that, in addition to man's material structure of his body, he has also a soul and an intelligence that controls the body and employs it in various achievements, and that it has capacities for development far beyond what may be attained in this life, it is suggested that this development is intended for an existence beyond death.

Man is endowed with five senses, and we find that in nature provision is made to gratify the desires of those senses—beauty for the sight, music for the hearing, heat and cold for the feeling, the aroma of flowers for the smell and the delicious fruit for the taste. In like manner there is provision made by nature to gratify every propensity and desire of the mind. The world within and the world without correlate. The soul of man is endowed with an intense desire for continued existence. Man abhors nothing worse than annihilation. Now, since we find that nature has made provision to gratify every other desire of man, it is logical to conclude that provision has been made for man's existence after death.

We also find in nature certain forces or entities, associated with matter, which are invisible, immaterial and imponderable. They are not matter but spirit, hence indestructible when matter is destroyed with which they are associated. Of such forces are magnetism, cohesion, attraction, electricity and the life principle. Since these forces are not a part of the material bodies in which they dwell, they are not destroyed, but simply driven out when their house is demolished. The body may be destroyed, but the spirit is simply driven out, and continues to exist.

2. Science Decides in Favor of Immortality of the Soul.—It is a well-established fact in science that whence it came. Thus the statement of Eccl. 12: 7 is corroborated: "Dust returneth to the earth as it was and the spirit returneth to God who gave it."

Many facts in science now exist which a few years ago were considered impossible. It is but a few years since the people of Dayton, Ohio, hooted at the Wright Brothers for claiming that man could fly through the air. Still more impossible was it considered, before Marconi's discovery, that man could speak to his fellow-man across the ocean without any material connection between them. Similarly skeptical are many about man being able to speak to his fellow-man across the chasm of death, yet this is not more wonderful than what science has already accomplished. In fact, it is maintained that this feat has already been accomplished.

In London there exists a psychological association that has spared neither money nor effort to test critically every form of psychological phenomenon known, such as spirit-rappings, somnambulism, mesmerism, hypnotism, absent healing, telepathy, etc. Some of these have been found to be frauds, while others are seemingly well authenticated. Apparently communication from the spirit world to man was not confined to the prophets of old, but is of frequent occurrence at the present time, such as a consciousness of the death of a friend at a distance, or as the case, described in a little book by Eld. James A. Sell, "The Children of the Alleghanies." These littles ones were lost and had died, but information came from the spirit world where to find them.

More familiar, however, is telepathy, or the communication of one soul with another, outside of the ordinary channels, through the senses. For example, a person may be blindfolded and sit on a platform before an audience. Another person may walk down the aisle among the audience and receive all kinds of articles such as knives, watches, books, etc. The person receiving these articles asks the one blindfolded what he has in his hand and the latter tells him immediately what he has—the color, value or anything that may be asked about the article. This proves that one soul may communicate with another soul without any material connection. Why not, then, with the spirits of the departed who have left the body?

3. Reason Decides in Favor of Immortality.—Both nature and science teach the existence of a Supreme Being, who created the material universe, adjusted the planets in their orbits and enacted the laws which govern them. These laws have been discovered by astronomers, so that Kepler exclaimed: "O God, I think thy thoughts after thee!"

Nature also reveals some of the characteristics and attributes of the Creator, clearing showing that he is a Beneficent Being, providing for the sustenance of every living creature, and that he is especially considerate of man, creating him last, after he had prepared the world for his happiness. After nature and science have given their testimony, reason steps in and points out that this Creator is a Being of love, justice, law and order, and that he has not only made provision for all the temporal wants and desires of man, but also for his craving for immortality.

This desire in man for continued existence is universal, we find, and has been prevalent in all ages and among all nations. From Virgil and Ovid we learn that it existed among the ancient Greeks and Romans. The historians and philosophers taught it. Cicero, Seneca, Plutarch, Socrates and Plato testify to its existence. The Egyptians, Persians, Chaldeans, and, in fact, all the Asiatic nations, believed in it. It was common to the unlettered as well as the learned. Both in North and South America the Indians believe in "a happy hunting ground" for their braves after death.

From the character and attributes of the Creator, was with me exclaimed, as his eye alighted on the pipe: "That is a memento of Elder ——."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Well," returned he, "Elder —— lived a short distance from this mine and he dug his supply of coal here himself, and there has been no coal taken out since. He removed from the community years ago."

Then I thought, "Truly, men leave their mark everywhere, but could not an elder in the Church of the Brethren have left something better to the community than an old corn-cob pipe? When he enters the gates of heaven and his book of life is opened up, what will be shown on that page whereon is written his life record in this community? Will the finger point down along the column and among the things enumerated find the item: 'An old corn-cob pipe'"?

Will such an item not seem out of place thereon? Many good things will doubtless be inscribed on the page. Perhaps, an item will be written thus: "One young soul taught God's ways." Another will read: "An erring brother brought back to the fold." Still another: "Two missionaries began the Father's work under Eld. ——'s care," and so on.

But not only the good things will be shown. How many boys might that "old corn-cob pipe" have influenced to become enslaved to King Nicotine?

The king, on his part, might have caused them to seek after John Barleycorn and, as a result, their names could not be found in the "Lamb's Book of Life."

Many men will bring forth the statement: "If God did not mean tobacco to be of some use, he would not have created it."

True, but I do not believe it was meant, by an All-wise Creator, to be chewed, as a cow would chew her cud, nor do I believe he intended that man should use tobacco to blow smoke into the faces of persons who happen to be near by.

Tobacco can be turned from a curse to mankind into a blessing for humanity. For instance, by proper manufacturing methods, it can be made into preparations to use in the elimination of flying and crawling insects which destroy crops.

Tobacco is the twin brother of the liquor evil. Not long ago I noticed a small pamphlet in which a certain stock broker advised his clients to buy particular stocks. He gave his reasons for his belief that those stocks would soon advance in price.

Among these stocks, he named a prominent tobacco company. In regard to this particular one, he made a statement somewhat like this: "Tobacco companies are bound toward great prosperity because the Government will soon prohibit the sale of liquors. Men who were steady drinkers will now turn their tastes to tobacco, and a great consumption of this article will take place."

What ignoble sentiment! What baneful influences are always at work! Truly, tobacco as used by man is "matter ont of place."

Garrett, Pa.

Music

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

Music has always charmed man. Gentle cadences have soothed his soul, just as powerful crescendos have called him into action. It is even said that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." In the soul of all races there is an intangible something which, despite circumstance, environment or condition, responds to the harmonious blending of tones.

God has implanted that appreciation of music in the soul of all created beings. Low, indeed, the brute which appreciates not the flights of rhythm. Yet that appreciation is heightened by sensitiveness of feeling, and that soul sensitiveness is found in its highest development only in man at his best. In some it is crude, undeveloped, but in all it is latent. The very universe of whirling planets is set in harmony with the laws of the Father. All nature speaks of harmony, in the rustling wind, as it sings in the leaves of the oak, or soughs through the branches of the pine; in the roaring of the mighty ocean or in the tinkling of the gentle rill—the music of God speaks through all creation.

The message of the universe and of nature is this: Nature tuned to nature's God gives out music. The message to man is the same, in essence: Man tuned to the same God, by faith in Jesus Christ gives out a life of music. When the Master Musician touches our heart-strings they vibrate. The tune is a tune of love. Jesus Christ is he who can > "Help us . . . take our bit of singing,

> And drop it in some narrow vale,
> And set the echoes ringing."

The music which he sets our hearts a-singing is not a selfish tune but, by its very tunefulness, we are impelled to hum it into a heart which knows him not. We bring that heart to Jesus and the music in our souls swells in a glorious crescendo of satisfaction, which none but the Christ of Calvary can play upon the strings of a truly Christian heart. It is that music which shall sing its way from "Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands" until the world is one vast orchestra, tuned to the praises of the Master. Do you know that gladsome music today?

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Our Brave Parents

BY SARA ZIGLER MYERS

When children leave the parental roof and start out upon life's pathway, they are almost certain to think back, at some quiet moment, upon the bravery shown and exercised by their devoted parents. And it is no more than fair to tell them, at some time, what this means. At the same time it is quite encouraging and strengthening to any child to know that he is really backed up in his undertakings by such noble spirits.

In the first place, the mere adventure of assuming parenthood shows great bravery in the two young hearts who have agreed to spend life together. And it is only through God's direction that parenthood can be made the big thing that it should be in their lives. With the dawn of a little life into the big, untried world, comes a responsibility upon parents, the like of which, I imagine, can be made by nothing else. And with the recognition of such responsibility by Christian parents, there is sure to come, through prayer and united communication with God, a spirit of bravery unexcelled by aught else.

Immediately upon its arrival, the little bud, under normal conditions, begins to develop gradually into the full-grown flower. Its brave parents are constantly on the outlook, to give it only the most nourishing physical, mental and spiritual food. They watch its tender growth with the most intense interest, and as it passes from stage to stage, they are sure to do everything within their power to encourage the best of development. And yet they allow such experiences of its own that it may not be a weakling.

Time goes on. The nestling grows. The parents bravely watch, encourage, and chastise when necessary. Finally the time comes when the child leaves the home fire for college, perhaps. Then comes a moment when a different kind of bravery is exercised by the parents. I'm quite sure that only our parents know what it means to bid farewell to the young, inexperienced boy or girl, who must leave home for college for the first time. Ask any Christian parent, especially a mother, and she will tell you that it took bravery and determination, on her part, to see her child go out from under her direct care and guidance. She will, perhaps, tell you that she has spent many anxious moments, day and night, thinking of her child and his welfare. While she trusts him and has all confidence in him, as long as it is at all possible, yet she has a constant feeling of anxiety, for fear he might be wrongly influenced by some careless or hastily-chosen associate.

And now let us look at it from the other side, for a moment, since we have become old enough to appreciate, in a small way, what our parents mean to us. How many times do we thoughtlessly grieve them by misconduct, or a lack of concern for their wishes! We do not realize the sacrifice which some of our parents must make for our education and training.

Then, when the school-days are over, and the parents become aware of the fact that their children must start out in life for themselves, there must surely be another kind of bravery, still a little different. To begin with, they are vitally interested in the choice of a proper life companion. How anxious they must be that their children make a wise choice, and are happily mated! How bravely and devoutly they pray for the proper course to be taken! They trust their children, but, at the same time, realize from experience that they need advice and direction. Many children, however, do not appreciate until it is too late what their parents meant

(Continued on Page 555)

THE QUIET HOUR

Suggestions for the Weekly Devotional Meeting Or for Prayerful, Private Meditation.

A Promise That Can Not Fail

Isaiah 55: 11

For Week Beginning September 7, 1919

1. Introductory.—"So shall my word be"—as powerful in the mouth of prophets as it is in the hand of Providence. "It shall not return unto me void"—as being unable to effect what it was sent for, or meeting with an insuperable opposition. No, God's Word is invincible: "It shall accomplish that which I please." Being the declaration of his will, according to the terms of which he controls all things, "it shall prosper in the thing" for which he sent it. This guarantees to us several important things, well worthy of our best effort.

2. God's Assurances Will Be Verified in Due Time.—Not the smallest part shall fail (1 Kings 8: 56). God's promises of mercy and grace shall have as real an effect upon the souls of believers, for their sanctification and comfort, as ever the rain had upon the earth, to make it fruitful.

3. Varying Results of God's Word.—Since the Word is sent forth upon different errands, it will have different effects. If it be not a savor of life, it will be a savor of death unto death. If it do not convince the conscience and soften the heart, it will sear the conscience and harden the heart. If it do not ripen us for heaven, it will but confirm our final doom (Isa. 6: 9). One way or the other, it will take effect.

4. Christ's Mission According to God's Plan.—The world's Redeemer came to this earth as the dew from heaven (Hosea 14: 5), and his mission was not in vain. If Israel would not allow itself to be gathered, the Lord would make his name glorious in the conversion of the Gentiles. To them, therefore, the offers of Divine Favor were made after the Jews refused them. In that way the great marriage supper at the end of time will finally be furnished with guests. Well may we say: "The Gospel will not return unto him void."

5. God Works Out His Purposes Despite All Hindrances.—What a source of strength it would be to the church, if it could only fully realize that God is consummating his high purposes as surely as time speeds onward! How does it happen that we do not see this more clearly? It is largely because we do not view the factors in the case with sufficient faith and broadness of vision. We do not take the long look backward through all the centuries, as we should. Judgments based on a few events, or on the facts of a few years, are not trustworthy.

6. Christian Influences as a Molding Power.—The Christian sentiment of the present age—impelled by Divine Power—is crystallizing for the formation of its sentence of condemnation upon the great public evils, so deplorably in evidence. Even now we hear a righteous, scathing, and final verdict upon the shameless iniquities of inordinate greed, of selfishness in all its varied forms, and the organized forces of sensuality and licentiousness. Some day, too, there will be manifested a growing consciousness of the unreasonableness and inhumanity of war between man and man. He who has faith abounding, is not disturbed in the least, while avowing his adherence to the principles of peace. The clamor of military propagandists can not defeat the Lord's plans. God still rules.

7. Suggestive References.—God's great power (Psa. 46: 10). We may sow in tears, but we shall reap in joy (Psa. 126: 5, 6). A glorious prospect (Micah 4: 3, 4). Abundance of God's glory (Hab. 2: 14). Nothing can hinder the progress of the church (Matt. 16: 18). Things that endure (Heb. 12: 27, 28). The joys of our glorious home beyond (Rev. 22: 1-4). A sure word of prophecy (2 Peter 1: 4, 19, 20, 21). God's Word ever abides (1 Peter 1: 23-25). We must give heed to the Scriptural warnings (Heb. 2: 1-3).

tuation of the kind, man's part is to trust and part is to work. Turning aside, wavering, on rt, only serves to delay the workings of his ence. The real way—his way—remains closed longer. If so unfortunate as to be found at the f wavering, keep your eyes fixed on God and oughts on his promises. "For the Lord thy a merciful God; he will not forsake thee," has nged any in meaning, as it has come to us, down the ages, from the time of the wilderness ing.
at time I am afraid, I will trust in thee." Oh, et comfort of knowing that we are in the safe
of One that will not—can not—fail us.
be still," should stay our troubled soul and our faltering trust today, quite as effectually illed the stormy waves of Galilee more than n centuries ago. Cease conjecturing about the e and lay hold of whatever is in sight to do. If r is closed to work, if there is some hinderance e handicap which prevents active service, then per that

"They, too, serve,
Who only stand and wait."

ng of perfect assurance that God knows—ands—will presently come to our aid. With it ne the willingness to trust, to wait until the way ill not doubt

ugh all my ships at sea
ie drifting home with broken masts and sails, ill believe: the Hand that never fails,
m seeming ill, is working good for me:
though I weep because those sails are tattered,
I will cry, while my best hopes lie shattered, trust in thee.'"

we know that God's ships at sea will always safe harbor. And God's hopes will never be
ed. And his hopes and his plans are all ours, thing can rob us of them. We lose nothing
e lose our all and gain his all.

nd, Ohio.

The Things We Leave Behind Us

BY LEE W. POLLARD

A Special Message to Men

s ago, when I attended school, the professor in of the psychology class asked: "What is In answering his own question, he said: "Dirt er out of place."
k it over, brethren. Is his definition not as correct as it is possible for one to be?
years later I had occasion to visit one of those ountry coal mines or "coal banks," from which people of the community obtain their supply of This small coal mine does not differ in appear-rom hundreds which are found scattered out the coal-mining regions of the nation, yet nd an object there which surely did not belong mine nor did it contribute anything toward the tion of the coal.
mine is an abandoned one, and there were no of visitors to be found, for perhaps a number of revious to our own call. Still the object men-above was placed in its position in that mine by nd of a man. I say: "The hand of a man it there," because few women will take as good objects of this kind as men. A shelf had even ig out of the coal, along the side of the work-n which to place this particular piece of man's raft. It seemed to me that this had been done y for the protection of the object, but also in that the owner would be less likely to lose it the coal and slate.
the owner's standpoint, this article was there-
was with me exclaimed, as his eye alighted on the pipe: "That is a memento of Elder ——."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Well," returned he, "Elder —— lived a short distance from this mine and he dug his supply of coal here himself, and there has been no coal taken out since. He removed from the community years ago."

Then I thought, "Truly, men leave their mark everywhere, but could not an elder in the Church of the Brethren have left something better to the community than an old corn-cob pipe? When he enters the gates of heaven and his book of life is opened up, what will be shown on that page whereon is written his life record in this community? Will the finger point down along the column and among the things enumerated find the item: 'An old corn-cob pipe'"?

Will such an item not seem out of place thereon? Many good things will doubtless be inscribed on the page. Perhaps, an item will be written thus: "One young soul taught God's ways." Another will read: "An erring brother brought back to the fold." Still another: "Two missionaries began the Father's work under Eld. ——'s care," and so on.

But not only the good things will be shown. How many boys might that "old corn-cob pipe" have influenced to become enslaved to King Nicotine?

The king, on his part, might have caused them to seek after John Barleycorn and, as a result, their names could not be found in the "Lamb's Book of Life."

Many men will bring forth the statement: "If God did not mean tobacco to be of some use, he would not have created it."

True, but I do not believe it was meant, by an All-wise Creator, to be chewed, as a cow would chew her cud, nor do I believe he intended that man should use tobacco to blow smoke into the faces of persons who happen to be near by.

Tobacco can be turned from a curse to mankind into a blessing for humanity. For instance, by proper manufacturing methods, it can be made into preparations to use in the elimination of flying and crawling insects which destroy crops.

Tobacco is the twin brother of the liquor evil. Not long ago I noticed a small pamphlet in which a certain stock broker advised his clients to buy particular stocks. He gave his reasons for his belief that those stocks would soon advance in price.

Among these stocks, he named a prominent tobacco company. In regard to this particular one, he made a statement somewhat like this: "Tobacco companies are bound toward great prosperity because the Government will soon prohibit the sale of liquors. Men who were steady drinkers will now turn their tastes to tobacco, and a great consumption of this article will take place."

What ignoble sentiment! What baneful influences are always at work! Truly, tobacco as used by man is "matter out of place."

Garrett, Pa.

Music

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

Music has always charmed man. Gentle cadences have soothed his soul, just as powerful crescendos have called him into action. It is even said that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." In the soul of all races there is an intangible something which, despite circumstance, environment or condition, responds to the harmonious blending of tones.

God has implanted that appreciation of music in the soul of all created beings. Low, indeed, the brute which appreciates not the flights of rhythm. Yet that appreciation is heightened by sensitiveness of feeling, and that soul sensitiveness is found in its highest degree in Nature tuned to nature's God gives out music. The message to man is the same, in essence: Man tuned to the same God, by faith in Jesus Christ gives out a life of music. When the Master Musician touches our heart-strings they vibrate. The tune is a tune of love. Jesus Christ is he who can "Help us . . . take our bit of singing,

And drop it in some narrow vale,
And set the echoes ringing."

The music which he sets our hearts a-singing is not a selfish tune but, by its very tunefulness, we are impelled to hum it into a heart which knows him not. We bring that beart to Jesus and the music in our souls swells in a glorious crescendo of satisfaction, which none but the Christ of Calvary can play upon the strings of a truly Christian heart. It is that music which shall sing its way from "Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands" until the world is one vast orchestra, tuned to the praises of the Master. Do you know that gladsome music today?

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Our Brave Parents

BY SARA ZIGLER MYERS

When children leave the parental roof and start out upon life's pathway, they are almost certain to think back, at some quiet moment, upon the bravery shown and exercised by their devoted parents. And it is no more than fair to tell them, at some time, what this means. At the same time it is quite encouraging and strengthening to any child to know that he is really backed up in his undertakings by such noble spirits.

In the first place, the mere adventure of assuming parenthood shows great bravery in the two young hearts who have agreed to spend life together. And it is only through God's direction that parenthood can be made the big thing that it should be in their lives. With the dawn of a little life into the big, untried world, comes a responsibility upon parents, the like of which, I imagine, can be made by nothing else. And with the recognition of such responsibility by Christian parents, there is sure to come, through prayer and united communication with God, a spirit of bravery unexcelled by aught else.

Immediately upon its arrival, the little bud, under normal conditions, begins to develop gradually into the full-grown flower. Its brave parents are constantly on the outlook, to give it only the most nourishing physical, mental and spiritual food. They watch its tender growth with the most intense interest, and as it passes from stage to stage, they are sure to do everything within their power to encourage the best of development. And yet they allow such experiences of its own that it may not be a weakling.

Time goes on. The nestling grows. The parents bravely watch, encourage, and chastise when necessary. Finally the time comes when the child leaves the home fire for college, perhaps. Then comes a moment when a different kind of bravery is exercised by the parents. I'm quite sure that only our parents know what it means to bid farewell to the young, inexperienced boy or girl, who must leave home for college for the first time. Ask any Christian parent, especially a mother, and she will tell you that it took bravery and determination, on her part, to see her child go out from under her direct care and guidance. She will, perhaps, tell you that she has spent many anxious moments, day and night, thinking of her child and his welfare. While she trusts him and has all confidence in him, as long as it is at all possible, yet she has a constant feeling of anxiety, for fear he might be wrongly influenced by some careless or hastily-chosen associate.

AROUND THE WORLD

Fasting Advised to Aid Food Price Reduction

Fayette County, Pa., physicians are advising a fast of one week to bring about a much desired reduction in food prices. Should their suggestion meet with favor in that county, it will probably be the first attempt of that sort by so large a number of people. These medical practitioners claim that any one above sixteen can fast a week with beneficial results. Incidentally, the neat sum of $500,000 would be saved by Fayette County folks in that time. One of the physicians says: "Such a fast will positively not injure any one. I am willing to undertake it, simply to demonstrate the feasibility of the plan and its beneficial results physically. Water, of course, is to be taken, but that, as a rule, is practically free."

Catering to Man's Love of Sensationalism

In casting about for new forms of entertaining the pleasure-loving public, theater managers are willing to go to almost any length. Neither arduous effort nor vast sums of money are allowed to interfere with the achievement of the end sought. One of the noted and spectacular moving picture productions is said to have cost several million dollars for merely its preparatory stages. A leading theatrical manager advertises that at a large outlay he has secured a group of "tame lions and wild women," who "will be sure to delight the public in a number of thrilling and never-before-attempted acts." As we see how the multitudes flock to places of amusement, wholly oblivious of the better things of life, we may well say with the apostle that such are "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

Paying the Penalty

Medical authorities in all parts of our land have made the unwelcome discovery that the high cost of living is wrecking the health of the nation's poor. In lowering the standard of living, conditions are created that militate seriously against the maintenance of health. As a direct result of the present high prices, sickness has materially increased: Families which never before resorted to public charity, are appealing for assistance. Women have been driven to enter industrial pursuits for which they are not fitted. Children under sixteen years of age had to give up their education and enter factories. Infant mortality is increasing, and malnutrition, among children as well as adults, is lamentably prevalent. And why all this? Largely because of the conscienceless profiteer. Truly, "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

Bathing Restrictions in the River Jordan

Pursuant to the discovery of American physicians, that the river Jordan is a dangerous disease-germ carrier, the officials in control of Palestine have enacted stringent restrictive stipulations on bathing in the ancient river. For centuries great virtues have been ascribed by natives and pilgrims to "the cleansing waters of the Jordan." In consequence the afflicted ones, no matter how loathsome the disease, have been coming from far and near to bathe in the healing waters. That, in consequence, the river is heavily laden with germs of skin diseases and other foul maladies is not strange. It may not be generally known that the Jordan, Palestine's only river, is the most remarkable stream in the world. For more than two-thirds of its course it runs below sea level. It has never been navigable and no important town is on its banks. It runs into an inland sea that has no port and is totally destitute of aquatic life.

Let No One Be Deceived

It is really surprising to note the various arguments, now being sprung by liquor defenders, to prove that prohibition is all wrong, and that ills of various sorts are bound to follow unless the use of alcoholic stimulants is restored throughout the nation. Paid editorials in a number of daily and weekly journals cite heart-rending accounts of the number of drug-addicts, and freely predict a further increase of these "dope-fiends." It is somewhat astounding how many there are and how accurately the exact number has been ascertained. Glib-tongued speakers for the cause of "personal liberty" are making speeches on this startling development, and some one sees to it that the speeches are duly reported. That is simply a part of the regular propaganda of the "wet" element. Their gloomy diagnosis runs somewhat like this: "If you shut up the saloons, everybody will be driven to drugs! If you do not let men drink whiskey, they will be sure to drink something worse! These wretches are a menace to society! If prohibition continues, there's no telling what will become of us." Let no one become alarmed about this matter, however! The insatiable hankering after drugs is but a latent outgrowth of the liquor traffic, and there was plenty of it in the days when the saloon flourished most. The two are close associates.

Hope for Better Things in Germany

Judging by a summary of the new German constitution, it seems to indicate a fair grasp of the basic principles of a strong republican government. Radical measures appear to have been avoided. The powers of the President, at first sight, seem to be very great—perhaps even greater than those of the American Chief Executive. In this, however, Germany's peculiar situation must be taken into account, and those who wish to see the German people regain their footing amidst the storm and stress, now sweeping over central and eastern Europe, will be inclined to approve this tendency. Reconstruction has been given a broad foundation. It now remains for the people to press forward in the really constructive work that must be done.

A City Official with a Backbone

In these days of compromise and slight regard for the best interests of public morals, it is decidedly refreshing to hear of some one in authority who is not afraid to take a stand for the right and stick to it. Such, according to a recent newspaper report, is Mayor Smith, of Dixon, Ill. When a carnival company recently arrived in that city, Mayor Smith met the managers and told them not to unload, as no performance would be allowed in the city. Having come under the auspices of the local Moose lodge, the railroad administration took a hand in the matter, and the carnival people were finally given permission to unload, but had to erect their tents a mile outside of the city. A court trial is threatened, but the mayor stands firm. He believes in sticking to principle.

The Problems of the Ottoman Empire

Within the boundaries of what has hitherto been known as the Ottoman Empire, resides a population of some 20,000,000 souls. Were they all, or even largely, of one nationality, it would not be difficult to adjust matters for the future. As a matter of fact, however, only 5,000,000 are Ottoman Turks. The others belong to other nationalities—constituting little groups of aliens within the Turkish realm—people diverse in thought, language, ideas, ideals—in all that goes to make up a homogeneous nation. Added to this problem is the further one that the people in general are ignorant and illiterate, with all the innate prejudices peculiar to persons of that make-up. All in all, wise statesmanship will be required to bring about orderly conditions in that realm, and maintain them in the future.

Herbert Hoover's Warning

America's administrator of food supplies to the starving millions of Europe is no alarmist, but when facts come to his notice he has no hesitancy in speaking plainly. He urges that increased production, everywhere, is undoubtedly the only solution of the momentous problem confronting the world today. Europe can feed only 350,000,000 of her 450,000,000 population, which means that 100,000,000 must live on imports. He doubts whether the United States can be permanently depended upon to supply this shortage. Mr. Hoover attributes a large share of the decrease in European resources to the so-called "democratization of industry." He does not disparage democratization as such, but deplores the evils which have been allowed to develop therefrom. The theory of "get the most you can for the smallest effort put forth" seems to have blighted industrial activities in Europe, and to some extent those of the United States. It is a disastrous fallacy.

Conciliation Rather Than Force

In his "farewell message" to Great Britain, written on the eve of his return to South Africa, Gen. Jan. Smuts—once the Boer leader, now a loyal and devoted citizen of the British Empire—urges appeasement and reconciliation as the only means of restoring an exhausted and shattered Europe. His position is well taken. We can not be too often reminded that, although the treaty with Germany has been signed, the nations of the earth still face problems that gravely threaten future peace. It is, indeed, the strongest argument urged for the League of Nations that, however experimental, it will furnish a means of reaching conclusions that will have the sanction of the civilized world behind them, for no nation, no temporary alliance, has the confidence to proclaim, or the power to enforce, a settlement of the tangled affairs of mankind. In the opinion of Gen. Smuts, the most pressing questions relate to Germany and Russia. "You can not have a stable Europe," he says, "without a stable and settled Germany." He thinks that President Ebert should be given encouragement, for, as Gen. Smuts views matters, the question of a stabilized or a demoralized Europe will depend largely upon conditions allowed to exist there. For that reason he thinks that Germany should speedily be admitted to the League of Nations. Any policy that leaves that country permanently irreconcilable, or that leads to the overthrow of the present regime, either by the military autocracy or by the Bolshevist element, would—he maintains—be fatal to European tranquillity and the permanence of its civilization. As to Russia, he believes that its problems can only be worked out by time and by its own citizens. Military forces and war materials, supplied by the Allies, may, for the time being, strengthen the one side of the controversy, but the real problem is far beyond such expedients. Gen. Smuts thinks that the Allies should recall their troops and permit the Russians to work out their own salvation. He thinks that there is such a thing as meddling into the business of other nations unnecessarily, and is quite sure that such an attitude will work disastrously in the end. Solomon's terse maxim is quite applicable, according to the general's view: "He that . . . meddleth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears."

Troublous Mexico

Our already strained relations with the Southern republic were brought perilously near the breaking-point, recently, when two United States aviators were seized by Mexican brigands and held for a ransom of $15,000. To save the lives of these men, the demand for "tribute" had to be met—however humiliating to a great nation. Invasion of Mexico by United States troops, to capture the brigands, was the next step decided upon, but later on the hurried withdrawal of these troops was ordered. Previous invasions of the turbulent country do not seem to have been productive of any lasting results. If the Carranza administration were strong enough really to assert itself for the maintenance of good order, there might be some hope of better conditions. As things are, the outlook is ominous.

A Worthy Example

It was a matter of common knowledge that President Bashford, of Ohio Wesleyan College, gave to missions $1,800 each year—nearly two-thirds of his salary—living on the remaining $1,200. Later on, when elected bishop, he refused appointment to the choicest of American bishoprics—Chicago—because, as he said: "I think I see a better opportunity to render service in China than in the United States." While pondering the above, we were impressed with the fact that such unselfish and consecrated devotion to the Lord's service is all too rarely seen nowadays. Too often "the cares of this life" are allowed to make us self-centered instead of Christ-centered, and as a consequence we are robbed of the sweet spirit of whole-hearted consecration that gives and serves without question.

Repeal of the Daylight-Saving Act

Aug. 20 the Senate voted to sustain the House in passing the repeal measure over President Wilson's veto, and it now takes its place among the very few measures which have been passed over a presidential objection. The act becomes effective next October, when the clocks are turned back to normal—not to be disturbed again, it is hoped. Agitation for repeal of the much-debated "daylight-saving law" first came from farmers, but recently was strongly supported also by many other workers—chiefly by those of the smaller towns. While the measure was undoubtedly of some value to certain classes in the larger cities, it was undoubtedly a great inconvenience to other sections; hence the repeal. That hour of daylight, however, will still be available to him who is willing to arrange his program accordingly.

How Mother Love Failed

When the prophet Isaiah sought for an illustration by which he might portray to human conception the wonderful depth of God's abounding love, he simply said: "As one whom his mother comforteth." He took it for granted that of all things that fail, amidst the vicissitudes of human existence, the love of a mother to her offspring would always abound. It is surprising indeed, therefore, to learn that in some parts of Czecho-Slovakia the innate love of a mother toward her child has wholly disappeared, under the stress of extreme hunger and privation. A relief worker for the American Red Cross writes: "Great care must be taken that the food supplies go direct to the children themselves, and not to their parents. It seems almost unbelievable, but the mothers here are frequently accused of being the worst enemies of their children in respect to food. In one town especially, we were told that there was no mother love left. Most of the children are suffering from the hitherto unknown disease, 'hunger œdema,' and there is also a tremendous increase in tuberculosis and other diseases—largely due to malnutrition. For weeks at a time there has been no bread. There is no milk—children of four and under have never seen milk. Owing to lack of the necessary food, even the mother's milk has failed." To our mind such a pitiful plight is one of the saddest results of the deprivation and suffering incident to the recent war. Most of us, perhaps, have seen cases of destitution, but none of us have known of suffering so utterly distressing and debasing that the natural affections of a mother towards her child are changed to utter indifference. That very fact is one of the most discouraging characteristics of the present reconstruction period. The loss of parental affection means the ultimate destruction of the home.

h the thrillers' from real life that one hears ese redeemed men on the Bowery."

e informed that an error was made in the table, he names and ages of elders on Standing Com-or 1919. The age of Bro. J. V. Felthouse should n given at seventy years, instead of sixty-six, as Bro. Hoffer.

l Auto Day at Sidney, Ohio, falls this year on Sept. 7. A full day's program of many interestures has been arranged. Pres. D. W. Kurtz, of on College, is scheduled for an address at each ree sessions. His subjects are "The Symphony
"The Present World Crisis and Christianity"
e Epoch of the Child." The morning service, g at 9:30, will be held in the church. The after-l evening programs, at 2:30 and 7:45, respectivcbe given at the high school auditorium.

A BYSTANDER'S NOTES

ere greatly impressed, the other day, by this t: "It is easy enough to establish a republic uman beings, but it is less easy to find human t for a republic." That proposition is also true cally any attempt at human uplift. It is a matter difficulty for men of broad vision to start a move-undoubted value to humanity, but so to inspire ctituency of the new movement that all will work ht and main for the accomplishment of the aims s a task of supreme magnitude.

in the Present Tense.—The only safe way is to ie present tense. Yesterday we can not reach, nat we may repent of its sins and be forgiven, future has not yet come, and will be sufficient lf on its arrival. Today is our own. The duty ith us is "now." To live humbly towards God, ouragcously and generously, reaching out our a brotherly way and doing what good we can our privilege. Every day lived right, will make r for us tomorrow, whatever that may be. To day as though we had only the one day on e one day in which to do good, the one day to praise God, the one day in which to be loyal
, the one day in which to make the world happy the way to live in order to bring something of nto the present. And, surely, that is the way t to live—we who are only travelers passing this world to the home beyond.

a Christian in Hot Weather.—Perhaps it does nore than the ordinary amount of God's grace bout the Father's business" when the thermom-s to the top-notches, but should not that very e an incentive to renewed effort and greater dil-What answer can you truthfully give to the questions: "Does my religion amply stand f the torrid days of summer? Do I go to church rly as to my business engagements, while the climbs higher and higher? Is it my experience unday afternoon auto ride means more to me nave been at church and Sunday-school in the and when I am honestly planning to attend orship at night? Does the same heat, which away from prayer meeting, keep me away from ainment? Is there less reason for devout servod in August than in December? When I am wn on my vacation, do I encourage the members ountry church by my presence?" Our Chrisght to mean even more to us during the season intimate companionship with the great outdoors nd flowers, blue sky and blessed sunshine. If ot, we may well enter into a close examination ves.

ter Business.—Early in 1918 Bro. Geo. L. Mc-
, of Alhambra, Calif., referred to the then prolry regime" for Los Angeles, in a communicathe "Messenger." Recently he favored us with g from the Los Angeles "Times," which shows s quite possible for a saloon man to get into ine of business, and be all the better off for mak-exchange. Following is the substance of the clipping: Jack Doyle, the man who put Vernon nap and owned what is said to have been the aloon until the country went dry July 1, has takattle ranching as a business. He owns a 9,000 ch in Kern County, where he grazes 8,000 head and carries on extensive agricultural activities.
who used to own the biggest saloon in the

AROUND THE WORLD

Fasting Advised to Aid Food Price Reduction

Fayette County, Pa., physicians are advising a fast of one week to bring about a much desired reduction in food prices. Should their suggestion meet with favor in that county, it will probably be the first attempt of that sort by so large a number of people. These medical practitioners claim that any one above sixteen can fast a week with beneficial results. Incidentally, the neat sum of $500,000 would be saved by Fayette County folks in that time. One of the physicians says: "Such a fast will positively not injure any one. I am willing to undertake it, simply to demonstrate the feasibility of the plan and its beneficial results physically. Water, of course, is to be taken, but that, as a rule, is practically free."

Catering to Man's Love of Sensationalism

In casting about for new forms of entertaining the pleasure-loving public, theater managers are willing to go to almost any length. Neither arduous effort nor vast sums of money are allowed to interfere with the achievement of the end sought. One of the noted and spectacular moving picture productions is said to have cost several million dollars for merely its preparatory stages. A leading theatrical manager advertises that at a large outlay he has secured a group of "tame lions and wild women," who "will be sure to delight the public in a number of thrilling and never-before-attempted acts." As we see how the multitudes flock to places of amusement, wholly oblivious of the better things of life, we may well say with the apostle that such are "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

Paying the Penalty

Medical authoritics in all parts of our land have made the unwelcome discovery that the high cost of living is wrecking the health of the nation's poor. In lowering the standard of living, conditions are created that militate seriously against the maintenance of health. As a direct result of the present high prices, sickness has materially increased: Families which never before resorted to public charity, are appealing for assistance. Women have been driven to enter industrial pursuits for which they are not fitted. Children under sixteen years of age had to give up their education and enter factories. Infant mortality is increasing, and malnutrition, among children as well as adults, is lamentably prevalent. And why all this? Largely because of the conscienceless profiteer. Truly, "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

Bathing Restrictions in the River Jordan

Pursuant to the discovery of American physicians, that the river Jordan is a dangerous disease-germ carrier, the officials in control of Palestine have enacted stringent restrictive stipulations on bathing in the ancient river. For centuries great virtues have been ascribed by natives and pilgrims to "the cleansing waters of the Jordan." In consequence the afflicted ones, no matter how loathsome the disease, have been coming from far and near to bathe in the healing waters. That, in consequence, the river is heavily laden with germs of skin diseases and other foul maladies is not strange. It may not be generally known that the Jordan, Palestine's only river, is the most remarkable stream in the world. For more than two-thirds of its course it runs below sea level. It has never been navigable and no important town is on its banks. It runs into an inland sea that has no port and is totally destitute of aquatic life.

Let No One Be Deceived

It is really surprising to note the various arguments, now being sprung by liquor defenders, to prove that prohibition is all wrong, and that ills of various sorts are bound to follow unless the use of alcoholic stimulants is restored throughout the nation. Paid editorials in a number of daily and weekly journals cite heart-rending accounts of the number of drug-addicts, and freely predict a further increase of these "dope-fiends." It is somewhat astounding how many there are and how accurately the exact number has been ascertained. Glib-tongued speakers for the cause of "personal liberty" are making speeches on this startling development, and some one sees to it that the speeches are duly reported. That is simply

Hope for Better Things in Germany

Judging by a summary of the new German constitution, it seems to indicate a fair grasp of the basic principles of a strong republican government. Radical measures appear to have been avoided. The powers of the President, at first sight, seem to be very great—perhaps even greater than those of the American Chief Executive. In this, however, Germany's peculiar situation must be taken into account, and those who wish to see the German people regain their footing amidst the storm and stress, now sweeping over central and eastern Europe, will be inclined to approve this tendency. Reconstruction has been given a broad foundation. It now remains for the people to press forward in the really constructive work that must be done.

A City Official with a Backbone

In these days of compromise and slight regard for the best interests of public morals, it is decidedly refreshing to hear of some one in authority who is not afraid to take a stand for the right and stick to it. Such, according to a recent newspaper report, is Mayor Smith, of Dixon, Ill. When a carnival company recently arrived in that city, Mayor Smith met the managers and told them not to unload, as no performance would be allowed in the city. Having come under the auspices of the local Moose lodge, the railroad administration took a hand in the matter, and the carnival people were finally given permission to unload, but had to erect their tents a mile outside of the city. A court trial is threatened, but the mayor stands firm. He believes in sticking to principle.

The Problems of the Ottoman Empire

Within the boundaries of what has hitherto been known as the Ottoman Empire, resides a population of some 20,000,000 souls. Were they all, or even largely, of one nationality, it would not be difficult to adjust matters for the future. As a matter of fact, however, only 5,000,000 are Ottoman Turks. The others belong to other nationalities—constituting little groups of aliens within the Turkish realm—people diverse in thought, language, ideas, ideals—in all that goes to make up a homogeneous nation. Added to this problem is the further one that the people in general are ignorant and illiterate, with all the innate prejudices peculiar to persons of that make-up. All in all, wise statesmanship will be required to bring about orderly conditions in that realm, and maintain them in the future.

Herbert Hoover's Warning

America's administrator of food supplies to the starving millions of Europe is no alarmist, but when facts come to his notice he has no hesitancy in speaking plainly. He urges that increased production, everywhere, is undoubtedly the only solution of the momentous problem confronting the world today. Europe can feed only 350,000,000 of her 450,000,000 population, which means that 100,000,000 must live on imports. He doubts whether the United States can be permanently depended upon to supply this shortage. Mr. Hoover attributes a large share of the decrease in European resources to the so-called "democratization of industry." He does not disparage democratization as such, but deplores the evils which have been allowed to develop therefrom. The theory of "get the most you can for the smallest effort put forth" seems to have blighted industrial activities in Europe, and to some extent those of the United States. It is a disastrous fallacy.

Conciliation Rather Than Force

In his "farewell message" to Great Britain, written on the eve of his return to South Africa, Gen. Jan. Smuts—once the Boer leader, now a loyal and devoted citizen of the British Empire—urges appeasement and reconciliation as the only means of restoring an exhausted and shattered Europe. His position is well taken. We can not be too often reminded that, although the treaty with Germany has been signed, the nations of the earth still face problems that gravely threaten future peace. It is, indeed, the strongest argument urged for the League of Nations that, however experimental, it will furnish a means of reaching conclusions that will have the sanction of the civilized world behind them, for no nation, no temporary alliance, has the confidence to proclaim, or the power to enforce, a settlement of the tangled affairs of mankind. In the opinion of Gen. Smuts, the most pressing questions relate to Germany and Russia. "You can not have a stable Europe," he says, "without a stable and settled Germany." He thinks that President Ebert should be going to buy some good, inspiring life stories of great and noble men for him to read, to see what effect they will have on him. But I must be going."

"I believe they will rouse and touch springs in his soul that have never been reached," said Betty. "My brother Tom was like your son, but inspiring books completely transformed his life."

"I have spent a profitable afternoon," said Polly. "Thank you for your secret."

Ashland, Ohio.

Our Brave Parents

(Continued from Page 551)

when they tried to direct their choice. Does it take courage and bravery to see a child leave his parents and begin his own home? It surely must.

Then there are those of us who leave the homeland for a distant soil, perhaps. That requires a kind of bravery still different from the others. At the first mention of it our parents may say that the strain is entirely too great for them. They may tell us that they can never bear it, but if they have the Spirit of God in their hearts, and have been led to feel that their children are making a wise choice, they are sure to consent in the bravest way, after a while, and say: "Go, and God be with you." Does it take bravery and determination? It certainly does. When the signal for leaving is given, and the last "good-bye" must be said, it takes courage, for those elderly ones, to watch the loved ones go.

Again, on the other hand, what does this wonderful spirit mean to the nestlings who are leaving? Ah, it is strengthening, it is uplifting. How can one help but do some little good somewhere! The work may be trying, for all we know, and the results few, but with such lives to back us we can not help but try. Although the tears may be many, and the hearts almost broken, yet that final "God bless you," or "Stand for the right," or "Do your best," comes with such a power from those dear lips and hearts, that one can not help but go forward with a determination to do something worth while at the task undertaken. We can not afford to disappoint such parents. Their bravery, good wishes and prayers for us stand out all too strongly, to allow such a thing as a complete failure. We may not always please them exactly, because conditions and circumstances, here and there, are so different. But in principle we can not afford to waver or be untrue, for our faithful parents are expecting us, through God's help and direction, to be brave, and to live noble Christian lives. With such loyal hearts, and such sincere prayers back of us, we ought to determine that, by the help of God, we will resolve to push on unfalteringly to victory. May God help every Christian boy and girl, man and woman to respect and appreciate his brave and courageous parents!

En Route to China.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

ONLY ONE

It is, indeed, a cause for rejoicing to know that the Church of the Brethren is becoming more active in obeying the first part of the Great Commission: "Go teach all nations," which in the past, we fear, has at times been entirely too much neglected.

When we see the great progress that has been made by the church along this line during the last generation, we surely have reason to thank God that so many of his followers are allowing the Holy Spirit to guide them into the way of sacrifice and service.

Though our Lord, no doubt, commends us for the progress already made, "there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed." We have not yet taught "all nations," and one of the nations that has been almost entirely neglected is that declining race of people, right in our own country—the American Indians.

We are glad to say, however, that at least one of these people has heard and accepted the Gospel as we declare it—Sister Betty Rathbun—"Annt Betty," as she is familiarly known. Her picture is shown herewith. She is, so far as we know, the only American Indian member in the Brotherhood.

Several years ago, in the Boyle Heights mission, in Los Angeles, Calif., she heard the "Good News" from our people and accepted the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

She was adopted by an American family when young. However, much of her early life was spent on the plains with pony and rifle, and, true to her nature, she was skillful with both.

"Aunt Betty" is poor in this world's goods, and as the church has no Old Folks' Home in this District, she is given a home near the church, and is looked after by our members.

She is a firm believer in the doctrines of the church and seems never to neglect an opportunity for missionary work among her many friends in the community. She

"Aunt Betty"

surely has a Christlike, forgiving spirit that many of us Americans would do well to imitate more closely.

She loves her little home, her flowers and her garden. "Why," she says, "I'm poor, but this whole country God gave to my people, and he is surely willing that I should have one little corner of it to live in now, in my old age."

If, in that great judgment day the Lord shall say to us, as a church, "And what did you do for the American Indians?" shall our faltering answer be: "Only one"? May we not also be able to add: "Dear Lord, that one has been cared for to the best of our ability"?

Elwyn Speaker.

3318 Baldwin Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

THE OLYMPIA DISTRICT MEETING

For the first time, since coming into the State of Washington, it has been my privilege to attend a District Meeting and to become acquainted with the members and their manner of work. If my readers were as much interested as I, I could write several pages, with the assurance that it would be acceptable, but I shall not risk that. I can give only a few of the more striking features of it.

The trip to Olympia itself is interesting, especially after we leave Wenatchee. The main line of the Great Northern follows the Wenatchee River, a beautiful, rushing mountain stream, up into the picturesque Cascades, the most attractive of all the mountains crossed by this great railroad. In the heart of this range, great engineering difficulties were encountered and overcome by curves and tunnels that make horseshoe curves look simple. It reminds one more of a corkserew. Passing through Seattle, one goes to Tacoma by rail or boat, each way having its own attractions. I went by rail, past dairy farms and great milk condenseries, and past berry-fields worth a thousand dollars per aere, with canneries that handle fruits of every kind. From Tacoma, one takes an autobus over splendid roads past Camp Lewis, and on through delightful scenes of forest green, which give way reluctantly as we enter our capital city.

Olympia church has a good house, a live and active membership, and a godly pastor, Eld. D. B. Eby. That the church appreciated our presence, was manifest by its open hospitality and excellent arrangements for our comfort and convenience.

As for the program, excellent as it was, one feature of it was new to me, and as yet of unproven advantage—its arrangement. I have been brought up to expect Sunday-school Meeting, Christian Workers' Meeting, Ministerial Meeting, Missionary Meeting, etc., to be finished and all the slate cleared before District Meeting proper begins. But here, District Conference occupied two forenoons, Wednesday and Thursday, while programs of other meetings occupied the afternoons. This will probably be all right when our people are once educated to the point where they will remain at the Conference after the business part is over. Washington people have not yet reached that point. As a consequence, the Bible School Meeting and the Ministerial Meeting, which came Thursday afternoon and evening, were not properly attended. This was, I consider, a really serious loss, and should never be allowed to occur again.

While I am mentioning the weaknesses of the meeting, I may say that the Elders' Meeting received some criticism from others because it kept the elders away from some of the other programs—a fault that will undoubtedly be overcome in the future. While it was a fault, it grew out of one of the most valuable features of the meeting—the earnest and thoroughly conscientious way in which the elders of this District go into their work. I am used to seeing the Elders' Meeting nominate District officers as well as to appoint committees, but I never before saw an Elders' Meeting discuss the qualifications of nominees as fully as they do here. I am sure that this is an exeellent thing. Neither have I seen anywhere a more perfect unity of spirit than animates the elders of this District. They pledged themselves last year to stand together in resisting the inroads of worldliness, and renewed their pledge this year. There are problems enough confronting them, but the united stand which they are taking simplifies the problems. Elders of other Districts might take notice.

The one outstanding feature of the entire Conference was the Missionary Meeting of Wednesday evening. After a powerful missionary sermon on "The Victorious Christ," by Eld. J. S. Zimmerman, Eld. Warren Slabaugh made two strong appeals. The first appeal was for workers, volunteers for the Lord's work, to give their lives into his hands, to be used by him in any field and to any extent to which he might call them. When the call came for the volunteers to stand, fifteen arose and came forward before the congregation. Several of these were already consecrated workers, active in their home congregations, and one has been in training for the mission field for several years, but the majority here took their stand for the first time. Needless to say that the congregation was deeply moved, so that only tears and sobs of joy could express our feelings.

Following this was the appeal for money, to which the response was generous. What a marvel of God's grace that the very same money that has probably passed through the hands of the vilest of men and carried out their purposes, can be turned by God's children into channels of blessing and glory, and go to swell their hoard of treasure laid up in heaven.

But speaking of real consecration, one of the finest things I ever saw, was brought out in the Elders' Meeting. I am sure that the brethren will pardon my revealing it. All through the meetings we were inspired by the presenee of our aged Bro. S. H. Miller, of the Sunnyside church, who is now in his eighties, but clear in mind, active in body, and strong in spirit. Is it dangerous to call people saints while they are alive to hear it? I'll risk it at this time and say that we all felt we were in the presence of a real saint, when we were with our Brother Miller. Our meetings were long and some of us talked a good deal, but he never complained. After our business was all done, the elders drifted into an informal exchange of experiences, hopes, fears, plans, and purposes centering around the fight that all true shepherds are making to protect their flocks against the inroads of worldliness. In this we are all gripped by the words of one young elder, pastor of one of our strongest congregations, who has already done much good work and is determined to go on and rid his church of the dominance of Madame Fashion. It is always inspiring to see a young man of intelligence and good judgment attaek a problem like that with all his power, but the most inspiring thing of all was to follow. After he had concluded, and the other elders present had approved both his past activities and his plans for the future, Bro. Miller arose and, reminding us that he had sat still and listened to all that had been said, thinking it through within himself, said: "If that is what you are doing and purpose to do, and the way you are working, you can count on me to help you all I can."

Talk about consecration! When a man eighty-one years of age will voluntarily step out at the side of a man less than half his age, and offer his aid in one of the hardest fights a young man ever faced, I call that real consecration. It reminds me of "having loved his own, he loved them unto the end."

A word about the Conference proper. It had a great deal of business within its limit of time. This was largely due to the fact that all worked together to that end. Not a single item of business was slighted, and not a single speaker trespassed by tiring the congregation. In fact, not one useless, foolish, or tiresome speech was made. Not one discourteous word or action appeared, and there was not a single close vote taken, except in elections. In all other things the Conference was practically unanimous. Eld. G. A. Shamberger goes to Standing Committee.

The Conference appreciated the presence of Eld. Geo. C. Carl, of Portland, Oregon, who appeared in behalf of the work of the Board of Charities in which the Districts of Washington and Oregon unite. At Bro. Carl's suggestion, the Conference appointed a committee of three sisters to coöperate with the Board in child-saving. We were also glad for the presence of Eld. Barklow, of

(Continued on Page 558)

rom 'The Power of a Surrendered Life,' by Chapman. I am committing them to memory eep them here where I can read them and study work. I have learned many choice gems in ay. I can meditate and assimilate them while I ut my work."

ere," said Polly, "I have pared all the peaches ere in this pan. Let me take your place at the while and you sit in this chair and rest a bit."
began tightening the lids on the jars of cooked nd she continued talking. "We take the County but we have never taken any magazine and I most ashamed to tell you that we have never bed for the GOSPEL MESSENGER. Aunt Sarah oves gives us some MESSENGERS to read once in
e. I'm glad we have a Bible, but I'm sorry we o other books. Ever since Daniel and I have narried, we have been planning to buy books ver we could afford it, but I suppose if we wait get money that is not needed for anything else, l never get any books. I believe you are right.
ve we should buy good books and magazines and ne other things wait."

y began filling jars with fresh fruit. "Indeed, e right," she said. "Many of our best and most writers spend much time in travel and investiga-n gathering material for books and magazine
s. Magazine publishers pay thousands of dol-r what a reader of the magazine can get for ten, or twenty cents. For a trifle we can get good and we thus have the results of months or years estigation and hard work of the author."

o you care if I look over some of the books in ookcase?" questioned Polly.

am glad to have you look them over," said Betty, placed the last jar of fruit in the boiler. Then ened the bookcase and took out two volumes:
and Light of Men" and "Love to the Utter-"Here," she said, "are fine expositions on the ngs of Christ. They were written by the great oted preacher in London, F. B. Meyer. Here is into the Blessed Life,' by the same author. It e bought for thirty-five cents. This little volume, Christ in the School of Prayer,' by Andrew y, leads us directly to the feet of him who ever to pray. Drummond's addresses are very inive and of a high order and they may be had for nce. 'History of the Brethren,' by Brumbaugh, Centuries of the Church of the Brethren,' 'Binial Addresses' and 'Literary Activity of the ren in the Eighteenth Century' should be in Brethren home. Here is the new book, 'Studies ctrine and Devotion.' Let it be one of the first you get. It will aid you in your search of the tures and in studying the divinely-instituted or-ces as set forth in God's Word. It will guide the nt to a high walk in life. 'Be Perfect,' by An-Murray, will perhaps surprise you by showing to igh a degree of perfection the Christian can rise s life in Christ Jesus."

see," said Polly, "there is no reason why one l remain ignorant and uneducated in the midst ch splendid opportunities for self-improvement.
heard how Lincoln received an education by 's'—not more than a year's schooling in all. But adied borrowed books by the light of pine-knots evening, and when he was in the field at work, ne and abroad, he never lost an opportunity for ng and study. But to this minute it seemed like ry-story to me. We are not going to wait any r to buy books and papers at our house. The paper we subscribe for will be the GOSPEL MES-ER."

am glad you feel that way, for I am sure that by ng good literature we become larger, better-ingoing to buy some good, inspiring life stories of great and noble men for him to read, to see what effect they will have on him. But I must be going."

"I believe they will rouse and touch springs in his soul that have never been reached," said Betty. "My brother Tom was like your son, but inspiring books completely transformed his life."

"I have spent a profitable afternoon," said Polly. "Thank you for your secret."

Ashland, Ohio.

Our Brave Parents

(Continued from Page 551)

when they tried to direct their choice. Does it take courage and bravery to see a child leave his parents and begin his own home? It surely must.

Then there are those of us who leave the homeland for a distant soil, perhaps. That requires a kind of bravery still different from the others. At the first mention of it our parents may say that the strain is entirely too great for them. They may tell us that they can never bear it, but if they have the Spirit of God in their hearts, and have been led to feel that their children are making a wise choice, they are sure to consent in the bravest way, after a while, and say: "Go, and God be with you." Does it take bravery and determination? It certainly does. When the signal for leaving is given, and the last "good-bye" must be said, it takes courage, for those elderly ones, to watch the loved ones go.

Again, on the other hand, what does this wonderful spirit mean to the nestlings who are leaving? Ah, it is strengthening, it is uplifting. How can one help but do some little good somewhere! The work may be trying, for all we know, and the results few, but with such lives to back us we can not help but try. Although the tears may be many, and the hearts almost broken, yet that final "God bless you," or "Stand for the right," or "Do your best," comes with such a power from those dear lips and hearts, that one can not help but go forward with a determination to do something worth while at the task undertaken. We can not afford to disappoint such parents. Their bravery, good wishes and prayers for us stand out all too strongly, to allow such a thing as a complete failure. We may not always please them exactly, because conditions and circumstances, here and there, are so different. But in principle we can not afford to waver or be untrue, for our faithful parents are expecting us, through God's help and direction, to be brave, and to live noble Christian lives. With such loyal hearts, and such sincere prayers back of us, we ought to determine that, by the help of God, we will resolve to push on unfalteringly to victory. May God help every Christian boy and girl, man and woman to respect and appreciate his brave and courageous parents!

En Route to China.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

ONLY ONE

It is, indeed, a cause for rejoicing to know that the Church of the Brethren is becoming more active in obeying the first part of the Great Commission: "Go teach all nations," which in the past, we fear, has at times been entirely too much neglected.

When we see the great progress that has been made by the church along this line during the last generation, we surely have reason to thank God that so many of his followers are allowing the Holy Spirit to guide them into the way of sacrifice and service.

Though our Lord, no doubt, commends us for the prog-

Several years ago, in the Boyle Heights mission, in Los Angeles, Calif., she heard the "Good News" from our people and accepted the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

She was adopted by an American family when young. However, much of her early life was spent on the plains with pony and rifle, and, true to her nature, she was skillful with both.

"Aunt Betty" is poor in this world's goods, and as the church has no Old Folks' Home in this District, she is given a home near the church, and is looked after by our members.

She is a firm believer in the doctrines of the church and seems never to neglect an opportunity for missionary work among her many friends in the community. She

"Aunt Betty"

surely has a Christlike, forgiving spirit that many of us Americans would do well to imitate more closely.

She loves her little home, her flowers and her garden. "Why," she says, "I'm poor, but this whole country God gave to my people, and he is surely willing that I should have one little corner of it to live in now, in my old age."

If, in that great judgment day the Lord shall say to us, as a church, "And what did you do for the American Indians?" shall our faltering answer be: "Only one"? May we not also be able to add: "Dear Lord, that one has been cared for to the best of our ability"?

Elwyn Speaker.

3318 Baldwin Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

THE OLYMPIA DISTRICT MEETING

For the first time, since coming into the State of Washington, it has been my privilege to attend a District Meeting and to become acquainted with the members and their manner of work. If my readers were as much interested as I, I could write several pages, with the assurance that it would be acceptable, but I shall not risk that. I can give only a few of the more striking features of it.

The trip to Olympia itself is interesting, especially after we leave Wenatchee. The main line of the Great Northern follows the Wenatchee River, a beautiful, rushing mountain stream, up into the picturesque Cascades, the most attractive of all the mountains crossed by this great railroad. In the heart of this range, great engineering difficulties were encountered and overcome by curves and tunnels that make horseshoe curves look simple. It reminds one more of a corkscrew. Passing through Seattle, one goes to Tacoma by rail or boat, each way having its own attractions. I went by rail, past dairy farms and great milk condenseries, and past berry-fields worth a thousand dollars per acre, with canneries that handle fruits of every kind. From Tacoma, one takes an auto-bus over splendid roads past Camp Lewis, and on through delightful scenes of forest green, which give way reluctantly as we enter our capital city.

Olympia church has a good house, a live and active membership, and a godly pastor, Eld. D. B. Eby. That the church appreciated our presence, was manifest by its open hospitality and excellent arrangements for our comfort and convenience.

As for the program, excellent as it was, one feature of it was new to me, and as yet of unproven advantage—its arrangement. I have been brought up to expect Sunday-school Meeting, Christian Workers' Meeting, Ministerial Meeting, Missionary Meeting, etc., to be finished and all the slate cleared before District Meeting proper begins. But here, District Conference occupied two fore-who gave us three good talks. July 28 Bro. D. W. Kurtz, of McPherson, gave a talk on "The Need of Church Colleges." August 3 Bro. Baxter Mow, of Bethany, filled the pulpit moroing and evening. Since the last report Bro. Amos Reed is located with us. One has been received by baptism.—Amanda E. Flory, Winchester, Idaho, August 11.

INDIANA

Bethany church held her Harvest Meeting August 10. Bro. E. O. Norris delivered a very interesting address in the morning, after which an offering of $60 was lifted. Bro. Otho Winger, Wine, of Polo, Ill., gave an interesting talk to the children.—J. B. Hicks, Lebanon, Ind., August 16.

Blue River church enjoyed four lectures July 16 and 17, given by Bro. H. K. Ober, of Elizabethtown, Ind. Our Harvest Meeting is set for Sept. 21, to be conducted by Bro. A. C. Wieand. We have organized a Teacher-training Class, which is growing in interest and attendance.—Laura Frick, Churubusco, Ind., August 19.

Cedar Creek.—Our Harvest Meeting was held August 10. Bro. J. Hugh Heckman, of Bethany Bible School, gave us three inspiring sermons. A basket dinner was served in the basement of the church. After the missionary address, which was delivered in the afternoon, an offering of $28.15 was lifted. We were glad to have with us a number of brethren and sisters from other congregations. The weather was fine and all enjoyed the day. Our Sunday-school is growing nicely since Brother and Sister Kerlin have charge of the work here.—Mrs. David Ober, Garwin, Ind., August 16.

Indianapolis church has been having some splendid meetings during the summer. Our pastor, Bro. S. G. Dreyer, has been giving us excellent sermons, and the attendance is growing. The Sunday-school attendance is holding up very well during the hot weather. On Sunday, Aug. 10, Bro. S. S. Blough, representing the General Sunday-school Board, was with us. He gave us a splendid sermon in the morning. A Sunday-school Meeting for afternoon and evening had been arranged for. At both meetings Bro. Blough gave us very helpful talks. Through the inspiration, gained by Bro. Blough's addresses, it is hoped that we may have a Front Line Sunday-school in the near future. On Thursday and Friday evenings, August 14 and 15, Bro. A. D. Helser, representing the General Mission Board, was with us and gave us two excellent addresses on Missions and the Forward Movement, as outlined by the Mission Board. On Sunday evening, August 17, Bro. Baltzell, a Jew of Elkhart, occupied the pulpit. Owing to his knowledge of the shepherd life he was able to illustrate his sermon on the parable of the lost sheep in a very interesting way. Our pastor leaves this week to conduct a revival meeting near Fayette, Mo. Bro. Dustin Dunlap, Bro. S. A. Rykon will fill the pulpit.—J. J. Kintner, 59 N. Holmes Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., August 18.

Muncie.—During the present summer interest has increased in the activities of the Sunday-school at this church. A Sunday-school outing was held at the Heckin Park July 20. Bro. J. S. Allredge, of Anderson, was present. The subject of his address was "Problems of the Twentieth Century." The church was recently favored by an inspiring sermon by Bro. Holtz, of Anderson. Sister Mary J.-Miss Elizabeth Stone, of Chicago, spoke in the interest of the Jewish Mission. In the evening Bro. Leo Miller, pastor of the Mississinewa church, preached on the subject, "The Power of Reconciliation." August 17 Bro. Paul Studebaker, of Bethany Bible School, occupied the pulpit. The church welcomed and appreciated the sermon of the young brother very much. Sister Molly Studebaker is to represent the Sunday-school at the District Sunday-school Meeting.—Clarence Grayson, Muncie, Ind., August 18.

Nappanee church enjoyed a very pleasant series of talks, given by Eld. D. L. Miller, in which he told of his travels abroad. The talks were extremely interesting and instructive, and were appreciated by large audiences

e sent to all who have been connected with the since its organization. When the Wiley church
t, eight years ago, we had about forty members.
sent enrollment is 243. More room is one of our needs. Laura V. Ullom.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

cial council was called by our pastor, Bro. John , July 19, fo choose delegates for District Meet-e held in the Sunfield church. Elders C. L. Will Chas. Deardorff were with us. Bro. Dietz was lelegate, with the writer, alternate; Bro. John P.
delegate to the District Sunday-school Confer-th the writer, alternate. Business conditions were t neither Brethren Dietz nor Guthrie could serve.
ter was privileged to go, and with several others
r church attended most of the Conference meet-

Dietz attended one afternoon and delivered an ex-address on "Christian Leadership." It was a portunity to meet with the best talent of our in this great State and listen to the discussions re work. Bro. Winger, President of North Man-College, made a strong appeal for educational inof the school in the church. He had a splendid f personal workers with him, led by Brother and rthur Mote.

oung people stood for life service for the church.
ed $523.86 for missions. We feel confident that art of the Five-Year Forward Movement in Mich-ll go over the top.

Moy Wing, our Chinese pastor at this place, who made application to the General Mission Board ointment as a missionary for South China, and by Way, our assistant Sunday-school superintend-busy with their own countrymen, raising $100 for al work in South China. At the evening service ist 17 $71.60 was raised. The interest in the Chi-nday-school work is growing, for which we are ankful.

re continually getting in touch with members and who are coming to the city. If readers know of e here, please give us his name and address. We express our thanks to those who have helped in members here in the city. The address of the is 751 Cadillac Avenue. M. B. Williams. bit, Mich.

Is There Anything Left?

(Continued from Page 549)

hereby promote most effectively the cause of righteousness and love in the world."
y, the ways of the deceiver are devious, only re not always so brazen or open as in this in-
We would, in all fairness, like to suggest that hange the name of their church so that no one, take, would go there seeking the Messiah.
ynesboro, Pa.

Notes From Our Correspondents

ld water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

o—In the interest of the "Five-Year Forward Movement" ed M. Hollenberg, missionary-elect to India, delivered two t sermons July 22 and 23. We also had the privilege of Sister Hollenberg. It is an inspiration to meet such young people who are devoting themselves to the Master's Acquaintance with them deepens the interest in their Attendance at all the services is very good. Last Sunday e present at Sunday-school and the offering amounted to
All are enjoying the rich messages that our pastor, Eld. J.
Stover, is continually giving us. Sunday evening, August
C. M. Yearout conducted the service.—Mrs. O. N. Whitlow, Calif., August 12.

n Gato Mission.—August 1 Brother and Sister Hollenberg o us in the interest of the "Forward Movement" and gave e fine talks. August 5 we had with us the outgoing miss to China. In the evening Sister Anna Hutchison and Bro.
gave us much appreciated talks on their work in China.
xt day a number of us were with the missionaries until d to go on board the S. S. "China." We watched the boat he docks; then, going across San Francisco, we saw the ome out through the Golden Gate and sail westward into cific. To have these missionaries with us for even so short was a blessed privilege, and will keep us in closer touch ur work and workers in China than we have been before.
o enjoyed having with us a number of visiting brethren and from neighboring churches, among them Elder and Sister staff, of McFarland.—Ivy Walter, Oakland, Calif., August 13.

COLORADO

Denver.—Bro. Hamid C. Wolf, of Chicago, labored

who gave us three good talks. July 28 Bro. D. W. Kurtz, of Mc-Pherson, gave a talk on "The Need of Church Colleges." August 3 Bro. Baxter Mow, of Bethany, filled the pulpit morning and evening. Since the last report Bro. Amos Reed is located with us. One has been received by baptism.—Amanda E. Flory, Winchester, Idaho, August 11.

INDIANA

Bethany church held her Harvest Meeting August 10. Bro. E. O. Norris delivered a very interesting address in the morning, after which an offering of $60 was lifted. In the afternoon Sister Wine, of Polo, Ill., gave an interesting talk to the children.—J. B. Hicks, Lebanon, Ind., August 16.

Blue River church enjoyed four lectures July 16 and 17, given by Bro. H. K. Ober, of Elizabethtown, Pa. Our Harvest Meeting is set for Sept. 21, to be conducted by Bro. A. C. Wieand. We have organized a Teacher-training Class, which is growing in interest and attendance.—Laura Frick, Churubusco, Ind., August 19.

Cedar Creek.—Our Harvest Meeting was held August 10. Bro. J. Hugh Heckman, of Bethany Bible School, gave us three inspiring sermons. A basket dinner was served in the basement of the church. After the missionary address, which was delivered in the afternoon, an offering of $28.25 was lifted. We were glad to have with us a number of brethren and sisters from other congregations. The weather was fine and all enjoyed the day. Our Sunday-school is growing nicely since Brother and Sister Keslin have charge of the work here.—Mrs. David Ober, Garrett, Ind., August 16.

Indianapolis church has been having some splendid meetings during the summer. Our pastor, Bro. S. G. Greyer, has been giving us excellent sermons, and the attendance is growing. The Sunday-school attendance is holding very well during the hot weather. On Sunday, Aug. 10, Bro. S. S. Blough, representing the General Sunday-school Board, was with us. He gave us a splendid sermon in the morning. A Sunday-school Meeting for afternoon and evening had been arranged for. Many splendid things were given us very helpful talks. Through the inspiration, gained by Bro. Blough's addresses, it is hoped that we may have a Front Line Sunday-school in the near future. On Thursday and Friday evenings, August 14 and 15, Bro. A. D. Helser, representing the General Mission Board, was with us and gave us two excellent addresses on Missions and the Forward Movement, as outlined by the Mission Board. On Sunday evening, August 17, a Mr. Habousha, a native of Galilee, occupied the pulpit. Owing to his knowledge of the shepherd life he was able to illustrate his sermon on the parable of the lost sheep in a very interesting way. Our pastor leaves this week to conduct a revival meeting near Fayette, W. Va. During his absence, Bro. S. A. Hylton will fill the pulpit.—J. J. Kintner, 59 N. Holmes Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., August 18.

Muncie.—During the present summer interest has increased in the activities of the Sunday-school and church. A Sunday-school outing was held at the Heekin Park July 20. Bro. J. S. Alkiredge, of Anderson, was present. The subject of his address was "Problems of the Twentieth Century." Our church was recently favored by an inspiring sermon by Eld. Jos. Holder, of Anderson. August 3 Miss Elizabeth Stone, of Chicago, spoke in the interest of the Jewish Mission. In the evening Bro. Leo Miller, pastor of the Mississinewa church, preached on the subject, "The Ministry of Reconciliation." August 17 Bro. Paul Studebaker, of Bethany Bible School, occupied the pulpit. The church welcomed and appreciated the sermon of the young brother very much. Sister Molly Studebaker is to represent the Sunday-school at the District Sunday-school Meeting.—Clarence Granson, Muncie, Ind., August 18.

Nappanee church enjoyed a very pleasant series of talks, given by Eld. D. L. Miller, in which he told of his travels abroad. The talks were extremely interesting and instructive, and were appreciated by large audiences. He brought many curios with him, which he displayed in an attractive way. Our Harvest Meeting will be held Sept. 7. We expect Bro. J. C. Murray to be with us.—Vera Gresh, Nappanee, Ind., August 21.

Santa Fe church enjoyed a very instructive temperance talk, given by Bro. J. H. Moore, July 30. Our series of meetings will begin Oct. 12, with Bro. Ira Long in charge. Bro. Perry Coblentz gave us a good talk Sunday, August 10. Bro. J. W. Morris is to be with us the last Sunday in August, when our Harvest Meeting will be held. Our love feast is appointed for Sept. 27, at 6 P. M.—Dossie M. Webb, Bunker Hill, Ind., August 16.

Wakarusa church met in council August 13. Brethren Theron Weaver and Edward Nusbaum were elected delegates to District Meeting. We expect to hold an all-day Harvest Meeting Sept. 7. Bro. Calvin Huber will preach for us.—Bertha Moyer, Wakarusa, Ind., August 14.

IOWA

Dallas Center church met in council August 16, with Eld. C. B. Rowe presiding. Our love feast will be held on the evening of Sept. 13. Our series of meetings will begin immediately after the least, with Bro. Isaac Frantz in charge. August 17 we had the pleasure of having with us Bro. Emmert and Sister Miriam Stover, who gave us a very interesting program of music and talks on the work in India. Sister May Garwick and Brother Bert Royer were chosen as delegates to District Meeting.—Anna Goughnour, Dallas Center, Iowa, August 20.

English River.—July 4 Bro. R. H. Nicodemus delivered two addresses along the line of community betterment. Bro. E. O. Measamer was with us in the interest of Bethany Bible School and gave us several helpful sermons. August 13 Sister Lydia Taylor, of Mt. Morris, gave two lectures on "Dress Reform," that were much appreciated. Bro. Roger D. Winger has just closed a very interesting Missionary Institute. Sunday, August 17, the Memorite brethren joined in the afternoon and evening services and assisted in the program. We are expecting Eld. D. L. Miller to begin a series of meetings and Bible Land talks Sept. 7, continuing for two weeks, with a love feast Sept. 20, at 5 P. M.—J. B. Brower, South English, Iowa, August 19.

Special Notice to Middle Iowa.—All books of the District, intended for the Auditing Committee, must be in their hands by Sept. 1.—H. B. Sipling, Fernald, Iowa, Aug. 20.

KANSAS

Fredonia church had an enjoyable time last Sunday, when we met in an all-day missionary meeting and had with us the Gospel Team from Independence. All were inspired for better service. We are looking forward now to our Sunday-school Meeting, Sept. 7.—Mrs. W. H. Sell, Fredonia, Kans., August 18.

MARYLAND

Baltimore (Woodberry).—Last evening we enjoyed having with us Brother and Sister J. F. Graybill, on furlough to the States from Sweden. We have had, from time to time, visits from some of our missionaries to India, but never before have we had a message in person from our mission field who could tell the work in Scandinavia. Brother and Sister Graybill were with the Fulton Avenue church at both services on Sunday, and the following Monday evening they stopped with us. Their talks were of unusual interest and Sister in the evening. Collections, amounting to $10.62, were taken at these two places for educational purposes. Bro. Russell Hicks gave a talk at the West Brownsville Temperance Meeting, August 2, and a collection of $8.31 was taken for mission work. Prof. B. F. Wampler, who has been teaching singing in this District, has a class in session at West Brownsville, at the present time. Bro. Geo. S. Harp, of Myersville, Md., begins a series of meetings at South Brownsville on Monday night, August 25.—Mrs. Nellie S. Kaetzel, Brownsville, Md., August 18.

Green Hill.—Since the arrival of Bro. Ira Eby and family, of Mt. Morris, Ill., June 22, we feel that the church has been strengthened. Bro. Eby was formerly a missionary in the First District of Arkansas and Southeastern Missouri. July 13 three were baptized and received into the church. July 20 Sister Anna Hutchison, missionary from China, gave us two inspiring addresses on her work. Her talks were greatly appreciated and the church strengthened along the line of mission work. Our Sunday-school is progressing nicely and is growing in attendance each Sunday. The Christian Workers' Meeting is also arousing more interest and is largely attended. —Lelia A. Showalter, Westover, Md., August 14.

Middletown Valley.—We held our annual Harvest Meeting August 16. Bro. T. S. Fike preached a very appropriate harvest sermon. Bro. Stuart Palmer was elected to the ministry. He will take a course of training to fit himself for the foreign mission field. We lifted an offering of $45 for Home Missions. Our love feast will be held Oct. 25, in the Myersville house.—C. H. Frushour, Myersville, Md., August 18.

MICHIGAN

Black River church met in council August 16, with Eld. J. M. Smith, of Woodland, Mich., presiding. We reelected Bro. Smith as elder for another year. Sunday morning and evening Bro. Smith preached for us, which we appreciated very much. Our love feast will be held at the home of the writer on Saturday evening, Sept. 27.—Amanda Westenbarger, South Haven, Mich., August 18.

Vestaburg church met in council August 6, with Eld. Joseph Robinson presiding. We decided to hold our communion Oct. 4, at 2:30 P. M. We elected Brethren Jos. Robinson and B. F. Switzer delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. Samuel Bollinger, alternate. Church officers were chosen for one year as follows: Jos. Robinson, elder; Chas. Johnson, clerk; Vera Bollinger, correspondent and "Messenger" agent. One letter was granted. One has been baptized since the last report. Sister Ethel Whitmore, District Secretary, from Beaverton, was with us July 30. A large audience greatly enjoyed the interesting talk on missions which Bro. M. G. Miller, of Chicago, gave us August 3.—Vera Bollinger, Vestaburg, Mich., August 11.

MINNESOTA

Monticello.—Since our last report one has been added to the church by baptism. The church met in council August 14. Owing to the busy season only a part of the business was taken up, the rest to be finished in September. Sunday-school officers were chosen, with Brother Jay Smith and Winfield Sink, superintendents. Bro. A. J. Nickey was chosen elder.—Mrs. W. S. Sink, Monticello, Minn., August 15.

NORTH DAKOTA

Brumbaugh.—Our series of meetings, with Brother and Sister J. Edwin Jeshoe in charge, closed August 3 with an all-day meeting. The house was full, in spite of rain and bad roads. There were thirteen converts—not all, however, from Brumbaugh. They were from five different churches. Bro. Virgil C. Finnell gave us two good lectures on Friday and Saturday of last week.—Lydia Deal, Rock Lake, N. Dak., August 15.

Williston church met in council August 15, with Bro. Ora Myer presiding. We held our communion services August 16, with Bro. J. S. Geiser, of Froid, officiating. Bro. J. D. Brown, of Poplar Valley, preached for us Sunday morning and Bro. Reish gave us a good talk in the evening. There were about sixty members present at the love feast.—Lora Marsh, Williston, N. Dak., August 19.

OHIO

Lower Stillwater church met in council, with Eld. L. A. Bookwalter presiding. We decided to organize our Primary Department. Our love feast will be held Oct. 25, at 5 P. M. Bro. Franklin Etter was reelected trustee. Our next evening service we hold our Harvest Meeting. Bro. Hugh Cloppert gave us a splendid sermon. August 24 we expect Bro. D. G. Berkebile, of Harris Creek, to begin our series of meetings.—Maude E. Crook, Trotwood, Ohio, August 18.

May Hill church met in council, with Bro. Van B. Wright presiding. The church elected two trustees: Bro. Landon Caplinger for three years; DeWitt Calvert for two years; Wm. Spurgeon for one year. Plans were adopted for repairing and redecorating the church. Services are well attended here. Our love feast will be held on Saturday, Oct. 11.—M. Tirzah Gorman, Seaman, Ohio, August 18.

Notice.—Sugar Creek congregation decided to change the time of her love feast from 10 A. M., Sept. 6, to 6 P. M. of the same day. July 20 Bro. Naylor, a returned missionary from India, gave a very instructive talk on India.—Carrie B. Early, Lima, Ohio, August 18.

Portage.—On the evening of August 3 the children gave a very good program. August 6 Bro. J. I. Naylor gave his missionary talk. Sunday evening, August 10, the Fostoria Christian Workers gave a missionary program. The following Sunday Bro. Geo. Garner, of Black Swamp, preached in the morning and our pastor in the evening.—Ora E. Myers, Prairie Depot, Ohio, August 18.

Reading church met in an all-day council August 8, with Eld. A. I. Heestand in charge. Reports of the visiting brethren were given. Officers were elected for the coming year, with Bro. A. I. Heestand, elder; Mrs. D. F. Kelley, "Messenger" agent; the writer, correspondent. One letter was granted. Bro. Ira Eby, of Green Hill, Ind., was with us August 9. Sister Anna Hutchison, missionary from China, gave us two inspiring addresses on her work. Her talks were greatly appreciated and the church strengthened along the line of mission work. Our Sunday-school is progressing nicely and is growing in attendance each Sunday. The Christian Workers' Meeting is also arousing more interest and is largely attended. —Lelia A. Showalter, Westover, Md., August 14.

Middletown Valley.—We held our annual Harvest Meeting August 16. Bro. T. S. Fike preached a very appropriate harvest sermon. Bro. Stuart Palmer was elected to the ministry. He will take a course of training to fit himself for the foreign mission field. We lifted an offering of $45 for Home Missions. Our love feast will be held Oct. 25, in the Myersville house.—C. H. Frushour, Myersville, Md., August 18.

MICHIGAN

Black River church met in council August 16, with Eld. J. M. Smith, of Woodland, Mich., presiding. We reelected Bro. Smith as elder for another year. Sunday morning and evening Bro. Smith preached for us, which we appreciated very much. Our love feast will be held at the home of the writer on Saturday evening, Sept. 27.—Amanda Westenbarger, South Haven, Mich., August 18.

Vestaburg church met in council August 6, with Eld. Joseph Robinson presiding. We decided to hold our communion Oct. 4, at 2:30 P. M. We elected Brethren Jos. Robinson and B. F. Switzer delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. Samuel Bollinger, alternate. Church officers were chosen for one year as follows: Jos. Robinson, elder; Chas. Johnson, clerk; Vera Bollinger, correspondent and "Messenger" agent. One letter was granted. One has been baptized since the last report. Sister Ethel Whitmore, District will be drawing on both North and South America for its grain and meat, as well as for many other products. This might be a splendid way for thousands of tenant farmers of our own land to secure homes of their own, and at the same time be doing work for the Master. Think it over prayerfully! Geo. L. McDonaugh.

1109 S. Marguerite, Alhambra, Calif.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The following resolutions of respect were passed by the "Truth Seekers' Bible Class" of the "Church of the Brethren" at Huntsdale, Pa., concerning the death of Tobias Hertzler:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove by death our beloved classmate and brother, Tobias Hertzler, aged forty years, one month and seven days,

Resolved, That our Sabbath-school has lost a devoted member, one who was ever faithful and one who, whenever his health permitted, was in his place in the Sabbath-school.

Resolved, That we express our appreciation of his noble life, calling to mind that in his home he was very kind, a friend to every one, and very patient in his affliction.

Resolved, That, although he is greatly missed here, we bow in humble submission to the Divine Will of God, realizing by his firm faith in God and by the life he lived that our loss is his gain.

Resolved, That we, as members of the Huntsdale church and Sabbath-school, do tender our warmest sympathy to the bereaved wife and friends of the deceased in their time of bereavement, and bid them look to God, who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved wife, and that a copy be published in our local and church papers and also placed on the minutes of the Sabbath-school.

Committee: Mrs. Frank Boldosser, Mrs. Albert Evans, Mr. Gaius Negley.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Reynolds-Harris.—By the undersigned, at his residence, August 5, 1919, David H. Reynolds and Sister Stella B. Harris, both of Ankeny, Iowa.—Jefferson Mathis, Ankeny, Iowa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Adamson, Ruby Gene, daughter of J. D. and Dora Adamson, died August 10, 1919, aged 2 years, 8 months and 25 days. Brief services in the home near Bloom by the writer. Interment in the cemetery near St. John, Kans., with services by Bro. A. D. Sollenberger.—J. S. Sherry, Bloom, Kans.

Berry, Mrs. Rose, nee Fetty, born in Fort Smith, Ark., died at her home in Toledo, Ohio, of cancer, August 5, 1919, aged 44 years, 8 months and 11 days. She was married to Jacob Berry. To this union were born two sons who survive with their father, one daughter by her former husband and two stepchildren. Services at the home by the writer. Burial in the Willow cemetery.—Geo. W. Garner, Walbridge, Ohio.

Bowen, Henry, died in Rappahannock County, Va., died July 23, 1919, aged 76 years and 1t months. In 1887 he married Lelia Bailey, who preceded him seventeen years ago. He united with the Brethren church about seven years ago.—Lodema Stewart, Dayton, Ohio.

Bowman, Sister Frances Ka., nee Van Trump, born in Rockingham County, Va., died at her home near Harding, Mo., August 7, 1919, aged 72 years, 3 months and 5 days. Death was due to apoplexy. She married John H. Bowman in 1866. To this union three daughters and four sons were born. Two daughters and one son preceded her. She was a consecrated Christian woman, and was the second member baptized into the Wakenda church after its organization in 1874. Services at the Wakenda church by Elders J. Frank Van Pelt and S. B. Shirky. Burial in the church cemetery.—Mary Bowman, Harding, Mo.

Brock, Wm., born in Rockingham County, Va., died August 8, 1919, aged 87 years, 4 months and 7 days. He married Catharine Filer in 1853. To this union seven children were born. Two sons, six daughters and his wife survive. Bro. Brock united with the Church of the Brethren in 1873 and lived faithful to his convictions. Services by the writer. Burial in the Wakenda cemetery.—E. G. Rodabaugh, Norborne, Mo.

Eby, Anna, born in Montgomery County, Ohio, near Dayton, Oct. 8, 1827, and died Aug. 7, 1919, aged 91 years, 9 months and 29 days. She was a daughter of John and Anna Miller, and the oldest in a family of seven children. Naturally she was called upon to assume many duties of the home, which were faithfully performed. She was married to Daniel Eby Dec. 31, 1844, and their home was blessed with three sons and two daughters. The husband was called home April 18, 1856, leaving the mother and children to travel life's journey alone. At the age of twenty-six years she united with the Church of the Brethren at Bear Creek, in which congregation she has always lived until Dec. 4, 1917, when she, with her son, Eld. Josiah Eby and family, with whom she has lived for thirty-four years, located in Trotwood. There she quietly fell asleep. Her prayer for the return of her granddaughter, Anna Eby, from the mission field of India, was graciously answered before being called to her reward. She was lovely in disposition, pleasing in manner, devout in worship, patient in suffering, and loyal to her God, and the church. In her quiet passing she leaves her son, her daughter, seventeen grandchildren, thirty-one great-grandchildren, four great-great-grandchildren and one sister. Those preceding her to the home over there are husband, two sons, and one daughter. Services in the Bear Creek church by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Fauanaugh, Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob and Sarah Spillers, born in Illinois, died at the home of her daughters, Mrs. Ardie Fisher, July 22, 1919, aged 78 years, 7 months and 7 days. In 1859 she married Jacob Rarick, who died in 1862. To this union were born three children. Four years later she married Henry Fauanaugh. To this union six children were born, one of whom died in infancy. March 16, 1912, she was again left a widow, since which time she has made her home with her children. When a young girl, she united with the Church of the Brethren and was a consistent member. She leaves eight children, a number of grandchildren and one brother.—Lovina Spillers, Bangor, Mich.

Houser, Edward L., son of Elias and Betsy Houser, born near Stony Mann, Va., died in Lewisburg Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, July 8, 1919, aged 66 years, 8 months and 15 days. In 1876 he married Mary Miller. To this union were born one son and two daughters, who survive. Bro. Houser became a member of the Brethren church many years ago and lived a faithful life. Services by Eld. D. N. Spitler at the home. Interment in the cemetery near by.—H. F. Sours, Luray, Va.

Huffmon, J. Frank, son of David A. and Julia Huffman, born at Newport, Va., died in the Charlestown Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, May 13, 1919, aged 46 years, 9 months and 19 days. Bro. Huffman united with the Brethren church while in his teens and was a consistent member. Services by Eld. J. M. Kagey, assisted by Elders P. L. Snapp and J. A. Hufford, of the Lutheran church. Interment at the Lutheran Brick church.—H. F. Sours, Luray, Va.

Mauck, Sister Lydia Ann, nee Fausler, wife of John Mauck, died at her home near Fairfield, Ill., of paralysis, August 5, 1919, aged 69 years and 10 days. She was born in Rockingham County, Va., in 1838 she united with the Church of the Brethren and remained faithful. She leaves her husband, three sons, five daughters and eleven grandchildren, also three sisters and one brother. Services by Bro. J. W. Harshbarger at the church. Burial in the adjoining cemetery. —Amelia Leinard, Geff, Ill.

Michael, Joseph Wesley, born near Salem, Ohio, died Aug. 12, 1919, aged 71 years, 11 months and 4 days. He was the son of Jacob and Rachel Michael, and was raised on a farm. He was married to Sarah Ann Lawhead Sept. 6, 1874, with whom he lived until her death, Feb. 24, 1896. His second marriage was to Lydia Whitehead Jan. 15, 1899. This union was dissolved Dec. 5, 1912, when she was called to her reward. He spent the major part of his life in Montgomery County, this State. A brief period, however, was spent in Oklahoma and also in Michigan. Having no children to comfort him in his declining health, he was lonely, and greatly appreciated the attention given him by the family in his home, and the assistance given by relatives, and neighbors. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1891. He was greatly comforted by the anointing service, which was administered during his illness. In his passing he leaves one brother, the only survivor of five brothers. Services at Trotwood by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Miller, Sister Bertha, nee Rice, born in Franklin County, Pa., died in the Chambersburg Hospital July 28, 1919, aged 34 years, 8 months and 22 days. Nov. 16, 1912, she was united in marriage to Bro. Jacob Yost, who preceded her five years in death. June 22, 1919, she was united in marriage to Fred Miller, who survives. She is also survived by her parents, four brothers and one sister. Services at the Brooditor church by Bro. D. R. Petre, assisted by Bro. B. F. McCoy. Text, 1 Thess. 4: 18. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Musselman, Harley Calvin, son of Isaac and Barbara Musselman, died Aug. 5, 1919, aged 19 years, 2 months and 10 days. He was born near New Lebanon, Montgomery County, Ohio, and reared on the farm. Later he removed with his parents to Trotwood, and more recently to Dayton. Since his birth, a spinal accident occurred, he arranged to make his home with his mother, thus enabling her to keep up the old home. He accepted the call of his Master during a series of meetings at Trotwood, being baptized on Thanksgiving Day, 1918. On Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, while en route to his mother's home, he was instantly killed by a Northbound B. & O. train, while his friend, Miss Helen Rouch, sustained severe injuries. In his removal, he leaves his mother, six brothers and one sister. His father and one sister preceded him to the home beyond. Services in Trotwood by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Myers, David Howard, infant son of Bro. Walter and Sister Mollie Myers, died June 25, 1919, of cholera infantum, aged 11 months and 4 days. He is survived by his father and mother, four sisters and one brother. Services at Bethel by Bro. J. S. Roller, assisted by Bro. C. E. Nair. Interment in Linville Creek cemetery.—Anna R. Roller, Timberville, Va.

Myers, Debora, nee Dillon, born April 10, 1876, died August 6, 1919. She married A. G. Myers. To them were born ten children, nine of whom survive, together with her husband, mother, one brother and two sisters. She had suffered from cancer for two years. She has been a member of the church for about a year. Services from the home in Connellsville and at the Fairview church by the writer.—Irvin Fletcher, Connellsville, Pa.

Rench, David S., son of John R. and Elizabeth Rench, born in Delaware County, Ind., died at the Home Hospital in Muncie, following an operation for appendicitis, August 1, 1919, aged 51 years, 10 months and 10 days. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1885 and remained faithful. In 1886 he married Sister Mollie Gump, who died two years later. His second marriage was to Miss Sarah Raynes in 1889. To this union were born one daughter, the wife of Bro. Wm. Riddle, and one son. He leaves his wife, one daughter, three sons, his father, three brothers and three sisters. Services in the Union Grove church by the writer, assisted by Brethren J. A. and Lee Miller. Interment in Union cemetery, near Eaton, Ind.—Geo. L. Studebaker, Muncie, Ind.

Shickel, Roland Jacob, son of Bro. Jacob and Sister Lillian Shickel, died in the bounds of the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham County, Va., August 3, 1919, aged 8 months and 3 days. Services at Beaver Creek by Brethren J. Cline and N. J. Miller. Burial in cemetery near by.—Nannie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va.

Shultz, Sister Barbara, wife of Bro. Chas. Shultz (deceased), died of tuberculosis, aged 78 years, 4 months and 15 days. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for many years. Services by Eld. Albert Hollinger, assisted by Elders B. F. Lightner and J. H. Brindle. Interment in the Marshcreek cemetery.—Ida M. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa.

Skinner, Sister Rebecca, nee Miller, died in the bounds of the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham County, Va., July 12, 1919, aged 77 years, 11 months and 29 days. She was the wife of Robert Skinner, who preceded her years ago. Her only daughter died in December, 1911. She is survived by a stepdaughter, two stepsons and one sister. Services at Beaver Creek by Elders A. G. Thomas and M. B. Miller.—Nannie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va.

Spitzer, Susan E., nee Bixler, died Dec. 20, 1919, aged 65 years, 3 months and 4 days. She had been a sufferer for several years with rheumatism. Her husband, Bro. Jesse Spitzer, preceded her several years ago. Services at Bethel by Bro. D. H. Zigler. Interment in the Linville Creek cemetery.—Emma N. Cassel, Timberville, Va.

Stebinton, Geo., born near Dayton, Ohio, died at Ankeny, Iowa, August 1, 1919, aged 84 years and 3 days. In 1859 he married Elizabeth Rodabaugh, who preceded him nearly thirty years ago. There were born three children, two of whom are living but one. He was a faithful member of the church for many years. Services by the writer in the Brethren church at Ankeny.—Jas. Q. Goughnour, Ankeny, Iowa.

Taylor, Sister Esther, wife of Bro. Leonard Taylor, born August 28, 1861, died at her home in Jeffersonville, July 3, 1919. Sister Taylor was a faithful member of the Norristown church for a number of years. She is survived by her husband and five children. Services from the home by Bro. Jos. Gross. Interment at the Green Tree cemetery.—Emma N. Cassel, Norriatown, Pa.

Ward, Bro. John, son of Wm. and Elizabeth Ward, born in Franklin County, Va., died near Camden, Ind., of cancer of the stomach, August 9, 1919, aged 62 years, 10 months and 3 days. He married Minerva Abshire, who lived but a few years. In 1889 he married Sister Annie La Prad. He united with the Church of the Brethren in September, 1918. He is survived by his wife, five daughters, one brother and one grandson. Services in the Lower Deer Creek church by Elders Irvin Fisher and G. B. Heeter. Interment in the Musselman cemetery.—J. G. Stitebaugh, Camden, Ind.

Wicks, Mrs. Sadie, born March 23, 1869, died at the Carthage Hospital, following an operation for gall-stones. She married H. H. Wick Oct. 26, 1918. She was the widow of Thos. Gatlin. Her husband, two sons and a daughter survive. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren. Services from the home near Carthage by Eld. Geo. Barnhart. Text, Rev. 14: 13. Burial in the Park cemetery.—J. L. Switzer, Carterville, Mo.

Wogoman, John H., son of Michael and Catherine Wogoman, died at Olympia, Wash., July 30, 1919, aged 56 years, 7 months and 26 days. He married Eliza Blevios. To this union one son was born. His wife and child preceded him in 1891. He united with the church at Olympia in October, 1914, and continued faithful. Three brothers and four sisters survive. Services by the writer.—D. B. Eby, Olympia, Wash.

Forward Movement Periodical Goals For 1919

5,000 New Subscriptions to The Gospel Messenger. (The Gospel Messenger, published weekly at $2.00 per year.)

7,500 New Subscriptions to Our Young People. (Subscription rates: Per copy, per year, 75c; five or more copies to one address, per quarter, 12½c per copy.)

5,000 New Subscriptions to the Missionary Visitor. (Published monthly. Illustrated. Subscription rates: 50c per year.)

Are You Doing Your Share to Help Reach These Goals?

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

Useful and Handy BOOKS!

Handy Atlas of the World, ...50c

Find the place on the map! You need not guess where places are. Get our Handy Atlas of the World containing about 90 maps of the States and the principal countries of the world. Handy in size, 6x8 inches. Only a few dozen left at 50c each.

Ropp's Commercial Calculator

Indispensable for figuring interest, prices on grain, cattle, wages, etc. Besides interest and price tables the book explains numerous problems in mechanics and mensuration. Price: Pocket edition, leather, 50c; Office edition, cloth, $1.00.

How to Get That Position, ...35c

Of course you want to get ahead. Perhaps you are not just sure of the best way to proceed. If not, read How to Get That Position; it discusses 1,000 and one ways to find, apply and land your best job. The book will be the best investment you ever made.

Making the Farm Pay, ...$1.10

This splendid book tells how to get the biggest returns from the soil and at the same time make farm life more attractive and successful.

A wide range of farming opportunities is discussed. A few chapter headings will suggest the scope of the book:

The Modern Farmer's Opportunity.
Learn How to Go Back to the Land.
Avoid the Single Farming Interest.
Making a Dairy Farm Pay.
Irrigation by Wells.
Pin Money in Pickles.
Farm Bookkeeping.
Winter Egg Production.

Success With Hens, ...$1.10

Robert Joos

An up-to-date and practical poultry guide written by an expert. The fifty-five chapters of the book cover every phase of the poultry business from the hatching and care of chicks to the sale of eggs and fowls. Nothing but proven methods are given. A great boon to the skiller poultryman as well as to beginners.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

The Full Report of Annual Meeting

This year of all years you will want the Full Report. The business was important and the Conference program of special meetings was unusually strong. The Full Report will bring you inspiration as well as information. Be sure and get your copy either from your "Messenger" agent or direct from us. Per copy, postpaid, 35c.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

ecretary. This report was not as complete as or, because of neglect on the part of some of the schools. The Secretary emphasized the need of oöperation on the part of the school with the icers. A report of our foreign mission work was en, and a fund to build a Boys' School in China ended, which recommendation was passed by the ice on Friday.

y Wednesday afternoon the points emphasized
More devotion should be taught; more reverence;
bles used; more sentiment and interest created er songs; more sociability and social meetings;
öperation and team work in the school.

emperance question was also discussed in this

The importance of being awake and active subject was urged. More sentiment should be along this line. One of the greatest forces in berance cause is the use of the ballot.

ort of the Chinese Sunday-school of Detroit was hich showed encouraging prospects of a Chinese church in that city.

esday evening was the Educational Meeting, un-management of Manchester College. Bro. Otho
President of the College, and Bro. J. W. Norris, rent, gave the leading addresses. The importance
r training along educational and spiritual lines ocated and pressed. This was followed by a evangelistic address by Bro. J. E. Ulery. This in one confession, and the importance of greater tion was realized by all.

day the Ministerial Meeting was held. Some of its brought out were: The necessity of more on the part of laymen, as well as the ministers.
lies in the combined efforts of the many—not n the labors of the minister or leader. The need el sermons for the children was urged. The need d ministry, or at least partial support, was fully out. There are great opportunities open to -wire minister. Not all depends on the Spiriteacher; the layman must be full of the Spirit as day evening was the climax of the meeting, when sionary cause was given full sway. After a pres-of the condition of the field, by Bro. Charles ff, two great calls were made—one for workers for money. This resulted in eight young men nen offering themselves for definite work, and a n of $522.

riday the Business Conference took place. A spirit of coöperation was manifested throughout, ch work was accomplished. All who attended this nce could not help but feel that it surely was hile to be there. All were made to realize a deep-ividual responsibility for the Lord's work. All er great obligations to the Sunfield congregation splendid care of the visitors. If each one carries the home congregation the inspiration gained work in Michigan will surely grow and progress.
ngs, Mich. Buryl E. Hoover.

MISSION WORK BY COLONIZATION

aany years the writer has been submitting propo-Through the columns of the "Gospel Messenger" ng mission work by colonization. These plans the past, advocated the locating of our people ere in the United States, but after reading the g article, all will agree that it is wholly feasible
eyond our borders:

thodists have bought a 4,000-acre ranch in Southern Chile se to instruct the peons of the country in modern agricul-hods. They wish to train the natives to reach out for their ties and provide intelligently for their bodies. Their souls later. This is a reversal of the usual foreign missionary has the merit of being practical. It isn't necessary to say are going far away to inaugurate this line of Christian in-fort. There are already institutions and agencies carrying ame work in America and, therefore, no fault can be found ittle pioneering in Chile. The climate is one which permits rful results in agriculture and fruit raising. The tract is xtensively planted to apples, peaches, pears and apricots and also lemon and orange trees in numbers—for the district ich permits of citrus cultivation. There are also many fine d sheep. Yet the people round about are much the same as Spaniards found them, four hundred years ago. They are material for a mental and moral awakening and the Metho-to be honored for their sincere and sensible plans for dethe field.

bmitting the above to the readers of the "Mes-
I ask all to think it over carefully. Our schools r years included the Spanish language in their Why should we not investigate the near-by foruntries to the south, in Central and South Amer-will be drawing on both North and South America for its grain and meat, as well as for many other products. This might be a splendid way for thousands of tenant farmers of our own land to secure homes of their own, and at the same time be doing work for the Master. Think it over prayerfully!

Geo. L. MeDonaugh.

1109 S. Marguerite, Alhambra, Calif.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The following resolutions of respect were passed by the "Truth Seekers' Bible Class" of the "Church of the Brethren" at Huntsdale, Pa., concerning the death of Tobias Hertzler:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove by death our beloved classmate and brother, Tobias Hertzler, aged forty years, one month and seven days.

Resolved, That our Sabbath-school has lost a devoted member, one who was ever faithful and one who, whenever his health permitted, was in his place in the Sabbath-school.

Resolved, That we express our appreciation of his noble life, calling to mind that in his home he was very kind, a friend to every one, and very patient in his affliction.

Resolved, That although he is greatly missed here, we bow in humble submission to the Divine Will of God, realising by his firm faith in God and by the life he lived that our loss is his gain.

Resolved, That we, as members of the Huntsdale church and Sabbath-school, do tender our warmest sympathy to the bereaved wife and friends of the deceased in their time of bereavement, and bid them look to God, who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved wife, and that a copy be published in our local and church papers and also placed on the minutes of the Sabbath-school.

Committee: Mrs. Frank Bolsosser, Mrs. Albert Evans, Mr. Gaius Negley.

MATRIMONIAL

Marriage notices should be accompanied by 50 cents

Please note that the fifty cents required for the publication of a marriage notice may be applied to a three months' "Gospel Messenger" subscription for the newly-married couple. Request should be made when the notice is sent, and full address given.

Reynolds-Harris.—By the undersigned, at his residence, August 5, 1919, David H. Reynolds and Sister Stella B. Harris, both of Ankeny, Iowa.—Jefferson Mathis, Ankeny, Iowa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Adamson, Ruby Gene,—daughter of J. D. and Dora Adamson, died August 10, 1919, aged 2 years, 8 months and 25 days. Brief services in the home near Bloom by the writer. Interment in the cemetery near St. John, Kans., with services by Bro. A. D. Sollenberger.—J. S. Sharp, Bloom, Kans.

Berry, Mrs. Rose, nee Fetty, born in Fort Smith, Ark., died at her home in Toledo, Ohio, of cancer, August 5, 1919, aged 44 years, 8 months and 11 days. She was married to Jacob Berry. To this union seven children were born, one preceding the mother by her former husband and two stepchildren. Services at the home by the writer. Burial in the Willow cemetery.—Geo. W. Garner, Walbridge, Ohio.

Bowen, Henry, born in Rappahannock County, Va., died July 23, 1919, aged 76 years and 11 months. In 1887 he married Lelia Bailey, who preceded him seventeen years ago. He united with the Brethren church about seven years ago.—Lodema Stewart, Dayton, Ohio.

Bowman, Sister Frances R., nee Van Trump, born in Rockingham County, Va., died at her home near Hardin, Mo., August 7, 1919, aged 72 years, 3 months and 5 days. Death was due to apoplexy. She married John H. Bowman in 1866. To this union three daughters and four sons were born. Two daughters and one son preceded her. She was a consecrated Christian woman, and was the second member baptized into the Wakenda church after its organization in 1871. Services at the Wakenda church by Elders J. Frank Van Pelt and N. B. Shirky. Burial in the church cemetery.—Mary Bowman, Hardin, Mo.

Brock, Wm., born in Rockingham County, Va., died August 8, 1919, aged 87 years, 4 months and 7 days. He married Catharine Filer in 1852. To this union were born ten children. Two sons, six daughters and his wife survive. Bro. Brock united with the Church of the Brethren in 1873 and lived faithful to his convictions. Services by the writer. Burial in the Wakenda cemetery.—E. G. Rodabaugh, Norborne, Mo.

Eby, Anna, born in Montgomery County, Ohio, near Dayton, Oct. 8, 1827, and died Aug. 7, 1919, aged 91 years, 9 months and 29 days. She was a daughter of John and Anna Miller, and the oldest in a family of seven children. Naturally she was called upon to assume many duties of the home, which were faithfully performed. She was married to Daniel Eby Dec. 31, 1844, and their home was blessed with three sons and two daughters. The husband was called home April 18, 1858, leaving the mother and children to travel life's journey alone. At the age of twenty-six years she united with the Church of the Brethren at Bear Creek, in which congregation she has always lived until Dec. 4, 1917, when she, with her son, Eld. Josiah Eby and family, with whom she has lived for thirty-four years, located in Trotwood. There she quietly fell asleep. Her prayer for the return of her granddaughter, Anna Eby, from the mission field of India, was graciously answered before being called to her reward. She was lovely in disposition, pleasing in manner, devout in worship, patient in suffering, and loyal to her God, and the church. In her quiet passing she leaves her son, her daughter, seventeen grandchildren, thirty-one great-grandchildren, four great-great-grandchildren and one sister. Those preceding her to the home over there are husband, two sons, and one daughter. Services in the Bear Creek church by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Faunaugh, Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob and Sarah Spillers, born in Illinois, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ardie Fisher, July 22, 1919, aged 78 years, 7 months and 7 days. In 1859 she married Jacob Barick, who died in 1862. To this union were born three children. Four years later she married Henry Faunaugh. To this union six children were born, one of whom died in infancy. March 16, 1912, she was again left a widow, since which time she has made her home with her children. When a young girl, she united with the Church of the Brethren and was a consistent member. She leaves many friends to mourn their loss, but we believe that they are not sorrowing as those who have no hope. Services in the Brethren church by Bro. Jesse Spitzer, assisted by Bro. Wm. Hoffman.—Mrs. Ardie Fisher, Ashland, Ohio.

Fisher, Sister Lydia Ann, nee Fausler, wife of John Mauck, died at her home near Fairfield, Ill., of paralysis, August 5, 1919, aged 69 years and 10 days. She was born in Rockingham County, Va. In 1888 she united with the Church of the Brethren and remained faithful. She leaves her husband, three sons, five daughters and eleven grandchildren, also three sisters and one brother. Services by Bro. J. W. Harshbarger at the church. Burial in the adjoining cemetery.—Amelia Leinard, Geff, Ill.

Mauck, Sister Lydia Ann, nee Fausler, wife of John Mauck, died at her home near Fairfield, Ill., of paralysis, August 5, 1919, aged 69 years and 10 days. She was born in Rockingham County, Va. In 1888 she united with the Church of the Brethren and remained faithful. She leaves her husband, three sons, five daughters and eleven grandchildren, also three sisters and one brother. Services by Bro. J. W. Harshbarger at the church. Burial in the adjoining cemetery.—Amelia Leinard, Geff, Ill.

Michael, Joseph Wesley, born near Salem, Ohio, died Aug. 12, 1919, aged 71 years, 11 months and 4 days. He was the son of Jacob and Rachel Michael, and was raised on a farm. He was married to Sarah Ann Landes Sept. 6, 1874, with whom he lived until her death, Feb. 21, 1896. His second marriage was to Lydia Whitehead Jan. 15, 1899. This union was dissolved Dec. 5, 1912, when she was called to her reward. He spent the major part of his life in Montgomery County, this State. A brief period, however, was spent in Oklahoma and also in Michigan. Having no children to comfort him in his declining health, he was lonely, and greatly appreciated the attention given him by the family in his home, and the assistance given by relatives and neighbors. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1891. He was greatly comforted by the anointing service, which was administered during his illness. In his passing he leaves one brother, the only survivor of the family. Services at Trotwood by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Miller, Sister Bertha, nee Rice, born in Franklin County, Pa., died in the Chambersburg Hospital July 28, 1919, aged 34 years, 8 months and 20 days. Nov. 16, 1912, she was united in marriage to Roy V. Yost, who preceded her five years in death. June 22, 1919, she was united in marriage to Fred Miller, who survives. She is also survived by her parents, four brothers and one sister. Services in the Brouffording church by Bro. D. E. Petre, assisted by Bro. B. F. McCoy. Text, 1 Thess. 4: 18. Interment in the cemetery adjoining.—C. E. Martin, Maugansville, Md.

Musselman, Harley Calvin, son of Isaac and Barbara Musselman, died Aug. 5, 1919, aged 19 years, 2 months and 10 days. He was born near New Lebanon, Montgomery County, Ohio, and reared on the farm. Later he removed with his parents to Trotwood, and more recently to Dayton. Since his father's death, of recent occurrence, he arranged to make his home with his mother, thus enabling her to keep up the old home. He accepted the call of his Master during a series of meetings at Trotwood, being baptized on Thanksgiving Day, 1914. On Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, while en route to his mother's home, he was instantly killed by a Northbound B. & O. train, while his friend, Miss Helen Rouch, sustained severe injuries. In his removal, he leaves the deeply-stricken mother, six brothers and one sister. His father and one sister preceded him to the home beyond. Services in Trotwood by the Brethren.—D. M. Garver, Trotwood, Ohio.

Myers, David Howard, infant son of Bro. Walter and Sister Mollie Myers, died June 25, 1919, of cholera infantum, aged 11 months and 4 days. He is survived by his father and mother, four sisters and one brother. Services at Bethel by Bro. J. S. Roller, assisted by Bro. C. E. Nair. Interment in Linville Creek cemetery.—Anna R. Roller, Timberville, Va.

Myers, Debora, nee Dillon, born April 10, 1876, died August 6, 1919. She married A. G. Myers. To them were born ten children, nine of whom survive, together with her husband, mother, one sister and two brothers. She had suffered from cancer for two years. She has been a member of the church for about a year. Services from the home in Connellsville and at the Fairview church by the writer.—Irvin R. Fletcher, Connellsville, Pa.

Rench, David S., son of John R. and Elizabeth Rench, born in Delaware County, Ind., died at the Home Hospital in Muncie, following an operation for appendicitis, August 1, 1919, aged 31 years, 10 months and 8 days. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1885 and remained faithful. In 1886 he married Sister Mollie Gump, who died two years later. His second marriage was to Miss Sarah Haynes in 1889. To this union were born one daughter, the wife of Bro. Wm. J. Tinkle, who survives, together with one son, one daughter, three sons, his father, three brothers and three sisters. Services in the Union Grove church by the writer, assisted by Brethren J. A. and Leo Miller. Interment in the Union cemetery, near Eaton, Ind.—Geo. L. Studebaker, Muncie, Ind.

Shickel, Roland Jacob, son of Bro. Jacob and Sister Lillian Shickel, died in the bounds of the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham County, Va., August 2, 1919, aged 8 months and 3 days. Services at Beaver Creek by Brethren M. J. Cline and N. J. Miller. Burial in cemetery near by.—Nannie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va.

Shultz, Sister Barbara, wife of Bro. Chas. Shultz (deceased), died of tuberculosis, aged 78 years, 4 months and 15 days. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren for many years. Services by Eld. Albert Hollinger, assisted by Elders B. F. Lightner and J. H. Brindle. Interment in the Marshcreek cemetery.—Ida M. Lightner, Gettysburg, Pa.

Skinner, Sister Rebecca, nee Miller, died in the bounds of the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham County, Va., July 12, 1919, aged 77 years, 11 months and 29 days. She was the wife of Robert Skinner, who preceded her nine years ago. Their only daughter died in December, 1911. She is survived by a stepdaughter, two stepsons and one sister. Services at Beaver Creek by Elders A. G. Thomas and M. B. Miller.—Nannie J. Miller, Bridgewater, Va.

Spitzer, Susan L., nee Kennedy, died July 20, 1919, aged 65 years, 3 months and 4 days. She had been a sufferer for several years with rheumatism. Her husband, Bro. Jesse Spitzer, preceded her several years ago. Services at Bethel by Bro. D. H. Zigler. Interment in the Linville Creek cemetery.—Anna R. Roller, Timberville, Va.

Stebleton, Geo., born near Dayton, Ohio, died at Ankeny, Iowa, August 1, 1919, aged 84 years and 3 days. In 1859 he married Elizabeth Rodabaugh, who preceded him nearly thirty years ago. There were born to them eight children, all living but one. He was a faithful member of the church for many years. Services by the writer in the Brethren church at Ankeny.—Jas. Q. Goughnour, Ankeny, Iowa.

Taylor, Sister Esther, wife of Bro. Leonard Taylor, born August 28, 1861, died at her home in Jeffersonville, July 3, 1919. Sister Taylor was a faithful member of the Norristown church for a number of years. She is survived by her husband and five children. Services from the home by Bro. Jos. Gassel. Interment at the Green Tree cemetery.—Emma N. Cassel, Norristown, Pa.

Ward, Bro. John, son of Wm. and Elizabeth Ward, born in Franklin County, Va., died near Camden, Ind., of cancer of the stomach, August 9, 1919, aged 65 years, 10 months and 3 days. He married Minerva Abshire, who lived but a few years. In 1889 he married Sister Annie La Prad. He united with the Church of the Brethren in September, 1886. He is survived by his wife, five daughters, one brother and one grandson. Services in the Lower Deer Creek church by Elders Irvin Fisher and G. B. Hecter. Interment in the Mussel-man cemetery.—J. G. Stinebaugh, Camden, Ind.

Wick, Mrs. Sadie, born March 23, 1869, died at the Carthage Hospi-

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

"Till we all attain unto . . . the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Eph. 4: 14.

Vol. 68 | Elgin, Ill., September 6, 1919 | No. 36

In This Number

Editorial—
"Who Would Have All Men to Be Saved," 561
Which Ones Should We Love? 561
The New Challenge Which the Church Is Facing, ... 561
What Did Your Baptism Bury? 561
The Quiet Hour, ... 567
Among the Churches, ... 568
Around the World, ... 569

Contributors' Forum—
Sermons We See (Poem), ... 562
Representation at Conference. By Paul Mohler, ... 562
"Safety First." By D. W. Kurtz, ... 562
The Claims of the Christian Ministry.—Part Two. By L. S. Shively, ... 563
The Tragedy of Armenia's Womanhood. By A. J. Culler, ... 563
The Life of Faith. By Wilbur B. Stover, ... 564
The Southern Mountaineers.—Number Five. By O. F. Helm, ... 565
Are You a Child of God? By D. F. Lepley, ... 565

The Round Table—
Some Thoughts on Peace. By Rebecca C. Foulz, ... 566
The Best of Our Sins. By G. W. Tuttle, ... 566
Taking Up the Cross. By Wm. J. Tinkle, ... 566
The Hilltop Vision. By Norman W. Twiddy, ... 566
The Christian's Responsibility. By R. C. Smith, ... 567
Purgatory. By A. I. Mow, ... 567

Home and Family—
The Evening Prayer (Poem), ... 570
Training the Child for Christ. By J. H. Moore, ... 570
What If.—Part I. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough, ... 570
Social Caste Lines. By Oma Kern, ... 571
God's Side or Our Side. By Ida M. Helm, ... 571

...EDITORIAL...

"Who Would Have All Men to Be Saved"

You will want a chance to say amen to this: "I do not know of any notion I'd rather help get out of a man's head than that we need to be careful or we will be trying to get too many people saved to be pleasing to God."

The words are taken from a letter written by a member of the Tract Examining Committee. He was expressing his judgment of an article offered for publication. The article suggested the need of such caution as the committee member referred to. The author thinks the church is attempting too much, more than God wants her to, since his plan is to "save some," not all.

Possibly you did not know there are such people in the world. You might meet one of them sometime and if you do, you will surely want to help get that strange notion out of his head. The words of our caption might serve you a good turn. The committee member quoted them in his letter.

It is too sadly true that many reject the saving grace of God, but that does not lessen his desire for the salvation of all. Nor can it lessen such desire in us either, if we are his children. Nor our efforts to save them. Or will some one give us the exact number we should try to save? And tell us also how hard we should try?

How could we tell which ones to leave out of our plans? Especially since God did not leave any out of the plans he gave us.

For God's plan see Matt. 28: 19; Mark 16: 15; 2 Peter 3: 9; 1 Tim. 2: 4.

Which Ones Should We Love?

It is hard to feel as much interest in some classes of society as in others, isn't it? Ought we to be equally concerned about all?

But some people are worth more than others, are they not? Worth more to the church? And to the world? Undoubtedly. But human judgment is not above making mistakes on this point. You can not always tell.

But why such comparisons? Everybody is entitled to a fair chance to receive and enjoy all the salvation he can hold and to render to the world all the service his capacities will permit. Paul was debtor "both to the wise and to the foolish." So are we.

The New Challenge Which the Church Is Facing

That detestable thing which the events of the last five years have made it convenient to call Kaiserism is badly scotched but it isn't dead. It is hurt severely in one place at least. But the more we think of it, the more fitting the word "scotched" seems to be. It is a bloody-looking wound, to be sure, but it is external, with many surviving signs of vitality in the "thing" itself.

And how could it be otherwise? For the "thing" lies much deeper than any government or institution, political, social, or religious. It is in "the thoughts and intents of the heart," a region beyond the reach of bombs and bayonets, a region penetrated only by that instrument which is "sharper than any two-edged sword."

The Kaiserism which was worsted in the war was merely one of the fifty-seven varieties of selfishness, thoroughly matured. We saw in it the ripe fruitage of that diabolical philosophy which boldly repudiates the altruistic principle and preaches the doctrine of unrestrained self-assertion. This, it says, is the true ideal. Competition is the law of development. Let individuals and nations struggle with each other that the weaklings may perish and the strongest and "best" survive. And so on, indefinitely, until the superman is reached. Thus the central ethical principle of Christianity is directly challenged.

Now the people who have been affected by that vicious doctrine are not all in Germany. You would be surprised to know how many persons in high places and low, if they do not openly avow it, have a lurking apprehension that it is more than half true. Why, isn't self-expression, self-assertion, the most fundamental instinct of human nature? And isn't the highest self-development the goal to be desired? Why shouldn't the strongest and most capable have the right of way?

It is the little truth which overlies the mass of error that gives the theory a certain superficial plausibility. That and the fact that it fits in so beautifully with carnal impulses. Certainly, it is true that the highest self-development is a worthy ideal. That is Christian teaching. But the further Christian teaching is that this highest self-development is to be secured through service to others. We are not shut up to a choice between our own highest good and that of others. When we make the happiness and well-being of others the end for which we strive, we do, in that very thing, make sure our own truest well-being. This is self-expression in its noblest form.

But I do not wish to argue this point here. Surely that is not necessary. I only want us to see how this pernicious and insidious doctrine strikes at the very vitals of our religion, that we may realize just what we must do to counteract its poisonous influence. We are constantly seeing intimations of it in proposed state and national policies, but do we not know that Christianity itself, as it has been exemplified, has, on this very point, some sweeping to do before its own doors? Let us bring the matter closer home.

There is probably not a reader of this paper but will at once admit the primacy of love, with its corollary, brotherhood, as a Gospel principle. We have only to recall what Jesus said about the first and second commandments, his "golden rule," his picture of the judgment in Matthew twenty-five, Paul's great love chapter, his "he that loveth his neighbor hath fulfilled the law"—these are enough to remind us how the New Testament is saturated with this principle. As an element of Christian character and a test of loyalty to Christian standards it will be given first place by common consent. But how does practice square with theory in this matter?

In this question I do not refer especially to our individual failures to make our daily lives measure up to our ideals. I mean to ask what our actual church polity is on the question of loving one's neighbor as one's self? How does a church member's failure to observe this principle affect his standing in the church, as compared with other things? If we really do consider this a fundamental Christian virtue, manifest disregard of it would seem to be one of the very first occasions for concern and inquiry on the part of church officials, if not for church discipline. What are the facts?

What does the church, what do Christian churches generally, regard as "gross sins"? There is a certain verse in the fifth chapter of First Corinthians which mentions six classes of transgressions as proper subjects of the severest church discipline. Will some one please rise and explain why the literalness, which has insisted on the strictest application of this passage in the case of some of the classes named, seems not to have been able to see two of them at all? And those two the ones which trample under foot the very principle which we profess to give, and which the Gospel does unquestionably give, first place! That "why," brethren, is crying out for answer.

Why is it that a young Christian girl who, in just one unguarded hour, falls victim to the wily arts of the seducer, is branded with a stain which a whole subsequent lifetime of penitent and faithful service can hardly remove, while one of the "substantial" brethren of the congregation can live a thoroughly self-centered life, paying his "dues," to be sure, and even doling out a few dollars occasionally to charity, but never making one real personal sacrifice in the interest of his oppressed, body-starved and soul-famished fellow-men—why is it that he can thus live his whole lifetime in open defiance of the most emphasized and most central truth of the whole Gospel, without a question as to his church standing?

That's too strong? For heaven's sake, open your eyes and look around! Then, if you don't see anything, shut them and look inside.

That "why" must be answered. It will be, before Christianity ever does much in meeting the new challenge it is facing.

Perhaps you'd like to think the question over till next week.

What Did Your Baptism Bury?

Paul's reference to baptism as a burial, in the early verses of Romans six, is very significant indeed. Read those verses carefully, not overlooking the first one. The point is that the doctrine of salvation by grace gives Christians no warrant for continuing in sin.

Our very baptism is a proclamation that the old life of sin is dead, dead and buried. The burial was followed by a resurrection, to be sure, but surely not a resurrection of that old life of sin. Or did we forget what we were burying?

"Our old man was crucified with him"—did we forget that part of it?—"Our old man was crucified with him that the body of sin might be done away, that so we should no longer be in bondage to sin." That was the idea. See?

Valid baptism is a burial. We have a right to be glad that we were baptized that way. But would it be a good thing, possibly, to study these verses of Paul, so as to make sure that we got the right thing buried?

Certificates of Baptism

autiful lithographed colored border, on extra good paper, o sizes for framing, 10x11 and 11x17. Will help to increase ch membership and encourage church loyalty. A helpful mbrance for new converts and young people. Busy pas- and Evangelists are using them in every State.

AT LET-LIVE-PRICES
Order today

itpaid in mailing tubes, each 10 cents, 00c doz., 50 cents, r hundred.
d your order to: O. H. FEILER, 523 East Eighth Street, binson, Kans.

Is a College Education Necessary for Good Citizenship?

n education lies the nation's strength. Ignoce will do for kingdoms; but democracy is only in the hands of the "wise and prudent." he tasks of the American citizen are stupendaws, equitable and just, must be made and n through public sentiment properly enforced. World-wide commerce and business must be ected so, that we may live at peace with all n.

The moral life depends upon the superior qualof its leaders. Hence, men must be educated e citizens and citizens to be men.

When has there been an age like this? The air pregnant with opportunities for "strong men l true; great men and good; brave men and e in simple faith; men warm with love and n with hope; men with high aims and lowly rts."

Education that makes such men is a greater ength than armies. Such an education may be l in the Christian atmosphere of

JUNIATA COLLEGE
HUNTINGDON, PA.

ounds, 23 acres; 7 major and 3 minor buildings with equipment worth $212,000 00
endowment, ... 350,000 00
rmitories for men and for women; Library of over 28,000 volumes; Complete Laboratories; Special up-to-date Domestic Science Equipment.
grees in Arts and Sciences and Bible; Diplomas in Business, Expression, Music, Art and Academy.
ysical Training.
lendid Social and Religious Atmosphere. Fall term opens Sept. 15; Winter term Dec. 30.

JUNIATA COLLEGE, Huntingdon, Pa.

How Will You Decide?

No one ever regretted that they decided to secure good education. Thousands have regretted that y did not decide to secure an education when y had the opportunity. Only a few more days til you will have made your decision one way or other for this year.

Manchester College welcomes young people to r halls and class-rooms; and if you live in Indi-a, Ohio or Michigan, Manchester urges you to me this fall and enjoy the large curriculum and e many advantages here.

f you are interested in College, Normal, Bible, riculture, Home Economics, Academy, Business, sic or Expression, Manchester can provide you h the best.

f you want a school of high educational standd, a spiritual religious atmosphere, a healthy cial and moral environment, and of moderate exnses, come for the opening of the Fall Term, ptember 9.

There is yet time for you to ask for information d for a room. Address

THE GOSPEL MESS

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14.

"STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., September 6, 1919

In This Number

Editorial—
"Who Would Have All Men to Be Saved," 561
Which Ones Should We Love? 561
The New Challenge Which the Church Is Facing, ... 561
What Did Your Baptism Bury? 564
The Quiet Hour, ... 567
Among the Churches, ... 568
Around the World, ... 569

Contributors' Forum—
Sermons We See (Poem), ... 562
Representation at Conference. By Paul Mohler, ... 562
"Safety First." By D. W. Kurtz, ... 562
The Claims of the Christian Ministry.—Part Two. By L. S. Shively, ... 563
The Tragedy of Armenia's Womanhood. By A. J. Culler, ... 563
The Life of Faith. By Wilbur B. Stover, ... 564
The Southern Mountaineers.—Number Five. By O. F. Heim, ... 565
Are You a Child of God? By D. F. Lepley, ... 565

The Round Table—
Some Thoughts on Peace. By Rebecca C. Pouts, ... 566
The Best of Our Sins. By G. W. Tuttle, ... 566
Taking Up the Cross. By Wm. J. Tinkle, ... 566
The Hilltop Vision. By Norman W. Twiddy, ... 566
The Christian's Responsibility. By R. C. Smith, ... 567
Purgatory. By A. L. Mow, ... 567

Home and Family—
The Evening Prayer (Poem), ... 570
Training the Child for Christ. By J. H. Moore, ... 570
What Is—Port I. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough, ... 570
Social Caste Lines. By Oma Kare, ... 571
God's Side or Our Side. By Ida M. Heim, ... 571

...EDITORIAL...

"Who Would Have All Men to Be Saved"

You will want a chance to say amen to this: "I do not know of any notion I'd rather help get out of a man's head than that we need to be careful or we will be trying to get too many people saved to be pleasing to God."

The words are taken from a letter written by a member of the Tract Examining Committee. He was expressing his judgment of an article offered for publication. The article suggested the need of such caution as the committee member referred to. The author thinks the church is attempting too much, more than God wants her to, since his plan is to "save some," not all.

Possibly you did not know there are such people in the world. You might meet one of them sometime and if you do, you will surely want to help get that strange notion out of his head. The words of our caption might serve you a good turn. The committee member quoted them in his letter.

It is too sadly true that many reject the saving grace of God, but that does not lessen his desire for the salvation of all. Nor can it lessen such desire in us either, if we are his children. Nor our efforts to save them. Or will some one give us the exact number we should try to save? And tell us also how hard we should try?

How could we tell which ones to leave out of our plans? Especially since God did not leave any out of the plans he gave us.

For God's plan see Matt. 28: 19; Mark 16: 15; 2 Peter 3: 9; 1 Tim. 2: 4.

Which Ones Should We Love?

It is hard to feel as much interest in some classes of society as in others, isn't it? Ought we to be equally concerned about all?

But some people are worth more than others, are they not? Worth more to the church? And to the

The New Challenge Which

That detestable thing which the events of the last five years have made it convenient to call Kaiserism is badly scotched but it isn't dead. It is hurt severely in one place at least. But the more we think of it, the more fitting the word "scotched" seems to be. It is a bloody-looking wound, to be sure, but it is external, with many surviving signs of vitality in the "thing" itself.

And how could it be otherwise? For the "thing" lies much deeper than any government or institution, political, social, or religious. It is in "the thoughts and intents of the heart," a region beyond the reach of bombs and bayonets, a region penetrated only by that instrument which is "sharper than any two-edged sword."

The Kaiserism which was worsted in the war was merely one of the fifty-seven varieties of selfishness, thoroughly matured. We saw in it the ripe fruitage of that diabolical philosophy which boldly repudiates the altruistic principle and preaches the doctrine of unrestrained self-assertion. This, it says, is the true ideal. Competition is the law of development. Let individuals and nations struggle with each other that the weaklings may perish and the strongest and "best" survive. And so on, indefinitely, until the superman is reached. Thus the central ethical principle of Christianity is directly challenged.

Now the people who have been affected by that vicious doctrine are not all in Germany. You would be surprised to know how many persons in high places and low, if they do not openly avow it, have a lurking apprehension that it is more than half true. Why, isn't self-expression, self-assertion, the most fundamental instinct of human nature? And isn't the highest self-development the goal to be desired? Why shouldn't the strongest and most capable have the right of way?

It is the little truth which overlies the mass of error that gives the theory a certain superficial plausibility. That and the fact that it fits in so beautifully with carnal impulses. Certainly, it is true that the highest self-development is a worthy ideal. That is Christian teaching. But the further Christian teaching is that this highest self-development is to be secured through service to others. We are not shut up to a choice between our own highest good and that of others. When we make the happiness and well-being of others the end for which we strive, we do, in that very thing, make sure our own truest well-being. This is self-expression in its noblest form.

But I do not wish to argue this point here. Surely that is not necessary. I only want us to see how this pernicious and insidious doctrine strikes at the very vitals of our religion, that we may realize just what we must do to counteract its poisonous influence. We are constantly seeing intimations of it in proposed state and national policies, but do we not know that Christianity itself, as it has been exemplified, has, on this very point, some sweeping to do before its own doors? Let us bring the matter closer home.

There is probably not a reader of this paper but will at once admit the primacy of love, with its corollary first" means progress—not "staying where we are," or "holding our own," or "doing as we always did," or, in short, being in a rut of formalism.

There is no safety without being right with God, and no one is right with God who is opposed to progress, for the very law of God is the law of life, which is growth. The world conditions are such that unless the church awakens and makes tremendous progress along all spiritual things, she is lost. Time is too precious to deal mainly with the mint, anise and cummin. We must attend to the weightier matters—love, justice, mercy and faith. Over sixty per cent of Europe is Bolshevist—because the church was allied with autocracy, and spent her time in cultus, formalism and sophistry, while the masses were crying for justice and human brotherhood. The church believed in a false safety, the safety of the past—to keep in a rut—but the church of Russia and other European nations has lost her power over the masses, and a wave of anarchy is spreading over the earth. There are big issues before the world, and the church must move forward, not backward—forward to justice, mercy, faith, brotherhood, and not rest in a false safety of a worn-out, dead formalism. "Safety first" means forward with Christ for the Kingdom of God on earth.

McPherson, Kans.

The Claims of the Christian Ministry

An Address Delivered at the Winona Lake Conference, June 5, 1919, by L. S. Shively, President of Mount Morris College

In Three Parts—Part Two

HAVING given, in the foregoing, a brief idea of the most important phase of the work of the minister, I shall now pass to a consideration of the things which are necessary to secure this end. These things, upon which a successful ministerial career depends, are the ones which ought to be given the greater emphasis at such a time as this. They are the claims which the ministry makes upon a young man who is looking toward taking it up, and the welfare of the future church, in a large measure, depends upon how fully these claims are understood and met by those who are to be her ministers.

These things can be grouped about two main ideas. The first of these is preparation for the work, such as we generally designate by the term education. The second is the individual's character, including all that we generally mean when we use that term, and in addition one's spirit-life and those things associated therewith.

It might have been worth while, if a Conference such as this had been held in our church twenty-five or thirty years ago, to argue the necessity for an educated ministry. I take it that I should be wasting the time of all of us, if I should so argue at this time. If there are to be found anywhere those who are not convinced on this point, it is hardly probable that any of them are here this evening. From every point of view that may be taken, but particularly from the standpoint of the successful performance of his duties, the minister must be educated. Not only so, but his education must be liberal and complete, if the best results are to come from his work. I am using here the term education in a broad rather than in a restricted sense.

It is very difficult indeed, in a matter such as this, to point out a specific line of training which will lead to the desired preparation. In fact, it is impossible to mark out a single particular course or plan which will meet this need equally well in all individuals. The personal equation is a factor which here comes to the front in such a marked degree as to render uniform procedure entirely out of the question. The best that can be done is to point out some of the things which are necessary, and to indicate something of how they can be attained in a typical case. But the individual cases may vary very much from the average or typical one.

If a minister is first and foremost a preacher of God's Word, he must first of all know this Word of God. And if he is to be a successful preacher of the Word, his knowledge must be correspondingly thorough. This, of course, means but one thing, namely, that the Bible must be the central object of his thorough study. There may be other sources of learning God's Will and his plan for man, but there can be no substitute for his Written Word as found in the Holy Book.

The magnitude of the task of mastering the Bible is well understood to be great. If the Bible were only an ordinary literary work, it would be a great field for study, but being what it is, it is even more of a task to learn to know it as it should be known by the minister of God. This being the case, one thing is clear, namely, that he who would prepare for effective work in the ministry, must find the shortest and most economical, yet at the same time, thorough road, to this goal of a knowledge of the contents of this Great Book. In this day, when time is precious, the time factor ought to be given due consideration. But it is well to bear in mind the old adage that "the longest way around is sometimes the shortest way home."

I have already intimated that the Bible is a great deal more than a mere literary work. But at the same time, it is literary in form and if thoroughly studied, this must be taken into consideration. Moreover, it is a collection of a very large variety of different kinds of literature. There are to be found within its pages history and story, song and poetry, essay and oration; in fact, nearly every type of literary production is present in the Bible. To arrive at a real understanding and appreciation of its meaning it is therefore necessary to study it, in part, from the literary point of view. I do not mean to say that literary methods alone will suffice, but rather I am trying to say that failure to apply these methods would seriously handicap one in the thorough study of the Book.

The careful Bible student must be a student of history. He must be a student of geography. He must by all means know something of the original languages in which the Bible was written. He ought to have a good acquaintance with the development of philosophical thought, especially that of the period of time covered by the Bible. He ought to be well acquainted with the fundamental facts of the various branches of science, for there is abundant reference, both direct and indirect, to matters such as this. But most of all he ought to have acquired a certain mental maturity, with which there always goes that power to analyze a situation and unravel its meaning.

To me these things mean that a certain adequate foundation should precede any attempt at what might be called a thorough study of the Bible, with a view of mastering the same. Just how much this foundation would include is a question on which there could easily be room for considerable difference of opinion. Some would set a certain standard, others would set the standard higher, and still others would regard a lower one as sufficient.

When I consider this question on its own merits—and this is the principal thing which should guide in the solution of such a question—I reach a certain conclusion. And again, when I consider it from the viewpoint of the minister's relations to the other people of the community in which he is working, my conclusion is by no means weakened. This conclusion is, in brief, that the general educational attainment, which should be the basis in a typical case, for a thorough study of the Bible, is not less than that represented by the completion of a full four-year course in college. I am thoroughly convinced that graduation from high school is not sufficient for this. It may be that for some individuals the full four-year college course is not so necessary as more than this is for others, but an average or typical case would require at least as much training as such a course aims to give.

Before I leave this point I must make myself clear on one matter. It may seem that the thought has been advanced that effective Bible study can not be done without school-training such as has just been outlined. Or again, it might be inferred that when such school preparation is to be made, it should precede all Bible study. Neither of these has been meant. It is, on the other hand, very true that many ministers who have been highly successful in their work for God and his Kingdom, have had little, if any, formal training in school. And their success has been due in part to the fact that they did know their Bibles. But these men were nevertheless educated and the education which they secured, by other means than attending school or college, served well as the foundation for their Bible study. If there are those who must, by reason of circumstance, do likewise today, there is no attempt on my part to minimize their efforts, or the results which they may be able to secure. But the outstanding fact is that in every case where it can be done by the self-education plan, it can be done more economically and, I believe, with better results, by the more common and almost universal method in use today.

Let us suppose, then, that our prospective minister is thoroughly educated in the Bible. He knows God's Message to man as he has learned it from the Book, from nature and from any other sources from which it may be learned. So far as his preparation is concerned, he is then half through. The other half, which is yet to be accounted for, is the knowledge of men and women, or as we generally speak of it, human nature. A little reflection will show that this is a necessary complement to the other phase of his educational preparation which has just been discussed.

Christ came into the world for the purpose of bringing God's Message to men, and through their acceptance of this Message to lead to their salvation. A very casual study of his methods of work with people shows that he knew human nature thoroughly and that this knowledge was basic in his equipment for successful dealing with them.

Our foreign missionaries, as they return to us and tell of their work among those people who are so different in customs and habits of thought from ourselves, all agree upon one point. They tell us that the Oriental mind is very different from ours, that their thought and philosophy is such that unless one, as a missionary, studies it, he is at a great disadvantage in his attempt really to reach the people in an effective manner.

These illustrations serve my present purpose. It makes little difference whether the individual or the group of individuals to be reached lives in America or in India, it is true that either must be understood in order to be reached and helped. While the ultimate goal is to bring one and the same message to the hearts of the hearers, it would be the height of folly to present it in exactly the same manner, for example, to an audience in the slums of a great city, to an essentially rural audience, and to an audience made up of the most highly educated.

I need, perhaps, only suggest, then, that the minister must know the fundamental principles of the workings of the human mind; that is, he must be a student of psychology. He must also know something of the laws and principles governing individuals in groups; which is to say that he must be a student of sociology.

The problem of preparation or education is thus seen to be one of considerable proportions. But it is not by any means an insurmountable one. It is, when considered in the light of the advantages which are at hand for its solution, not even a discouraging one. To repeat the idea which was mentioned earlier, it means, if it is approached and attacked in the most economical manner, the losing of one's self for a period of years in school, before such preparation has been completed. But this in itself is a pleasant prospect, and one which is well within the reach of every one who is serious in his purposes to do effective work in the Christian ministry.

Mt. Morris, Ill.

The Tragedy of Armenia's Womanhood

BY A. J. CULLER

IT is comparatively easy to measure things material and to form an estimate of their values. But it requires a finer sense to get a true conception of the significance of moral and spiritual facts. This is as true of the Armenian situation as anything else. We can give the statistics of the deaths of men, women and children; we can count the widows and the orphans. We can estimate the losses in property, due to destruction and four years of neglected fields and business, and we can find how many are lying about in the masses of destitute and helpless, waiting for food and clothing. But it is infinitely more difficult to under-thing when the majority of the people are right. last few years many congregations have made membership so easy that numbers no longer nything, and even if the majority of the mem- the church should vote to reject a Conference n, that would not necessarily mean that Confer- as wrong.

n Conference really has authority, it is because present and in control. Nor does the fairness onference depend upon the ideas the delegates ve brought with them. The Holy Spirit can the sentiment and control the decisions of any nference. Take, for example, the first confer- hat described in Acts 15. Notice that there ng considered the question of the Gentiles be- cumcised and required to keep the law. Were ntile churches represented? If so, we have no of it. No mention is made of delegates from , Antioch of Pisidia, Iconium, Lystra, or Derbe. ly church that sent delegates up to Jerusalem ntioch—the church in which the question arose. eover, the church at Jerusalem, where the con- was held, was strongly Jewish, and any one ows the stubbornness of the Jewish character expect them to stand immovably against any ns loosening the hold of the Law. I am sure nc of our brethren today are harder to change r opinions than were those Jewish Christians. I am sure that none of our brethren are more ghly grounded in the doctrine of the order of rch in dress than were they, in all the tenets of v. Remember that fact!

the Holy Spirit dominated that conference and led the decision, which was given out to the es as "the decrees to keep which had been or- of the apostles and elders that were at Jerusa- By the way, that decision affected the private the members of the church in their eating—cer- a personal matter.

the Holy Spirit control Conference today? Let ind you that it was a body of delegates that had up, used to the brethren as one body breaking it communions, that changed that practice. It legates that had always practiced the salutation munions that changed that also, and I am confi- nat if the Holy Spirit should ever desire to the decision of Conference on dress, he could vith any body of delegates we are likely to elect the present system! But as long as there is ood reason for keeping the present decision and d reason for changing it, the Holy Spirit is not o change it.

ville, Wash.

"Safety First"

BY D. W. KURTZ

FETY FIRST" is a good motto, but one must still "when he is safe." There seems to be a gen- inion that to do nothing is safe, and that progress danger. To be good, in the judgment of these means "not to do wrong." But this is false. e is good unless he does good. Goodness is a e quality of character, which is the result of ction. Ethically, then, safety consists in being or good, and that means to do the right or good If progress is right, then progress is "safety many people are in a rut. "A rut is a grave oth ends knocked out," but a grave just the for the dead. The first law of life is growth, ss. To do nothing is to be lost. "Repent," e faith," "Be baptized," etc., are all positive implying action, progress, growth. To do g is sin and eternal death.

Christian must "grow in grace and in the first" means progress—not "staying where we are," or "holding our own," or "doing as we always did," or, in short, being in a rut of formalism.

There is no safety without being right with God, and no one is right with God who is opposed to progress, for the very law of God is the law of life, which is growth. The world conditions are such that unless the church awakens and makes tremendous progress along all spiritual things, she is lost. Time is too precious to deal mainly with the mint, anise and cummin. We must attend to the weightier matters—love, justice, mercy and faith. Over sixty per cent of Europe is Bolshevist—because the church was allied with autocracy, and spent her time in cultus, formalism and sophistry, while the masses were crying for justice and human brotherhood. The church believed in a false safety, the safety of the past—to keep in a rut—but the church of Russia and other European nations has lost her power over the masses, and a wave of anarchy is spreading over the earth. There are big issues before the world, and the church must move forward, not backward—forward to justice, mercy, faith, brotherhood, and not rest in a false safety of a worn-out, dead formalism. "Safety first" means forward with Christ for the Kingdom of God on earth.

McPherson, Kans.

The Claims of the Christian Ministry

An Address Delivered at the Winona Lake Conference, June 5, 1919, by L. S. Shively, President of Mount Morris College

In Three Parts—Part Two

HAVING given, in the foregoing, a brief idea of the most important phase of the work of the minister, I shall now pass to a consideration of the things which are necessary to secure this end. These things, upon which a successful ministerial career depends, are the ones which ought to be given the greater emphasis at such a time as this. They are the claims which the ministry makes upon a young man who is looking toward taking it up, and the welfare of the future church, in a large measure, depends upon how fully these claims are understood and met by those who are to be her ministers.

These things can be grouped about two main ideas. The first of these is preparation for the work, such as we generally designate by the term education. The second is the individual's character, including all that we generally mean when we use that term, and in addition one's spirit-life and those things associated therewith.

It might have been worth while, if a Conference such as this had been held in our church twenty-five or thirty years ago, to argue the necessity for an educated ministry. I take it that I should be wasting the time of all of us, if I should so argue at this time. If there are to be found anywhere those who are not convinced on this point, it is hardly probable that any of them are here this evening. From every point of view that may be taken, but particularly from the standpoint of the successful performance of his duties, the minister must be educated. Not only so, but his education must be liberal and complete, if the best results are to come from his work. I am using here the term education in a broad rather than in a restricted sense.

It is very difficult indeed, in a matter such as this, to point out a specific line of training which will lead to the desired preparation. In fact, it is impossible to mark out a single particular course or plan which will meet this need equally well in all individuals. The personal equation is a factor which here comes to the front in such a marked degree as to render uniform procedure entirely out of the question. The best that can be done is to point out some of the things which are necessary, and to indicate something of how they can be attained in a typical case. But the individual God's Will and his plan for man, but there can be no substitute for his Written Word as found in the Holy Book.

The magnitude of the task of mastering the Bible is well understood to be great. If the Bible were only an ordinary literary work, it would be a great field for study, but being what it is, it is even more of a task to learn to know it as it should be known by the minister of God. This being the case, one thing is clear, namely, that he who would prepare for effective work in the ministry, must find the shortest and most economical, yet at the same time, thorough road, to this goal of a knowledge of the contents of this Great Book. In this day, when time is precious, the time factor ought to be given due consideration. But it is well to bear in mind the old adage that "the longest way around is sometimes the shortest way home."

I have already intimated that the Bible is a great deal more than a mere literary work. But at the same time, it is literary in form and if thoroughly studied, this must be taken into consideration. Moreover, it is a collection of a very large variety of different kinds of literature. There are to be found within its pages history and story, song and poetry, essay and oration; in fact, nearly every type of literary production is present in the Bible. To arrive at a real understanding and appreciation of its meaning it is therefore necessary to study it, in part, from the literary point of view. I do not mean to say that literary methods alone will suffice, but rather I am trying to say that failure to apply these methods would seriously handicap one in the thorough study of the Book.

The careful Bible student must be a student of history. He must be a student of geography. He must by all means know something of the original languages in which the Bible was written. He ought to have a good acquaintance with the development of philosophical thought, especially that of the period of time covered by the Bible. He ought to be well acquainted with the fundamental facts of the various branches of science, for there is abundant reference, both direct and indirect, to matters such as this. But most of all he ought to have acquired a certain mental maturity, with which there always goes that power to analyze a situation and unravel its meaning.

To me these things mean that a certain adequate foundation should precede any attempt at what might be called a thorough study of the Bible, with a view of mastering the same. Just how much this foundation would include is a question on which there could easily be room for considerable difference of opinion. Some would set a certain standard, others would set the standard higher, and still others would regard a lower one as sufficient.

When I consider this question on its own merits—and this is the principal thing which should guide in the solution of such a question—I reach a certain conclusion. And again, when I consider it from the viewpoint of the minister's relations to the other people of the community in which he is working, my conclusion is by no means weakened. This conclusion is, in brief, that the general educational attainment, which should be the basis in a typical case, for a thorough study of the Bible, is not less than that represented by the completion of a full four-year course in college. I am thoroughly convinced that graduation from high school is not sufficient for this. It may be that for some individuals the full four-year college course is not so necessary as more than this is for others, but an average or typical case would require at least as much training as such a course aims to give.

Before I leave this point I must make myself clear on one matter. It may seem that the thought has been advanced that effective Bible study can not be done that upset all the rest. He held the wrong view-point. What a severe comment on the idea of salvation by faith and works. My sermon of the previous Sunday was in harmonious agreement, "The just shall live by faith."

Then today came the MESSENGER. We are always glad for the home mail. In that MESSENGER (May 3) I soon became much interested in an article under the heading, "The Doctrine of Justification" (page 274). It is not the message I preached last Sunday. I did not say a man must be saved by faith and works. Neither did I say a man would be justified by faith only. At one time I taught that a man must do what he can to be saved, and then trust the Lord Jesus for the rest of it. I do not know where I got the idea. I believe the Lord has forgiven me for that blunder. We don't work out half our salvation and get the other half by gift. It is a full, whole, free gift of God, by grace through faith. We can do nothing to help complete the job. There is a great danger in saying that certain ordinances are saving ordinances. The strong implication is that some others are not. What will you do with the others? All our works, our prayers, our practicing of the simple life, our gifts, our church ordinances, our mission work, are the result of the great fact that we have received the Lord in our hearts, and that he rules there. We do it because we love him. It is the fruit of the grafted tree. It is because we have been born into the family. If the Pharisee had accepted this point, the Lord would not have condemned him.

Now in this I fear the dear, aged brother, who wrote the essay to which I have referred, will differ from me somewhat. We both belong to his New Testament church, we have the same Book, but our messages have grown apart, apparently. That comes from our differing experiences, I think. His experience has been with men who profess faith in Christ, and who follow not after him as closely as they might, so, in order to press the need for obedience upon such, he joins the idea of works too closely into faith, hoping thereby to lead these good folk to see the error of their ways. But he defeats himself thereby.

In India we have, on every side of us, those who depend on their works for their salvation, and who give faith no place, so we missionaries, easily and naturally, come to the same position that Paul the missionary held. Our experience is largely similar to that of Paul. He insisted that a man is not saved by works, neither is he saved by faith and works, but he is saved by grace, justified by faith, and sanctified by the Holy Spirit. Good works, walking in the foot-steps of the Master, accepting all the teachings of Jesus—these follow.

But is this idea of being saved by faith and works a peculiar tenet of the Church of the Brethren? Has it been so from the very first? Then we, to say the least, have been very careful to have one point set down as an article of faith. In previous essays, our good brother has, I think, been very zealous in upholding the excellent tenet of the Church of the Brethren in her reformatory movement, of not yielding to the temptation to make articles of faith. An argument of this kind, when used to press a point, only argues the weakness of the point, and is as clear as anything to those who can discern between what may be called loose thinking and careful thinking. In common phraseology, "It sure does cut some figure!"

If, then, we conclude that a man is justified by faith without good works, do we make void all such good works? God forbid! We establish, in reality, the doing of good works more abundantly, for "we are the workmanship of God, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, that we should walk in them."

Ankleshwer, India.

The Southern Mountaineers

BY O. F. HELM

Number Five

MANY sections of the Southern mountains are today, to a very great degree, unknown, but the time is not far distant when this can not be said of them. To the west of the Appalachian Valley, capitalists from the North and East are at work, exploiting the great oil fields. They are also discovering rich veins of iron and coal. While this is being done, the State is making an effort to push its program of education farther and higher into the mountains. This, however, will prove of but little worth to the mountaineer unless the forces of religion and religious education keep pace with those of industry and public education.

The mountaineer of old was entirely dependent on his own efforts. With a little forethought he could live quite well, although plainly, by his industry. He knew he must make his own crop and provide his own meat before the winter, or he should go hungry. His wife knew she must spin and weave, or her family would suffer from cold. There was little exchange of labor for cash, and little cash to be expended. As a result of this, the mountaineer was self-dependent. But today, cheap though mountain labor may be, it has a market, and the mountaineer, in order that he may earn a little ready cash, is apt to neglect his little fields of corn and cotton, and spend his time and energy working in the mines or the cotton mills, at a very small salary. Out of this small salary he is compelled to pay big rent, which, in itself, eats a big hole in his weekly pay check. And food, even the plainest kind, takes more than the laborer ever dreamed food could cost. As a rule, the long rows of little dwellings, in which the laborers live, belong to the company, and the food and clothing must be purchased in the company's commissary. Thus you can readily see that practically everything paid out in wages goes back to the company, and all that the mountaineer has received for his labor is a very scant living.

If any of my readers have ever visited a cotton factory in the South, they have undoubtedly been made heart-sick at the conditions in many of the mills. Child labor has always been popular at the looms, and a father can put his children and his wife to work at a combined wage, while he spends his time in leisure. I am told that this is frequently done. Of course there are laws which prevent the employment of children under a certain age, but many, many boys and girls, who ought to be in school, preparing for lives of usefulness, are working daily at hard labor in cotton mills.

The mill-hands, as a rule, become a migrant class, wandering from place to place. Many of them would gladly go back to the little cabin in the hills, to cultivate the patches of cotton and corn, but their lands have been sold—perhaps to the great corporations seeking mineral rights, or to the agents of the wealthy pleasure-seekers, who want a summer-home where they can enjoy the pure mountain air during the hot summer months. The mountaineer, through ignorance, has become very suspicious, and is inclined to look upon all strangers as enemies rather than as friends. Of course, there is a very good reason for this. His resources are being taken by the exploiter for the benefit of the nation, perhaps, as well as the capitalist, but not to the betterment of the mountaineer. He does not realize his condition until his little home is gone and he is compelled to earn his living by hard labor in the mill or mine. Life to him now is little more than a struggle for mere existence, and to earn enough money to satisfy the carnal man.

Now the thoughtful reader will ask the question, How can the condition of these people be improved? In answer I will say that to the church alone belongs the greatest responsibility and the greatest opportunity of the age in the saving of the mountaineers. They can not and will not come to us. We must go to them. In their very souls lives the mystic beauty of the hills that inspired God's prophets of old. They love the hills, the valleys and glens. They love the beauty and the freedom of their native haunts. From childhood they have learned to love the little home in the hills. Here they wandered about in the early springtime in search of beautiful wild flowers. It is here they like to gather berries in summer and muscadines in autumn. Many of them know well enough that elsewhere greater advantages could be enjoyed, but they are neither willing nor able to leave their native place.

The mountaineer is quick to resent injury, and apt to strike hard in revenge, for he has not yet entrusted himself in all things to the protection of his Government. He looks upon the State as an organization for carrying on foreign wars, but feels that it is his own business to defend his property by his own strength. This has been fully proved during the recent selective draft, when a number of United States officers were shot by mountaineers.

Undaunted before difficulties, daring and resourceful, able to make the best of the most limited opportunities—this is the best type of mountaineer. Where the struggle with nature has not too deeply depressed the body and mind, all the splendid homely virtues of the pioneer survive, and often take on rare attractiveness in the sons and daughters of the mountains. I firmly believe that through the efforts of Christian teachers these North American Highlanders will yet become a grand race. They are a young people, not yet ready to pass away. Their strength lies dormant, awaiting developments. Then let us improve this opportunity while it is day, "for the night cometh when no man can work." Now is the time to help them. Not tomorrow. What will we do?

Edison, Ga.

Are You a Child of God?

BY D. F. LEPLEY

THIS is the one all-important question.

There are no doubt many who read this paper that have heard and perhaps made statements like these, or their equivalent:

"I believe there is a God, but I do not believe in hell."

"If God is merciful and loves people, I do not believe he could punish them forever in hell."

"I believe this earth is all the hell there is."

"I believe if I do right by my fellow-man, it is all that is necessary, and I will have just as much heaven as anybody else."

Isn't it strange that people will tolerate the idea of a heaven (whatever that name may imply), but instinctively balk at the thought of a hell? And yet they will admit the facts of light and darkness, good and bad, and the reaping after the sowing.

Now, will we just wait a minute and let these facts soak into our minds?

The fundamental laws of nature prove that every effect has a cause, hence there must be a Cause or Author of good. Also a cause or author of evil.

Now since, in quality and action, these two effects are diametrically opposed, or contrary, to each other, it is evident that each must have its own author and promoter, of a character and nature like unto their respective acts.

It is a law of nature that opposites always conflict with and oppose each other—that each draws to itself elements of a like character and strives for the mastery. They can have nothing in common and it is inevitable that ultimately the stronger will vanquish the weaker.

Have you ever worked for pay? Have you ever been an employé, or contracted and agreed with some one to perform a service for a consideration?

When the job was done, the service faithfully rendered, your part of the contract faithfully performed, did you go to your employer's hostile competitor for your pay? And it so, did you get it?

How can you spend your life serving the devil, the father of evil, whose adopted child and servant you are as long as you do evil and promote his cause, and then expect to get your pay from God?

God is good and loves the sinner, but he is also just and righteous, as well as good, and could no more take the inheritance of one of his own faithful children, and divide it among strangers, than you could expect to draw some one else's pay without his knowledge and consent, or expect pay from some one for whom you had not worked. It would not be fair. It would neither be honest nor just.

Don't you see, dear reader, whether or not you can have any ground for a hope of heaven, depends entirely upon whose child you are—whom you are serving?

You are a child of God if you have been "reborn" into his Kingdom and have renounced his enemy, the

(Continued on Page 572)

ast to the truth we have received, we will be by the realization of the blessed hope that one soon.

hat do these thoughts mean to us?

faith we realize that the things which are not more and greater than the things which are e think of the myriad spirits of just men made roughout the years. We think of the legions of God who are his constant ministers. We the tremendous forces for good, so often not made known, while the forces of evil are vertised with apparent viciousness. We join to the great, quiet forces of the land and are
l. The evil proclaims itself for its own evil but the good is greater. It is not seen, but it ail. We believe in the final triumph of the l we rejoice.

faith we lay hold of the great truth that the formed from that which is not visible. We n Heb. 11: 3. We get it in nature. We get own heart experience. We, who preach and ist ever lay fast hold of this principle, else ittle vision for our work.

faith we know that when evil is apparently God yet rules the world, and some good is out which others may see more clearly. Not produces good, but that God brings good in he evil. When there is temptation, sickness, hen there is every discouragement to right-
—then faith is triumphant, as it well can be.

faith we become separate from the world and it, like Noah did of old. It is an interesting know that every man who takes his stand for es by his action condemn his friend who fails

For this reason, when one of a non-Chris-ly becomes Christian, the others oppose him.
reason, when one of a group of criminals te's evidence, the others would kill him. In ondemn the world, like Noah, and are hated the world (Heb. 11: 7). We should not be thereby. It is just what we might expect.

faith we know that our salvation is complete, ny works we may have done, not by any orwe have observed, but by grace. If by or-or keeping of the law, or by any good works, ation has a price set, and it is up to men to rice. No, the salvation of the Lord is not of ut of grace through faith. It is the gift of
h. 2: 8).

easy it is to get this teaching wrong end to!
some grafted mango trees in our yard. Beey have been grafted they bear high grade e have children in the family. They are born family, therefore we expect them to learn the he family, and do credit to the name. Would say that because a child is good, therefore he n son? Birth is the first thing. Obedience
There are sometimes servants who are better than some children, but the children continue dren, and the servants continue to be servants.
faith we know that the Lord will return. We h that his return will be speedy, and we live pe that it may be. Whether speedy means to-hundred years from now, does not affect our r we know that he is coming.

day we had for our lesson, in family prayers, iar parable of Luke 18: 9-14. That Pharisee rly good man, and he got further on, in some nan some good people get today.

sted twice a week.

ve tithes of all he possessed.

nt up into the temple to pray.

s not an extortioner like some other men.

s not unjust, as were some of his friends.

is not an adulterer, as were others, not far

that upset all the rest. He held the wrong view-point. What a severe comment on the idea of salvation by faith and works. My sermon of the previous Sunday was in harmonious agreement, "The just shall live by faith."

Then today came the MESSENGER. We are always glad for the home mail. In that MESSENGER (May 3) I soon became much interested in an article under the heading, "The Doctrine of Justification" (page 274). It is not the message I preached last Sunday. I did not say a man must be saved by faith and works. Neither did I say a man would be justified by faith only. At one time I taught that a man must do what he can to be saved, and then trust the Lord Jesus for the rest of it. I do not know where I got the idea. I believe the Lord has forgiven me for that blunder. We don't work out half our salvation and get the other half by gift. It is a full, whole, free gift of God, by grace through faith. We can do nothing to help complete the job. There is a great danger in saying that certain ordinances are saving ordinances. The strong implication is that some others are not. What will you do with the others? All our works, our prayers, our practicing of the simple life, our gifts, our church ordinances, our mission work, are the result of the great fact that we have received the Lord in our hearts, and that he rules there. We do it because we love him. It is the fruit of the grafted tree. It is because we have been born into the family. If the Pharisee had accepted this point, the Lord would not have condemned him.

Now in this I fear the dear, aged brother, who wrote the essay to which I have referred, will differ from me somewhat. We both belong to his New Testament church, we have the same Book, but our messages have grown apart, apparently. That comes from our differing experiences, I think. His experience has been with men who profess faith in Christ, and who follow not after him as closely as they might, so, in order to press the need for obedience upon such, he joins the idea of works too closely into faith, hoping thereby to lead these good folk to see the error of their ways. But he defeats himself thereby.

In India we have, on every side of us, those who depend on their works for their salvation, and who give faith no place, so we missionaries, easily and naturally, come to the same position that Paul the missionary held. Our experience is largely similar to that of Paul. He insisted that a man is not saved by works, neither is he saved by faith and works, but he is saved by grace, justified by faith, and sanctified by the Holy Spirit. Good works, walking in the foot-steps of the Master, accepting all the teachings of Jesus—these follow.

But is this idea of being saved by faith and works a peculiar tenet of the Church of the Brethren? Has it been so from the very first? Then we, to say the least, have been very careful to have one point set down as an article of faith. In previous essays, our good brother has, I think, been very zealous in upholding the excellent tenet of the Church of the Brethren in her reformatory movement, of not yielding to the temptation to make articles of faith. An argument of this kind, when used to press a point, only argues the weakness of the point, and is as clear as anything to those who can discern between what may be called loose thinking and careful thinking. In common phraseology, "It sure does cut some figure!"

If, then, we conclude that a man is justified by faith without good works, do we make void all such good works? God forbid! We establish, in reality, the doing of good works more abundantly, for "we are the workmanship of God, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, that we should walk in them."

Ankleshwer, India.

the North and East are at work, exploiting the great oil fields. They are also discovering rich veins of iron and coal. While this is being done, the State is making an effort to push its program of education farther and higher into the mountains. This, however, will prove of but little worth to the mountaineer unless the forces of religion and religious education keep pace with those of industry and public education.

The mountaineer of old was entirely dependent on his own efforts. With a little forethought he could live quite well, although plainly, by his industry. He knew he must make his own crop and provide his own meat before the winter, or he should go hungry. His wife knew she must spin and weave, or her family would suffer from cold. There was little exchange of labor for cash, and little cash to be expended. As a result of this, the mountaineer was self-dependent. But today, cheap though mountain labor may be, it has a market, and the mountaineer, in order that he may earn a little ready cash, is apt to neglect his little fields of corn and cotton, and spend his time and energy working in the mines or the cotton mills, at a very small salary. Out of this small salary he is compelled to pay big rent, which, in itself, eats a big hole in his weekly pay check. And food, even the plainest kind, takes more than the laborer ever dreamed food could cost. As a rule, the long rows of little dwellings, in which the laborers live, belong to the company, and the food and clothing must be purchased in the company's commissary. Thus you can readily see that practically everything paid out in wages goes back to the company, and all that the mountaineer has received for his labor is a very scant living.

If any of my readers have ever visited a cotton factory in the South, they have undoubtedly been made heart-sick at the conditions in many of the mills. Child labor has always been popular at the looms, and a father can put his children and his wife to work at a combined wage, while he spends his time in leisure. I am told that this is frequently done. Of course there are laws which prevent the employment of children under a certain age, but many, many boys and girls, who ought to be in school, preparing for lives of usefulness, are working daily at hard labor in cotton mills.

The mill-hands, as a rule, become a migrant class, wandering from place to place. Many of them would gladly go back to the little cabin in the hills, to cultivate the patches of cotton and corn, but their lands have been sold—perhaps to the great corporations seeking mineral rights, or to the agents of the wealthy pleasure-seekers, who want a summer-home where they can enjoy the pure mountain air during the hot summer months. The mountaineer, through ignorance, has become very suspicious, and is inclined to look upon all strangers as enemies rather than as friends. Of course, there is a very good reason for this. His resources are being taken by the exploiter for the benefit of the nation, perhaps, as well as the capitalist, but not to the betterment of the mountaineer. He does not realize his condition until his little home is gone and he is compelled to earn his living by hard labor in the mill or mine. Life to him now is little more than a struggle for mere existence, and to earn enough money to satisfy the carnal man.

Now the thoughtful reader will ask the question, How can the condition of these people be improved? In answer I will say that to the church alone belongs the greatest responsibility and the greatest opportunity of the age in the saving of the mountaineers. They can not and will not come to us. We must go to them. In their very souls lives the mystic beauty of the hills that inspired God's prophets of old. They love the hills, the valleys and glens. They love the beauty and the freedom of their native haunts. From childhood they have learned to love the little home in the hills. Here they wandered about in the early springtime in search

Your Christ is leading you on to victory, but victory can never be complete until the world not only acknowledges him, but learns to live with its eyes fixed upon him every day and every minute. That blessed Jesus, who lived and died for you, is saying: "Follow me!" Take up your cross and follow him!

May God move us all from under the hindering rocks and trees, brush away the clouds of misunderstanding, and grant us this hilltop vision of love, of service and of him!

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Christian's Responsibility

BY R. C. SMITH

A MINISTER once approached a young man of his congregation and asked him to teach a class in the Sunday-school—a task the young man seemed well fitted to undertake. To the surprise of the minister, the young man declined the responsibility, saying that there were so many things in the Bible he did not understand, so much he did not know, and the conflicting interpretations on various well-known passages of Scripture so confusing to him that he felt he could not accept the charge.

The minister hesitated a moment, then said: "Well, is there anything about the Bible you do understand?"

"Oh, yes, sir," the young man replied, "there are some things I feel sure about."

"Well," said the minister, "teach them."

Perhaps there are others in the same position as the young man—confused by various interpretations, overwhelmed with the things they do not understand—over-conscious of the things they do not know. Most Christians in this position seldom take an active part in the activities of the church. Sometimes—varying in the nature of the individual cases—it is just as well that their activity be limited until they have found their bearings. The uncertain man can not well inspire others to have confidence in the things about which he himself is uncertain.

A man in mid-winter came to a river that was entirely frozen over. He desired to cross the river, but he was not certain that the ice would support him. So he crawled out slowly and carefully, doubting the advisability of every move, when suddenly he heard a noise behind him. Looking back, he saw a man crossing the ice with a two-horse team and a heavily-loaded wagon. Those who walk out boldly on Biblical precepts, are likely to inspire others with confidence in them.

Men do not light a candle and put it under a bushel, said Jesus, but on a candlestick, and the house is illuminated. It is a poor Christian who does not have a light, even though it be but a small one. The getting of the light is his first task, the second is giving the light to others. In the giving of the light, his own light is in no wise diminished, but rather it grows brighter and more powerful. Surely, the Christian can not be called faithful nor fruitful who hides his light, or, in other words, fails to tell others what he knows of religious experience. Paul said: "I know in whom I have believed," and he gave the best part of his life telling others about him.

If you are not convinced that the Christian has laid upon him some solemn tasks, read the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel, concerning the duties and responsibilities of the watchman. We are watchmen of the spiritual welfare of the communities where we live. According to this chapter, if we fail in doing our duty and some one is lost, we may be held responsible, not for what we have done, but for what we have failed to do.

Let us consider a practical example: Suppose you know that there is a serious wash-out on a railroad, and that a passenger train is nearly due. If you do not take your lantern and signal to the trainmen, you are morally responsible for the results. If you go and wave your lantern, and the engineer refuses to stop, you are not responsible for the accident, for you have done what you could. The responsibility shifts to him. But if you succeed in stopping the train and preventing a wreck, you have done your duty. The very fact of knowing about the possibility of the loss of life, placed upon you a grave responsibility. You could not ignore it nor escape it.

What we do not know or understand, should not prevent us from carrying out the things we do know and understand. Sam Jones said, in his quaint, characteristic way: "If I understood everything in the Bible, I would know that somebody wrote it who had no more sense than I have." There is, without doubt, a progressive revelation of the eternal truths, both as a race and as individuals. Every year events or studies bring out new truths, or add new strength to the old ones. By constant study and meditation, by daily exercise of our spiritual faculties, we grow—our light becomes larger and stronger.

The Bible is full of such words as "do," "be," "go," "tell," "teach," "give," etc. These words imply action. They are mentioned many times more often than rest. The reason why some people find it so easy to be Christians is due to the fact that they have a wrong conception of their responsibilities. Get on the balance, and weigh yourself by the Bible! To know that you are "wanting," is the first step towards improvement.

800 Locust Grove Ave., Charlottesville, Va.

Purgatory

BY A. I. MOW

WHILE at the hospital I noticed that almost daily a priest came into our ward. He is a good-sized, well-dressed, happily-constituted man. As he came into the hall, his soothing voice, full of masculine timbre, announced to all his coming.

"Well, well, well, well, how are my dear children today?"

Turning to me he would say: "And how are you, my dear child [I am about his age], getting along today?"

Getting the usual answer: "Very nicely, I thank you," he turned and, going out, would say, flourishing both hands, "Well, good-bye, good-bye, good-bye," etc., till out of hearing, away in the hall. One certainly was well impressed by his affability and good cheer.

Once I asked: "Would you please, sometime at your convenience, tell me about the doctrine of purgatory?"

He accepted the invitation at once and said: "The doctrine of purgatory is a very convenient and essential church doctrine. It is the doctrine of an intermediate state. It is a condition between that of this life and future happiness. It is a retention between hell and heaven. It is a convenience for the benefit of the sinner. He may be too good to be condemned to hell, and still too bad to be admitted to heaven. Thus he can be retained till he can be prepared and fitted for heaven. It is essential to the church, for thus many who would otherwise be lost can be preserved. It is a reasonable doctrine because it has a parallel in civil affairs. Many persons who are brought into court are found guilty, and while they are not constitutionally so bad, yet, according to law, sentence is passed. But they are admitted to bail and in many other cases sentence is suspended, and they are given their liberty on their good behavior. That clemency works equally well in both cases. It gives the remiss one an opportunity to be righted without suffering the degradation of the lawful penalty."

Again I asked: "What effect, in a general way, has the doctrine on people's minds? Does it have a tendency to leave them more reckless, having hope in that clemency?"

He answered: "Oh, no; rather the reverse."

In connection with this is an important question I did not ask: "When and by whom is the person's fitness for either place determined?"

I am not easily persuaded. It occurs to me that with all its good points, "purgatory" is too far removed. But a purgatory might be made a valuable religious asset. Some people have a lavatory; some have a laboratory; some an observatory; and why might not the church have a purgatory?

I would have it on this side the eternal gates. Just as the laundry and the bath and the reformatory have their indispensable place in society, so the purgatory might serve the church.

But, really, haven't we got it already? We have the counsel of the spiritual, the apology for mistakes, restitution for wrongs, self-examination, washing of feet, communion, and possibly several other services, that have the direct purpose of getting our lives right. And why wouldn't it be far more consistent to be sufficiently concerned for our spiritual condition to keep our lives purged and cleansed and garnished, while we are here in conscious shape to do it? Thus there would be no question pending as to what our sentence will be and how we'll serve it.

Weiser, Idaho.

THE QUIET HOUR

Suggestions for the Weekly Devotional Meeting Or for Prayerful, Private Meditation.

"The World Is the Field; We Are the Workers"

Daniel 12: 3

For Week Beginning September 14, 1919

1. The Glorious Reward of the Soul-Winner.—The prophet speaks glowingly of those who, living in the day of trouble and distress, proved themselves as being "wise" (marginal reading, "teach"), did "instruct many." Doubtless the prophet was given a vision of the glorious things that, with the coming of Christ, should bless humanity.

2. "Those That Are Wise . . . Shall Shine."—If, as suggested above, this refers to teachers—as competent Bible students assure us—an important work is theirs, but a blessed reward also. They shall "shine in glory"—that of the upper world. Those that, by the wisdom they have, and the instruction they give, are instrumental in turning many to righteousness, shall shine "as the stars for ever and ever."

3. A Blessed Outlook for Every Believer.—(1) There is abounding joy reserved for all the saints in the future state—for all that are wise—wise for their souls and eternity. A man's wisdom even now "makes his face to shine" (Eccles. 8: 1), but much more will it do so in that state where its power shall be perfected and its services rewarded. (2) Those that turn "sinners from the errors of their ways," and help to "save their souls from death" (James 5: 20), will share in the glory of those they have helped to heaven, which will be a great addition to their own glory. (3) As Christ is the Source of all light, so his children are by his power made "burning and shining lights" in this world, but in the world beyond they shall shine "as the stars." That will be glory far beyond our finite conception—it will be bliss supernal!

4. Comforting Assurances.—(1) The winner of souls works with the most precious and promising raw material—immortal beings. (2) He has the greatest Coworker—Christ. (3) The results are the most remarkable—the transformation of character. (4) The rewards are the richest—the rest prepared.

5. Aggressive Methods Must Be Employed.—The disciple must go to those who need him. They will not come to him. Earth's highways and byways are alike filled with the neglected and perishing, and the disciple, like his Master, has a special mission to them. "As the Father hath sent me into the world, even so send I you." Like our blessed Savior, we, too, must seek and save the lost. We are ever prone to turn to those who have NOT gone astray, but such was not the spirit of the Master. God has, in these latter days, brought "all the ends of the earth together," and now the earnest worker can go to almost any part of the globe without difficulty, and bring in the wanderer and the outcast to the royal feast of heaven. With hands of holy determination, and yet with the voice of love and the touch of gentleness, we should go after the most needy and neglected ones of earth in the assured confidence that God's blessings will follow us, and that our labors shall not be in vain. At the great banquet of heaven, may it be ours to see some among the happy guests who shall have been gathered in by our faithful obedience to this command!

6. Suggestive References.—Declare God's glory among the heathen (Psa. 96: 3, 10). "He that winneth souls is wise" (Prov. 11: 30). "Work while it is day" (John 9: 4). "It is good to be zealously affected" (Gal. 4: 18). "Let us not be weary in well doing" (Gal. 6: 9). "Shine as lights" (Philpp. 2: 15). The reward of the soul-winner (James 5: 19-20). Jonah's experience (Jonah 3: 1-9). Our marching orders (Matt. 28: 19, 20; Mark 16: 15, 16). The duty of a watchman can not be shirked (Ezek. 33: 7-9).

rticle can not solve the difficulty of your cross, not a little comfort to know that "thy fate is mon fate of all"? Look aside and see the on the shoulders of your brothers and sisters. ead and see Jesus leading the way.

"Oh, fear not in a world like this
And thou shalt know ere long,
Know how sublime a thing it is
To suffer and be strong."

ontaine, Ohio.

The Hilltop Vision

BY NORMAN W. TWIDDY

LL lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence my help," sang the shepherd king. Humanity, suffered in the travail of war, is today lifting yes unto the hills for help, for understanding, lance and for salvation. Complete that verse d and the reason is plain—"My help cometh e Lord, who made heaven and earth."

s on Sinai, the summit of majestic law, that ke to Moses, the lawgiver of Israel, from out ibling thunder. It was from Olive's mount us Christ delivered to men the only code by ien and nations can endure. It was on Cal- ill that this same Christ transformed the cross emblem of death into an emblem of deathless nail-pierced and bleeding, he hung upon that r our transgressions. The hilltop has thus man the place of law, of grace and of redemp- he thundering Voice from Sinai, the tones of Love on the Mount of Olives, the agonizing Calvary—these have indelibly impressed the n humanity and have associated Divine Power hills forever in the mind of man.

very act of "lifting" our eyes suggests that ation of our human sight to a more spiritual ill enable us to find the Source of all inspira- help.

own through the ages, to you comes the call to op vision. How often have you been too close ise of the hill to note its grandeur? Stand off, r eyes, watch the purple and gold of morning over it. Awe-struck, you marvel at the vision v is yours. Why was it not apparent before? that rock, that tree, under which you stood at s foot, obscured the magnificent view of the tree or what overhanging rock have you been to obscure the glory of the hills?

Now, since you are standing, with eyes nto the hill, how gloriously resplendent it is! loud obscures it. Clearly God's presence and urpose are revealed. You drink in the fresh nspiration for your tasks, while your eyes are on the goal of all humanity—God.

you dedicated your life to chasing the dollar? ber that "ye can not serve God and Mammon."

your eyes unto the hills. Your Master has you. Hear him calling you—your talents, llars, your life—to his blessed cause. This is of sacrifice and unselfishness, the dawning of of brotherhood. You are a part of God's ful plan for saving the world! Are you going e your opportunity and wallow in the mire of ess?

, since brother left for "over there," have you he call to service, or are you still lost in con- ion of your own attractiveness—worshiping at ne of Dame Fashion? Lift up your eyes unto ! God is calling you from a life of shallowness of service. See him pointing toward those battle-fields of France, and calling you into the the Sunday-school, the Red Cross, to help n that better day of "Peace on earth, good will

Your Christ is leading you on to victory, but victory can never be complete until the world not only acknowledges him, but learns to live with its eyes fixed upon him every day and every minute. That blessed Jesus, who lived and died for you, is saying: "Follow me!" Take up your cross and follow him!

May God move us all from under the hindering rocks and trees, brush away the clouds of misunderstanding, and grant us this hilltop vision of love, of service and of him!

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Christian's Responsibility

BY R. C. SMITH

A MINISTER once approached a young man of his congregation and asked him to teach a class in the Sunday-school—a task the young man seemed well fitted to undertake. To the surprise of the minister, the young man declined the responsibility, saying that there were so many things in the Bible he did not understand, so much he did not know, and the conflicting interpretations on various well-known passages of Scripture so confusing to him that he felt he could not accept the charge.

The minister hesitated a moment, then said: "Well, is there anything about the Bible you do understand?"

"Oh, yes, sir," the young man replied, "there are some things I feel sure about."

"Well," said the minister, "teach them."

Perhaps there are others in the same position as the young man—confused by various interpretations, overwhelmed with the things they do not understand—over-conscious of the things they do not know. Most Christians in this position seldom take an active part in the activities of the church. Sometimes—varying in the nature of the individual cases—it is just as well that their activity be limited until they have found their bearings. The uncertain man can not well inspire others to have confidence in the things about which he himself is uncertain.

A man in mid-winter came to a river that was entirely frozen over. He desired to cross the river, but he was not certain that the ice would support him. So he crawled out slowly and carefully, doubting the advisability of every move, when suddenly he heard a noise behind him. Looking back, he saw a man crossing the ice with a two-horse team and a heavily-loaded wagon. Those who walk out boldly on Biblical precepts, are likely to inspire others with confidence in them.

Men do not light a candle and put it under a bushel, said Jesus, but on a candlestick, and the house is illuminated. It is a poor Christian who does not have a light, even though it be but a small one. The getting of the light is his first task, the second is giving the light to others. In the giving of the light, his own light is in no wise diminished, but rather it grows brighter and more powerful. Surely, the Christian can not be called faithful nor fruitful who hides his light, or, in other words, fails to tell others what he knows of religious experience. Paul said: "I know in whom I have believed," and he gave the best part of his life telling others about him.

If you are not convinced that the Christian has laid upon him some solemn tasks, read the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel, concerning the duties and responsibilities of the watchman. We are watchmen of the spiritual welfare of the communities where we live. According to this chapter, if we fail in doing our duty and some one is lost, we may be held responsible, not for what we have done, but for what we have failed to do.

Let us consider a practical example: Suppose you know that there is a serious wash-out on a railroad, of life, placed upon you a grave responsibility. You could not ignore it nor escape it.

What we do not know or understand, should not prevent us from carrying out the things we do know and understand. Sam Jones said, in his quaint, characteristic way: "If I understood everything in the Bible, I would know that somebody wrote it who had no more sense than I have." There is, without doubt, a progressive revelation of the eternal truths, both as a race and as individuals. Every year events or studies bring out new truths, or add new strength to the old ones. By constant study and meditation, by daily exercise of our spiritual faculties, we grow—our light becomes larger and stronger.

The Bible is full of such words as "do." "be." "go," "tell," "teach," "give," etc. These words imply action. They are mentioned many times more often than rest. The reason why some people find it so easy to be Christians is due to the fact that they have a wrong conception of their responsibilities. Get on the balance, and weigh yourself by the Bible! To know that you are "wanting," is the first step towards improvement.

800 Locust Grove Ave., Charlottesville, Va.

Purgatory

BY A. I. MOW

WHILE at the hospital I noticed that almost daily a priest came into our ward. He is a good-sized, well-dressed, happily-constituted man. As he came into the hall, his soothing voice, full of masculine timbre, announced to all his coming.

"Well, well, well, well, how are my dear children today?"

Turning to me he would say: "And how are you, my dear child [I am about his age], getting along today?"

Getting the usual answer: "Very nicely, I thank you," he turned and, going out, would say, flourishing both hands, "Well, good-bye, good-bye, good-bye," etc., till out of hearing, away in the hall. One certainly was well impressed by his affability and good cheer.

Once I asked: "Would you please, sometime, at your convenience, tell me about the doctrine of purgatory?"

He accepted the invitation at once and said: "The doctrine of purgatory is a very convenient and essential church doctrine. It is the doctrine of an intermediate state. It is a condition between that of this life and future happiness. It is a retention between hell and heaven. It is a convenience for the benefit of the sinner. He may be too good to be condemned to hell, and still too bad to be admitted to heaven. Thus he can be retained till he can be prepared and fitted for heaven. It is essential to the church, for thus many who would otherwise be lost can be preserved. It is a reasonable doctrine because it has a parallel in civil affairs. Many persons who are brought into court are found guilty, and while they are not constitutionally so bad, yet, according to law, sentence is passed. But they are admitted to bail and in many other cases sentence is suspended, and they are given their liberty on their good behavior. That clemency works equally well in both cases. It gives the remiss one an opportunity to be righted without suffering the degradation of the lawful penalty."

Again I asked: "What effect, in a general way, has the doctrine on people's minds? Does it have a tendency to leave them more reckless, having hope in that clemency?"

He answered: "Oh, no; rather the reverse."

In connection with this is an important question I

AROUND THE WORLD

The Proposed Ban on Narcotics

Recognizing that existing laws, restricting the sale of opium and its derivatives, cocaine, etc., to physicians' prescriptions only, have not had the desired effect, medical practitioners are now urging more drastic action. Irresponsible parties have surreptitiously sold various preparations of the kind to drug addicts. Again and again it has been shown that criminals of the most perverted type are given to the use of narcotics, with the evident result of aggravating their criminal tendencies. In other instances, persons of integrity and respectability have in some way become addicted to the use of certain narcotics, and in consequence have sustained a serious impairment of their mental and moral faculties. The facts cited amply justify the present agitation to eliminate the use of dangerous narcotics altogether.

Words of Truth and Soberness

We were greatly impressed by the warning words of Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, an influential society leader of New York, when she courageously said in a public address: "We are welcoming the soldiers who have returned from the rain of shot and shell and the lightning of sabers in Europe. Shall we face them with a greater danger here? Every woman who appears in public in a decollete state, represents such danger. Men are susceptible to that kind of thing. Shall we cause them to say: 'Oh, what's the use of trying to be good,' because our women dress as though they were beyond the social pale?" Mrs. Wentz's words are well worth pondering. There should be no doubt, in the mind of a person of clean life and high ideals, as to what constitutes indecency of dress. It is truly worth while to keep well within the limits of becoming modesty.

Helping the Former Saloon Habitués

Persons may rightfully differ, as to what may best serve as a substitute for the everywhere-present saloon of former days, but while some are still debating the question, Rev. George A. Kilby, superintendent of the Christian Industrial League, has at least made an attempt to solve the problem. He has rented a room at 884 South State Street, Chicago, to which he has given the name "Popular Hall." Acting upon the suggestion often heard in days gone by, that the "saloon is the poor man's club," Rev. Kilby is making Popular Hall a place where the men can meet with each other and talk about the things in which they are interested. There are good papers and books in plenty—but the trend is always for the right. Mr. Kilby says: "I am amazed how people talk about cleaning up the city and do nothing to clean up the men. Clean up the men, and you will have a clean city."

Korea to Have Local Self-Government

As now promised, Koreans are to have the privilege of self-government. Other reforms, looking toward home rule, are also announced in an imperial rescript, issued recently in Tokio, and received Aug. 20 at the Japanese embassy. The military government has been replaced by a civil administration. This, in itself, will be a vast improvement. The military gendarmerie is said to have been guilty of the most heinous acts. Doubtless many atrocities have been visited upon the helpless Koreans. Hereafter a system of village and town municipal government, based on popular suffrage, is to insure better conditions. Possibly most important of all, from the Korean point of view, is the rescript by the Emperor of Japan. This provides that Koreans shall have the same privileges and rights as the Japanese. As prospects are now, there are better days ahead for the persecuted people. Japan can not afford to be otherwise than fair towards the people of ancient Korea.

Peace, Too, Is Expensive

Usually war is regarded as about the most costly undertaking that can be engaged in, but judging by President Wilson's expense bills of the Paris Conference, peace negotiations also require money, and plenty of it. It has cost the United States $1,250,000 up to date to settle the affairs of the world at the momentous gathering, and the President wants Congress to appropriate $825,000 more to complete the job. In elucidation of the huge amount of the expenditures, our Chief Executive offers the following explanation: "In considering these expenses it should be borne in mind that for a time the personnel of the American delegation numbered more than 1,300 persons. July 31, last, this had been reduced to about 400, about eighty-eight of whom were civilians." While, at first sight, the figures submitted are staggering, they sink into insignificance, when compared with the great problems that had to be solved. If, in the end, the chaotic conditions in Europe are restored to even a semblance of order, the large outlay of money will prove to be a most profitable investment.

Prohibition Will Gain the Day

Colonel House, President Wilson's chief adviser, is a strong advocate of prohibition. He declares that America, on a prohibition basis, will outdistance all competitors in industry and commerce. In a recent letter he said: "Prohibition in America will mean prohibition everywhere, sooner or later. Europe will not be able to compete with us under such conditions. The British press does not represent the real feeling in England. There is already a strong sentiment for prohibition among the young men, and this will grow as the experiment proves successful with us." There is nothing quite so powerful as the unanswerable logic of a good example. If the people of the United States can show the success of prohibition by actual results attained, it will prove to be a powerful argument for others to fall into line.

Gospel Progress in India

During a recent revival at Hissar, India, new converts to Christianity helped to demolish 183 places of heathen worship. More than 1,500 meetings were held during that campaign, with a total attendance of 57,400 people. Gospel tracts to the number of 16,667 were disposed of, and 1,907 persons identified themselves with the Lord's people. A number of heathen priests were made to see the error of their ways, and became zealous advocates of the truth. Most glorious of all was the conversion of a number of thieves and other violators of law. Bringing forth "fruit unto repentance," they were joyfully received into fellowship. A priest of the Gurn Nanak Seet, heretofore bitterly opposed to Christianity, was convicted by the power of the Spirit, and subsequently led 101 people from his village to accept the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

Great Britain Extends Its Realm

An arrangement with China has just been negotiated by Great Britain, according to which British influence is to be extended over Tibet—another reminder of the fact that vast territorial gains have been acquired by the British Empire through the war. It may be of interest to note the more important British acquisitions: "Annexation of Mesopotamia; protectorate over Persia; protectorate over Egypt; protectorate over the Hedjaz (Arabia); administration of various German colonies under mandate of the League of Nations; paramount influence over Tibet." Any one who will take the trouble to turn to a map of the countries noted above, will see that the sway of Albion is now unbroken from the African Sahara to the boundary of French Indo-China—a distance of more than 5,000 miles. Since possession implies responsibility, what will these vast acquisitions mean for Gospel progress? Will the Christian forces of Great Britain be equal to their opportunity?

A Parable with a Point

As referred to in the "Christian-Evangelist," Rev. Jos. Keevil, pastor of the First Church, Noblesville, Ind., recently took a strong stand on the importance of proper Lord's Day observance, as evidenced by a vigorous article in the Bulletin he issues each week. From the well-written paper we quote the following parable: "STOLEN—Several hours from the Lord's Day by a number of people of different ages, dressed in their Sunday clothes. Do you remember the good farmer who had a pear tree with just seven fine yellow pears on it? Well, a man came along and asked for a pear. To his surprise, the farmer gave him six of the seven pears. Taking the six pears, he started off. Happening to look back, he saw the farmer disappearing in the house. Then the man craftily slipped back and stole the seventh pear. Listen! God has given us six days wherein to work for ourselves. He asks that on his day we rest from our labors and worship him. If we steal his day, are we any better than he who stole the pear?"

Disturbing Conditions in Armenia

Under date of Aug. 27 we are told that an informal warning has been given to Turkey that massacres of Armenians must cease. Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, commander of the United States naval forces in Turkey, is the official who espoused the cause of unhappy Armenia, by authority of President Wilson. The message warned the Sultan that if the Turks persisted in massacring Armenians, the twelfth of Wilson's fourteen points—guaranteeing the sovereignty of Turkey—would not be carried out. As the outlook is at present, Armenians in Europe and America are greatly disturbed by the report, cabled from London to the United States last week, to the effect that Great Britain is contemplating the abandonment of Armenia, and declaring that "if the United States is unwilling to accept a mandate for Armenia, then, however awful the prospect, Armenia and the Armenians must disappear." Miriam Sevasly, representative of the Armenian National Delegation, and chairman of the Armenian National Union of America, said recently: "The betrayal of Armenia, as foreshadowed in the dispatches from London, constitutes the greatest slur on the civilization of the world, and particularly on the British and American spirit of fair play. It is the most despairing note that has come forth shortly after a war which had for its purpose the liberation of oppressed and dependent nationalities from the worst barbarism extant. Armenia has just as much claim on the liberal nations of Europe, and especially on America, as Belgium, Greece, Roumania, and Serbia." This fervent appeal for the sorely-stricken people of Armenia should be given earnest consideration. America can do much to help them by a mere protectorate—being a "big brother" to the persecuted ones. We have freely given our means. Why should we not insure them the blessings of peace and safety?

Quite a Contrast

Congress has not yet learned the lesson of the war. It is quite a long way from reflecting the attitude of the country towards military waste and extravagance, as is shown in a bulletin from the American Union Against Militarism, Washington, D. C. Note these two statements: (1) "Appropriated by Congress for military drill in high schools and colleges, for year ending June 20, 1920, $4,000,000. (2) Appropriated by Congress for general education, for year ending June 20, 1920, $524,000." These figures speak for themselves. We are wondering whether our legislators will ever learn that the real strength of a nation does not lie in its military preparedness, however superior it may be, but in the moral and intellectual advancement of its people. The schools of our land constitute a mighty bulwark of protection—one that we shall do well to cherish more persistently.

The Unrest in India

A grave warning concerning possibilities in India, arising from the activities of the extremists, was uttered recently by Sir Harrington Verney Lovett, who has held many important positions in the Indian Government. According to his analysis, the extremists in India are increasing rapidly and are using against the Government a vigorous propaganda—combative and nationalist—backed by slander and misrepresentation. Sir Lovett declares that a policy of strict supervision, and comprehensive and wise administration of Indian affairs, will have to be exercised by Great Britain. Otherwise the best interests of that dependency will be imperiled. He is quite sure that premature home rule, with the inevitable strife and disorder resultant therefrom, would militate against all that is best in India's future. Self-government can not succeed if the component elements to that end are lacking.

Turning from Idol Worship

According to Rev. Steadman Aldis, missionary at Basim, in the Central Provinces, a great change is coming over the people in that part of India. "They have suffered much from sickness and famine during the past year," he says, "and now a water famine is upon them. On this account many have lost all faith in their heathen gods. A short time ago I was touring through one of the villages with my native helpers, when one of them declared to the people, 'You, in your idol worship, are just like the little children making men of mud, yet knowing all the while that the hand that made them, can destroy them.' Had such a statement been made two years ago, the people would have driven him out or worse. As it was, they laughed and admitted they were foolish. Many of the people have really given up all idol worship—not that they have wholly turned to Christianity, but simply that they have realized the inconsistencies of their heathen cult, and are turning to better things."

Further Complications

It is reported from Washington that American troops are to maintain order in Silesia, Germany—a section of the former German Empire for more than 150 years. Because Silesia contains coal mines, the Peace Conference proposed to give that valuable territory to Poland. Since, however, no historical, geographical or ethnological reasons could be advanced for such a move, a vote of the inhabitants was to decide the matter—the territory meanwhile remaining under control of the German republic. Apparently, however, the Poles could not wait, and started to invade Silesia. According to present prospects, the vote—if attempted at all—will have to be taken under stress of the invading forces, aided and abetted by troops of the allied nations. Whether a referendum under circumstances of that sort can justly be regarded as the voluntary expression of the people, is a question that only the future can solve. It is generally conceded, however, that any departure from principles of fairness and equity will be sure to result in serious difficulties later on. But there is trouble elsewhere also. Under date of Aug. 28, reliable messages report that fighting has begun everywhere in Montenegro—the Serbians attempting to suppress the uprising, to retain that country as an integral part of Jugo-Slavia. Apparently the protracted deliberations of the Peace Conference are no guarantee of orderly conditions in Europe, if the various nations do not coöperate. No permanently harmonious relations can be expected until self-interest is eliminated.

AROUND THE WORLD

The Proposed Ban on Narcotics

Recognizing that existing laws, restricting the sale of opium and its derivatives, cocaine, etc., to physicians' prescriptions only, have not had the desired effect, medical practitioners are now urging more drastic action. Irresponsible parties have surreptitiously sold various preparations of the kind to drug addicts. Again and again it has been shown that criminals of the most perverted type are given to the use of narcotics, with the evident result of aggravating their criminal tendencies. In other instances, persons of integrity and respectability have in some way become addicted to the use of certain narcotics, and in consequence have sustained a serious impairment of their mental and moral faculties. The facts cited amply justify the present agitation to eliminate the use of dangerous narcotics altogether.

Words of Truth and Soberness

We were greatly impressed by the warning words of Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, an influential society leader of New York, when she courageously said in a public address: "We are welcoming the soldiers who have returned from the rain of shot and shell and the lightning of sabers in Europe. Shall we face them with a greater danger here? Every woman who appears in public in a decolleté state, represents such danger. Men are susceptible to that kind of thing. Shall we cause them to say: 'Oh, what's the use of trying to be good,' because our women dress as though they were beyond the social pale?" Mrs. Wentz's words are well worth pondering. There should be no doubt, in the mind of a person of clean life and high ideals, as to what constitutes indecency of dress. It is truly worth while to keep well within the limits of becoming modesty.

Helping the Former Saloon Habitués

Persons may rightfully differ, as to what may best serve as a substitute for the everywhere-present saloon of former days, but while some are still debating the question, Rev. George A. Kilby, superintendent of the Christian Industrial League, has at least made an attempt to solve the problem. He has rented a room at 884 South State Street, Chicago, to which he has given the name "Popular Hall." Acting upon the suggestion often heard in days gone by, that the "saloon is the poor man's club," Rev. Kilby is making Popular Hall a place where the men can meet with each other and talk about the things in which they are interested. There are good papers and books in plenty—but the trend is always for the right. Mr. Kilby says: "I am amazed how people talk about cleaning up the city and do nothing to clean up the men. Clean up the men, and you will have a clean city."

Korea to Have Local Self-Government

As now promised, Koreans are to have the privilege of self-government. Other reforms, looking toward home rule, are also announced in an imperial rescript, issued recently in Tokio, and received Aug. 20 at the Japanese embassy. The military government has been replaced by a civil administration. This, in itself, will be a vast improvement. The military gendarmerie is said to have been guilty of the most heinous acts. Doubtless many atrocities have been visited upon the helpless Koreans. Hereafter a system of village and town municipal government, based on popular suffrage, is to insure better conditions. Possibly most important of all, from the Korean point of view, is the rescript by the Emperor of Japan. This provides that Koreans shall have the same privileges and rights as the Japanese. As prospects are now, there are better days ahead for the persecuted people. Japan can not afford to be otherwise than fair towards the people of ancient Korea.

Peace, Too, Is Expensive

Usually war is regarded as about the most costly undertaking that can be engaged in, but judging by President Wilson's expense bills of the Paris Conference, peace negotiations also require money, and plenty of it. It has cost the United States $1,250,000 up to date to settle the affairs of the world at the momentous gathering, and the President wants Congress to appropriate $825,000 more to complete the job. In elucidation of the huge amount of the expenditures, our Chief Executive offers the following explanation: "In considering these expenses it

Prohibition Will Gain the Day

Colonel House, President Wilson's chief adviser, is a strong advocate of prohibition. He declares that America, on a prohibition basis, will outdistance all competitors in industry and commerce. In a recent letter he said: "Prohibition in America will mean prohibition everywhere, sooner or later. Europe will not be able to compete with us under such conditions. The British press does not represent the real feeling in England. There is already a strong sentiment for prohibition among the young men, and this will grow as the experiment proves successful with us." There is nothing quite so powerful as the unanswerable logic of a good example. If the people of the United States can show the success of prohibition by actual results attained, it will prove to be a powerful argument for others to fall into line.

Gospel Progress in India

During a recent revival at Hissar, India, new converts to Christianity helped to demolish 183 places of heathen worship. More than 1,500 meetings were held during that campaign, with a total attendance of 57,400 people. Gospel tracts to the number of 16,667 were disposed of, and 1,907 persons identified themselves with the Lord's people. A number of heathen priests were made to see the error of their ways, and became zealous advocates of the truth. Most glorious of all was the conversion of a number of thieves and other violators of law. Bringing forth "fruit unto repentance," they were joyfully received into fellowship. A priest of the Guru Nanak Sect, heretofore bitterly opposed to Christianity, was convicted by the power of the Spirit, and subsequently led 101 people from his village to accept the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

Great Britain Extends Its Realm

An arrangement with China has just been negotiated by Great Britain, according to which British influence is to be extended over Tibet—another reminder of the fact that vast territorial gains have been acquired by the British Empire through the war. It may be of interest to note the more important British acquisitions: "Annexation of Mesopotamia; protectorate over Persia; protectorate over Egypt; protectorate over the Hedjaz (Arabia); administration of various German colonies under mandate of the League of Nations; paramount influence over Tibet." Any one who will take the trouble to turn to a map of the countries noted above, will see that the sway of Albion is now unbroken from the African Sahara to the boundary of French Indo-China—a distance of more than 5,000 miles. Since possession implies responsibility, what will these vast acquisitions mean for Gospel progress? Will the Christian forces of Great Britain be equal to their opportunity?

A Parable with a Point

As referred to in the "Christian-Evangelist," Rev. Jos. Keevil, pastor of the First Church, Noblesville, Ind., recently took a strong stand on the importance of proper Lord's Day observance, as evidenced by a vigorous article in the Bulletin he issues each week. From the well-written paper we quote the following parable: "STOLEN—Several hours from the Lord's Day by a number of people of different ages, dressed in their Sunday clothes. Do you remember the good farmer who had a pear tree with just seven fine yellow pears on it? Well, a man came along and asked for a pear. To his surprise, the farmer gave him six of the seven pears. Taking the six pears, he started off. Happening to look back, he saw the farmer disappearing in the house. Then the man craftily slipped back and stole the seventh pear. Listen! God has given us six days wherein to work for ourselves. He asks that on his day we rest from our labors and worship him. If we steal his day, are we any better than he who stole the pear?"

Disturbing Conditions in Armenia

Under date of Aug. 27 we are told that an informal warning has been given to Turkey that massacres of Armenians must cease. Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, commander of the United States naval forces in Turkey, is the official who espoused the cause of unhappy Armenia, by authority of President Wilson. The message warned the Sultan that if the Turks persisted in massacring Armenians, the twelfth of Wilson's fourteen points—guaranteeing the sovereignty of Turkey—would not be carried out. As the outlook is at present, Armenians in Europe and America are greatly disturbed by the report, cabled from London to the United States

"Let me tell you something. I once had an experience when we drove twelve miles to the nearest store for provisions. Aaron always took me with him if he could. So when he told me one morning to get ready to go to Maple Spring, I hurried to get the baby ready. By the time the oxen were hitched to our two-wheeled cart, I was ready too.

"It was late in August and we drove slowly, because Rose and Spot always traveled slow, but they were gentle and strong. I'd rather travel that way today than in the best aëroplane ever finished. It was sundown before we started back, and for a time everything went well. I showed Aaron some calico I had bought. It was fifty-eight cents a yard, and looked fine in the starlight.

"As we came near home we reached a marshy place where the fog was rising. Soon this fog became so dense that Aaron could not tell where to guide the oxen. There was danger of losing our way and getting too deeply into the mire. Still we kept on until we came to a point we had passed an hour before. You can not imagine how awful this seems! You are not sure of anything. We stopped beside a large haystack. Then Aaron went to see where we were. But he came back soon, unhitched the oxen from the cart, and fastened them to a stake, with a long chain, so that they could eat and not wander away. Then he kissed baby and me before starting out to find the way home.

"I wonder now why I suffered as I did. I had reached that state when my imagination was easily wrought upon. The clanking of the chain, when the oxen moved, made me think of men who had been chained in dungeons. Of course I tried to think of something else. I tried not to see a panther or a wolf in every moving shadow. It was the most forlorn moment of my life. I lived much there on the prairie. I had to commit my way unto the Lord. There was no one else.

"Now, when the cold gray dawn was breaking, I heard Aaron's whistle. It was out of time, and the tune was part of 'Marching Through Georgia,' mixed with some other song, but oh, the sweet tones in it for me! Aaron told me how he had walked until he was too tired to go any further, then he had sat down to wait for morning light. When it came he was just three miles from home. Then we found that the haystack where I was sitting was just forty rods from our dugout. Vinnie, I've never gotten away from that experience. God is a God for everyday living, and nothing is too small for his notice.

"I know what your mother expected of Harley. I am praying that he may be just what she was hoping he would be."

"I will try harder to trust the Lord and not bear these burdens as if they all rested on me," promised Lavinia. "There is Harley coming up the walk now. I must look after the supper for him."

Johnstown, Pa. (To Be Concluded)

Social Caste Lines

BY OMA KARN

Severe, almost to the limit of bearing, is the homesickness and utter loneliness suffered by one dwelling alone—a stranger in a strange town or city where there is neither a church nor any members of the denomination to which one belongs. Written in letters of gold, on the tablet of memory, is the recollection of an incident connected with living under circumstances such as described.

Responding, one day, to a ring from our door-bell, I found at the threshold of our dwelling a fine-looking elderly gentleman, who proceeded to introduce himself as the pastor of what I had been informed was one of the leading churches of the city. "I learned," the gentleman courteously explained, "that you are strangers in the city and I called to bid you welcome among us."

A very profitable and enjoyable three-quarters of an hour of social intercourse followed. At the end of this time, the caller went on his way, considerably enlightened as to the real faith and practice of the denomination of which his hostess is a member and, we feel safe in saying, with a greatly-increased respect for its standing in the world of religious thought and teaching.

The occasion was the beginning of a friendship which has grown and strengthened with the years. And one of the finest things about the making of it is, that it was the beginning of other pleasant occasions, with the lonely stranger included.

Social friendship, kindly Christian interest in some one else, are very similar to the eddies which follow the dropping of a pebble into the placid surface of a stream—they widen, embracing more and more within their scope as their reaching-out powers circle on. As fragrant as sweet incense are the precious memories of the two and one-half years' residence among the good Christian people whose acquaintance was made through the incident mentioned. Social recognition, coöperation in Christian service, kindly, thoughtful interest, and loving, unselfish, personal ministration during a time of illness in our home, stand forth indelibly engraved upon heart and mind—to our lasting benefit, we trust. "Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you."

While the members of the denomination mentioned were not the only ones who figure in the pleasant recital of my story, neither was my friend of the Baptist faith the only minister to call upon us, and show a cordial, friendly interest in our dwelling among them. As always, the interest manifested carried witness of being offered in the spirit of "workers together with God."

And as such we can work together to the mutual benefit of one another, and without danger to our own faith and practice. That it can be done so, has time and again been proved by consecrated workers in God's service. There is a form of church unity which is a very good thing, and should be practiced far more than it is. It is working together under the circumstances described. Christian fellow-workers, remember the stranger within the gates! In every parish, city, town or country, strangers are to be found—lonely ones who need your kind, friendly interest, whether they be of your parish, your faith, or your class or club organization or not. Nor should the duty of looking after these be confined to the work of the pastor of the parish alone. Laymembers are inexcusably negligent in the discharge of their share of this duty, and in some cases inexcusably narrow and selfish in their way of looking at it as a duty. "They are not of our set," was the plain, blunt statement with which a Christian worker was met, following her suggestion that several members of an organized Sunday-school class call upon a young married couple, who had recently moved into the locality. "They are not numbered with our organization" was the way another, on a different occasion, more graciously expressed the same sentiment.

Organization is a very fine thing. It is one of the necessities of the times and a means of much progress, providing it has for its object more and better coöperation. It is exactly the opposite force when the underlying principle is clique, or social caste. God is no respecter of persons. In his sight all who respect the rules of right living are of equal merit, no matter what their recommendations for social standing—whether they be figures on a bank-book or landed interest—large or small. Denominational and class caste is not included in our Lord's curriculum of going about doing good. But loving, friendly interest and kindly thought, taken and acted upon in behalf of the spiritual, moral and social welfare of those whose lives we can brighten and strengthen thereby, is plainly to be found there. It is a ministry in which all—every one and any one—can find something to do. "I was a stranger and ye took me in." Are we doing it?

Ashland, Ohio.

God's Side or Our Side

BY IDA M. HELM

The heathen, in their religions of ignorance and superstition, desire to have their gods on their side that all may be well with them, and they will resort to any kind of degrading thing, or terrible cruelty, in their efforts to propitiate or win the favor of the gods of earth, stone or wood. In vain they bow and cry to their gods.

The Israelites wanted God to be on their side, to provide their temporal needs, to fight their battles and defend them against their enemies, the Assyrians, the Edomites, the Philistines, the Babylonians and the Midianites, when they came against them. They were anxious that God be with them and defend them, but too often they neglected putting themselves on God's side in righteousness. Consequently Israel suffered ingloriously.

People who forget God shall perish. Today we can distinguish between a religion of ignorance and superstition and genuine Christian religion by the same principle. We are yet too much inclined to estimate our religion as a valuable asset and fortress of defense in time of trouble, but we are too apt to neglect getting our inmost life right with God. "Out of the heart are the issues of life." God will, of a surety, be on the side of those who put themselves on his side, who surrender all and obey him wholly. "Obedience is better than sacrifice."

Ashland, Ohio.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

AT THE HILLS

Some of our number went from the heat of the plains to the more bracing air of the hills for their vacation. We have all returned, and are glad to be back at our post. However, word comes that some do not feel as if they had had a vacation at all. It is difficult for some people to leave their work behind. Many missionaries, who have stenographers, take them along and, while "resting," catch up with a great lot of correspondence due. Others have to do their own correspondence personally. Several of us had to take work along. Our women-folks, because of a month of quarantine, due to chicken pox and measles, had special duties. Several others of our number succeeded in resting, it is hoped. Nevertheless, the time spent with other missionaries, exchanging opinions, hearing of their successes and failures, listening to good sermons, etc., all means preparation for better work on the plains.

We were much pleased to find an active Indian Methodist church on this hill. Here the true Light shines forth. Around the lake, a short distance away, is a Mohammedan mosque—not of the ordinary appearance, but having these words in large English letters over the gateway: "There is but one God and Mohammed is the prophet of God." This caused an antagonistic response in my heart.

I walked on down from here to the Hindu temples, where the ringing bells told of worshipers falling before images of stone. The bell is first rung, and the obeisance is then reverently made to the gods. An English-educated Indian, seeing me looking on, said: "Saheb, when they become informed they will not need these images of the gods." On the west side of the lake is an ugly, red-painted image, which they call "mata" (mother). Before this the common folks may often be seen bowing and making their simple offerings. I was told that a Hindu, to fulfill a vow to this goddess, threw himself into the lake last year, and drowned.

Right across the lake, in the Hindustani Methodist church, we missionaries sat to discuss methods of work, and to hear about mass movements in India toward Christ. There we prayed to the Living God, to hasten the coming of his Kingdom.

Many missionaries are having hard struggles to show any sort of fruit of their labors, while in other districts the Kingdom of God seems to be coming in power. One old brother missionary, of forty years' experience, arose and said: "We have such a mass movement on that, to overtake it, we have training-schools in which we teach raw Indian Christians to read and write and sing. We graduate them—giving diplomas—in three months, and send them forth, like the Master, to teach in the villages the glad tidings of the Gospel. Oh, God is with us in great blessing, for they are coming by thousands and tens of thousands. The day of India's redemption is nigh at hand," etc. Some of the rest of us sat with tears in our eyes and hearts, and, at the same time, had unspeakable joy and gladness in our hearts because of God's doings among the downtrodden of India.

The same day we heard of the success of the Methodist drive in America, for a large sum, to insure the Great Forward Movement of that great church. The question uppermost in the speaker's mind was this: "How may we bring about a like response in the hearts of the Indian Christians?"

(Continued on Page 574)

y prayer. If you can not have this service once have it once a week. Let the child know, from childhood, that the Christian family means the y altar. As the years go by, a child may forget things, but it will not forget that it has a praying and a praying mother.

all these things, live as God wants parents to nd as you travel the way yourselves and thus up the child in the way he should go, you may to your great joy, that even when in his prime rong man will remain a living monument of the ple set forth by Solomon: "Train up a child in ay he should go: and when he is old he will not from it."

ring, Fla.

What If—

BY ELIZABETH ROSENBERGER BLOUGH

Part I

INIA'S face was long drawn out, her eyes were ed, her hands hung helplessly by her side, as she by the kitchen stove. "The fire's out!" She as if a great calamity threatened her family.

father laughed. "Sure it's out. Watch me another!"

'hat if I can't get Harley's breakfast in time?" was a troubled frown on the white forehead and n droop to her mouth. "What if, after all, he decide to stay in town?"

ow, Vinnie, dear, you are borrowing trouble more." Her father was collecting chips and ng the fire by this time. Lavinia, with one ring look, turned toward her potatoes which had oiled the evening before. She skinned them and em in thin slices ready to fry after the dining vas set. She knew that she was not a very good and it made her anxious.

on't make the stove too hot," she called. "What potatoes should be blackened instead of fried?" t went until the family were seated at the table. a was finding things to worry over. She talked probability of rain for their class picnic, as if it ed on her shoulders.

hat if the sandwiches should get soaked, and ttle Templeton girl have to stay at home, because other always keeps her in out of the rain?"

ley was leaving the table when she said this. opped long enough to say: "What if an earth- should shake down the office building and scatter pers so that I could not make out the bills for elco Light Company? It might happen, of , but it is not likely to. Sister, what if—"

en Aunt Rebecca came in, that afternoon, she iat Lavinia was tired, and she helped her first he dishes, then, when everything was done that ould do, before supper, the two sat down to talk. a's older brother, Harley, was inclined to want than they could give him in the home, since r was dead.

e is always being invited places; there's not an g but he's wanted somewhere. I don't know is that so many people know him. And I don't him to board in town," was Lavinia's plaint.

here, there, child," said Aunt Rebecca, very ngly. "You musn't expect too much from Har- le loves you very much. Don't give him the that he is always being watched, through fear e will not do the right thing. Keep his confi- and pray. I believe that all will be well."

Lavinia took heart and tried to see Harley as Rebecca considered him.

y not? Surely God knows what is best for a man, and is exercising the same watchful care him as over us. With him 'tis the springtime

"Let me tell you something. I once had an experience when we drove twelve miles to the nearest store for provisions. Aaron always took me with him if he could. So when he told me one morning to get ready to go to Maple Spring, I hurried to get the baby ready. By the time the oxen were hitched to our two-wheeled cart, I was ready too.

"It was late in August and we drove slowly, because Rose and Spot always traveled slow, but they were gentle and strong. I'd rather travel that way today than in the best aëroplane ever finished. It was sundown before we started back, and for a time everything went well. I showed Aaron some calico I had bought. It was fifty-eight cents a yard, and looked fine in the starlight.

"As we came near home we reached a marshy place where the fog was rising. Soon this fog became so dense that Aaron could not tell where to guide the oxen. There was danger of losing our way and getting too deeply into the mire. Still we kept on until we came to a point we had passed an hour before. You can not imagine how awful this seems! You are not sure of anything. We stopped beside a large haystack. Then Aaron went to see where we were. But he came back soon, unhitched the oxen from the cart, and fastened them to a stake, with a long chain, so that they could eat and not wander away. Then he kissed baby and me before starting out to find the way home.

"I wonder now why I suffered as I did. I had reached that state when my imagination was easily wrought upon. The clanking of the chain, when the oxen moved, made me think of men who had been chained in dungeons. Of course I tried to think of something else. I tried not to see a panther or a wolf in every moving shadow. It was the most forlorn moment of my life. I lived much there on the prairie. I had to commit my way unto the Lord. There was no one else.

"Now, when the cold gray dawn was breaking, I heard Aaron's whistle. It was out of time, and the tune was part of 'Marching Through Georgia,' mixed with some other song, but oh, the sweet tones in it for me! Aaron told me how he had walked until he was too tired to go any further, then he had sat down to wait for morning light. When it came he was just three miles from home. Then we found that the haystack where I was sitting was just forty rods from our dugout. Vinnie, I've never gotten away from that experience. God is a God for everyday living, and nothing is too small for his notice.

"I know what your mother expected of Harley. I am praying that he may be just what she was hoping he would be."

"I will try harder to trust the Lord and not bear these burdens as if they all rested on me," promised Lavinia. "There is Harley coming up the walk now. I must look after the supper for him."

Johnstown, Pa. (To Be Concluded)

Social Caste Lines

BY OMA KARN

SEVERE, almost to the limit of bearing, is the homesickness and utter loneliness suffered by one dwelling alone—a stranger in a strange town or city where there is neither a church nor any members of the denomination to which one belongs. Written in letters of gold, on the tablet of memory, is the recollection of an incident connected with living under circumstances such as described.

Responding, one day, to a ring from our door-bell, I found at the threshold of our dwelling a fine-looking elderly gentleman, who proceeded to introduce himself as the pastor of what I had been informed was one of

in saying, with a greatly-increased respect for its standing in the world of religious thought and teaching.

The occasion was the beginning of a friendship which has grown and strengthened with the years. And one of the finest things about the making of it is, that it was the beginning of other pleasant occasions, with the lonely stranger included.

Social friendship, kindly Christian interest in some one else, are very similar to the eddies which follow the dropping of a pebble into the placid surface of a stream—they widen, embracing more and more within their scope as their reaching-out powers circle on. As fragrant as sweet incense are the precious memories of the two and one-half years' residence among the good Christian people whose acquaintance was made through the incident mentioned. Social recognition, coöperation in Christian service, kindly, thoughtful interest, and loving, unselfish, personal ministration during a time of illness in our home, stand forth indelibly engraved upon heart and mind—to our lasting benefit, we trust. "Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you."

While the members of the denomination mentioned were not the only ones who figure in the pleasant recital of my story, neither was my friend of the Baptist faith the only minister to call upon us, and show a cordial, friendly interest in our dwelling among them. As always, the interest manifested carried witness of being offered in the spirit of "workers together with God."

And as such we can work together to the mutual benefit of one another, and without danger to our own faith and practice. That it can be done so, has time and again been proved by consecrated workers in God's service. There is a form of church unity which is a very good thing, and should be practiced far more than it is. It is working together under the circumstances described. Christian fellow-workers, remember the stranger within the gates! In every parish, city, town or country, strangers are to be found—lonely ones who need your kind, friendly interest, whether they be of your parish, your faith, or your class or club organization or not. Nor should the duty of looking after these be confined to the work of the pastor of the parish alone. Laymembers are inexcusably negligent in the discharge of their share of this duty, and in some cases inexcusably narrow and selfish in their way of looking at it as a duty. "They are not of our set," was the plain, blunt statement with which a Christian worker was met, following her suggestion that several members of an organized Sunday-school class call upon a young married couple, who had recently moved into the locality. "They are not numbered with our organization" was the way another, on a different occasion, more graciously expressed the same sentiment.

Organization is a very fine thing. It is one of the necessities of the times and a means of much progress, providing it has for its object more and better coöperation. It is exactly the opposite force when the underlying principle is clique, or social caste. God is no respecter of persons. In his sight all who respect the rules of right living are of equal merit, no matter what their recommendations for social standing—whether they be figures on a bank-book or landed interest—large or small. Denominational and class caste is not included in our Lord's curriculum of going about doing good. But loving, friendly interest and kindly thought, taken and acted upon in behalf of the spiritual, moral and social welfare of those whose lives we can brighten and strengthen thereby, is plainly to be found there. It is a ministry in which all—every one and any one—can find something to do. "I was a stranger and ye took me in." Are we doing it?

Ashland, Ohio

attendance and interest are excellent.—Dow A. Ridgely, Parkersburg, Ill., August 23.

Elgin—Mark another red-letter day in the calendar of "the little church on Highland"! Some live wires have stepped our way literally to "see things" as they have occurred in missionary annals. The heart romance of Robert and Mary Moffat, heroic pioneer missionaries to South Africa, was presented by ten of the young people of the congregation, in a picturesque setting, and in appropriate costume, on Sunday evening, Aug. 24. The crowded house gazed with profound interest. Maybe the touching renunciation in the family of "Highland Mary" will appeal to some to give—give prayers, give money, give their children, give self. Scottish songs and missionary hymns were sung between the scenes, as solos and choruses, and invocation by two elders was made at the beginning and end of the performance. A bunch of Chicago young folk were out for the occasion.—Adaline M. Beery, Elgin, Ill., August 25.

Meenupin Creek church met in council August 2, with Eld. J. A. Snellzer as moderator. Bro. Clinton C. Brubaker and Bro. Edd Nunes were elected delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. Morris Brubaker, alternate. Four letters were granted. August 10 Bro. J. E. Wagoner, of Cerro Gordo, gave us a very interesting talk on the Forward Movement of Missions.—Clara B. Brubaker, Girard, Ill., August 27.

Burnetts Creek church has just closed a three weeks' series of meetings, full of great spiritual feasts, by which all attendants were greatly enriched. Bro. Jesse Ebey, of Polo, Ill., had charge of the services in a most commendable way.—G. B. Heeter, Burnetts Creek, Ind., August 26.

Huntington—Since our last report two have been added to the church here by baptism and one by letter. Last Sunday evening this church called Bro. Ralph Walliford to the ministry. Elders E. L. Heestand, T. D. Butterbaugh and D. W. Paul were with us. Sunday evening, August 31, in the absence of our pastor, several, who were at the Sunday-school conference at the Spring Creek congregation, will give echoes of that meeting. At a special council for constructive means of attaining better church efficiency, we decided to district our city into nine districts, and to place a leader with several helpers over each part, for the purpose of making a church survey. The Temperance, Missionary and Ministerial Committees were encouraged, and authorized to do aggressive work and to secure special speakers. We also adopted special means for increasing the attendance of our Sunday-school.—Mrs. Ermal Humbert, Huntington, Ind., August 26.

Joint Sunday-School Convention.—The Center, Blissville and Oregon Sunday-schools held their third Joint Sunday-school Convention at the Center church August 24. The forenoon was taken up with Sunday-school, followed by a children's program. In the afternoon a discussion of Sunday-school problems was carried on. Bro. Burton Metzler, of Silver Lake, had a talk on "Getting the Sunday-school Started Right in the Five-Year Forward Movement." Bro. Gordon spoke on "Problems Confronting the Sunday-school in This Movement." Sister Rasmussen spoke on "What Can We Do? Does the Home Life Have on the Sunday-school?" An offering of $7.41 was raised for missionary purposes.—H. L. Burke, Walkerton, Ind., August 25.

Ladoga church met in council August 23, preparatory to the love feast. Eld. E. N. Goshorn was in charge of the meeting. August 24 Eld. S. S. Blough, of Astoria, Ill., conducted the morning services. The Sunday-school lifted an offering of $7.22 for Sunday-school work. Sunday evening Bro. Clifford had charge of the communion services. Although the attendance was small, those who were present enjoyed the blessings of such a service. Recently the Ladoga members met with Mr. Pleasant in a union meeting, conducted by Bro. A. D. Helser, of Ridge, in the interests of missionary work.—Lula Goshorn, Ladoga, Ind., August 26.

Maple Grove congregation met in council August 16, with Bro. G. L. Studebaker presiding. Bro. B. A. Baker was chosen delegate to District Meeting and Bro. Jesse Hoffman, alternate, with Bro. Studebaker. Our love feast will be held Sept. 21.—Mac Mitchel, Center Point, Ind., August 27.

Middletown.—Bro. Albert D. Hosier, District Missionary Secretary of Ohio, was with us August 24 and gave us a very helpful talk, telling of some of the trials of the missionary. Bro. Holder, of Anderson, also preached for us recently. Bro. Zirkle is making a good beginning, but needs some one to help him along in the work. —Florida J. F. Green, Middletown, Ohio, August 26.

New Salem.—We are in the midst of a revival meeting, conducted by Bro. Wm. Buckley, of Bradford, Ohio. It has been thought best to postpone the love feast, previously announced for August 30, for two weeks, which makes the time Sept. 13. We are hoping that through Bro. Buckley's efforts the New Salem church may be strengthened. One has already confessed Christ.—Dora A. Stout, Millord, Ind., August 23.

Osceola.—We met in council August 9, with Eld. Hiram Roose presiding. Elders Eli Beeson, Daniel Wagoner and Christian Metzler were also present. The annual visit was reported. One letter was granted and three were received. The church decided, by a unanimous vote, to restore Brethren Daniel Wagoner and Christian Metzler to office. We decided to have a love feast Sept. 27, at 7 P. M. Bro. Wm. Anglemyer was elected delegate to District Meeting.—Jacob Motts, Osceola, Ind., August 18.

West Eel River.—August 3 we held our Harvest Meeting. Bro. Gorman Heeter was the speaker. An offering of $55 was taken for missionary purposes. In the afternoon Bro. Heeter gave us a splendid missionary sermon. The day was fine, and all enjoyed being present. August 17 Bro. Heeter left for Bethany Park, from the Mexico church, brought several orphans with them to our church. Three of the small girls sang for us, and the two brethren spoke. Later an offering of $45 was taken for the Old Folks and Orphans' Home at Mexico.—Ruth Metzger, Claypool, Ind., August 23.

IOWA

Coon River.—August 10 we were given a splendid sermon on "Fruit-bearing," by Bro. M. W. Eikenberry, of Dallas Center, Iowa. The following Sunday Bro. Hoefle, of Bevea, Iowa, gave us a good sermon on "The True Foundation." August 23 we held a council. Our love feast will be held at the country churchhouse Sept. 27 and 28, beginning at 3 P. M. We expect Bro. Frank Sargent to be with us in a series of meetings, beginning Sept. 14. Bro. Wm. Cordis and the writer were elected to District Meeting, with Sisters Mabel Fitz and Julia Barcus, alternates.—Mrs. Zona B. Ott, Panora, Iowa, August 25.

Greene church met in council August 25, with Eld. Wm. Liebty presiding. We decided to hold our Harvest Meeting Oct. 5, services beginning at 7 P. M. Brethren Edward Eikenberry and Wm. H. Fyle will represent us at District Meeting, with Sister Stella Eikenberry and the writer, alternates. Bro. Click, of the Douglas Park Mission, Chicago, was with us in the morning, being here to attend the Fresh Air children back to the city after spending two weeks in the various homes of the members here. A splendid temperance program was rendered on Sunday evening, July 27. We are expecting a lecture to be given by on Anti-Saloon worker. Bro. Harry Smith preached for us on Sunday morning, in the absence of our pastor.—Elsie A. Pyle, Greene, Iowa, August 28.

Prairie City.—We have been enjoying the presence of several ministers in our services lately. Among the number were Bro. Earl Deardorff, of Bagley, Bro. Chas. Colyn, of Osceola, Bro. Floyd Irvin, of Bethany Bible School, and Bro. Emmert Stover and his sister, Miriam. Most of these filled the pulpit while here and especially was the missionary program, given by Bro. Stover and sister, inspiring. An offering of more than $40 was lifted for the Mt. Morris fund. We expect to begin our singing school August 31, continuing for two weeks, when our revival meetings will begin. Our instructor in music will be Sister Sadie Mangus, of Bethany Bible School, and our evangelist will be Bro. Oscar Diehl, of Beaver, this State.—Nellie L. Bowie, Prairie City, Iowa, August 24.

South Ottumwa church has enjoyed several special meetings this summer, which have been very helpful. Sister Lydia Taylor talked to us on Dress Reform July 6. Several days later Bro. Messamer spoke in the interest of Mount Morris College. August 5-7 Bro. Winger gave three addresses on the cause of missions. All these meetings were very interesting and instructive, and were greatly enjoyed by our congregation. Bro. S. W. Garber, who had been in charge of the work here for nearly three years, went to his home at Decatur Ill., the last of July. He had greatly endeared himself to us, and all regret to see him go. Bro. Wm. Thompson and family, of Conway Springs, Kans., arrived August 3, to take up the work here. At a special business meeting, held August 20, Bro. Thompson was chosen elder. Bro. Joe Sly and Eld. Thompson were chosen delegates to District Meeting. The attendance and the interest are good at our services, and we are pleased with the outlook of the church at this place.—Doris Howard, Ottumwa, Iowa, August 25.

KANSAS

Sabetha church met in council August 26, with Eld. R. A. Yoder presiding, assisted by Eld. Roy Kistner. Church officers were elected. Bro. Roy Kistner was chosen delegate to District Meeting, and they decided to use the budget system of raising money. Bro. Nicodemus, of Chicago, will begin a one week Bible Institute August 29. These lessons are very interesting as well as instructive. Bro. Frank McCune will begin a series of meetings Sept. 6. A love feast will follow the meetings—the date to be announced later. Since the last report two have been brought into the church by baptism. Our Sunday-school expects to have its annual outing on Friday, August 29. July 26 Bro. Clyde Forney, Sunday-school Secretary for the Northeastern District, gave us three splendid addresses. He was with us several days, during which time he had a number of conferences with the Sunday-school workers. His words of encouragement and help were greatly appreciated.—Mrs. John Heikes, Sabatha, Kans., August 26.

MARYLAND

Longmeadow.—We held our fall business meeting August 16, with Eld. Caleb Long in charge. We decided to hold our love feast Nov. 1 and 2, beginning at 1:30 P. M. Bro. Ezra Petre was elected delegate to District Meeting, with Bro. J. H. Petre, alternate. August 2 Bro. D. Petre gave us a very helpful Sunday-school sermon. An offering of $36 was given for Home Missions. July 17 Bro. Minor C. Miller was with us in the interest of the Sunday-school Forward Movement. A community picnic was taken. Bro. B. F. Sommer has been with us and given very helpful talks. Prof. B. F. Wampler has closed his term of music among us.—K. Mae Rowland, Hagerstown, Md., August 21.

Ridge church met in council August 6. Eld. John Herr, of Myerstown, Pa., was with us and conducted the devotional exercises at the opening of the meeting. Two letters were received and six were granted. The monthly Sunday-school missionary offering is to help Bro. and Sister Hoffert to Sweden. Bro. A. C. Reber was elected elder for three years. We decided to hold a Missionary Meeting Sept. 7. There will be one session on the evening of Sept. 6. We also expect to hold a Sunday-school Meeting some time in October. August 9 we held our Harvest Meeting. Brother and Sister J. F. Graybill, on furlough from Sweden, were with us. In the evening Bro. Graybill gave us a good missionary sermon from the text, "Thy Kingdom Come." Sister Graybill gave us a talk on the life and customs of the people. An offering of $16.19 will go toward building a churchhouse in Sweden, and an offering of $16.19 toward the support of a brother who is in school, preparing for that field of labor. The Harvest Meeting offering of $18.45 will go to the Orphanage at Neffsville, Pa.—Debora K. Reber, Ridgely, Md., August 18.

MISSOURI

Wafrensburg.—August 8, Bro. Frantz, of Nebraska, was here in the interest of the "Forward Movement" of the church. He gave a very interesting talk. Brother and Sister Morris, McPherson, were here August 10 and 11. Although Bro. McPherson College was not enjoyed their visit. Our series of meetings is to begin Sept. 8, with Bro. I. H. Root, of Mt. Morris, Ill., in charge. One has been baptized since our last report.—Rowena Wampler, Warrensburg, Mo., August 20.

NORTH DAKOTA

Minot.—The joint Sunday-school Convention of the Minot, Surrey, Berthold and Kenmare schools was held at Minot August 24. Over 100 were present and we had an exceptionally good meeting. We served both dinner and supper at the church, thus having a social as well as spiritual meeting. In the evening Bro. John Deeter, of Kansas, gave a talk, which we greatly enjoyed.—Beulah Steele, Minot, N. Dak., August 26.

OHIO

Arlington.—July 20 we had the pleasure of listening to Brother and Sister Bright, who later on returned to the China field. July 27 Bro. Harvey Snell, of Mt. Morris, Ill., began a series of meetings, which continued for nine days. Bro. Snell preached twenty-five splendid sermons, which were much appreciated by all. One confessed Christ and was baptized.—W. E. Shank, Brookville, Ohio, August 23.

Castine.—August 17 we were indeed glad to have with us Eld. B. F. Petry and wife, of Eaton, Ohio. He gave us a very good sermon on the subject, "Threefold Responsibility for Sin," which was certainly worth hearing. Our Sunday-school is slowly increasing in number. Our Children's Day program was very good. Our collection, the result of $15, for the prohibition campaign, was sent in. In the afternoon two brethren and their wives, elected deacons at a former council, were installed. We expect Bro. Oliver Royer to begin a series of meetings August 31.—Treva C. Funderburg, Castine, Ohio, August 24.

Poplar Grove.—Bro. D. R. McFadden came to us August 10 and continued for two weeks in a series of meetings, preaching sixteen inspiring sermons. There were also two accessions, our members were much encouraged. Since our last report two have been baptized. Sister Minnie Heckman gave us a splendid talk on how to save our children for the church. Our communion will be held Oct. 11.—Mrs. Meda Bowman, Greenville, Ohio, August 24.

Red River.—We surely had reasons to rejoice on Sunday morning. The morning was bright and cool and many were at Sunday-school, to hear the lesson taught. Then reports were given of the Sunday-school Meeting at Bethany Park. Sister Sister Kintner, outgoing missionary to India, spoke to the older people and later to the children on the subject of "Heaven." We were glad to have her with us, and pray for the success of her work in India.—Mrs. R. A. Sayler, Bradford, Ohio, August 25.

PENNSYLVANIA

Akron church will hold her Harvest Meeting on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 7, at 2 o'clock. A Children's Meeting will be held on Sunday, Sept. 21, at 1:30 P. M.—David H. Snader, Jr., Akron, Pa., August 24.

Lancaster.—August 3 Bro. J. F. Graybill and wife were with us. Bro. Graybill preached for us in the morning. In the evening they spoke in the interests of medicine and the habits and customs of Sweden. They also gave us a few selections in the Swedish language. An offering of $50 was taken, to be used for the building of a churchhouse in Sweden. We will hold our Harvest Meeting the evening of Sept. 7.—Leah N. Phillipy, Lancaster, Pa., August 26.

Lititz church was favored with two helpful sermons August 10, by Bro. O. H. Yerman, of Philadelphia. August 17 we were very glad to have Bro. Elmer Nye, of Elizabethtown College, with us. His sermons were very much appreciated. In the afternoon we held our Harvest Meeting. Brethren Nye and S. N. Wolfe preached. An offering of $41.12 was lifted for the benefit of the Orphonage at Neffsville. Nov. 17 we expect Bro. Samuel Myers, of Fredericksburg, to begin a series of meetings.—Florence B. Gibbel, Lititz, Pa., August 23.

Pleasant Hill.—July 27 Brethren Levi Mohler, J. H. Keller and G. Monroe Danner were with us, preaching in the morning. Bro. Mohler also preached in the evening. August 3 Bro. Geo. C. Griffith, of Meyersdale, Pa., spoke to us on home and foreign missions. August 9 Bro. Nathan Martin, of Lehenon, Pa., began a two weeks' series of meetings. Five of our Sunday-school pupils stood for Christ.—Amanda K. Miller, Spring Grove, Pa., August 25.

Spring Grove.—Our two weeks' series of meetings at the Kemper house closed August 24, with Bro. Levi Mohler, of Elisabethtown, Pa., in charge. We met in council August 23, with Eld. I. W. Taylor presiding. Elders D. Kilhefner and David Snader were present to ordain Bro. Amos M. Martin. Our love feast will be held Oct. 11, at 1:30 P. M., at the Kemper house. We decided to hold a series of meetings at Blue Ball some time during the winter.—Florence L. Mohler, New Holland, Pa., August 25.

TENNESSEE

Jonesboro.—Bro. A. M. Laughrun, of New Hope, has just closed a series of meetings at Bella, which resulted in ten conversions. He spent about fifteen days there and we were glad to hear of the good work that was done in that immediate vicinity.—N. T. Larimer, Jonesboro, Tenn., August 25.

Meadow Branch church met in council August 16, with Bro. J. Henry Peterson presiding. We decided to hold our love feast Sept. 27, beginning at 3 P. M. Bro. Peterson preached for us on Saturday night and twice on Sunday. Bro. W. C. Coffman has been preaching for the people back in the ridges each third Sunday evening.—Cora A. Gammon, Tate, Tenn., August 19.

Pleasant Hill.—We met in council on August 16, Eld. J. H. Garst presiding. Bro. R. D. Reed, of Limestone, was also present and gave us much encouragement by his kind suggestions and admonitions. This being our annual visit meeting, our deacons brought in their reports. The membership was reported as being in peace and union. Our solicitor has secured our allotment of the fund, now being raised by our District Mission Board, to be used in the District for mission work. Bro. Reed preached for us on Sunday. We held our Children's Day exercises July 27. All enjoyed the program rendered by the children in the forenoon, and were highly entertained in the afternoon by Prof. L. C. Coffman, of Daleville, Va. Our love feast will be held Sept. 20. We decided to follow our old custom of an all-day service.—Sallie E. Garst, Blountville, Tenn., August 20.

TEXAS

Pleasant Grove.—Bro. J. A. Miller was with us again August 17, preaching two sermons on Sunday. The theme of the evening sermon was "Heaven." We will hold our love feast Sept. 20, instead of Sept. 13, as previously announced.—Jessie Mahaffey, Hufsmith, Texas, August 21.

VIRGINIA

Belmont.—August 2 Bro. S. D. Miller, of Mt. Sidney, Va., began a series of meetings at the mission point, five miles southeast of here. The people of that locality had erected a tabernacle in which to hold the meetings. This will also be used as a place of worship until a church can be built. The fact that Bro. Miller made many warm friends here last year, was borne out by the spirit and size of the audience which welcomed him the first night of the meeting. Bro. Miller preached two strong sermons the following day, and each night of the ensuing week a large crowd was present. Sunday morning, August 10, Bro. Miller preached. In the afternoon the regular Sunday-school session convened, which was followed by the children's program. Bro. Miller preached again in the evening. He spent his time during the day in visiting the homes. He and Sister Kline did some very effective personal work. Saturday evening, August 16, witnessed the close of the most enthusiastic revival this community has known for years. There were seventeen applicants for baptism, fourteen of whom were baptized on Friday morning and added to the church. We feel that Bro. Miller's short time with us was highly beneficial to all.—Cameron Yagel, Belmont, Va., August 19.

Middle River church met in the yearly visit council August 23, with Eld. John W. Wright presiding. Visiting ministers with us were Elders D. M. Garber, Luther Miller and Casper Driver. Two letters were granted. Bro. Wright was chosen elder for one year. Our love feast will be held at this place Oct. 25, at 2:30 P. M. We have enjoyed quite a number of good things since our last report. For two weeks, during the latter part of July and the first part of August, we were the first congregation in the Second District of Virginia to enjoy the privilege of having a Vacation Bible School. Every one enrolled was very much interested in the lessons taught. The school rendered a very interesting program on Sunday, with the close of the session. Bro. Luther Miller has been with us, conducting a splendid revival, closing August 24, having preached seventeen stirring sermons, besides a sermon on the subject of "Baptism" and the "Prayer Veil." Six confessed Christ, five of whom have received baptism.—Nora V. Liskey, Ft. Defiance, Va., August 25.

Mill Creek church met in yearly visit council August 23. The visiting brethren gave a very good report. Bro. H. G. Miller gave a very helpful talk. Elders were elected for another year, viz.: Brethren C. E. Long and H. C. Early. Our next council will be held preparatory to our new church this fall, to be completed next spring. We decided to have preaching on the second and fourth Sunday nights of each month. Our love feast will be held Sept. 20. Our series of meetings will begin after Oct. 1, to be conducted by Bro. Otho Winger. We held our Harvest Meeting August 9. Services were conducted by Bro. H. C. Early. Our ministers are leaving us one by one. Brother Walter Hartman has moved to Pennsylvania, Bro. Joe Bence will move to Bridgewater very soon. The latter was one of the best teachers of our congregation and just closed a very helpful teacher-training class at Mill Creek.—Ida Wilberger, Port Republic, Va., August 25.

Mount Olivet.—We have all meetings as usual every second and fourth Sunday, and Sunday-school every Sunday, with prayer meeting in the evening. We hope to have a series of meetings to begin August 23. At the close we are planning to have a love feast.—Martha Coffey, Dove, Va., August 21.

Ornoco.—Our week's series of meetings began August 10, with our pastor, Bro. R. M. Figgers, in charge. We had large crowds and the interest was good throughout. One was added to the church by baptism. We met in council August 24. Brethren D. M. and B. F. Glick, of Trevilian, Va., were with us—the former presiding. The church was organized into a separate congregation. Bro. Robert Figgers, Jr., was chosen secretary and clerk; Lucy Figgers, "Messenger" ogent; the writer, correspondent. Bro. Robert Figgers, Jr., was elected to the ministry and duly installed. Bro. Everett Davis was elected deacon and installed. Bro. R. M. Figgers was elected to the eldership and ordained elder for three years. He will also represent us at District Meeting.—Clementine Figgers, Oronoco, Va., August 26.

Pendleton.—Bro. F. M. White held a series of meetings August 10 to 18, preaching nine sermons in all. Six were baptized. The attendance and interest were good. Several more are contemplating joining the church at this place. There are only a few members, and our nearest church is Trevilian, nearly fourteen miles distant.—G. N. Shaffer, Pendleton, Va., August 21.

Peters Creek church met in council August 16. A good representation of the membership was present. Bro. Hugh Miller and wife, from Ohio, were with us. Bro. Miller gave us a good talk on "What Do We Owe to the Church." One letter of membership was received. The annual visit was reported. We decided to hold our love feast Sept. 30, at 5 P. M. Bro. A. M. Laughrun, from Tennessee, will conduct our fall revival, beginning Sept. 8.—Mildred Naff, Roanoke, Va., August 22.

Staunton church met in council July 24, with Eld. N. W. Coffman presiding. Brethren Homer Zigler, Peter Garber and our pastor were also present. A good representation of the members was present and we had a splendid meeting. Brethren D. N. Gilbert and H. M. Garber were elected deacons. The latter and wife were installed into office. We decided to retain Bro. Peter Garber as our pastor for another year. The writer has been elected "Messenger" agent.—Ressie M. Garber, Staunton, Va., August 27.

(Continued on Page 576)

ho were fortunate enough to hear them. Mr. Rist, County Agent at Beatrice, gave lectures on different es of agricultural work. Mrs. S. B. Fahnestock, of nerson College, conducted Mothers' Meetings each noon. Bro. I. B. Wagoner, of Red Cloud, Nebr., two helpful lectures on different afternoons. Fa- and Sons' Conferences were held. There was a ry Hour" for the children. All in all, the week was f good things from beginning to end.

nday, the closing day, was a great day. The regular ay-school lesson was studied by the various groups, e tabernacle, in the tents, and under the shade of the

The Sunday-school offering amounted to $70 and establish the "Assembly Scholarship" in McPherson ge. That means that some worthy young person, is preparing for definite church work, is to be helped hool.

e Sunday morning sermon was delivered by Bro. Studebaker. It was a masterly appeal for Chris- ing all our relationships in life. The afternoon was ed to discussing the Forward Movement. Bro. H. rantz, who has spent some time in the field in this recently, was the moving spirit in this.

ere will be an Assembly next year. The time will be the second week in August. Already plans are un- ay to make it even greater and richer than any in ast.. Make your plans to spend a week in the woods. e Sunday-school methods, Bible lessons, splendid lec- healthful recreation, and closer kinship with your bors and with God are made possible. Begin early epare for it. The expense is practically nothing. he results are beyond measure. Seventeen did the this year, entitling them to a certificate of credit in ay-school teacher-training courses. Why not you cray? All are welcome. W. O. Beckner.

Pherson, Kans.

Are You a Child of God?

(Continued from Page 565)

, with all his ways and works—if you have re- ced the world with all of its vain pride and vanity, The flesh with all of its sinful and lustful desires, h things belong to the devil.

ou are a child and a servant of the devil as long as doubt the truth of God's Word and disobey his nandments; the chiefest of which is: "Thou love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all oul, with all thy mind and with all thy strength, hy neighbor as thyself."

ar reader, are you willing, are you satisfied to ot your pay from the master whom you are serv-

And have you ever served a master against your will? Do you doubt that sometime the final pay will come, when all of our accounts will be fairly squarely settled up?

ow listen! When Christ comes in "that day" he gather out of this world all of God's own children he will know them by their "birth-marks"). e who came to him and pledged their allegiance service, and who served him faithfully until the he will take with him forever, away from this d of misery to that happy eternal world. Others ill leave here with their master and king, the devil. he can make even this world a hell of greater ry for all such, and the rest of his dupes who be- d that anything was good enough. Whom will blame?

nnellsville, Pa.

Notes From Our Correspondents

eold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country

CALIFORNIA

el church is beginning to do something. We are awakening r possibilities and opportunities. Last spring we started out much enthusiasm to build a church. Enthusiasm gave way to ragement and along with that the farm work loomed up so at the church project was abandoned. August 9 we held a council, with Bro. Chas. M. Yearout presiding. We elected a nance committee for our church building, and started the ball ling again. Two letters of membership were granted. The ol opportunity has opened at the Union church in our coun- y. They have asked our ministers to come and preach for ench Sunday evening. Two services have already been held attendance and interest are excellent.—Dow A. Ridgely, Parkersburg, Ill., August 23.

Elgin.—Mark another red-letter day in the calendar of "the little church on Highland"! Some five years ago opened our eyes literally to "free things" as they have occurred in missionary annals. The heart romance of Robert and Mary Moffat, heroic pioneer missionaries to South Africa, was presented by ten of the young people of the congregation, in a picturesque setting, and in appropriate costume, on Sunday evening, Aug. 24. The crowded house gazed with profound interest. Maybe the touching reconciliation in the family of "Highland Mary" will appeal to some to give—give prayers, give money, give their children, give self. Scottish songs and missionary hymns were sung between the scenes, as solos and choruses, and invocation by two elders was made at the beginning and end of the performance. A bunch of Chicago young folk were out for the occasion.—Adaline H. Berry, Elgin, Ill., August 25.

Macoupin Creek church met in council August 2, with Eld. J. A. Snetzer as moderator. Bro. Clinton C. Brubaker and Bro. Ed Nunes were elected delegates to District Meeting, with Bro. Martin Brubaker, alternate. Four letters were granted. August 10 Bro. J. E. Wagoner, of Cerro Gordo, gave us a very interesting talk on the Forward Movement of Missions.—Clara B. Brubaker, Girard, Ill., August 27.

INDIANA

Burnetts Creek church has just closed a three weeks' series of meetings, full of great spiritual tenets, by which all attendants were greatly benefited. Bro. G. L. Wine, of Polo, Ill., led these services in a most commendable way.—G. B. Heeter, Burnetts Creek, Ind., August 26.

Huntington.—Since our last report two have been added to the church here by baptism and nine by letter. Last Sunday evening this church called Bro. Ralph Walliford to the ministry. Elders E. L. Heestand, T. D. Butterbaugh and D. W. Paul were with us. Sunday evening, August 31, in the absence of our pastor, several, who were at the Sunday-school Conference at the Spring Creek congregation, will give echoes of that meeting. At a special council for constructive means of attaining better church efficiency, we decided to district our city into nine sections, and to place a leader with several helpers over each part, for the purpose of making a church survey. The Temperance, Missionary and Ministerial Committees were encouraged, and authorized to do aggressive work and to secure special speakers. We have also adopted special means of increasing the attendance of our Sunday-school.—Mrs. Ermal Humbert, Huntington, Ind., August 26.

Joint Sunday-School Convention.—The Center, Blissville and Oregon Sunday-schools held their annual joint Sunday-school Convention at the Center church August 24. The forenoon was taken up with Sunday-school, followed by a children's program. In the afternoon a discussion of Sunday-school problems was carried on. Bro. Burton Metzler, District Secretary, gave a talk on "Getting the Sunday-school Started Right in the Five-Year Forward Movement." Bro. Gordon spoke on "Problems Confronting the Sunday-school in This Mission." Sister Eisenbise addressed the meeting on "What Effect Does the Home Life Have on the Sunday-school?" An offering of $7.41 was raised for missionary purposes.—H. L. Burke, Walkerton, Ind., August 25.

Ladoga church met in council August 23, preparatory to the love feast. Eld. T. N. Goshorn was in charge of the meeting. August 24 Eld. S. S. Blough, of Astoria, Ill., conducted the morning services. The Sunday-school lifted an offering of $7.22 for Sunday-school work. Sunday evening Bro. Blough had charge of the communion services. Although the attendance was small, those who were present enjoyed the blessings of such a service. Recently the Ladoga members met with Mt. Pleasant in a union meeting, conducted by Bro. Jacob Holder, of Ohio, in the interests of missionary work.—Lula Goshorn, Ladoga, Ind., August 26.

Maple Grove congregation met in council August 16, with Bro. G. L. Studebaker presiding. Bro. B. A. Baker was chosen delegate to District Meeting and Sister Pearl Pendergraft, Sunday-school delegate. Our love feast will be held Sept. 21.—Mac Mitchel, Center Point, Ind., August 27.

Middletown.—Bro. Albert D. Hesler, District Missioonary Secretary of Ohio, was with us August 20 and 21. He gave us a good talk, telling of some of the trials of the missionary. Bro. Holder, of Anderson, also preached for us recently. Bro. Zirkle is making a good beginning, but needs some one to help him along in the work. —Florida J. Hesler, Middletown, Ind., August 26.

New Salem.—We are in the midst of a revival meeting, conducted by Bro. Wm. Buckley, of Bradford, Ohio. It has been thought best to postpone the love feast, previously announced for August 30, for two weeks, which makes the date Sept. 13. We are hoping that through Bro. Buckley's efforts the New Salem church may be strengthened. One has already confessed Christ.—Dora A. Stout, Milford, Ind., August 23.

Osceola.—We met in council August 9, with Eld. Hiram Roose presiding. Elders Eli Reose, Daniel Wysong and Christian Metsler were also present. The annual visit was reported. One letter was granted and three were received. The church decided, by a unanimous vote, to restore Brethren Bert Powtus and Peter Hoffman to the ministry. We decided to have a love feast Sept. 27, at 7 P. M. Bro. Wm. Anglemyer was elected delegate to District Meeting.—Jacob Motts, Osceola, Ind., August 18.

West Eel River.—August 3 we held our Harvest Meeting. Bro. Gorman Hesher was the speaker. An offering of $55 was taken for missionary purposes. In the afternoon Bro. Heeter gave us a splendid missionary sermon. The day was fine, and all enjoyed being present. August 17 Brethren Fisher and Balsbaugh, from the Mexico church, brought several orphans with them to our church. Three of the small girls sang for us, and the two brethren spoke. Later an offering of $45 was taken for the Mexico and Orphans' Home at Mexico.—Ruth Metzger, Claypool, Ind., August 23.

IOWA

Coon River.—August 10 we were given a splendid sermon on "Fruit-bearing," by Bro. M. W. Elkenberry, of Dallas Center, Iowa. The following Sunday Bro. Hoeflle, of Beaver, Iowa, gave us a good sermon on "The True Foundation." August 23 we met in council. Our love feast will be held at the country churchhouse Sept. 27 and 28, beginning at 3 P. M. We expect Bro. Frank Sargent to be with us in a series of meetings, beginning Sept. 14. Bro. Wm. Cordis and the writer were chosen delegates to District Meeting, with Sisters Mabel Fitz and Julia Barcus, alternates.—Mrs. Zona B. Ott, Panora, Iowa, August 25.

Greene church met in council August 23, with Eld. Wm. Lichty presiding. We decided to have our fall love feast Oct. 11, services beginning at 7 P. M. Brethren Edward Eikenberry and Wm. H. Fyle will represent us at District Meeting, with Sister Stella Eikenberry and the writer, alternates. Bro. Chas. Hoff, of the Douglas Park Mission, Chicago, was with us at this meeting, having been to accompany the Fresh Air children back to the city after spending two weeks in the various homes of the members here. A splendid temperance program was rendered on Sunday evening, July 27. We are expecting a lec-

South Ottumwa church has enjoyed several special meetings this summer, which have been very helpful. Sister Lydia Taylor talked to us on Dress Reform July 16. Several days later Bro. Messamer spoke in the interest of Mount Morris College. August 5-7 Bro. Winger gave three addresses on the cause of missions. All these meetings were very interesting and instructive, and were greatly enjoyed by our congregation. Bro. S. W. Garber, who had been in charge of the work here for nearly three years, went to his home at Decatur Ill., the last of July. He had greatly endeared himself to us, and all were sorry to see him go. Bro. Wm. Thompson and family, of Conway Springs, Kans., arrived August 3, to take up the work here. At a special business meeting, held August 20, Bro. Thompson was chosen elder. Bro. Joe Sly and Eld. Thompson were chosen delegates to District Meeting. The attendance and the interest are good at our services, and we are pleased with the outlook of the church at this place.—Doris Howard, Ottumwa, Iowa, August 23.

KANSAS

Sabetha church met in council August 26, with Eld. R. A. Yoder presiding, assisted by Eld. Roy Kistner. Church officers were elected. Bro. Roy Kistner was chosen elder for the coming year. We decided to use the budget system of raising money. Bro. Nicodemus, of Chicago, will begin a one week Bible Institute August 29. These lessons are very interesting as well as instructive. Bro. Frank McCune will begin a series of meetings Sept. 6. A love feast will follow the meeting—the date to be announced later. Since the last report two have been brought into the church by baptism. Our Sunday-school expects to have its annual picnic on Friday, August 29. July 26 Bro. Clyde Forney, Sunday-school Secretary for the Northeastern District, gave us three splendid addresses. He was with us several days, during which time he held a number of conferences with the Sunday-school workers. His words of encouragement and help were greatly appreciated.—Mrs. John Heikes, Sabatha, Kans., August 26.

MARYLAND

Longmeadow.—We held our fall business meeting August 16, with Eld. Caleb Long in charge. We decided to hold our love feast Nov. 1 and 2, beginning at 1:30 P. M. Bro. Ezra Petre was elected delegate to District Meeting, with Bro. J. H. Petre, alternate. August 2 Bro. D. R. Petre preached a very helpful thanksgiving sermon. An offering of $26 was given for Home Missions. July 17 Bro. Mioor C. Miller was with us in the interest of the Sunday-school Forward Movement. A community survey was taken. Bro. B. F. Summer has been with us and given very helpful talks. Prof. B. F. Wampler has closed his term of music among us.—K. Mae Rowland, Hagerstown, Md., August 28.

Lidgely church met in council August 6. Eld. John Herr, of Myerstown, Pa., was with us and conducted the devotional exercises at the opening of the meeting. Two letters were received and six were granted. The monthly Sunday-school missionary offering is to help in the work in Denmark. Bro. A. C. Reber was elected elder for three years. We decided to hold a Missionary Meeting Sept. 7. There will be one session on the evening of Sept. 6. We also expect to hold a Sunday-school Meeting some time in October. August 9 we held our Harvest Meeting. Brother and Sister J. F. Graybill, on furlough from Sweden, were with us. In the evening Bro. Graybill gave us a good missionary sermon from the text, "Thy Kingdom Come." Sister Graybill gave a short talk on the life and customs of the people. An offering of $16.19 will go toward building a churchhouse in Sweden, and an offering of $16.19 toward the support of a brother who is in school, preparing for the field of labor. The Harvest Meeting offering, of $62.41, will go to the Orphanage at Neffsville, Pa.—Debora K. Reber, Ridgely, Md., August 18.

MISSOURI

Warrensburg.—August 8, Bro. Frantz, of Nebraska, was here in the interest of the "Forward Movement" of the church. He gave a very interesting talk. Bro. Frantz was also in Moody, of Bro. Brenneman, here August 14 in the interest of McPherson College, and we enjoyed their visit. Our series of meetings is to begio Sept. 8, with Bro. L. H. Root, of Mt. Morris, Ill., in charge. One has been baptized since our last report.—Rowena Wampler, Warrensburg, Mo., August 30.

NORTH DAKOTA

Minot.—The joint Sunday-school Convention of the Minot, Surrey, Berthold and Kenmare schools was held at Minot August 24. Over 100 were present and we had an exceptionally good meeting. We served both dinner and supper at the church, thus having a social as well as spiritual meeting. In the evening Bro. John Dreter, of Kenasa, gave a talk, which we greatly enjoyed.—Beulah Steele, Minot, N. Dak., August 26.

OHIO

Arlington.—July 20 we had the pleasure of listeniog to Brother and Sister Bright, who later on returned to the China field. July 27 Bro. Harvey Snell, of Mt. Morris, Ill., began a series of meetings, which continued for three weeks. Bro. Snell preached twenty-five splendid sermons, which were much appreciated by all. One confessed Christ and was baptized.—W. E. Shank, Brookville, Ohio, August 23.

Castine.—August 19 we were to be baptized and to have with us Eld. B. F. Petry and wife, of Eaton, Ohio. He gave us a very good sermon on the subject, "Threefold Responsibility for Sin," which was certainly worth hearing. Our Sunday-school is slowly increasing in number—107 being present—for which we are glad. Our apportionment of $15, for the prohibition campaign, was sent in. In the afternoon two brethren and their wives, elected deacons at a former council, were installed. We expect Bro. Oliver Royer to begin a series of meetings August 31.—Treva C. Funderburg, Castine, Ohio, August 24.

Poplar Grove.—Bro. D. R. McFadden came to us August 10 and continued for two weeks in a series of meetings, preaching sixteen inspiring sermons. Although we had no accessions, our members were much encouraged. Since our last report two have been baptized. Sister Minnie Beckman gave us a splendid talk on how to save our children for the church. Our communion will be held Oct. 11.—Mrs. Meda Bowman, Greenville, Ohio, August 24.

Red River.—We surely had reasons to rejoice on Sunday morning. The morning was bright and cool and many were at Sunday-school, to hear the lesson taught. Two reports were given of the Sunday-school Meeting at Harris Creek. Following this, Sister Kintner, outgoing missionary to India, spoke to the older people and later to the children on the subject of "Heaven." We were glad to have her with us, and pray for the success of her work in India.—Mrs. R. A. Saylor, Bradford, Ohio, August 25.

PENNSYLVANIA

Akron church will held her Harvest Meeting on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 7, at 2 o'clock. A Children's Meeting will be held on Sunday, Sept. 21, at 1:30 P. M.—David H. Snader, Jr., Akron, Pa., August 24.

Lancaster.—August 3 Bro. J. F. Graybill and wife were with us. Bro. Graybill preached for us in the morning, in the evening they spoke to an appreciative audience on the manners and customs of Sweden. They also gave us a few selections in the Swedish language.

good missionary program. One particular feature was the presentation of a missionary service flag, on which is a red cross for each missionary in foreign service, and a gold cross for those who are dead. More crosses are to be added to the flag as others reach the field.

There will be no Sunday-school or Christian Workers' Meeting August 24 and 31, to enable the members to attend the District Convention at Huntington Beach, the last ten days of August. Ida B. Gibbel.

Pasadena, Calif.

HEIDELBERG CHURCH, PENNSYLVANIA

This section, of what was formerly the Tulpehocken congregation, met for organization August 15. We decided to name our congregation after the meetinghouse that was formerly our central house. Bro. John Herr presided and was also elected elder for one year. Elders E. M. Wenger, S. H. Hertzler and W. H. Oberholtzer were also present.

An election for deacons resulted in choosing Brethren Harry Brubaker, H. B. Light and H. F. King who, with their wives, were installed. Bro. J. L. Royer was chosen secretary; Mary Kurtz, H. B. Brubaker and Amanda Brubaker, Missionary Committee; Wm. O. Krall, "Messenger" agent; H. F. King, correspondent.

Our love feast is appointed for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, at 1 P. M., at the Heidelberg house. An invitation was extended to the Myerstown congregation to unite with us. A Harvest Meeting is to be held at Heidelberg Sept. 6, at 2 P. M. Bro. A. S. Hottenstein, of Petersburg, has promised to be present. In this meeting all of our new congregations will unite.

Our church now has two ministers and five deacons, one churchhouse and 123 members. Mary A. Kurtz.

Myerstown, Pa.

MISSION WORK IN THE SOUTH

The writer was sent by the Mission Board of Southwestern Missouri and Northwestern Arkansas to the Pilot Knob church in Arkansas, to investigate the condition of the church at that place.

We found six members located there and a great many young people who seem eager to attend church. They have their own house of worship. We preached three sermons; also organized a union Sunday-school. The meetings were well attended. The singing was good, but we find them greatly in need of song books. If any of the churches have "Kingdom Songs," or any other discarded books, which they would like to donate to the church at that place, please correspond with R. A. Price, Alpina Pass, Ark., as to how many could be sent. Postage will be sent to the donor of books. The books will be greatly appreciated, and we feel that in this way effective mission work may be done at home. The writer is to hold a series of meetings for them some time this fall. J. H. Argabright.

Fairview, Mo.

MIDDLE MISSOURI

The various meetings of the above-named District will be held in the Spring Branch church, Sept. 30 to Oct. 2.

Tuesday, 2:30 P. M., Elders' Meeting; 7:30 to 7:45, Sisters' Aid Society, Temperance Meeting and Child Rescue Meeting; 8:00, Educational Address.—Eld. Jas. M. Mohler.

Wednesday, 9:00 A. M. and 1:45 P. M., Ministerial Meeting; 4:00 P. M., Sunday-school Conference; 8:00 P. M., Missionary Address.—Eld. D. L. Mohler.

Thursday, 8:30 A. M., Organization of District Meeting; 8:00 P. M., Sermon.

MINISTERIAL MEETING PROGRAM

Morning Theme: The Ministry

The Ministry as a Calling in Life.—J. Arthur Wyatt. The Change from a Self-supporting to a Pastoral Ministry.—Jesse D. Mohler. Support of the Ministry.—Ira Witmore. Young Men Preparing for the Ministry.—L. B. Ihrig.

Afternoon Theme: Organization

Are We Overorganized? Is Overorganization Possible?—E. A. Markey. Relation of Suborganization to General Church Organization.—Jas. M. Mohler. What Suborganizations Should the Individual Church Foster?—G. W. Lentz.

Committee: D. L. Mohler, H. L. Holsopple, Lester V. Ihrig.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Bohn, Sister ——, nee Grossnickle, died at her late home in Waynesboro, Pa., of a complication of diseases, July 11, 1919, aged 48 years, 9 months and 19 days. She was born on the Grossnickle homestead, near Detour, Md. She married Bro. J. E. Bohn in 1897. She was a consistent and faithful member of the church. She is survived by two brothers and three sisters. Services in the Waynesboro church by Elders C. R. Oellig and M. A. Jacobs. Interment in Price's cemetery.—Jessie Memmith, Waynesboro, Pa.

Brown, Ellen Marie, nee Bagley, born at Cazenovia, N. Y., died at her home, near Holmesville, Nebr., of cancer, August 13, 1919, aged 69 years, 9 months and 11 days. She was married to John Brown in 1873. To this union were born five children, four of whom survive. She was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren. Services by the Brethren. Interment in the cemetery near the South Beatrice church.—Edgar Rothrock, Holmesville, Nebr.

Butson, Sister Rosa Belle, of Jennings, La., born at Wichita, Kans., died August 17, 1919, aged 33 years, 6 months and 17 days. For sixteen years she has been a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren, and until her health failed, a few years ago, was actively engaged in church and Sunday-school work. She leaves her husband, two daughters, one son and her father. Services by Bro. J. B. Firestone at the Roanoke church. Burial in the cemetery at Jennings, La.—Mrs. Aaron Longacre, Roanoke, La.

Byer, Bro. John W., born in Rockbridge County, Va., died July 24, 1919, with leakage of the heart, making his stay on earth 73 years, 11 months and 28 days. He married Nancy J. Pursley Sept. 9, 1869. To this union were born five sons and two daughters. He married Nora Montgomery Nov. 29, 1887. To this union were born two daughters. He married Ella Powell Oct. 22, 1905. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1891, and lived a devoted Christian life. One son and two daughters preceded him. His wife, two sons, two daughters and one stepdaughter survive. Services by Eld. A. F. Pursley. Text, 1 Sam. 20:18. Burial in the Bethel cemetery.—Lillie M. Thompson, Eagle Rock, Va.

Churchhaugh, Sarah Pearl, daughter of Josiah and Nancy Rhinehart, born in Indiana, died at her home near Pleasant Grove, Kans., August 14, 1919, aged 38 years, 10 months and 18 days. She is survived by her husband, John Churchhaugh, two sons, two brothers and her father. Shortly before her death she was received by baptism into the Old Order Brethren church. Services by Brethren John Wertz and Nicholas Crist, of the Old Order church, at Pleasant Grove. Interment in the cemetery near by.—J. M. Ward, Pomona, Kans.

Cushing, Sarah, nee Funk, born in Richland County, Ohio, died July 23, 1919, aged 76 years and 7 months. She married Samuel Cushing in 1860. Seven children were born to this union. Three with the father, preceded her. She united with the Brethren church in girlhood, and remained faithful. Services by Bro. Edmister.—Minnie Guagy, Dysart, Iowa.

Drabenstot, Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Josiah and Henrietta Dungern, born in Fayette County, Ind., Jan. 8, 1851. She was married to Jacob Drabenstot Sept. 22, 1867, to which union six children were born. Two children and the husband preceded her in death. A daughter and thirteen sons survive her. She leaves five grandchildren, one brother, three half-brothers and four half-sisters. Mrs. Drabenstot was a member of the Church of the Brethren at Loon Creek. She died Aug. 15, 1919, aged 68 years, 9 months and 7 days. Services by Eld. B. D. Hirt, assisted by the undersigned.—D. W. Paul, Huntington, Ind.

Early, Willard Arthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Early, died July 31, 1919, of colonitis, aged 3 years, 7 months and 19 days. He leaves father, mother, one sister and one brother. Services at the Pleasant View church by Eld. David Byerly.—Ada Miller, Lima, Ohio.

Fisher, Paul, son of Brother and Sister Clarence Fisher, of Sipesville, Pa., died August 14, 1919, aged 6 years, 9 months and 10 days. Death was due to a fall. Services by the writer in the Sipesville church. Interment in near by cemetery.—Chas. W. Blough, Johnstown, Pa.

Gearhart, Christopher, born in Franklin County, Pa., died at his home at Wichita, Kans., August 16, 1919, aged 79 years and 6 days. In 1867 he married Sarah E. Widder, who survives. Fifty years ago he became a member of the Brethren church, to which he has remained loyal. Services in the East Wichita church by the writer. Interment in cemetery near Keebi, Kaus.—C. A. Eshelman, Wichita, Kans.

Gray, Matthew, born in Greene County, Pa., died at Holmesville, Nebr., of diabetes, August 17, 1919, aged 70 years, 9 months and 2 days. He was twice married. His first wife died in 1883. To this union were born children, two of whom survive. Later he married Celesta Melvin, who also survives. Mr. Gray was a faithful Christian, a member of the Methodist church. Services in the Methodist church in Holmesville by the writer and Eld. James Gish. Interment in the Blue Springs cemetery.—Edgar Rothrock, Holmesville, Nebr.

Hylton, Hannah Evelyn, born in Missouri, died Aug. 9, 1919. She was the only daughter of Brother Lehman and Sister Myrtle Hylton, of Tonasket, Wash. Interment in the new cemetery, just by the new churchhouse being built near Ellisford, Wash. Death was caused by the after-effects of the influenza. Services by the writer in the Enterprise schoolhouse, near their home.—M. F. Woods, Tonasket, Wash.

Johnson, Sister Esther, daughter of Samuel and Catherine Teeter, born at New Enterprise, Pa., died at Oakville, Ind., August 13, 1919, aged 58 years, 4 months and 2 days. She united with the Church of the Brethren at New Enterprise when sixteen years of age, and continued a faithful, consistent Christian. She married Turner H. Johnson in 1893. To this union were born two children. Her husband preceded her in 1913. She is survived by one daughter, one son, four stepsons, three stepdaughters, four sisters, one brother and three grandchildren. Services in the Oakville church by the writer, assisted by Eld. L. L. Teeter and Bro. W. R. Deeter. Interment in the Miller cemetery, near Middletown, Ind.—Geo. L. Studebaker, Muncie, Ind.

McGruder, J. Henry, of the Goshen City church, died of asthma and dropsy August 20, 1919, aged 61 years, 4 months and 4 days. He had been a member of the Methodist church for many years, but in November, 1916, with his wife, united with the Church of the Brethren and lived faithful to the end. He is survived by his wife, one brother, one half-brother and two half-sisters. Services at the home by the writer, assisted by Rev. Frank Myers.—Frank Kreider, Goshen, Ind.

Manz, Barbara, nee Pike, born in Somerset County, Pa., died at her home in Garrison, Iowa, July 15, 1919, aged 70 years, 3 months and 17 days. She married Konrad Manz in 1871. To this union were born five children, all of whom, with the father, survive. Soon after her marriage she united with the Brethren church and remained faithful. Services by Bro. J. F. Edmister. Burial in the Garrison cemetery.—Minnie Guagy, Dysart, Iowa.

Maust, Bro. Jacob, of Sipesville, Pa., died at the home of his son, Francis Maust, August 12, 1919, aged 95 years, 7 months and 2 days. He is survived by three brothers, two sisters, seven children, forty-four grandchildren and fifty-one great-grandchildren. He was a faithful member of the church for about sixty-five years. Services by the writer in the Sipesville church. Interment in the near by cemetery.—Chas. W. Blough, Johnstown, Pa.

Shumaker, Bro. Chas. L., died in the bounds of the Trevilian church, Va., August 9, 1919, aged 63 years, 4 months and 10 days. Bro. Shumaker was the first member baptized in Louisa County. He is survived by his wife and four children. He served faithfully in the deacon's office and will be greatly missed in the community. Services in the Trevilian church by Brethren F. M. White and B. F. Glick.—Rebecca Glick, Trevilian, Va.

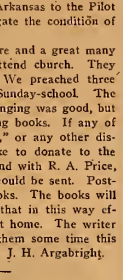
Weller, Jacob B., born in Wabash County, Ind., July 11, 1841, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Geo. H. Williams, near Arcadia, Ohio, August 11, 1919. Death was due to a stroke of paralysis. In 1861 he married Melinda Long. To this union were born eight children, four of whom preceded him. His wife died in 1915. He was a member of the Brethren church and a veteran of the Civil War. Services by Eld. David Byerly. Burial near the Oak Grove church, Hancock County, Ohio.—Ada Miller, Lima, Ohio.

Wine, Elizabeth, born in Rockingham County, Va., died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. S. Ikenberry, August 14, 1919, aged 78 years, 8 months and 28 days. She married Samuel K. Wine in 1857. To this union were born nine children, five of whom, with the father, preceded her. She is survived by two sons, two daughters, fifteen grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren and lived an exemplary Christian life for many years. The last few years of her life she suffered a great deal, being partially paralyzed for four years, but she was always patient and kind. Services in the church at Quinter by Eld. D. A. Crist. Burial at Menlo, Kans.—Mary A. Crist, Quinter, Kans.

Large Type

Bibles and Testaments Will Enable You to Read With Ease and Comfort

AUTHORIZED OR KING JAMES VERSION



Specimen of Type
Holman Home Bible
AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that
The exact size of Bible when closed is 6¼ x 9 inches
Flexible Binding

THE HOME BIBLE shown at the left is printed from large clear Pica Type. It has all the advantages of a Family Bible in the way of Marginal References, Family Record, Maps, etc. At the same time it is compact and light in weight. It is especially adapted to the needs of older folks who wear glasses.

2014. French Seal, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, ...$4.15

2022. French Seal, divinity circuit, linen lining and fly leaves, head bands and marker, red under gold edges, ... 4.85

2002. Cloth Bound stiff boards, round corners, gold titles, burnished edges, ... 2.35

TESTAMENTS WITH LARGE PICA TYPE—Authorized Version

Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅛x7⅜ inches

2902. Grained Cloth, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red burnished edges, ... $0.75

2902P. With Book of Psalms included. Same binding as No. 2902, ... .85

2913. French Morocco, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 1.80

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Je'sus

LARGE TYPE BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS—American Standard Version

Our line of American Standard Version Bibles and Testaments are easy to read and convenient in size. They are not only adapted to home use but are ideal for ministers. The Bibles are 5¾x8¾ inches in size; the Testaments are 4¼x7 inches and may be carried in the pocket.

Specimen of type used in Bibles and Testaments listed below:

unto Jehovah, and took of every clean beast, and of every clean bird, and offered burnt-offerings on the altar. 21 And Jehovah smelled the

Large Type Bibles—American Standard Version—Large Type Testaments

No. 100. Bound in Cloth, square corners, red edges, ...$2.25

No. 101. Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, flexible covers, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 3.75

No. 152. Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 4.50

No. 154. Genuine Morocco, divinity circuit, gros grain leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 7.00

No. 650. Testament, Bound in Cloth, round corners, red edges, ... 0.70

No. 650P. Testament, with Psalms, same binding as No. 650, ... $0.85

No. 653. Testament, Genuine Leather, Levant grain, flexible covers, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 1.65

No. 653P. Testament, with Psalms, same binding as No. 653, ... 1.75

No. 654. Testament, Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 2.20

No. 654P. Testament, with Psalms, same binding as No. 654, ... 2.30

NOTICE:—Thumb Index on Bibles 35 Cents Additional. Name, or name and address in gold, will be placed upon any of these Bibles and Testaments at 20 cents per line.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Elgin, Ill.

ructive messages were given by Brethren W. W.
, S. Z. Smith, L. A. Bookwalter, R. N. Leatherman, Hatton, I. G. Blocher, S. A. Blessing, J. C. Inman, Robinson and J. W. Fidler, and also by the followsters: Mrs. Levi Minnich, Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Mina Miller, Mrs. S. Z. Smith, Mrs. Katie Crawford, lso by our returned missionary, Anna Eby. Breth-
. G. Berkebile, Levi Minnich, D. D. Funderburg, I. ocher and Jacob Coppock served very acceptably as rators of the different sessions.

Five-Year Forward Movement was well presented he thought was expressed that Southern Ohio, with 000 members, should not only play the part of the er brother"—reaching forward to the goal—but to attain to still more.

illustrated talk, "What I Live For," by Katie ford, whom God has given the talent of drawing, ed the hearts of many. May God help that lasting ssions have been made!

ne of the thoughts presented at the Assembly were:
Christian church—the greatest institution in the
—is on the eve of a great revival.
y the minister who feels that he was called by man not by God.
survey of the church community and District will amazing information.
e point of perfection is a vanishing point.
eonsecrated laity is as important as a consecrated try.
rge things can be done if only begun.
k the Word of God up with life problems, instead eculative theology.
e of the great hindrances of Sunday-school work is ness. Can you help remove the hindrance?
d the trail of development in child-life.
oremium is now put upon volunteers.
ility to see comes first; ability to do comes next.
e path to the simple life leads heavenward.
are but sealed books. Keep the inside and outside
!
day is the day of opportunity. Do you see them?
you kept busy?
e hero is the one that volunteers. Woe unto him strives with his Master!
ere is a vast field for Christian endeavor, in the eland as well as in the foreign.
e Sunday-school report showed that there are 52
ols, an enrollment of 8,073; offerings for the year, 0; 136 enrolled in teacher-training and 267 conver-for the year 1918.
y the Sunday-school improve every opportunity to n the front line, as given in the "Standard." May report for 1919 be one of the best! If you do not the ten points, as given in the "Standard," please for a copy.
uthern Ohio now supports, or will soon support, foreign missionaries.
e Sunday-schools support Bro. J. M. Pittenger in a and Bro. O. C. Sollenberger in China. Provisions been made for the third, when one of her members, e selected by the Southern Ohio Mission Board, can ecured.
o. J. Homer Bright, China, is supported by the Ebercongregation; Sister Anna Eby, India, by the Bear
k congregation; Sister Minnie Flory Bright, China, alem congregation; Sister Elizabeth Weybright Oberzer, China, by the Trotwood congregation; Dr. O. G.
baker, China, by the Painter Creek congregation; Sis-Hazel Coppock Sollenberger, China, by the Donnels ek, New Carlisle, West Charleston and Springfield day-schools.
this great age of reconstruction, may the church, l to the teachings of Christ, rally to the front under blood-stained banner of King Emmanuel, man to man, plant the Gospel truths into the hearts of the chil-n of men until the nations of the world become the gdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.
pringfield, Ohio. Cyrus Funderburg, Secretary.

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

We met in business session August 15, with Bro. W. E. stle, our elder, presiding. Bro. Ray Olwin was elected day-school superintendent and Bro. Harvey Miller, rch trustee. As delegates for our District Conference, ch will convene at La Verne Sept. 6, we elected the owing: Brethren W. E. Trostle and E. B. Lefever: rnates, Bro. D. M. Heckman and Sister Effie Schrock.
treasurers of the church, Aid Society and Missionary good missionary program. One particular feature was the presentation of a missionary service flag, on which is a red cross for each missionary in foreign service, and a gold cross for those who are dead. More crosses are to be added to the flag as others reach the field.

There will be no Sunday-school or Christian Workers' Meeting August 24 and 31, to enable the members to attend the District Convention at Huntington Beach, the last ten days of August. Ida B. Gibbel.

Pasadena, Calif.

HEIDELBERG CHURCH, PENNSYLVANIA

This section, of what was formerly the Tulpehocken congregation, met for organization August 15. We decided to name our congregation after the meetinghouse that was formerly our central house. Bro. John Herr presided and was also elected elder for one year. Elders E. M. Wenger, S. H. Hertzler and W. H. Oberholtzer were also present.

An election for deacons resulted in choosing Brethren Harry Brubaker, H. B. Light and H. F. King who, with their wives, were installed. Bro. J. L. Royer was chosen secretary; Mary Kurtz, H. B. Brubaker and Amanda Brubaker, Missionary Committee; Wm. O. Krall, "Messenger" agent; H. F. King, correspondent.

Our love feast is appointed for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, at 1 P. M., at the Heidelberg house. An invitation was extended to the Myerstown congregation to unite with us. A Harvest Meeting is to be held at Heidelberg Sept. 6, at 2 P. M. Bro. A. S. Hottenstein, of Petersburg, has promised to be present. In this meeting all of our new congregations will unite.

Our church now has two ministers and five deacons, one churchhouse and 123 members. Mary A. Kurtz.

Myerstown, Pa.

MISSION WORK IN THE SOUTH

The writer was sent by the Mission Board of Southwestern Missouri and Northwestern Arkansas to the Pilot Knob church in Arkansas, to investigate the condition of the church at that place.

We found six members located there and a great many young people who seem eager to attend church. They have their own house of worship. We preached three sermons; also organized a union Sunday-school. The meetings were well attended. The singing was good, but we find them greatly in need of song books. If any of the churches have "Kingdom Songs," or any other discarded books, which they would like to donate to the church at that place, please correspond with R. A. Price, Alpina Pass, Ark., as to how many could be sent. Postage will be sent to the donor of books. The books will be greatly appreciated, and we feel that in this way effective mission work may be done at home. The writer is to hold a series of meetings for them some time this fall. J. H. Argabright.

Fairview, Mo.

MIDDLE MISSOURI

The various meetings of the above-named District will be held in the Spring Branch church, Sept. 30 to Oct. 2:

Tuesday, 2:30 P. M., Elders' Meeting; 2:30 to 7:45, Sisters' Aid Society, Temperance Meeting and Child Rescue Meeting; 8:00, Educational Address.—Eld. Jas. M. Mohler.

Wednesday, 9:00 A. M. and 1:45 P. M., Ministerial Meeting; 4:00 P. M., Sunday-school Conference; 8:00 P. M., Missionary Address.—Eld. D. L. Mohler.

Thursday, 8:30 A. M., Organization of District Meeting; 8:00 P. M., Sermon.

MINISTERIAL MEETING PROGRAM

Morning Theme: The Ministry

The Ministry as a Calling in Life.—J. Arthur Wyatt, The Change from a Self-supporting to a Pastoral Ministry.—Jesse D. Mohler. Support of the Ministry.—Ira Witmore. Young Men Preparing for the Ministry.—L. B. Ihrig.

Afternoon Theme: Organization

Are We Overorganized? Is Overorganization Possible?—E. A. Markey. Relation of Suborganization to General Church Organization.—Jas. M. Mohler. What Suborganizations Should the Individual Church Foster?—G. W. Lentz.

Committee: D. L. Mohler, H. L. Holsopple, Lester V. Ihrig.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

Bohn, Sister —, nee Grossnickle, died at her late home in Waynesboro, Pa., of a complication of diseases, July 11, 1919, aged 48 years, 9 months and 19 days. She was born on the Grossnickle homestead, near Detour, Md. She married Bro. J. E. Bohn in 1887. She was a consistent and faithful member of the church. She is survived by two brothers and three sisters. Services in the Waynesboro church by Elders C. R. Oellig and M. A. Jacobs. Interment in Price's cemetery.—Jessie Demuth, Waynesboro, Pa.

Brown, Ellen Marie, nee Bagley, born at Cazenovia, N. Y., died at her home, near Holmesville, Nebr., of cancer, August 14, 1919, aged 24, 1919, with leakage of the heart, making his stay on earth 73 years, 11 months and 28 days. He married Nancy J. Pursley Sept. 9, 1869. To this union were born five sons and two daughters. He married Nora Montgomery Nov. 29, 1887. To this union were born two daughters. He married Ella Powell Oct. 22, 1908. He united with the Church of the Brethren in 1891, and lived a devoted Christian life. One son and two daughters preceded him. His wife, two sons, two daughters and one stepdaughter survive. Services by Eld. A. F. Pursley. Text, I Sam. 20: 18. Burial in the Bethel cemetery.—Lillie M. Thompson, Eagle Rock, Va.

Churchhaugh, Sarah Pearl, daughter of Josiah and Nancy Rhinehart, born in Indiana, died at her home near Pleasant Grove, Kans., August 14, 1919, aged 38 years, 10 months and 18 days. She is survived by her husband, John Churchhaugh, two sons, two brothers and her father. Shortly before her death she was received by baptism into the Old Order Brethren church. Services by Brethren John Wertz and Nicholas Crist, of the Old Order church, at Pleasant Grove. Interment in the cemetery near by.—J. M. Ward, Pomona, Kans.

Cushing, Sarah, nee Funk, born in Richland County, Ohio, died July 23, 1919, aged 76 years and 7 months. She married Samuel Cushing in 1860. Twelve children were born to this union. Four, with the father, preceded her. She united with the Brethren church in girlhood, and remained faithful. Services by Bro. Edmister.—Minnie Gnagy, Dysart, Iowa.

Drabenstot, Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Josiah and Henrietta Dungan, born in Fayette County, Ind., Jan. 8, 1851. She was married to Jacob Drabenstot Sept. 22, 1867, to which union six children were born. Two children and the husband preceded her in death. A daughter and three sons survive her. She leaves five grandchildren, one brother, three half-brothers and four half-sisters. Mrs. Drabenstot was a member of the Church of the Brethren at Loon Creek. She died Aug. 15, 1919, aged 68 years, 7 months and 7 days. Services by Eld. B. D. Hirt, assisted by the undersigned.—D. W. Paul, Huntington, Ind.

Early, Willard Arthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Early, died July 21, 1919, of colmitis, aged 3 years, 7 months and 19 days. He leaves father, mother, two sisters and one brother. Services at the Pleasant View church by Eld. David Byerly.—Ada Miller, Lima, Ohio.

Fisher, Paul, son of Brother and Sister Clarence Fisher, of Sipesville, Pa., died August 14, 1919, aged 6 years, 9 months and 10 days. Death was due to a fall. Services by the writer in the Sipesville church. Interment in near by cemetery.—Chas. W. Blough, Johnstown, Pa.

Gearhart, Christopher, born in Franklin County, Pa., died at his home at Wichita, Kans., August 16, 1919, aged 79 years and 6 days. In 1867 he married Sarah E. Widder, who survives. Fifty years ago he became a member of the Brethren church, to which he has remained loyal. Services in the East Wichita church by the writer. Interment in cemetery near Kechi, Kans.—C. A. Eshelman, Wichita, Kans.

Gray, Matthew, born in Greene County, Pa., died at Holmesville, Nebr., of diabetes, August 17, 1919, aged 70 years, 9 months and 2 days. He was twice married. His first wife died in 1883. To this union were born four children, two of whom survive. Later he married Celesta Melvin, who also survives. Mr. Gray was a faithful Christian, a member of the Methodist church. Services in the Methodist church in Holmesville by the writer and Eld. James Glab. Interment in the Blue Springs cemetery.—Edgar Rothrock, Holmesville, Nebr.

Hylton, Hannah Evelyn, born in Missouri, died Aug. 9, 1919. She was the only daughter of Brother Lehman and Sister Myrtle Hylton, of Tonasket, Wash. Interment in the new cemetery, just by the

Large Type

AUTHORIZ

THE HOME BIB

clear Pica Type. It the way of Marginal the same time it is c
adapted to the needs

Specimen of Type
Holman Home Bible
AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that
The exact size of Bible when closed is 6½ x 9 inches
Flexible Binding

2014. French Seal, limp under gold edge

2022. French Seal, div bands and marke

2002. Cloth Bound stiff edges,

TESTAMENTS WITH LARGE PICA TYPE

Self-Pronouncing, Size 5½x

2902. Grained Cloth, limp, gold back and side titles, burnished edges, 2902P. With Book of Psalms included. Same binding as 2913. French Morocco, limp, gold back and side titles, rou gold edges,

LARGE TYPE BIBLES AND TESTAMENT

Our line of American Standard Version Bibles and Te ments are easy to read and convenient in size. They are only adapted to home use but are ideal for ministers. Bibles are 5¾x8⅜ inches in size; the Testaments are 4 inches and may be carried in the pocket.

Large Type Bibles—American Standard Ve

No. 180. Bound in Cloth, square corners, red edges, ... $2.25

No. 181. Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, flexible cov-

No. 182. Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, ... 4.50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER

"This gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world."—Matt. 24: 14. "STRETCHING FORWARD."—Philpp. 3: 13 "Till we all attain unto . . . the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Eph. 4: 14.

Vol. 68 Elgin, Ill., September 13, 1919 No. 37

In This Number

Editorial—
The Center of Christian Doctrine, ...577
Faultfinding and Constructive Criticism, ...577
Working Old Fields and Opening New Ones, ...577
The Quiet Hour, ...583
Among the Churches, ...584
Around the World, ...585

Contributors' Forum—
The Bigger Day (Poem), ...578
Five Years Will Tell. By D. W. Kurtz, ...578
A Glance at Revelation. By J. H. Moore, ...578
Service Versus Boasting. By Amos H. Haines, ...579
The Claims of the Christian Ministry.—Part Three. By L. S. Shively, ...579
The Divine Authority of Conference. By Paul Mohler, ...579
The Order of Friends of Jesus Christ. By Chas. M. Yearout, ...580
The Case of Discipline. By Olive A. Smith, ...581
Which Are You? By Margaret Dudte, ...581

The Round Table—
Christ's Deeds for Human Needs. By M. M. Eshelman, ...582
Loyalty. By A. V. Sager, ...582
The Pleasant Land. By Oma Karn, ...582
"Ye Are My Witnesses." By Elizabeth McDannel Martin, ...582
The Shut-outs. By G. W. Tuttle, ...583
"By Substitution." By A. E. Hecker, ...583

Home and Family—
The Safe Side (Poem). By J. O. Baruhart, ...586
What If ——.—Part II. By Elizabeth Rosenberger Blough, 586
"Ask Teacher." By Bess Bates, ...587

...EDITORIAL...

The Center of Christian Doctrine

It was Paul, the theologian, who wrote the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians. The same Paul that wrote Romans and Galatians and Ephesians. The same Paul that attached so much importance to sound doctrine and invoked the anathemas of heaven upon any man who dared to preach a different Gospel. It was that Paul who turned aside, in the midst of one of his doctrinal expositions, to interject that matchless parenthesis on the excellence of love.

No, he did not turn aside. He went straight to the heart of his subject and kept the thought of his readers focused on it long enough to make, if possible, an impression. Long enough to make every reader see, if possible, that the heart of that subject is the heart of the whole system of Christian doctrine and practice.

It is only when theologians and teachers and preachers forget this, that doctrine becomes mere dogma, and religion a lifeless creed. Any doctrine which contravenes the principle of love is by that test unscriptural and vicious. No system of doctrine, however much of truth it may contain, can avail the holder anything, unless it has love for its center.

Not less doctrine, but more love. Not more talk about love, but more love.

Faultfinding and Constructive Criticism

It is so much easier to object to the methods of others than to propose, not to say practice, better ones, that most of us stop at that point. Here is a good illustration of this:

An evangelist was accustomed to ask men and women to show their acceptance of Christ by rising and coming forward. After the meeting a young theological student said to him, "I was glad to see people converted tonight, but I don't just like the way you asked them to rise and come forward." "Neither do I," replied the evangelist. "How do you do it?" The young man hesitated, then answered, "Well, I don't know that I do it at all." "Then," replied the evangelist, "I like the way I do it better than the way you don't do it."

It may be that the way Brother So-and-so does his work is not the best, but if it is better than the way you don't do yours, why, that's a point worth considering, isn't it? Constructive criticism is a useful thing. Mere faultfinding is not.

Working Old Fields and Opening New Ones

This was the problem before the General Mission Board at its meeting last week. Sounds big enough to keep several men thinking hard for a while, doesn't it? Well, that is what it did.

The first part of it commanded the most attention, but the second part—the question of opening a new field—came up this time in real earnest. But more of that a little later. Let us look first at some of the many details involved in caring for the work in the fields already opened.

But for the very first thing let us note that the organization of the Board continues for another year the same as heretofore: H. C. Early, President; Otho Winger, Vice-President; J. H. B. Williams, Secretary-Treasurer. Also a word about the manual: For some time a manual of information for missionaries and missionary candidates has been under preparation, or rather revision. This was considered at some length, but final action was deferred. The desire is to formulate the most satisfactory and practicable manual possible. This takes time. Now for those field details.

A budget of $144,800 for India for 1920 was approved. This is more than twice the budget for 1919, showing that the India field is alive to its needs and working in harmony with the spirit of the Forward Movement.

Furloughs for 1920 were granted to Sister B. Mary Royer, the Drs. Cottrell and W. B. Stover and family.

The Board calls for one doctor and four general missionaries, two men and two women with normal training above college courses, for India in 1920.

Support allowances for native workers was increased from $60 to $80 per year; those of training department pupils from $32 to $50; those of boarding-school pupils from $25 to $35.

